WHAT'S UP?

Things That Are Happening Around Us.

The "Anarchist Meeting"—The Waterworks Scheme Still Hangs Fire—A Pound-Keeper Wanted—About Postponements.

—During the past week things generally have been flatter than the proverbial pancake, so to speak, and you'd almost think the neighbors were "lying low for ducks" or something, such an awful stillness prevails. The attendance at the "Grumbling Stool" on my back stoop has been below the average, and I am credibly informed that the "Anarchist Meeting," which was started in opposition to our sessions, has been experiencing some set-backs that have almost taken the nerve out of the majority of the members. You didn't know that there was an "Anarchist Meeting" in Goderich. Well, as who-d'ye-call-him said to What's-his-name, "as chronicled by William Shakespeare or Ignatius Donnelly, I don't know which." "There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio, than are dreamt of in your philosophy." But, to get right down to hardpan, there is a gathering of law-abiding, peace-loving, ratepayers of this town, who hold regular meetings wherein the topics of the day are discussed, and where opinions upon national and international questions are turned out with neatness and dispatch. John Butler got on to this gathering and dubbed it the "Anarchist Meeting," and despite the fact that the cognomen is at variance with the constitution and bylaws of the institution, it has remained with it even unto this day. The conclave meets for the transaction of business ever sunshiny—but, pah! the editor would object to me giving the time and place of meeting without the regular advertising rates being charged, and so I will not particularize in this respect. Well, as I was saying, the organization of the new institution has cut a hole in the membership of our backstoop gathering, and has hindered us from getting up a "ticket" for the next municipal election. I am in hopes, however, that an amalgamation will be formed, between the two conclaves, and, in that event, the present compilation of dry-bones yept the "Town Council" will get its quietus at New Year, or my name isn't Ajax.

—Another week has passed and gone, and still the proposed waterworks scheme hangs fire. As it at present stands, nothing has been done, nothing will be done, and nothing can be done. Along about the beginning of May last, elaborate flysheets were placed in circulation, telling us all about the "perfected scheme" that was laid before the free and independent electors, but from that day to this the "perfected scheme" has failed to materialize, or words to that effect. Now would be a good time to have a penny reading entertainment in the town hall at which to recite extracts from the Bylaw flysheets. I have no doubt there would be a large turnout of electors, and if ten cents admission were charged to pay the express charges on the voter's lists package from Clinton to Goderich. Mebbe I don't see things in exactly the same light as some people, but I'm inclined to believe that the manner in which the present council imposed upon the ratepayers, in the matter of the passing of the bylaws, and the dilatory manner in which our public affairs have been handled, deserve to be answered by the "free and independent" with a writ of ejectment upon the whole caboodle of them at the next municipal election. So much for the council's do-nothing policy in regard to the waterworks, and now I'll point out another do-nothing dodge or two on other points.

—We used to have a pound and a cow-by-law on our municipal book and has never been repealed. A couple of months ago our pound-keeper left the limits, and the clerk of the municipality was notified of his departure, but to this hour the council has done nothing towards appointing a man to carry out the provisions of the town bylaw. Now, when I was out on the farm, I never discharged the hired man or allowed him to skip out during seedtime or harvest without trying to fill the vacuum created by his departure at as early an hour as possible. But that isn't the way our councillors act, and the consequence is that, having a defective bylaw, and being without any means of carrying out its provisions, it is possible that the council will have to foot up a bill for damages one of these days that'll make the members of the finance committee open their eyes.

—Last week the council should have held its regular monthly meeting to transact legitimate business, but owing to the fact that the mayor was away from town on private business, it was decided not to hold the meeting. Now, out in townships, when I lived there, if the reeve was unable to be present, the business went along all O. K. so long as there was a quorum. If the reeve failed to connect, the deputy took the chair, and if the reeve and deputy were both away, it was moved by councillor John Brown, seconded by councillor Tom Jones, that councillor Bill Robinson take the chair, and the motion was carried unanimously. On such occasions, the board generally got through more business in a given time than when all the members were on deck, and I don't know that a similar way of doing business would not work admirably in Goderich. Mind you, I've no objection to his worship being away occasionally on regular council meeting nights, but I think the council should have enough stysie about it to hold the regular meeting on the duly appointed evenings, mayor or no mayor.

JOHN BRIGHT ON TEMPERANCE.

The following letter from John Bright in regard to the liquor question will prove of some interest to our readers. It is dated August 23, from Rochdale, and was written to a gentleman residing in Toronto:—

"DEAR SIR.—I suppose all men will admit that it would be a great blessing if the manufacture and sale and use of drinks which intoxicate were abolished. The whole question, and its solution, must depend on public opinion, which may agree to restrictions which are important, but will for a long time, and perhaps always refuse the absolute prohibition, which I suppose you are contending for. It seems to me with you, and probably with you, that a severe taxation is almost the only remedy that can be adopted with much hope of success. By this course we may reduce the number of houses where the drink is sold, and thus lessen the temptation, which so many people seem unable to resist, and at the same time it would add to the cost of the drink and thus to some extent diminish the consumption of what is so great a source of mischief. I fancy you are in advance of us on this question. With us only moderate measures have any chance of success and we must be content to travel more slowly than is the case in some parts of your continent.—with you in Canada and with the temperance party in the United States. I hope with you and with us the temperance cause may prosper. Very truly yours, (signed) JOHN BRIGHT.

Mr. J. C. Browne, a leading coal merchant in Ottawa, says: Men often say: We took the duty off coal and yet the price has advanced. That would not be the result with other commodities. Mr. Browne says that coal has advanced 25 cents a ton here, owing to an advance of 80 cents in the States. If it were not for having the 50-cent duty taken off, the advance here would have been 80 cents. Taking off that duty actually saves consumers 50 cents on the ton, although they pay 25 cents more now.

A Philadelphia despatch says there has been a marked change of front in the attitude of General Master Workman Powderley towards the trades unions and the opponents of the present administration of the Knights of Labor since the recent elections of delegates to the Minneapolis convention, when anti-administration men were chosen by nearly all of the more powerful district assemblies throughout the country. It is said Powderley is trying to throw the blame for the condition of the order on the members of the board, and has made overtures of peace to the prominent leaders of the opposition.

At a meeting at Hull Sunday night, Mr. Bourbonnais, the independent Conservative M. P. for Soulages County, made an important statement. He said that after he was elected, in October last, Hon. He also stated the Tories had gone so far as to offer him money in the hope of inducing him to support them. The statements created a great sensation, and Mr. Faes, who was present, did not challenge their accuracy.

The Tibborne claimant has found a congenial resting place at last. His wanderings have ceased, at any rate for a time. The haven he has taken refuge in is a Chatham street, New York, bar-room. Its enterprising proprietor has employed him on a large salary as bartender. The sagacious liquor seller knew that when it was once known that the great English claimant was to be found at his saloon his establishment would not languish for want of custom. Weighing over three hundred pounds the opulent Sir Roger is a rather heavy man for the business, but he takes to it kindly, and promises soon to become an expert as a mixer of drinks. The frequenters of the bar room are said to be exceedingly polite to the claimant and invariably address him as "Sir Roger." He appreciates their courtesy and responds freely and with great affability. So it may be concluded that the claimant has found his proper sphere and is successful at last.

The great Medical Congress meets today in several sections, as one, or even two or three buildings are not large enough to accommodate the thousands of physicians in attendance from civilized nations, and whose presence imparts an air of bustle and animation to the city at its duldest season. The latest scheme of public improvement is the contemplated national roadway, to be called Mt Vernon Avenue, designed to begin at the Aqueduct bridge and thence run to the home of Washington. This grand conception is both practical and patriotic, and the idea of connecting the tomb of the father of his country with its great capital, named in his honor, is truly poetic, and should be carried into effect. This, together with the monumental bridge to span the Potomac, would be regarded by the people of the United States as two of the nation's brightest jewels.

On Saturday the 20th ult., Margaret Clark, of the 5th concession of Morris, passed away to her reward at the advanced age of 100 years and 6 months. Mrs. Clark's remains were interred in the Sunshine burying ground on Monday, a large concourse of friends and relations paying their last tribute of respect to the old lady. FROM WASHINGTON

What Has Transpired at the United States Capital.

Changes in the Tariff Contemplated—The International Commission on Civil Service Reform—The International Medical Congress.

From our Special Correspondent. WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 5th, 1887.

The simultaneous presence in this city of such leading Democrats as Speaker Carlisle and Congressman Mills, at this dull season, has given rise to a good deal of talk. Color is given to the report by the fact that the Speaker and his wife are on a prolonged visit to the President and Mrs. Cleveland at their country place. The substance of the tariff measure agreed on by the Administration is said to be a heavy reduction in custom duties, the removal of tobacco taxes, and non-interference with the general internal system, as a compromise for cutting the tariff rates on the necessities of life. In this connection it is somewhat significant that the Bureau of Statistics has been called upon for figures on customs duties, to show where the most effective reductions can be made and how the revenues of the Government would be affected thereby.

An International Commission, composed of three Americans and three Englishmen, the former to be chosen by Secretary Bayard, will meet in Washington ere long to discuss the vexatious Canadian fisheries dispute, with the purpose of solving the troublesome problem of the boundary line between Canada and the United States, over which there has been a controversy about one hundred years. If this matter can be satisfactorily settled from an American standpoint, it will naturally be regarded as a great diplomatic triumph for the present administration, which the whole country would regard with patriotic pride.

During August Government receipts were very heavy, aggregating $35,000,115, against $32,193,326 for the same month last year—fully two millions more than in August 1886. Internal revenue and miscellaneous receipts show a corresponding excess and the disbursement a large decrease comparatively. A statement prepared by the Treasury Department shows that during the month of August there was a decrease of $73,870 in the total circulation and an increase of $10,216,200 in the total cash in the Treasury.

The Civil Service Commission is considering a plan for a more uniform classification of the Department clerks so as to include within the rules the clerks of lower grade—for instance, copyists at $900 who are not embraced. It is the Commissioner's desire to remove the discrimination now existing by which places in one Department are exempt from civil service rules while precisely similar positions in another Department come under the rules.

It had been heralded forth by some irresponsible newspaper correspondents that sweeping charges would take place in the forces of the Treasury and Interior Department on Sept. 1st, but, as yet, these reports have not materialized to any considerable extent, and there have only been a few unimportant changes.

The city was honored last week by a visit from an East Indian Prince—a vassal of the British Queen—who was a conspicuous figure, and attracted general attention by his fine presence and courtly bearing at a reception tendered him by Secretary Bayard and the foreign Ministers. He authorized the issuance of a challenge for $500 or $1,000 to Currie or any other "putter of shot" in Canada or elsewhere, according to Caledonian rules. Letters addressed to his care at the City Hotel will receive attention.

THE CALEDONIAN SURPLUS.—By the treasurer's statement, which we have examined, we learn that the receipts of the Caledonian games were $844.80 and the expenditures $763.09, leaving a balance in the hands of the treasurer of $81.71. This latter will form a nest egg towards the next year's games. The detailed statement can be seen in the office of Treasurer Nairn, corner of Hamilton-st. and the Square.

EVER "SOFT STUFF" IS DETRIMENTAL.—A recent analysis, just closed by an American Board of Health, of the various medicines and tonics generally known as "temperance drinks" brings out some startling facts. There were sea weed-bitters which contained no sea-weed, sulphur bitters without a vestige of sulphur, beef tonics without even a suspicion of beef in their composition, and hop tonics which were as hopeless as a dead grasshopper. There was one thing which they all contained, however, and that was alcohol. In fact one temperance medicine which is advertised as being without stimulants, was found to be nearly half alcohol, quite enough to cause even an old hard number church deacon to go on a wild spree and paint the town red.

With medicine which does not medicate, stimulants which do not stimulate, prohibition which does not prohibit, the popular solution still remains: "What will you take?" This is a great country!

FOR LIQUOR DRINKERS.—The following, which we take from the Windsor Record refers to a person not known to some of our Goderich residents:—Prof. A. Burkart, Stratford, passed through Tilbury Centre the other day, and spent Sunday in town. He is selling drugs—rank poison—by which whiskey can be converted into Holland gin rum, or almost anything required.

Some of the boys in town took him for Inspector "Lance" Elliott, and Saturday night the hotels were closed as tight as an oyster shell. The "Prof." visited Comber, Woodlee and Essex Centre, and reports a brisk trade, but was indignantly rebuffed. He is quite a scheme and in a big direct saving to hotels. A small bottle judiciously used will be worth $100 to a hotel man, and from the prosperous appearance of the "Prof," who is a stout, elderly man, with a grey beard, he is doing a rattling business, and duds who think they are getting the "pure quill" are getting sadly left, as their headaches next morning testify.

MECHANICAL SCHOOL EXAMINER.—At a meeting of the board recently held, they were present, the chairman, John E. Tom, and Messrs. Malloch, Turnbull and Halls. Mr. Tom was re-elected chairman for the current year. The resolution of the Board passed in 1886, allowing only residents of the county to attend the model schools, was rescinded. It was resolved that the practical work of the candidates be examined by the Inspectors, who are to devote three days to each model school, and that the percentage required to obtain a certificate be 40 on each subject and 60 of the aggregate. For practical drawing book 5 is to be completed and handed in at the end of the term. The principal of each model school as being the work of the candidate, provided there is no Departmental regulation to the contrary. The secretary was instructed to notify each candidate which of the schools they are to attend; any further applications to be divided as nearly as possible between the two schools. The number now allotted is 18 for each school. The Board then adjourned.

The account of C. G. Robertson, for supplies amounting to $3, upon being properly certified was paid. The secretary reported that he had received the Government grant for the year. A. J. services rendered to the society by J. D. Stewart—who so ably performed the duties of manager of the Caledonian games in Goderich on the 1st of July—by presenting him with a handsome plain gold ring. D. McGillicuddy, on behalf of the society, made the address on the occasion, and the ring was presented by Chas. A. Nairn, treasurer of the society. The bestowal of the souvenir was brought about in this wise: So well satisfied were the members of Goderich Caledonian Society with the efforts that had been made by Manager Stewart to contribute to the success of the games, that it was thought only right that some token of appreciation of his services should be made to him. For a time all efforts to make him accept of any acknowledgment of the services rendered proved futile, but he was finally prevailed upon to accept the memento of which he was the recipient Monday evening. His presence on a business trip was taken advantage of by his friends to make the presentation. "J. D.," in reply, stated that he would cherish the souvenir as emblematic of the circle of friendship which bound him to his friends of the Goderich Caledonian Society. Anything he had done to contribute to the success of the games in Huron's county town had been a labor of love on his part, and was freely given, without hope of fee or reward. If in the land of the living, he hoped to be with them next year, when, with new grounds and old committee men, he was confident that Goderich would be able to participate in a series of games that could be exceeded by no other place on the continent. (Hear, hear and applause.) The ring has in raised letters on the back the initials by which Mr Stewart is known from one end of the Province to the other. "J. D." and on the inside is the inscription "Presented to J. D. Stewart by the Goderich Caledonian Society, 1887." J. D. left for the Seaforth games by the 7 o'clock train Tuesday morning.

A TERRIBLE HOLOCAUST.

Terrible scenes of Panic and Suffocation in an English Theater.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—During the performance of "The Romanys" in the theatre at Exeter last evening the building was discovered to be on fire. The audience became panic stricken and made a frantic rush for the exits, despite the heroic efforts of the attaches to reassure them and induce them to go out quietly. The occupants of the pit engaged in an awful struggle for space in the narrow aisles. Men and women were deliberately knocked down and trampled upon by those behind them, and hundreds of persons were almost entirely denuded in their terrible flight for life. The pit was finally cleared, but a large number of the occupants of that portion of the house were seriously injured and presented a horrible spectacle as they reached the streets. The occupants of the gallery did not fare so well.

There was only one very narrow exit from the upper tier, involving the descent of a long flight of stairs, and here an almost indescribable scene of terror and slaughter ensued. The rush for the stairs was terrific, and in a moment the entire passageway was blocked, those persons who kept their feet being supported by a solid mass of prostrate humanity. The shrieks, groans and curses of the imprisoned, and the trampled, and the wounded and the dying, were perfectly heartrending, but there was no relief, and in a moment scores of men and women were either suffocated or killed by being trodden upon. A fire escape was at last brought to one of the gallery windows, and through this medium the pressure was relieved and a great many persons were lowered to the street.

As soon as the house had been cleared of the living the work of removing the dead was begun, and sixty bodies were taken out by means of the fire escape. The wounded survivors were conveyed to the hospital and their number can not at this time be definitely ascertained, but it is very large. The total number of lives lost is estimated at 150, but may exceed that figure.

The fire started in the flies during the fourth act of the play. When the flames were discovered a report was lowered to prevent the current of air from increasing the blaze. After this was done the actors and stage hands threw open a door to make their escape, when the draft caused the flames to burst through the drop scene and ignite the woodwork of the gallery. The flames overtook the hidmost of the unfortunate people, who were wedged in the corridor and stairways, and literally roasted them alive. There was no escape for them, the fire being at their backs, and a compact, immovable mass of human beings in front.

The firemen reached the upper windows and took out all the people they could find, but most of them were dead, and many others died soon after they were taken out. The surgeons in the hospital revived a few persons who were thought to be dead from suffocation, but at 4 o'clock this morning more than 100 corpses laid in rows on the floor, and these did not comprise the total number of the dead, as a great many bodies were burned to ashes in the theater. Some of the dead were simply suffocated and not at all mutilated or burned.

The occupants of the dress circles escaped without injury, the injured and dead being confined to the pit and the upper circles. The building was destroyed.

One hundred and thirty bodies have been taken out of the theater thus far. Of these one hundred were men and boys, and thirty women. As soon as more of the injured were taken to the hospital and a large number were taken to their home.

HAVE YOU SEEN

The crowds that congregate on the street corners, not talking Commercial Union, but about PRIDHAM BROS' CHEAP SUITS and the verdict of every one is that Pridham Bros. "are a wonder," selling those elegant suits, cut and made right in their own establishment, and every one fits like the paper on the wall, FOR $7.00 A SUIT and upwards. They are selling like hot cakes. Of course you do not notice them because they are so much like the ordinary ordered clothing you see every day and what you have been in the habit of paying $16.00 and $18.00 for. If you wish to save money just call and see them. You will be more than pleased.

ORDERED DEPARTMENT.

The needs of our patrons in ordered clothing are various, and they require careful study. It has been ours through long experience, appreciation of a FIRST CLASS TRADE, and careful selection, to create and foster a demand for high-class goods, and we have the satisfaction of knowing that in excellence of quality, combined with moderation in price, our patrons are agreed that we maintain the reputation we have earned as the leading tailors in the County of Huron. Our FALL STOCK is now complete, which is this season the finest ever imported into Goderich. Elegant Overcoats, Beautiful Trouserings, Magnificent Suitings, &c. Your early order is solicited.

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

I recently beg your pardon—
The fishing, isn't good you say?
Perhaps not, unless you say so.
Out where the sun and sky are bluish.
You look too far away, I fear—
Just sit where I am sitting here.
With an attentive eye and ear—
You'll find it splendid.

"Thank you" with glorious eyes and throat,
What shoals of dulse fish round her float;
They're "long" on collar, "short" on coat;
She gives a snuffle, a pout, a look,
She's learned the art from Cupid's book—
For compliments she bats her eye,
And doesn't she get them?

That ancient maiden, stern and spare,
With swarthy skin and raven hair,
Who seems a serious sitting there—
A seaside Sisy!
She's fishing too, it's very sad,
Her luck has been extremely bad,
I don't believe she's ever had
A single nibble!

The German Count of course is here,
Whose income nothing is a year;
The very staid British peer,
Beloved of swifdrom.
They're fortune telling, on the sly;
Their titles are the bait they try.
But heiresses are rather shy
And like but seldom.

A married woman, flirting there,
And with a club she wields her spear,
Her face so radiant fair,
Madonna like in prayerful
Victims by dozens she'll devour,
But ah! I fear she's met her match,
And ruin is the fish she'll catch
Unless she's careful!

The keen reporters fish for news,
Detective angle here for clime,
The actress fishing don't refuse
For advertising.
While girls decoy me—merry band—
Fish with their figures in the sand.
The fishing that is done on land
Is most surprising. — Edward E. Kiddler.

Twelve Rules for the Care of Ears.
1. Never put anything into the ear for the relief of toothache.
2. Never wear cotton in the ears if they are discharging pus.
3. Never attempt to apply a poultice to the inside of the canal of the ear.
4. Never drop anything into the ear unless it has been previously warmed.
5. Never use anything but a syringe and warm water for cleaning the ears from pus.
6. Never strike or box a child's ears; this has been known to rupture the drumhead, and cause incurable deafness.
7. Never wet the hair, if you have any tendency to deafness; wear an oil-silk cap when bathing, and refrain from diving.
8. Never scratch the ear with anything but the finger, if it itches. Do not use the head of a pin, hair pins, pencil tips or anything of that nature.
9. Never let the feet become cold and damp, or sit with the back towards the window, as these things tend to aggravate any existing hardness of hearing.
10. Never put milk, fat or any oily substance into the ear for the relief of pain, for they soon become rancid and tend to excite inflammation. Simple warm water will answer the purpose better than anything else.
11. Never be alarmed if a living insect enters the ear. Pouring warm water into the canal will drown it, when it will generally come to the surface, and can be easily removed by the fingers. A few puffs of tobacco smoke blown into the ear will stupify the insect.
12. Never meddle with the ear if a foreign body, such as a bead, button or seed enters it; leave it absolutely alone, but have a physician attend to it. More damage has been done by injudicious attempts at the extraction of a foreign body than could ever come from its presence in the ear.

Historical.
At a recent examination of children under 14 years of age attending the London Board Schools, the following replies were given in answer to the questions asked:
"Write a short account of the Conquest of Ireland." — "The Conquest of Ireland was begun in the year 1170, and it still going on."
Name some of the leading events in the life of Lord Nelson. — One laid down his answer with these words:—Mr Nelson was a sailor; the King made him a lord, which pleased Mr Nelson very much."
"What is a compound sentence?" "A compound sentence is a sentence about many things in general, and about nothing in particular."
"Why was the ark of bulrushes, in which Moses was put, daubed with slime and with pitch?" "To make him stick inside," was the ready reply of a little boy.
"They have a large sale in my district," says a well known druggist, "than any other pill on the market, and give the best satisfaction for sick headache, biliousness, indigestion, etc., and when combined with Johnston's Tonic Bitters, Johnston's Tonic Liver Pills will perform what no other medicine has done before for suffering humanity." Pills 25 cents per bottle. Bitters 50 cents per bottle. Sold by Godo, Druggist, Alton block, Goderich, N. B.

As the medical properties of some plants can be extracted only by distillation, so our good qualities can only be proved by trial.

A Wonderful Organ.
The largest organ, and one that plays a controlling part on the health of the body is the liver. If torpid or inactive the whole system becomes diseased. Dr. Chase's Liver Cure is made specially for Liver and Kidney diseases, and is guaranteed to cure. Recipe book and medicine $1. Sold by all druggists.

FLIRTING IN THE CORRIDOR.
From The Philadelphia Ledger.
Some time ago the chief clerk of the Treasury Department issued an order prohibiting clerks from visiting and promenading the corridors during business hours. Prior to this regulation the Treasury girls spent considerable time in visiting each other and in walking leisurely around the corridors with female masculine clerks. For a time the new order effectively suppressed the abuse aimed at, as all persons found visiting and walking about idly were reported to the chief clerk. The order still produces good results, yet many male and female clerks, with a disposition to flirtation, have devised a plan by which they may enjoy a promenade of a mile without being detected by the minions of the chief clerk. The Treasury building is about 300 by 200 feet in dimensions. It is quadrangular in form, with a central wing stretching from east to west, thus converting the building into a double quadrangle. Two elevators, one in each wing, separate elevators, of each story extended in a straight line is a full quarter of a mile, and as there are four stories, we have a full mile of corridors, forming with their tiled floors, frescoed walls and vaulted ceilings a most charming promenade. The chief clerk, however, has not been able to find loopholes on any particular floor in which to insure a report and reprimand, and repetition of the offense brings admonition of suspension or discharge. Some of the girls of the Treasury are smart as well as pretty, and have devised a plan by which they may join each other and their beaux without fear of the chief clerk and his sentinels. Meeting at an appointed hour and place, these couples will promenade the entire length of the corridors of one floor and then, taking separate elevators, go as to avoid detection, will proceed to the next floor, and leisurely continue their "mooning" while they make the circuit of its corridors. This is repeated until they have traversed the corridors of the four floors, when each will repair to his or her proper division. The chief clerk, for this purpose, having walked a mile, killed a full hour's time, "knocked out the eyes of the chief clerk," and had a "lovely time" while so engaged.

Through the Storm.
From Harper's Magazine.
I heard a voice, a tender voice, soft falling
Through the high, the bitter winds were calling.
The waves were high, the bitter winds were calling.
Yet breathing warm
Of skies serene, of sunny uplands lying
In peace beyond;
This tender voice, into my voice replying,
Made answer true.
Sometimes, indeed, like crash of armies meeting,
Arose the gale;
But over all that sweet voice kept repeating:
"I shall not fail." — Nora Perry.

The Prince of Wales' Clothes.
From The Cottier and Purveyor.
At Sandringham the Prince breakfasts with his wife and daughters, but at Marlborough House his habits are less regular, and as often as not his first meal consists of a sardine on toast with a cup of coffee, or on occasion—tell it not in Gath— a brandy-and-soda. This "small and early" is partaken of in the airiest of cottages before the dressing room fire, and during its progress His Royal Highness sorts and reads his letters. The next business—always an important item with the Prince of Wales—is the choice of the suit of clothes he means to wear, and the selection is to him a matter of much care. It depends, of course, on the program for the day. If his diary tells him that he has to open a hospital or attend a "heavy" dinner of learned professors, or run down to Windsor to see "mamma" as he still calls her, Most Gracious Majesty, the black frock coat with the silk facings, with a pair of unimpeachable trousers to follow, is the order given to his trusty valet. Should Sandown or a little luncheon "somewhere" with Charlie Beresford be down in the day's bill of fare, the latest thing in a useful chessboard checks is called for, but whatever suit may be offered to him the Prince is sure to reject it. He has been worn five times before. His Royal Highness never wears a pair of trousers more than six times. The cast-off goes to the property of his man, who, it may be judged, has an enviable post.

A Lady's 200 Tullefs.
From Times Saratoga Letter.
As a sample specimen of a single lady's— or rather of one married lady's—wardrobe, as yet mostly unused, let me refer to that credited to Mrs. William Laytin of New York who, with her husband, has just sailed at the Grand Union. It is rumored that the wardrobe of this pretty demurel consists of 200 costly and elaborate toiles. Seventy-five are for outdoor wear, with parasols, hats, fans, gloves and boots to correspond. Some of these costumes are said to have cost the fabulous sum of from $1500 to $2000 each—real old black and white thread lace, real round point, duchesse and Irish point laces. Her jewelry is also pronounced superb. Prince Albert Victor, for a month's stay at Gibraltar, took eighty tons of baggage, and the Anglo-Italians cannot hope to compete with him, unless among that baggage were a yacht, several dozens of assorted sizes of guns, his family and servants and several cases of odd pieces.

Lord Tenyson's Successor.
The appointment of the poet laureate is wholly in the hands of the sovereign. The poet laureate is, in fact, an officer of the royal household as much as the lord steward or the gold stick in waiting, and his official salary of £200 per annum is paid out to the civil list. The poet laureate's successor, is held for life, and it is to be hoped that there will be no need to choose another for many years to come. When the time arrives, however, the fact that Mr. Lewis Morris has just been chosen to act, so to speak, as deputy poet laureate will doubtless be urged in his favor. The story goes that Lord Tenyson was so chagrined at the reception accorded to his jubilee ode—his "Carmen Seculare" as he called it—that he refused with unusual pre-emptiveness to try a second having special reference to the Imperial Institute. It was in consequence of this refusal that the Prince of Wales suggested the name of the author of "The Epic of Hades" to his royal mother, and it need scarcely be said that Mr. Morris—who must not, by the way, be confounded with that other poet Morris who wrote "The Earthly Paradise"—is doing his very utmost to turn his royal commission to good account.—London Figaro.

Not to be Caught With Chaff.
How many young ladies, said an old Saratoga beau, and I beg your pardon for saying it—how many young ladies look beautiful at a distance, but when you come close to them they have a soiled look. Their hair will look greasy, as if it had not been washed in a month, or their false bangs will not match their back hair. They think they deceive us, gentlemen, with powder when we always look under the chin and see the mismatch. They don't seem to understand that a lover who is such a fool as to be caught with paint, powder and false bangs is not worth catching.

A Motherly Cur.
A Skye terrier belonging to a London gentleman, says the Field, is caring for eight little chickens. They occupy a basket and the chickens nestle in the dog's long hair and seem comfortable. They follow the dog about and the brute strives to give them all the personal care possible.

Swedish Cleanliness.
Dutch cleanliness is famous, and deserves its fame. The Dutch are the only people who live as if cleanliness were next to, but a part of, godliness. The traveler, on entering his room in an inn, finds the linen snowy-white, the window-panes transparent as the air, the furniture shining as if newly varnished, and the floor so clean that a magnifying glass could not discover a speck of dust there. There is a basket for waste paper, a tablet for scratching matches on, a dish for cigar-ashes, a box for cigar stumps, a spittoon—every man is supposed to smoke—a boot-jack, and everything to remove a pretext for soiling everything.
Even his candle-stick is of copper, and of the size of a dinner plate. It might sustain a torch, but holds instead a candle, as large as a lady's small finger. No grease should be spilt from that candlestick.
The traveller stands on a bridge, and overlooks the vessels crowded in the canal. Each one is as clean as the room he has just left. The masts and decks are varnished, and shine like a recently scrubbed house floor. The cabin has its windows of clear, clean glass, each one with its white muslin curtains tied up with knots of rose-colored ribbon. Sailors, women and children are busy every spare moment, washing, sweeping, polishing every part.
De Amicis, an Italian, on visiting the kitchen of a house in Delft, could find but one word to express his feelings, "Splendid." The walls were as white as untouched snow; the saucers and plates reflected like mirrors, and the mantel-pieces were ornamented with a muslin curtain, like the canopy of a bed.
The fireplace was covered with china tiles, that looked as bright as if no fire had ever been lighted there. The shovels, hongs and poker, and the chains and hooks seemed made of polished steel.
A lady in a ball-dress might have gone into every hole and corner of that kitchen, and come forth without a smirch on her whiteness.

On the Verge of Starvation.
For three months I could not eat a full meal or do a day's work. I bought a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, began using it in three days my appetite returned in a week I felt like a new man. It was wonderful what that one bottle did for me," writes Arthur Alchier, of Huntville, Muskoka, who suffered from Dyspepsia.

Some Remarks.
In Great Britain the position of Home Rule is commanding attention. To the man with a cold in the head or chest the safest way to ensure Home Rule over a cold is to have on hand a bottle of Dr. Harvey's Red Pine Gum. For sale at J. Wilson's Prescription drug store. If he is the greatest man who chooses the right with invincible resolution, who bears the heaviest burdens cheerfully, and whose reliance on truth and virtue is the most unflinching.
In the history of medicines no preparation has received such universal commendation, for the alleviation affords and the permanent cure it effects in kidney diseases as Dr. Van Buren's Kidney Cure. Its action in these distressing complaints is simply wonderful. Sold by J. Wilson.
Great effort from great motive is the best definition of a happy life. The easiest labor is a burden to him who has no motive for performing it.
"Never Tried It."
What! Never tried Johnston's Tonic Bitters! Then do so at once, it's positively the best general tonic on the market.
I've often heard of it but thought that it was to be placed on the list of the many trashy preparations that flood our market, but since you recommend it so highly I'll give it a trial. Do a good for any complaint in which a tonic is of benefit, and can be taken by man, woman, or child. 50c. and $1 per bottle. at Godo's Drug store, Alton block, Goderich, sole agent.

Swarm of Mosquitoes.
