Wireless Across the Atlantic.
A Sydney despatch says—The Marconi system of trans-Atlantic communication is now fairly well established, and with very few interruptions the station at Glouce Bay has been in constant operation since its opening for commercial business on Thursday last. That Marconi himself is reasonably sure of the continued success of his improved system is best testified to by the fact of his leaving shortly for New York, thus leaving to his subordinates here the actual carrying on of the business.

No Coal Available in Springhill.
The fuel problem in this community is becoming more acute every day. Fortunately so far as the workmen are concerned there is an unlimited supply of wood free of charge for all who care to take it. Needless to say the woods' resource with many axes daily, but with many of our institutions it has reached a serious stage. It is rumored that the schools will shortly close through lack of fuel. Some of the churches have vacated the main buildings and are holding services in their smaller rooms because less fire is required. It is a pity that some people cannot confine their source of supply to the surrounding forests. The English Church had stored in enough wood for a month. This was all stolen one night this week. The neighboring small mines are running at full capacity, being overwhelmed with orders. Some of them reply to new applications that they cannot look at further orders for several weeks yet. Springhill has many orders at these collieries, but are told considerable time must elapse before their turn comes round.

value in Springhill, it has, in fact, become something of a curiosity. One of our leading citizens has a barrel full in his office window labelled "To look at, not for sale at any price." There is one institution deserving of the citizens' and workmen's best attention, and I have no doubt this will be given when circumstances demand it. The Cottage Hospital some time ago was absolutely out of coal, and could not procure any from the local Coal Company. However, a private citizen or two contributed a few tons out of their cellars to keep the patients warm for the time being.

RAILWAY CROSSINGS.

The despatch recording the killing of four persons at a level crossing in Pennsylvania says—"The crossing is reached after a sharp turn. A ledge, a clump of trees, and a couple of buildings partly obscure the sight of the crossing until one is within a short distance of it." A stellar description might be given of any had crossings in Nova Scotia. One at Berwick could be included by substituting "through a deep cutting" for "after a sharp turn."—Berwick Register.

Nova Scotia is to have the biggest and best exhibit of fruit in London next month that she has ever sent to that great emporium. It will be seen at the Annual Royal Agricultural show, to be held on November 28th and 29th. The arrangements for the exhibit were made by Principal M. Cumming when he was last in London, and the details are now being carried out in good style by G. H. Vroom, Dominion Fruit Inspector. The department of agriculture is very best that can be got in this province and packed in the most perfect way. In addition to this the growers are being asked to send forward a similar quantity of fruit in boxes and barrels, which will be shown with their names attached, and after the show will be sold at auction, the proceeds, of course, going to the owners. This will constitute the best exhibit of apples this province has yet made, both in quality and quantity. Its purpose is twofold. First, the exhibit will serve to exploit our own fruit—it will show the world what our orchards can do. Secondly, it will test the opportunities that exist for shipping the very choicest of our fruit packed in the most attractive way, to the very best market, where the highest prices are paid. This fruit would find its destination almost exclusively in the west end of London, and

New Steam Mill for Brookfield Gold Mines.—Success of Local Nimrods.—Reports Damaging to Shipping Interests Being Circulated.

Mr. A. Malberton Gilpin, of Halifax, is the guest of his aunt, Mrs. Godfrey.
George King is installing a twenty-ton capacity steam mill at his gold mine in Brookfield, Queens County. The ladies of St. Louis R. C. Church intend holding a Social Tea in the Academy of Music on Wednesday afternoon.
Mr. Ned Lynch, son of Mr. James Lynch, has received the position of third engineer on the steamer Oceana, plying between Halifax and the West India Islands.
Mr. C. O'Dell and Mr. John Whitman returned from the woods Thursday last, bringing back a fine moose. Mr. William DeVany was their guide. This is the second party Mr. DeVany has been guiding and on each trip he has been successful.
Mr. Hugh K. Burns, teller in the Bank of Nova Scotia, left on Saturday for New Hampshire on a two weeks vacation. Mr. J. P. Murchison of Charlottetown, is relieving teller.
Miss Edith McMillan left for a trip to Boston on Saturday.
Miss Sadie Edwards left for Waltham, Mass., where she will join her mother, Mrs. John Edwards, who intends residing there this winter.
Mrs. George McChelland, Greywood, spent the week end at the McLeod House.
Mr. Prim MacKay, of the Maritime Express Co., was home for a few days last week.
Mr. Hugh Rowden returned from the woods Friday, bringing a trophy in the shape of a fine moose head.
Mr. M. L. Robinson, general agent for the Confederation Life Association for the counties of Queens and Shelburne, spent Sunday in town.
Mrs. A. W. Savary is visiting friends in Wolfville.
Mr. Barton Simpson, of Acadia College, a nephew of the pastor, occupied the pulpit of the Baptist Church Sunday.
Mr. H. Howe, Rev. D. C. Cunningham of Weymouth, and Mr. C. O. Chase returned Saturday from a week's camping and hunting.
Lieutenant McLean has arrived in town to take the place of Captain Thistle. The officers of the Salvation Army are now Captain Patrick and Lieut. McLean.
Mr. L. D. Schaffner, of Bridgetown, was in town Monday.
Miss C. Corbett is visiting in Halifax.
Mrs. J. H. Lombard returned Monday from a visit to Yarmouth.
The marriage takes place this (Wednesday) morning in both the Methodist and Anglican churches.
Rev. Mr. Quinn, who has occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian church here for the last four weeks, returns to his home in Pictou today.
Messrs. A. D. Mills and E. C. Whitman are in Bridgewater attending the meeting of the Western N. S. Lumberman's Association.
Mr. John Howe, who has been on a visit to his parents, Rev. and Mrs. Howe, returned to St. John Thursday last.
Mr. Milledge Goucher, who has been home for the summer months, returned to the States Monday.
Mr. Lou Howe spent Monday afternoon in town. Lou has been for some time connected with the Annapolis branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. He has been transferred to the Middleton branch. We understand his brother Frank, who has been in the Middleton branch of this bank for about three years, has been transferred to Sydney.

Mrs. Rita and Mrs. E. Beck left today for Windsor, where they will spend Thanksgiving with Mrs. Beck's daughters, who are attending Edgemoor Hill.
Mr. G. A. Parker, advertising agent of the D. A. R. Company, was in town last week.
Mr. Hugh Sloan, of "The Advertiser," Kentville, has been visiting his sister, Mrs. Copeland.
The Halifax and Digby papers publish this week an item regarding the grounding of the bark "Silas" at her wharf. To judge from the account as in said items, it would give the impression that the bark has received considerable injury and has to undergo large repairs, whereas within two days the vessel was lying in mid-stream, taking in her cargo. It is evidently a squarer wanting to make "much ado about nothing." These reports injure our harbour and give those using same much difficulty, and often cause higher freight rates, on account of owners being afraid there are not good births and anchorages, whereas we have perfectly safe anchorages and good births. The shipping interest is too great an asset to the town to have reports like this going abroad.

PANDORA RANGE

A convenience much appreciated by every owner of a Pandora is the towel rod attached to the range. As one-third of the rod is made of emery, it makes a splendid knife sharpener, too.

It's always there handy for you. You need waste no time hunting around for the easily misplaced "steel." Bright idea, eh?

Every Pandora thermometer is carefully adjusted and undergoes a practical test by heat—is proven correct before being sent out.

The figures, which show the required degree of heat necessary for the successful baking of bread, cakes, pies, etc., are plainly inscribed in black on a white enamel surface, so that they are easily readable, even when the day is dull.

If your local dealer does not sell the Pandora, write direct for free booklet.

An accurate thermometer is a reliable guide to successful baking, while an inaccurate one is a "cheat" of the worst kind.

The Kidnapping of George.

The young man's face was clouded by a shadow. And the face of the young woman whose clear gray eyes intently regarded him was clouded, too.

"No, Martin," she presently broke the silence, "I cannot be persuaded. He looked at her tenderly.

"I am selfish enough to think you are wrong," he said, "but that's a lover's unfairness. Anyway, there is no question about the beauty of the sacrifice you are making."

"I am only doing what I believe to be my duty, Martin."

"And you would marry me if it were not for George?"

She hesitated a moment. "I—I think I would, Martin."

He moistened his lips. "George looks very large and very formidable," he said. "What can be done with him?"

The girl sighed. "Nothing."

"There was a little silence. 'It isn't right,' murmured the man beneath his breath, and there was bitterness in his tone.

"It is the only thing I can do," said the girl.

"You know he isn't worth the sacrifice."

"He is my brother."

"The man drew a long breath. 'Such a brother!'

The girl's face flushed. "I cannot disagree with you, Martin. I must do my duty as I see it. George needs my care. My mother with her last words asked me to watch over him when all others deserted him. I will carry out my promise."

The young man looked eagerly. "Let me help you care for him, Margery."

"No, Martin. He shall be my disgrace alone."

Her head drooped, her gaze was turned from him.

"And can nothing be done?"

"Nothing," he had had the best medical advice. It was of no avail. He will do nothing to help himself. He is utterly indifferent to his condition. If he cannot get brandy he resorts to 'cuties.' He has had the so-called 'cuties' if he could be taken away from this perilous atmosphere, far away from these wicked friends who are sapping his life and his money, it could be made to fight out the battle with himself alone and unaided—why, it would either cure or kill him. And that, they tell me, is the only hope."

Martin stared hard at the floor.

"I would be glad to help George if I could," he said, "but he repels me. He looks at me as if I were a pest. He has looked up, 'I have told you, Margery, that on your departure an important move in my career depended. If you will marry me I will remain here in Stockholm. If not, I will accept an offer I have to go to Egypt, where a contracting engineer is needed.' He looked at her anxiously.

"No, Martin."

"It will be gone at least two years."

"Will you wait, Margery?"

"Yes."

"Do not ask me to make any promise, Martin. I cannot tell what may happen."

He hesitated an instant.

"You have sufficient income?"

"Yes."

"I must wire my acceptance of the offer tonight and start tomorrow."

"Before she could answer this the outside door was quietly slammed, and a young man staggered through the doorway.

"George!" said the girl, in a quivering voice.

"What's that?" he muttered thickly. "Is that you, Martin Henley? What you doing here? Mainly love is my enemy. She don't want nothing to do with you. She got her dear brother."

W. A. KAIN,
Box 188, ST. JOHN, N. B.

In order that a town or city may make a substantial and steady growth, it must have factories so as to induce people to make their home there. People will flock where there is employment. The question of securing factories and other sources of employment must be agitated, and inducements held out to other citizens or outsiders to invest, or, at least, to investigate the possibilities of successfully operating plants here. As a start, we would suggest the investigation of the feasibility of some one putting in a pickle and canning factory. We feel sure that our farmers would see the benefit such an institution would be to them as well as to to look after. Good night, Martin Henley good night." He lurched forward on the sofa and fell heavily.

Martin Henley, his eyes staring, those of the girl, passed into the hall. The girl followed him. He turned as they neared the outer door.

"You say the only hope for George is a new scheme and new surroundings?" "Yes," she whispered.

"Come back here, sister," the prodigal called. "I need you. Don't you hear me? I need you. And the man in voice trailed off in a discordant song.

Martin Henley put out his hand. "Good-bye, and God guard you, Margery."

And he was gone.

If he could have looked back into the hallway he would have seen the girl leaning against the wall and sobbing as if her heart would break. Quite unconscious of this, however, he strode along, a new and strange idea dawning the palm of his departure. The idea still held possession of his mind when he entered the telegraph office and penned his despatch accepting the Egyptian offer.

When tea time came the next day and George did not return, Margery felt little anxiety.

"Have kidnapped George. Am trying the only hope."

"MARTIN HENLEY."

The telegram fluttered from her hands. Then she stooped and picked it up. It came from New York.

At 4 o'clock the next day Margery received another message.

"Just boarding a Mediterranean steamer. Everything hopeful."

Margery drew a long breath of relief.

The days wore away and it was almost a month later before Margery received the first letter. It was dated Gibraltar.

"We have been buffeted by storms," Martin wrote. "It is too early yet to talk about results, but I have not lost hope in the success of the experiment. No doubt you are wondering how I contrived to kidnap George, but it was not very difficult. It was a harder matter to get him aboard the steamer, but I finally succeeded. I am sorry to say that he does not appreciate the scheme I have made in his behalf. In fact, he regards me as his bitterest enemy. Perhaps this feeling will wear away. You may rest assured that it will make no difference in my feeling toward him."

Margery cried over this letter. She could only faintly imagine the events of that long voyage. But she knew that Martin would persevere to the very utmost.

The letter from Alexandria was a long time coming. She opened it with a feeling of dread.

"George has been ill," Martin wrote. "So ill that I did not have the heart to write you until he was better. But he is so much improved that in a few days I hope we can start up the Nile. There was one very gratifying feature of his illness—all his old antimony disappeared. He has just called to me, 'Tell sister,' he says, 'that I am in good hands.' I will write to you again when we enter the desert."

Then Margery waited for the letter from the desert. At last it came.

"More delays," Martin wrote, "but now our equipment is ready and we enter the desert tomorrow. I do not know when you will hear from us again. We are going to be cut off from the usual means of communication."

"I'm writing this in a troop and, the only quarters we could get. George is lying on a blanket-covered board. I do not dare let him leave my sight. He is very melancholy, and his antipathy to me has returned. I am writing to you frankly, dear girl, just as I am sure you would have me write. We had a hard battle and the outcome is not at all certain. Good-bye and keep you."

That was the last that Margery heard from Martin for many months.

A year wore away and still no message came. And then Margery almost ceased to hope. She knew there had been an uprising of the savage tribes of the Sudan. The fanatic followers of a leader long supposed to be dead had swept away the outposts of the British advance and destroyed much of the work upon the new railway.

Later came tidings of a battle in which the British forces had routed the fanatics with great loss. But their own loss was heavy and the advance was slow. There were rumors of white prisoners somewhere in the interior.

Six weeks later Margery received a message from the Sudan. It told her, "We are coming home." It told her, "The name under it was 'George.'"

Another long period of waiting followed, but now Margery's anxiety was tempered by hope.

ANOTHER EARTHQUAKE.
Oct. 21—Prolonged earthquake shocks beginning at five o'clock this morning and lasting for several hours have been recorded on the instruments on the Isle of Wight and at Ljuboch, Austria. The distance of the disturbances is estimated at over three thousand miles.

Telegrams received here from St. Petersburg report earth shocks in Central Asia, at Latakurgun, Samarkand, Khokand and elsewhere, which caused the injury of collapse of many buildings. At Samarkand the shocks lasted intermittently from early morning until this afternoon. Two women were killed by falling houses, and the population is now camping out in the fields.

This is without doubt the same earthquake that was reported yesterday by the seismograph at Toronto and Washington.

He can go to the circus in the afternoon and coming without paying a cent, also inquire and bargain. He has free tickets to the theatre, gets walking cake sent to him, and sometimes gets fished, but not often, as he can take it back in the next season, which he generally does. While other folks have to go to bed early, the editor can sit up every night and see all that is going on.

J. V. Thomas' Comments on the Exhibition.

To the Editor of The Telephone— In pursuance to announcements made by papers and posters, the exhibition was conducted under exceedingly favorable circumstances. The day was so fine that a large number of people from the various parts of the province were enabled to attend—in all, anywhere from twelve to fifteen hundred of the most prosperous and interested part of our population. Every part of our entertainment was carried out according to announcements previously made and were more than interesting to our patrons. At the completion of the judges' work, the half past twelve o'clock—Professor Cummings, of Truro, opened the exhibition with a very neat and interesting speech, which paved the way for an exceedingly large audience in the evening. Said, by the speaker, to be the largest he had ever addressed in the County of Digby. With a slight exception, perfect order was maintained during the rendering of the evening programme, which consisted of three speeches and four pieces of music rendered by the combined choirs of the Baptist and Methodist churches. The usual vote of thanks was extended to the speakers and to the choirs, and in this way one of the should-have-been-best exhibitions ever conducted in Digby County was brought to a close by singing "God Save the King."

The horse department was fairly good. That of cattle, small and indifferent, with the exception of a few pair of oxen. There was a fairly good showing of swine. The showing of sheep was, but quality good. What poultry was exhibited was very creditable. What grain was exhibited was better than the average, while the roots and vegetables were of superior size and quality. Now, as we pass to the fruit tables, the very air that we breathe seems to be loaded with the same resting upon the great number of fruit growers residing in and around the beautiful town of Bear River, to say nothing of other parts of the County, which it will require many years of time-to-come to eradicate from the minds of those who favored us with their presence at the exhibition which they visited at Bear River. Many of us, who are in years, will not live long enough to unload ourselves of this burning shame that has been put upon us, through utter neglect and carelessness on the part of those employed in the agricultural and horticultural industry in this County, many of whom are members of Hillsburgh Agricultural Society, and have been for many years.

The ladies' department was fairly well represented. Some very choice work was exhibited. Bread and preserves and canned goods were also in evidence. Oakdale School put on some very nice drawings which were thought to be a very creditable exhibit, as well as a number of pictures put on by one of Bear River's young artists. The ladies of the town are to be congratulated on their magnificent display of putted plants that would compare very favorably with those shown in large cities.

From a financial standpoint, this exhibition has been a grand success—well beyond the expectations of the managers. The thanks of the management are due to those who labored so hard to place a worthy exhibition before the public—both ladies and gentlemen.

J. V. THOMAS

We have received from Mr. Thomas another letter bearing on criticisms of the exhibition, which we are obliged to hold over for another issue.

—ED.

MILLAR-MILLER.

Halifax, Oct. 16—At six o'clock this evening, St. Paul's church, was the scene of a wedding, in which a large number of people both in Halifax and in New Brunswick took special interest. The principals in the ceremony were Aleta May, daughter of the late L. Miller, and John Macintosh Miller, son of Rev. Dr. Miller, pastor of Chalmers church. Mr. Miller is now practicing his profession as civil engineer in the employ of the Trans-continental Railway at Edmundston, N. B. The Ven. Rev. Archbishop Armitage performed the ceremony. Miss Miller was attended by Miss Florence Bonnamy, of St. John, who had been her guest for several weeks. Dr. J. Ross Milroy of Annapolis, brother of the groom, was his best man.

HOW TO OBSERVE THANKSGIVING DAY.

The last Thursday in October is the day set apart by the government to be observed as Thanksgiving Day, a day wherein every man, woman and child should bow their heads in prayer to our Maker for the multitude of blessings, which He has seen fit to bestow upon each and every one of us, though wicked and sinful we may have been all our lives. He has been good to the sinner as well as the saint. He has caused the rain to fall upon the unjust as well as the just, and yet how far we all fall short of our duty to Him. A great many people certainly misconstrue the object and purpose of Thanksgiving Day. There are some who, with gun and dog, take to the woods to shoot anything with which they may come in contact, while many others are in for any kind of sport, fun or frolic, amusements of any nature, anything but the real purpose for which the day is intended. Some few have a different view and will remain at home and talk, and discuss their neighbors, their faults and habits, not for a moment do they speak of the good traits of those friends and neighbors, but gossiping and tattling seem to be the ruling enjoyment of the day. Then there is a class who will know the object and purpose of Thanksgiving Day and this class, though small, yet very small, will respect the good day and spend it as the day should be. A few of these good people will meet in their holy sanctuary and there lift up their voices in prayer and thanksgiving to their divine Master, for the many blessings and comforts showered upon them and theirs. This class of people are few and far between, yet the good Lord will hear and answer their prayers. My dear young men, yes, and old ones, too, stop and rest one you deprecate this great and good day. Celebrate it as it should be a day of prayer and thanksgiving to our good Master for His goodness and kindness to us through all our lives. As the day rolls around, we sit times reflect, as we see the youth of the country preparing for a day of sport, that he intends to participate in, how greatly the meaning of this day is misconstrued. Turn over a new leaf, young men, in your life's history and vow to make this a day of sport no more, but, instead, assemble with those who do know, and who will always be found doing the right thing in your church and there, in humble submission to His will, offer up a prayer of praise and thanksgiving to your good Master for his many blessings. Do not deprecate this good day in the wicked and sinful way that you have been doing in the past, but hold this, the Thanksgiving Day of 1907, as a holy day.

October is doing very nicely. M. Crawley Armstrong left for Boston Wednesday. W. G. Clarke made a business trip to Halifax this week. Rowena Yarrick returned home from Boston last week. We are pleased to note that Mr. Ezra Miller, who has been quite ill, is much improved. Mrs. Obadiah Parker went to Boston last Friday on a few weeks visit. Miss Ida Smith, St. John, is visiting her friend, Miss Gerie Kennedy. E. Vernon Jones returned last Saturday from the western grain fields. Mrs. Edward Calhoun is spending a few days with friends at Sandy Cove. Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Miller and two children left for their home in Brooklyn, N. Y., last Saturday. Murray Harris, who is very fond of "Berry" pie, attended a pie social at Morgantown last Saturday evening. Fred Marshall left for Bangor, Maine, Monday, where he expects to spend the winter. Mrs. William H. Rice, who has been visiting relatives and friends in Boston, returned home last Saturday. Miss Creta Harris, who has been spending the summer with Mr. and Mrs. J. Byron Harris, returned home to Cambridge, Mass., Wednesday. Bart's Ethel Clarke went on the marine blocks Monday and is being required under the supervision of Mr. Albert Benson. Walter Gehue had the misfortune to cut one of his fingers very badly on a saw while working at the mills at Lake Jolly last Friday. Edward Clarke, son of George York, fell in the hold of the bark, Ethel Clarke on last Friday, dislocating his elbow.

About two inches of "the beautiful" fell here on Monday morning and the hills were all white capped. The quickly disappeared under the bright sun of Tuesday. Miss J. E. Wright, of Digby, is spending a few days here, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Purdy. Mrs. Arthur Ford spent last week at Henshaw. Captain Charles Smith made a short visit here this week. He is just recovering from a severe fall in which his hip was broken. While here, he was the guest of Mrs. R. B. Harris, Pleasant View Farm. Misses Ethel Henshaw and Helen Ford spent last week in Wolfville, the guests of Mrs. (Commodore) H. A. Henshaw. They also spent Sunday with Mrs. S. S. Stevens, Kingston, arriving home Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Peck and daughter, Edna, who have been in Park Washington, U. S. A., the past eighteen months, returned home last week to spend the winter. We are pleased to welcome them among us again. We wish to correct a statement which is going the rounds of the press to the effect that W. P. Read, from Bear River, was set upon and kicked and beaten by a crowd of town fellows in Wolfville last Saturday morning. There is not a particle of truth in the report as far as W. P. is concerned, as he was not in the crowd of collectors, neither was he beaten by one or more of the town gang. I Rev. W. V. Higgins will give an illustrated talk on India in the Baptist church on Saturday evening, at which a silver collection will be taken for foreign missions. He will also occupy the pulpit on Sunday morning, and at Lunenburg at 3 o'clock, and again in the church in the evening, under the auspices of the Woman's Missionary Aid Society. Mr. Higgins, who is a returned missionary, is an excellent speaker, and the public are cordially invited to all these services.

Rev. W. H. Warren, of Bridgetown, Provincial Deputy of the Grand Division S. of T., gave a very interesting address on the subject of temperance in connection with the Methodist prayer meeting in that church on Wednesday evening to a small but appreciative audience. He reviewed the past as well as the present work of this Order, and gave many valuable suggestions for the advancement of the cause in our midst. He was followed in brief and telling remarks by Revs. I. A. Corbett and John Phalen. Mrs. Books, wife of the pastor of the Church of England at Round Hill, is suffering severely from the result of the burns she received last week, and grave anxiety is felt as to her recovery. Mrs. Books is subject to fainting spells and feeling pronouncements of an attack, attempted to pick up a lighted lamp off the floor, to place it in safety. While doing so, she fell upsetting the lamp. Her clothing caught and all one side of her body was terribly burned. By the presence of mind of a little daughter, the baby in the mother's arms, when she fell, was caught up in time to save it from the flames.

EXHIBITION NOTES. In our hurried notes last week, we omitted to mention the very creditable and artistic display of views, etc., put on exhibition by our popular young scenic artist, Ralph N. Harris. The ox haul, which is always one of the most pleasing of the special attractions at an exhibition, fully realized the expectations of all at the recent one, and the remark, "The best I ever saw," was heard on every hand. The first prize was captured by Valentine Robbings, the second went to Leonard Alcorn and the third to Clarence Wilson. While the qualities in the display of fruit were excellent, there could have been a much larger showing made in this line with just a little effort on the part of a number of fruit growers in our immediate vicinity, and, in the same way, the exhibit of cattle could have been made much more creditable to the place had the interest been a little more general.

MORGANTOWN. Miss Sophia Berry, of Clementsport, spent a few days at Mrs. J. H. Berry's. A number of the young people of Millard Centre attended the pie social on Saturday evening. Miss Lottie Peck, of Greenland, spent Sunday with Miss Lillian Berry. Ernest Suell left on Tuesday for Bangor, Maine. Miss Lillian Berry is visiting friends in Clementsport this week. A pie social was held in the school house Saturday evening. It was a grand success. Mrs. Joseph Morgan, Mrs. Bernard Berry and Mrs. Jesse Porter spent Thursday last with Mrs. Elizabeth Morgan.

LANGUAGE OF THE STOCK EXCHANGE.

(Montreal Witness.)

The stock exchange has its own peculiar terms, not generally understood by outsiders. The "short" seller is to sell what at the time the seller does not possess, or, as the brokers say, what he is short on, but hopes to buy at a lower rate before the time specified for delivery. Supposing, for instance, he had sold short of Detroit, just before the slump, the stock to be delivered in, say, a week, a speculator would have made a big profit, of some thirty points a share. On the other hand, when the price of a stock rises between the sale and the time set for delivery, the "short" seller suffers that much loss. Long of stock, means that a broker or stock speculator is holding, or has contracts for, plenty of stock, looking for a rise. The short seller is also known in stock exchange phraseology as a "bear," while the broker "long" of stock is known as a "bull," the two names respectively designating those who endeavor to appreciate or "go up," and those who try to depreciate or "pull down." When we spoke loosely the other day about the "insiders" of the Detroit Limited selling stock to take advantage of the drop that was certain to come, we did not mean that they were selling what they did not possess, but that they were selling what they did not mean to dispose of, being certain that they could replace it very soon at a much larger profit by the fall they were creating. Of other stock exchange phrases there are "buyer's option" and "seller's option," used to describe stocks sold on time, which must be delivered if called for, at any time within the extreme dates by giving a day's notice. Then there is the "open market," operated by one or several traders, which is the securing of all that is to be had, whether of a stock or a commodity, in order to compel those in need to pay a heavy price; there is a "put," or "tip," supposed to be trustworthy private information concerning a certain stock, such as whether a Bull movement is in course of organization, or an extra dividend is to be declared, or new stock to be issued, or any other cause that is likely to affect the price. In that case the broker or operator has "inside information," and is "wise." One who cannot respond with the "abacus" or money when contracts mature is "a lame duck," a "spread-eagle" is the operation of a broker who sells a large quantity of stock on time, say, sixty days, buyer's option, and buys the same quantity at a lower price, on the same time, seller's option. If both contracts run their full time, he makes his difference; but if the buyer or the seller calls for a settlement before the time, he may be seriously embarrassed. "Put," "call," "balloning," "saddling," "unloading," and more than forty other terms, make up the dialect of the exchange. We are not discussing the morality or immorality of the business transacted under this jargon—much of it is quite indefensible from any point of view—but that of "sharp practice" and pecuniary success—we are only attempting to give some idea of the language of the stock exchange and the "cut-throat" outside broker—and its meaning.

OCTOBER SNOW STORM.

(Colchester Sun.) A howling snow storm visited this part of Nova Scotia Monday, October 28th. The storm was especially severe on the Cabotus Mountains, from which it descended in a severe gale, which caused it to drift to a considerable extent. It is estimated that fully three inches fell in some places in addition to which there was a considerable degree of cold, the wind combining to make decidedly winter weather. In addition to this, there was a heavy fall of snow, which was the most severe snow that has visited these parts at this time of the year for many years. Hundreds of young cattle that were yet in the pastures must have suffered considerably. ROYAL PHARMACY.

ONE OF THE MOST HONORABLE MEN IN PUBLIC LIFE.

(From the Windsor Tribune.) The splendid tribute paid to the Finance Minister in his native city of the week past, was the event of the week. It was a grand affair, and people assembled to do him honor. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, then in London, had written to him, commending him for his services in the Empire. The Empire Bank was crowded, and very much of the room occupied by the great was made to enter, by the Province and loyal representative with all classes and in the out exception one of the most honorable politicians in public life today.

(From the Toronto Globe.) The Liberals of Nova Scotia, and the Maritime Provinces, honored Mr. Fielding last night in a manner that must have been as gratifying to him as it was creditable to them. The complimentary acknowledgement of Mr. Fielding's services in connection with the conclusion of a commercial treaty between Canada and France. The scope and nature of the treaty have not yet been made public, but the fact that the two countries have arrived at a friendly arrangement, it was an indication that a more liberal measure of reciprocity has been secured, than that which now marks the relations between them.

While the gathering of last night was suggested by Mr. Fielding's success in conjunction with his colleague Hon. Mr. Brodeur, in negotiating the French treaty, it was to all intents and purposes the recognition of a distinguished career.

Hants Journal—Annapolis and Kings Counties carried off the leading prizes in the fruit department, but Hants County is not at all jealous. When our county fruit growers have been in competition with their neighbors as long as they have with each other, we believe the bulk of the awards will stay at home.

The present show we trust is only the beginning of good Exhibitions for Windsor, and when the time again comes for Hants County to hold the Fair, we venture to believe that the twenty dollar prize for the best county collection will remain in the "Avon Valley," instead of where it now rests with Mr. E. F. Chesley, of Bridgetown. The management expect, when the finances are settled to have a surplus, perhaps a little more, egg toward the next triple County Fair.

The Sixteenth Annual Session of the Grand Division of the Sons of Temperance of Nova Scotia opens at Halifax on Monday, Nov. 4th. With unwavering fidelity it has upheld and still upholds the principles of total abstinence for the individual, prohibition for the State.

Hymenal

BUSTARD-MOORE.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John Moore, North Williamstown, was the scene of a happy event on Wednesday evening, October 16th, when their daughter, Miss Magdalene Moore, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. William Bustard, of Mechanics, Kings County, N. B. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. Ramsay, of Middleton. The bride, who entered the room on the arm of her father, looked charming, gowned in white. She carried a handsome bouquet, the gift of her aunt, Mrs. Crossman, of Morven, N. S. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Edith Moore, who also wore a handsome gown of white. Mr. Stanley Moore, of Mechanics, N. B., cousin of the bride, acted as best man. The wedding march was rendered by Miss Ida Moore, of Waterford, N. B., in an excellent manner. Immediately after the ceremony and congratulations, the guests retired to the dining room, where a beautiful supper was served. The bride was the recipient of many handsome and useful presents, including a fine car, a glass vase, and a table linen and a sum of money. The bride has many friends here who wish they wish her every happiness in her future home, especially regret her departure from their midst. Mr. and Mrs. Bustard left on Monday for their future home in Quebec, N. B.

Coal is selling in the local market at six dollars a ton for soft coal, seven dollars for hard. There are no large quantities in stock, as the dealers find it impossible to get it by the vessel load, and are receiving it by cartload.

It is a satisfaction to learn that the sudden cold snap of last week did not result in any damage to the fruit crop. Though many thousands of barrels of apples remained on the trees, they were of the harder variety and were uninjured. Owing to the wetness of the ground, some root crops, especially potatoes, were frozen. Grain standing has been also badly damaged by the wet weather.

A collision between the West-bound Express and Bluenose on the D. A. R. was narrowly averted, on Saturday last. The Express had stopped at the tank to take water, and on starting some slight accident caused a delay. The Bluenose, which was to pass the express at this station, came around the bend at this point and was signalled just in time to prevent a collision. Few of the passengers knew how narrowly they escaped trouble.

Moose Hunting.

Peculiarities of the Animal—Exciting Moments—Calling the Game.

All through northern Maine and Canada, hunters are now busy in the woods calling the moose and thus endeavoring to lure it to its doom. The protection accorded to the animal in recent years has increased its numbers, and the signs of moose in any time in the last ten years, although in Maine the animals have gone deeper into the woods, so that a hunter must go far to get a good specimen. The season began in New Brunswick and eastern Quebec on Sept. 15th, in the western Quebec on Oct. 1st, and in Maine on Oct. 15th. Moose hunting, or until Dec. 1st, and only bulls having at least two tines to their horns may be killed. Few fine specimens have been brought in, the hunters who seek of the woods for the big bulls not returning usually, until near the end of the season. The later a moose is killed the better its condition, and so the veteran hunters are not in a hurry to get the one animal allowed by law.

The beautiful dark coloring so much admired in the heads and skins of the moose becomes more contrasted with the advance of the winter season. This fact, so well known to old moose hunters, is the more remarkable, as almost every woodland neighbor of the forest, in winter in the shape of a perceptible whitening of its hair or fur, which renders it comparatively indistinguishable from the surrounding snow. The white of the surrounding snow, while the moose is the monarch of the forest, and needs no disguise, its tines are not so much in evidence as in the northern regions.

While the glossy black of winter in the color of the bull moose is highly prized in the trophies of the chase, it is unwise for the hunter to leave the selection of his game until too late in the season, for then he may find that the best heads have been taken. These are sometimes secured in November, generally December, and sometimes though most frequently in the case of the smaller specimens, retained till January. The older hunters usually the first to shoot their trophies. Some of the enormous horns shed by veteran bulls are occasionally picked up by hunters and others, who often are mounted by expert taxidermists with good effect upon heads which other sets had been cast.

The life history of the moose is interesting. When the snow has left the ground entirely bare late in April or early in May, the moose migrate from their winter haunts and approach the marshes, ponds and rivers, where they search for their summer food, consisting usually of the water lily which flourishes there. Their favorite diet is the water lily on which they browse as soon as it makes its appearance on the surface of the water and dragging up the plant by its roots, and frequently keeping the head for a minute and more at a time under the water. When they cannot obtain the water lily they feed upon the sedges, and finally, when at this time, or a little later, the females go apart, seeking the most impenetrable thickets near or bordering on the water, and there bring forth their young. Animals two years old never produce more than one at a birth. Those of three years old and upwards almost always produce two, and occasionally, though rarely, three are three little ones at a birth. As the season advances the moose frequent water more and more, often remaining in it for hours at a time in the heat of midsummer, not only to enjoy its cooling effect, but also to escape the plague of flies, from which they are great sufferers. There are huge insects that burrow deep into the flesh of the moose to lay their eggs. A heavy thunderstorm seems to act ford the arms of enjoyment to the moose. They swim back and forth during its continuance, apparently in a high state of delight.

The female during her visits to the water hides her young with great care, to protect them from the voracity of the old males, who are unnatural parents and would destroy them. The moose generally selects a stump of large bushes, or a square thicket, which, from its density, prevents the male from reaching them.

The horns of the bull begin to sprout in April and grow rapidly. Generally by September they have lost their mossy covering, or, in other words, are cut of the velvet. At this period the males are frequently fat and generally fierce and savage, ready to attack man or anything else that stands in their way. In the course of a few weeks they grow thin and poor because of their continual roaming and their many combats, and the fact that at this time they also refuse food. At this period the loud bellow of the male is frequently heard and distinguished by the hunter at a distance of two or three miles, in the stillness of the night. The bulls make another noise, which from the nature of its sound, the hunters call chopping. It is produced by rubbing together and separating the joints of the horns in a peculiar manner. This, as the name implies, resembles the sound of an axe used at a great distance.

The call of a cow, which the hunter imitates usually through a horn or trumpet made of birch bark, is a series of grunts or groans, winding up with a prolonged, diastal, and rather unsteady roar, which in calm weather can be heard distinctly two or three miles away. One peculiarity of the moose is that he can go straight to the point whence the call proceeds, even after a considerable time has elapsed, and without a repetition of the sound to guide him. Thus, after calling unsuccessfully one evening, hunters have known a moose to come straight to the place on the following morning, from a distance of nearly two miles.

From late September till the early part of November is the season for moose calling, and the full of the moon is the best time, for the bulls seldom come up to the call before sunset, and if the night be dark the hunter fails to see the game that has come to his call sufficiently well to be able to take aim. Most of the success in hunting moose by the call is had in the half hour between sunset and dark.

Later than that, even with good moonlight, one cannot make sure of the moose, for the bulls seldom come up to the call before sunset, and if the night be dark the hunter fails to see the game that has come to his call sufficiently well to be able to take aim. Most of the success in hunting moose by the call is had in the half hour between sunset and dark.

On the other hand, there is nothing more exciting than to hear a moose slowly approaching through the woods. The most successful callers of moose are Indians; and it is an education to hear their low, half-suppressed call which is sometimes needed to bring a wary old bull within range. These low calls uttered when the moose is pausing, uncertain whether to come or go, close to the caller, yet not within shot, require the greatest skill. A fine moose and all is lost. The old bulls are pugnacious at this season, and fight desperately, and sometimes to the death. Instances are on record in which rival lovers, lured from different directions by the call of a cow moose or the hunter's counterfeits, have charged so violently upon each other that their horns have become interlocked and they have died without getting free.

CONUNDRUMS.

Who dares to sit before the king with his hat on?
When is a doctor the most unwell?
Why is a defeated army like wool?
What relation is a door-mat to a door-step?
Who was the first person in history to have a bang on the forehead?
Why is a girl's belt like a scavenger?
Why is an inn like a cemetery?
What is it that has many leaves but no stem?
Why are blanches like little girls?
What is the difference between charity and a tailor?
What is that which a rich man wants, a poor man has, a miser spends, a spendthrift saves, and yet all take with us to the grave?

Will C. E. Dargie kindly send a duplicate of the answers to the puzzle corner, October 16th, and oblige.

—THE PUZZLE EDITOR.

The man who likes to make trouble for people with mathematical minds has handed in this one about how a man became his own grandfather: I married a widow who had a daughter. My father visited our house frequently, fell in love and married my step-daughter. Thus my father became my son-in-law, and my step-daughter my mother, because she was my father's wife. My step-daughter had a son. He was of course my brother, and at the same time my grandchild, for he was the son of my daughter. My wife was my grandmother because she was my mother's mother. I was my wife's husband and grandchild at the same time, and as the husband of a person's grandmother is his grandfather, I was my own grandfather.

THE CHRIST OF THE ANDES.

(Colossal statue on boundary line between Chile and Argentina.)
See, where it stands in its beauty,
Where the earliest sunbeams shine;
Tall and carlely and splendid;
The Christ of the Boundary Line!

Forbidden the evil impulse
That leadeth to pain and crime;
United the faith of nations,
A compact outlasting time;
Telling the coming of Mar,
Who is born of the Immaculate Virgin;
Like a grand, full chord of music,
The Christ of the Boundary Line!

As we view the beautiful statue
From the mountain paths below,
As we see its face upturned
In the sunbeam's latest glow;
Twist awhile warring nations
Of a present peace the sign,
A psalm and a prayer in marble,
The Christ of the Boundary Line!
