A LINEN SHOWER

Last Saturday afternoon and evening a linen shower was given by Mrs. Eunies Slade, Barthe St., for her grand-daughter, Miss Laurabel Castello Slade, whose engagement to Mr. Walter Houston is announced. marriage is to take place in r. The invitations were sent out picture post cards, and sixty sts were entertained from 3 to 7 and 8 to 12 p. m.

The table decorations were very simple and effective. A picture of the youthful briide-elect beneath some very beautiful carnations formed the centrepiece. Refreshments were served to twelve guests at a time.

A merry party of young people were present during the evening, when various games were played.

After prayer by Mr. Malott, the hymn, "God be with you till we meet again," was sung, and Mrs. S. C. Walker sang "Little Irish Girl."

With hands joined the company sang in chorus, "Auld Lang Syne," three cheers were given for the bride and bridegroom-elect, for the host and hostess, and the King, after which God Save the King was sung.

Picture post cards were used for place cards, the illustrations being a spray of shamrock and the verses, "Oh, the Shamrock," with the words, "Erin Stanthagal Go Bragh," —freland, the bright toast, forever!

The bride-elect received some very useful and beautiful gifter of light seful and beautiful gifts of linen. Among the out of town guests were, Mr. and Mrs. Crouch and Miss Nelson, of Ridgetown, and Miss Daisy Tompkins, of Merlin.

THE RIGHT TO MARRY.

To the Editor of The Planet . Having seen through the columns of your paper that two clergymen of Tilbury found fault with a Latter Day Saint Elder for marrying a couple in that vicinity and claimed couple in that vicinity and claimed he had no right to perform a mar-riage ceremony and that it was illegal and they were going to in-vestigate the matter and make in-quiries from the powers that be at Toronto.

Toronto.

Toronto.

Now, had those reverend gentlemen asked any issuer of marriage licenses or County Crown Attorney Smith, who issues the marriage registers, they could have gotten the desired information as to who is legally authorized to perform marriage egreemonies.

I will refer to a case that resulted from similar prejudice: In May 19, 1893, H.ram Dickhout, an Elder of the Latter Day Saint Church at Niagara Falls, Ont., officiated in the marriage ceremony of two members of his own congregation; the clergy-men of that town took exception to the case—maybe they begrudged the Elder the five dollars he re-ceived—at any rate they worked up such prejudice against Mr. Dickhout among the citizens that they finally had him brought before Police Magistrate Hill, who apparently was not acquainted with the law in this se, or may, as some do, allow prerhe consequence was Elder Dickhout was fined $10 and costs, knowing there would be an appeal, he refused to take the money, remarking that if his decision was sustained when the appeal was heard it could then he naid when the appeal was heard it could then be paid.

Elder Dekhout, with the assistance of Elders R. C. Evans and J. H. Lake, who then had charge of the missionary work in Canada, appealed at once and it came up for hearing before the High Court of Justice at Toronto. Chief Justice Armour and Judges Street and Falconbridge presiding. J. C. Cartright and Dymond appeared for the Crown and W. M. German, who is now member W. M. German, who is now member of Parliament of Welland, appeared for the defendant, every effort was put forth to misrepresent the matter and influence the mands of these learned judges against the church learned judges against the church, but it was unavailing. They claim-ed that the Saints are a few men who have run over from the United States. They are not a Christian denomination. They have their Book of Mormon as their Bible. The teachings of this book and the revelations of Joe Smith are not fit to be read by respectable people. They worship a god that has a body, parts and passions. They be-lieve that God will reveal himself to-day and speak to the people as in B.ble times, etc., but the judges said that they had carefully read all the evidence in the case, the epitome of their faith, the Memorial to Congress, the Kirkland Temple Suit, the Book of Mormon, and had found mothing contrary, to Christian found nothing contrary to Chris tianity in them. In summing up the case Chief-Justice Armour expressed his senti-ments in the following language: "I have read the evidence and I find nothing contrary to the doc-trine of Christ in the teachings of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. The great trouble is the Latter Day Saints doctrine is Christian in the highest some of the produced the highest sense of the word and the rest of the religious world is opposed to them because they—the saints—cling so closely to the Bible, it seems as though it was jealousy, not instinct that not justice, that moves the action of this case. These people teach that one man should have but one wife only and they stand by that, they are in no way connected with the people of Utah. Their headquarters is at Lamoni, Iowa. The doctrine of this church is surely according to the Bible. God has a body, parts and passions; I think that doctrine very elementary. Does not the Bible teach that God made man in his own image? Now I am a man; I have a body. This point appears to be in their favor. I am surprised to see this trial, It seems as if some of the Christians are wanting to go back to the "dark ages." They would have us try hearsay here. This is not prosecution, but persecution. The marriage laws are very plain and are not resistered. justice, that moves the action

The Far West Province Attracting Attention.

Attention.

The fruit-growing possibilities of British Columbia have attracted a good deal of attention in England, as the samples which have reached the Mother Country from the Pacific province have been regarded as the best ever grown in the Dominion.

Messrs. James Henderson and Arthur Hobbs have come out from Londom to see for themselves what may be done in the way of encouraging the young industry from the point of view of the export trade.

"Heat Unit and its Application to Building" is another very instructive paper in this valuable magazine, which is published by Max L. Keith, Minneapolis, at $2 per annum or 20 cents per copy.

The April number of The Woman's Home Companion opens with "Mrs. Sackett's Easter Bonnet," by that charming authoress, Mrs. Mary E. Wilkins Freeman. "Our Own Page" tells an experience of the writer in the Jamaica earthquaks, which maks the reader realize exactly what happened.

Great Opportunities.

Lady Godiva Imitated.

La Milo, the famous living statue, whose appearance at the London Pavilion caused a sensation, went to Coventry with her company, and it ocentry with her company, and it oc-curred to her, or her press agent, to repeat Lady Godiva's ride. She was photographed on starting out, and af-ter her return her picture was sent to a London illustrated paper with this to a London illustrated paper with this account:

"As the bell of the clock high up in the tall spire of St. Michael's sounded out sharply upon the frosty air two hours past midnight a beautiful woman might have been observed emerging from a building in the City of the Three Spires,' seated upon a spirited and well-proportioned white palfrey, which quivered as the cold northeast wind cut it like a whip. Bu' who was this fair lady who had ventured upon the streets like a second Lady Godiva, under such conditions? Urging her horse forward, the equestrienne rode rapidly along the streets of the ancient city. Old buildings, some of which had probably been erected not many years after Godiva's ride, frowned upon her fair form, but the moon looked down benignantly and the stars twinkled encouragement to the handsome horsewoman: Avoiding the stone sets of the tramways, the mysterious one kept her graceful charger upon the macadam portion of the narrow and winding roads. Except the occasional barking of a dog and the noise of the horse's hoofs, not a sound was heard, and the twentieth century Godiva passed through the slumbering and peaceful city unmolested and unseen."

Cemetery of 4,000 Dogs.

A beautiful dog cemetery was founded on the He des Ravageurs, near Paris, in 1899. There are already 4,000 "graves" in the cemetery. Some for them, leased for a long term, have cost as much as 2,000 francs. The lowest price paid for any concession is 5 francs. and the expenses of the most 5 francs, and the expenses of the most discreet burial are 25 francs. Visitors discreet burial are 25 francs. Visitors to the cemetery pay 50 centimes as an entrance fee. On one of the tombstones they may read, "Homage to a faithful heart," and on another, "Here lies Black, killed by a civilized savage." The above victim, explains the keeper, died at the hands of an indignant concierge. Another marble slab mounted on cement rock contains the following: "Neither name nor date; what matters it?" And again, "Beneath these stones reside the material remains of that which during its life was my joy and my

Nearly 500 miles of sewers are situated beneath the feet of London's population, and this includes only the large sewers, several of them so large that a number of boats could float down them abreast. Some idea of the enormous cost of draining London may be gathered from the fact that the drainage works and machinery alone cost £8,000,000 sterling.

The three main sewers in London run from Fleet street to Hampstead, from Blackfriars to Abbey Mills; and from Harrow to Old Ford. Connected with these are a multitude of smaller sewers, measuring about twelve feet in diameter, which makes London one of the best-drained cities in the world.

A thousand men are employed all of the best-drained cities in the world.

A thousand men are employed all the year round, not even excepting Sundays, in keeping London properly drained, and the stupendous total of 1,000,000,000 tons of sewage is chemically treated every twelve months and taken away in sludge wessels to the North Sea.

North Sea.

At Barking, where the sludge is dealt with, there are fourteen sewers measuring thirty feet across; that is to say, any one of them would be wide enough for a small tugboat to pass down. Here the sludge, after being chemically treated, has to go through enormous iron cages, resembling gigantic colanders, which keep back solid objects, such as pieces of wood, old boots, and so forth, whilst not infrequently valuable articles of jewelery are found wedged between the bars of a cage.

BIG BILL FOR LOBBYING.

House of Commons Upholds Action of Public Accounts Committee.

Ottawa, March 22.—The House yesterday resumed the debate on Mr. Barker's resolution respecting the missing vouchers of the G.T.P. for $162,000, as brought out by examination before the public accounts committee, and Mr. Bennett (Simcoe) concluded with a strong arraignment of the methods of the Laurier Government.

cluded with a strong arraignment of the methods of the Laurier Government.

Mr. Pardee (West Lambton) defended the policy of suppression. So long as the G. T. P. received no money upon the vouchers it was nobody's business what they contained.

Mr. Ames (Conservative, Montreal) said that the question was most important. It dealt with a great national work. The Government was a trustee of bonds of the G.T.P. It owed a duty to the British investors. This only required a Government to see to it that proceeds of the sale of these bonds were applied exclusively to the cost of construction.

Mr. Shannon, the accountant in the railway department, had performed a public service in refusing to approve the claim of $162,000 presented by the railway company. The only reward that he received was to be promptly transferred to another field of action. He was overruled by his superiors in the railway department, and this account was apparently approved by the Minister of Justice. Afterwards the Department of Justice receded from its position, and the Finance Department refused to pay it.

Spent In Lobbying. ment refused to pay it.

Spent In Lobbying.

The claims included vast sums—many thousands of dollars paid in bulk at various times to Mr. Wainwright. Mr. Wainwright could not, and would not, put on paper what he did with this money. He could not get or produce receipts from the men among whom this money was distributed. There was no doubt but that the money was spent in lobbying and buted. There was no doubt but that the money was spent in lobbying, and it must have been very sinister lobby-ing, said Mr. Ames.

Was it strange that some members of this House were anxious to pre-vent tracing that money from Mr. Wainwright to those who received it? For this reason the Government and the railway company joined hands to keep the details of that lobbying from coming to public notice. The Government had compounded a felony.

Mr. Ames pointed out that $3,500 was paid to Adolphe Caron and large sums to certain lawyers far and above the value of any legal service they might have rendered. Large sums were paid to Mr. Wainwright for "advertising," but no details were given or receipts produced in this connection.

Witness Went to Europe. As to one item of $56,000, Mr. Wainwright refused to say what he did with it. Mr. Ames more than intimated that it was spent in lobbying the G.T.P. bill through Parliament. He believed that Mr. Walker of the G.T.P. had gone to Europe to avoid testifying before the public accounts committee.

testifying before the public accounts committee.

J. C. Walsh, the newly-elected Liberal member from Montreal, admitted that the railway company had erred, but was the Government responsible? Alex. Johnston (Liberal, Cape Breton, N.S.), the Liberal whip, repeated the argument that the public accounts committee was sufficiently occupied examining claims that were paid without chasing after claims that were not paid. He moved an amendment to the effect that it was not the duty of the public accounts committee to enforce

The House divided upon Mr. Johnston's amendment, and the same carried: Yeas 114, nays 49—a party vote.

Messrs. Bourassa and Lavergne supported the Government.

The bill was reported without amendment, read the third time and reased.

The Deputy Governor will give consent to bills to-morrow and the Senate will then adjourn to April 4.

Roumanian Government Will Suppress Disorders.

Bucharest, Roumania, March 22.—All the army reserves have now been called out to join the colors, with the result that the Government has at its disposal plenty of troops to enable it speedily to suppress the agrarian troubles. Large numbers of Jews from Jassy, Vaslui, Botesahni and other Meldavian towns, which have been terrorized by the excesses of the peasantry, have arrived here, seeking refuge and assistance. They assert that the Russian portion of the population largely participated with the peasants in the plundering and incendiarism at Botesahni. According to the latest advices received here from that town quiet has been restored there.

Precipitated a Riot.

The calling out of the army reserves at Berlad, Modavia, led to serious rioting. The men, as a rule, were peasants who sympathized with those who had been raiding the country, and some 350 of them, before donning their uniforms, paraded the streets of Berlad, smashing windows by wholesale and plundered several shops. The police ultimately restored order.

The reinforcements now going on to the front are large drawn from Wallachia, so as to avoid the possibility of the soldiers fraternizing with the disorderly peasants.

RAILWAY TAXATION.

(St. Thomas Times.) Some Liberal newspapers, among them our focal contemporary and The London Advertiser, do not seem te understand how a Conservative eam be a Conservative when he fails to agree with his party leader on all things. They imagine every Conservative should be a sort of automaton, patterned after the Writ tribe at Ottawa, which is careful not to do anything to check a Government that is responsible for secres of disgraceful scandals.

These papers profess to be amazed because the views of Mr. P. H. Bewyer, of East Kent, on railway taxation are apparently a little in advance of those of the Whitney Savings Bank Department in Connection with all Branches. Government. It is quite probable that no difference of opinion really exists, and that the Government will rise to the occasion at an oppertune time. The Times believes that Mr. Bowyer has the popular side of the railway taxation questien, and agree with him that farm three times greater than railways. Michigan railroads payeathree times

The quality and carrying power of the Heintzman & Co. Piano is one of its outstanding recommendations by the world's and Michigan farmers receive better freight rates than Ontario farmers receive. These and other wellknown facts Mr. Bowyer brought out in his speech, his chief contention being that increased taxation would not stop railway construction in the province. It had not done se in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois or Michigan, though in the fatter State there were reasons, apart struction should slacken. Then electric railways were being purity. built extensively and taking the place, in many cases, of steam rail-ways; and, again, Michigan had no great, rich, undeveloped hinterland te attract railways.

Mr. Bowyer says he will not rest satisfied until railways are taxed pre rata with individuals, and we cannot think of any valid reason why they should not be so taxed.

LABOR BILL IN SENATE.

Findings of Arbitrators Should be Accepted by Disputing Parties.

cepted by Disputing Parties.

Ottawa, March 22.—In the Senate yesterday, upon the second reading of the Lemieux Labor Disputes Bill, Mr. Scott explained that the measure was drawn with the single idea of promoting peace in industrial Canada, while avoiding injustice to any individual or class.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell said he had followed in the press the comments of the employers and the unions on the bill, and as neither was fully satisfied with it, he had come to the conclusion that it must be a pretty good bill. He had noted that many amendments had been made to it in the Lower House, which had no doubt improved it, and made it more acceptable to both sides. As amendments had been accepted from the Opposition the measure was in no sense a had been accepted from the Opposition the measure was in no sense a party one.

Senator Cloran thought the bill a good one and was a credit to the Minister of Labor. The measure would remove friction between capital and labor. The country had been notified by the authorized leaders of labor in Parliament and eut that the bill should go into force at once.

Senator Ferguson would have been glad if the Senate had been given more time before being asked to give second reading to so important a bill. While against coercion by labor, Senator Ferguson thought that the sympathy of the Senate should always be for the organization of labor, for capital was always organized. As the bill applied only to industries which were public utilities, which meant mines and railroads, it was probably only a tentative measure, which would be followed up by further legislation. Senator Ferguson said he wouldlike to have seen the bill declare that the find of the board of arbitration should be accepted by the parties to the dispute. He said that the Commons had given the bill thorough consideration and therefore the Senate might be able to get through with the measure within a reasonable time.

A CORDIAL INVITATION TO DIS-

EASE.

EASE.

This is an apt description of constipation. It's an unnatural condition to begin with, and it's more, because it brings about blood deterioration, interferes with digestion, renders you susceptible to infectious diseases and causes anaeima. Not so mach a purgative as a natural stimulant to the bowels is what you need. You get it in Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which increase liver activity, restore the bowels to perfect action and positively cure constipation and its attendant evils. Insist on having only Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, 25c. per box, at all dealers.

Moods.

Can one help having the "blues?"
Can one help having a bad temper?
Certainly. Moods are as subject to the will as any mental faculty, asserts a woman writer. The difference between the successful, popular woman and the woman who by her disagreeablen drives every one from her is simply the power of the former to control her moods and her temper. GOOD CORN SHELLER FOR 25c. A marvel of efficacy and prompt-ness, a remedy that does cure corns, and warts. Its name is Putnam's Corn Extractor. Contains no acids, never pains, gives lasting satisfac-tion. Insist on "Putnam's" only It's the best.

Gathers.

In putting in gathered sleeves, sunbonnet crowns or any work you wish gathers to be even use two threads, one gathers to be even use two threads, one where the seam will be and the other one-fourth of an inch inside first. Remove second thread after sewing, or you can use machine to gather by making tension very loose and drawing up threads. By using second thread it does away with the ugly little plaits so often seen in gathers.

There was a man in our town, and he was wondrous wise.

"I feel it my duty," writes Mrs.

Neighbors told me Ferrozone was the only remedy and their advice was good. Ferrozone put a stop to my pain and sickness, had a direct action on my troubles and relieved from the start. The Nordheimer

Permanency of Tone

As a rule when a person buys a piano it is not with the intention of replacing it with a new one next month, next year or within five years. It is regarded as a permanent fixture in the home, and the most important feature next to the owners themselves.

It is evident that great care should be taken select a plano which will retain its original brilliancy, power and quality of tone for years and years and years. And such a piano is the Nordheimer.

It has a lasting, permanent tone, as you can prove for yourself if you play on one which has been in the home of a friend for ten, fifteen, twenty years or more.

The "Nordheimer" is perfectly constructed by experts from the finest grade of materials procurable. It is built with the idea of not only satisfying the most critical ear for tone-quality when new, but for retaining its original superb tone, so that it will still satisfy the critical ear in vears to come.

Those who own a "Nordheimer" are the only ones who can really appreciate to the fullest seuse the wonderful, pure, sweet, brilliant, yet powerful tone of the peerless "Nordheimer" piano. May we not have the pleasure of a talk with you, with the object in view of placing "Nordheimer" in your home?

Our Mr, R. V. Carter will visit Chatham frequently in our interest and will be pleased to furnish you with any informa-tion you may desire. Correspondence addressed to him in care of the Garner House will receive careful attention.

BIRTH OF THE MOON

INTO SPACE.

She Once Filled, Perhaps, the Great Basin New Occupied by the Pacific Ocean—Latest Ideas of Science as to Conditions on Our Satellite.

Millions of years ago the earth was not the land bound, sea swept globe so familiar to us, but a liquid mass on which floated crust some thirty-five miles thick. At that period, says the Strand Magazine, it turned on its axis at a constantly increasing speed that finally shortened the day to three hours. When that terrific velocity was obtained 5,000 cubic million miles of matter were hurled off by the enormous centrifugal force, and our moon was born. The cleaving of so large a body must have left some scar on the earth's surface. It has accordingly been suggested that the great basin now occupied by the Pacific ocean was once filled by what is now the moon.

Our moon has the distinction of being the largest of all planetary sat-ellites—so large, indeed, that to the inhabitants of Mars it must appear with the earth as a wonderfully beau

Because the moon rotates on its axis in exactly the same time that it re-volves around the earth we are destined to see little more than one hemi the lunar day is equal to fifteen of our days. For half a month the moon is exposed to the fierce heat of the sun; for half a month it spins through space

Smaller in mass than the earth is, the moon's attraction for bodies must be correspondingly less. A good terrestrial athlete could cover about 120 feet on the moon in a running broad jump, and leaping over a barn would be a very commonplace feat. A man in the moon could carry six times as much and run six times as fast as he could on the earth.

Although separated from us by a distance that at times reaches 253,000 miles and is never less than 222,000 miles, we know more of the physical formation of the single pallid face that the moon ever turns toward us than we know of certain parts of Asia and the heart of Africa. Powerful telescopes have brought our satellite within a distance of forty miles of the earth. Physicists have mathematically weighed it and fixed its mass at one eighth of the earth, or 73,000,000,000,

The moon presents aspects without any terrestrial parallel. Rent by fires long since dead, its honeycombed crust seems like a great globe of chillthe earth, but in number, size and structure they bear for the most part little resemblance to those of the moon.

A lunar crater is not the mouth of a volcano having a diameter of a few hundred feet, but a great circular plain twenty, fifty, even a hundred miles in diameter, surrounded by a precipice rising to a height of 5,000 or 10,000 half as high.

Water cannot possibly exist as a liquid, for the temperature of the moon's surface during the long lunar night is probably not far from 460 degrees below the zero mark of a Fahrenheit thermometer, and the at-mospheric pressure is so low that a gas under pressure would solidify as it escaped. Ice and snow are the forms, then, which lunar water must

Because of the present paucity of water the moon's atmosphera is so exceedingly rare that startling effects are produced. Perhaps the most striking is that of the sunrise. Dawn and the soft golden glow that ushers in terrestrial day there cannot be. The sun leaps from the horizon a flaming sickle, and the loftier peaks immediately flash into light.

There is no azure sky to relieve the monotonous effects of inky black shadows and dazzling white expanses. The sun gleams in fierce splendor, with no clouds to diffuse its blinding light.
All day long it is accompanied by the weird zodiacal light that we behold at rare intervals. Even in midday the heavens are pitch black, so that, despite the sun-light, the stars and planets gleam with a brightness that they never exit to us even on the clearest of onless nights at sea. They shine hibit to us even on the steadily, too, for it is the earth's at-mosphere that causes them to twinkle to our eyes.

In the line of sight it is impossible to estimate distances, for there is no such phenomenon as aerial perspec-tive. Objects are seen only when the rays of the sun strike them.

At times there may be observed spots which darken after sunrise and gradually disappear toward sunset.
They cannot be caused by shadows, for shadows would be least visible
when the sun is directly overhead.

They appear most quickly at the equator and invade the higher alti-tudes after a lapse of a few days. In the polar regions they have never been resembling vegetation, answers Professor Pickering of Harvard university, vegetation that flourishes luxuriantly while the sun shines and withers

A single day, it may be urged, is not sufficiently long for the develop-ment and decay of vegetation, but sixteen hours on the moon is little more than half an hour on the earth; a day lasts half a month and may be regarded as a miniature season

INTERNATIONAL S. S. LESSON FOR TO-MORROW.

Woes of Drunkenness-Isaiah 28,

Golden Text-"Wind and new wine ake away the heart."-Hos. 4, 11.

Let teachers consider the terrible indercurrent of sin strong drink stimulates in all lands, and they will be thankful for the break of temperance lesson in our course of Bible study, to have the opportunity of faithfully warning their classes against its destroying power, that their boys and girls may not grow up to be enslaved; but to become free men in Christ Jesus our Lord.

The liquor traffic is a missionary work for the evil one. Our Christ'an churches send Bibles and missionaries to save men, and on the other hand, men of sin send hogsheads of their liquid fire that will drown men in destruction. The same ship may have God-sent men on deck, but a cargo of rum below, sent by Satan to frustrate them, and make the heathen ten times worse than before they ever saw the face of a white man. Even heathen rulers recognize this. King Khama, of South Africa, has prohibited the sale of liquor in his territory, and has petitioned England in vain to put a stop to the importation.

The Christian converts amongst heathen know on which side to stand. After a series of meetings in Canton, the Chinese Christians formed a union to bind together all who promised to abstain from—

1—Wine.

2—Opium and tobacco.

3—Bad language.

4—Debt. their liquid fire that will drown

4-Debt.

Hundreds of men, women and chil-lren joined this union, to live and breathe a purer moral atmosphere. breathe a purer moral atmosphere. Teacher, scholar, parent, citizen, on which side will you take your stand! On the side of the Devil and his angels, those who tiestroy men, body and soul, for greed, and gain; or on the side of God, Holiness and Heaven!

Are we not persuaded, and will we not try to persuade others, at least, on the four points mentioned above, to become like a Christian Chinaman, and shall we not therefore, whether we eat or drink, do whatsoever we do, do all to the glory of God!

It was a yarn spinning contest, and a musical program. The evening was opened by the musical numbers which included an instrumental by Miss Bogart and Mr. Gordon, vocal solos by Mrs. Bogart and Miss Hollinrake, a duett by Misses' McGeorge and Miss Sewemler, and a selection by the Ladies' Quartette, composed of Mrs. Cooper, Mrs. Bogart, Misses' S: shwenter and McGeorge.

The yarn spinning contest was then declared on. The judge of the evening was Mr. A. C. Woodward, while the jury was composed of Messrs. Coate, Fleming, Heyward, McGregor, Simon and VonGunten.

The fabricators of the evening were Messrs.

Each man, when he was called to face the judge and jury was sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, and was then asked why it was he was rated a first class story teller. Some of the answers were very amusing. S. B. Arnold examined the witnesses for the fense and R. L. Brackin prosecuted. When the contest was ended, the jury was addressed by the judge Mr. Woodward who carried out his part of the program in excellent style. His address was one of the most humorous inclents of the evening and kept the audience in peals of laughter. The prize, which was a pair of silk hose, was won by Mr. Geo. W. Sulman.

THE MADHOUSE

New York, March 23.—A perfunctory session of the Court was held yesterday morning. Judge Fitzgerald excused the jury until 10.30 Wednesday morning, pending his examination of affidavits in the insanity is Harry Thaw came in very nervous-ly, and nodded jerkily to his friends. His wife was in court, dressed in blue and looking quite refreshed. Mr. Hartridge appeared for the de-

Thaw left the court when the jury retired. He was very uneasy during his short appearance.

Delmas Was Away.

Mr. Delmas was not absent yesterday through any disagreement among counsel, but simply owing to the unimportant nature of the proceedings. Behind the action of District Attorney Jerome in getting on the record at the Thaw trial the statement that the defendant is insane lies a detorney Jerome in getting on the record at the Thaw trial the statement that the defendant is insane lies a determination on the part of the prosecution to make one of the most bitter legal fights ever known in this country, and have the question of Thaw's sanity settled beyond any and all doubts before his fate shall be placed in the hands of the jury. This means the decision of Judge Fitzgerald will not play such an important part as was generally supposed.

Jerome May Appeal.

An adverse decision on the District Attorney's suggestion that a commission be appointed will not stop Jerome in his efforts to have such action taken. It will simply spur him to greater activity along these lines. Mr. Jerome is thoroughly convinced that Thaw is in such a mental condition at the present time that he should not be on trial, and there is more than one legal road open to him to accomplish his purpose. The easiest and most simple is a direct appeal to the appellate division of the Supreme Court for a writ of prohibition to restrain the jury from any further consideration of the case of Thaw until the appellate division has passed on a motion for the appointment of a lunacy commission.

Thaw's Peculiar Desire.

Thaw's Peculiar Desire.

Thaw's Peculiar Desire.

Thaw yesterday, in his cell, is protesting against the naming of a commission in lunacy. He insists that his lawyers permit him to address a memorial to Judge Fitzgerald. They have refused to allow it. They evidently fear that the memorial might prove dangerous to their client.

Lunacy Commission.

If Justice Fitzgerald decides to appoint a Commission in Lunacy it will consist of three members, an alienist, a lawyer, and a layman. The alienist must necessarily be one who has not figured in any way in the case. The Commission, if chosen, will examine Thaw, and report to the court. If it were to find him sane, the trial would be resumed; if otherwise, Justice Fitzgerald would be obliged to order Thaw's confinement in the Hospital for the Criminal Insane at Matterwan.

Feur Year Old Lad Run Over By Street Car.

Toronto, March 23.—Ronald Young, the 4-year-old son of Albert Young, was run over and killed by a south-bound Dovercourt ear in charge of Motorman William Hurst, yesterday

The baby's head was severed from its body and the right arm was crushed.

Little Ronald was playing on the sidewalk in front of his home. He wandered down the street and made for the tracks.

The people on the corner did everything to attract Hurst's attention, but to no avail. The car came on and, as Hurst applied the brakes, 60 yards below where the child was struck, the jar threw the baby off the fender under the wheels.

Family Frozen to Death.
Bathurst, N. B., March 23.—On Wednesday afternoon, during a heavy of John Comeau's house was blown

Comeau took one child to the nearest house, a quarter of a mile distant, and was returning for the rest of the family when he got lost in the storm.

Reaching the house the following morning, in a very exhausted state, he found his wife and three children in the snow, frozen to death.

Alleged Count Decamps.
St. Catharines, March 23.—John Moreland, an alleged Russian count, who secured a position as a window dresser and has been cutting a considerable swath in social circles here the past few weeks, is gone. His popularity led him into all kinds of excesses and he "flew high."
Yesterday he hired a team of horses and drove to the Falls. He didn't return and the team was located at the bridge.

Moreland is supposed to be a graduate of a Swedish university.

THE MADHOUSE

FOR HY. THAW

Rev. Dr. McCrea, of Toronto, delivered the last of his addresses at the First Church revival last evening. His sermon was intended for men over 40 years of age who have not yet taken a stand for Christianity. It was listened to with great interest, and it will no doubt have its effect. Besade the regular song service, Miss Peate and Mr. Wilson sang a duett and R. W. Angus sang a solo.

These meetings will be continued ail next week, with, it is expected, even greater success. The speaker for next week has not been definitely decided upon, but it is safe to say that he will be even better than any here-to-fore secured.

Societies Violating the Law.

Toronto, March 23.—Yesterday was a typical Friday afternoon at the Legislature. The attendance was slim, there were no discussions and a limited amount of routine business was put through. As previously intimated the hope to finish the session by Easter has been abandoned, and the House will adjourn next Thursday afternoon over the holiday. Arrangements are being made to enable the members to visit the Agricultural College at Galph on the Tuesday following Easter.

Hon. Mr. Monteith, Minister of Agriculture, introduced a Government measure to amend the agricultural societies act. It gives legal status to Mount Forest, Chesley, Peterboro, McKellar Township and Forest agricultural societies, and amends the act of last year by providing that legal action can only be taken against societies by members of the then current year and the previous year where the clauses prohibiting horse racing are alleged to be violated.

No amendments were offered to Hon. Mr. Foy's bill respecting the printing and distribution of the Statutes, and it passed through committee.

Mr. Graham called attention to the illness of Mr. C. N. Smith (Sault Ste Marie) and in compliance with his request Hon. Dr. Reaume's bill respecting Colonization Roads was not given its final reading.

ENGLISH HALL MARKS

THE

The True Ones Are the Leopard and the Lion.

LEGACY OF THE MIDDLE AGES

The System Invented by the Goldsmiths' Company of London Is a Lasting Index to the Age and Genuineness of Old Silver Articles.

Every mark on your old silver means something, and if you care to be sure about its age or maker a study of these marks and the system is essential. A record has been kept at Goldsmiths' hall, London, for five centuries of all annual date letters and of the registered silversmiths and their private marks.

In 1337 King Edward III. granted a charter to the Goldsmiths' guild. Dur-ing the reign of Edward IV. the Goldsmiths' Company of London, as it came to be known, invented and put into practice an alphabetical system of marks, changing each year. There were similar codes in the provincial assay offices.

This system is one of the few be quests of the middle ages which have stood the test of time practically without change. By the provisions of this system we have not only a lasting index by which to judge the age of gold and silver, but we have a guarantee of

Neither the date marks nor maker's marks are hall marks, properly speaking, though all marks on silver are commonly referred to as hall marks. The true hall marks are the leopard and the lion. The leopard's head was used first from 1300, and in 1545 a lion passant was added. These marks were punched into the metal with a die, the animal appearing in a shield or oblong

Until 1550 a small crown appeared over the lion; from 1557 to 1680 the puncheon followed the outline of the lion's body; after that the lion appeared on an oblong shield. These various forms of the hall mark indicate certain broad periods and are sometimes help-ful in determining the age of a piece of silver when the date mark is indis-tinct. The date letter or year mark system seems to have been definitely settled about 1518, for, although there was an alphabetical system more than fifty years before, it is customary to go back to 1518 as an accurate starting

Charles II. raised the standard of the metal, and in 1695 the new quality was given a new mark, Britannia sitting in an oblong puncheon, with a lion's head erased. The standard was found to be too soft for practical purposes, however, and in 1720 there was a re-turn to the old and present standard of metal, with the leopard's head and the lion passant. Naturally these Britannia pieces are rare.

Makers began to use their private marks about 1363. At first they used the first two letters of the surname.

About 1739 the initials were substitutionally in the surname. ed. For example, prior to this date Paul Lamerie's mark was La. Afterward it became P. L.

Thus were four marks on the silver up to 1784—leopard's head, lion, date letter and maker's mark. In 1784 the sovereign's head was added-the gov sovereign's nead was added—the gov-ernmental customs mark—making five punches in all. There were changes from time to time in the fixed hall marks which are worth noting. For example, the leopard's head was set in a puncheon following its outlines until 1678, when it began to appear in a symmetrical shield of five sides

In 1696 the head was reduced somewhat in size. In 1720 the leopard lost his beard and his shield became oblong, and in 1823 his crown was taken away from him. These were all London marks. There were in addition provincial marks. The Edinburgh hall mark dates from 1457. It was a triple turreted castle or tower. The stand-ard mark was a thistle, which was substituted for the assay master's initials in 1757. The date letter cycles began in Edinburgh in 1681.

Through the dank and drab of a colorless London day the King and Queen have passed like veritable sovereigns of the well-known Fairy Tales in a coach in which Cinderella might well have journeyed to the famous ball, where she dropped her glass slipper, to open the seçond Parliament of the present administration. As usual an enormous crowd assembled in the Mall to see their Majesties on their way to the House of Lords, where the King's speech is read, and to give them a hearty cheer. This is always a sight worth seeing. The route is lined by troops of the brigade of Guards, and there are always several bands stationed along men good humouredly, keep the crowd in order.

Presently the bright cuirasses and glittering helmets of the Horse Guards, who form the royal escort appear in the distance, the soldiers "present arms," and the King's carriage comes into view from the courtyard of Buckingham Palace.

The Queen, with an ermine cloak wrapped about her shoulders, sits well forward and bows repeatedly, but the King sits rather back, merely touching the brim of his cocked hat from time to time in response to the salutations of his subjects. Other State carriages follow in quick succession, then there is an interval and the procession of the Prince and Princess of Wales, comes into view. The Prince is bareheaded, and one has a chance of seeing how bald he is growing. The Princess looks thin and worn, but bows perpetually as the Queen has done. MR. BUREAU'S PROMOTION.

New Solicitor-General Is Popular With Both Sides of the House.

With Both Sides of the House.

Nothing sobers a man like responsibility. It is therefore to be expected the present House of Commons has lost one of its jokers by the appointment of Mr. Jacques Bureau of Three Rivers to the Solicitor-Generalship. A member of the ministry and a high law officer of the Crown must be serious. Mr. Bureau has always had something sporty in his appearance. It showed itself in his jaunty walk, a bit in his stylish dress, in his black derby hat usually tilted to one side of his head. There is a dash of go and energy about the man that would almost suggest the breezy, pushful Krupp the lieutenant was appointed First Secretary of the German Lega-tion at Pekin, but he resigned from the diplomatic service with the inten-

West, rather than the easy-going old city of Three Rivers. When the House is sitting he is usually to be found at his desk, and on those occasions when the debate becomes loose and jokes and interruptions are frequent, the voice of the member for Three Rivers could frequently be heard. He is no bungler at humorous repartee. Among the younger members none are more able to take care of themselves in serious debate than the new Solicitor-General. He speaks English fluently and correctly, with very little French accent, and like a man who thinks in the language he is using.

As a member of the House of Commons. Mr. Bureau has been highly popular on both sides. He takes his work and his pleasure with equal earnestness. When he supports a cause he does it with a vigor and forcefulness equalled by few Government members. When a member of a jolly company seeking diversion elsewhere than in the chamber he is the leader in the hilarity and fun-making. His speeches are not numerous, but they are marked by an aggressiveness, courage and convincing logic which the bitterest opponent cannot but admire. Equally at home in French and English, a hard worker, a firm friend and a fair enemy, Mr. Bureau's elevation in his public duties will give pleasure to all who know him and bring credit to the office he holds.

DRAMATIC LIFE STORY

OF CENTURION WHO PAID TRI-BUTE TO CHRIST'S DIVINITY.

SOME LESSONS WE MAY LEARN

Jesus the Absorbing Figure In the Crucifixion-Some Facts of Roman History-In Darkest Times of Sin and Wickedness, Many Stood Up Boldly For the Right - Overcome Evil With Good.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Can-ada, in the year 1997, by Frederick Diver, To-ronto, at the Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 17.-In this sermon the preacher outlines in imagination the dramatic story of a character of the time of Christ whose experience has a remarkable interest for the people of to-day. The text is experience has a remarkable interest for the people of to-day. The text is Matthew xxvii, 54, "Truly this was the Son of God."

No picture of the crucifixion is perfect unless the face of Jesus Christ is the centre and the absorbing theme. All other parts of the picture must converge toward that divine face or radiate from it even as the spokes of the wheel branch out from the hub. There may be three crosses, but Jesus' cross must be the central cross. There may be soldiers there gambling for a prize, but that prize must be the garments of Jesus Christ.

But, though we would not for one instant turn your chief thought of the crucifixion from our Divine Lord, yet in order to bring Christ's saving sacrifice a little closer we would this moraing have you watch the upturned face of a Roman soldier who is standing at the foot of the cross and with outstretched arms is uttering the words of my text. Who is this centurion? Where did he come from? What was his past life? Why was he led to believe in the divinity of our Master and King? These are questions which I would like to answer in an imaginative way, for in all the Bible we do not read one word about him except that he was a captain or a petty line officer in the Roman army except that he was a captain or a petty line officer in the Roman army and that he was detailed by his su-perior officer to see that Christ was executed according to the Roman law. executed according to the Roman law. And yet in an imaginative way I believe we can read between the lines and trace this centurion's life step by step from his cradle to his spiritual surrender at the foot of the cross, where to-day we are all gathered to worship our dying Lord.

In the first place, I imagine that this centurion was once a Roman

In the first place, I imagine that this centurion was once a Roman youth who was born amid the pure, sweet, wholesome country life of old Italy. By that I do not mean he came of an ignorant, poverty stricken family, but I believe he came of an Italian landowning family which had neither poverty nor riches, but had purity in domestic life, refinement of home associations and had all which was possible in a heathen land to make life pure and sweet and wholesome.

was possible in a neathen land to make life pure and sweet and wholesome.

It is a very grave mistake to suppose that rural Italy in the time of Augustus was like immoral Rome. You can no more judge the country life of Italy by the moral standards of the social life of Caesar's capital than you can judge the moral standards of France by that of Paris or the pure, sweet country life of our own land by the standards of the Tenderloin district of New York or by the social scandals of summer resorts. The more I have read Roman history the more I am impressed with the fact that Rome was not only the immoral cesspool of all Italy, but of all the foreign capitals and the countries of the world. Do you not remember the famous sentence of Juvenal, "In Tiberium defluxit Orontes?" This translated means, "Into the Tiber the Orontes emptied itself." Where was the Orontes river? Did it literally flow into the Tiber? No. The Orontes river was away off in Syria. In order to empty itself into the Tiber it would have to flow through the Mediterranean waters, as the Thames to empty into the Rhine would have to jump the English channel. Now, what did Juvenal mean by that sentence? Why, simply this: The Orontes was the river upon whose banks eastern Antioch and of all the eastern cities were emptied into Rome as the river Orontes and the activation of the content of the eastern citie emptied into Rome as the river Orou-tes figuratively empties its filth into the river Tiber, upon whose banks the Roman capital was built."

tes figuratively empties its filth into the river Tiber, upon whose banks the Roman capital was built."

What Juvenal teaches us Farrar and Stanley and all the penmen who have delved into Roman history also teach. In the rural districts of the Roman empire virtue dwelt. There were purity and truth and honor. There the women lived, like Caesar's wife, above suspicion. There thousands and tens of thousands of Cornelias had their most precious jewels in the setting of a cradle. From the pure, sweet, wholesome life of the rural districts of Rome came the men who filled up the legions of Caesar, which defended the Roman power from the Atlantic ocean on the one side to the Tigris on the east, from the Danube on the north to the Sahara desert on the south. The men who conquered the then known world under Julius Caesar and Augustus were not the debauched valetudinarians from the polluted palaces of Rome. These warriors were the physical and mental giants who came from the rural districts of Italy as the strength of the French republic is found in the country life of France and not in the haunts of the dissipated youth of Paris.

Again the scene changes. Now I would have you stand in the very centre of all the sin and debauchery and moral filth of the great capital of the Caesars. The year is about 13 Å. D. The Augustinian reign was drawing to a close. The greatest of Roman rulers next to Julius Caesar himself was about to die. The political world was filled with plots and counterplots and insurrections. "The king is almost dead. Who shall be the next king?" was the question upon every lip. The hand of Augustus, that royal master of men, that hand which was as soft as velvet and yet as strong as steel, was beginning to loose its vise-like grip. The splendor of the Roman capital had drawn the wealthy prodigals into its debauching maelstrom and licentiousness, and unbridled passions were running riot everywhere.

and licentiousness, and unbridled passions were running riot everywhere.

It was into such a mad scene of wassail and carousal that, I think, this centurion of my text, then a young man of sixteen or eighteen summers, was inducted. In order to understand what kind of temptations assailed the moral character and the spiritual life of this young man I would have you for a little while wander through the excavated ruins of old Pompeii. You know that the most famous eruption of Mount Vesuvius took place only some threescore years after Augustus died. At that eruption of 79 A. D. God seemed to put out his hand and say: "I will cover up this city in beds of lava. Then nearly 2,000 years later I will lift my hand and show to the world how low and vile and bestial and immorally corrupt a great capital can become when it is drunk with wealth and sinful revelries and when man, unbridled in his evil desires, can become viler in his desires than the four footed swine snouting for their food amid the repulsive stench of a city's refuse." And this is just what God did. In an instant the earth was rocking in the agony of an earthquake. In an instant the heavens were covered with leaping flames. In an instant the preating flames. In an instant the great rivers of molten lava were rolling down the sides of the volcano. In an instant life ceased to exist in the Newport of old Rome

There upon the walls of some of those excavated homes of Pompeii we find pictured the degenerate lives of theme and women who inhabited those in what the besotted lives of the men and women who inhabited those in what the besotted lives of the men and women who inhabited those in what the besotted lives of the men and women who inhabited those in what the besotted lives of the men and women who inhabited those in what the besotted lives of the men and women who inhabited those in what the besotted lives of the men and women who inhabited those in the proper in the proper in the result in wears then whole libraries.

"I the fall you had a besule and th us what the besotted lives of the men and women who inhabited those homes must have been. Those pic-tures tell us more than whole libraries of written words could ever reveal. Oh, no; the charge of hypocrisy which Oh, no; the charge of hypocrisy which Christ hurled against the ancient Pharisees could not be applied to the immoral and drunken degenerates of ancient Rome. Then the followers of Bacchus not only sinned, but they gloried in their sins. They not only sinned, but they pictured upon the walls of their homes down to the minutest details the rileness and the minutest details the vileness and the repulsive corruptions of their sin There they were welcoming the guests with such words as the "Come and see me in my lewdne "Come and see me in my lewdness."

Come and see me in my domestic crimes. Come and see me an inhuman monster. Come and see my inne? sinful life as it is." And into such evil environments as these I think the centurion of my text was inducted in Rome when he was a very young man.

I think the boy came from a pure, refined home like that in which most of us were cradled. It was also a home which was not blessed with either riches or poverty. The old homestead stood in the midst of a vineyard. The farm also had its green pastures for the cattle and its fields for raising corn and wheat. The father had plenty of money to support the family, but he had very little to spare. But as this boy seemed to be especially bright I think the parents did everything in their power to send him to one of the great universities at Rome for an education. Thus I see the centurion, then a Phus I see the centurion, then a very young man, enter one of the great Roman schools. I see him caught there in the maelstrom of sin. I see him, like the prodigal of Christ's parable, become the victim of all kinds of evil associations. I see him, like thousands and tens of thousands of young students to-day, who come from pure, true, consecrated Christian homes in this country, enter the large universities of some of our great cities and then plunge headlong into all kinds of sinfulness. Then I see the cities and then plungs headlong into all kinds of sinfulness. Then I see the young man, besotted with drink and evil excesses of all kinds, return to his old home and say: "Here I am, mother. Here I am with health gone and character gone and noble spiritual ideals all gone. Here I am, You sent me from the pure associations of my sisters and my rural home. Here I am, a moral, mental and spiritual degenerate." Such I believe was this, young student after his life of sin and crime in the Roman capital during the latter years of the Augustinian era.

Again the scene changes. I believe this young man, disgraced and socially ostracized at home, makes up his mind to start life anew in one of the distant Roman provinces. This has distant Roman provinces. This has been the natural course for thousands of young men of all centuries who have disgraced themselves at home. Then they try to make a new start in a new world among strangers. You who have been western miners in the old seventies know what I mean. There in those western mining camps it was the well recognized law that no man should pry into the personal history of his neighbors. Why? Because many of the young men of those camps had lived lives of social dissipation in the east and their past records could not bear the focus light of publicity.

This centurion of my text may have come from one of the purest and the most refined homes of all rural Italy. Then, by the student life of licentious Rome, we see his moral and spiritual life completely wrecked. In this far-off Roman province of Judaes he is earnestly and prayerfully trying in the Roman army to make a man out of himself.

Roman army to make a man out of himself.

Again the scene changes. It is now about the year 30 A. D. This is the time when all the Jewish world is perplexed and in doubt about a Nazarene named Jesus. We are now in the Roman barracks of Jerusalem. This is the officers' quarters. Before us sits the well developed figure of an officer about thirty-eight years of age. This is the former youth of whom we have been speaking, now a broad shouldered Roman centurion. He turns to one of his brother officers and asks: "Tiberius, why are they making such a fuss about this man Jesus? Who is he? Is he a thief or an insurrectionist? Has he murdered anybody? Why does old Caiaphas, the high priest, hate him so? Why, I understand the sanhedrin is going to 'quick step' him to the cross. Tell me something about him." Then I think I see Tiberius turn and sharply look about him. I begin to surmise that this Tiberius is a Christian. Perhaps about him. I begin to surmise that this Tiberius is a Christian. Perhaps he was the Roman centurion who was once stationed in Capernaum, about whom Matthew wrote, who had a beloved servant dying from an apparently incurable disease. This servant Christ healed. You know the story. Then I think I hear that Christian centurion tell Julius, his brothersofficer, all about this Jesus. "Julius," says he, "Christ never did any one any harm. All he does is to heal the sick and open the eyes of the blind and brush away the lepers' scales. Yes, Julius, his mission is to heal the broken bodies and to cleanse us from all sin and to save us at last. Oh, Julius, will you not believe that Christ is God?"

Methinks I can see Captain Julius stiting there in the Roman barracks. His head is resting on his hand. Then I hear him say: "Oh, is Jesus all that? Is his mission only to help the poor and the sick and the suffering? Is his mission to cleanse sinful men from an evil past? How my dear mother would have loved him! How tame are the penates—the household gods of my old Roman home! Truly, father and mother to the best of their spiritual light made our old homestead virtuous and pure. But, oh, what would mother have been able to do had she had this Christ for her Saviur?" Them met thinks I see the centurion anxiously Jesus raised my sick servant, I neard him say to a great crowd of people who were flocking about him near Lake Galilee. 'All that the Father giveth me shall come to me, and him that cometh to me I will in nowise cast out.' Oh, Julius, will you not believe?"

But again the score changes. We

But again the scene changes. We are now standing at the foot of the cross. This is the crucifixion. Here are the two thieves, the one on the right, the other on the left of the cross which bears the dying Lord. Yonder come the great multitude, sneering and wagging their heads. Here are the soldiers gambling for the garments of the dying Saviour. By a strange coincidence I find that this same Captain Julius, whose conversion we were listening to the other night in the Roman barracks, has been detailed to see that the order of Pilate in reference to the three state criminals is carried out. Methinks I see him standing in the foreground of the crucifixion seene looking up at the face of Jesus. This Roman centurion's countenance has a troubled look. "Is he God?" that countenance seems to say. "If he is God, why does he not come down from the cross and save himself, as the scoffers are challenging him to do? Oh, I wish I could say he was my Lord! Then I might go back to Rome and tell my brothers and sister and old sinful companions about him." As the Roman centurion soliloquizes thus it is about 12 o'clock noon. Suddenly the heavens become as black as midnight. Then there is a booming and a crashing, as though the rocks were being splintered under our feet and the firm mountains were But again the scene changes.

a booming and a crashing, as though the rocks were being splintered under our feet and the firm mountains were shaking from their foundations. There is a great cry of agony. I hear the Saviour call, "Eli, Eli, Lama Sabachthani!" which is interpreted, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me!" Then I see the Roman commander in fright tremble and crouch as if terror stricken. I see him arise and stand straight up and reach out his hands toward the cross and cry out, "Truly this was the Son of God!" Oh, my friends, with your sins looming up behind you and with the evidences of Christ's divinity at hand, cannot you and I at this crucifixion scene speak as the captain of the Roman soldiers spake in reference to the dying Lord?

Of course in one sense this sermon is entirely imaginative. And yet I think there may be more truth in it than many of us believe. As I begin it in an imaginative way, so I will end in the same way. When I think of this Roman centurion, I never picture him as simply acknowledging of this Roman centurion, I never pic-ture him as simply acknowledging Christ as the Son of God and then go-ing back to his life of sin. I picture him as resigning from the Roman army and returning to the Roman capital. Then I picture him as one of the Christians of old Rome to whom

Then I picture him as going out to the old homestead to the pure home of his youth, and telling his brothers and sisters about his new found Christ. Then I picture him as going out to the old homestead to the pure home of his youth, and telling his brothers and sisters about his new found Christ. Then I picture the persecutions coming. Then I imagine him an old man, bending under the weight of seven-y-five years, but strong in faith and in fidelity to Christ. He may have been among "the saints in Caesar's household" of whom Paul writes. He may even have been among the Christian marity who were burned under Nero. The change would not have been any more extraordinary than that which transformed Sauf the persecutor into Paul the apostle. You may say the story is imaginative, but it is not unreasonable. Remember, this man had actually seen Christ. Think of it! Could he ever forget that spectacle? Let us ion him in spirit as he stands at the foot of the cross and with him acknowledge Jeaus as the Son of God. If, as I have suggested, he did lay down his life for Christ, may we not join him in that spirit too? We are the Lord's. Then at the last he will give to us the crown promised to those who are faithful unto death. If, as I have suggested, he did lay down his life for Christ, but we may live for him, giving our time and our labor in his service. So may we consecrate ourselves to him and declare that, whether we live or die, we are the Lord's. Then at the last he will give to us the crown promised to those who are faithful unto death. Then we shall not stand at the foot of the cross, but we shall be seated upon a throne and wear a crown of eternal and triumphant reward. May God bless this sermonic dream. "Truly this was the Son of God!" Come, let us change the text a little—"Truly this man is and forever shall be the Son of God and our resurrected Saviour and redeeming Lord."

Why Do Plants Grow Erect? Exactly why trees and other plants grow erect has never as yet been defi-nitely determined. Some of the sci-entists have given it as their opinion entists have given it as their opinions that the phenomenon of erect growth was and is in some manner related to the action of light. That this hypothesis is untenable was proved by Dr. Maxwell S. Masters of England, who found that sprouts on green-posts thou-sands of feet underground in the mines always assume the erect attitude.

Cheap Telephones.

Nothing convinces people so quickly and thoroughly of the benefits of municipal ownership as the record of what has been done in places which have courageously grappled some problem and solved it. This is shown by the following appreciative paragraph in The Arnprior Chronicle:—"Three thousand three hundred dollars of clear profit is what the town of Fort William has to show for one year's operation of its telephone system. In fact it has much more to show than a substantial margin of receipts over disbursements. There were cheap and efficient service, provision for a sinking fund, interest, vision for a sinking fund, interest, and depreciation of plant, and vinand depreciation of plant, and vin-dication of the good principle of pub-lic ownership. The town which looks out upon Thunder Bay has set an example in this connection which other communities could make no mistake in following."

FLOATED THE BAVARIAN

TRANSFORMED BIG STEAMER IN-TO A HUGE STEEL BUBBLE.

Novel Scheme of Two Bright Young Engineers Which Will Revolution-Ize Methods of Saving Wrecked Vessels-Pumped Sunken Canadian Ship Full of Compressed Air-Triumph of King and Wotherspoon.

Of the floating of the sunken Cana-dian steamer Bayarian, The New York Herald had the following: To turn a 12,000-ton steamship into a huge steel bubble by pumping her full of compressed air, and float her off rocks on which she had been imon rocks on which she had been impaled for more than a year, is a feat which has just been accomplished by two young engineers.

After more than one hundred and fifty thousand dollars had been expended by a yearly wrockers in usage.

entry thousand dollars had been expended by expert wreckers in unsuccessful attempts to wrest this great piece of marine architecture from the grasp of a pinnacle rock, these young men applied the principle employed in building tunnels under water, and within three months after beginning operations had the satisfaction of seeing the great ship float from her bondage to a safe harbor.

When Bayarian Went Ashore

When Bavarian Went Ashore. With a full passenger list and valu-ible cargo, the Bavarian of the Royal Mail steamship line, ran on Wye Rock, in the St. Lawrence River, 38 miles from Quebec, on the night of Nov. 3, 1905. The pilot insisted that one of the from Quebec, on the night of Nov. 3, 1905. The pilot insisted that one of the buoy lights which marked the chanhim to go out of his course and leave the liner hard and fast, with several sharp rocks piercing her bottom amid

Many of the Bavarian's compartments filled with water, and when the ship settled down on the rocks her engines were forced up so that the inner funnel showed 18 inches above the rim of the outside one. The ship's bottom plates were badly torn, and when the wreckers made an examination it was declared that the floating of the vessel would be a most difficult ick.

Various Plans Failed. Various Plans Failed.

After the company owning the Bavarian had worked for several weeks to get the vessel off she was turned over to the London Lloyds, and the underwriters set to work to save their money. All the old methods for raising vessels were employed. ing vessels were employed. Pontoons lashed alongside at low tide failed Empty oil barrels stowed in the holds proved useless when the tide rose to raise the vessel from her rocky berth. Chains run under her bow and stern and attached to winches on board powerful lighters never budged the powerful lighters never budged the ship when the attempt was made to swing her in this rude cradle. At last the underwriters gave it up, and announced that they would receive bids from any who believed they could have the ship.

Young Men Plan Effort. One day last June there came to New York a young man, Robert O. King, a resident of North Tonawanda, N.Y., who, after getting his degree in civil engineering at McGill University, in Montreal, P.Q., had done good work in his profession, and was ambitious to accomplish something new. He called on a friend, William W. Wotherspoon, a young engineer who was employed on the work of tunneling the East River. Mr. King reminded Mr. Wotherspoon of a former visit which he had made to New York, when they examined the caisson work of the Pike street bridge. Mr. Wotherspoon remembered that his friend had asked him then how a his friend had asked him then how a caisson sunk in the river for the purpose of building inside it the foundation for a pier differed from a ship without a bottom. He recalled that Mr. King remarked that he believed water could be expelled from a wreck in the same way that it was forced from a caisson.

Mr. King told his friend that he was convinced that the Bayarian was convinced that the Bavarian could be floated by using compressed air to force the water from her hold. The two young engineers discussed the matter and Mr. King persuaded Mr. Wotherspoon to take a party to visit the ship. This was done June 27. In the party were several divers, and Mr. Wotherspoon, who is ex-The two you engineers discussed pert in this kind of marine work, took along his own diving suit. Had to Raise Money.

They soon learned, however, that the contract had already been awarded to Capt. Leslie of Kingston, who had determined to make another attempt to float the vessel by the old methods. Messrs. Wotherspoon and King laid their plans before Capt. Leslie, who was at first skeptical, then credulous, and finally enthusiastic. He agreed to join with the engineers in the salvage of the great ship, which, as she lay, was estimated to be worth $1,000,000.

Canadians Interested.

It is one thing for a young man, whatever his capabilities may be, to advance a theory the carrying out of which will cost much money, and another to persuade capital to advance the necessary cash. Messrs. Wotherspoon and King learned this before they succeeded in raising the money to bring their enterprise to a successful conclusion. First they had to obtain the approval of men of standing in the scientific and financial world. Among the Canadians who became interested were Charles R. Hosmer of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and Thomas J. Drummond of Montreal. Capt. Leslie had purchased a plant and this was strengthened by additions of compressed air machinery. Mr. Wotherspoon, who was to have entire charge of the work up to the bulwarks of the vessel, then set about getting his crew. He had a close ac-quaintance with the genus "sand hog," that remarkable class of men whose ability to work under ground hose who read about them.

Engages "Sand Hog" Crew. Mr. Wotherspoon collected his crew with great expedition, many of the "sand hogs" and mechanics being engaged actually as they came off shift from the different tunnels of New York.

Within two days these men, together with thirty more hired in Canada, and the air-compressing plant, were taken by tugs from Quebec to the steamship. It took but a few hours to set up the machinery on deck and the men who had been brought from New York looked the Bavarian over. One of these men was Richard Creedon, a tunnel worker, who was blown through the roof of the East River tunnel by the air pressure and who finally appeared on the surface of the river swimming for the nearest pier. There was a feeling among the men that the attempt to float the ship would be a failure and there was talk that if the vessel could be made to float by pumping her full of air she would turn turtle as soon as she got off into deep water.

These fears were dispelled and con-off into deep water.

These fears were dispelled and confidence took its place when Mr. Baker, compresser engineer, brought on board a yellow dog. It was a well-bred wirehaired Irish terrier. The New York "sand hove" remembered that effer "sand hove" remembered that effer naired Irish terrier. The New York "sand hogs" remembered that after a series of mishaps in the tunnel work on which they had been engaged a yellow dog appeared one day and hung about the entrance to the air locks. From that day there was never an accident. The advent of Mr. Baker's yellow dog was hailed as a mascot and the men went to as a mascot and the men went to work with a will.

Holes Are Patched Up. All the ship's compartments were made as nearly air-tight as possible Hatch after hatch was closed by plat-ing, which was simply laid under the hatch combing, so that when the air pressure was applied the covers would be held in place. Air locks were placed on the compartments which had filled with water, and the "sand hogs" felt as much at home as if they were in their New York tunnels. As the air was forced in the water rapidly receded, and the workmen were able to stop the leaks with temporary plating.

Judge McLean and Mrs. McLean come aboard a few days before the final touches were put on the work. It had been planned to float the vessel Nov. 15, on which day it was expected there would be a normally high tide, but instead a storm came on which caused a very low tide, and the floating of the ship had to be postponed.

Men Seized by Fear.

Men Seized by Fear.

It was during this wait that the strain on the men's nerves was most apparent. Some of the sand hogs and the Italians who had been hired to take coal out of the bunkers began to murmur. They reminded each other that there was seven fathoms of water off the rock on all sides, and that if the ship should turn turtle as soon as she floated off it would be pretty serious for all on board.

as soon as she floated off it would be pretty serious for all on board.

It was in this emergency that the presence of Mrs. McLean on board proved fortunate. The weather had been very inclement, and it had been suggested that perhaps it would be better for her and Judge McLean to go ashore just before flotation. But Mrs. McLean refused to leave the Bavarian until she was tied to her pier in Quebec. She went among the frightened men and reassured them by her composure. It is said by those who composure. It is said by those who were there that many of the workmen would have undoubtedly mutinmen would have undoubtedly mutin-ied and gone ashore if they had not been ashamed to show the white fea-ther when a woman remained on the

She Fleats Clear.

There was a gale blowing on Nov. 16, and there was an indication of an unusually high tide. As the tide rose the air compressors were set to work, and the full power of the plant used in forcing air into the hold of the ship. TO REMOVE BASTINGS.

Threads Should Be Clipped at Inter

The proper removal of bastings from the completed garment is as necessary as the proper putting in. Many a dress has been ruined by a hasty, ill calculated pull. Did you ever watch a novice catch the end of a thread and then, after pulling up the seam of a skirt in a hard bunch, bring all her strength to bear to break the thread or perhaps even to bite it off? And did you ever see the seam of the skirt afterward?

If you have, you probably know that the pristine beauty of the material was gone forever. If it was silk or lawn there were holes in it all up the seam, possibly pulled places part way across the breadths. If the goods was so stout as it defer such credit to the the breadths. If the goods was so stout as to defy such cruel treatment, then it was probably wrinkled so badly that pressing would never bring the defect out entirely.

Basting threads should be clipped at intervals of three inches, and each short length should be removed without wrinkling the goods in any way. Indeed there will be no need, for, clipped in this way, the thread will yield to the slightest pull. If any one thread seems obstinate, do not jerk. There is probably a slight knot somewhere and another clipping will remedy the evil. An ivory or bone stiletto is a most convenient thing to have in one's work basket, especially when bastings are to be removed.

CARE OF BATHROOM.

Sanitary Precautions That Insure Good

Health to the Family.

Many women think that if the bathroom is well swept and tidied up every day their whole duty to that de-partment is done, but of all the rooms in the house this one requires the most lynx eyed care. The plumbing should be most rigorously looked after the taps should be inspected and thor-oughly flushed each day at least once, by the mother herself.

In the autumn, when fever and such maladies are prevalent, it is customary to lay the evil to the fall weather or to some form of malaria contracted while away in the country for a vacation. In reality it is mainly because the waste pipes have not been flushed all summer and are full of deleterious

Before again taking up residence in a house which has been closed for a greater or less period every faucet should be opened and the water allowed to run freely for not less than an hour. This is particularly true of the bathroom, though the kitche ghould have its share of care as well. After this has been done ammonia should be poured down and allowed to remain in the traps for some time.

Ungraceful Habits.

Many a woman, although plain of ace, commands admiration on account of her graceful carriage and well poised figure. But women are so apt to neglect this fact that they pass over the importance of bodily poise in cultivating their facial beauty. Eight out of ten women have a disjointed way of walking. The hips are allowed to sag, making the abdomen prominent. The shoulders droop, and the head is poked forward instead of being held erect. Many women have a habit of coming down heavily on the heels, jarring the whole body and making the hips and shoulders move in an ungainly way, says an exchange. Another bad habit is that of turning one foot in, and sometimes both feet, giving the body a crablike motion that is anything but graceful. It is a mistaken idea that one's walk is like one's features, unchangeable. On the contrary, any woman can have an erect, well sed, graceful figure if she be willing take the time and trouble to correct

The Origin of "Etiquette." The French word etiquette really means a "label" or "ticket." How, then, comes it to denote "conventional forms of ceremony," which is the definition given in Nuttall's dictionary? It is said that a certain Scottish gardener, in charge of Louis XIV.'s garden at Versailles, was very much out because the courtiers walked over his beds. To keep off these trespassers he placed labels or tickets—ejiquettes—at various spots, with instructions as to the proper path. At first the haughty courtiers did not deign to notice these placards, but a hint from high quarters that their walks in future must be within the etiquettes compelled their obedience. Thus, according to the story, originated our present use of the word "etiquette."

A pretty-little fancy with the girls is the pompadour ribbon corset cover found among the lingerie and which is worn under sheer blouses.

It is fashioned of two strips of wide ribbon sewed together lengthwise and cut in three pieces—two for the fronts and one for the back—and joined under the arms with fagoting.

Snow, soft, feathery, and evanescent hough it is, has been responsible for ome of the most shocking railway though it is, has been responsible for some of the most shocking railway accidents on record.

The recent terrible disaster in Scotland was, of course, directly due to it; and in January, 1903, a somewhat similar catastrophe, caused by a relief train colliding with a snow-plough, killed and injured some fifty persons in Washington, U. S. A.

Near Ashtabula, again, on Dec. 29, 1876, the driver of the magnificent "Flying Pacific Express" from New York to San Francisco, deceived by araging snowstorm, ran his heavy train raging snowstorm, ran his heavy train at full speed on to a flimsy trestle bridge over 80 feet high. It gave way, of course, and more than one hundred people perished.

Another historic railway wreck due to the same cause was that at Ab-bot's Ripton, on the Great Northern bot's Ripton, on the Great Northern Line, on Jan. 21 of the same year. This was a terrible collision. The Scotch express ran into a coal train, and then the Leeds express from Lon-don dashed full speed into the com-bined wreckage, killing 14 people out-right and shockingly mangling many, more.

Near Leadville, Colorado, soon after the narrow-gauge railway there was first opened, a train was snowed in at 10,000 feet above sea-leved. It was nearly a week before it could be dug out, and then every one of its occupants was found dead and frozen stiff—so many human icicles.

In what was known as the Tehatchape Pass disaster, in California, the train was caught by a blizzard at the summit of a high mountain range at a moment when the engine had been detached, and driven backwards downone of the steepest and most tortuous grades on the Pacific slope. It jump-ed the track when it had attained anestimated speed of 80 miles an hour, and plunged over a precipice into a snow-drift 100 feet deep. Not a soul aboard escaped death.

The Centenary of Gas.

The Centenary of Gas.

It is hard to believe in these days of general enlightenment by illuminants that there was a time in the last century when gas was unknown; yet such is the fact. It was in the last days of January, 1807, that gas was first adopted for lighting purposes in London, England. A German named Winsor set up a test row of gas lamps in Pall Mall. That was the beginning of the use of an illuminant of the last the world Winson. amps in Pall Mail. That was the beginning of the use of an illuminant that now fairly lights the world. Window, however, was not the inventor, but only put into practical use another man's discovery. The Scottish engineer Murdock had already used received as an illuminant in Correctly. engineer Murdock had already used coal gas as an illuminant in Cornwall; Watt and Boutton had experimented with it in Birmingham; and Lebon had done the same in France. It is, nevertheless, to Winsor that belongs the credit of a first and really practical demonstration of street lightning by gas. Needless to add that great men of science and even men of imagination ridiculed poor Winsor's efforts. Sir Humphrey Davy declared in 1809—that is to say, two years afforts. Sir Humphrey Davy declared in 1809—that is to say, two years after the display of gas lamps in Pall Mall—that you might just as well talk about bringing down a slice of the moon to light London as to illuminate it with gas. STORE CLAIMS SURPLUS

A Flourishing Condition

WORK OF RAILWAY DEPT.

Ottawa, March 23.—The extension of the Intercolonial Railway to Toronto was the hope expressed by Hon. H. R. Emmerson in reviewing the year's business of that road yesterday. He also said he looked forward to the day when the road would stretch from sea to sea.

The Minister of Railways claimed a surplus of $61915 on the year's opersurplus of $61,915 on the year's oper-

Mr. Emmerson made his annual Mr. Emmerson made his annual budget speech. He pointed out that heretofore this speech had been confined to a financial discussion of the I. C. R. He felt that this year the speech should be extended to a review of all the more important work of the Railway Department. It was a vast department, employing nearly 14,000 men, and under its jurisdiction was included not only the Government railways and its system of canals, but also the new transcontinental rail-also the new transcontinental railway.

The expenditures upon canals were large, and the money was voted without complaint by Parliament. During the past ten years there had been expended upon capital account not less than $24,000,000. During this period, $1,452,000 had been expended on the Lachine Canal, $1,005,600 upon the Sault Ste Marie Canal and $3,076,000 upon the Welland Canal. Upon the Trent Valley Canal, now open from Healy's Falls to Lake Simcoe, there has been expended during the past ten years $3,738,663, which included the cost of surveys.

Mileage of Canadian Roads.

Turning to railways, the Minister ed the cost of surveys.

Mileage of Canadian Roads.
Turning to railways, the Minister pointed out that the total mileage of Canadian railways in 1896 was 16,387 miles and subsidies granted by the Dominion Government between 1867 and 1896 amounted to $90,395,692. In 1906 the total mileage had increased to 21,518 miles, and the total subsidies from Confederation to 1906 had increased to $105,734,201.

Taking up the I. C. R. Mr. Emmerson reminded the House that the road as completed and equipped in 1876 was long since out of date. The Government had been compelled to virtually rebuild the road and to buy new rolling stock throughout. This had been done on every trunk line in America during the past ten years. He was glad to say that the I. C. R. had kept pace with the best, except that not enough had been done towards reducing grades.

Expansion on I. C. R.
Referring again to statistics, Mr. Emmerson pointed out that the mileage of the I. C. R. had increased from age of the I. C. R.

Referring again to statistics, Mr. Emmerson pointed out that the mileage of the J. C. R. had increased from 1,172 miles in 1896 to 1,477 miles in 1906. In 1896 there were 204 locomotive engines; in 1906 the number had increased to 347. The number of cars had increased from 6,667 in 1896 to 10,819 in 1906.

The engine mileage during this decade had increased from 4,714,000 to 7,304,511.

7,304,511.

"Freight rates," said the Minister,
"are cheap on the Intercolonial Rail-

Taking the I. C. R. as a unit, or one dollar, the United States roads charge $1.88. New Zealand $1.79, and Victoria $1.88 per ton mile.

The gross revenues of the I. C. R. for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1906, were $7.643,829, gross expenses $7.581,914, surplus $61,915.

To this surplus was to be added the profits of the Windsor branch amounting to $31,966. From this total should be deducted the net loss for the year on the Prince Edward Island Railways of $36,962, but this deficit of the Prince Edward Island Railwayshowed a betterment of $116,000 over the year terminating June 30, 1905.

Mr. Emmerson, at the evening session, assured the House that, prosperous as had been the past years, the current year would be even more prosperous. For the first six months the gross receipts had been $4,047,556, a surplus of $$77,656. True, there must be faced an expenditure on capital account of $1,000,000 for rebuilding the shops destroyed by fire at Moncton. He showed by elaborate statistics that passenger and freight rates were quite low on the Intercolonial Railway and then sought to forecast the future of the road.

From Sea to Sea.

There were several propositions. One was to divide the system between the C. P. R. and G. T. R. He asked if this policy was favored by the Opposition. Personally, the Minister looked forward to the day when the Intercolonial Railway should stretch from sea to sea, but soon, and very soon, he hoped to see it start for the West. He hoped soon to see it extended to that splendid industrial capital of Canada, the City of Toronto. (Applanse.)

Hon. John Haggart said that the speech was unsatisfactory. What was the Grand Trunk Pacific going to cost? Was it to be built, as the Premier promised, for $13,000,000?

As to the International Railway, and calling it "capital account."

Mr. Emmerson claimed a surplus of $55,000,000 on capital account."

Mr. Emmerson claimed a surplus of $55,000,000 on the Intercolonial Railway, and the past year more than $5,000,000 upon the Intercolonial Railway ove
