Ottawa Schools Under Commiss

Following the decision of the Onario Supreme Court, confirming the stand taken by the Ontario Govern-ment upon its bilingual regulations, the Government, it is understood, is now preparing to appoint a commission to administer the affairs of the Ottawa Separate schools. It is stated that the appointments will be made in the near future, but the personnel of the new body has not been definitely decided upon.

The appointment of a commission was provided for in legislatson last session. The government brought in a special bill giving the Minister of Education power to appoint a commission to take over complete control of the schools should the Ottawa Sep. arate School Board, in which the French-speaking element is supreme, refuse to obey the school regulations. The rebellious majority has remained defiant however, and a month or two ago the government, unwilling to proceed under the special Act while the decision of the courts upon the general question was pending, found a temporary way out by advancing the sal aries of the teachers in schools obeying the regulations - practically English-speaking schools, That arrangement was carried through to the end of the term, but it is recognized that a more permanent plan must be adopted before the next term opens. The favorable judgment of the court strengthens the Government in its determination to deal firmly with

LESSON IV.

July 25, 1915.—Solomon Dedicates the Temple.-1 Kings 8:53, Print 8:22-30.

Commentary -- I. Bringing in the ark (vs. 1-11.) The length of time occupied in building the temple was seven years. It was finished in the eighth month and was deicated in the sevonth of the following year. The intertening eleven months may hard been occupied in preparing the furn-takings of the temple. At the time of the dedication there were assembled the leaders of all the tribes of Isriel Jerusalem, for this was to be one of the greatest events in the history of the nation. Priest carried the ark of the covenant from Zion, where Dawid had placed it during the early part of his reign, to Moriah. They went castward down into the Tyropoen valley and up on the other side to Moriah and the ark was deposited in the most holy place of the temple. In the ark were the tables of the cove-nant. The ark of the covenant was the symbol of the divine presence, and manifested his presuce in the temple after the sacred ark was placed The cloud of glory filled the house of the Lord so that the priests were not able to minister. It was a most satisfactory evidence that the lord was pleased with the offorts his people had put forth in his service and for his honor, that the divine glory filled the temple. They thus knew that their work was acceptable to God.

II. Blessing the people (vs. 12-21.)

A platform had been crected for the occasion, and Solomon stood upon it congregation, and kneeled upon it to pray. He first addressed the Lord, declaring that he built for him a permanent place of abode. He then turned toward the people and blessed them, while they od to hear his words. He gave the history of the building of the house. The thought of this enterprise was in the heart of David, but, because of his being much engaged in war, he was not allowed to build the temple. The Lord gave David the promise, how-ever, that a son of his would accom-plish the work. God commended Da-God commended David for his desire and interest in the matter. Solomon testified that the Lord had placed him upon the throne as his father's successor, and that he had built the house of the Lord. The king made particular reference to the place of the coverent. The most holy place of the temple was set apart as a resting place for the ark. This contained the covenant which God made with his people. This covenant was embodied in the tables of the Ten this day were of his sen. God's covenant with his people.

This prayer called for forgiveness for the people or condition that they confessed their sins, turned from them and asked the Lord for pardon, praying with their faces toward Jerusalem. The prayer covered times of drought, famine, pes ilence and war. I. Divine acceptance symbolized.

The primary design of the temple at Jerusalem was to afford a habitation for the ark of the covenant and for him whose covenant it contained. It was the meeting place for God and man, the atonoment. the place of intercession and ment. The supreme moment in the history of the sacred building came when the cloud which symbolized the assured presence of Jehovah, It testified to God's filled the house. acceptance of the temple and its services. It proclaimed his readiness to hear prayer. It inspired and confirmed faith. It rectored significance to old symbols. It introduced a cuper natural element. It afforded to the minds of all a visible image and the glorious appearance of God's having descended into this temple to make it his dwelling-place. It betokened the divine approval upon Israel in their purpose to exalt his name before all nations, and to observe to do all things according to his law. The appearance of the cloud was the most important event of the day. The abiding pre sence of Jehovalı in Israel was the most significant proof of their wellbeing. Solomon's conception of the person-Jehovah. Solomon's conception of the personality and power of God was sublime. Throughout his prayer, he identified the house of God with all human interests. He spread before God the needs of all people, and asked from him deliverance in every time of need. He enumerated specific cases in which the merciful interposition of God the merciful interposition of God would be required. He recognized distinctly the fact that all things which had ever occurred to try the faith, the patience, the virtue of mankind would occur again and again. He entered into various supposed conditions of need and suffering among his people as a true intercessor in their behalf. Sincere piety, blended with deepest deepest humility. His royalty assumed the aspect of fatherhood. The praying king vas one of the most remarkable features in the scene of the dedication of the temple. He was the central figure. Both priest and prophet gave place to him. His supplication took a wider range than the needs of Israel trapping or poisoning. As a root pearly the bad name of pearly the bad name of pearly the bad name of prayer. It overflowed national programmer. Simple, touching and beautiful dice. Solomon regarded it as most needed, most im-portant. The Hebrew King night not sacrifice or burn incense, but he might lead the prayers both of priests and people on that grandest day in the history of Israel. He prayed as the representative and leader of others. All through that prayer, which stands so prominent in scripture and remarkable in circumstances, reference was the lower jaw until you made to sin and to the consequent necessity for pardon, since sin is ever the cause of disquietude. It is the moral disease that lurks within the human soul. The relation of the temole to the individual religious life of the people was clearly brought to view Before the mercy seat, all suppliants stood on one common level, subject to the same dangers and necessities. On that basis Solomon's intercession was

AN ILL-USED FARMER'S FRIEND

The skunk is of more value to the farmer than he is apt to be given credit. It stands among the most impertant animals that choose for their diet insects harmful to the farmer. It is the best-known enemy of army worms, including the common army worm, the wheat-head army worm and the fall army worm, all of which are destructive to small grains, corn and grasses and cause heavy losses every year to farmers, according to the United States Department of Agriculture's biologist.

The skunk, which is represented throughout the country by a number of varieties genera and species, is an animal of great economic importance. Its food consists very largely of in-sects, mainly of those species which are very destructive to garden and forage crops. Field observation and laboratory examinations demonstrate that they destroy immense numbers of white grubs, grasshoppers, crickets, cutworms, horners, wasps, and other novious forms. The alarming increase of the white grub in some localities is due to the extermination of argely this valuable animal. It is a matter of common observa-ion where white gruks are particularly abundant in cornfields to note little round holes burrowed in the ground about hills of corn. These are made by skunks in their search during the night for these grubs. During outbreak of grassheppers Kansas it was determined that in many cases a large proportion of the of skunks consisted of these grasshoppers.

his animal with favor, even though in its eager search for the grubs it may proof the plant or eat a few berries The skunks also eats many mature 'May beetles' and "Jane bugs,' which atch from the white grubs.

Skunks also cestroy the hop grub grasshoppers, cutworms, crickets, sphinx moths, sweet polato beetles, Colorado potato beetles, field mice and rats. The animal is especially useful in destroying the rats and mice that commonly infest farm buildings. If a skunk takes up his residence near premises where these rats are abundant, it will remain there if not disturbed until practically all the rodents are destroyed.

Two kinds of tobacco worms, which also attack tomato and potato plants, are eaten by the skunk in large numhers. These worms change their diet from tobacco to tomatoes with such adaptability that they have spread over wide areas. The skunk's cagerness for the worm is such that he will dig them out from the ground in great dig them out from the ground in great pears in the late suremer and depends generally light, with the exception of Keiffers, which promise a good

Notwithstanding all of this, there is probably not an animal that is ruthlessly staughtered as is this one, whereas it is entitled to equal protection with, if not more than, some of our birds which enjoy this privilege.

Without doubt an individual skunk occasionally learns to prey upon poultry, and may become a source of great annovance and loss. If the evidences of its work are unmistakable the mal should be destroyed either a marked characteristic of Solomon's law not nearly the bad name possess-prayer. of farming. Oil meal is one of the very best concentrated foods for domestic live stock.

It is valuable not only as a highly palatable, neutritious food, but it gives tone to the digestive system and thus aids in the digestion of other feeds. Oil meal has a beneficial effect upon the whole physical economy; it com-bines food tonic and laxative properties. Ten per cent, of oil meal added to other forms of grain food will improve the general condition of the animal and give to the hair a desirable ustre. It is good for young animals as well as older ones. For dairy cows, which are not fed either alfalfa or vetch hay, or kale, oil meal is almost indispensable for best results. It is also the best substitute for succulent cod for the dairy cow. For cows kept in or near towns and cities, where succulent feed is not available, it is invaluable for maintaining a healthful vigor. Oil meal may constitute 10 per cent. of the grain ration of dairy herds.

Protein is a feed element which should never be slighted. Protein is present in most feeds, but in quantities too small for proper balance. For successful preparation of live stock for any stock function do not overlook the protein content of feeds. It pro motes vigor, builds frame and increas es the digestibility of other food. Alfalfa hay contains a considerable proportion of protein, according to our leading article this week Among other protein feeds may be mentioned oil meal, tankage and the like.

The soils of no two farms are alike neither are the soils of two fields on the same farm exactly alike. The total plant food in one field differs from that of the adjoining field; the amount of decaying organic matter (humus) differs in different fields; the degre of coarseness or fineness of the soil particles varies greatly: the moisture conditions of no two fields are identi-cal; neither are other physical conditions nor texture of soil exactly alike in two different fields—and so on with an almost infinite number of conditions, each having more or less in-fluence upon the fertility or productirity of the soil, each having its inluence upon plant growth.

 CARE OF GROWING CHICKS.

Extreme care is necessary in caring or chicks during the growing season in order to secure strong, productive stock. The chicks should be kept in a healthy condition, always growing and ree from vermin.

It must be recognized that proper leeding is only one of the factors concerned in the successful rearing of hieks Proper hatching and proper prooding are also of great importance if strong, healthy flocks are to be

Sour and mouldy foods are responsible for numerous loses every year, and too great care cannot be taken to ee that all the foods to which the chicks have access are free from any race of mould or fermentation.

Grains that have heated, though they may not show any trace of mould, are often injurious and should not be fed. Soft foods which have been mixed with water or milk sour quickly, especially if exposed to the sun, and should not be used if there is he slightest trace of fermentation. is a great deal more economical n the long run to threw away tainted food than to take the chance of injur-ing whole flocks of young chicks by its use. All troughs or other utenails used in feeding chicks should be cleaned and scalded frequently and sept scrupulously free from any trace of mould or fermentation. Great care should be taken in the use of foods which, while neither mouldy nor sour. are soiled by being trampled by the chicks or mixed with soil or dropings. The danger of infection is such that it is never safe to use foods that are in that condition. Renember that only the cleanest foods should placed before young chicks.

There is practically no danger of over-feeding chicks after hree or four weeks old and are running at large. They should then be induced to eat the largest possible quantity of food in order to secure rapid growth and development.

A large proportion of the diseases which affect young chicks is due to mproper feeding or to injurious foods Frozen vegetables, tainted meat or any foodstuffs which are not in perfect onditon are liable to cause sour crop inflammation of the crop or stomach luding some forms of so-called 'white diarrhoea'

When chicks are out of conditon, slight modifications in rations or methods may result in correcting the tendency to disease. It is much better to protect the health of the chicks by careful feeding than to resort to drugs after diseased conditions have developed.

During early stages of the chick's when intestinal troubles are most ommon, the use of boiled milk boiled rice will be of great assistance in correcting any tendency toward diarrheen or inflammation. Boiled milk should be given to drink, and boiled rice should be supplied twice a lay in place of the regular feed. Rice should be boiled in a double boiler un til it is thoroughly cooked and as dry as possible. When cold, any surplus moisture should be taken up by mixing it with fine bran, secured by sifting ordinary bran through a flour sieve and disearding the coarser grade. Bran itself has a decide tonic effect, and the combination of bran and boll-ed rice will often check what might otherwise become a serious epidemic of diarrhoea. Charcoal also will found of great value in preventing this same course, gave Juliette an account and pointed to the last window of the of the results of the investigations he told her he was making. And each day he saw this benumbed and frozen me appear at it, come in, but not beheart slowly reawakening to life. It was a delightful spectacle to the doctor to see it timidly putting forth new buds. Juliette hoped, but with fear and trembling, and at times she would stop short suddenly on the road whither her imagination would lead her. What if, after indulging in these dreams, she should have to fall back again into her former state of despair. What if the reports they had heard should prove untrue, and Pierre had not been rescued?

Her heart was tortured by these conflicting hopes and fears. It seemed to her impossible that death should have snatched away in an instant this young man so full of life and vigor. She recalled to mind what her brother had said to her at Beaulieu: "His body has not been recovered." She had not at the time accepted these words as a ground for hope. But now was it not evident that if the sea had not cast his body back upon the shore it was because he had been saved from its treacherous waves, and that he still lived? The hope was now so deeply rooted in her heart that to tear it thence nothing less than positive proof that he no longer lived.

He remained silent, and despite all Juliette could do gave her no further information. But his attitude, his words, all had announced a coming event. The doctor left the young girl in a state of agitation which he thought favorable to his plans, and took his departure. In the evening when he stopped before Mme de Vignes's door, accompanied by the man whose presence was so ardently desired, his heart beat violently. He listening to the account Pierre was a fantage flowers and fantastic birds, locked on a terrange flowers and fantastic birds, locked on a terrange flowers and fantastic birds, locked on a terrange formula to the garden on the other. He entered the house, leaving the painter on the sidewalk below. Laurier, left thus alone, was seized by an emotion similar to that which he had experienced standing on the rocky point at Torrevecchio, the sea rolling at his feet, when, after receiving Davidoff's letter, he had questioned his own heart to know if he were worthy of Juliette had he were worthy of Juliette. A solemn emo-tion took possession of him while he thus waited the moment to present himself to the young girl He was grave and thoughtful with the sense that he was making an act of repara-tion. He had none of the impatience, the joyful peace of a convert who is about to abjure his errorts, ob ain par-don for his sins, and live henceforward in peace with God and man.

He stood leaning against the his eyes fixed on the window, thinking of the scene that was taking place in the darkened apartment within. There was no sign of life; everything was si-lent. In an instant the momentary selfishness, which had caused her to forget everything but her own happiness disappeared. She remembered the painful position in which she and her mother were placed and all the clearness of her judgment at once returned to her. She pressed Davidoff's hand, and said to Pierre:

"You are right; go, both of you and do for my brother what you have done for me! If you succeed you cannot indeed make me more grateful, but you can make me more happy."

Then, taking her lover by the hand, she led him to her mother. Mme. de Vignes opened her arms to the orodical son, and as Pierre received her kiss, he felt that now indeed he was absolved.

CHAPTER VII. There was to be a grand breakfast at the house of Clemence on this day, which was the first day of the races A number of her friends had arrived from Paris the evening before, and the actress, who had met them at the Casino, had then invited them. Among them were Prince Patrizzi, Duverney a painter of the nude of the modern school, and a wit who still preserved the gay good-humor of his youthful days: Baron Tresorier, a stock-broker and one of the best swordsmen of Paris; Berneville a sportsman who rode like a professional jockey, and who had broken his collarbone seven times riding steeplechases; the Duke de Faucigny, the youngest member of the Chamber of Deputies, an uncom-promising legitimist who had strenu-At this moment the window was only advocated the claims of Don Carbary.

At this moment the window was faintly illuminated, and Dr. Davidoff gave the signal for his friend to enter. Laurier hurried forward and with beating heart mounted the steps. race, in the centre of which was an imposing flight of steps leading to a lawn bordered with flowers. Through these windows, open to the breeze, the sunlight streamed in. The turf of the lawn was of an emerald green, and the sanded walks shone dazzling white in the sunshine. The blue sky faded in the distance into a violet hue. The leat and silence tended to produce a feeling of well-being, and the guests of Clemence, yielding unconsciously to the influence of the day, gave themselves up to unrestrained gayety.

ment Jacques alone remained grave as if some secret remorse preyed upon his mind. Delivered for the time be-ing from his pecuniary anxieties, his thoughts reverted to those whom he had so cruelly wronged in order to procure this last supply of money. In the midst of this gay company he was possessed by the most lugubrious ideas. He looked at the brilliant table laden with flowers, silver and crystal; he observed those who were seated around it, and he saw that they were careless and happy: He alone felt the pangs of remorse for an ill-spent life. an ill-spent life. None of the others were troubled either in mind or heart He heard their bursts of laughter and their jests; and thus it was with them every day; the same unconcerned gayety, the same round of pleasure.

For him, too, every day was the same, embittered by anguish which he could not subdue. His eyes were fastened on Clemence and Faucigny, who were talking together in a low voice opposite him. He could not hear their words, but he divined what they were saving. they were saying. The duke in nis soft and insinuating voice was paying soft and insinuating voice was paying court to the actress, and she was listening to him with a smile. Jacques' brow contracted with a look of pain. "It is because I am growing morose that she is getting tired of me," he said to himself. He emptied one after another the glasses that steel ter another the glasses that stood be-side his plate, and this mingling of the different wines brought a flush to his cheeks.

Suddenly he heard Patrizzi calling studenty ne heard Patrizzi calling to him across the table.

"Tell me, Jacques," he said, "does not this breakfast remind you of our dinner at Monte Carlo? Some of the men and most of the women here to-day were present on that occasion. We were not as gay as we are now.

And the stories that were told! Do you remember?"

"And that reminds me, how is it that the that the Russian doctor who is trav tling with Woreseff is not here?' said Andree de Taillebourg.

said Andree de Taillebourg.

"He has been in Paris for the last five davs," said Patrizzi.

At these words Jacques fancied he saw the pale and sorrowful image of Juliette rise before him. She was seated in the drawing-room where he had spent so many evenings while he had spent so many evenings while he was still an obedient son and affec-tionate brother. Madame de Vignes tionate brother. Madame de V was bending anxiously over was bending anxiously over her daughter, and Davidoff, standing beside them, was looking at them with pitying eyes. It seemed to the young man that his mother had uttered his name, and that the dector had answered her by shaking his head sadly. Was it not he who ought to he at the side of these two weng? be at the side of those two women?
Why should it be left to this stranger to console his mother and his sister A voice nurmured in his ear: "It is because wou have refused to fulfill your duty; because you have sacrificed your mother to your passion for gambling and your sister to your love for a country have a very support to the property of the country has been a country to have a very the ha

He burst into a sudden fit of laughter, inexorable and terrible to those who heard him, which drew upon him the attention of all the guests. His face was pale, his lips were tightly drawn, and his eyes were gleaming.
"Yes, yes," he cried, without heeding their astonishment. "The dinner at Monte Cario was not so gay as this breakfast. I was dying then, for one thing, and to-day I am well—oh, very I was dying then, for one well, thanks to Davidoff, who has propounded an admirable theory respecting the transmigration of souls. You have not forgotten it Patrizzi? Nor you, Tresorier? ... He told us a story object to the soul of the story about a young Russian girl -a curious story, indeed! Most Unique Ships Accompany Fleet, But Do Not Fight.

One of the largest ships in the British navy does not fight, but it always accompanies the fleet in actual warfare. This ship is the Ark Royal and the most unique in the world. She is the last word in special units, and is at the present time located off the Dardanelles. She is a floating aeroplane factory, and carries spare pro-pellors, wings, floats and every con-ceivable part of a hydroplane or sea-plane. Great Britain is the first navy in the world to possess such a ship.

These flying machines accompanying the fleet can be repaired and practically rebuilt right on the ground, by means of this mother ship.

Another famous ship, and which does not fight, attached to the navy, is H. M. S. Cyclops. She is nothing more or less than a huge dockyard foundry, employing three hundred skilled me-chanics, in addition to the crew necessary to sail the ship. She does not carry a gun, because every inch of room is required for machinery. Every pattleship has a small work shop, but it cannot do big repairs or casting, but the Cyclops can. She carries a complete foundry, where as large a cast-ing as a battleship's propellor can be made. In the ship are huge cupolas or domes for smelting and casting, stretched away above the deck like huge mushrooms. Over the bow of this ship hangs huge anchor, made of wood. This is a template for casting a complete an-chor, should one of the warships lose one. In addition to her huge repairing plant, the Cyclops carries a vast distilling apparatus to supply fresh water to all the ships in the fleet. She is fitted up with ice-making machines and refrigeration rooms, in which fresh meat is stored for the crews of those small craft, like submarines, torpedo boats and destroyers and small cruisers, which cannot be so fitted. The Cyclops is 500 feet long, and at the time she was built was the first of her type and size in the world. There is also another ship of the

There is also another snip of the same class, called the Assistance, but she is not so large. There is still another called the Vulcan, of 7,000 tons displacement, which has ability to cruise 10,000 miles without re-coaling. This latter ship has two huge cranes, worked by hydraulic, which are large enough to lift a small vessel clean out of the water on to the deck within half a minute. These cranes are fas-tened to the keel of the repair ship, to prevent her tipping over when lifting a large vessel. These facts possibly throw light for the general reader upon many matters connected with the royal navy, which must have suggested thought at times.

NERVOUS CHILDREN

Hard Study and Too Little Exercise Leads to St. Vitus Dance.

There is much criticism of modern educational methods that require too much work of school children, allowing them too little time for play and Preventing sufficient out-of-door exercise. When the study of music or any other accomplishment, with the necessary practice, is added the strain is increased. Under these conditions the blood becomes impoverished and fails to nourish the nerves. The child be-comes restless, and twitching of the muscles follow. Sometimes the child stumbles in walking and drops what it tries to hold. Pallor, listlessnes and irritability are symptoms that early show that the blood and nerves ported that crop growth has been retarded by dry weather early in June. upon them, and then St. Vitus' dance has fastened its hold upon the child.

In this condition there is no tonic equal Dr. Wiliams' Pink Pills, which build up the blood, strengthen the nerves, and safely help to meet the demands of the growing child. Out-ofdoor exercise, nourishing food, of sleep with these tonic pills cure even the most severe cases of St. Vitus' dance. We offer the following proof: "Up to the age of ten years." says Mrs. Johnson, of Hemford, N. S. my son Calvin was as healthy and rugged as any child could be. Then he began to complain that his eyes hurt him; and of pains in the head and began to fall back in his studies at school. Then I noticed a twitching of the muscles of his face and arms, and later his whole body seemed to be in constant motion. Our family physician was called in and pronounced the trouble a severe attack of St Vitus' dance. He was under the doc ter's treatment for some three months, but did not seem to improve. We had ful that nothing should excite him. Lut rotwithstanding he grew worse, and the least start would bring an at-tacks of hysteria. This went on for ome months until Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were brought to my attention, and we decided to give him that medicine. After using a few boxes there was a noticeable improvement, and by time he had taken nine or ten boxes he had recovered his former good health. There has been no sign of a return of the trouble, and I can scareely say how thankful we for complete restoration of our son's health.'

Parents who find their growing boys or girls becoming nervous should lose no time in giving them Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You may ward off an attack of St. Vitus' dance, or if the trouble lies tracked that the state of the trouble lies to reached that the state of the trouble lies to reached the trouble lies. ble has reached that stage the Pills will effect a cure. Sold by all medi-cine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Leeds County Baseball League Won Lost Elgin..... 5 Athens. 3 Philipsville 0 Saturday, July 17, at Eigin-Elgin

19, Philipsville 4.

Fortune Smiles Saturday was a day of rejoicing for the Athens Baseball Club when the team defeated Lyndhurst, the leaders of the Leeds County Baseball League, on the diamond here, 10-9. Most of the day was given up to thunder showers and leaden c'ouds but the sun breaking through the mirkiness in the afternoon dried the grass and produced ideal ball weather. The teams were very evenly matched and until the last few minutes of the ninth inning, the issue was in doubt. Athens fortunately forgot its epileptic fit that usually adorns one of its innings and played consistent good ball throughout. Successful journeys to the initial sack were infrequently made, Singleton, McLean and Crawford watching the futile efforts with complacent grins. In the ninth inning, with Athens at the bat, the score tied, two men out and two strikes on the third, the excitement became intense. McLean, the batter, met the ball fair, and that was how the score became 10-9.

Treasure of the Quiet Village

Much fun is made of the town, where the train going through is the principal event of the day. But it is in these quiet villages that the soul of man blooms. The people there have time to know each other. They take time to encourage community happi ness and contentment. It is in the big city that people become submerged in the great stream of metalized life that drowns the heart spirit of a man with determined indifference in its rapid race to reach the great gulf of gold—that gulf that is so eternally fixed between man's spiritual and material possessions. True happiness is of the spirit It cannot be bought with gold. "Where thy treasure is, there will thy heart be also," said the Master. The treasure of the quiet village will not be mocked.

G. T. R. Station Burned

The Grand Trunk station and restaurant at Alexandria were completely destroyed by fire Thursday afternoon. The buildings, which had been standing for about thirty years, were as dry as tinder, and when the fire brigade reached the scene, the fire was already beyond control. Luckily the brigade firemen, in preventing the spread of the flames, thus saved the freight shed and a number of adjoining factories and granaries. It is believed that the fire originated in the roof of the station itself, being caused by sparks from a shunting engine. It was not discovered, however, till some time after, as there were very few persons about at the time. The contents of the building were almost all taken out in time. No one was injured.

Man of Mystery.

A man of mystery is now in custody here, having been arrested yesterday on suspicion by Chief Phillips while the latter was in search of a man charged with assault.

The prisoner's name is evidently Jean Bouchart, though it might just as well be something else so far as his identity can be determined by the innumerable effects found in his possession. Just who and what he is, and in what business he is engaged, are questions most difficult to answer.

He was well supplied with money, among the lucre found on him being sixteen gold coins of German issue, of a value of $5 each, G rman silver coins, French coins, Canadian bills and silver

He carried several documents of some importance, among them being a passport issued from Luxembourg and an insurance policy for a large amount. Also picture post cards from Germany and France, literature in German and French, pictures of many Canadian public buildings, especially in Montreal, maps and data covering a wide field. There were also books on science and engineering, and how he stowed the lot away in the two grips he was carrying is somewhat of a mystery in itself, for he had stock enough to equip a stationery store.

Chief Phillips has referred the mat ter to commissioner Sherwood of the Dominion Police, Ottawa, who is sending a representative here this afternoon

Brockville Business College

On the east side of the Fulford Block, Court House Avenue, Brockville, is a large sign bearing the words BROCKVILLE BUSINESS COLL EGE. This sign last year needed repainting and a sign Painter offered to do same for $10.00 per word or a total of $30.00. This sum Principal Rogers thought too much, so the painter made the following offer: To paint the first letter for one cent and the price was to be doubled on each succeeding letter of the three words BROCKVILLE BUSINESS BOLLEGE, i.e., that is the doubling process was to go on for 24 times after the first letter. To this the principal agreed. When the painter sent in his account the principal was alarmed and thinking there was a mistake sat down and worked it out. Finding that the account had been rendered correctly the business college manager sent the painter a check for $30,00. If the painter insists on his own proposal, how much is coming to him?

Population is over Eight Millions

The total population of Canada at the beginning of the present vear according to an official estimate made by the census department, was 8,075,000. This is the first time that the eight million mark has been passed, and in the population was included, of course, Canada's soldiers at the front.

The growth of population since the census was taken in 1911 is officially estimated at approximately 850,000, or an average of about 200,000 per year. It is worth noting that the total immigration of the past four years since the taking of the census has been in round numbers 1,330,000. It is apparent, therefore, that since the immigration exceeds the estimated increase in population by nearly half a million, there is still a considerable annual exodus of Canadians to the United States or other countries.

The total immigration for 1914 is given as 168,930, a decrease of 149, 908, or over 50 per cent as compared with the preceding year. For the present year it is expected that there will be another large decrease as with the exception of the new settlers still coming into Canada from the United States, immigration has practically ceased on account of the war, and the existing financial depression.

It would not be surprising if at the end of the present year the official estimate of the population of the Dominion shows the total to be again under the eight million mark.

To The Citizens of Athens

The destruction of noxious weeds is a live question just now. A short notice in last week's issue of the Reporter seems to have met with no general response. We are now prepared to serve notices on all that do not comply and in the event of their failure then the matter will be attended to by the proper authoritives at their expense. The law requires that poxious weeds shall be cut as often as is necessary to prevent seeding, consequently it is important that they should be dealt with in such manner as to prevent them growing up a second time. Burdock and such biennial plants should be cut out by the roots. We are going to enforce this By-law on all, not excepting members of council, Street Commissioners and Village Officer.

Now this is just the place where one needs it as your heart would break to see the poor fellows go under. I have not had a wound yet but can not say how long it will last. It is an awful war and I do hope it will soon come to an end. However, I do believe it will last a year yet as we have lots to do. here. While I am writing now the bullets are flying by. Out of my battalion, which was over 1200, there are 400 alive. I have been through the battles of Neuve Chappelle, Ypres, and Testeburt, so I have seen some fighting. Well Mrs Kendrick, I will close and write more when I come out of the trenches.

ROUMANIA

Balkan Power's Dilemma in the World War.

Like Bulgaria Roumania is only indirectly affected by Italy's entrance into the European war, though indirect effects sometimes have farreaching consequences. Roumania's position is much like that of the traditional ass between the two bales of hay. To the west of her lies Austro-Hungarian Transylvania, to the east Russian Bessarabia, both of these proinhabited predominantly, vinces though by no means exclusively, by Roumanians. Of course koumania would like them both, but since this is impossible she has been to see which appeared the safer prey.

Last winter, when the Roumanians seemed about to overrun Hungary. Roumania visibly stirred for a spring at Transylvania. Later on, the Teutonic victories at her very gates gave her pause. To-day she is closely watching the effect of Italy's onslaught upon Austria-Hungary. She is also interested in possible happen-She ings at the Dardanelles.

Roumania, like Bulgaria, would greatly dislike to see Russia at Constantinopie. She would then lie stantinopie. She would then he squarely in Russia's overland path, and should Austria-Hungary give way to a Slavized Central Europe, Rou-mania, even with Transylvania, would be but an isolated islet in the Slav ocean. Of course there are string internal cross-currents which may modify her decision. But, looking at the matter from the standpoint of purely foreign policy, we may expect something like this: If Constantinople falls and the Teutonic allies fail in their stroke against Russia, Rou-mania will almost certainly strike for Transylvania. If Constantinople stands and Russia crumples up in Galicia and Poland, Roumania will as certainly strike for Bessarabia. In any other event, Roumania will probably continue her present neutrality, al-though, as I have said, there are internal factors which may tip the scales one way or the other. Such are the main political possisuch are the main political possibilities involved in Italy's entrance into the European war. They are, as we have seen, both far-reaching and complex. What the actual results will be only fire actual results will be only fire. and complex. What the actual results will be, only time and the fortune of the Italian arms can disclose.

POWER OF RAINDROPS.

Immense Electrical Energy Wasted in Heavy Shower. There is a certain amount of power in a falling raindrop, as may be monstrated by any one who will so dispose a small water wheel that the drop may strike it at a proper angle. Such a drop is, indeed an infinitesi-mal waterfall. Its energy is easily to be measured.

Multiply this bit of energy by the number which designates all the drops of a shower, and you have more power, the power of a very considerable waterfall. If, again, the shower be supposed to last for a period of hours, he who takes the trouble to estimate he who takes the trouble to estimate the energy exerted by its failing drops combined may acquire at least a faint idea of the energy in nature that is quite unavailable as yet for the use of man.

A severe rain storm suggested these thoughts to an English man of science, who forthwith proceeded to calculate the amount of power that was wasted in the downpour, at least so far as human purpose was con-cerned. The problem was one of no great difficulty, inasmuch as all the elements were known.

The full force of the rain endured for ten hours. If affected a territory of approximately ten square miles.

The entire rainfall amounted to evactly 4.17 inches, according to the accurate measurement of the weather department men. The average height of the rain clouds was 5,000 feet.

With these facts known it was a simple matter of arithmetic to find that in the ten hours of the storm something like 10,000,000,000 gallons of water had fallen over a distance of 5,000 feet.

That was a majestic cataract, for the time being at least, comparing very favorably in volume and height with any that exists upon earth. energy, as the scientist figured, it was equivalent to no less than 15,000,000 horse-power hours.

That power, converted into electricity, would light a considerable city for a period of 425 days.

Ten square miles is but an in-Ten square miles is but an infinitesimal portion of the earth's surface, hardly a pin point on the map. A single rain storm, no matter how great the precipitation, is but the merest fraction of the vast annual fall of water from the skies. What, then, must be the energy in the whole vast volume of water that nours down vast volume of water that pours down from above in the course of an entire year?

And what as the scientist himself asks, would be the effect upon the industries of the world could all this power be economically harnessed to the use of mankind?

Hobart Pasha.

The Turkish navy of the past owed almost its existence to an English sailor, Hobart Pasha, a bold buccaneer of the Elizabethan period, who by some strange perverseness of fate was tired from the English navy in 1863, and during the American war he be-came a blockade runner with hair-breath escapes innumerable. After the ar he entered the Turkish suppressed the Cretan rebellion by in-tercepting the supplies from Greece and then re-organized fleet so well that the Sultan appointed him marshal of the empire. (St. Catharines Standard.) (St. Catharines Standard.)

No normal man ever gets wholly away from the instinct. Play is absolutely necessary in the growth of a healthy child, and it is no less important in the life of grown-ups. You may call it relaxation variation from the details of work, or something else, but the principle is unchanged. Men who are wholly given up to one thing grow narrow, carbid, and unhealthy. It is not medicine or doctor's advice they need to make them feel better, but the exercise of a little common sense that will cause them to get some variation in their work, John some sport and play the game. (Rochester Post-Express)

It is a time of soul hunger, of passionate yearning for something that shall be satisfying, and there never was ress agreement as to what life is, means, is worth and leads to. Like him who gained, the whole world and lost his own soul, humanity has yet to learnand is now to learn, as we may hopethat only when life is lived according to the great law shall everything else be added to it, and that thus only is it to be enriched beyond our imaginings with contentment and joy.

CALL FAILED

Why the Moslem Jihad Did Not Rally Against the Allies.

The men in the government saddle at Constantinople last November issued a call to Moslems everywhere to rally in revolt against their alien rulers. The call was lost in the air. It met with response nowhere. The frantic effort failed utterly. It is important for us, if it be possible, to find the real meaning of this outcome of a plan from which so much was

We have been accustomed for many years to see on the part of the Mos-lems of Turkey, of Egypt, and of India an acceptance of aid from Christian nations in material things accompanied by a firm attitude of fidelity to their ancestral faith, and with a revulsion from our religion.

Very few even of the most intelligent among them have been able in the past to understand Christian the past to understand Christian teaching or to appreciate the constitnent elements of truly Christian char-

Why, then, have Moslems who are subjects of Christian governments turned a deaf ear to the call of the Calif and remained loyal to the governments under which they live?

We may interpret their loyalty to their rulers of Moslems under the dominion of England, France, and Russia as meaning that they know that listening to Turkey's appeal would imperil their material interests. Yes, but is this a sufficient explanation? It is very far from sufficient.

Men of the East have from time immemorial been accustomed to a governmental administration and to judicial procedure that made more of personal claims and money inducements than of the demands of right and justice, where, therefore, the rich had every advantage over the poor.

The rich men and men of rank in India and Egypt have of late years often been dazed at finding that neithr rank nor wealth could move a judge a hair's-breath from what the law and equity demanded. This has not made them love their western rulers, but it has made them respect and trust them. Their experience under just government has now for two genera tions profoundly penetrated their thought and life.— From "Moslems and the War," by Rev. George F. Her. rick, D. Putting the K in Kant.

Kant, the Scoto-German, began his name with an alien "k" on the same principle that caused Mudroch, the Scottish coal gas discoverer, to bring his to an end with a "k." If you turn Murdoch's biographers you find them explaining that Murdoch with a is the English form of Murdech with an "h." But the great gas man himself explained that he made the change in spelling "to oblige the English, among whom he lived." He found that they had a difficulty in giving "the full guttural pronuncia-tion" to the last syilable, and so he made things easy.-London Chronicle.

HONEST MANUFACTURERS. (Ottawa Citizen)

(Ottawa Citizen)
The Canadian manufacturer is, on the whole, an honest producer of goods. To prove this it is only necessary to review the quality of Canadian made goods and to analyze the government report of products made in the Dominion. There are some dishonest contractors, some dishonest and dishonorable manufacturers and some tricky individuals in all lines of commercial life, but it is likewise true that most people know of these firms and dealers and know them for what they are. That in itself is condemnation and proves once more that honesty alone pays.

Noah's Ark About the Size of Modern Ocean Liner.

It is generally agreed that Noah's ark measured about 450 feet in length, 75 feet in breadth, and 45 feet in depth. It is interesting to note that the proportions of these dimensions are practically the same as those of the great modern ocean liners.

The Greeks and the Romans constructed several large vessels measuring upwards of 500 feet. These were built for the emperors or rulers, and were little more than enormous scows, without any means of propulsion. A vessel 420 feet in length, was built by Ptolemy, which was propelled by 500 rowers, arranged in five banks, by 500 rowers, arranged in five banks, using cars 57 feet in length.

The fame of the Thalamegus still lives. This boat, which measured 300 feet in length, 40 feet in breadth, and 60 feet in depth, was said to have been the most beautiful craft in antiquity, and was used exclusively by the Emperor. A king of Syracuse is also credited with having built a very palatial boat, whose cabins were hung with costly silks and decorated with rare statues. After the decline of the Roman Empire no great ships were constructed for more than 1,000 years.

THE PEOPLE TO BLAME.

(Rochester Post Express)

In the last analysis it is the people who must blame themselves for misgovernment. The worst possible grafting and incompetent administration is possible under the best charter that can be written, if bad and inefficient men are elected, just as an excellent administration is assured by honest, intelligent and experienced officials even when trammeled by a defective system. In municipal government men are of more importance than measures. (Rochester Post Express)

Genuine Wit.

Benjamin Moore, the second bishop of New York, was a man noted in his day for his ready wit—a quality that his wife apparently shared with him. A dinner was given by some one of Gouverneur Morris' friends when he was about to depart for Europe. Bishop Moore and his wife were of the party. In the course of the conversa-tion Mr. Morris observed that since he was going abroad he had made his will and, turning to Bishop Moore, said to him:

"My reverend friend, I have bequeathed to you my complete stock of impudence. Bishop Moore replied: "Sir, you are not only very kind, but you are very generous. You have left me by far the largest portion of your estate."

Mrs. Moore immediately added, "My dear, you have come into possession of your inheritance remarkably soon."—Youth's Companion.

TOOK STRONG SECTION OF TURKISH TRENCHES

Allies Capture 400 Yards of Strongly Fortified Positions.

Along Whole Front, and Repulse Counter-

London Cable. -Hamilton, in command of the land forces at the Dardanelles, reports that on Monday the British right wing and right centre captured two lines of Turkish trenches to a depth of 200 to 400 yards. In the right section of the enemy his first and second trenches were taken, together with 80 prisoners. That night two counter-attacks were repulsed.

As anticipated, progress against the Turks is very slow owing to the natural and strongly fortified positions which they hold. But British military authorities express satisfaction with the gain of an occasional line of trenches, relying on breaking the morale of the Turks and on the exhaustion of their supply of ammunition. Germany's eagerness to have Roumania allow the passage of ammunition through that equintry to Turkey is taken to mean that the supply is running short.

The announcement is as follows:
"Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton, commendations of the supply is running that the supply is running short.

"Gen. Bothwell Widower Tried to Poison His Children.

Rothwell, Ont., Report—A widower named George Winters, with a large family, attempted to kill his three smallfamily, attempted to kill his three smallest children this morning with strychnine in candy. When he saw the poison was taken effect he told the oldest child he was going for the doctor, but instead struck for the woods, where he took a dose himself. Two doctors worked over the children for hours, and they will probably recover. They were in great agony for some hours. The people in the town hunted hours for Winters, and found him in the woods. He had evidently suffered terribly, as the ground was torn up all around where he lay. He finally rallied, and was removed to Chatham jall this afternoon. He had first tried the poison on the dog, which died, before he administered it to the children.

To-day an Unearthed Imitation of Pompeii.

May Remain Monument to Hun. Vandals.

Ypres, Belgium, Cable.spondence of the Associated Press)-The last tenacious inhabitants of Ypres were dragged from their underground refuges and taken by force to places of safety a fortnight ago; the cellars themselves had ceased to afford protection from the continual pounding of the German shells. The town to-day looks like an unearthed imitation of Pompeii; not one of its 12,000 houses is intact, and not a dozen of those that remain partly erect are repairable. The ancient pride of Flanders, if it ever rises from its ruins, must be entirely rebuilt from the foundations. Of the famous hall, which three weeks ago still showed a semblance of resistance, there remains nothing but a single little tower standing out against the sky like a gigantic nger raised in protest. The only of the walls remaining is a battered breached remnant on the side of thes "Grand Place." Only here and there is it possible by close formation to discover any traces of the details of its ormer architectural beauty.

There were ten thousand people here three weeks ago, and it was still possible to enjoy a cup of tea at the cafe on the "Grand Place" while contemplating the agonizing "Halles": day the only living creatures that remain are two cats sticking to the deris of their homes in the Rue Thourout. No one knows what they live on, and the British soldiers have been unable to capture them.

The dead silence that has fallen here is broken only by the occasional shell that stirs up the ruins, by the German guns firing over the town at Poperinghe, and by the musketry and machine gun fire from the trenches close by to the south. The silence is oppressive toward dusk. when the ar illery fire becomes desultory.

Protected by the ruins, one may approach so close to the first line as to get a vivid auricular impression of what is going on in the trenches. The "Pang! pang! pang!" of the rifles, with integral of the rifles, of the rifles, rith intervale pang-a-pang" of the machine guns become more intermittent as night falls, and then comes from the trenches the surprising contrast of the re frain: "It's a Long Way to Tipperary," with the accompaniment of a piano that the Tommies dug out of the ruins

It is the common belief in Bel-gium that the wiping out of the town gram that the wiping out of the town was a premeditated revenge for the failure of the effort to occupy it. Shells intended for the British lines of for the batteries in the rear might easily stray into the town, but, they say, the aim of the Germans is good en lot to waste in that way the thousands of tons of ammunition required sands of tons of ammunition required to reduce the place to a stone heap, and the only military importance of the town is its proximity to the battle front. Counting the shots that went vide of any structure, it is estimated hat more than a hundred thousand of different calibres were spent on Ypres. Thousands more were used during the gas attack along the route from Ypros to Furnes by which the Allies were expected to send reinforce-ments. All along the road for a few miles, deep funnel-shaped holes, some-times on one side week. times on one side, sometimes on the other, and often full in the centre. other, and often full in the centre, still show how seriously the operation was organized. One of them lies directly in front of an enclosed plot of ground covered with field flowers, above which rise fourteen crosses. Here were buried the remains of a little detachment of British troops that were sought out by one of the 16-inch German shells while resting in an abandoned cottage on the edge of an abandoned cottage on the edge of

The eventual restoration of Ypres raises conflicting views, all of which originate from sentiment, for the town had long ago lost all commercial im-portance. The attachment of the in-habitants to the soil calls for restorahabitants to the soil calls for restora-tion, and to this is opposed the feeling that Ypres must remain as it is—a monument to the suffering of Flan-ders. If the town is rebuilt, say many of those who loved it for its traditions, let it be farther on along the banks of the Yser, while the ruins of the ancient town remain enclosed within monumental walls for the week monumental walls for the world to see in ages to come.

FOR THE HUNS

Fully Prepared to Deal With Attack on the Narew.

Opinions Differ as to the Drive on Warsaw.

London Cable. "Experts differ," says the Times Petrograd correspondent, "whether the new German move on the Narew River is preparatory to an advance on Warsaw from the north, or merely a demonstration to guard their communications with Courland, after the check sustained by them in the south and west."

The Morning Post's Petrograd correspondent says:

"The Germans have begun an advalue on the Narew on a front of one hundred miles in extent. This momentous event has been expected for some weeks past, and Russia is per-fectly prepared to deal with it on much the same lines as have become familiar in the Galician adventure. The German plan is to catch the Russian armies like a nut between a nut-cracker, but the Germans have an incalculable amount of fighting to face before they win to the area enclosing the nut. And then the cracking is still to be done. It is all sheer frontal fighting. The Russians have been so disposed to take advantage of their natural strongholds that wherever the Germans attack they must break in by frontal attack."

STUBBORN RUSS RESISTANCE. London Cable.—Reinforcements have been sent to the German troops in the Russian provinces of Courland and Kovno, with the result that vigprous military operations have been resumed in that section. The Russians are offering a stubborn resistance and re holding strategic positions, according to an official statement issued esterday at the headquarters of the general staff in Petrograd, and telegraphed to the Central News and Exchange Telegraph Company here. The text of the communication follows:

Argonne Struggle Dwindles to Fight With Bombs.

French Take German Trenches North of Arras.

London Cable.-Comparative calm, in the words of the French official report, prevailed along the western battle front to-day, after the fierce engagements in the Argonne early in the week. The accounts of the latest fighting in this region from Paris and Berlin are as contradictory as usual, but it is clear that no great offensive movement has been undertaken by cither side, and that there has been no change in the line during the last couple of days of a magnitude that could be observed by a layman.

It is stated by the French War Office that the conflict in the forest has degenerated into a struggle with hand bombs and petards. The only fighting of importance has been in the western outskirts of the Argonne. The Germans have regained a footing in the Beaurain wood, but two other German attacks have been repulsed. The French troops have seized a line of German trenches at one point in the region to the north of Arras. Elsewhere on the western front, however, the fighting during the last 24 hours leas been confined to artillery duels.

Detroiter Back From Europe Says All Nations So Believe.

Even People of the Fatherland Are Showing Fears.

Detroit Report.—Justice R. Pearson, real estate operator, returned to Detroit Tuesday from a two months' business trip to Europe, which took him through Germany, Switzerland, France and Italy, and contributed the position of Fire Commissioner of generously to his store of experience and reminiscence.

Mr. Pearson quotes a former United States consul whom he met abroad, Dr. John Jones, of Washington, recipient of decorations from Emperor Franz Josef and King Victor Emmanuel for distinguished Red Cross service, to the effect that the war will end August 29 of this year.

"Dr. Jones told me he had positive nformation regarding this," said Mr. Pearson. "His prediction carries some weight in view of his connection with foreign military affairs. Some time ago he ventured a similar prediction relative to the probable date of Italy's entrance into the conflict, and that named by Dr. Jones."

But Mr. Pearson's views as to the probable duration of the war do not coincide with Dr. Jones'. On the trip lome, he said, his ship passed an armada of British vessels steaming eastward through the Straits of Gibraltar for the Dardanelles. There were cruisers, transports, destroyers, colcruisers, transports, destroyers, colliers, mine sweepers, supply ships and other luxuries in the grim company, Mr. Pearson said, and in his opinion a movement of sufficient magnitude to justify such a mobilization will have no termination by the date named by Red Cross man.

'This war will not end," said Mr. Pearson, confidently, "until Germany is thoroughly whipped."

"Is it a foregone conclusion that Germany will be whipped?" he was

"It is the conclusion you find every where outside of Germany," he quali-fied, "and I may say the people of fied, Germany are not now of the same temper and optimism as in the early part of the struggle. The Germans are becoming restive; it is a sober, solemn country to-day. While I was in Berlin an order was issued threatening imprisonment for the publication of casualty lists.

"There have been published in Germany, too, many protests against the burden of the war; these are stamped out as soon as they appear, but it shows the feeling. There have been even criticisms of the Kaiser, and it all goes to show that Germany is res tive under the load of the war and its cost. But the Germans are just as courageous as they are sober, and because of this I believe the fighting will continue for some time longer than Dr. Jones expects."

SPY IS SHOT

Robert Rosenthal Executed in London.

London Cable — The Press Bureau to-night announced that the spy, Robert Resenthal, who was sentenced to death by a court-martial, was executed this morning. Robert Rosenthal had an American passport, issued in Berlin, when he was arrested as a spy. The passport had been obtained by forgery, in which a certain Berlin official, whose name was not divulged, was said to be implicated. According to Scotland Yard, Rosenthal confessed that he was instructed by the German secret service to go to London and pass himself off as an American citizen, and obtain informaion regarding the movements of the British fleet.

WOMEN EAGER

Mrs. Pankhurst Names Demands to be Made.

By Great Deputation to Lloyd-George.

London Cable.—Mrs. Pankhurst, peaking to a great women's meeting o-day, formulated the demands which the women's deputation will make to Minister of Munitions David Lleydcorge on Saturday.

First, the Government must provide means whereby the women will be able to be trained so that their services will be of equal value to the State as the men's. For this it is asked that all colleges and technical universities be placed at the women's disposal during vacation. Secondly, the Government must take upon itself the responsibility of opening special factories for women's muniwork.

Thirdly, the Government, without exception, must replace all men engaged in munition work, but capable of military service, by women, paying the atter union wages.

Mrs. Pankhurst stated that she believed that a good augury for the suc-cess of these demands was the fact that Mr. Lloyd-George was going to give reply not merely to the deputa-tion, but to the entire body of proces-sionists. She said later: "We have an inexhausible supply of women workers. We want to convince the workers. We want to convince the men that this is our war as much as

"Our parade will be the greatest known to England. We are using to have 706 banner-bearers, 90 bands and 200 marshals. We expect quite a quarer of a million women to march us. The 37 at Goettingen hope that some of their brave regiment may have escaped and may still be fighting, but they do not believe it. They were on the outskirts of the gas columns that swept over the trenches, and they escaped with their lives because they did not have to breathe the noxious fumes in their unit strength.

"The Belgians, on the other hand, have proved the finest little fighters where near as good, with their numbers, the war would be over."

"What do you people think of the colored troops?" the Canadian was asked as two oddly-clad soldiers, black as ebony and speaking a horrible jargon of French, sauntered by the barracks.

Automobile Crashed into Train

Going to Brockville on Tuesday afternoon a Ford automobile, owned and driven by T. J. McConnell, of Lyndhurst, and containing Mrs Geo. Rooney, her son Travers, Miss Alma Graham and Miss Beatrice Webster, all of Lyndhurst was struck by the westbound C.N.R. train at Glen Buell crossing. Mrs Rooney and son were going to Brockville to take train for Winnipeg. Miss Graham and Miss Webster were accompanying them to Brockville to see X H. A. Wight, son of E. C. Wight, their departure. All the victims were taken on the train to Athens, and that evening Mr McConnell was taken to the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital with his right leg fractured at the knee and injuries to his head. Young Rooney sustained a slight cut on the cheek. Miss Graham and the other women occupants except Miss Webster are still at the home of T. S. Kendrick, Athens. Miss Webster returned to her home at Lyndhurst that same evening. Miss Graham was severely cut about the face, but not seriously. They are still suffering from shock.

Considering the circumstances sur rounding the accident, the parties escaped luckily. Mr McConnell said he was driving about fifteen miles per hour and was watching the road closely, paying no attention to the railway crossing. He declares the train did not whistle, and just as soon as he got on to the track he was struck by the engine. his automobile being turnned completely around but it did not upset. The top of the automo bile was up and the side curtains were down, so the occupants had absolutely no chance to jump clear of the auto, but were thrown out with the exception of Mr McConnell and Miss Graham. McConnell was rendered unconscious by being struck by piece of the auto, and he was at. tended by Dr Roy Donovan, of Brock-ville, who was en ronte to Portland, and who administered first aid. Mc Connell and party were taken to Athens on the express and he was later taken to St. Vincent de Paul Hospital. It will be some time before Mr McConnell will be able to be out again. His statement that the engine did not whistle is contradicted by engineer Bagley and several passengers, who state that the engine did
