AMATEUR FASTERS SUFFER AS MUCH AS PROFESSIONALS

Many in London Forego Food For Long Periods Instead of Merely Dieting.

NEW MEDICAL FAD

Theory Is That Stomach, Like an Engine, Must Get an Occasional Rest.

Harry Hock, French professional faster, went without food for 30 days. At the end of the month starvation period he asked for a glass of water, cellapsed, and had to be put to bed. He gained nation-wide notoriety.

But there are many, even in Lon don, local physicians declare, who g without food for long periods; not long as Hock, maybe, but for man days on end. They are not profes sional fasters, but fasters of necessity, firm in their belief that in desisting from food organic disorders can be relieved and sometimes cured.

Camel-like, the human body has remarkable untried powers of endurance, enabling it to function without sustenace for unbelievably long periods. And fasting has become a medical fad, doctors say, the fashionable diet remedy of a few years ago having given place now to actual

People thoroughly believe, they say, and in many cases agree, that an ocand in many cases agree, that an occasional fast is an excellent restorative of halth. The stomach, like a delicate engine, must be given periodical rests. The theory of fasting is not in the least radical, according to London doctors. Numbers of persons have tried it for successive weeks without endangering their physical constitution.

In fasting, however, it is an absolute necessity to rely on some amount lute necessity to rely on some amount of sustenance in the consumption of fluids. Even water will provide strength and will allay physical inertion. Taking small amounts of fluids daily, it is possible for a person of average strength and physique to fast without danger for a period of two weeks, but it is judiciously improved the strength and physique to fast without danger for a period of two weeks, but it is judiciously improved the strength and support t perative to fast under medical super-

Sleep plays an important part in fasting. Persons intending to starve themselves for long periods could better accomplish their intention as much rest as possible, probably twice as much as they receive in ordinary habits of life.

MacSwiney's Case. Michael MacSwiney, Irish martyr, went without food probably longer than any other known man. For 43 days he refused to take a bite to eat, and lapsing into a state of coma, without violent reaction. In his hunger strike, MacSwiney repeatedly made the charge that he was being fied hypodermically by jail turnkeys while he slept, and as a result it is not definitely known whether he actually lived for a 43-day period by withstanding food. It is known, howthat he was given water and the form of beef broth, but no solid food passed his mouth certainly for more than a month. Stout people can, of course, fast longer than the lean, physicians say, and men, with their greater strength are better subjects than women.

An inspiring tribute to this young man, the friend of every person he could find who needed succor, is found in the concluding paragraphs of Lady

Fullerton's memoirs, as follows: "His life had been very short, if we reckon by years; and his death, if we were to speak in the language of the world, would be called sudden and untimely. Those who had watched the rapid growth of his soul in the spiritual life were aware that he pos-sessed talents and qualities which, had he survived to enter the ecclesiastical state, would eminently fitted him for guiding others also in the path of sanctity. They could not, therefore, but feel profound regret, not only at the personal loss of one so deservedly beloved, but at the failure of those hopes and anticipa-tions which had been confidently indulged that he might live to render much glory to God and to labor long habit of religion for the salvation of souls. Bac., organist and choirmaster, was greatly appreciated. Exceptionally large congregations were in attendance both norning and evening, while the offering for the day, to be used partly for reducing the church debt, amounted to $2,200, with more yet to

"In Christ's time men turned Him with enthusiasm," stated Mr. Cragg in his morning sermon, "be-cause they found in Him that which satisfied their longings. But now while there is a certain amount of interest in religion, it is not what could be considered a religious age. The Christian religion has been chal-lenged from the humanitarian point of view and also as not being the final religion. Today, too, there is laxity of morals, laxity of marriage laws, laxity of observance of the Lord's day and young people do not attend church as they used to in former times.

"In order to meet this crisis," concluded Mr. Cragg, "the church must faithfully preach Christianity as the fullest expression of God, as the only Savior of man, who meets every human need. ## GEN. CURRIE CAUTIOUS IN DISCUSSING POLITICS

Declines To Discuss Present Situation-Meets McGill Graduates.

TO VISIT STRATHROY Terms Recent Federal Election Unsatisfactory Because

Not Decisive. Sir Arthur Currie, president of Mc-Gill University, Montreal, and former overseas commander of the Canadian forces in the great war, was the distinguished guest of honor at a dinner given by London graduates of Mc-Gill University at the Highland golf club last night. Sir Arthur, interviewed by The Advertiser immediately upon his arrival in the city at 7:30 p.m., chatted freely of different important subjects, but he was cautious about talking for publication

He politely declined to discuss the present political situation as the result of the federal election last week, though he did comment upon it as "unsatisfactory because it was not decisive," and observed that "there is no constitutional precedent for Premier King to follow."

Sir Arthur disclaimed the honor "of premier and observed the proportion of the world".

Sir Arthur disclaimed the honor "of promoting any plan for world organization of veterans," and when asked as to his opinion of Earl Haig's efforts upon behalf of the amalgamation of all Canadian veterans' organizations, he closed that avenue firmly by saying that "we will have to wait and see the results." Here again his soldierly instincts, not presuming his soldierly instincts, not presuming to criticize his superior officer, seemed to preclude any public statement.

Another Election Coming!

Nearly all the political wiseacres say there will be another election perhaps in six months, perhaps in a year.

There will be an intervening period of unusual political interest. Since confederation there has been no parallel to the present situation.

The London Advertiser, as evidenced by its services during the recent campaign, is particularly well equipped to give the news and views of such a period and of the new campaign that is expected to follow.

Staff correspondents at Ottawa, Toronto and other strategic points insure first news. They also insure sane interpretation of events.

Moreover, in its news columns The Advertiser gives both sides.

It is not too much to say that if you wish to keep fully abreast of developments in the interesting period ahead The Advertiser is a necessity.

If you found The Advertiser's news and editorials in the recent campaign interesting, perhaps you can get some new readers who will also enjoy the paper.

It will be regarded as a favor if you-

Warns Against Extremes.

In referring to recreation time given by both boys and girls in the field of sports and competitive games, Mr. Miller cautioned against allowing the girls' competitions go to the ex-tremes to which some such competitions were going today. In moderation they were a valuable part of school life.
"Occasionally we hear that student recreation activities are interfering with the regular studies of the school," declared the speaker. "I am ready to challenge this statement wherever it is made. This year 70 per cent of the members of our boys' basketball team in the Wossa series were sucessful in their examination and every member of the girls' team was successful. It was a girl who won the largest amount of money in scholarships and a boy who came second. Both were exceptionally ac-

Endowment To Aid Sanatorium Beck Founded

A heart-gripping paraphrase of Col. McCrae's In Flanders Fields is found in the death-bed appeal of Sir Adam Beck to the people of Ontario to carry on the work of Queen Alexandra sanatorium for the tuberculous, which he and the late Lady Beck established.

Voicing the soul of the dying Canadian soldier; the poem runs: "To you, from failing hands, I throw the torch. Be yours to hold it high."

When he realized that his cherished hope to lead this campaign must be denied by death's intervention. Sir Adam imposed this spiritual will upon his friends:

"To the people of Ontario I entrust those poor sufferers from tubercuosis, who in their affliction turn for aid to Queen Alexandra Sanatorium. God forbid that their poverty shall ever bar the door. My course is ending.

This magnificent institution, now worth a million dollars, has expanded effort, both in the treatment of sufferers and in preventive campaigning every part of old and Northern Ontario. Every third patient treated, and heir numbers are now nearly 4,000, has been the double victim of disease and poverty. The deficits resulting, averaging $25,000 to $35,000 a year, will be taken care of by the endowment fund, the earnings of which will lend in perpetuity the support of all who contribute between Nov. 20 and 28.

A Free Press Model.

The Free Press, when it called upon Lord Byng to interfere in the workings of responsible government in Canada by urging his excellency to ask for Mr. King's resignation, pointed to Sir Charles Metcalfe, governor-general of Canada from 1843 to 1847, as having furnished a lead which might well be copied by his excellency at ministrations of these former representatives without a vote of the ratepayers to make up the of the crown in Canada, and we would find that difference between the cost of the houses and they had thought out for us and secured for us our form of government.

The Free Press was unfortunate in having included Sir Charles Metcalfe in its list. When he came to Canada in succession to Sir Charles Bagot, the members of the old "family compact" were submitting as gracefully as possible to their defeat. They were doing this openly, but pective purchasers. in secret were keenly on the lookout for a leader who would become the spearhead of a movement to put them back in the position from which they had been ousted, and they found that leader in the Free Press' champion of today, Sir Charles Metcalfe.

It was the Baldwin-Lafontaine government that felt the force of Metcalfe's autocracy, and in protest they resigned office. Sir Charles Metcalfe ruled as absolute monarch without a government of any kind for nine months; he exercised prerogatives that were in excess of the power of the king. Following that he partially filled up the offices under the premiership of Hon. W. H. Draper and called for the general election of 1844, which was unparalleled in Canadian history for bribery and violence. The voice of the people was silenced in that election, and it was not until he retired in 1847 that the voters had a chance to declare their will. It is a matter of history that in 1848 Baldwin, Lafontaine and their Reformer colleagues swept both Upper and Lower Canada.

Just why does the Free Press point to Sir Charles Metcalfe as having furnished a lead that it would like to see carried into effect today?

The day the engineers condemned the bridge and named it as unsafe it ceased to be a bridge that was fit for use. It became a menace and power should be vested in the city council to deal with it at once as a case of public necessity. It was not sufficient that a speed limit of five miles per hour be imposed and that heavy trucks be kept off.

Neither is it certain that the ratepayers have the decision in their own hands entirely. If they were to defeat the bylaw the council could still go ahead by placing the amount needed in the City of London Bill and have it approved by the legislature. The method that has been followed may claim a certain adherence to legality as its sanction, but it has been far too tardy in dealing with a known danger to the travelling

It is difficult to see any good reason for the council's refusal to sanction advertising the thirteen houses that are now vacant. It is better to have tenants in them than to leave them empty in the hope of a sale, and the way to get tenants is to advertise for them.

There should be a definite policy of cleaning up the whole housing business as far as the city's share of it is concerned. There has been no loss on the houses where advances were stables. First Ladies' Aid-To Have Printed Programs.

An interesting meeting of the United church ministers' wives' association was held yesterday in Metropolitan hall, with Mrs. Aquilla Lucas presiding for the first time since her election to office.

Much business of a routine nature was completed and during the session Mrs. D. C. MacGregor, Mrs. Godwin and Mrs. H. B. Storey were appointed a committee to secure printed pro-grams for the meetings. The Bible lesson was taken by Mrs. D. N. Mc-Camus and took the form of an in-teresting Biblical address. The lesson was based on the eighth chapter of the gospel of Luke and referred to the work of the women in what Mrs. McCamus termed, the first ladies' aid society. She pointed out that all the types of character to be found in modern women's meet-ings were described in this record of the first one. She urged that women of today proceed to use whatever gifts they possess to further the work of the church.

Wellington United Junior School Presents Excellent Program.

ON THANKSGIVING

Primitive Pastoral Thanksgiving of Olden Days Opened Evening's Program.

Marking the anniversary of the Wellington United Sunday school a very appropriate pageant was given last evening in the Sunday school room, together with an excellent program by the junior school. The feature of the evening was "A Pageant of Thanksgiving," in which the ceremonies and celebrations held by the different people in thankfulness for blessings received and for notable victories won were depicted. In a very clever manner five historial episodes were shown, dating from early times down to the present day. The first was a primitive pastoral thanksgiving, which was followed by the confirmation of Ethelbert, King The third was the return of Columbus after his discovery of the new world. The first American hanksgiving was also protrayed and the final scene dealt with the federaion of the world when the armistice was signed.

Danny Meadow Mouse Experiences Narrow Escape From Black Pussy

By THORNTON W. BURGETS.

When Black Pussy jumped for Danny Meadow Mouse she thought she was going to get him. In fact, she felt sure of it. She was quite certain that if she missed on that first jump she would get him on the second one. She could almost taste Meadow Mouse. Yes, sir, Black Pussy could almost taste Meadow Mouse, she was so sure she was going to catch Danny.

Now, when she had sprung at Danny he had been running along beside a dead limb which had fallen from a tree growing beside the Long from a tree growing beside the Long Lane. Danny knew nothing about that fallen limb, for this was the first time he had seen it. He had never been over there before. Out of the oeen over there before. Out of the corner of one eye Danny saw Black Pussy just in time. My, such a fright as he had! As she sprang, he sprang. As you already know, Black Pussy barely missed him. Danny knew that she would instantly spring again. Black Pussy was very quick and yellow. The crowd, which filled the hall, came prettily and comically dressed and marked. The judges had difficulty in deciding the prizes, but finally handed them out to Miss Edna Anguish and Willam Taplin, and also to Miss Isabella McDonald and Miss Mary Hux, Rodney. There was danctured the many the many that the mould instantly spring again. Black Pussy was very quick, and no one knows this better than Danny. You should have seen those short legs of his move. He had to find a safe hiding place and find it quickly. There was no time to go looking for one. No, sir, there was no time to go looking for one. If there wasn't a hiding place right handy, and if he didn't find it right quickly, he would almost certainly quickly, he would almost certainly find a last hiding place in the stomof Black Pussy. So, frightened ach of Black Pussy. So, frightened as he was, Danny's sharp little eyes didn't miss a thing. One jump! Two jumps! Three jumps! Was that a little hole in that fallen branch? It was. Into it whisked Danny. It was a little hole which had been made long ago by Drummer the Woodpecker. Mrs. Drummer had had a nest in that limb before it had fallen from the tree.

Black Pussy was a surprised cat.
She had been so sure that the second spring of hers would catch Danny spring of hers would catch Danny that she couldn't believe it when those black paws of hers landed on nothing but the ground. Danny had slipped into that hole from right under those paws. He had done it so quickly that Black Pussy hadn't seen what became of him. Such a funny look as there was on her face. But, of course, it didn't take her long to discover that hole. She could get a paw in, but that was all. Of course she nut a naw in.

with the claws all out, feeling for with the claws all out, teeling for Danny Meadow Mouse. She hoped to get those claws into 'him and pull him out. Danny wasn't there. At least, he wasn't in reach of those claws. He was quite some little distance from those claws, and actually was laughing to himself as he heard Black Pussy feeling around for him. You see, that limb was now hollow nearly its whole length. That is why it had broken off and fallen. So it had broken off and fallen. Danny had scampered along to the other end of it. He was smart enough, however, not to leave it. He made himself comfortable inside and made himself comfortable inside and waited.

"I wonder where Nanny Meadow Mouse is?" thought Danny. "I do hope she had sense enough to stay where she was. Black Pussy didn't see her. I'll just stay here until Black Pussy has gone away; then I'll go back to look for Nanny unless she comes down here looking for me. My goodness, that was a narrow esself. It was luck that he should have been so close to that hole when Black Pussy discovered him. But there was something more than luck in that escape, too. If Danny hadn't used his legs and used his eyes to the best of his ability, even when he thought it was useless, he wouldn't have escaped.

Black Pussy was a supplied and suppose Black Pussy will sit down and watch that hole for a long time. That's the way she does. If it were not for Nanny I would hurry along. As it is, I guess I'll have to wait. As it is, I guess I'll have to wait. (Copyright, 1925, by T. W. Burgess.)

Yellow Jackets Are Disbanded

Associated Press Despatch.

Pittsburg. Nov. 3. — Disbanding of the Pittsburg "Yellow Jacket" amateur hockey club because of failure to agree with the Duqesne Garden management was announced today by the president of the club. A number of the players of last year's yellow jackets have been signed by the newly-organized hockey club which is expected to operate this soason in the N. H. More, too.

Marsden belleves in individual instruction. He seemed to shot mannerisms, little weaknesses and almost unnoticeable faults in style at a glance, and the players were each called into the boards for short talks, and then sent out to correct the defects.

The whole defence impressed the fans. Moore was agile and cleared nicely. He was the target for individual sharp-shooting practice, and he won't have to tune his eyesight up much. Foster looked better on defence than he did on the offensive but the big youth has a world of speed, unless he lost it all during the summer. Mel Walkem was out, too. He is fast, a good stick-handser, and has the block signal on traffic every minute, and on everything from filtvers to Rolls-Arrows. Old Bill Starkings, steady and reliable as ever, performed as if ne just had a week's lay-off from the game. Starkings was unanimously elected captain of the team after the practice—a post he richly deserves, and which he will capably fill. Graham also played defence, and got off several fast rushes.

THE O. H. A.'S COURSE.

Only one course is open to the O. H. A., and that is to professionalize every one of its players who jumps to the so-called amateur clubs of the U.S. It took the first step two years ago by prohibiting any Canadian teams playing with clubs in the U. S. H. A. That hurt the U. S. H. A., but didn't bring them to a proper sense of the need of mutual understanding between Canada and the States in hockey.

Having a wonderful team, and all dressed up but nowhere to go, isn't profitable in hockey, and if Tex Rickard's new Knickerbocker club has no opposition, as seems likely, for Boston is through with the U.S. H. A., and Pittsburg Yellow Jackets are going to try to turn pro, the noted fight promoter won't waste any time or money trying to maintain the simon pures in Gotham. It's a doubtful experiment, anyway, introducing both professional and amateur hockey to New York fans in one season and in one fell swoop. One of the brands will suffer, and if Gorman gets his pros all signed, it wen't be the out-and-out paid

The O. H. A. holds the key to the situation. Hockey is essentially Canadian game, and to make it attractive to United States customers Canadian teams are needed to make opposition. That is a proven fact, Players, under those conditions, would think twice, too, before making the jump, if it meant professionalism. And that is what it has O. H. A. is not to be subject to continual raids which tend to complicate a situation which is already complicated enough from domestic causes.

Varsity's determination to maintain the highest traditions of amateurism, even to the point of sticking to the system of having its teams tutored by honorary coaches, usually alumni, is being severely criticized. Criticism is also levelled at Varsity for not using a "better system"-as one Toronto paper expressed it-for getting material.

The coaching angle does not seem to justify as much criticism of Varsity as the fact that with an enrollment equal to both that of Queen's and McGill, Varsity has been unable to compete on even terms with the former team.

Shaughnessy was hailed as a super-coach when he pulled McGill out of the mire. But it's just possible, in view of what has happened since, that Shaughnessy, wonderful coach and all as he undoubtedly is timed his appearance at McGill with a period when fate and luck and the breaks had given that institution some unusually good football talent. It wasn't Awrey that gave Queen's its dominance in football. It was the enrollment of Leadley, Batstone and Harding. The honorary coaches, who have given freely of their time and money to Varsity teams in the same period which has seen Queen's reigning supreme, with such material would have done equally as well.

Queen's is now gaining the benefit of the momentum these players gave to the drooping football spirit of the Presbyterian college, because contact with the players who are the foundation of Queen's greatness and the spirit of emulation has developed budding stars which may enable the Tricolor to keep up the pace for some seasons to come.

Varsity, under a cloud, can get a deal of consolation even in defeat if they pursue the same high road upon which their feet have been set the past few seasons. If Varsity insists on no professional coaches and no change in the system of attracting talent then the Blue and White should get credit for valuation of their own principles of rugby operations above the regaining of athletic prestige. THE BIG THREE, situation somewhat similar  $exist_{\S}$  in the U\_S. The Big three, Yale, Harvard and Princeton, though they once dominated football and were in reality all the exclusive term implies, have been left far behind in the march of events. The Big Three have never economized when it came to hiring coaches, but there they stopped and failed to keep up with the times. They extend a welcome only to those who are attracted within their portals by their academic standing, backed up by years of slowly-growing traditions, and glory in the fact, in the face of humiliating defeats handed them by small and obscure colleges. Yet when they meet each other the eyes of the whole U. S. center on the outcome and the bowls are crammed with spectators. They are still the Big Three when it comes to catching and holding the popular imagination. To some of the more up-and-doing alumni not loaded down with an oppressive sense of the fealty due Tradition, the idea of a Big Three, again prominent, is more important than ideals.

A New York writer stresses this side of the question by recalling that once upon a time, when Yale was under a heavier and darker eclipse than usual, the football writers sung of "glorious" defeats. Give us a few "inglorious victories."

Taking everything into consideration, it was an enthusiastic conclave. Although only ten representatives were present, the turnout was more than satisfactory in the way that they threw themselves whole-heartedly into the work. Advance notices indicate that there will be at least twelve teams in the league, and the possibility of there being more is established in the fact that members of the executive will conduct a campaign for new teams.

Last year the loop opened on Jan, 1, but an extra effort will be made to make an earlier start this winter, probably on Dec. 15. The start will be made then even if exhibition games have to be played. The value of instilling interest in the fans is the foremost object, and if a few games are staged before the league really opens, a following will be insured.

In addition to playing nights, the juniors will be alloted practice hours. These will have to be arranged at a meeting with Manager Prodger.

It is possible that the junior teams will be allowed to use four subs, instead of two which are allowed under O. H. A. rules. This suggestion will be made at the meeting of the association scheduled for Friday night, and its comes from President Gurney.

President Gurney thinks that as the main idea of the league is to give as many players as possible a chance to develop, the O. H. A. rules, under which the league will work, should be amended in respect to subs. President Gurney further points out in support of his suggestion that most of the clubs will have rosters of at least twelve men, and those boys over the sub allowance would not get the encouragement recessary if only two subs were allowed.

With no Manufacturers' league this winter, the juniors should fill the gap.

From present indications, the city's intermediate cage team will be made up from an amalgamation of the Aces and the Orients. Last year London's chances were considerably lessened by the feud between the two organizations. Both were in the same group, and while they were doing their best to kill each other off, the other teams were going ahead and piling up a lead. However, as it turned out, the Aces were the winners of the little series and finally came into the finals with the Windsor clan, where they lost out in a two-game series.

This year London should go even farther, as there are more players to draw from and along with that there will be harmony. Of last year's Orients, who have announced their intentions to come out with the Aces, are Bill Wanless, center man and forward; Charlie Barbour, one of the best scoring men in the district; Harold Gillies and Geo. Douglas. There is possibility that Jerry Goodman and "Jit" Ardiel will also turn out.

This makes a very promising roster, as the Aces will have Freddie Quick, Dauglas, Fox, Goodman and Jack Lightfoot for defence with Jimmy Smith, George Young, Frank Shaw, Wanless, Barbour, Falriess, Balkwell, and several others for the forward line.

The grouping this year is expected to be the same as it was hast year with the exception of the Orients. This will mean three teams in the group, Aces, St. Thomas Orions and Stratford C.N.R. Apprentices. There is a possibility that Windsor may be shoved in, but the locals are against the move on account of the long jump.

The squad will practice regalarly until the season opens, and under the coaching of physical director Roy Begg should round into a formidable machine that will give London real representation in the O.A.B.A. From present indications, the

Must Stay In College Till Columbia Beats Cornell

Paying.

IS OPTIMISTIC

Special to The Advertiser. New York, Nov. 3 .- David "Slim" Goldstein, a rather portly young man tilted his chair against the wall in the Beta Sigma Dho house at Colum bia university yesterday and repudithird annual meeting of the Kitchener ated with scorn the idea that he would "hedge" in carrying out his wager to remain a schoolboy until Columbia beats Cornell at football. Rumors that Columbia's defeat Saturday by the Ithaca eleven-the ford Agricultural society was only fifth since Goldstein wagered his $76.61 behind on the fall fair. These fifth since Goldstein wagered his academic emancipation on the Morningside team—had established the impossibility of downing Cornell and the futility of his wager Goldstein indignantly denied. The bet, he said, was "on" and would remain so.

"I'll stick," the veteran scholar said. "Tve taken four degrees since 1921, and I can take four more. if necessary, or even fourteen more."

Goldstein's eyes flashed through his invincible. It may take time, but the law of average is in my favor.'

Mr. Goldstein speculatively twirled his Phi Beta Kappa key and turned his gaze toward a picture of Captain Pease, Columbia's quarterback.

"I took my bachelor of arts in 1021 and we lost. I took my master of arts degree next year and we lost. I tried the bachelor of science curriculum and we lost again. In 1924 I became a master of science, but that didn't a master of science, but that didn't do any good, so I tried law."

Goldstein, who is 24, sighed heavily and shook his head.

"I am wondering now if law is the right combination," he went on, "I sometimes have my doubts. It may be that the school of medicine, where I suppose I shall enroll in time, will eventually see the downfall of Mr. D. bhie's eleven. It is incredible that bie's eleven. It is incredible that Cornell will win eternally. "Dobie can't stay on at Cornell for ever. He'll have to leave there sometime. And, if we haven't beaten Cor-nell by then, in ten years, let us say, it is reasonable to think we may beat them when Dobie retires.

"He's been up there about fifteen years now. Twenty-five years at most, I think, ought to be enough of an active period for any football coach. They ought to force these fellows to retire when they get old, the way they do policemen and college presidents."

The erudite football enthusiast paused for a somber memory. Im-mediately after Saturday's defeat, he wired a young lady in Ithaca asking her to be his guest next year "at Columbia's victory."

She's Pessimist.

I will not see Columbia's victory with you next year," she wired back.
"but I'll go to the game with you."
Her telegram is a possible prediction, Goldstein believes of another academic year. Goldstein, who lives with his parents at 600 West 169th street, has three sisters, all younger. One of them has gone through gram-mar school and two have put high school behind them since wagered what may be the rest of his life on the Morningside eleven. His father thinks four years of college are enough for any man, but to

"Slim" a wager is a wager. "Some of my old classmates come back from reunions and tell me about fat profits in the bond business,' Goldstein said. "There are others who have asked me to go in business with them, and they've made fortunes while I'm still at school. But I don't regret making that bet; I know that sooner or later we're going to win.
"And," he added, "I'm going to take degrees until we do."

Aldermen Allege Bylaws Not Enforced For Regulation of Automobile Traffic.

Special to The Advertiser. St. Thomas, Nov. 3. - Chief of Police Armstrong was criticized at onight's council meeting for laxity n enforcing the city bylaws governing motor traffic. The matter came up in discussion of a bylaw introduc ing the "stop" streets.

I have used them regularly, and after two months' use I feel like an entirely different woman.

Now, I always recommend them to any of my friends who are troubled as I was.

Mrs. Chapman's Letter Reads as Follows:

New Albany, Ind.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a weakness which many women have from over work, and from which I suffered for quite a while. I wasn't fit to do my work and my sister advised me to take this medicine. After the first few days the pains were not so severe as they had been and after taking a few bottles I am not bothered any more. I am doing my housework every day and highly recommend the vegetable Compound to any woman suffering from female trouble. Only yesterday a friend called me on the 'phone and knowing what it did for me wanted to know what to ask for at the drug store, as she meant to give it a trial."—Mrs. C. E. Chapman, 1920 Elm Street, New Albany, Indiana.

Maisonneuve, Montreal.—"I was always feeling tired and heavy, with a weakness of the back and pains in my right side, and I had a nervous breakdown. A friend was taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she gave me half a bottle to try. It did me so much good that I have been taking it ever since whenever I feel the need. I often go a month or so without taking it, but when I feel the least headache, or any other bad feeling, I just make for that bottle. I recommend it for any female trouble, and very few of my friends are without it in their homes."—Mrs. J. CARTMILL, 351 Third Avenue, Maisonneuve, Montreal, Quebec.

The vote of confidence gives the government a lease of life over the opposition of the Socialists, but in political circles the opinion prevails that it will not extend over any great length of time. It is considered in these circles that an administration which can count on only 220 out of the 580 votes in the chamber hardly has suf-ficient strength behind it to undertake imperative legislation.

One things appears to be as certain as anything can be certain in French politics: that the famous coalition of the Left parties which won the elections in 1924 is broken by the defection of the Socialist half and that a majority for the government has not yet emerged. #### To Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results.

Takes but a moment to make.

Saves about $2

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several peculiar elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex in a 16-oz. bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make 16 ounces—more than you can buy ready-made for $2.50. It is pure, good and pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment. Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs. Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Dunning Would Be Power If He Joined King Cabinet

Believe Saskatchewan Premier Would Heal Breach Between East and West—Has Support of Every Member-Elect From Province.

Special to The Advertiser.

Dunning-who is the youngest prenier in the empire-has been much in the limelight lately. When Premier King visited the west he announced that the Saskatchewan Liberal leader was slated for the immigration portfolio in the event of the government returning with a majority.

In all his public utterances, Dunning, however, never announced whether he would accept, preferring with his customary caution to wait the verdict of the people before committing himself. And he had good reason for so doing. He had just galloped through a provincial election and with practically no opposit tion, and with practically no opposi-tion facing him, was assured of four years' office in the legislature.

Dunning undoubtedly can be a great help and strong factor if Mac.

The prairies today—as withess in work last June, when, in the strong-hold of Progressivism, he led his co-horts to an overwhelming victory. Some day, say friends of Dunning, he will be premier of Canada, but so far there is no great body of opinion advocating him as federal leader. If Dunning goes to Ottawa, now-ever, he will take with him the support of about every Saskatchewan member of parliament. There are fifteen Liberals elected in Saskatchewan and two Progressives elected by Liberal support out of the twenty-one federal seats, and as the other four Progressives elected were formerly Liberals, the general feeling here is that the Lib-erals who compose the bulk of the small remnant of the Progressive party will do anything in their power to prevent a high tariff government coming into power at Ottawa.

Saskatchewan is loath to let Dunning go. When several months ago, following a visit to Ottawa, it was announced that he might join King's government, a murmer of protest went up from the Saskatchewan press. He was needed at home, and Will he now take a chance with a job at Ottawa when the federal situation is so unsettled? He declined he knows best—than at Ottawa. If

He drew the folded reward paper from its protecting cover. He opened it with great deliberation, spread it out and held it up to look again into that haggard face pictured between the paragraphs of print which told the story he had carried secret until now, the opportune moment for which he had waited. He heard Janet's breath, saw her hands gripping the table edge, and he took his time torturing her.

He was there and it was there and it. You're right, my dear, he was there, don't it strike you as at least a bit queer that Garrison should come here, straight here, when he made his break from prison?

The girl sprang up, then, and crossed the room swiftly to the door as though she would run out and warn John Goodheat. This, Haines thought, was her motive. But that was not the impulse paramount in her.

She knew her lover's secret! She knew, now, why her father had recoiled at the thought of her giving her heart to him! She knew at last what the trouble was that he would not share with her, what the obstacle

Revulsion swept upward but she drove it back. She closed her eyes again, carrying into memory the craft in this man's face. She sensed that here was a situation of a most crucial here was a situation of a most crucial nature. She knew that Haines was playing a desperate hand. She want-

"Go on. I'm waiting," she said.
His other hand grasped her other arm and he shook her slightly.

She opened her eves at that and locked at him steadily, her faculties clear, her emotions in hand. "You want me to go with you and in turn you will—"

Haines was laughing softly and shaking nis head.

She knew Escanaba. She had scores of friends there. Once among them she would be safe from Haines and in the hours that she would play the game with him, her father and John could be warned. She turned calmly and said:

He crossed the room with great strides and took her in his arms:

CABINET GATHERS

Prime Minister Likely To Make Decision To Carry On Government.

> BY E. C. BUCHANAN. Special to The Advertiser by Staff Correspondent.

Ottawa, Nov. 3.-Post-mortems and speculations continued to comprise the political menu of the capital today. No bulletins were issued to the public on the condition of the delicate problem of government. It was a day of consultations so far as the prime minister and other members of the government were concerned. No formal meeting of the cabinet was held. Mr. Mackenzie King and his colleagues conferred among themselves and with prominent supporters of the government.

Some hope is entertained that the situation may be more settled within the next 24 hours. To See Governor-General.

The prime minister is expected to have a further interview with the governor-general when the standing of the parties is known definitely, following which he will issue a statement as to his intentions. As the cab-inet is to meet tomorrow it is hoped that the premier will be in a position to make a definite announcement af-There is no reason to believe the government does not intend to carry on and to meet parliament at an early session. The problem before the prime minister as to whether he should take that course or resign and let Mr. Meighen try his hand is a delicate one, and is the more difficult for lack of precedent, Mr. King is required to make a decision in a question such as never before has confronted a prime minister of Canada. The first factor in the situation, and one that is making Mr. King's political op-ponents more anxious that the head of the government, with all his wor-ries, is that the Conservatives have not enough strength to control par-liament. Since he could reasonably hope to control it, Mr. King's friends and followers are advising him that he should accept the task.

Being Carefully Considered.

The reconstruction of the government in the situation resulting from last Thursday's election presents questions which are being canvassed carefully by the premier in advance of a final decision as to whether he is to remain or offer his resignation to the governor-general. He has five portfolios for which to find occupants who can be reasonably sure of elec-tion. W. D. Euler and James Mal-colm are still mentioned as likely choices of the prime minister.

As for Mr. King himself, he will have no trouble in finding a seat.

Already he has a wide choice at his disposal. It is believed that he will decide to remain in his own provence.

AN OPEN LETTER To the Citizens of London

Having been repeatedly asked the question: "Are you going to run for the mayoralty for 1926?"

Feeling that as your public servant, and in fairness to you, I should no longer withhold an answer.

I have decided to again offer myself for the mayoralty, to serve you impartially in the future, as I have in the past, feeling that on account of my stewardship it will meet with your approval.

Yours obediently,
