Letters from Our Boys

What Our Soldier Boys are Doing for King and Country

Petawawa Camp, June 15.

Hello Chas:— Well, Chas., I was mighty glad to get your letter. Yes, we sure will have some Battery now. It is the only howitzer in the camp, so you see what good looking people will do for a Battery—Henry, Ward and myself.

Say, it is a shame that Henry wasn't put on the Signalling Corps; it sure saves us a lot of hard work, although we have to get up at 5 a.m.

We quit work at 5 p.m. and were to have gone on a ride at 8.30 this morning, but to-day being the 15th, was pay day, so I decided to take my pay instead of riding. Yes, Chas., another $10, so you see I have a little bit of money.

For heaven's sake Chas., don't give away my baseball suit. You know what happened at Wabasso Park.

There are some great games here to-day. The 70th was to have played out the game was cancelled. This sure is a peach of a day, just O.K. for motoring, but I am just sitting around like a bump on a log.

We bought a kooak to-day, so look out for my map around there in a week or so.

Some of the fellows are having a boat trip to-morrow up the Ottawa river, at 7 a.m., returning at 8 p.m. Ward, Henry and I are not in it.

We had a compliment paid to our Battery to-day. We had the cleanest lines in the Division; that is 16 Batteries. We have won this twice now. Some Battery! Yesterday the general alarm was sounded for fire. The C. A. S. C. was on fire, but they had it out before we got there.

Well, Chas., you have asked me how I liked doing my "bit." In answer I may say I realize now that I am doing my bit for my King and Country, Canada the land we cheerish, and any loyal Canadian who is not in khaki should not be called a Canadian, and I am longing for our order when we will embark for France, where I trust I may do my duty to defeat that monster of Germany, the vile reptile. I hope I may be the first to fire one of the guns of the famous 70th Battery, and when the war is over and we will be returning to the land of our birth, it is then that I will be glad I am a Canadian.

Well, this is all now. Oh, yes, I received a box of eats to-day. Gee! they were good. So long.

JACK.

A very enjoyable entertainment was given in the Methodist Church, Waterdown, on Monday evening, June 17th, under the auspices of the Epworth League assisted by the choir.

Rev. R. A. Facey, Pastor of the church, occupied the chair in his usual genial manner.

The musical part of the program was given by choir assisted by Mrs. Wright and Mrs. Bews Baker who sang several solos in a very pleasing style. Rev. C. L. McIrvine of the First Methodist Church, Hamilton, Miss Isabelle McKay also of Hamilton and Miss Vera Nicholson of Waterdown, gave a number of readings each, which greatly delighted the audience.

A silver collection was received at the door and the sum of $20 realized. This is to be used for the purchase of new music for the choir.

The Milton Reformer says something ought to be done to secure tenants for the empty houses in that town. Send the empties here Milton, we can do the job.

Registration Day

June 22nd is the date set for the registration of the man-power of the country, and it is expected that the results will be of great value to the government. There should be a thorough co-operation on the part of all in this great work, for it is the greatest and most comprehensive ever attempted for the proper classification of the available resources of the nation. The fear that some have that their services will be needlessly transferred to distant parts, and that they may escape by neglecting to register, is a mistake. The registration is compulsory and heavy penalties will be incurred by neglect.

The purpose of the act has been made clear, and no confusion should result if the terms are complied with. With a knowledge of the human resources of the country, the government will be in a position to place the reserves where most needed, whether on the farm, in the munition shop or any part of the government service that will enable others to be released for the more strenuous work overseas. There need be no fear that the government wants to rush a lot of men to the front whether fitted or not. Only those who are absolutely fit for duty abroad will be sent, but there are many whose services could be better utilized than at their present occupations. Wherever possible, duplication of efforts must be avoided. Concentration of power where most needed, and elimination of wasted effort, are the chief aims of the government in taking the registration.

ORDER COAL NOW.

Appeals are being made to the people to order their winter supply of coal now. This is of the highest importance. The coal ought to be moved now when the railways, on account of the weather conditions, can be operated at their highest capacity.

Coal ought to be ordered now to keep the mines busy during the summer. All the coal that can be mined will be needed before the end of next winter. Industries are making extra demands for coal because of increased activities of all factories.

In addition to this extra demand for coal there is also the extra demand on the railways for transportation facilities—for the movement of war supplies of all kinds and raw materials and for the movement of men to camps and to the coasts.

If the demand for coal is piled on the railways and the coal mines all at once, as soon as cold weather begins, there will be a break down of the whole system. Not only will many people have to go without fuel but also the railway service will be so congested as to interfere seriously with movement of war supplies.

The railway administration at this time must do its part by seeing to it that empty coal cars are promptly supplied to the mines. Complaint is made that much of the idleness at the mines is due, not alone to lack of orders but also to lack of coal cars. This should be investigated and the condition should be speedily remedied.

Meanwhile it is the patriotic duty of every householder immediately to place his order with his coal dealer for next winter's supply of coal.

A nervous old beau living not many miles from here, entered a costumier's in the city the other day and said: "I want a little help in the way of suggestion. I'm going to attend a masquerade ball and want a distinctly original costume—something I can be quite sure no one else will wear. What do you suggest?"

The costumier looked him over attentively, bestowing special notice on his gleaming, bald and shining head. "Well, I'll tell you," he said, thoughtfully, "Why don't you sugar your head and go as a pill?"

"Use Your Hoe"

A Song by Our Waterdown Poet Dedicated to the Farmerette

It is really a pleasure to note the large number of fair farmerettes wending their way to and from work. Some wear a smile on their face, indicative of good health and happiness, while others bear a look of determination which plainly says "we will do our utmost to uphold the government in its policy of production." If we are to credit all we hear about the good work being done by these fair tillers of the soil, we may have no fear of a famine in these parts. The following lines are hereby dedicated to these fair ones:

Gone are the days when my mind was free from care;

Now I must work in my garden everywhere,

For everyone has a garden plot, you know,

I hear my garden voices calling, "Use your hoe!"

Chorus—

I'm hoeing, I'm hoeing,

And my back is aching so;

I hear my garden voices calling

"Use your hoe."

Why must I work when I'd rather smoke my pipe?

Why don't the crops hurry up in getting ripe?

Why do the weeds fill my garden, row to row?

I hear my garden voices calling "Use your hoe."

Oh, what a job when I'm picking tater bugs;

I'd rather work cleaning house or shaking rugs;

Just when I think I can sit and watch it grow,

I hear my garden voices calling, "Use your hoe."

I'm working hard when the summer sun does shine,

When winter comes all the stuff will taste so fine,

When prices rise I'll be very glad, I know,

That I heard my garden voices calling, "Use your hoe."

This can be sung to the tune of "Old Black Joe."

School Board Meeting

The High School Board met on Monday evening in the Township Hall.

The members were all present. Mr. Hill in the chair.

The Internal Management Committee reported that they had interviewed the teachers re re-engagement and that they requested increases in salary from $100 to $150.

It was decided to defer the engagement of a fourth teacher until Sept. as the prospective pupils for the 4th form are somewhat uncertain.

On motion, the Board decided to re-engage the Principal and the 1st Assistant at the same salary and to give in addition a war bonus of $50 each. The engagement of the second Assistant to be taken up later.

The Secretary was instructed to interview each member of the staff and inform them of the Board's action and report at a future meeting. The meeting then adjourned.

Properly Located

An English "Tommie" suffering from wounds, was brought into the hospital for examination. They stripped him to the waist, and the nurse noticed that on one side of his chest he had a picture of King George tattooed, and, on the other side one of Queen Mary, while on his back he had the Union Jack. The nurse couldn't forbear a smile as she said, "You're very patriotic." Then the Tommie smiled too, "O, you haven't seen all of me yet, Miss" said he. "I'm sitting on the Kaiser and Von Hindenburg."

Economical Recipes

RICE POTATOES.

Wash one-half cup of rice, put in skillet with two cups milk, one cup water, salt and pepper. Put in oven and bake half hour. Peel and halve four or five potatoes and lay in the rice with thin slice of bacon on each potato and bake one hour. Potatoes and rice may be served separate or together. This serves four persons.

MEAT LOAF.

Take stewing beef, veal or lamb, run through chopper, add crackers, suet, onions (the tops of green ones will answer) salt and pepper to taste. Mix shape into loaf, put in a baking pan, pour a tablespoonful of salad oil over it, pare and cut potatoes or carrots into quarters and lay around the loaf. Pour water in the bottom to keep from burning, and bake until potatoes are done a nice brown. Very good either hot or cold.

IRISH STEW.

For family of five—can be made from left-overs from Sunday dinner, and it is cheap. One large cup (chopped fine) cooked beef, one large cup brown gravy, one large cup sliced boiled potatoes, one large cup boiling water, one teaspoonful onion salt, one teaspoonful celery salt, one pinch black pepper. Good served hot on toast.

PEANUT SOUP.

A delicious and nourishing soup may be made from skim milk and peanut butter as follows, says the United States Department of Agriculture:

Montreal, May 29, '09
Minard's Liniment Co., Limited,
Yarmouth, N. S.

Gentlemen,—I beg to let you know that I have used MINARD'S LINIMENT for some time, and I find it the best I have ever used for the joints and muscles.

Yours very truly,
THOMAS J. HOGAN.

The Champion Clog and Delectable Dancer of Canada.

Heat one pint of milk until lukewarm. Add two rounded tablespoonfuls of peanut butter mixed to a smooth paste with a little of the milk. Salt to taste. Thicken with one teaspoonful of butter or savory fat mixed with one tablespoonful of flour. Bring almost to the boiling point and serve.

FRENCH TOAST.

Beat up together one egg, one cup of skim or whole milk, and salt to taste. Place a small quantity of butter, bacon fat or other suitable fat, in a broad-bottom frying pan. Dip slices of stale bread into the egg and milk mixture until they are thoroughly moist and fry on both sides until they are a golden brown. Serve hot with or without syrup.

CORNMEAL DODGERS.

One cup yellow cornmeal, one spoonful sugar, one-quarter cup flour, one tablespoonful cooking oil, one and one-half teaspoonfuls baking powder, cold water enough to make thin enough to drop (not pour) from spoon. Fry on griddle or bake in gem pans.

STUFFED HAMBURG ROAST.

Three pounds hamburger steak one pound stale bread dressing. Both steak and dressing should be well seasoned, using a little onion in the latter. Separate the meat into two divisions, spread one section on the bottom of roaster, having about two inches thick. On top of this spread the dressing, then the rest of the meat. Place a thin slice of salt pork on top of this, add pint of water. Roast one hour. Potatoes may be roasted with this.

NAPOLEON NOODLES.

One pound of ground fresh pork; brown in frying pan, add three quarts of water, let simmer 30 minutes, add salt, pepper, also onion if desired, and a 10-cent box of noodles (or home-

CONSTIPATED CHILDREN

Mothers, if your little ones are constipated; if their little stomach and bowels are out of order; if they cry a great deal and are cross and peevish, give them a dose of Baby's Own Tablets—the ideal medicine for little ones. The Tablets are a gentle but thorough laxative and never fail to right the minor disorders of childhood. Concerning them Mrs. Noble A. Pye, Ecum Secum, N. S., writes: "My baby was terribly constipated but Baby's Own Tablets soon relieved her and I now think them a splendid medicine for little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WHY SALT CAUSES THIRST.

As a Matter of Fact It Absorbs the Body's Moisture.

Salt has been described as a natural element of the blood in about the same proportion as in the water of the ocean.

Under general conditions we do not feel the existence of salt in our bodies because its effect is counteracted by a due proportion of water.

When we eat an excessive amount of salt, thirst is created by the demand of nature that we also take a proportionate amount of water and dilute the salt to its proper relative amount. Any food that tends to absorb the moisture of the body will cause thirst for the same reason—that our physical welfare requires a balanced quantity of water.

"PILLBOXES."

What They Are, and What British Are Doing to Combat Them.

One point emerges with great clearness from the reports on the recent fighting namely, that a reply has been found to the German defensive device variously described as redoubts, anti-tank turrets, block-houses, and, in the soldiers' vernacular, "pillboxes." General Sixt von Arnim, who is in command of the German armies on the front of the recent fighting, is an ingenious and able soldier. His famous report on the Somme battle, which was captured, revealed the possession of a very fresh mentality, able to analyze and learn, extremely frank and unusually free from preconceived ideas. It was this general who was faced with the necessity for finding some defensive substitute for the deep dugout, which the certainty of striking water at any depth over a few feet puts out of court on the Ypres front. His reply was the pillbox or con-

END YOUR Catarrh TO-DAY

Catarrh sufferers, meaning those with colds, sore throat, bronchial trouble etc., can all be cured right at home by inhaling "Catarrhazone."

In using Catarrhazone you don't take medicine into the stomach—you just breathe a healing piny vapor direct to the lungs and air passages. The purest balsams and the greatest antiseptics are thus sent to every spot where catarrhal trouble exists—germs are killed, foul secretions are destroyed, nature is given a chance, and cures come quickly.

Colds and throat troubles can't last if the pure healing vapor of Catarrhazone is breathed—sneezing and coughing cease at once, because irritation is removed.

Use Catarrhazone to prevent—use it to cure your winter ills—it's pleasant, safe, and guaranteed in every case.

Music of Grasshoppers.

No music is as familiar as that produced by the locust, grasshoppers and crickets, and, although they are not produced by the mouth, they answer as calls, and are undoubtedly a language to a certain extent; and, indeed, their calls have been reduced to written music. The music of grasshoppers is produced in four different ways, according to Scudder. First, by rubbing the base of one wing upon the other, using for that purpose veins running through the middle portion of the wing; second, by a similar method, by using the veins of the inner part of the wing; third, by rubbing the inner surface of the hind legs against the outer surface of the wing covers; and, fourth, by rubbing together the upper surface of the front edge of the wings and the under surface of the hind legs.—Exchange.

Largest Poisonous Reptile.

The Surucucu, known as the bush-master, is the largest poisonous reptile in the world, and is fortunately rare and found only in the depths of the jungle and swamps, where man rarely penetrates. It attains a length of twelve to fifteen feet; the color of its body is rose, or rather yellowish pink, with brown patterns and tints of purple. Its bite is almost always fatal. Its fangs are an inch long and as much as ten ounces of venom have been extracted.

SMOKE-TUCKETTS T&B PLUG

It has not been overcome, although full details are not available as to precise methods. Improved intelligence work has played a prominent part, most of these blockhouses being now definitely located and mapped before the attack is made on them. Gas has been used to some extent, and some big guns have been brought nearer and many direct hits obtained. The general effect of the counter measures has been so devastating that blockhouses appear likely to pass to the limbo of forgotten things. It is reported that the Germans are constructing no more.

It is found that the conclusion hits are not obtained the conclusion of big shells is that all blockhouses within a certain radius are toppled over, having naturally no great depth or strength of foundation. Casualties in them are naturally enormous, and their experiences within them have had a very demoralizing effect on the German soldier.

PIKEMEN IN BATTLE.

Old Greek Phalanx Like Mass of Live Barbed Wire.

It is a long reach back from modern war methods and big guns to the days of the pike and the battle-axe. But in its time the pike did deadly work and used in the phalanx was a terrible weapon.

A phalanx in the military affairs of Greece was a square battalion or body of soldiers formed in ranks and files compact and deep, with their shields joined and pikes crossing each other so as to render it almost impossible to break it. At first the phalanx consisted of 4,000 men, but this number was afterward doubled by Philip of Macedonia, and the double phalanx is hence often called the Macedonian phalanx. Polybius describes it thus: "It was a square of pikemen, consisting of sixteen in flank and 500 in front. The soldiers stood so close together that the pikes of the fifth rank extended three feet beyond the front. The rest, whose pikes were not serviceable owing to their distance from the front, crouched them on the shoulders of those who stood before them and, so locking them together in file, pressed forward to support and push on the former rank, by which means the assault was rendered more violent and irresistible." The spears of those behind also stopped the missiles of the enemy. Each man's pike was twenty-three feet long. A grand phalanx consisted of 16,384 men.

FOES' DISTRESS GROWING WORSE

Food Situation is Now Very Critical.

Flour Ration Cut, and Meats Inadequate.

London Cable—The food situation in Germany is becoming more critical. Rations of the most indispensable articles of food are reduced or are no longer procurable, and people are again beginning to ask when there will be sufficient food to feed the population of the large towns during the three critical months ahead.

As to the situation in the immediate future everything indicates that the period until the fruits of the new harvest become available is likely to be one of grave anxiety and distress for the German people. Only dire necessity could have compelled the Government to reduce the flour ration from seven to five and one-half ounces, and though the Germans expected great relief from the Ukraine they cannot hope to derive much assistance from that quarter.

In this connection the Chemnitz Volkstimme says: "Kindly spare us Ukraine promises. We have been fooled too often with empty words. Tell the people the plain truth."

The Berlin Vorwaerts declares that the physical and moral powers of the population to endure privations have been substantially diminished through another year of war, and that further reduction of the rations must constitute a serious danger.

Meat is scarce, and even now it is impossible to provide the large towns with their proper quota of meat. The whole cattle-breeding industry of Germany is threatened, and with it the supplies of meat, milk, and fat. In April there was a further reduction in the milk supply in certain large towns, including Berlin. The inhabitants of Breslau lately have received only once a week of butter and margarine together, in order to make up for the shortage of food still more substitutes have been made.

German newspapers recently published an advertisement of a special drug "for stilling hunger and enabling people to hold out until the next meal."

In regard to the effect that the shortage of food is having on the health of the nation the great decrease in the German birth-rate is a matter of interest. A report compiled by the local Government Board of Infant Welfare in Germany showed that in 1916, 40 per cent. fewer babies were born than in 1917, and from 1915 to 1917 the total decrease was equivalent to 10,000,000.

A Cure for Fever and Ague.—Disturbance of the stomach and liver always precede attacks of fever and ague, showing derangement of the digestive organs and deterioration in the quality of the blood. In these ailments Parmlax's Vegetable Pills have been found most effective, abating the fever and subduing the ague in a few days. There are many who are subject to these distressing disturbances and to these there is no better preparation procurable as a means of relief.

PARIS AGAIN FEELING SAFE FOR SIX WEEKS

German Losses in Recent Drive Awful—Tanks and Fliers Helped French.

A USEFUL GAIN

Foch Retakes Important Strategic Point Near Soissons.

Paris Cable—Paris breathes easier once more. The city has heard the good tidings that the enemy is being held, that the bars are definitely up on the Noyon-Montdidier front.

This announcement is made with great assurance by the best qualified spokesmen on military matters. Maurice Barres, who gleaned information from the best sources, declares concerning the German drive on Paris: "It is finished. They will recommence it in six weeks, perhaps in two months. Meanwhile they will look elsewhere."

Regarding the latter affirmation there is also a unanimity of opinion: "The enemy is out of breath and somewhat weakened by blood-letting. His latest rush was, perhaps, the most furious, but also the briefest, lasting only five days, whereas the average of the previous offensives was double that time. Undoubtedly he gained some ground, but the price he paid is suicidal.

For the allies the only facts mattering are the Germans' double failure to rush Compiègne and to lure the French strategic reserves within reach.

The enormity of the German losses is guaranteed by official documents in the hands of the French command. Of what nature the disclosures are can be inferred from the following:

"A Prussian regiment engaged at Reims-sur-Matz counted in the evening of the fight scarcely 70 men." "The ever-increasing importance of tanks and air squadrons is eloquently demonstrated by the recent combats. Thanks to the tanks, the French were able to drive wedges into their opponents' flanks, obtaining the main gains.

Thanks to the concerted action of the French infantry and the air squadrons, the foe's numerical superiority of bayonets is counterbalanced. A striking example of this occurred on June 2 when a squadron of five-score airplanes, carrying 4,000 bombs, crashed troops massing for a big attack.

IMPORTANT GAIN.

Paris Cable—German troops attempted during the night to cross the Matz River near the Oise but were halted by the fire of the French, says today's War Office statement. In local actions northeast of the woods of Genlis, south of Dammar and the region of Vinly (north-west of Chateau Thierry), the French took 70 prisoners and a number of machine guns.

French troops have re-occupied Coevres-et-Valseroy (south-west of Soissons), an important strategic point, from which the Germans have been endeavoring to debouch their troops. The War Office announcement of this adds that ground has also been gained around Montgobert. The text of the statements reads:

Day—"South of the Aisne a local operation enabled us to drive the enemy out of Coevres-et-Valseroy, which we occupied. We likewise enlarged our ground east of Montgobert. One hundred and thirty prisoners and about ten machine guns remained in our hands.

"In local actions north-east of the woods of Genlis, south of Dammar and in the region of Vinly the French took 70 prisoners and captured a number of machine guns. An enemy attempt to cross the Matz River near the Oise was checked by French fire. On the rest of the front the night was calm."

Corns are caused by the pressure of tight boots, but no one need be troubled with them as long when so simple a remedy as Holloway's Corn Cure is available.

JAPAN IS READY TO CROSS URALS

Go Far as Necessary to Check the Germans.

Three Millions, If Needed, for Siberia.

London Cable—The Yordzu, a prominent Japanese newspaper, dealing with the question of intervention in Siberia, says:

"What additional resources can the allies muster? Prompt action by the Japanese army alone can save England, France and humanity. The allies soon will request the intervention of Japan who now stands like an archer with bow bent.

"The answer must be instantaneous; Japan's army exists in vain if it is not used now to win the game which divides the world. Japan must call up half a million men, two millions, three millions if necessary and advance to the Urals or beyond until the main enemy is encountered.

"We will go as far as is necessary to check the Germans effectively. We fear no difficulties and will shrink from no sacrifices, realizing that we allies must win or succumb to Tautonic domination."

TWO MORE VICTIMS

Sunk by U-Boat Off the American Coast.

Washington Report—The Norwegian barque Samoa, 1,661 tons net, from San Jose Agros, was sunk by a U-boat off the Virginia coast at 3 a. m. Friday, June 14, the Navy Department announced today. Fifteen members of the Samoa's crew were rescued by a schooner which later transferred them to another vessel, which is bringing them to an Atlantic port.

The sinking of the Samoa brings the total shipping losses to 19 vessels as a result of the German submarine raid on the American coast.

The Norwegian sailing ship Sabina has been sunk by a German submarine twenty miles off the Virginia coast. The Navy Department announced tonight that the crew had been picked up by an American vessel and had been brought to an Atlantic port.

BRITISH TRADE INCREASES.

London Cable—The Board of Trade figures for the month of May show an increase in imports of $5,250,000 over the same of last year. The principal increases were: Food, $2,500,000; cotton, $4,000,000 and oils, $3,900,000.

Exports increased $1,820,000. There was an actual increase in cotton textiles of $1,200,000 but decreases in other commodities account for the reduced total increase.

One of the commonest complaints of infants is worms, and the most effective application for them is Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator.

MORE VILLAINY BY THE ENEMY

London Cable—The British Admiralty announces that the area within five miles of where the Dutch hospital ship Koningen Regentes was sunk has been searched and no more mines have been found. But between June 2 and 7, nine newly-moored German mines were swept up in the track used only by Dutch ships engaged in repatriating British and German prisoners.

"It seems clear," says the statement of the Admiralty, "that the mines were laid to catch repatriating vessels on their passage west, and that the submarine which laid them remained in the route to sink the ships on the eastern journey. If not already sunk with British repatriated prisoners, it is remarkable that there were no German prisoners on the Koningen Regentes on this trip."

The use of Miller's Worm Powders insures healthy children so far as the ailments attributable to worms are concerned. A high mortality among children is traceable to worms. These sap the strength of infants so that they are unable to maintain the battle for life and succumb to weakness. This preparation gives promise of health and keeps it.

CRISIS IN AUSTRIA.

Grave Events Said to Be Imminent.

London Cable says—Reports of a serious crisis in Austria are current today. They come from various outside sources, but there is no direct confirmatory news.

A news message today from the semi-official Fabra Agency of Madrid says private information from reliable sources state that grave events are about to occur in Austria, where the population is demanding peace at any price.

Amsterdam messages say a rumor was circulated on the bourse yesterday that rioting had begun in Vienna.

WIN IN E. AFRICA.

British Force Enters Malema Unopposed.

London Cable—The War Office today issued the following statement concerning operations in East Africa:

"Between June 3 and 10 the enemy force withdrew southward from the Lado River into the difficult hill country about Malema. Our pursuing columns, after a number of minor encounters with enemy detachments, entered Malema unopposed June 12, the enemy having retreated further southward the Lignya River."

10,000 REDS SLAIN.

Bolshevik Red Guards Wiped Out by Huns.

Amsterdam Cable—Gen. Knoerzer, in a telegram to Gen. Eichenhorn, the German commander in the Ukraine, says a message from Kiev reports that forces of about 10,000 Bolshevik Red Guards, commanded by Czech officers, have been almost wiped out by German troops to the west of Taganrog, a Russian port on the north shore of the Sea of Azov, and were marching toward Taganrog.

More than 3,000 dead Bolshevik soldiers were counted in one vicinity and this did not include the bodies of those drowned.

Gen. Knoerzer says the losses of the Germans were slight.

CANADIANS WILL RESPOND

GLADLY AND CHEERFULLY TO ANYTHING THAT FOOD BOARD SEES FIT TO ASK OF THEM, SAYS LADY WHITE

LADY WHITE. Wife of the Minister of Finance.

"In order that the soldiers who are fighting for us may be well supplied with the most nourishing food and that the people of Great Britain and the Allies may be saved from hunger, we in Canada are asked to increase our production of food-stuffs and to assist to the utmost of our ability in conserving what has been produced.

"As is being reiterated every day, the object of increased production and of the saving of food is one and the same—namely, that more may be available to be sent abroad. It stands to reason that the less food consumed in Canada the more there will be to be shipped overseas.

"If all the people of Canada would resolutely determine to consume during the war only as much food as is necessary for the proper maintenance of their health, a great national economy would be effected. Generally speaking, all of us eat much more than is really good for us.

"Apart from the question of saving in quantity, it is imperative that we economize in the foods which are high in nutritive value for their bulk. This is why we are asked to use as little white flour, beef, bacon and butter as possible, and to refrain from using much lamb and veal in place of these. We have plenty of substitutes which we can use without injury to our health—corn and brown bread, roiled oats, fish, potatoes, beans and other vegetables—to mention only a few.

"While everyone cannot produce food, perhaps, yet all can save by exercising a little patriotic self-denial. What the Chairman of the Food Board is asking us to do is but a small thing in the way of sacrifice, and I am sure that we should gladly observe all the regulations which he finds it necessary to make from time to time.

"I believe that food conservation will prove a mighty factor in the conduct of the war, and in this, as in other things, the Canadian people may be depended upon to nobly and bravely do their part."

LADY WHITE.

WINE PITS KEEP RHEIMS SECURE

Troops, Safe in Immense Champagne Cellars,

Emerge From Defences Only at a Crisis.

Rotterdam Cable says—Gen. von Ardenne, in an article in the Berliner Tageblatt, attempts to explain to the people of Germany why Rheims still remains in the possession of the French. It is due entirely, he says to the strength of the defence, and not, as hitherto suggested, in accordance with some obscure German tactical motive.

"Rheims," he writes, "is held by a very strong garrison of at least two divisions of French colored colonial troops. These troops find complete protection from German artillery fire in deep cellars miles in extent, constructed by great champagne firms. Against gas clouds which float over the town these cellars offer complete protection. Therefore the garrison really is behind an impregnable armored shelter so far as a German storm attack is concerned.

"Moreover, such an attack is scarcely to be thought of in view of the gas clouds which are continually over the city, while even if it were attempted, the French colonial regiments would be able to emerge from their defences with unthinned ranks. The fight, therefore, would be an extremely bloody one."

Von Ardenne adds that the fall of Rheims would not be decisive, though it would affect the whole French Champagne front, even perhaps as far as Verdun.

FEWER SUICIDES.

War Causes Marked Decrease in Britain.

London, June 17.—The British Medical Journal finds that the war has caused a marked decline in the proportion of suicides to the population. Among males rate per million living was 157 in the ten years ending 1910, 151 in 1914, and 105 in 1915. In 1916 it was a little higher, 111.

The rate of suicide among women showed a fall from 47 in the years 1901-10 to 45 in 1914 and 1915, and 38 in 1916. The greatest reduction among men was at the age of 45 to 65, whereas for women of later middle-age the rate had not fallen at once.

The reason for this, according to the Journal, is the increased employment opened up by the war. Fresh interests and diversions have given the mind a new outlook on life.

DRIVE ON HALF ITALIAN FRONT

Rome Cable says—The Austrian offensive includes more than half the entire Italian front. The battle lines cross the Lagarina Valley, which extends north and south about five miles inside the Austrian frontier, and is about 25 miles deep north of the City of Trento. From there the line runs out to the vicinity of Thene; then north-east to the Flava River, near Segusino; then flows to the Flava south-eastward to the sea. The Asiago plateau lies between the Lagarina Valley and the Brenta River, directly north of the city of Vicenza. The lines along the middle Flava protect the important city of Treviso, which is only 15 miles north of Venice.

TURKS TAKE TABRIZ.

Second City in Persia Captured in Advance.

London, June 15.—Turkish troops have occupied Tabriz, next to Teheran, the largest city in Persia, according to a Turkish official statement dated June 14.

The text reads: "We have occupied both shores of Lake Urmia and the town of Tabriz (northwest Persia) in order to protect the wing of our army on the Caucasian front."

Tabriz is the capital of the province of Azerbaijan, and is situated on the Asiatic Black Sea. It is one of the best cities in Persia. Tabriz was for a long period theemporium for the trade of Persia to the west, but since the opening of the railway through the Caucasus and greater facilities for transport on the Caspian, much of its trade with Russia had been diverted to Ostar and Tschit.

It was decided that the matter of holding a contest be left over until next meeting.

It was moved by Mrs. Dr. Hopper and seconded by J. C. Langford that this meeting stand adjourned until Thursday evening, June 20th.

"Chesty"

Is it any wonder that our esteemed contemporary, the Hamilton Spectator accuses Waterdown of being "chesty." There are other things of vastly more importance which causes this chest expansion. If our Hamilton friends could but visit this city of a Saturday evening and witness the congestion of traffic, they would wonder what streak of good fortune caused this transformation. So great is the traffic, in fact, that it was found necessary to appoint traffic officers for our principal thoroughfares. Even the flourishing city of Millgrove has requested safe conduct for a picnic party to Wabasso Park through our streets. Our ever alert Chief of Police Potts, will see to it that proper police protection is afforded the picnic party while in transit through our busy thoroughfares.

But the real cause of all this "chestiness" is that Waterdown is at last on the map of the Dominion, with splendid Air-line facilities, and now possessing a paper, thoroughly Democratic in principle, an excellent advertising medium; in fact so much so that our merchants claim their business has increased wonderfully since they began using its columns for advertising purposes.

In Flanders Fields

The following verses were used with telling effect during the recent $100,000,000.00 Red Cross drive in the United States.

In Flanders fields, the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place, and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly,
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

We are the dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe,
To you from falling hands we throw
The Torch—be yours to hold it high,
If ye break faith with us who die,
We shall not sleep though poppies grow
In Flanders fields.

A writ has been issued in the supreme court by Bell & Pringle, on behalf of Mrs. Irene Varey, who claims $15,000 damages against the Hamilton and Dundas Street Railway because of alleged negligence on the part of the railway, causing the death of her husband, Roy Carey, and injuries to herself. This is a sequel to the accident resulting in the death of Mr. Carey, which occurred on April 29th.

Hereafter every passenger locomotive on the C.P.R. is to be named after the engineer who drives it. A circular band of gold, enclosing the shield, the beaver and the maple leaf in colors of white, brown and green, with the company's name and the engineer's name in letters of gold on a blue background is the device ordered to be painted under the windows of every cab.

One cannot help wondering what General Sherman would say about this war if he were in it. As you may have cleverly guessed, we refer to his deathless remark about war as a general thing. If he were facing gas shells and a little Prussian frightfulness just now, we'll lay ten to five that he'd coin an expression that would go down in history as a classic.

The Spirit of '66

The following song, written 52 years ago by James McMonies will be of interest to many old residents of Waterdown. In 1866 during the troublesome time of the Fenian Raid, this old town was doing its 'bit' just as it is at the present time. That true British patriotism, so much in evidence today, existed in 1866, 1837, 1812 and so on back. May it never die.

Canadian Volunteer Song (Air—Red, White and Blue)

Shoulder to shoulder we'll be seen, boys,
In that call which our country has made;
To fight in defence of our Queen, boys,
We'll each leave our calling and trade.

Our country, our sweethearts and wives, boys,
Will confide in us all when afar;
These treasures we'll guard with our lives, boys,
If should sound the dread tocsin of war.

Should the Fenians or Yankees invade, boys,
Or dare to dishonor our soil;
We'll show them of what we are made, boys,
Despising all danger and toil.

We'll march with our flag, as of yore, boys,
And our Comp'ny we know will prove true;
We'll conquer, as ever before, boys,
And stick to the red, white and blue.

Our Captain no danger will shun, boys,
He'll instruct and command us all right;
To handle our bayonet and gun, boys,
And lead in the front of the fight.

Where duty demands we'll be found, boys,
Every one, both the rank and the file;
And true British cheers shall resound, boys,
As they did on the banks of the Nile.

Our cause and our laws we'll uphold, boys,
And our colors we'll nobly defend;
Despite all greenbacks or gold, boys,
Fenian, Traitor or Yankee can send.

Then hurrah, for our brave Volunteers, boys,
With defence of our country in view;
We will join in three hearty cheers, boys,
And, 'Tiger,' for the red, white and blue.

JAS. McMONIES, Jr.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON XII, JUNE 23, 1918.
JESUS TRIUMPHANT OVER DEATH
 —Mark 16: 1-20.

Commentary.—I. The women at the tomb (vs. 1-4). 1. When the sabbath was past—The Jewish Sabbath ended at sunset Saturday evening, and after that it would be lawful to pursue ordinary business. It was probably then that the women made preparations to visit Christ's tomb. Aside from the women here named, Luke mentions Joanna, the wife of Chusa, and adds that there were other women also. Sweet spices—These were myrrh, aloes and other substances that were used to prevent putrefaction. Anoint—As Mary unknowingly anointed his body for his burial, so these disciples seemed half unconsciously to be embalming him for his resurrection. Whedon. 2 very early—In each Gospel reference is made to the fact that the women came early. "As it began to dawn" (Matt. 28: 1). "Very early" (Luke 24: 1), and, "Early, when it was yet dark" (John 20: 1), are the expressions used, and each indicates that the women were devoted to Jesus and were anxious to perform their last sad office to his body. Sepulchre—The tomb was a new one, hewn out of the rock, owned by Joseph of Arimathea, and was near the place of crucifixion. 3 said among themselves—As they were on the way to sepulchre. Who shall roll us away the stone—Whether they knew that a guard had been placed over the tomb and the door has been sealed, or not, they seemed to have no doubt about gaining access to the body of Jesus, if only the stone could be rolled back. "It was very great" (v. 4), hence their anxiety. 4. They saw that the stone was rolled away—Mark records the explanation of how the stone was rolled back. As there had been an earthquake attending the death of Christ, so there was one attending his resurrection. An angel came to roll back the stone and to overawe the guards, who trembled and became as dead men. They realized that it was not the disciples who approached them, but a supernatural being. The devoted women were relieved of anxiety regarding the stone by divine interposition.

II. In the message of the angel (vs. 5-8). 5. Entering into the sepulchre—Mary Magdalene reached the tomb in advance of the others and, seeing the stone rolled away, hastened to tell the disciples, Peter and John, who ran to the sepulchre. Saw a young man sitting—Luke and John speak of two angels, while Matthew and Mark mention one. The fact that they mention but one does not prove that there were not two, and the evangelists do not contradict one another. The angel appeared in the form of a young man. Were frightened—"Were amazed."—R. V. 6. He not affrighted—The presence of the angel had stricken the guards with terror, but he brought a message of comfort and hope to the friends of Jesus. Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth—The angel was divinely instructed for the accomplishment of his mission. He knew the object of the women's visit to the tomb. He had been stationed there to give them instruction and encouragement. Was crucified—It was admitted by the friends of Jesus that he was dead, and his enemies were also certain of the fact. He had been officially declared dead by the Roman Government. Now a heavenly messenger adds his testimony. He is risen—These were words almost beyond the comprehension of the devoted women. They had come to embalm his body, and lo! he is alive! They laid him here, but "he is risen." He was not taken away by friends or enemies, but "he is risen." Death could not claim him longer than until the third day. He was dead, but is alive forevermore. The words, "He is risen," have inspired the Christian heart to prayer, song and testimony since he arose, and will be an inspiration forever. 7. Tell his disciples and Peter—The message must be taken at once to the sorrowing band of disciples, and Peter, who denied his Master, and who bitterly and fully repented, must be comforted with the knowledge that Christ is risen from the dead. Goeth before you into Galilee—Before his crucifixion he had told his disciples that he would go before them into Galilee (Matt. 28: 32; Mark 14: 28). He appeared to them before going there, but his appearance to the greatest number of his followers was in Galilee. 8. Went out quickly—The object of the women's visit to the tomb was gloriously frustrated. The language of this verse indicates that they were deeply moved and amazed, but with all their fear they had "great joy" (Matt. 28: 8). Their emotions made them swift. They were eager to see their risen Lord.

III. Jesus Appears to Mary and Others (vs. 9-14). 9. First day of the week—The reckoning days was according to the Jewish mode, hence it was on Sunday. Although the women were early at the tomb, Jesus had risen and was gone before they arrived. He appeared first to Mary Magdalene—From John's account of the resurrection of Jesus it is seen that Peter and John came to the tomb after the women had been there and went in and found it empty. They went away, but Mary remained at the tomb and wept. After she had talked with the angel, she turned back and saw one who she believed was the gardener. She did not know it was Jesus and asked where the body of her Lord might be. He then sent her with a message to his disciples. Her devotion to him had led her to remain at the tomb after the disciples had gone to their places of abode, and she was honored with the first sight of him after he rose from the dead. out of whom he had cast seven devils—From Luke 8: 2 it is seen that Mary Magdalene had been possessed with demons, the number seven being used to denote complete demonic possession, and Jesus healed her. She became one of his most devoted followers. There is no evidence whatever to substantiate the view that she was unchaste. She was called Mary Magdalene from the fact that she was a resident of Magdala on the west side of the sea of Galilee. 10. went and told them—Mary gladly obeyed Jesus' command to go to tell his disciples that he was alive, as they mourned and wept—They not only mourned for Jesus as dead, but also that his body was missing from the tomb where it had been placed. 11. believed not—Even though Mary told the disciples that Jesus was alive and she had seen him, yet they did not accept her testimony. They failed to believe because they could not understand how he could rise from the dead. How believing the disciples were, appears from the fact that they did not believe the message that Mary Magdalene brought to them; nor did they believe the testimony of the two disciples with whom he had revealed himself. 12-14. Mark records but four of the twelve appearances of our Lord after His resurrection. At the third appearance which he records, Jesus reproved his disciples for their hardness of heart in not believing that he was alive from the dead. They had heard the testimony of those who had seen him, yet they doubted.

IV. The great commission (vs. 15-20). The disciples had previously been set out on a short mission of preaching and healing the sick, but now Jesus gave them their work for life. They were to go forth to occupy their time in declaring the truths of the gospel, in casting out devils in the name of Jesus and in healing the sick. They would have the ability to reach the people of every language and they would be protected from harm from serpents and from poisonous drink. The apostles went forth after their Lord's ascension to prosecute the work which he had set before them, and the Lord wrought with them in a marvellous way. His promises to them were completely fulfilled.

QUESTIONS.—Where was Christ's body placed after being taken from the cross? What proofs are there that he was dead? What precautions were taken to prevent the removal of the body? How long was Christ's body in the tomb? Who came early to the tomb on Sunday morning? What purpose did they come? What did they see at the sepulchre? How did the Jews explain the disappearance of Christ's body from the tomb? What commission did Jesus give His disciples?

PRACTICAL SURVEY.
 Topic.—Christ's resurrection and the Christian's assurance of immortality.

1. Redemption perfected.
 II. Mourning turned into joy.
 1. Redemption perfected. Christ's resurrection verified all his claims. His empty grave became the boundary-line between the old dispensation and the new. He was committed to the sepulchre with unostentatious quietness and privacy. This confirmed the reality of His death. It completed His humiliation. It provided for and secured His exaltation. It demonstrated that Jesus was the Christ, that there is a future life and that it is safe to trust in Christ's merits alone. It proved the divine acceptance of His atonement. Without the resurrection all the gospel would collapse as an arch without the keystone. So interwoven is the fact of Christ's resurrection with the whole plan of redemption and so dependent is the entire gospel, whether for its truth or its power, upon its not being possible that Christ should be "holden of death," that it gives hope to the despairing, constancy to the wavering, warning to the careless, comfort to the sorrowing and courage to the dying. Christ is the resurrection, therefore its source, its author and finisher in a sense which no other can be. The life of Jesus, piteous with sorrow, was crowned with the glory of His exaltation. A life beyond the dread confines of the grave completed the cycle of wonders associated with the earthly life of Jesus. It is the sublimely consistent outcome of all that preceded His death. No other three days in human history have been so momentous as those when Jesus lay entombed. Then the conflict between life and death was fought and forever

A Kidney Remedy

Kidney troubles are frequently caused by badly digested food which overtaxes those organs to eliminate the irritant acids formed. won by Him who laid down His life that He might take it again. The empty tomb proclaimed that life reigns, that Christ is God. It proclaimed the Father's reversal of the world's judgment upon His Son.

11. Mourning turned into joy. During Christ's early career devout women ministered unto Him. They were among the witnesses of His crucifixion and lingered by His lifeless body until it was laid in the tomb. They provided spices to complete the rites which had been so hastily performed by Joseph and Nicodemus. When the Sabbath was past, they were the first at His sepulchre. They admitted of no intermission, interruption, discontinuance or indifference. Very signal and very beautiful was the devotion of these women. They well knew how carefully the grave had been closed, a condition which they might have reasoned was beyond their power to change. The most welcome revelation was received by them at first with fear, astonishment and silence. The glad tidings were for the women alone. They became apostles to the apostles. They were the first to declare the resurrection to those who were to declare it to the ends of the earth. The breaking forth of long-suffering and forgiving love was manifest in the fact that the first tidings were sent to the disciples of Christ. Jesus knew they had sorrowed over their failures and that they loved Him sincerely. There was an appropriateness in the selection of Galilee for the meeting of the risen Lord with His disciples. He had chosen them there and would manifest Himself to them in the land where they had forsaken all to follow Him. T.R.A.

After 10 Years of Asthma Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy proved the only relief for one grateful user, and this is but one cure among many. Little wonder that it has now become the one recognized remedy on the market. It has earned its fame by its never-failing effectiveness. It is earning it today, as it has done for years. It is the greatest asthma specific within the reach of suffering humanity.

MY RISEN LORD, I FEEL THY STRONG PROTECTION.

My risen Lord, I feel Thy strong protection;
 I see Thee stand among the graves to-day;
 I am the way, the life, the resurrection,
 I hear Thee say,
 And all the burdens I have carried
 Gaily and gladly
 Grow light as blossoms on an April day;
 My crosses become a staff; I journey
 Gladly
 This Easter day.

AN EVERLASTING COVENANT.

I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day.

Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who has blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ; according as he hath chosen us in him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blame before him in love, having predestinated us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ to himself.

THE PAUSE.
 There is pause in music, in reading, in speaking. Pauses in the path of youth; shall I go this way or that? Your hap was to meet a certain person; at the parting of the ways you took the right road. Sleep is a pause. You miss a train or a boat; there is another pause. You are alive on earth to-day because of that pause. Pauses in history, in government, in destiny. There was silence in Heaven for the space of half an hour. What for? We don't know all; but there is vanity there, incidents but no accidents; there are arrivals, promotions, elevations; one is found capable of governing one hundred and twenty-seven provinces, others less. All is order, harmony and bliss. When the tide is at the height, there is a pause, then the ebb begins. When the young husband comes home drunk for the first time, there is a pause in a young heart, a heavy stone is finding a place and is not welcome. When a wife becomes a widow, there is a pause indeed!

Without the pause the music is not perfect; without the pause, the reading is not good. We have heard peculiar pulpitoers read out the word, "Selah," but we fear they did not know the meaning. They read on without pause, inflection, cadence, they uttered a condemnation; in the same manner as an invitation; the most solemn word is rendered in the same tone as the most joyful, without modulation or deviation. If preaching is a fine art, then artists are rare indeed; and the rank and file tramp, a large and awkward squad, across the sands of time.

At the creation there was a pause; the earth was without form and void. Look at that woman going to gather chips to cook her last meal for herself and child and then die; but there was a pause! She nourished Elijah, and Elijah's God nourished her.

Come now to a real pause. Here is a great nation marching to its burial; things are going from bad to worse; the rich are greedy, the poor are enslaved, the nation is rotten. God in Heaven (speaking after the manner of men) is weary. A herald goes before the Great Reformer. Christianity begins with the personal career of Jesus, His life, His teaching, His death. What an emphatic pause! Look at the end. Jesus is on the cross, unable to save Himself, only to suffer. He is in the hands of his enemies, who have their entire way with Him; the fellowship is broken up, followers are fled, the whole mission ends in disaster. Jesus gives His last sigh, His last breath and all is over.

What a pause! and yet in this seeming pitiful end there lay concealed forces, which created the church and have moulded the after life of the world. Was ever a death so alive, was ever a passivity so full of energy? Was not Jesus, as Augustine so finely says, "Victor quia victima?"—victor because victim?

Man's extremity is God's opportunity. When Pharaoh doubles the toll of bricks, then comes Moses. The darkest hour of the night is just before the dawn. When I am weak, then am I strong. The pause is part of the music of life.

"Jesus, still lead on,
 Till our rest be won;
 Guide us by Thy hand,
 Till we safely stand
 In our fatherland."

Leopold Ship of the Sea.

Fooled the enemy, is a remunerative and interesting pastime with the Allies, says Popular Science Monthly. They have their camouflage on land; now comes the camouflage of the sea. A ship is painted with spots which fade out into a glittering and shimmering haze in the sunlight. A submarine commander one or two miles distant might look straight at the ship and never see her.

The spots are of light gray and navy blue, which even on a sunless day, blend with the waves of the ocean. The indistinct outline which this gives makes the ship a poor target.

Evidence Crops Up Every Day

THAT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS ALWAYS HELP KIDNEY DISEASE.

Quebec Man Who Suffered From a Rundown System and Kidney Disease Finds Quick Relief.

Miguasha Point, Que., June 17.—(Special).—More evidence crops up in this vicinity every day to prove that for rundown people there is no remedy to equal Dodd's Kidney Pills. Among the many who have come forward with statements is Mr. Paul Landry, a well-known resident, whose testimony can easily be corroborated.

"It is with great pleasure that I write to tell you your Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best medicine that I have ever taken," Mr. Landry states. "When I commenced to take them there was not much hope for me. After taking four boxes I felt like myself again. I advise all persons who suffer from kidney disease to take Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are popular all over this country, because they not only cure the pains and aches of the different diseases springing from disordered kidneys, but also give new life and energy all over the body. They do this naturally. They cure the kidneys. Cured kidneys strain all the impurities out of the blood, and the pure blood carries nutriment instead of poison to all the nerves and muscles. You have never heard of a person Dodd's Kidney Pills harmed. You hear of thousands who have benefited by them.

The Bath Habit.

In the eighteenth century the bath was a season's event, and soap was almost a thing unknown. It was scarcely ever used, or at least infrequently. It was by no means an indispensable toilet necessity. And most of us can recall the time, mused an exchange, when Saturday night was religiously dedicated to the weekly bath. That is why we all appreciate the story of the woman who wrote her friend, "We just moved into a new apartment. It has the greatest bath. I can hardly wait until Saturday night."

An Eastern woman says that fat men make the best husbands. Somebody ought to get even by announcing that fat women make the best wives.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Portrait of Wesley.

The portrait of John Wesley is now in the possession of an art collector in Philadelphia. The picture is one of the finest that came from the brush of the famous George Romney. In this connection it is interesting to note that for the portrait, measuring 30 inches by 24 inches, and its frame, the artist charged but 40 pounds.

STARTING THE CLOCK.

If a clock refuses to run after being wound owing to the need of cleaning, try this. Roll a bit of cloth, tie it well so it cannot unroll and saturate it with coal oil. Place the roll in the bottom of the clock, well out of the way of the pendulum. After the fumes of the oil have had time to do their work—say from ten to twelve hours—wind and start the clock, and if nothing is broken it will run.

Useful Palm.

In the lowlands of the delta of the Orinoco river the natives build huts suspended between trunks of Mauritia flexuosa, a palm. They also eat its fruits, its farinaceous pith, its saccharine juice, and use the fibers of its leaf stems for making ropes, hammocks, etc.

An Oil of Merit.—Dr. Thomas' Eucletic Oil is not a jumble of medicinal substances thrown together and pushed by advertising, but the result of the careful investigation of the curative qualities of certain oils as applied to the human body. It is a rare combination and it won and kept public favor from the first. A trial of it will carry conviction to any who doubt its power to repair and heal.

THE ALIBI

- BY -
Geo. Allan England

Author of "Darkness and Dawn," "Beyond the Great Oblivion," "The Empire in the Air," "The Golden Blight," "The After-Glow," "The Crime-Detector," etc.

With some strange cynicism of mockery Fate had ordered that this cursed object should drop from the cashier's pocket and that it should now have fallen into the hands of the enemy. Probably at the moment when Slayton had drawn the searchlight from his pocket he had also pulled out the wig and let it fall.

Now there it was an absolutely damning bit of evidence against him. Without it some slight chance of escape by clever ruse and dodging might still have existed. With it no hope whatever could possibly be conceived. Slayton's whole salvation depended on the alibi that Mansfield could be forced to give him. But with that wig in evidence the entire defensive case would drop apart like a rotten fabric.

Slayton felt suddenly very sick. He could imagine the impending scene, the investigation, the disgrace, the anguish of his wife, the horrible penalties already surely hanging over him. He seemed as if meshed in the hideous complications of a nightmare; and yet he knew that this thing was only too terribly, to inescapably real.

Even at this minute if he could get out of the bank and away unseen that accused wig of his would damn him. Not only would it start a train of thought in Mansfield's active brain—a train that would be fatal to him—but it would inevitably start investigations that could only have one ending. The wig could not fail to be identified as his property. So long as that damnable wig were not recovered the future could mean absolutely nothing for Slayton except prison stripes, barred windows, utter pain, endless and infamous years of torment.

Another and a different passion all

A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

When the Blood is Out of Order the Nerves Are in a Starved Condition.

The nerve system is the governing system of the whole body, controlling the heart, lungs, digestion, and brain; so it is not surprising that nervous disturbances should cause acute distress. The first stages of nervous debility are noted by irritability and restlessness, in which the victims seem to be oppressed by their nerves. The matter requires immediate attention, for nothing but suitable treatment will prevent a complete breakdown. The victim, however, need not despair, for even severe nervous disorders may be cured by improving the conditions of the blood. It is because Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new rich blood that this medicine has cured extreme nervous disorders after all other treatment had failed. The nerves thrive on the new blood made by these pills; the appetite improves; digestion is better; sleeplessness no longer troubles the former nerve-shattered victim, and life generally takes on a cheerful aspect. Every sufferer from nerve troubles, no matter how slight, should lose no time in giving Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial, thus regaining their old-time health and comfort. Mrs. Victor Booth, Parry Sound, Ont., offers proof of the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in nervous troubles. She says: "Some years ago I was taken ill with typhoid fever. The attack was not a severe one and after a few weeks I was ground again. But I did not recover my former strength, and my nerves began to give me trouble. The trouble went on from one stage to another until finally St. Vitus dance developed. I was under the care of our family physician, but my condition appeared to be growing worse. It was at this stage I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after taking a couple of boxes I could see they were helping me. I continued taking the pills until I had used eight boxes when my health was fully restored, and I have since continued to enjoy that blessing. I have recommended the pills to others, and I always keep them in the house, having proved their great value."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

at once was born in the cashier's chilled heart—the primal instinct, deepest rooted of any in the universe—self-preservation.

Now, all at once, a staggering choice had been flung up at Slayton—the choice of certain punishment or of some possibility in risking far, far more than he might win complete freedom.

And like cloud-wrack before the breath of tempest all the cashier's sympathy against murder vanished. He knew in a flash that Mackenzie must die.

Must die if he, Walter Slayton, were to live!

Once more his hand sought his pocket. It closed there on the corrugated butt of Mansfield's automatic. Eagerly his fingers clutched this harbinger of quick salvation.

He realized that the shot would be easy. The distance was not over twenty-five feet at the outside. He could fire through the big steel bars with perfect ease. He could not miss.

Steadily now with nerves of ice and nerves of iron, steadily silently, rigid with purpose, he withdrew the weapon. He poised it, ready, waiting, eager; and as his fixed forefinger tightened on the trigger he smiled again. This time the smile was of joy.

Never had Slayton felt so great a thrill of happiness. The touch of that gun to his hand was a benediction. Down came the grim snout of the pistol—down, down, along the edge of the safe-door. Steady it held, and truly, perfectly aimed against that massive rest. The barrel, as it found its mark, froze to accurate position there.

Slayton's heart, which had been intruding rather wildly, now once more was beating with normal pulsation. An extraordinary calm, peaceful and highly efficient, had succeeded the cashier's earlier motion. With businesslike precision he drew a careful head on the dark blot of the old man's form, vaguely outlined by the reflection of the search-light's little beam.

His gloved finger tightened, tightened still more.

All at once Mackenzie made up his mind to act. He turned, ready to go. The crash of the report, though loud, seemed less so than Slayton had expected. Quick echoes snapped back at him. Then all grew still again.

Silent, eager, perfectly self-possessed, he waited, giving ear for any sound of danger. He heard none. Old man Mackenzie's form had vanished. No groan arose, no cry, no murmur. All was silent as the grave.

Ice-cold, calm, watchful, the cashier stood there, the pistol still in hand. Was Mackenzie merely shamming? Had the shot really taken effect? Or was some ruse in preparation? Slayton could not tell. But with wily astuteness he waited.

If no hollow man had happened to be in the vicinity he knew that a good chance existed that the single shot might have passed unnoticed. There was more than a good chance. The detonation, could not have carried far, bounded in, as it had been, by those thick walls of masonry.

A minute he remained there—two minutes—three; and each was an eternity.

Nothing.

No sound. Not a breath. Absolute silence still reigned, interrupted only by the nervous click! of the electric chronometer.

Then Slayton advanced. Through the door of the great steel cage he passed, and entered the gridded runway where Mackenzie had stood.

Suddenly he stopped.

"Get him!" he ejaculated.

The electric light, falling from Mackenzie's hand, and rolled to one side and stopped there. Now its single eye or radiance was fixed on a terrible something, motionless and grim. A something that, half-glimpsed, set the hair bristling along Slayton's nape, stopped his breath and racked him again with sudden chills.

A something of his making; a something that silently cried out against him with a terrible, still voice, never again to be put away or forgotten, never again to be shut out from him, any more.

A something that he trembled to approach; that he dared not see; yet which, with resistless force, grappled him toward itself.

A something—

Death!

Right in the light-circle of the lamp the dead face lay, appealing in its supreme helplessness, with glazing eyes uprolled, with gray hair blood-dabbled.

Slayton shoved his pistol back into his pocket. He felt a certain pride through it all that his shot had been so extremely effective. Yet horror overbore all other sensations. He moved mechanically. His staring eyes blinked strangely as he stood there peering in the dark.

Dazed, he drew nearer.

"Mackenzie! Oh, Mackenzie!" he whispered loudly.

He almost expected the inert clay to answer. He had known the old man so long, had talked with him so often and so often had brought him books—No, no! Mackenzie could not be dead!

Stooping, he shook the old Scot by the shoulder, now terribly limp.

Pale and scared, he stood up again. For a moment he remained there peering down at the body. Then he turned and kicked the search-light away. The sight of those dead eyes passed all human endurance.

The light went out. Now all things lay folded in curtains of velvet gloom. This was far worse than anything the rays could show. He produced his own light and cast its rays here and there, seeking the wig.

There it lay, still clutched in the old man's fingers. Slayton snatched it up and crammed it into his pocket.

He was safe now, at any rate—safe from the charge of robbery. Yes, but—the other, the vastly more terrifying charge?

All at once his teeth began to chatter violently. Full realization had just been borne in to him that he had killed a human being—that he was a murderer.

He had meant only to steal, not to take human life. He had not meant to kill. He, Walter Slayton, was not that kind of man. And yet he had killed! And there before him lay "the body of Mackenzie!"

He shrank away from it. Before him seemed to rise a vision of the death-house, the narrow door, the pitiless cement chamber under its glaring reflectors, and in the midst of all, a terrible thing, black, ominous, waiting—the Chair.

Cowering, striking the horrid apparition away from before his eyes, he retreated. Back he recoiled from that corridor of death. Haggard, he peered about him. What now?

With a kind of desperation he realized that something must be done at once to lay the guilt of this, as of the other crime, onto other shoulders than his own. At once or it would be eternally too late. He must get back to Oakwood Heights, change his clothes,

AFTER TWENTY-SEVEN YEARS OF SUFFERING—SWELLING AND PUFFINESS HAS DISAPPEARED—NOT A PAIN OR AN ACHE LEFT.

A most astonishing cure of rheumatism and eczema has been reported here, and Mrs. Ray is enthusiastic in telling her many friends how cure was effected.

Rheumatism and eczema frequently go together, and in this case caused the most keen distress imaginable. All the swelling and puffiness resulting from many years of rheumatism have disappeared, and there is not a pain or an ache left.

Mr. G. H. Ray, R. R. No. 1, Kincardine, Ont., writes: "Mrs. Ray has been using your Kidney-Liver Pills. She was very bad with rheumatism and eczema, and had had that fearful itchy for twenty-seven years. It was simply terrible what she suffered. I persuaded her to try $1.00 worth of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. She is now on the last box, and let me tell you she scarcely knows herself, she is so free from both these diseases. All the swelling and puffiness caused by the rheumatism has gone away, and she has gone down in weight 18½ pounds. She never has an ache nor pain, biliousness nor sick headache all these months. She often says herself: 'How glad I am that I know what to do instead of paying doctors so much to make me worse.'"

There is only one way that the poisons in the blood can be cleaned away and the cause of pains and aches removed, and that is by the healthful action of the kidneys, liver and bowels. Because Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills act directly and specifically on these organs and insure their activity they remove the cause of rheumatism and other dreadfully painful and fatal diseases. conceal the money and be ready—fresh, shaven, alert—to return to New York on his usual train.

Not one iota of variation must be observed in his conduct. He must prepare himself for an ordeal of acting such as would tax the abilities of a consummate artist. And time was growing now so terribly short!

With a violent effort the miserable man pulled his nerves together. He went over to the water-cooler, drank two brimming glasses of ice-water and felt a trifle relieved. Then he stood there, pondering.

Obviously there could be no use in locking up the safe again. Now that the old man was murdered there could be no delay in the discovery of the theft. Nor would there be any advantage in putting back the money. That would only bring about his bankruptcy and help fix suspicion on him. No, as he had begun, so he must go through to the end—to the very end, whatever that might be.

He shuddered, and for a moment leaned against the steel bars of the vault-cage to steady himself.

Once more he thought. His only way, he decided, would be to prove a perfect alibi. He had left no tracks, not even a finger-print; nothing. Let them suspect him all they pleased, they could prove nothing. He must remove every possibility of proof. He must fasten the crime on somebody else. Some other man must take this medicine; not he!

"Somebody else!" said the cashier. "Somebody else must take this. But who?"

Pondering, he once more began to rummage his disguise. As he reached into his pocket for the wig, which he had stuffed in there, his hand fell in contact with metal. It recoiled as from the touch of a viper. The automatic!

Slayton grunted wordlessly. The feel of that cold, murderous thing, which only five minutes before had flicked out a human life, sent shudders of repulsion rippling through his unnerved flesh.

But almost at once a different thought possessed him. Again his hand sought the weapon.

"Well!" said he. "It's his, isn't it? It's Mansfield's?"

Startled by the wide-flung possibilities all at once opened out before him, he stared as if petrified.

"It is his!" he exclaimed. "His! And so—and so—why not?"

A laugh a triumph rose to his pallid lips.

"Yes!" he gulped. "It can be done! It can—it shall!"

CHAPTER VII.

Slayton's mind now definitely made up to foist the guilt of this black murder upon a perfectly innocent man, he proceeded with his usual well-calculated coolness to carry the infernal plan into execution. With intelligence of a high order and with the deliberation he now felt was essential to success, he faced the problem, adjusted himself to the new conditions that had so unexpectedly arisen, and prepared to meet them.

In the cashier's personality there lay nothing of the hysterical. His nerves could not be stamped into any rash or ill-considered action. Everything he did was done with reason, care and purpose. Now that he had become a murderer and a criminal he had suddenly developed into the most dangerous of all kinds—the cold, intellectual, scientific type.

Facing the body of the dead watchman, not yet stiffened in death, but still warm and limp, he thought how best to fasten the accusation of the murder on young Mansfield. He must build up a rather elaborate structure of circumstance, he understood. By no word of his, by no accusing finger must the charge be brought. The unanswerable testimony of the facts and nothing else must make the charge of "Guilt!"

Slayton did not go to work at once. He understood that a moment's calm reflection might now win the whole battle. So, he reflected. He even brought a chair, sat down, rested his elbow on his knee and his chin on his hand, and deeply pondered the case. Not until the outlines of the process should have been worked out in his incisive mind would he so much as move a finger to execute his plan.

One single false step now might not only ruin his scheme, but also rot the charge of murder on his own head. At all hazards he must proceed with caution and intelligence. So he sat there scheming as Dante pictures Satan ruminating darkly in the depths of the lowest Pit.

Finally, light in hand, he got up and approached old Mackenzie's body. The scent of blood was highly distasteful to him—for Slayton was a man of peculiar refinements and easily offended—but he did not draw back. He turned the old man over to

SUFFERED TWO YEARS WITH PIMPLES

Child Could Not Sleep Till Cuticura Healed.

"My little brother suffered for about two years from tiny red pimples. They appeared constantly on his body but he had the greatest trouble under his ears. The skin was red and very sore and at the least touch he would give a howl of pain. After a few seconds he would have to scratch, and he was not able to sleep."

"A friend advised me to send for Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I noticed a change, and I used three cakes of Cuticura Soap and four boxes of Ointment when he was healed." (Signed) Louis Frank, 746 City Hall Ave., Montreal, Que., February 2, 1918.

see where the bullet had struck. At sight of the wound behind the right ear he critically pursed his thin lips. Then he let the limp head fall back again. With the greatest care he avoided staining his gloves with blood.

Light still burning, he proceeded, in a businesslike manner, to carry out his plan. First, he went noiselessly to Mansfield's desk, looked it over and tried the drawers. None was locked. The young chap in his extreme perturbation had neglected to turn the key.

Slayton examined the drawers one by one. He found a pair of gloves, and took them out. In another drawer he came upon a box of paper-clips, with a few pins and trifles mixed in. Among these he saw a button. At sight of it his eyes brightened with satisfaction.

He recognized this button. It matched the boy's usual business suit. Evidently it was one of the little sleeve buttons. A few threads still adhered in the holes. Slayton took this button in his gloved fingers and studied it closely, turning it under the rays of the lamp, which cast ghostly shadows up over his thin, pale face, masklike and sinister.

"The threads, he thought, had been cut off by a knife or scalpel. He figured that the button worked loose, and that Mansfield, careful and prudent, had cut it off and put it into that box against such time as he could have it sewn on by a tailor—perhaps even by Edith Chamberlain who could tell? Slayton's satisfaction was large. The importance of this button, if rightly used, might be tremendous.

With the gloves and the button he knew he had enough in his hands to convict the boy. He must avoid too great profusion of proofs. He might add one or two more bits indeed, but he must be careful not to overplay the game. Just a few pieces of unimpeachable evidence, he felt, would prove far more effective than a dozen, which, by their very abundance, might prove a frame-up.

Slayton listened a moment for any possible sounds of peril. He heard none. Beyond the usual dull night-murmur of the city all was still. And yet he knew the patrolman would be along now in a few minutes. He had no time to waste. It was imperative that he get to work immediately.

He pulled the threads out of the button and tucked even this tiny bit of material into his waistcoat pocket. Broken threads formed part of his scheme, but cut threads did not. His mind grasped even this detail; and so he kept the threads.

With the gloves and the button he returned to the body—having closed the drawers of Mansfield's desk—and crooked the button near the corpse. The tiny bit of bone rolled round a couple of times and finally came to rest near the grillework. So far, so good.

Blueagricultureteens

Carlisle, June 19, 1918.

Dear Sirs:—

Owing to the recent conscription act many of the young men of this district have joined the colors. The farmers are complaining of the extreme shortage of help. About two weeks ago the writer's man received his orders to report for duty and consequently I was left alone. Oh! no, not alone, I had the company of 127 head of stock to feed three times a day and that kept me from being lonesome. Looking forth to a big hoe crop, haying and harvesting, I was somewhat bewildered until I noticed in our local papers how our city fathers and arm chair legislators were launching a huge harvesting propaganda. The society dames, stenographers and typewriters were to come to the country and do all kinds of farm labor. Their advent into rural employment would be much appreciated and welcomed in the highest degree by Old Man Ontario, and his big family of boys. The city feminine aristocrats had really volunteered to come to our aid. I realized at once how cumbersome those skirts, even as short as they are, were going to be and at once I set to work to invent something sufficiently refined to take their place. Well, I got the sheep shears and crawled up in the attic of the machinery hall and discovered an old binder canvas. At last I got an outfit carved out that was far from a hobble skirt, and was very convenient for getting about and very comfortable. In my imagination all the energy that I had expended in the invention was soon to be crowned with success and honor. I could see Mrs. Pink Tea feeding the swine, Miss Afternoon Call teaching that stubborn Holstein calf to drink, Mrs. Corn Club cleaning out the pig pen, Miss Easter Bonnet putting rings in the old sow's nose, Miss Persian Lamb shearing the sheep, Miss Tennis Court cutting the dead briars out of the thimbleberries, and Miss Street Walker shocking up the barley. My reputation as an inventor was surely made and all that bothered me was to get a suitable name for the new farmerette suit. I consulted Webster's New Century and the Standard dictionaries, but they were a decade behind the times and did not contain the proper word, and I decided that it was up to me to manufacture an attractive and suitable name. After considerable thought I decided to name the costumes blueagricultureteens. I next wrote out an order for a clothing establishment to make 500 of these blueagricultureteens and get them on the market for the spring work, and rushed out to the mail box to register my letter containing my invention, only to find that the mail carrier had gone. Disgusted I picked up the Toronto Globe and the first thing that met my eyes was the whole page of Eaton's daily news advertising a suit for the farmerette, just like the one that I thought I had invented. Just my luck, only a few days late again, I said, and tore the letter to pieces. The only satisfaction I had was to know that the old prophecy was true which said that the minds of great men run in the same channel.

On Saturday last when I got to Waterdown on my way home from Hamilton market I noticed a huge aeroplane maneuvering over the town. The natives were running from their houses in great excitement. Joseph Tuck thought it was a German machine and rushed out with a tub to get a load of saurkraut if it landed, and Isaac Baker was sure it was German for he could smell Ilmberger cheese. Once the winged creature came so low that a stout lady on Mill street thought the huge bird was after her coop of chickens. Dad Alton was sure the machine was going to drop a bomb on his hen house. Oh, the town was full of excitement; a dog fight started and a lady from Clunes ran out to see who was playing the bagpipes.

At last the airship landed safely on the show grounds, and who do you think it was? Well, it was Douglas McGregor, that old Waterdown boy who brought down many German planes in France. In 15 minutes about 300 people were on the grounds greeting and congratulating their old friend Douglas. After renewing old acquaintanceships for half an hour he left for Toronto, expecting to make the 40 miles in 20 minutes.

"Eh! My yard?"

"Yes, I like to be neighborly and considerate of other people's feelings, you know."

"But—er—"

"Yes, you shan't have any more cause to complain about my chickens scratching up your yard."

"But you are moving your whole coop over on to my property?"

"That's the idea. Quick as the chickens find their coop in your yard they'll fancy that you own them and will spend the rest of their natural lives scratching in my yard, you know."—Tit-Bits.

The Wrong Place.

A local preacher tells of this amusing experience in the south, where he formerly had a parish. Upon one occasion when he had become unusually fervent his eloquent periods were frequently interrupted by joyous exclamations from an old colored mummy in the gallery, who shouted: "Hallelujah! Praise de Lawd, oh, praise de Lawd!"

The interruptions became so annoying that the sexton finally approached the old man and asked what was the trouble.

"Oh, Ah! so happy Ah could fly! Ah's spirit 'gion suh!" was the joyful shout.

"Hush!" said the grave sexton. "This is no place for that. Don't you know you're in a church?"
