A Station Master's Story.

Across two fields I could see the little station peeping through the crimson and gold of the maples, half a mile away. I had no idea as to whether I should come near to train time; I had not been living by the clock for a month past. But of one thing I was certain; I was not going to spoil this one day of my vacation by waiting after a train that might have an instant.

So I loitered along, drinking in the glorious October air, lounging by the fence, and now and then stopping to add another view to those which were later to provide me with an illustrated record of my outing, and finally came out upon the platform, to find, to my satisfaction, that there had been no train for three hours, and would be none, going my way, for two more.

I was put in the best disposition by this later information. On the contrary, nothing could have been more to my mind I should thus waste none of the splendid day, and should be able to "take" a real of the beautiful bits by which the station was surrounded.

"I think I never saw a finer piece of road," I remarked to the station master as I set up my camera, gazing down the line that stretched away in magnificent perspective, straight as a die for five miles, with a perfect arch, which carried over it an interesting road to frame it in.

"You're right, sir," he replied with evident pleasure at my appreciation; "there isn't such another bit for thirty miles."

"That straight run together with one of the bravest men God ever made, saved a lot of lives a while back," he added a moment later.

"Why this was something like it," I said myself on a track, clasped my hands about my knees, gave one comprehensive glance over the lovely landscape upon which the westerner was was casting long shadows then turned to my companion.

"Go on," I said.

"Well, sir," he said, tilting back the box on which he was sitting, and folding his hands behind his head against the side of the baggage room, "well, sir, it was this way. It was just about such a day as this, and just about this time of the day, strange to say, I was in the baggage room, here, looking over some little matters, when Jim Pollock, a great chunk of mine, and one of the best engineers on the road, came strolling along up the platform. I launched myself when I saw him coming, for I knew in a minute it wasn't he he wanted a sight of, but that line there Jim was a funny fellow in some ways. As a clean and straight a chap as you ever met, and the best driver of an engine in the country; and was head over heels in love with her, if ever a man was; but since you if I don't think he was aim at so much in love with the sight of a track or the smell of an engine's smoke! I used to plague Nanny about it, but she didn't object, not she; she held she loved them as well as he, and I believe she did. Anyway she knew every engine and the time of every train as well as he did; was regularly out out for a road man's wife.

"She lived here, up the hill yonder, and as he had a day off, Jim had come up to spend it with her. And yet he couldn't be content that long without coming down to cast his eye up and down the road.

"Hello Jim! I called out 'come down to see if I see all right? Well I am.'"

"That's it Harley, he answer'd; but then he laughed. He couldn't help it, for he knew that I knew what he was up to.

"How a Nanny? I haven't seen her since last night," said I.

"She's all right," he said, but at that face sort of clouded over and he set down on the edge of the platform yonder, and looked away down the line.

"It wasn't like Jim to look glum. He was the cheeriest most good natured fellow I ever came across. So I couldn't but wonder what was up, and presently I asked him.

"Well, it seemed that he and Nanny had been cutting on getting married soon, but, through helping out his husband, he'd lost a lot of the money he had saved to go to America, and as he'd always held that a man ought to marry a girl till he could make her comfortable, with a little something laid by for a rainy day, he'd just been telling her they would have to wait a bit longer.

"I was just going to tell him that I was dreadful sorry to hear that, but that I couldn't do anything to help him to find any fault, when I saw Jim and Jimmy give a great start, and fix his eyes like a cat-stare down the road, and the next instant he was saying in a hoarse whisper 'God help us, Dan, what's that?'"

"I had been standing with my back to the track, but at that I wheeled around like a flash.

"A train! I cried; 'but what train, Jim?'"

"He didn't answer, only made a bound for the ticket office, snatched a glass from the shelf and was back in a twinkling. One glance was all he needed.

"Dan," says he, still in that strange voice, "Dan, it's a run-a-way engine, coming up backward at sixty miles an hour! God! God! think what will happen if it isn't stopped!"

"I knew well enough what he meant, and my blood grew cold. I know he was thinking that the first of look at commotion would be handling it at the Junction—the Junction is two miles up, round that curve, six—just then, and that the runaway would catch it up and smash it sure as fate. And besides that, the track all the way along, after leaving here, would be covered with school children; for they knew as well as we, just the time for every train, and couldn't see the engine coming, for that curve till it was upon them.

"Well, it's taken a lot longer telling this than it all was happening. The moment he had sung down that glass, Jim made a jump and caught up a light ladder which was lying some where about, and dashed away with it down towards the arch, to that post there, with the whips lashing to warn freight hands to look out for the bridge.

"For an instant I couldn't make out what he was about, but then it all flashed upon me, and racing after him I cried out:—'For God's sake, Jim, don't do that! Think of Nanny!'"

"Nanny wasn't I want you to say a thing like that? As if I'd be so stupid as to think of Nanny before he did!"

"He had the ladder against the post and was up it before I got there, but as he hoisted himself above the top of the arch, there came a hiss, and he just glanced down at me and waver to my dying day will I forget the look in his face. There came a hiss of himself in it—not a hiss of fear as he thought that he might not have two minutes to live in this world, or dread of what was coming to him, after, and he needn't have, for if ever a man lived ready to face his Maker, that man was Jim Pollock. No, his one and only thought was for Nanny."

"Be good to my little girl if—if I should 't calculate right, Dan," says he, and give her all the love of my heart. She will know there was nothing else for me to do, and after that he looked up again and—waited.

"You understand the plan, sir? Yes that was it, to take the one chance out of a hundred of stopping on the cab roof as she passed under him! If he made no mistake—dropped at the right instant and was able to hold on, the thing would be easy enough, the climbing in at the window and stopping bar."

"Of course, under ordinary circumstances, if she had been coming head on, I mean, the risk would not have been great, for if he missed, most likely he would have fall'd behind, getting little more than a good shaking up and a few bruises. But so it was—I can tell you, sir, that though four minutes could not have passed from the time Jim first sighted her till she was dashed up, it seemed an eternity, and as I watched her come thundering on I was as though cursed to stone, till I stepped back, as she went whirling by, with my hands before my face to shut out the sight."

not yet out of danger, for he was clinging to the post of the arch by the ends of his fingers! I don't know how long it was before he was able to get himself up and get his legs under the window before he was dashed off."

"But I ought to have known that you muscles better than to have feared for him; he could always make his arms rigid as steel, and he did it then."

"Yes, that is all. He stepped back before the engine was dashed, and saved, no need know how many lives."

"And the company? Well Jim did not have to wait to marry Nanny after all."

The sun was shining hot, and my guest of a night. We were crossing Montana, on our way to Oregon, two years ago, and we were only two miles to see as we crossed the divide, the white gleam of a sheep herder's tent, away off in the distance; but it was further off than it seemed to be, and I began to think that we would never get there. We did, however. We found a tent besides a large corral, but both were deserted.

We sat down on our tent, gave them water from a hole nearby, and securing them with picket ropes left them to graze, while we threw ourselves on the soft cushion of buffalo grass in the shade of the tent, for we were very tired.

It was very hot with no breeze stirring and the shade was only a degree better than the sunshine, but toward sunset it became a cooler cooler, when we rose and proceeded to replenish the camp fire, so that we might boil our coffee and fry our bacon. We had not finished when the herder arrived with his sheep, which he drove into the corral.

As he came towards us, and saluted us with a nod, we saw a tall, well-formed man of perhaps thirty or thirty-five. He carried himself well as if he had been used to city streets and parlors. But the wonder was not so much to see a distinguished-looking person as a sheep herder (for the occupation need degrade no one), as that he was so dirty and unkempt. I never saw herder so cow boy look so badly.

His clothing was not only soiled but ragged. He looked neglected as well as discouraged, and yet under the tan and dirt there were regular features and a look of keen intelligence, although greatly marred by the unmistakable signs of dissipation.

What, however, most attracted me was his great command of language, with facility of expression, as well as the extent of his information. He had evidently been well educated and had read much, and he had also digested his reading. Here was a fine man, in a ruined! A good sixteen lost to his country and the race through some one's fault!

After supper we sat around the camp fire enjoying the cool evening breeze, while the quiet star shone in the clear sky above us, he became more communicative and after some reference to the various mishaps and motives which sent men out on the range, he said:

I suppose you may think it strange that I should be here all alone for weeks in a sheep camp, when I should be out in the world taking my place among men. The simple truth is that I am a sufferer.

I might as well make a clean breast of it. I cannot tell liquor alone when I am in a town. I was born that way. He passed a moment, swallowed hard, then resumed: "I am comparatively happy here. I am saving my wages, for I shall never go home again. I am trying to accumulate a fund sufficient to support me in my old age, if I should live to be old, but it is hard to save, even here, for I go to town once a year and blow a whole lot of it! Life is miserable here but I have looks and—I am safe!"

was ashamed of my weakness and folly. I was born strong, both physically and usually—save for this one weak spot! He gave a short and bitter laugh.

I am like a strong bridge with only one weak spot. I know I may end in a sudden smash. Oh, I suppose you could help me and know what they are doing when they looker such a fellow, inhabited weakness.

I had only trained me rightly. I am no fanatic. Alcohol has its uses like other poisons, like them it should be placed under restrictions strong enough to protect the weak and young. Every civilization demands it. It will be done—but I shall not live to see it.

In my case and that of thousands of others it is a poison! If my parents had given me the safeguard of right principals and kept from ever tasting the damnable stuff I might perhaps have outgrown the fatal tendency, but they always laughed at such an idea. They always had wine on the table. It seems to me now that all the food was redolent of alcohol in some form. I think that all of my associates were more or less tipsy nearly all the time. If I could have been trained rightly! Oh, if I could have had help before it was too late!

He hid his face in his hands and remained silent a long time. At last he got up, kicked the brands of the fire a little, then asked if we had plenty of bedding, adding, better bring it in the tent.

We thanked him, preferring to sleep in the open air.

As my guest rose, I said, There are thousands of such mothers and sons!

Yes, indeed, he answered.

She Got Damaged.

I was standing at the end of the depot platform of a little crossroads station down in Virginia several weeks ago, said the colonel, when a little old woman drove up with an ox harnessed to her cart, and, handing the lines to a little colored boy who was leading around, she came up the steps and asked:

"Stranger will you back a lone widder to git justice?"

"How back you?"

This yere railroad has run over one of my hogs and won't pay fur him. I've cum down here to git 6 bits fur that hog or turn loose on somebody. I'll walk up to that critter inside and demand my money. He won't pay and I'll tackle him. Will you back me to see a fat fowl?"

"Why, you are a woman and should not think of having a fight with a man, I replied.

Never yo' mind about my being a woman, stranger! I've 6 bits or-I tackle him, and it'll help me along to know yo' are behind me. Will yo' do it or see me git licked and lose my cash to boot?"

I said I'd see fair play and went in with her. She walked up to the station master and spat on her hands and said:

Yo' know about that hog? It's 6 bits or I'll light on yo'!

Why, Mrs. Ramsey, I don't own the railroad.

Six bits or a tackle! she replied.

I'll send your claim up to head quarters to be acted on.

Stranger, hold my husband, and don't let him go over my eyes out of pull my hair! she said as she untied the strings. Now then—

Here's your 6 bits, he said as he handed her out three quarters.

Thankee. Good money, is it? That squar the hog, and there won be no fault. I jest reckoned ther was a way to sit at a railroad, but I didn't know exactly how it was done.

I went out to get her into the cart and when she got seated she extended her hand and said:

Stranger, I was a lone widder and wanted bakin', and yo' backed me. I thank no woman as can shed tears or giggle off big words, but my ainest wish is that the law may duns her money on yo' soul, amen. O'lang, Gal!

Sarcasm from the Pulpit.

"Brothers and sisters," sternly said good old parson Woolman, after the collection had been taken up upon a recent Sabbath morning, "before the hat was duns parved I expounded the request dat de congregation contribute

A Woman's Penitent Gift.

"One crown of glory the elderly woman may proudly wear, and it is a distinction she could never have in girlhood or early mat oohood: she may be a grandmother," writes Margaret B. Sangster in the May Ladies Home Journal. "I can think of nothing so perfectly satisfying and so thrilling with a subtle ecstasy as the holding in one's arms, and locking into the face of the child of one's son or daughter. It is the second generation, and you have lived to see it; that fact is in itself delightful. You compare the baby face with those of your own children, and trace the quaintest points of resemblance, and oddly enough you see, what nobody else can see, striking likenesses now and then to grandfather or grandmother long vanished from the earth. Your granddaughter and you will be chums; your grandson and you will be comrades, and good and only good, will be the outcome of the beautiful association for all concerned. One of the most perfect gifts which comes into the life of a woman is the joy which comes to her over the cradle of the grandchild. It is without a single flaw.

Newspaper Advertising.

Frank Daniels made an experiment recently at Wallace's theatre, New York city. Speaking of it, the comedian said:

"Between the acts the ushers distributed among the audience slips with a brief printed statement politely asking the recipient to indicate by a check mark in the list of various advertising firms employed which one had attracted him to the performance, newspapers, bill-boards, window lithographs, or something else. The people seemed to take kindly to the idea, and the response was most liberal. Eleven hundred slips were handed to the ushers, and of that number 991 had been attracted by the newspaper solely."

Instimable Value of the British Birthright.

By Henry Watterson, the father and patriarch among American journalists:

"Whether in the frigid zone or in the tropics, the English Government has adapted itself to the wants and even the foibles of the people, and made them feel the instimable value of the British birthright. What it once was to be a Roman citizen, it is to be a British subject in the nineteenth century. The feeling that the majesty and power of England are extended over every one of her hundreds of millions of subjects, and the assurance thus given them of all the rights and privileges of life, are things the Americans, who have been in the habit of looking upon themselves as a little better than Britons, have not thoroughly realized."

A CARD.

I, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a twenty-five cent bottle of Dr. Williams' English Pills, if, after using three-fourths of contents of bottle, they do not relieve Constipation and Headache. I also warrant that four bottles will permanently cure the most obstinate case of constipation. Satisfaction or no pay when Williams' English Pills are used.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., MAY 11, 1900.

A Step Backward. We regret to notice that during the past week the road committee has seen fit to remove the plank curbing from the sidewalks along Main street, without providing for anything to take its place. As the members of the committee contend in defence of their action, the old curbing may have been somewhat rotted and out of repair, but this is no excuse for removing it until something better was found in its stead. To have put in new as the old curbing was removed would have been a small expense as compared with the cost of recurring at intervals. In the former case those portions of the old curbing still sound could have been utilized, the new posts could have been sunk in the old pits, and the sidewalks would have needed no new grading. The town will now some day, have to put in all this extra expense. If the finances at disposal of the committee, did not at this time warrant them in putting in new curbing, the old could certainly have been safely left a little longer until the expenditure could have been made. Main street has enjoyed the benefit of curbing for some time now. The gutters have been more easily kept, the sidewalks have remained in position, and the general appearance of the street has been very greatly improved by this means. We do not think the citizens of the town have very much sympathy with the anxiety thus shown by the committee to revert to primitive methods.

Wide Tires the Best. The University of the State of Missouri Agricultural Experimental Station has recently made most accurate and exhaustive experiments on "the influence of the width of tires on the draft of wagons." The draft was recorded by a self recording dynamometer, on "dirt roads." A large number of tests showed uniformly favorable to the broad tires, the difference amounting to from 52 to 61 per cent, or about 3,200 pounds could have been hauled on the broad tires, with the same draft required to draw 2,000 pounds on narrow tires. In this condition of the road the broad tires show to their greatest advantage. As the road dries and becomes firmer, the difference between the broad and narrow tires gradually diminishes until it reaches about 25 to 30 per cent. on dry, hard, smooth, dirt or gravel roads. On moving lands in various conditions the advantage in favor of broad tires in five different tests ranged from 21 to 120 per cent. In one instance the narrow tires cut so deep that four horses were required to draw the load that two horses took easily with six inch tires. All this shows that the more wide tires are used the smoother, harder and better the roads become, while the very reverse is the case with the use of narrow tires, that cut ruts that hold the water, making mud and slush of the whole business.

The Furness Line of steamships are now joining Halifax and London two first class steamers, the first of which will come on about the end of August and the other a little later. These steamers are twice the size of those which have hitherto been running in this trade and superior in every respect. They are being specially fitted up for the carriage and conveyance of fruit, cheese, butter and other perishable products which require superior ventilation. They will also carry a large number of first and second class passengers. The vessels will steam about fourteen knots, and will be fitted up in a most luxurious style, including all the most modern improvements to ensure the greatest possible comfort to passenger.

Really some of our readers may not be aware that Rev. E. F. Dixon, the new rector of St. John's church, this town, besides being a popular and thoughtful preacher and an earnest worker in his parish, is also the editor of one of the brightest publications in our province, Church Work, a monthly magazine devoted to the interests of the Church of England in Canada, was established in 1876. Since taken in charge by the present publisher and editor, a few years ago, the paper has been enlarged and greatly improved and is now a well-read and interesting journal. The May number came to our table this week, and we shall look with interest for future visits.

The bad condition of the streets during the early part of the season may be urged as an excuse for bicyclists using the sidewalks and we do not feel inclined to criticize too severely. But since the streets have now become fairly good again, we do not see any good reason for the continuance of the evil—and an evil certainly it is. Out of towns in the province are taking measures to protect the sidewalks for pedestrians. Wolfville also has a by-law to that effect, but the present administration seems inclined to allow it as well as other ordinances to be to a considerable extent ignored.

These was a meeting of the Fire Company on Monday evening at the town hall. The attendance was good and a lively interest was manifested in the affairs of the fire department. We are glad to see our firemen alive to the situation and trust that they may at all times be ready for any emergency. At this time when serious fires are being reported in many places it is well to be prepared.

Meeting of the Board of School Commissioners.

Commissioners Chipman, Pines, Strong, Woodworth, Hills, Shaw, Peterson, Sanford, McDonald and C. J. West were present at the meeting of the Board, in Kentville, on the 8th inst. L. DeV. Chipman, Esq., was elected Chairman for the incoming year. The Inspector reported 128 schools in the county. In these were employed 138 teachers. These were classified as follows: A, 6; B, 35; C, 49; D, 48; Male, 21; Female, 117. It was decided to change the Poor Section List by adding Greenfield and dropping Rockland and West Black Rock. A petition was before the Board from some of the ratepayers of Waterville, Prospect and Cambridge, asking for the formation of a new school section west of Prospect. The Board had decided at its last meeting to form this section; but upon application to the C. P. I. it was not ratified. The Board again voted unanimously in favor of this new section. It will again be submitted to the Council for ratification. By vote 250 were granted from the Cornwallis School Land Fund, to Pine Woods, under the usual restrictions, and the amount to be given to North River, per vote of last meeting, was left to the discretion of the Inspector. The Committee on Boundaries reported the following as the bounds of Tremont, No. 89. Beginning at Telford Messenger's south line in the County line between King and Annapolis, thence southerly in that line to the south line of lands granted W. H. & E. E. Freeman, thence east in Freeman's south line and in the north line of a 500 acre lot granted H. Mack and to the south east corner of the same, thence north in the east line of said Mack's land to the north east corner of the same, thence east in the south line of W. H. & E. E. Freeman's land to the south east corner of said lot, thence north in W. H. & E. E. Freeman's east line to the south east corner of an 85-acre lot laid out to Silvanus Morton, thence north along said Morton's east line to lands granted to Banks Winsky, thence southerly crossing the Winsky lot and crossing land granted to Adolphus West to the south west corner of the eastern lot granted George Nealy, thence following the west line of Geo. Nealy to the base line, thence west along the base line to the south west corner of lands owned by George Gordon, thence north along George Gordon's line to John Leonard's south line, thence east to the Falls river, thence following said river to Kingston School Section, thence westerly in Edward Woodbury's north line to the county line, thence south in the county line to the place of beginning.

SOUTH TREMONT, No. 90.—Beginning on the east branch of the Falls river and running southerly by the course of said river to the west line of a 193 acre lot granted to C. E. Geter, thence south in said line and in the west line of lands granted to Mary O. Geter to the south west corner of the same, thence south and east to the west line of Lake George school section, thence by said section to the south line of the same thence to the north east corner of a 135 acre lot granted to W. H. Pallister, thence west in the north line of said lot to the north west corner, thence south in the west line of said lot and in the east line of lands granted Richard Butler and Edward and Henry Mack, thence by the south line of Edward and Henry Mack's land to the north west corner of a 478 acre lot granted to William Fis, thence south in W. Fis's west line and in the west line of lands granted F. and C. H. Davidson to the south west corner of the same, thence south to the south east corner of a lot granted E. and H. Mack containing 2850 acres, thence north to lands granted to Cook, thence west in Cook's south line and in the south line of lands granted to Richard Butler, Silvanus Morton and to the west line of a 408 acre lot granted to Henry Mack and to the south east corner of Tremont school section, thence by the east line of Tremont section to the forks of the river, thence south by the river to the place of beginning.

Upon petition the name Conquest was changed to South Tremont school section. L. DeV. Chipman, S. S. Strong and A. S. McDonald were appointed a committee under section IX School Act. Voted that the balance of the Cornwallis School Land Fund, in the hands of the treasurer, be drawn by the Inspector and put in the bank on deposit receipt bearing interest. The school house in Australia was condemned as unfit for use and the Inspector instructed to write the trustees of that section that in the opinion of the Board the few ratepayers now in that section may be provided with better school privileges by seeking admission to the adjoining sections. COLIN W. REACOCK, Clerk of Board.

Without Parallel. At Ogilvie Wharf, a place in Kings Co. on the Bay of Fundy shore, resides a Capt. Ogilvie who has nine sons. The sons have taken to the sea like the father with the result that the seven oldest sons are captains. The seventh son was in Hantsport this week for the first time as master of the ship. See Queen. We venture the assertion that there is not another case in the maritime provinces of a father and seven sons sailing vessels as masters.—Hantsport Advertiser.

Assessment Amendment. An amendment of the assessment act was drawn up and placed before the house of assembly at the recent sitting. The committee of the legislative council did not consider it, claiming that the time before prorogation was not sufficient. As no doubt it will be brought before the legislature next year we publish the intended amendment and respectfully ask our readers to give their views on the subject. We will gladly publish any correspondence which will tend to throw light on the dark places. The following is the proposed amendment: AN ACT TO AMEND MUNICIPAL ASSESSMENT ACT OF 1895. Be it enacted by the Governor, Council and Assembly as follows: 1. The Council of any Municipality may once in five years, instead of appointing District Assessors, appoint two General Assessors for the assessment of property throughout the whole Municipality and one District Assessor to act with each General Assessor in respect to the assessment of property within the district for which he is appointed. 2. Each two General Assessors to every district in the Municipality and each District Assessor shall assess the property under the provisions of the municipal assessment act of 1895 and perform the duties now devolving upon the District Assessors in each District under the said act. 3. In such years it shall not be necessary to appoint District Assessors other than the one herein provided for. 4. The General Assessors and each District Assessor shall assess the property under the provisions of the municipal assessment act of 1895 and perform the duties now devolving upon the District Assessors in each District under the said act. 5. In such years it shall not be necessary to appoint District Assessors other than the one herein provided for.

A Rare Opportunity for Teachers. The Summer School of Science will be held from July 25th to August 10th, at Bear River, and will be open to all the teachers in the Province. This time is during the vacation period, when teachers want all the enjoyment, rest and recuperation possible. By attending this school and taking the excursions they may enjoy some of the most beautiful scenery to be found anywhere and be in company with the most wide awake, intelligent and progressive teachers of the Maritime Provinces. Change in this case will prove to be rest. There can be nothing so safe to banish all thought of the school room and secure the rest that all teachers need so much, as to be engaged in the pursuit of knowledge from the fields, woods, stones, and other natural sources, in company with those set on a holiday trip. To visit such a beautiful spot as Bear River, to go on the excursions planned, in search of specimens, plants, etc., to participate in the holiday jollity, on the sea, in the ravine, on the mountain top, will insure good appetites, give tone to the physical system, and bring back health and physical robustness to all who want to enter the school room in August in the best of health and spirits. This summer outing will do more good than all the medicine you can take. How many say they cannot teach music by the Tonic Sol-Fa notation because they have had no opportunity to learn it. Here is the golden opportunity for such. A superior teacher, a grand piano and plenty of time to get instruction where nothing will distract. By all means go and learn to sing and then teach music to your pupils. How many more say they cannot teach chemistry. Well, such will never have a more favorable time, than now, to be introduced into some of the mysteries of the science and put in the way of teaching it with some satisfaction. The surroundings are such that it will not seem like study and the conditions are most favorable to learn. English literature, too, troubles a good many teachers. Well, go and put yourselves under the instructive teacher in this school who will, in two weeks, unfold a plan of teaching this subject that will make it a pleasure for you to teach thereafter in your schools. What I have said of these three subjects can be said of all the other subjects sought in the school. This is my advice to the teachers of my own province.—Write J. D. Seaman, Charlottetown, P. E. I., for a Calendar, and then by all means attend the school. C. W. REACOCK, Inspector of Schools.

We are anxious to hear from any person throughout this Province or elsewhere, who is open to buy a good Cabinet Organ. We are agents for the "Bell" and "Mason & Hamlin," the two leading organs of America. If you write us direct we will be glad to give you our very finest cash prices, or the terms on which we sell if time is desired. We have a large stock of all kinds of musical instruments than any house in the Maritime Provinces, and as we are large buyers, it naturally follows that we are in a position to give the best value. The small building occupied by Mr. F. H. Christie as a paint shop was moved this week from Main street to a site on Locust avenue. Mr. Sidney Borden, of Post William, had charge of the work.

Miss Emma Archibald has been appointed teacher in the advanced primary department of our public school. Miss Godfrey, who resigned some time ago. Miss Archibald has been teaching at Grand Pré for the past year and has done very satisfactory work.

Sergeant R. H. Rye, of Kentville, formerly lieutenant in the Kings Canadian Hussars, who joined the Mounted Rifles, is reported by the war office as among the missing. The many friends of the gallant young officer in this county sincerely trust that he may soon be heard from in safety.

Rev. D. O. Parker and the Misses Parker arrived in Berwick on Wednesday afternoon, accompanying the remains of Mr. Parker, who died at Dorchester, Mass., where they have been spending the winter. The news of the death of Mr. Parker was heard with regret by a host of friends here. The Acadian extends sincere sympathy.

We regret to learn of the serious mishap to the schooner Onetilla of this port. According to reports the schooner took fire while on the way here from St. John and had to put back. It was said that the vessel was practically a total loss and the cargo valued at $4000 was mostly destroyed. We are very sorry for Capt. Baird's loss and trust it may not be as heavy as reported.

The Rev. J. G. Angwin will preach in the Methodist church next Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. In the evening he will preach by special request a sermon on "The Bar was an object lesson to the church and the world." On Monday evening, 14th, he will deliver a lecture titled "The British and Boers in South Africa," in the vestry of the Methodist church. Mr. Angwin is a pleasing and popular speaker and ought to draw a crowd.

BARTON—Don't forget that they are again for two of the very best—Stearns and Crescents—at Hand.

This week Mr. William Besser, of this town, received a rather interesting relic of the South African war, in a letter from his son Private Besser, of C. H. B. written from the hospital at De-Aer. The relic was a small metal case which was shot through the arm at the battle of Paardeburg, and sent as a memento to a piece cut from his uniform showing where the bullet entered and passed through the sleeve. It is somewhat stained with blood and is naturally treasured by his father. At the time of the war he had just been taken from the hospital and he had very little to go to the front with, and had made himself up to return to his post.

Notes on Educational Matters.

The Journal of Education has just been sent to the secretary of trustees in each section. He should peruse it and then send it to the teacher. To call attention to some of the most important new things in the Journal is the object of this short article.

I. IMPORTANT DATES.

Any day in May is allowed as Arbor Day. May 23rd, Empire Day; 24th, holiday, and last day for reception of applications for Prov. Exam. at Inspector's office. June 25th, annual meeting of School Sections. July 2nd, Grade A. and County Academy Entrance Exams. begin; 4th, Grade B. C. and D. Exams. begin; 7th, the Public School closes for summer vacation.

II. GRANTS OF PROVINCIAL GRANTS.

All teachers of Class A, whether in County Academies, High or Common schools, will receive Provincial grants of $210, $180 or $150, according to the status of their schools.

III. COUNTY ACADEMIES.

The grants to County Academies are reduced. Those now employing one teacher and making an average of fifteen pupils doing High School work will receive $300. Those having two A. teachers with an average of forty, $500. When there are three A. teachers and an average of eighty, $700. When there are four A. teachers and an average of one hundred and twenty, $1100. It will be seen that the change is in giving part of the grant to the teacher instead of giving all to the teacher as heretofore. Teachers in County Academies will be treated in respect to provincial grants as all other teachers are.

IV. MANUAL TRAINING.

An Act was passed by the Legislature, at its last session, to provide for manual training in the school. When the conditions, as to building, equipment, teacher, etc., shall be met, a grant of $5000 may be received from the Province for such a school. See Act and Regulations.

V. DISMISSAL OF TEACHERS.

The trustees by their unanimous resolution, approved by the Inspector for the district, may dismiss from their employ any teacher for incompetency. See Journal page 65.

VI. EMPIRE DAY.

It is expected that all schools will observe Empire Day on the 23rd inst. with hearty good will. The condition of matters in South Africa, the loyal sentiment that has been growing since the day was last observed and all our relations to the "Mother Country" make it a great pleasure to aid in the observance of the day. Teachers are expected to report to the Inspector what they and their schools do on this as well as on All of Day.

VII. HOLIDAYS.

The Queen's Birth Day and Dominion Day are the two remaining holidays allowed in the present or fourth quarter; but Dominion Day coming on Sunday will not lessen the number of teaching days. In the current school year there are 216 legal teaching days.

VIII. LICENSES.

The standard of Teachers' Licenses will be raised after January, 1901. 35% instead of 33% will be required on all imperative subjects and the age limit will be raised one year, so that the age for D. C. and B. will be raised to 17, 18 and 19 years.
