SOMETHING NEW UNDER THE SUN

New! New lines, new design, new comforts! If these phrases can still mean anything when applied to a motor car they most fully describe the new Chevrolet.

So often are yearly models introduced by such descriptions that they have automatically lost some force. That is, as ordinarily used.

In connection with Chevrolet, however, the phrases are filled with meaning. For the Chevrolet about to be revealed is new, actually new, in practically every feature.

It is hard to realize, in this age of rapid automotive development, that a great deal of improvement can be made in a car at one time. But Chevrolet engineers have apparently evolved a state of development hitherto considered impossible in the small, relatively inexpensive car.

The new Chevrolet at the least merits new consideration, by its startling improvements it will repay the curiosity of even the most casual. And for those interested in the small, light car, it may easily have a great deal to offer.

The Heir to Beecham Park

CHAPTER XIX.

"Pauline!" repeated the girl, striving to dispel the dense cloud that shrouded her memory.

"Yes, miladi. I dressed you for your marriage that sad, sad morning," Pauline spoke slowly. "Can miladi not remember now?" she added, softly.

Margery looked at her strangely and intently.

"I can remember nothing—I seem to be in a dream."

"She put up her left hand to push back the clusters of her hair, and as it fell again to the silken coverlet she gazed at it intently. It looked frail and white, and on the third finger was a ring—a plain, wide band of gold.

The maid touched her hand.

"It is miladi's wedding ring," she said, divining the thoughts of wonder and the speculation that were filling Margery's mind.

"My wedding ring!" echoed the girl, still wonderingly. "Am I married, then?"

Pauline looked at her mistress in alarm. Had the fever really touched her brain? She almost feared it.

"Miladi will remember," she whispered, tenderly. "She was married last morning so early, by Lady Enid's dear hand. Miladi has been ill—deplorable since—but she is better now. Miladi must think—must try to remember now for milord's sake."

"By Lady Enid's dear hand!" whispered Margery; then the cloud vanished suddenly from her memory, and with bitter pain, she remembered all.

Pauline stood by, distressed, yet relieved, as her mistress put her two thin hands to her face and the great tears rolled through the slender fingers—the weeping might agitate for a time, but it would do good in the end. For three weeks Margery had lain between life and death. Her overwrought mind and body had given way suddenly beneath the shock of Lady Enid's death; she had been so tired, so shaken by her former troubles and despair, that the excitement of her marriage, the supreme agony when she realized that the sweet friend and sister had passed away, were too much for her, and she sunk beneath the weight Nugent, Earl of Court, sat and watched beside her couch. He saw the struggle that took place between the terrible fever and Margery's delicate yet healthy constitution, not daring to give words to his fears. She knew nothing during those days—her lustreous eyes met his unmeaningly. She was his wife, the treasured bequest of his dying sister; but all his devotion, his tenderness, the greatness of his new passion for her, was unknown—her mind was a blank.

When the fever passed away she grew better in body, but the vacant look lingered in her eyes, and her band, a man whom she had pitied, respected, liked, but a man whom she could never love, to whom she must ever wear a mask, for love was dead within her to all but one, and for that one it lived as strongly as of yore. What had she done? Bound herself for life, given a sacred vow, while every pulse in her thrilled for that other man, despite his cruelty and his humiliating insults! Oh, that she had spoken openly to Lady Enid! This marriage then would never have taken place. But her silence had produced this result; the sister's tenderness, the friend's affection, had prompted the dead woman to speak her wish, and at such a moment Margery had yielded. She did not regret her promise to Enid. The thought that her marriage had soothed the dying came almost as a gleam of pleasure. It was for her husband's sake she sorrowed, and for her own. Could aught but misery follow such a hasty union? Would not they both repent in bitterness and despair?

Margery rose slowly from her seat, feeling weak and wretched. The spirit of the sea, entrancing at first, had brought with it a host of sad thoughts that destroyed its beauty, and made her shudder at its music.

Pauline had retired quietly from the room. Margery did not notice her absence; and, as she regained her feet and put one hand on the chair to steady herself, she said, faintly, with half a smile:

"You must help me, Pauline. I am very foolish; but—"

A hand clasped hers—not Pauline's but a firm, strong hand. It was her husband's.

"It is not Pauline, my darling; it is I. Nay, do not look so frightened! You are still very weak, my poor one! Pauline came to bring me the good news that you had recovered your memory, and I hastened to you at once—my wife—my sweet one!"

Margery rested quietly in his arms—she had not strength to move—but a tumult of thoughts surged in her brain. Now she must speak, must tell this man of her weakness, of her love. It must be done now in the beginning of their married life; she must not delay; it would be so difficult afterward. And he must know the truth—know that for Enid's sake she had uttered words that should never have been spoken, that would be as emptiness in her eyes.

"I wish to speak," she murmured, faintly; but the words did not reach her husband's ears. She was nervously excited, and her strength was already spent.

The earl drew her still closer to his breast.

"Let me hold you in my arms for one instant, my wife," he said, tenderly and gravely; "it comes as such a blessed happiness after weeks of misery and suspense that I have endured. Margery, my darling, ours was a strange marriage; but it was tenderly blessed by the smile of one we both loved. Ah, Enid could read the heart well! She saw into the very depths of mine; she knew that its sterile ground had brought forth a pure, holy plant—my love for you! She saw the misery of the past banished from my life by the tender influence of that love, and she realized that life might once more be made bright and beautiful to me—that earthly trust, faith and happiness might yet be mine and so she gave you, darling, to me, to fill the void her flight would make, to lead me by your sweetness, your tenderness, to things better and purer, like your own self."

A pang of remorse pierced Margery's heart. Could she speak, and at one word blast this glow-fond happiness, the Heaven-inspired hopes? No, she had not the courage. She must bury the past. Henceforth Margery Daw, with all that appertained to her, was banished, and Margery, Countess of Court, lived in her stead, strong in the determination to keep her vows and prove herself worthy of the devotion of her husband.

She raised her pale, lovely face to his, and a steadfast light shone in her great, blue eyes.

She raised her pale, lovely face to his, and a steadfast light shone in her great, blue eyes.

"By Heaven's help," she responded faintly, yet clearly, "I will do it!"

WHERE SONGS COME FROM.

Where do the songs come from, and how Do the singers wear them for you and me? Some of them spring from the apple bough And some from the Land of the Used to be, And some of the lullabies, soft and sweet, Come from the patter of little feet.

And tuning his ear for a melody, The singer catches a faint low strain From a passing breeze or the summer sea, Or a mother's smile or a sigh of pain, Or the joy of a child as he romps And thus is fashioned another song.

Our songs have come from a falling tear From a rose still bright with the morning dew, From the battlefield and its days of fear, From the long lost joys and the pleasures new, From the cheerful hearth of the brave and strong, From a mother's smile and the kettle's song.

For the singer sees what we cannot see And the singer hears what we cannot hear; The low sweet strains of some melody Fall on his spirit, distinct and clear, And out of some trifling, passing thing He catches a song for the world to sing.

Elaborate Upon New Antiseptic

BALTIMORE, M.B., Feb. 11.—(A.P.)—The discovery of a new antiseptic, used recently in Johns Hopkins Hospital here, to clear up long-standing infections of the kidneys and urinary tract, was elaborated upon at the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health to-day, following a preliminary announcement of the discovery by a medical journal. The new antiseptic named hexyl-resorcinol, is said to be fifty times as strong as carbolic acid in its power to kill disease germs, and yet so harmless to the man, that it can be swallowed without injury.

Dr. Yeager Leonard, chairman of the clinic committee on internal antiseptics of the National Research Council, who developed the germicide in the Hopkins laboratories, said that he and his associates had spent ten years in research to perfect it.

Pathfinding in London

Much is done already to help the visitor, and the native as well, to find his way about the maze of London, and still more ingenious aids are coming along. Next week there is to be a demonstration of a device attached to a tramcar which indicates automatically the point that has been reached on the route and the stopping-places half a mile in advance. Another invention has been taken up by the County Council to assist the puzzled wanderer, who, by pressing a button, illuminates a route on a large map of London and learns at a glance by the colour of the illumination whether he should proceed to his destination by rail, tram, bus or on foot. The first of these "pathfinders" is to be placed near the Boadicea statue at Westminster Bridge.

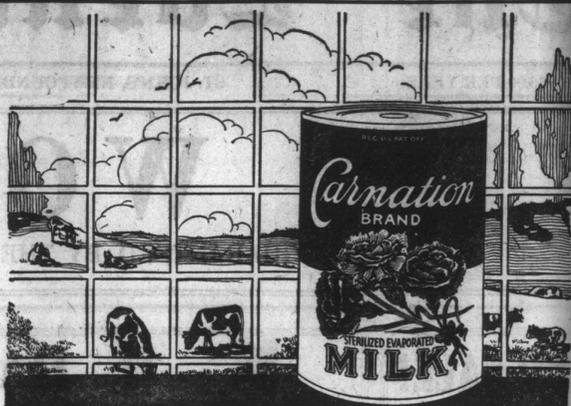

Huge Airships for India Route

Group Capt. P. F. Fellowes, Director of Airship Development, has arrived in Calcutta to select a site for an airship mooring mast. Interviewed, he said that sites had already been selected at Bombay and Delhi, and that he was later visiting Madras on a similar mission.

The new airships decided upon are 4,200 horse power, length 720 feet, diameter 130 feet, height 150 feet, passenger accommodation 150, crew 50, economic range 2,700 miles, full speed 70 to 80 miles per hour, air displacement 150 tons, cubic capacity five million, this being double the cubic capacity of the biggest ship hitherto successfully built.

A Milkman Who Takes Water Out!

One of the favorite themes of the jokesmith is the milkman who waters his milk.

Though the joke has little basis in fact, yet you have heard it many times.

But have you ever thought of the milkman who does exactly the opposite—the milkman who takes water out?

That's what the Carnation milkman does—and here's why he does it:

Millions of people, all over the world, use Carnation Milk regularly; it comes to them from some of the finest dairying sections of Canada.

It seems foolish to pay transportation on all the natural water in this milk, so most of the water is removed.

Such removal serves to concentrate and enhance the food values in the milk, making it richer and smoother.

It also explains the satisfaction with which so many people use Carnation Milk undiluted in place of costly cream, in coffee or on cereals and fruits.

Remember, Carnation is simply pure milk, evaporated, sterilized; nothing is added, no sugar or preservative of any kind.

You can restore it to its original strength and consistency merely by putting back the water that has been taken away.

Order with the groceries—several tall (16 oz.) cans or by the case of 48 cans.

ment to get clear of the Labrador if any reasonable agreement could be reached. He thought there was lots of room for development in Newfoundland and would suggest getting as much as possible. Asked by the Prime Minister to name a price, Mr. Hibbs said it might embarrass matters were he to do so. As to unemployment, he did not favor giving unproductive labour. Speaking of St. John's, he thought that a number of these people if they were in the outports would be working in the lumberwoods. In the city there is plenty of room for improvement, and the Municipal Council should collaborate with the Government. Mr. Higgins explained that the Council will not collaborate, and will not take a loan from the Government. Some reference was also made to recent appointments, after which the speaker reviewed the history of agriculture in Newfoundland. For the past 25 years agriculture has been used as a political football. He claimed that the farmers did not know what they were doing, and urged that they should be educated in the best methods of agriculture. He thought it was ridiculous that we should be importing 3 1/2 million dollars worth of produce. He thought it was a scandal that the previous Government was stampeded into selling off all the cattle of the Model Farm. He admitted that a big mistake was made in the establishment of the Model Farm when the Government imported expensive cattle before providing accommodation for them. Turning to the removal of the Income Tax, the speaker said that all were glad that the tax was removed. In the matter of re-distribution he agreed that the principle of the man districts was a sound one, but he thought it was a mistake to increase the membership from 38 to 40, rather he advocated the reduction to 39, which would give 10 members to each denomination. This reduction, he claimed, would be showing the true principles of economy. The Prime Minister interposed that if Mr. Hibbs or anyone else knew of a more satisfactory division the Government would welcome any suggestions. On the matter of tourist traffic, he thought that a middle course was preferable. He himself advocated a Highways Commission and he thought that with a non-partisan policy the tourist traffic could be made a great source of revenue. Referring again to the matter of Trade Commissioners, the speaker urged that Mr. Davison, who was lately Trade Commissioner at New York, should be re-appointed. Also in connection with the tourist traffic he would advocate the appointment of men as advisers in the big cities of Canada and U.S.A. In connection with the construction of highways he urged that a Newfoundland named Dave, who is now in Canada, be appointed to superintend the work. Mr. Hibbs regretted that the old order of Road Boards had passed out, yet he felt that some good may come from the new measure establishing Municipalities.

CAPT. RANDELL added his congratulations to those already given to the mover and seconder. He was glad to note that we had such able politicians. Practically all the matters contained in the speech had been so well covered that he thought very little could be added to what had been said. He then told how but a few days ago he passed through the Humber and he could not congratulate himself on being one of the party who started that industry because he believed that within the course of a couple of years we would be called upon to pay the interest on our guarantee. He felt safe in saying that the cost of the plant will run into 35 million dollars instead of 20 million as was originally planned. It may be that the industry would pan out all right but to him it looked very doubtful. He would like to call the attention of the country to the employment of foreigners at the Humber. Newfoundlanders are in all important jobs about 6 places from the top, he said. He understood that the ships being built to transport the paper, would be manned by foreigners, that is their executives would be outsiders. Seeing that we are guaranteeing the interest on the bonds of this undertaking he thought we should have some say in how the funds are expended. He stated that there has been mismanagement in the industry as far as the shipping end of it was concerned. Referring to repairs to the dry dock, he said they are badly needed. There is a grave need of repairs he said and he warned those in authority that there is likely to be a serious mishap there. He instanced where he saw the ground surrounding the dock moving to the motion of the sea. He thought the Government was doing right in taking steps to repair the dock. He did not agree that the dock was placed in the right location in the first instance and regretted that the basin above the Long Bridge should have been filled in. Another subject referred to was the Labrador Boundary. The speaker did not agree with the member for Fogo in urging that we get clear of it for a price. He did not think anyone as yet knows the coast line. The headlands are not properly charted. Hamilton Inlet is not properly charted and he doesn't know the coast line we can't define where the boundary line lies. He thought that if the islands off the coast belong to Newfoundland the Canadian Government was in the wrong in having a customs collector at Fort Burwell because it is an island. He thought the Labrador was a valuable possession that should not be disposed of for a small amount. In reference to the public debt, he thought it was not a highly satisfactory state of affairs to have a tax of $18 or $14 per head on every man, woman and child on account of the huge sums that had been borrowed. He thought we should be careful of the legacy we are handing down to our children and not increase the burden. In connection with affairs at Bell Island, he suggested that the Government should enquire into the amount of capital invested there and how much profits were being made. If they secured information about Bell Island aside from other affiliations, he believed it would be an easy matter to decide what wages Besco could pay the miners. He had reason to suspect that they were exploiting the miners as they are doing with their workmen in Cape Breton. Speaking on the redistribution legislation he thought it would be more advantageous if the present districts were re-separated by one man each. The Sealfishery Bill was given a second reading. It is as follows:--

1. No Sealing Steamer shall depart for the prosecution of the Seal Fishery during the present year before 8 a.m. on the 5th day of March. The Provisions of Section 12 of the Seal Fishery Act, as amended by the Act 12 George V. Cap. XXXVIII. Section 1, shall in all respects other than the time of the departure as aforesaid remain in full force and effect. 2. Subject to the provisions of the Seal Fishery Act respecting the hours and days upon which seals may be killed it shall be lawful to kill seals at any time during the present year after the 13th day of March.

THE MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES moved the second reading of the Bill respecting the Lobster Fishery. The measure had the support of people all over the country, and he did not think it inflicted undue hardship for want of notice as he had last July notified canners that a close season would likely come into force. Regarding the alleged hardship on the people of St. Barbe and the West Coast, he thought these people would not suffer as the Government was giving special consideration to them. The Fisheries Board, he said, had hundreds of petitions asking for the close season, and many thought the period should be 5 years. He asserted that the personnel of the Fishery Board, principally men from the outports, had the interests of the fishermen at heart, and they found it necessary to do something to protect the industry. A 6.30 further debate was deferred until this afternoon.

260 Miles an Hour Aeroplanes. In a determined effort to win back the Schneider Cup, the international trophy for air marine craft, which was won by the United States at Cowes two years ago, craft are now being constructed to represent Great Britain which, it is confidently believed, will be capable of a speed of between 260 and 270 miles an hour. One of the racing craft now being built secretly is the development of a type which, during "hush, hush" trials last autumn, attained a speed of 215 miles an hour with the throttle not fully open. With a very small span, and streamlined so that there are no "bumps" in the fuselage, this racer, which will be equipped with floats for landing on water, will look like a flying bullet as it goes hurtling through the air. One of the secrets of its speed will be the specially constructed engine, let into the fuselage to minimize wind resistance. This is a development of the Napier Lion engine, but the new type will develop nearly 600 h.p., and by the Little Jack Rabbit by David Cory. Did I say that the little rabbit would hop into this story, Little Reader? Well, he has; that is, I mean I shall tell you what he did after I finished yesterday's story. So here we go, my typewriter and I, to explain that as soon as Little Jack Rabbit had hopped out of Photographer Crane's picture parlor, where the bunny's boy's picture had just been taken, that nimble little rabbit hopped off home-as fast as he could go. By and by he came to the Farmyard where his feathered friends were scratching about in the straw at the foot of the Big Hay Stack. Mr. Merry Sun was still shining from the sky and although Mr. North Wind was blowing, it was warm and pleasant on the sheltered side. "Just had my picture taken," shouted the bunny boy, as Henny Jenny looked up on hearing the pitter-patter of his feet. "When warm weather comes again, and it's bright and clear, I'll telephone for Mr. Crane To photograph me here." sang the Weathercock from his perch on the Big Red Barn. "We'll all have our pictures taken when summer comes," Henny Jenny had had none since she laid her first egg," crowed Cocky Doodle, clapping his wings. Just then Old Sic'em, the Kind Farmer's Dog, looked out of his kennel house to enquire what all the noise was about. "Hello, bunny boy," he barked, crawling all the way so he could wag his tail "glad to see you. How are all the folks at home?" "Mother's well, but she'll be happier when she sees my photograph," cried the little rabbit, hopping over to pat the old dog. "I've just come from Photographer Crane's pretty studio. I held a bouquet cabbage in the picture." "You don't mean it!" exclaimed the old dog. "How pretty that will be, derneath the ice, "if the tiny fresh water crab is very cold." Then on he hopped, down the Old Crow Path, he reached the little gate in the picket fence outside the Bramble patch. It was growing dark, and Mr. Merry Sun had gone to bed behind the purple hills. But the white snow made it light enough for the bunny boy not to stub his tippy toe and in a few minutes he hopped up on the little back porch and opened the kitchen door. "I had my picture taken," he cried as Lady Love pressed him close to her pretty calico apron, and in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

By Way of Enlightenment.

In the seclusion of the North the Advocate continues to soliloquize over the results of the General Election, seeking to discover the causes which led to the defeat of its party.

It is difficult to see the connection, but the paragraph in question may be enlightening to our readers in more ways than one. Here it is:

"The Walker Report went a long way in befogging the minds of many who listened to the fairy stories of the Tory spell-binders as they lied and misrepresented public questions. The same thing occurred in both Britain and the United States. In the former country the Labor Party was driven from power by a fare-up concocted the last week of the campaign alleging some sinister alliance between the MacDonald Ministry and the Russian Soviet Government. It was a mere election ruse, but it worked, and now the old Tory Government reigns in England. In America the real forces of Progressive Liberalism were embodied in the La-Follette movement."

The Advocate is correct in attributing the downfall of the Party to the Walker Report, but it would have been even more exact in its deduction had it stated that the disintegration of the party followed inevitably upon the publication of that Report, as it revealed to the public the wretched manner in which the affairs of the country had been administered. However, that is a story with which everyone is familiar.

The paragraph which we have quoted was apparently written by someone who is either ignorant of the fact that the authenticity of the infamous Zinovieff Letter has been proved beyond a question of doubt, or else he is convinced that the unscrupulous author is a much injured individual. For the writer's benefit we might say that the letter in no way, shape or form besmirched the characters of MacDonald's Cabinet, but was in fact intended to bring about its downfall in the hope that the rag, tag and bobtail which were unfortunately included in the Labor Party, and which found their inspiration in the teachings of Moscow, might climb to power over the ruins. The plot failed, because the conspirators did not take into account the sterling character of the people, and the repugnance in which the tenets of communism are held by all but a very few of the rank and file.

In order that the writer may have no further reason to believe that Zinovieff has been the innocent victim of a conspiracy, we would advise him to study the following article, which throws further light on the character of the author of the famous letter, and still further indicates the venomous animosity which he bears towards the British people.

PARIS, Feb. 10. A letter from Zinovieff, President of the Third (Moscow) Internationale, to M. Marcel Cachin, the French Communist leader, calling upon Communists in France to make efforts to bring about a rising of the native population of Northern Africa against "British and French Imperialism" is published in the "Liberte" this evening. Dated December 2, 1924, and marked "Very secret," it is addressed from the executive committee of the Third Internationale. In addition to being signed by Zinovieff, it is countersigned by Khussein, secretary of the Third Internationale.

According to my information the document is authentic. Its existence has been known to a few well-informed people for some months. Calling upon Communists in France to take a particularly active part in a congress of colonial workmen to be held under the auspices of the Third Internationale, Zinovieff says: "Unfortunately so far neither the Spanish nor the Italian Communist Party has given sufficient attention to propaganda in Northern Africa. The greater part of this work has been done and continues to be done by the French Communist Party, which has thus earned the gratitude of the proletariat of the whole world. Events in Egypt and the check inflicted upon the Spaniards in Morocco have precipitated matters considerably. We must now undertake the organization of the proletariat in Northern Africa amid the fire and heat of the battle being waged by Imperialism and during the keen struggle of Spanish and British capitalism against the Arabs."

INCITING THE SLAVES. "During this struggle the Egyptian Communist Party has suffered severe reverses but it is raising its head, and is again attacking British Imperialism. Agitation at Algiers and Tripoli would give the Egyptian proletariat strength to continue the struggle against the bloodthirsty British bourgeoisie."

"The congress must incite the masses of Northern Africa to enlist in the fight against European Imperialist rapaciousness. The most important thing is that the delegates should be permeated by their revolutionary principles. They must be absolutely convinced that final success will be obtained only by force of arms, for an armed struggle alone will compel the bourgeoisie of the European States to abandon their domination over the proletariat of Northern Africa."

"The Communist Party in Britain is making every effort to aid the Egyptian proletariat. The executive of the Third Internationale will be pleased to furnish material aid. It has given orders that a sum of 1,500,000 francs shall be handed to the Central Committee of the French Communist Party to help the workers' organizations in the colony."

Wedding Bells

STICK-CHAPEL. A very pretty military wedding took place at the Cathedral of St. John the Baptist last evening, when Beatrice Robins, youngest daughter of the late Jas. R. and Mrs. Stick, was united in Holy bonds of matrimony to Capt. Eric R. A. Chafe, M.C., of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment, son of Mr. and Mrs. Levi G. Chafe, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Canon Jeeves, C.F., Rector of the Cathedral, assisted by Rev. A. B. S. Stirling, Rector of St. Mary's. The bride, attired in a costume of brown velour cloth with gold lace hat and carrying a shower bouquet of white carnations and orange blossoms, looked charming as she entered the church leaning on the arm of her brother, Capt. L. J. Stick, I. A. R. Mrs. F. Ronald Clark attended the bride as matron of honour, and wore a costume of grey velvet, with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, Lt. R. McK. Chafe, Mr. F. R. Clark and Dr. J. L. Dickson acted as ushers, and Fred J. King presided at the organ. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's sister, Devon Row, where a delightful supper was served, and the customary toasts duly honoured. The colour scheme of the table was carried out in the colours of the Royal Nfld. Regiment, claret and white. For the cutting of the wedding cake the bride used the sword worn by her husband. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents, testifying to her popularity. Capt. and Mrs. Chafe leave by the Silvia for Canada, where the honeymoon will be spent. Their very many friends extend to the gallant officer and his fair bride very best wishes for a long and happy life.

Famous Actress in New Picture

Mary Carr and Mary Alden Are in Cast of "Painted People," at the Star To-day. The screen's two most famous portrayers of mother roles have important parts in "Painted People," a comedy drama which opens to-day at the Star Theatre, with Colleen Moore in the starring role. In this gem of pathos and humor, Mary Carr, of "Over the Hill" fame, plays mother to Ben Lyon and Mary Alden is mother to Miss Moore. "Painted People," a picturization of Richard Connell's Collier's Weekly serial, is a pleasing romance of a boy and girl who sets out to make themselves worthy of wealthier sweethearts, to find, after they had become successful, that their idols had feet of clay and that in reality they have made themselves worthy for each other.

An unusually talented cast of players enact the interesting roles; the all-star aggregation comprises Colleen Moore, in the leading role; Ben Lyon, Charlotte Merriman, Charlie Murray, Anna Q. Nilsson, Sam De Grasse, Joe Striker, Mary Alden, Russell Simpson, Mary Carr, and June Elvidge.

Arlie Marks in Brilliant Play

45 MINUTES FROM BROADWAY BEAUTIFULLY INTERPRETED. A play in which the entire cast excels is the Arlie Marks Company's presentation of George M. Cohan's great masterpiece, "45 Minutes from Broadway" which again played to capacity house last night in the Casino. Apart from its splendid interpretation, the bill is a triumph from an artistic standpoint. The scene of the second act appealed to the reviewer as the prettiest thing he has ever witnessed on a local stage. Apparently nothing has been overlooked to make this scene originally accurate and it is indeed a treat to the eye.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SOLVING CROSS-WORD PUZZLES
 Start out by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to other words crossing them, and they in turn will give you a clue to still others. A letter belongs in each white space, words starting at the numbered squares and running either horizontally or vertically or both.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle denials by representatives of the Army and Navy and of their respective Air Services, on matters pertaining to the efficiency of airplanes, the House aircraft investigation committee appear to have obtained unanimous opinion upon one subject only—that anti-aircraft guns are not an effective means of defence against airplane attacks, whereas other aircraft are. The committee begins the week with several new important subjects before it, having on Saturday disposed of the last of the allegations that have been so frequent of late, when it received testimony under oath from Rear Admiral Shoemaker, chief of navigation, denying that he censored a statement prepared for the press on the ground that its release in the original form would "rain the Navy."

The latest information commanding the attention of the committee which has resulted in a decision to request permission to report next December instead of this session of Congress, is that the United States is no longer safe from aerial attacks, owing to the development of a system by certain foreign nations whereby airplanes in flight can be refueled from surface craft while also in motion.

Information concerning the last two battleships constructed for the British navy and which are reported to be "floating airframes" also is in possession of the committee along with data about giant foreign planes with multiple power plants capable of operating at a great range. What all this talk of the necessity for greater activity towards strengthening the country's aerial defences by increased naval air forces will have upon President Coolidge's cherished scheme of further disarmament it is difficult to predict.

THIS JOB IS POPULAR.

William M. Jardine of Kansas was on Saturday appointed by President Coolidge to be Secretary of Agriculture, succeeding Howard H. Gore who retired on March 4 to become Governor of West Virginia. Few presidential appointments in recent years have attracted wider interest than the choice of the Secretary of Agriculture and to the cabinet brought out so many candidates. It is known that 180 names were presented to the President during his consideration of the post but why there should be such a scramble for the job it is hard to fathom. The salary has not been increased, nor has the work of the department decreased. In fact there are many agricultural problems awaiting the new secretary that only a very ambitious man and one extremely well qualified would care to wrestle with.

CALLS HALT TO INDECENT PLAYS.

In a previous letter your correspondent referred to the freedom with which obscene and blasphemous plays were being staged in Washington, productions which having been put on the boards in this city and having been duly approved by so-called critical audiences, were launched upon their real career in New York, there to run for many months. In the House to-day Congressman Frederick W. Dallinger of Massachusetts, declaring that the plays recently staged in Washington have been "so obscene and indecent in plot and language as to shock the morals of the community," introduced the following resolution:

"WHEREAS, plays have recently been staged in the theatre of the District of Columbia so obscene and indecent as to shock the moral sense of the community and to cause the just condemnation of newspapers and periodicals in other parts of the country; and

"WHEREAS, under the Constitution, the Congress has exclusive jurisdiction over the District of Columbia; and

"WHEREAS, it has delegated to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia the usual police powers enjoyed and exercised by municipal authorities elsewhere in the United States; and

"WHEREAS, in the exercise of such police powers the Commissioners of the District of Columbia have authority to prevent the exhibition of improper plays or revoke the licenses of places of amusement; therefore

"BE IT RESOLVED that the Commissioners of the District of Columbia be and they are hereby directed to inform the House of Representatives what steps, if any, they have taken to prevent staging of such improper plays."

How Eve Called Adam to Dinner

Sir Richard Paget, lecturing in London, on "How Speech is Produced," declared that human speech was still in a very primitive condition.

When Adam and Eve first set up housekeeping and Eve wanted to let her spouse know it was time to come into dinner, she said, he said, having made a gesture resembling the opening and closing of the mouth. Then she probably took to making a blowing noise, and subsequently to grunting, so that Adam would be able to hear it quite a long way off. When a vocalist sang "I'll sing these songs of Araby" as a matter of fact he only sang about three-quarters of it and whispered the rest, something which the lecturer illustrated by pointing out that the letter "s" was a sound.

Empire Defence

Too Great a Burden for One Small Island.

Mr. L. S. Amery, M.P., Secretary of State for the Colonies, speaking at Caxton Hall, recently, on "Imperial Unity," pointed out that many people were merely apt to look at the problem of defence from the point of view of the protection of our coasts. Britain's existence depended on the maintenance of 80,000 miles of sea way across which was conveyed all our food, supplies and raw material, and our own goods. Cut off from it, we should perish in a few weeks, without a man being landed on our shores or a bomb dropped on our cities. After emphasizing the interdependence of the various parts of the Empire with regard to defence, and the part taken by the Overseas Dominions in winning the war, Mr. Amery said how impossible it was becoming for the whole burden of
