ATHENS, ONT., JULY 16, 1890.

LOCAL SUMMARY

ATHENS AND NEIGHBORING LOCALITIES BRIEFLY REVIEWED.

Events as Seen by Our Staff of the Pen—Local Announcements—Noticed Right Down.

Cash paid for Eggs, at P. W. White's.

Minard's Liniment is the best.

Mrs. H. H. Arnold and family are at Charleston this week.

Buy your haying tools at G. W. Beach's Athens.

Dr. Fulton has accepted a call to the Baptist tabernacle, Montreal.

Choice family flour for sale cheap, at Phil White's Athens.

Mr. Fred Landers, of Potsdam, paid old friends in Athens a brief visit last week.

Salt, Salt—A car load of salt for sale at G. W. Beach's, Athens.

Mr. A. E. Barber, medical student, returned to Athens on Saturday, having just closed a successful term at Toronto.

Wanted—A boy for general store, not younger than 16, with fair education. Apply to G. W. Beach, Athens.

Miss Emma Boyce, of Morrisburg, who has been visiting friends and relatives in this vicinity, started for Lovell, N. Y., to-day.

Mr. Fred Williams resided at Charleston last week. He returns wearing a superabundance of the color of roses.

Minard's Liniment cures Psoriasis.

Mrs. Geo. Lee, of Lynn, who has been quite ill of late, is this week visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. J. Redmond.

Mr. C. Judson, of pleasant memory, now resident in Boohoster, N. Y., is spending a short vacation with his parents and family here.

Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Doyles are occupying their cozy cottage at Charleston Lake, having as a guest Mr. Minor, of New York.

Mr. Quarrier, of the Home, Brookville, has been visiting the boys between the ages of 7 & 9 years, that he would like to find homes for. Apply at once.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hill, Miss Mand and Mr. S. Hill, Mrs. E. Judson, and Messrs. O. and G. Judson are occupying Mr. Bulford's cottage on Charleston lake this week.

Mr. C. Richards, of Frankville, spent last week in Athens. He wore the same pleasant smile which he has so often welcomed patrons of the store of A. Parish & Son.

On Thursday last John C. Stafford, of Lansdowne front, pulled a stem of timothy on the farm of Norman Johnston, near Lansdowne station, measuring five feet three inches. Next!

Last week the REPORTER staff enjoyed a fine sample of strawberries from the garden of Mr. John C. Stafford. One stem contained eight large perfectly formed ripe berries. Thanks.

Messrs. A. D. Passmore and A. W. Bart, who have been conducting the examinations here, paid a visit to Charleston and, of course, spent the brief time allotted them very pleasantly there.

Miss Edith Powell, of Rocksprung, who was successful in writing for a second last term, and very advantageous circumstances, is visiting her old classmates and friends here, the guest of Miss Maud Hill.

Minard's Liniment cures Colds, etc.

We don't wish the public to infer from a paragraph in last week's Reporter that we object to any citizen of Athens wearing a Prussia Albert coat and a $4 derby. What we kick against is its being worn at our expense.

We acknowledge with thanks the receipt of a letter from an Elgin correspondent on the subject of "Berries." It contains some reasonable suggestions as to the best manner of gathering this fruit, but is a little too personal for the Reporter.

Messrs. Geo. Taplin and Byron Lovell, of Addicks, last week opened a wind-mill on the premises of Mr. John Fort, Unionville. They are agents for some of the best wind-mill factories in Canada and will be pleased to furnish estimates for all sizes and kinds.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Case Phillips have removed to "Idle White" cottage, their summer residence, on Goose island, Charleston Lake. Mr. Phillips is greatly improving his pleasant summer home and everything connected therewith bears the stamp of careful thought and capable execution.

Minard's Liniment for Rheumatism.

The glorious 12th was favored with glorious weather and a glorious time was had by thousands that congregated in Lyndhurst, Brockville and Smith Falls. The Y. M. P. E. A., of Harris, drove to Athens and took the business of Bettis & Young and a fine looking body of young men—credit to their native village. The members of Athens lodge went wherever they listed.

E. S. Clow, a clerk in W. G. Parish's store, has been appointed agent in this village, for the Brockville steam laundry.

Mr. John N. Young, proprietor of the laundry, is a young man with whom we have been acquainted since boyhood and we can safely recommend him to our readers as a reliable man.

A little over a year ago he bought out the business of Bettis & Young and has made a success of his venture, and any one who entrusts him, or his agent here, with any work in his line may rest assured that it will be well done and at reasonable prices.

On Tuesday afternoon last a violent storm of thunder, lightning and rain swept over this part of the country, about two miles west of the village the lightning struck and killed three cows for Clark Wilton, one for Wm. Pierce and one for J. Lovington.

combustible one tree and they were all under the house. The house of Thos. Dixie, in the Dobbs neighborhood, was also struck during the same storm and a chimney demolished, a portion of the cornice of the house torn off and other damage done. Mr. Dixie and Jas. Patterson were standing in the stable door when the bolt struck the house. Mr. Patterson was knocked to the ground but not injured.

Another lot of those cheap Dinner Sets, just opened, at China Hall, Brockville.—T. W. DENNIS.

Entrance Examination.

At the entrance examination to Athens High School, held July 8th, 9th, and 10th, the candidates who are provisionally admitted as passed are:

Morford Arnold, Harmonus Brown, Sidney Crammy, Ernest Leachy, George Slack, Manford Tackberry, George Tackberry, Keitha Blackard, Laura Beal, Bertha Covey, Edith Johnson, Edith Johnson, Clara Keeler, Olive Moore, Lovina Peer, Jennie Percival, Eva Quina, Chloee Yates, Martha Hall, Mary Rath, Eva Straton. The candidates were well prepared in reading and writing, as 21 failed in reading and 18 in writing.

Delta L. O. O. F.

On Tuesday evening of last week D. D. G. M. Lyman of Brockville, assisted by P. G. Grant, W. M. Stevens and D. W. Wiles of Athens, installed the officers elect of Delta Lodge as follows:—

N. G. John Williams
V. G. J. Barlow
Per Sec. L. Chamberlain
Rec. Sec. W. Hartwell
Treas. W. Niblock
Com. L. Stevens
Wor. Geo. Morris
E. S. N. G. L. Washburn
L. S. N. G. R. I. Stevens
L. S. V. G. R. Singleton
J. P. G. Luther Stevens
J. P. G. J. Moulton
Rep. to G. L. Rufus Stevens

At the close of the interesting ceremony of installation, the Delta brethren, with their grand officers as guests, adjourned to the new hotel in the Brown & Singleton block, where the host, Mr. Vanalstine, obedient to orders had prepared an elegant repast for the refreshment of the three-linked ones. It was a fine spread served in a style highly creditable to the house, and it was thoroughly enjoyed. Loyal, fraternal and volunteer workers were proposed and ably responded to and the evening passed very pleasantly.

A wonderful transformation in the interior of the building has been effected in fitting it up for a hotel, and with such an efficient caterer as Mr. Vanalstine has proved himself to be at the head of affairs, it should be liberally patronized by the travelling public.

Accident.

On Wednesday morning last Jas. Smith, employed as a brakeman on the Athens and Brockville road, was injured while coupling cars at this station. He had lost part of the little finger and the use of the thumb on the same hand on a previous accident, and the jam on Wednesday took away the second and third fingers. Dr. J. Harte removed the crushed fingers and dressed the wounds, and the wounded man was able to go to his home in Brockville the next morning. "Jim" as he was familiarly known, along the road, was one of the most obliging and painstaking men on the road, and the feeling of sympathy for him in his misfortune took tangible shape and resulted in our citizens contributing a very liberal sum towards his recovery. Mr. S. B. Williams collected over $40.00 in a short time and Mr. Horace Brown performed the same kind action on the train on Thursday morning.

The cheese salesmen were on their way to attend the regular meeting of the Board of trade and knowing the unfortunate brakeman's good qualities soon contributed $150.00 more. On Saturday these sums were augmented by the orangers and others, so that the committee were able to hand him a very liberal sum. Mr. Hervey contributed $25 and Mr. Money gave $10. We trust Mr. Hervey, the manager of the B & W will provide a place for Mr. Smith somewhere on the road, where he can continue to serve the company and the public in as satisfactory a manner as in the past.

Let the Poor Suffer.

Police Justice Cawley has had several very knotty problems on points of law to solve lately, but the one that gave him the most trouble was one from the vicinity of Lake Elgin. It was a case of a gentleman and a lady residing in that bucolic region rented a cottage to a descendant of the first settlers of this continent at the nominal sum of fifty cents per month.

Everything went smoothly until one day a little unpleasantness occurred between the parties, the cause of which our informant saith is not pertinent to the case in hand. However, from their firm friendship and cordial relations a desire to get rid of his tenants, and to make sure that he was moving properly, he consulted one of the legal luminaries living across the big waters of the lake, who, after reading the case, gave him some advice and instructions how to proceed. Armed with a legally drawn document, the landlord presented himself at the door of his tenant. He found that the master of the premises was absent, engaged in an honest endeavor to procure food and raiment for his family, and opening the door he stalked into the centre of the parlor and proceeded to read in a loud voice his mandate to the occupants to "vacate and get" at once. The dark, flashing eyes of the forest beauty flamed out a bold defiance, as she told him that when he had any papers to read to her he should take them to her lawyer, and that if he was not satisfied with her lawyer, she would go to the law herself. The landlord, who was fully prepared and determined to uphold the traditional honor of her race, and when, in the course of human events, it was his wish or desire to vacate, they would do so without any ordering from him. Poshontas never struck a more commanding attitude than did this representative of her race, when, with uplifted hand and flashing eye she berated her landlord "begone!" In language said to be neither elegant nor properly punctuated, he declined her pressing invitation, when suddenly the dusky matron pounced upon him with a hickory stick and the next chapter in the drama found him lying outside the door on the grass with a badly swollen temple and one arm hors de combat. He managed to reach home, harnessed a horse to his chair, and drove down to the village to consult with law-dispenser Cawley. In the meantime, the dusky amazon, fearing that she had involved herself in difficulty, hastily donned her travelling costume and started for the same destination. Having the advantage of faster locomotion, the landlord reached town first and the dolorous story of the wrongs he wanted righted was poured into the ears of his worship. The case was too complicated for an impetuous decision, as they were taken to ponder over the situation, with the understanding that a decision would be arrived at in a couple of hours. Scarcely had the master of the cottage said good-bye to the departing hero, when the heroine of the hickory cudgel put in an appearance, and his honor, with that characteristic gallantry that pertains to all in his official capacity, listened with rapt attention to the defence put in by his latest visitor. He had now heard both sides of the question, but the difficulty was how to deal out even-handed justice and give satisfaction to all parties. The plaintiff admitted that she was somewhat overbearing and promptly said that he was determined to be rid of his (to him) troublesome tenants. The suggestion to the party of the second part to leave quietly was treated with scorn, but finally she proposed a plan whereby the house would be vacated. "Give me ten minutes at him in the middle of the road," she said, "and I will move out to-morrow." This was the only proposition that she would allow to be entered as a settlement. As we go to press we learn that the offer has not yet been accepted.

Editor ATHENS REPORTER:

Transit.

This word has a world of meaning, all its own. It's magic draws the gold from the bottom of the deepest pocket of the millionaire, unveils to view the genius of the mightiest brain, and groups the nations together in steel bracelets by its glittering lines of railway. Great canals, conveying on their crystal bosom millions of tons of freight across continents, over lofty mountain ranges, from ocean to ocean. From these great commercial and industrial arteries lateral feelers are reaching out into the torrid zones and polar regions for every known production and commodity on the earth. The great streams of commerce flow in natural channels as certainly as do the rivers. Sometimes the selfishness and obstinacy of the business men of the world induce them to divert trade from its base line, away from its natural course. But commodities when thus displaced retain a constant tendency to gravitate back to their natural channels. The Charleston Road.

Editor ATHENS REPORTER:

The ratpayers in the three road divisions on the Charleston road, between the village and the junction of that road with the Athens and Maltbyville road, wish to suggest through the medium of the REPORTER that the council assist them to make a good road of this section.

The road is untidy and is heavy in many places. There is three times the travel on it and the little branch leading into Athens that there is on the toll road from Athens to Brockville. The great travel and the rains rendered the road-work almost useless, where nothing but mud is shoveled on, so that after many years of work our road is little better than at first. Much labor in this way is lost.

Charleston, in a sense, belongs to the country at a distance around, and we all should feel a little honest pride in its good name and fine reputation. It is a matter of interest to all who visit the lake and its islands and receive health and pleasure from the locality. This sympathy will grow deeper and wider.

But pleasant memories retained by foreign visitors will be a little dampened by the recollection of their futile attempts at a dashing drive over a dull, slow road out to Athens or other places. Resident visitors who drive in also realize this.

A little help annually with the statute labor would in a few years make a splendid road from Charleston to Athens and so on to Brockville. Let us have at least one comparatively inexpensive, good road to our popular, renowned and far-famed summer resort—popular, because those who have charge of the facilities to the people of the locality do all they can to aid pleasure seekers to enjoy the most for the least possible sum of money—renowned for the beauty of its picturesque scenery and its fine game fish—far-famed, because the reports of its attractions has gone into many lands.
