Old friends are best! Old friends, old hearts, old faces. That hang the memory of the past in our hearts. And seem to dwell among dead places, Repeating us for all our summer fears.

Success.

A great many boys and men are often heard to say: "I would certainly do this and that and the other thing—if I only had the money."

Do not imagine that if you have money you are going to do anything great for mankind, if you did not do it before. But so, if you cherish a dream of becoming rich, or founding a hospital for the poor, or founding an orphan asylum, or feeding the hungry, the probability is that none of these beautiful thoughts will ever be carried into execution. It is poverty that brings out the goodness in most people. All the great doers of the human race recognize this.

The Christ-Child lived a poor life: He had nowhere to lay His head, and too, Christ laid down poverty as a condition for following Him closely.

All of the saints, especially those founders of religious orders, who have done so much to alleviate the sufferings of mankind, recognized that all good things are born in poverty. And, too, from a purely human point of view, money does not bring success. For success means getting the best out of life, in the right place.

The great masters of the ages, had they not never to lay His head, and too, Christ laid down poverty as a condition for following Him closely.

All of the saints, especially those founders of religious orders, who have done so much to alleviate the sufferings of mankind, recognized that all good things are born in poverty. And, too, from a purely human point of view, money does not bring success. For success means getting the best out of life, in the right place.

How Is Your Appetite?

Loss of appetite during the summer months is a common trouble, and indicates that the digestive system is out of order. Lacking a healthy appetite many people—especially young people—go too long without food, or eat too little because food seems to disagree with them, and it is no wonder that they are constantly tired and unable to stand the hot weather. This situation should be corrected.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People should come from the various parts of the body, and other words the blood is growing thin and watery.

You need a summer tonic, and in all the realm of medicine there is no tonic can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Take a short treatment with these pills now and notice how promptly your appetite returns and your power to digest food improves. Your food will then do you good, your strength will return and you will no longer complain that the hot weather tires you out.

The best time to begin taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the moment you feel the least bit out of sorts. The sooner you do so the sooner you will regain your old-time energy. You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Long Arm of Mercy.

By Dr. Frank Crane

The Red Cross is the long arm of Mercy.

It is the kindness of Masked—or, unmasked.

In the Man in an Angel and a Devil, a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. The Red Cross is the Good, aroused, energized to thwart the Bad.

There are other Charities, more or less helpful. The Red Cross is the only one that is not a charity.

Black or White, Friend or Foe, to the Red Cross there is no difference; it only asks: WHO IS SUFFERING? And to him it goes.

The Red Cross is so efficient that Governments recognize it; so Pure in its purpose that whoever wishes well his fellow men, desires to help it; so Clean in its administration that the most suspicious can find no fault in it.

The Red Cross not only seeks to alleviate the cruelties of War, it is the expression of those human sentiments that some day will put an end to War.

It is the impulse of Love, striving to overcome the impulse of Hate.

It is the one Society in which every Man, Woman and Child should be enrolled; for it knows no sects, no prejudices, no protesting opinions; the human being does not live that does not feel that the starving should be fed, the sick tended and the wounded healed.

Majestic and divine is this Long Arm of Mercy; it finds the fallen on the battlefield, it brings the nurse and the physician to the victim in the hospital; it leads the weeping orphan to a home; it feeds the starving, cares for the pestilence whom all others abandon, and pours the oil of Help and Pity into the bitter wounds of the World.

When a Volcano has wrought devastation in Japan, or a Flood in China, or a Hurricane in Cuba, or a Famine in India, or a Plague in Italy, or ravaging Armes in Poland, Serbia or Belgium, there flies the Red Cross the Angel of God whom the fury of man cannot banish from the earth, and to the souls of the South, wherever the ways of the Seven Seas, wherever is Human Misery, there is extended to bless and to heal, its Long Arm of Mercy.

The Canadian Spirit.

(Well Street Journal)

Parties of Canadian wounded passing through the city, more or less maimed, invalided home, always command great respect and sympathy from the crowds which gather to flatter to tales of the trenches and to congratulate the boys on their return. The Canadians are uniformly happy and uncomplaining. This optimism especially is noticeable in the case of two Canadian officers now living up town in New York. They seem to be of the Damon and Pythias brand, always together and using crutches, as each is minus a leg, but they are evidently in care-free as children. And the body and mind regains vigor and energy, and you feel again the joy of living which comes only to people in good health.

A Builder of Health.

Nothing can be of greater assistance in building up the system than Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, for this food forms new, rich blood, and nourishes and restores the feeble, wasted nerves. Gradually and naturally the body and mind regains vigor and energy, and you feel again the joy of living which comes only to people in good health.

War Song.

The war so ere changing all the time, one popular favorite giving place to another in fairly rapid succession. "Tipperary" while not forgotten, is not now sung very frequently, yet it formed a splendid marching air in the early days when the vast volunteer armies of Britain were gathering at Ritzhen's call. The song held its own for a long time. Then came the very sentiment, "Keep the Home Fires Burning." With its melancholy yet hopeful refrain, this represented the yearning for home which naturally took possession of the men after a year or more in the trenches with the end not yet in sight.

The song now being sung more than any other is "The Long, Long Trail," a piece which represents the settled determination to fight it out, no matter how long. It may take, before the home question is further considered. The Americans are playing "Dixie" and singing "The Star Spangled Banner."

The Man of Ability.

Charles P. Steinmetz, the $100,000 a year consulting engineer of the General Electric Company, tells us the men don't do big things until they grow discontented. He quotes an old Turkish proverb—that the world belongs to the dissatisfied. No truer word was ever spoken.

There is another fact that ought to be brought out in this connection: the big difference between human beings does not lie in ability and intelligence. People come nearer being equal in brains than we imagine. The really big variations lie in force and ambition. One may achieve a thousand times as much as another—not because he is a thousand times as smart, but because he is a thousand times more determined.

On no other theory can you explain the sudden rise of the "ordinary man." Yet we see it all the time. Look around your neighborhood and you will find plenty of cases. The "ordinary man" who begins to rise at unprecedented speed does so because he suddenly gets a vision, develops a desire, sees a goal. Having done this, he begins to travel at a pace which he has never shown before.

Strange forces give men purpose and jar them into action. Love, pride, sorrow, fear—all sorts of hidden feelings are responsible for the shaking of men out of ruts and into fields of unmeasured achievement. More than one big success finds its real origin in the personal disappointment of some man—perhaps over a college education he couldn't get, or a toy he couldn't afford, or a trip he was not able to make. Of course some men are downed by such emotions, but others are made by them.

Most men have perfectly good boilers in them, and the equipment. But so many never get up steam to go anywhere. They just stand still, waiting for a call from within to "get a move on." The call is likely to come any time. If your call is late in coming, why not ring up your inner self and ask him if he can't think of some place he would like to go? Its shame to have all that expensive machinery and not use it.—American Magazine.

Every Gardener His Own Seed Grower.

WHILE THERE IS DANGER OF A SHORTAGE OF VEGETABLE SEED, while rigid selection from year to year is necessary for most kinds of vegetables when grown for seed; and while to keep them pure the different varieties have to be grown some distance apart, yet most of the seed grown in the home garden is likely to give almost or quite as satisfactory results or even better than that which is bought, and, as some seed may be difficult to obtain next year, it is recommended for each person who has a garden to let a few plants or specimens ripen, from which seed can be saved.

It is better to mark the best plants and save the seed which remains after the plants have been cropped. The following minimum number of feet, plants or specimens to be saved is suggested as being sufficient to supply enough seed for the home garden in 1919: Beans, 5 ft.; Corn, 1 ear; Cucumbers, 1; Lettuce, 3 plants; Melons, 1; Peas, 5 ft.; Radishes, 3 plants; Spinach, 3 plants; Squash, 1; Tomatoes, 3.

If there remain a few feet of the row of beans, or, better still, mark a few productive plants free from disease. The seed stalks of lettuce are full grown, the seed ripens rather unevenly, and in order not to lose any of it, each head should be picked over as it shows white, it being necessary to go over the plants every few days. The plants can, however, be pulled and hung up to dry.

If some radishes are left unpeeled, after being ready for use, they will

Fell 2,000 Feet.

Lieut. Pat O'Brien, Royal British Flying Corps, who is in the United States after having escaped from a German war-prison, fell nearly 2,000 feet in an airplane at San Antonio, Texas, on June 14th, but was only slightly injured.

O'Brien was alone in the airplane when he fell. He was conscious and had reached his own ship's chief concern was over his new trousers, which he feared had been ruined.

O'Brien was shot down from a height of 3,000 feet in German territory while fighting, was captured and imprisoned, but escaped by jumping from a train going 35 or 35 miles an hour, and after many adventures reached Holland. He was invited to visit King George at Buckingham Palace, and had a long and interesting interview.

Put Yourself There.

If you were wounded, dying of thirst, fever-racked, if you were lying helpless in rags and mud and cold, and knew that unless some one came to you you would die in a few hours, you can imagine your desperate agony. Some boy, your boy perhaps, or one just like him, will suffer that way, and no one will come to him unless you give to the Red Cross.

No Chance For the Germ.

Disease germs cannot live in rich, red blood. It is people in low vitality that fall victims to germ diseases. By using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you enrich the blood, increase vitality and prevent disease germs from finding lodgment in your body. There is no disease in prevention. It is easier to keep well than to get well.

Eczema Cured Five Years Ago

A Treatment Which Has Proven a Wonderful Healer of the Skin—Certified Evidence of Lasting Cure.

The old notion that eczema is a disease of the blood is refuted time and time again by the cures that are daily being effected by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

It matters not what the cause may have been, if you apply Dr. Chase's Ointment regularly you will obtain relief and cure of eczema. Here is the proof:

Mrs. Stephen G. Thwaites, Box 265, Jordan, Ont., writes: "My brother had a bad case of eczema on his legs and winter with it, and could not work for days at a time. He tried different salves and ointments, but none did any good. One day he tried Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it gave almost instant relief. He continued its use, but had not quite finished the second box when he was cured. It is now about five years since then, and it has never returned. We certainly can recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment, and are very grateful for my brother's cure."

(Rev. R. F. Coffman, Winstead, Ont., states: "This is to certify that I know Mrs. Thwaites and the party to whom she refers, and her statements are correct.")

Mrs. J. E. Jones, 358 University Avenue, Kingston, Ont., writes: "I had eczema in my hand for about five years. I tried a great many remedies, but found that while some of them checked it, none cured it permanently. Finally I tried Dr. Chase's Ointment, and in six weeks my hand was completely better. I would not do without a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment in the house if it cost $25 a box. I am giving my name to this issue as that it will go to those who suffer as I have done."

Miss M. L. Lament Cures Dizziness

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., JULY 19, 1918

No Place for Loafers.

Laifers and merely nominal workers of the North American Continent have fallen upon evil days. Both in Canada and the United States, the law has now set its face severely against them. On July 1st the United States Federal Order, as drawn up by Provost Marshall, Knuch Crowder, went into effect. All men of draft age, that is between the ages of eighteen and fifty have now to be engaged in some productive employment or get into the army. This Federal Order is being re-enforced by anti-loafing laws, enacted by the State Legislatures.

The Provost Marshall has defined productive and non-productive occupations and there is no escape for those who cannot be classed among the productive workers if they are of draft age.

First, persons engaged in the serving of food and drink or either in public places, including hotels and social clubs.

Second, passenger elevator operators, attendants, footmen, carriage drivers and other attendants in clubs, hotels, stores, opera houses, office buildings and bath-houses.

Third, persons including waiters and their attendants engaged and occupied in connection with games, sports and amusements, except actual performers in legitimate concerts and operas and theatrical performers.

Fourth, persons employed in domestic service.

Fifth, sales clerks and other clerks employed in stores and other mercantile establishments.

If a man of draft age registered in due course and, without his selection for the draft he is not employed in productive occupation, or if he is held partially or completely, he must hold himself on immediate call for the army. The regulation is applicable to idle registrants or gamblers of all descriptions and employees of race tracks and bucket shops, to fortune tellers, clairvoyants, palmists and people of such vocations. If the Board of Appeal so judge, idlers may have their deferred classification withdrawn and their names will be reported to the Adjutant General of the State for military service. The only excuses for idleness and non-productive employment on the part of a man of military age are set down as sickness, reasonable vacation, lack of reasonable opportunity for employment, temporary absence from regular employment, not to exceed one week, unless such are habitual and frequent or domestic circumstances involving hardship to dependents if a change of employment were ordered, or where such change would necessitate late night work on the part of women under unsuitable conditions.

In the State of New York, the sheriffs, state police, district attorneys, magistrates, other officers of the law, and the State Industrial Commission, under the State Anti-loafing legislation, are combined to enforce the Federal Order and assign men where necessary to jobs of a productive character. It is estimated that 1,000,000 will change their employment as the result of this order of General Knuch Crowder. It is pointed out, however, that no man should give up his present employment, even though of the non-productive class, until he has either procured work in an essential industry or such work has been procured for him, as it is recognized that a man employed at non-essential work is better than a man not employed at all.

Canada's anti-loafing Law has been in operation since early in April and every male person over sixteen and under sixty years of age, unless a bona fide student, or physically unfit, or reasonably unable to find employment, must be engaged in some useful occupation.

In Canada the most essential industry at the present time is agriculture. Food production is a necessity of the present moment. More than 65,000 able-bodied men, in addition to the men already employed on the land, such as the soldiers of the Red Cross and the boys and women of other organizations, will be needed to save the crops this season. There is no room for loafers; no time for idlers and there should be no money for tramps and mere pool-room sports.

It is Time to Spray Potatoes.

By G. E. Sanders Dominion Entomological Laboratory, Annapolis Royal, N. S.

The U. S. Government report is out which shows that the state of Maine has only 112,000 acres in potatoes this year, a falling off of 38,000 acres from 1917. The decrease in the New Brunswick potato acreage is about the same. There is not a state in all New England that has more potatoes planted than last year.

If there is a full bumper crop of potatoes this year there will probably be enough to go round. If we have as much blight as last year it is hard to say how the price will be, but it seems probable that with average blight conditions, the crop will be short and the price high.

The test on the Annapolis Royal School plot last year showed that the unsprayed plot gave 75 bushels per acre while the sprayed plot gave 100 bushels per acre. The direction of Father LeChantoux gave 300 bushels per acre while the unsprayed portion of the field yielded at the rate of 150 bushels per acre. Tests at various stations over a period of years show an average increase of from 90 to 100 bushels per acre due to spraying.

Bordeaux made according to the 4-4-40 formula to which any of the common poisons may be added with safety is the standard potato spray. Bordeaux may be applied in any way that will wet every portion of the plant. The best method of application is of course the traction sprayer or a power sprayer and a spray gun. A hand or barrel sprayer or even a knapsack sprayer will do good work if one takes enough time or if one has no other means of applying the spray a common garden watering can or a bucket and a whisk broom may be used. The idea is to wet every portion of the plant by one means or another. Apply the first spray if possible before July 20 and repeat every two weeks until frost.

In one field last season the sprayed plants remained green for 40 days longer than the unsprayed. The increased yield in that case was slightly over 200 bushels per acre. Every day a field is kept green it stores or grows about a bushel of potatoes per acre. Three days growth will pay for all the material and labour for spraying five times.

No one can afford not to spray their potatoes this year.

They are a mild laxative, thorough in action and never fail to relieve the minor ailments of little ones. From the Front.

The following letter was received by a Wolfville lady recently from one of Wolfville's brave boys at the front and THE ACADIAN, on request, gladly gives it publication:

France, June 16th, 1918.

DEAR MAM—As long ago as February I received a lovely parcel from yourself, Mrs. B. and children. I have planned and even set down to write my thanks for your kind remembrance of me. Circumstances never seemed to allow me to get the letter off as I suppose that long before this you have decided that I was ungrateful or did not receive it. I am indeed sorry that this letter has been so long delayed and had I thought that such would have been the case I would have sent a field card.

My time is pretty well taken up at the present, as is everybody's out here. We are all putting an extra effort in our work, in hopes of finishing up the "dirty" war. I am on duty at present as a signaller. Am operating a switch board at night or rather this morning, as it is 4 a. m. The board is much after the style of a civil telephone exchange except that it is not a bell system. The calling is all done by "Morse Code" and a great number of the messages are sent and received in Morse, so an operator has to be able to read at least twelve words a minute in Morse.

I enjoy the work of a signaller very much although a greater risk is run by them than a gunnery officer of the other jobs. A signaller sees more of the country than any other man in the ranks. He is always travelling around from place to place with an officer watching the line, or by himself repeating lines. Of course there are duties at the battery such as the one I am on now, but they do not come often as all signs take their time on duty work. I will not have this job again for at least ten days. Tomorrow afternoon I start on a watch. It is long, but as we call it O. P., which means Observation Post.

I had the unpleasant experience of being in a poisonous gas bombardment for several hours last summer—sure to be out. It is rather unpleasant to have your mask on and think that it should get torn or something suddenly go wrong with it. That you would go "west" as some say, others here in "No Man's Land" what you like

NOW IS THE TIME TO PRESERVE STRAWBERRIES.

Give us one thing—don't let you do not get it on quick enough its certainly pretty serious.

We are having elegant weather but it's just a shade too warm for comfort.

However, it's much nicer than falls, for that means mud and you can imagine getting around through mud that is an average depth of two feet. It is unbelievable, I know, nevertheless it is all too true.

I have been in France for fifteen months steady now and I am getting to be quite an 'old timer' as the troops say. I have no leave yet. Plan and a trip to Rome. In order to get a pass there those who are not fortunate enough to hold commissions must have twelve months service in France. I waited the twelve and my leave was granted. The day I was to leave all passes were cancelled owing to extra work coming on which you know about.

Well, I think I had better cease my ramblings and close. Thanking you very much indeed for your kind consideration and I assure you that I regret deeply my neglect of acknowledging this before. Kindly convey my sincere thanks to Mr. B. and the children; believe me to be

Yours sincerely,

The congregation at the Baptist church last Sunday enjoyed two very scholarly and thoughtful sermons from Rev. Dr. Kretzschmar, of Toronto, who is spending a vacation in town. It was a real treat to again listen to the address of a former Wolfville resident, who is recognized as one of the ablest of Canada's orators and teachers. Dr. Kretzschmar will again fill the pulpit on Sunday next.

A very pleasant social gathering took place at the pretty home of Mrs. E. L. Gould on Friday afternoon of last week, in honor of two former members of the congregation of St. Andrew's church, Mrs. Gilmore and Mrs. Morrison. About twenty-five ladies were present and spent a delightful afternoon, renewing old associations. Mrs. Gould is an ideal hostess and understands well how to make the guests enjoy themselves.

The headmaster has asked us to suggest what should not be necessary to suggest—that those who engage the services of the Mount Road to play at restaurants where refreshments are served should remember that these boys are like other boys—able to do full justice to affairs of this kind. At a recent gathering where the band presented a long and interesting program, no courtesies were extended to them—probably an oversight but not justifiable.

At a meeting of the committee having the Red Cross collecting in charge, it was moved and seconded that a letter of appreciation be sent through THE ACADIAN to the Girl Service Girls, Boy Scouts and Band under Mr. ManAvey, for their work in making the Tag Day on Saturday last the success it was. Great praise is due Mr. W. C. B. Harris who conceived the idea and carried the plans to completion. The sum of $200.00 was raised.

A Long, Long Trail.

Registration day in Peace River was all that could be expected by the authorities from the standpoint of obedience to the Act. In a community very sparsely settled and the outer world is both difficult and rare, the number of registrants who traveled upwards of one hundred miles was truly surprising. Perhaps the record in this respect was made by Arthur Shaw, of Carleton Place, who made a round trip of four hundred miles to comply with the requirements. Mr. Shaw's home is two hundred miles from the post office, but as he is in communication, we made much easier through the medium of the steamer.

The above refers to a son of Mr. H. B. Shaw, of this town, who has been in the west five years.

Mothers and Children.

No one can tell us exactly the things it is best to do with children. But if we begin to watch and think read when we can and exchange experiences with other mothers, many suggestions will be found to meet our needs. Take a glance backward into your own childhood and many ideas will occur to you in that way. And through it all we will find that the children are helping to bring us up, too. Courage and joy prolong life, and we can well afford to stand and wait, feeling sure that if our motives have been right and we can find something to love even in the hard things of life, our little ones will see and know, and will rise up and call us blessed.

Of remarkable coincidences revealed by the war, this one, we think, will be hard to beat. A girl whose fiance was fighting in France was asked by him to send out a photograph of her soldier brother. She forthwith sent one taken in a Yorkshire town a year ago. It was a snapshot of the brother, and a V. A. D. nurse who had been specially kind to him while undergoing convalescent treatment there. This was forwarded to a base hospital, where the girl's fiance was recovering from a wound received in the recent offensive. On its receipt the wounded soldier was asked to see that the nurse in the photo was the one actually tending him at that moment.

How little do our people here feel the horrors and burdens of the war! Removed by thousands of miles from the scene of the fighting, we only know by hearsay of what those in the front lines have suffered.

As an expression of heartfelt gratitude for any exemption from the heaviest burdens of this terrible time, and in evidence of our appreciation of the noble work the Red Cross is doing for the boys on the firing line, it behooves us to give generously for the sake of our own self respect, thanking God that we can do our bit.

In Korea women occupy a place in society which has no parallel elsewhere in the Orient. They are both better and worse off than in China or India, or Japan—better off because there are more fields ripe to them, worse because they are overworked, often ill-treated, and until recently were actually enslaved.

Going Home.

"So you think you love her?" smiled the cynical friend.
"I know I love her!" swore the infatuated youth.
"Are you sure you love her as much as you think you do?"
"Yes, I'm sure of more than that. I love her as much as she thinks I do!"
"And, of course, as one thing leads to another, that height of affection story reminds us of the conversation between two fellows who were talking about a third fellow who was by the way of being a spendthrift. One fellow said:
"Bill lives beyond his income, doesn't he?"
"Lives beyond his income? Why, Bill lives beyond the income he wishes he had!"—Ez.

A Colored Miracle.

It was with the American army on the Lorraine front. He was a black boy from Alabama—lonesome. He had been working in a quarry most all day and so one had said a word to him. He had prepared to look across the way and there was another black boy in khaki. The other black boy was a French colonial, but the American black boy looked only at the face and the color of the uniform.
"Low niggah, how's trick?" was the opening social party.
"No answer."
"Ah say niggah, does you know Ah's talkin' to you?"
This astonished. For the other black boy was a rattle of French. It would get a machine gun to shame. The black boy from Alabama gasped. He couldn't believe his eyes or ears.
"Foh de Gawd's sake, niggah, have you been mixed up with the Frenchers so much you done lost you 'own language?" and he went back to work.

Only Two Left.

Rooney and Mooney, two Canadian soldiers, went up to London together and as they strolled down one of the streets Rooney noticed a shop which a solicitor had taken temporarily while his offices were being prepared. As there was nothing in the window, Mooney went inside to inquire the reason. He saw two clerks sitting on their high stools, busily writing. "I say," said he, "what do you sell here? You have nothing in the window." "Oh," said one of the clerks, with a superior smile, "we sell moneys here." "Well then," returned Mooney, you must be doing a roaring trade, only two of you left!"

I fell from a building and received what the Dr. called a very bad sprain of ankle, and told me I must not walk on it for three weeks. I got MINARD'S LINIMENT and in six days I was out to work again. I think it the best liniment made.
Edmonton

ARCHIE LAUNDRY

A lawyer travelling through Alabama was much interested in Uncle Ned. "So you were once a slave, eh?"
"Yes, seh," said Uncle Ned.
"How thrilling!" said the lawyer. "And after the war you got your freedom, eh?"
"No, seh," said Ned gloomily. "I didn't get my freedom, seh. After de war I done got married!"—Car and Comment.

W. British Sea Lord

Has Been Great Worker

And Success of Organizer

ALTHOUGH it seems to be generally supposed that the loss of three British destroyers off the Dutch coast was responsible for the retirement of Sir John Jellicoe as First Sea Lord, the Mail and Empire suggested that the comparatively trifling cause was hardly commensurate with the extremely important effect. No navy can expect to escape losses, and to retire Jellicoe because three destroyers were sunk would be much like retiring Haig because of a successful German raid on the British trenches.

The future historian will not say that Jellicoe was a failure as head of the British navy; he is more likely to point out that in his patriotic and characteristic determination to become familiar with all the minutiae of the British sea forces he simply broke down his health. It does not seem probable that Sir Rosslyn Wemyss will inaugurate a new policy with regard to handling the British navy. The difference will be that Wemyss is a man of different temperament from Jellicoe, he will be able to remain First Sea Lord and still stand up to the strain. It is said that Wemyss is a born organizer. The officer above quoted says: "He is the shrewdest judge of a man's capabilities I know. He picks his assistants with the greatest care, but once having chosen them he lets them handle their own departments with little or no interference. Instead of worrying as to whether his subordinates are doing their work properly he does his worrying before he chooses them. Therefore they are permitted to do the worrying."

Sir Rosslyn Wemyss was born in Wemyss Castle, Fife, Scotland, April 13, 1864, his father being Sir Rosslyn Wemyss, and his mother the only daughter of the late Sir Robert Morier, G.C.B., a well-known English diplomat who matched his wife more than once with Bismarck. It is said, indeed, that he was the first British diplomat to perceive the peril to the rest of Europe of the empire that Bismarck was building up. The first sea lord was almost absent from the cradle, sailing and sailing before his favorite sport. He entered the navy in 1877 as an ensign, became a lieutenant ten years later, a commander in 1892, and a captain in 1901. He was appointed rear admiral in 1911, and was made vice admiral at the time he was sent to the East Indian appointment in 1910. He was sent to the Mediterranean shortly after war broke out, but was recalled to the grand fleet because his specialty was the handling of big ships. As commander of one of the naval units he took part in the Battle of Jutland, and was mentioned in despatches for his fine work. Sir Rosslyn Wemyss is known as a "big ship" man. That is to say, he is an exponent of the theory that the strength of the navy depends upon the number of dreadnoughts and super-dreadnoughts that can be put in the line of battle. Shortly before the war he commanded the Orion, one of the largest of them, and a unit in the second squadron, which was composed of Britain's newest and biggest ships. He was second in command of this squadron, for whose fine discipline and appearance he was given much credit. He was an enthusiast upon discipline and also on gunnery, but his less open nature and jolly manners made working with him an under him a pleasure. "A man more truly imbued with a love and interest in his profession never lived," says the British officer.

Hutuku, or Living Buddha.

The secret of Mongolia's weakness lies in the fact that the warlike ardor of its people has been damped by Buddhism, a religion more pacific in its doctrine than any other in the world. Under the appropriate influence of this religion the Mongols are content to live in nomadic life, wandering from place to place with their herds of sheep, cattle, horses and camels. They live in tents exactly like those described by the earliest travelers who visited them in the Middle Ages. They have no political unity and no real national government. Their only bond of unity is their Buddhist religion. The high priest of this religion is the Hutuku who resides at Urga, the religious and secular capital. The Mongols believe that the Hutuku is the reincarnation of Buddha. They worship him as god and call him the Living Buddha. They sacrifice to him incense and keep tiny lamps burning before his image, which is found in every Mongol tent. Because of his desire to become the Emperor as well as the god of the Mongols the Hutuku allowed himself to be drawn into the meshes of Russian intrigue, thus making his country a second Manchuria wherein Russian and Japanese interests have become paramount in utter disregard of China's sovereign rights.

Difficult Writing.

The story of a compositor's worries with Thomas Carlyle's MS. recalls the somewhat kindred experience that befell a typesetter in the office of a Dundee newspaper to whose columns George Gilliland frequently contributed. Being a member of Gilliland's congregation, this compositor was "favored" with a large amount of his saintly and somewhat mystic copy. One day when the MS. was even more unmanageable than usual the man heaped it down on his frame with the remark: "As a Christian, I honor and admire Mr. Gilliland, but as a compositor I'll never be happy till he gets three claps of the spade!"

LIMERICK.

A Town in Ireland That Has Tradition Behind It.

Derry stands for Derry Walls; Limerick for the Bridge of the Broken Treaty. The attack seems to be just enough, for, although the walls and the gates and the "gunpowder boys of Derry are better known to most people than the Thomond Bridge and the Treaty Stone of Limerick, still the two sieges and what followed them are the great landmarks in the history of two counties. It was after the Battle of the Boyne, The Irish army, under the command of the Frenchman Laurin, for James had fled the country, retired behind the Shannon, and William's victorious progress north, aimed at no resistance till his forces approached Limerick from the Tipperary side. At Limerick, however, he quickly discovered that he had to measure swords with no ordinary soldier. Laurin had had no heart for the fight. He had taken one look at the old bastions of the city, and, muttering to himself that such walls might be battered down with round shot, he had retreated into Galway. His place, however, had been taken by a man of very different metal. Patrick Sarsfield had no thought of giving up the city on a struggle, and, when William's army finally took up its position on the Thomond Bridge, it found on the old town a grimly determined defence. It was no question of a blockade, but of a battle. For the next seventeen days were full of fighting. William was slow and methodical, while his was a question of concentrating sufficient force against the city in the way of artillery, to reduce it without much loss. Sarsfield pinned his faith to the rapidity of movement, and the story of how he and "Gallopina Rossa" slipped on one night with a few followers, went across Thomond Bridge, struck up the valley of the Shannon, suddenly fell on one of William's artillery trains as it approached the city, destroyed everything in sight, and then returned through Clare to Limerick, constitutes central episode in the siege. Finally, of course, Sarsfield and William were obliged to retire. But this outcome was only a respite. A year later Austria was fought and lost, and Sarsfield was again locked up in Limerick. This time he was forced to surrender, although on his own terms. The treaty which was signed at the head of the Thomond Bridge secured certain definite rights to all who had followed James, while he himself left the city at the head of his men, drums beating and colors flying, and more than 30,000 soldiers took ship with him for France, to enter the service of King Louis. It was the first flight of the Wild Geese.

Looking back from this central point in Limerick's history, its name and cover contain many a tale. It is the town of the Regia of Ptolemy, and the Rossa-de-Nallagh of the 15th century. It was that, St. Patrick visited the city in the fifth century. He all this at it may when the curtain rings up certainly in the 12th century. Brian Boru, the Danes and the Irish are fighting each other, as they did, off and on, for many centuries for possession of the famous island, in the midst of the Shannon, which formed the nucleus of the city. At least, in the tenth century, Brian Boru came against the Danes with a mighty host, and finally drove them into the sea. And so from 1191 until its conquest by the English in 1174, Brian Boru and his successors reigned as kings of Thomond. Henry II. gave the kingdom to Herbert Fitzherbert, in 1170, but the city was frequently in the possession of the Irish chieftains, and at times went on; it developed into a great and prosperous seaport, with its merchants and its traders and its overweening desire to outdo its rival, Galway. In the seventeenth century, some years before the siege, it reached perhaps the height of its prosperity, but, from the time of the siege onward, as one writer has put it, Limerick has no history. And yet today it is a prosperous city enough, and nothing can take away from the beauty of its situation. It lies at the extremity of the richest tract of Ireland, the Golden Vale, which intervenes between the Shannon and the Galtees, great stretches of rich country, well beyond it lie the hills of Clare and Tipperary.

Oh, Limerick is a beautiful city as everybody knows.

The river Shannon, full of fish, flows by that city flows.
And so, as a certain writer has said, one may go from the bridge leading on to the English town, to the Irish town, and follow up the long street—long and winding with the curves that show one has not yet planned city, but a village casually grown into a town—past alleys with windows opening on them from houses that stood there in the time of the siege, and so out to St. John's Gate, on which are still to be seen the "ditches and scars" made by William's artillery.

Had His Lesson.

Jim Budden played a trick. One day a photograph man, and he stayed to sell Jim a machine. "Now, seh," said the agent, "just you play a trick on that fellow. I'll put a blank record and you can hear your self play afterward." Jim played and the photograph recorded. Then the agent played the record and the tone of Jim's flute came from his throat, and he looked at the machine and remarked the agent, "That's just as you played it. Are you going to buy that trick?" "I am not," answered Jim. "I'm going to have that dog gone out of my house."

A Disappointed Man.

We have kept the meatless meat-days and have lived to tell the tale. We've accepted wheatless wheat-days and we've never missed a walk. Now we plan for workless work-days. And we see the workless works! All we need is the trick of doing it to end the shirkless shirk!

Canadian and German Losses.

During the past four years records by official German estimates, the first losses in the public forests have been exceedingly small. Prior to 1913 the total area of German forests was 120,000,000 acres or over a million acres of German forests was being cut one thousand dollars a year. Other German forests are cut every year.

In Canada, however, the country's commercial strength has been steadily weakened by forest fires. That during a few years several million dollars worth of property and many human lives. Most of these forest fires were caused by carelessness that burned on originally. One of the least considerable causes is the oversteering of camp fires, left by camping parties. In 1917 and 1918 a full dozen of the worst forest fires in the Dominion have been due to camp fires and lighted cigarettes and matches. No camp fire ought to be built anywhere except on rocks or gravel, and should be entirely extinguished.
The careless camper in Canada is doing this year what the Kaiser would gladly pay his bomb and incendiary to accomplish.
Do good to all as much as you can.

"THE SLEEPING FOX CATCHES NO POULTRY"

The merchant who does not advertise catches no trade. He is fortunate if he can retain what he has, because he is never progressive, so his more alert competitors who do advertise, gradually get all the business. Advertising is an evidence of alertness and general—the advertiser gives better value and prompt service. As a consequence the seldom has their goods to dispose of. It pays to patronize the advertiser.
