"Oh, Mr. Selby, a proverb at such a moment!" she breathed, with pin-point reproach.

"I know—I know; but we lawyers must be careful. Until the bench has heard the evidence I would not risk telling Ralph—Lord Denby—that he was safe. But I told him enough to give him hope. Though I need scarcely have done that. Have you noticed what a noise they make, and how excited they are! He broke off, looking round at the seething crowd. "I can scarcely make myself heard—have you noticed that he has been the most hopeful, the most confident of all of us?"

"Is there anything I haven't noticed?" she said, in a low voice. "It is because he knew that the truth would be—"

"Oh, proverbs at such a moment!" he murmured, smiling, and with a very fair imitation of her voice. "You see I'm so happy that I can joke, Miss Veronica—"

"Silence," called the clerk.

Veronica stole back to her place beside the earl, who sat with his hands resting on his stick, his white head bent as if he were unconscious of the crowd, the noise, and the excitement. But as the prisoner was ushered into the dock the old man raised his head and looked—with what love, and remorse, and pride!—at the handsome face, the "clear, just" eyes.

For the first time since his arrest Ralph's face looked strained, as if he were feeling the suspense, the delay.

His eyes went from his father to Veronica, and something in hers made his own flash and his face glow with colour.

The crowd was not stilled into silence until Mr. Selby rose; then you could have heard a pin drop—if it could have dropped between the packed-off people.

He was almost as pale as the prisoner had been when he entered the court, and for the first time his usual calm and steady voice wavered.

"Your worship," he said, "when the court adjourned yesterday, I was calling as a witness Mr. Talbot Denby." He paused a moment, then went on with deep solemnity. "He could not be found. Since then he has been summoned to another tribunal and has appeared before another Judge. He has quitted this mortal scene, and with his disappearance my task is over." Ralph uttered a faint cry. "I leave the case from this moment in the hands of my old friend, Mr. Graham, who represents the crown, and I may add, the interests of justice."

He sat down, the crowd moved restlessly and impatiently, and a man was heard to say complainingly: "Why don't 'e let 'im free to once!"

Mr. Graham rose. He, too, was pale and very grave.

"Your worship," he said, "I am grateful to Mr. Selby for leaving to me the task of clearing up the mystery of this painful case. I will not take up the time of the court by addressing you, but will call—"

"Let him free—let him free!" shouted the crowd, but it was quieted by the clerk and the police, and one after another the witnesses, the boy who found the bodies, and Doctor Campbell, who proved the death of master and man, passed through the witness-box. Then, as the crowd grew almost unmanageable, Lord Saintsbury entered and in low, but clear tones read Gibbon's confession.

It was listened to with an almost intolerable impatience, the people looking eagerly from Ralph, who stood gripping the edge of the dock, to the earl and Veronica.

"Nough said!" shouted a woman. "Let 'un go! Let the young lord free; he've been there in that shameful place long enow!"

Old Lord Selbrow, who acted as chairman of the bench that morning, held up his hand and at length succeeded in obtaining silence.

"The crown withdraws the charge, Mr. Graham?"

"Yes, my lord, with sincere regret that it should have been made—"

"Silence, please," Ralph Farrington—said Lord Selbrow.

"Lord Denby! Lord Denby!" shouted the crowd.

"Ralph Farrington, otherwise Lord Denby," said the old lord, making himself heard with difficulty. "It is our pleasant duty to tell you that we find the charge made against you is not even, in fact, we know that you are innocent of the crime of which you are accused, and we discharge you. You leave this court with a character unstained as far as this case is concerned, and we echo the regret expressed by the prosecutor for the crown."

Ralph bowed his head.

"I thank you, my lord," he said in a low but clear voice, and his eyes went straight to Veronica.

His words had been almost drowned by the roar of the crowd which, disregarding the injunctions of the police, now swayed towards the dock with outstretched hands. One or two of the persons nearest to him seized his arms, and before they could be prevented, had lifted him bodily from the shameful place and, setting him on their shoulders, bore him into the open air.

Here they were received by the mass of people, who had been unable to get into the court, with an outburst of cheering that was well-nigh deafening. The Lynne carriage was drawn up opposite the magistrate's entrance, and the persons—there were women amongst them—who were carrying Ralph placed him in it, and the mob pressing round it threw up their caps and shouted triumph.

At this the enthusiasm of the crowd, which had not been extinguished but was only smouldering, blazed up again and a cry of sympathy ran through the seething mass. Ralph assisted the earl and Veronica into the carriage, and the old man stood erect—a striking figure at that electric moment—and held out his hand. There were many there who had borne the great Lord Lynborough no great good will. He had been a hard, if a just, landlord; he had never shown the least sympathy with the people on his lands, the stranger within his gates; he had lived the life of a morose recluse. But as they stared at him they were one and all conscious that the man—old as he was—had changed. The austere face had softened, the hard eyes were aglow with a novel sympathy, the once haughty frown had gone and the thin lips, which many had never seen but with a cynical sneer, quivered with emotion. They moved once or twice as if he were speaking, but the words were inaudible, but at last those near him heard him murmur:

12,000 PIECES of Enamelware Just Opened.

Last week we received two large shipments of First-Class ENAMELWARE; each shipment from a different factory. This Enamelware is, without doubt, some of the best we have ever handled. The colorings are perfect, while the enamel is regular throughout; will not rust, and is perfectly free from any poisonous finishing. All the weak or inferior points found in enamel in the past have been remedied. Granite or Enamel is the ideal kitchen cooking ware. Because of the smooth surface and its light weight it is easy to clean and handle. Below we give you some idea of the many different articles for everyday use:

Why Who's Who.
BY H. L. RANN.

Senator Nelson W. Aldrich retired from the United States senate, in order to collect his thoughts and cool his fevered brow, which had become considerably hot up over passing events, he left a large pink hiatus in that body which has not been filled by anything except roll calls and parts of speech. For Nelson W. was not merely a cog. He was the entire performance.

Far be it from us to suggest that Nelson W. was a boss. Compared to him the average political boss would look like a penny-ante game in the Waldorf-Astoria. No Nelson W. had a system. His system was to learn more about a piece of pending legislation or a pending piece of legislation, whichever you prefer, than anybody else in congress knew, and then crush the opposition with cold facts and the mazy whip.

Just before a piece of legislation began to percolate, Nelson W. would retire to his study and read all that had been said about it the last time it percolated. He burned the midnight oil so much a kilowatt while many of his colleagues were struggling to get past with a split flush.

It got so that whenever the senator from Rhode Island arose to refute somebody, he became a 30 to 1 shot. He was known as the greatest refuter in congress until one day Senator J. P. Dulliver of Iowa got up and exploded some of Rhode Island's choicest views concerning the wool tariff. From that day to this, whenever Nelson W. meets a sheep, he calls for a cold towel.

Aside from telling the senate how, when, where and why it should vote on any given proposition, Nelson W. has made one of his best life-sized bogies we have had in recent years. Nobody visited Washington without clamoring to see his hoofs and horns. When Nelson W. and "Uncle Joe" Cannon happened to get together, which they very seldom did, for the looks of the thing, people claimed that they threw off more bromine than a match factory.

Senator Aldrich retired just in time to avoid being impaled by the bull moose or trampled on by the elephant. He is now a plain rural citizen and can walk down town without having anxious mothers call their offspring in from the street. Meanwhile, the senate has been trying to get somewhere without any head, although several are in training.

The Cute Man

And The Cute Man's Cousin Take In The Town.

The Cute Man's cousin is here with a load of fish, and yesterday being dull they took a stroll down town to take in the sights.

The Cute Man's cousin is one of that much sought after class, that invade stores "pricing" before they get their fish out, but not being able to induce the Cute Man to accompany him he cut out "pricing" yesterday.

The Cute Man's cousin was simply dazed with the sights in town. He stood open-mouthed and gazed on the fleetly automobiles as they sped by.

Wonderful machines, said the Cute Man's cousin. They must cost a world of money, and I suppose they're mostly owned by Government members, bank managers and insurance agents?

Quite a lot of 'em are owned by these kind of people, said the Cute Man, but now and again the poor doctor that is living from hand to mouth strikes a second-hand machine at a bargain, and a few of our fish dealers manage to get one on the long credit system. They could never afford it any other way, you know, as there's no money in trading in fish. Just then the Cute Man's cousin started to cross the street, but the snort of a big machine nearly knocked him off his padder and he again took to the sidewalk.

A fellow should make his will and have all his business settled up, said the Cute Man's cousin, before he'd come to St. John's in those days. Why, this simply shocking way these blooming machines travel in this town, and oh, the smell they leave behind them, why 'tis no wonder the hospital is filled to overflowing and there's so much sickness in town.

My dear fellow, says the Cute Man, you shouldn't talk like that about these machines, as they have an awful lot to put up with. The owners have their eyes all twisted trying to keep out of trouble, for we have cases in this town where the horses have been actually guilty of getting upon the fender, so persistent are they to meet them, for we have relations arriving from up along daily who tell us that the pedestrian got the right of way every time; and whilst before now we used to run for all we were worth, we now just mope along and run the risk of being bowled over, for if you can manage to be knocked down in a decent manner by one of those "tearails," you'd scoop more dough off the owner than you'd make in the Straits on a good summer's fishing.

Just then they were passing the Board of Trade Building and the Cute Man's cousin suggested, that they'd take a peep in and behold the big rush of business that was going on in this Hive of Industry. The Cute Man led the way and they entered.

The Cute Man's cousin seemed bewildered, not by the rush, but rather by the stillness that pervaded the atmosphere. They entered the room to the right in which a big black board occupied a prominent position, and the Cute Man's cousin eager to grasp any cheap information that was going, started in to read from the board. He gazed for a moment or two and then turned to the Cute Man. Why, said he, this is all double Dutch to me, wonder what 'tis all about.

That's Spanish, says the Cute Man. 'Tis no use bothering your brains over that, 'twas the Spanish element that held a meeting here to-day, and you'll only have to wait and come around again when the Natives have their innings.

Nice quiet place to die, says the Cute Man's cousin, looking at the disturbance you'd have a good chance of making your soul.

Well, we can't make things lively for you, says the Cute Man, anyhow you'll be held in the greatest number a Canadian jail, has sheltered for nearly a century. The nearest approach to this was in 1838 when four men were hanged for treason.

Special to Evening Telegram:

BELFAST, Sept. 27.

In the absence of the Duke of Abercorn, Lord Londonderry presided at tonight's meeting. Among those on the platform were Sir Edward Carson, Marquis Salisbury, Baron Wintony DeBroke, Lord Beresford, Earl of Kilmoney, Clon William and Leitham, and F. E. Smith and other Unionist members of Parliament. Lord Londonderry in opening the proceedings said the determination of the Unionists of Ulster to oppose the Home Rule Bill had never been more significantly shown than in the campaign which was just closing. Those that signed the covenant to-morrow, he believed, would abide by it at all hazards. Premier Asquith and John Redmond will learn from it, he continued, that Ulster is not bluffing. The covenant will be something they cannot ignore. Many letters, from prominent leaders were read. "These apologized for their stand and expressed sympathy with the object of the meeting. Bonar Law, the Unionist leader, in the Commons, wrote, 'victory in my opinion is certain. As leader of the largest party in the House of Commons I am in a position to assure the people of Ulster that in this struggle they do not stand alone, but can rely upon the whole support of the Union Party.' Arthur J. Balfour's letter said, 'Nothing can make me believe that the British people, or even the House of Commons, would ever attempt to drive Ulster out of the union. Let me not be told that there will be no force. But the Government, sufficiently wicked or a House of Commons sufficiently subservient to say to Ulster, leave us or we will shoot you down.'"

QUEBEC, Sept. 27.

Barbara Wylie, English suffragette, arrived this morning. She stated she had come here having been promised help by Canadian and English women in Canada. They had forced the fight in England, but in this country she considered the people were too sensitive to force such tactics. However, if they were obliged to make nuisances of themselves to win, they would employ the same tactics here as in England.

LONDON, Sept. 27.

A ball which was to be given at Balmoral to-night by King George was cancelled. The reason for it not being held is caused much speculation. The general opinion is that His Majesty was too busy consulting with Grey on the political situation in Ireland to give his attention to a social function.

CATALONA, Sept. 27.

Riots among the troops in to-day were suppressed only after the gendarmes had shot the ringleaders. A few trains are still running with military crews, encountering many difficulties. ### A Venerable Priest.

Yesterday the Telegram made allusion to the death of Rev. Fr. Wisell at Wilkesbarre, the oldest priest of the Redeemptorist order. Many had brought to their minds the mission given by the deceased priest here helped as he was by Fathers Kolb and Kant. Missions were given at the Cathedral and St. Patrick's and the morning service generally began at 2 o'clock and in the evening at 7. Thousands attended and all three proved to be most eloquent preachers and did a good work in the city. They also held missions over the Bay.

SATURDAY SPECIAL—Ladies' Piece Lined Underwear, good heavy garments, no imperfections, every garment sound, at 50c. per garment. This Underwear is all we say it is and well worthy of special mention.

Broken Pledges.

In exposing yesterday the Morris Administration's complete disregard of the planks of their platform which come nearest home to the welfare of the people, we directed special attention to the fact that no legislative provision has been made for the comfortable and sanitary housing of labourers when engaged where industries call them, coal has not been cheapened, and the prime necessities of life have not been put on the Free list. On the contrary, labourers complain more bitterly now of their housing than they have ever done before, coal is dearer than ever it was, and generally the cost of living has gone up very considerably, and the evil has become especially grievous in Newfoundland owing to the exasperating folly of exacting higher taxation on the necessities of life when the cost of the imports also rises.

But the disregard of the living interest of the people is in accord with the general administration of public affairs. Public monies are expended to get a political value of the Tory party who were elected to sit in the House of Assembly. Fees are scattered around in the utmost profusion. Money is spent in all directions among heifers at Exhibitions. A host of men have been provided with an annual salary in connection with an Agricultural policy, and instead of creating Elective Boards as promised that outport settlements might manage their own local affairs, money has been cut up and doled out amongst an army of special commissioners, a gross outrage of the solemn pledge of Sir Edward Morris that a simple and inexpensive means of selecting Road Boards would be provided that outport people might "have a fuller share in the management of their local affairs."

He Jumped Overboard

While Prospero Was Going at Full Speed.

By the Prospero there arrived a man named Hynes who is violently insane and who was taken to the asylum immediately the ship was tied up to her pier. A man accompanied him and while he was asleep Thursday morning at 5, the insane man quietly crept from his berth, stealthily gained the deck and jumping up on the taffrail slipped into the water. The ship was running at full speed and second officer Saunders, was on the bridge. Fortunately some passengers who were on deck witnessed the man's fall and gave the alarm. The engines were put at full speed astern, as the man had fallen away back in the ship's wake, the steamer was quickly turned and boat quickly thrown out and manned. The men rowed with might and main towards where they believed the unfortunate might be and were just in time to effect a rescue. Only his right hand was above water and he was going down for the last time. The boat was pulled aboard the ship utterly unconscious, in fact it was feared he was dead. He was rushed aboard the ship, a large quantity of water was poured over him and stimulants administered. Later and after much trouble with him he revived and was very ill all the rest of the trip. He belongs to Bryant's Cove near LaSalle.

Mayor Ellis presided and the full Board was present at yesterday's meeting of the Council.

Supt. Morris, of the Reid Co.'s Electrical Department, wrote saying that certain lights complained of were not under the control of the Company.

It was decided to ask the Company to place an arc light near Job's Bridge, the Council to take half the cost.

James Kearsey was appointed as caretaker at Winsor Lake.

Residents of Governor's Lane protested against the erection of a stable there, but as the Health Authorities had approved of it the Council could not interfere.

The executor of the estate of the late Sir James Winter offered a piece of land running eastward from Robinson's Hill, to open a road.

The Council accepted the offer.

Balss, Jones and Balss, London, acknowledged order for 50 iron tree guards.

Thomas Bros. for some residents of Alandale Road, wrote that the people would contribute half the cost if a sewer were laid there. The Engineer will see the place and report.

Annie Grams, request to repair house on Leslie Street was referred to the Engineer, as well as Campbell & McKay's request to be permitted to place a motor in their store.

Mr. H. W. Levesque was given permission to erect a barn at King's Bridge Road, and Mr. W. J. Ryan will get sewerage to his new dwelling, Howley Avenue, J. Reid can repair his house, Freshwater Road, and plans for W. D. Reid's new garage were approved.

The road between the General Hospital and Buttrine Factory, complained of by Sec. Harris, of the Board of Works, will be improved.

James Stamp sent in plans of house and stable which he proposes erecting in Brazil's Field. They were referred to the Health Officer, and residents will be asked to forward in writing any objections they might hold.

Taxes on Motors.

In answer to a question for information tabled by Councillor Mullyly some time ago, Secretary Slattery tabled the statement of amounts paid by motor owners to date. They are:

Automobiles .....$1,683.33
Motor Cycles ..... 165.00
Drivers ..... 540.00

Total .....$2,388.33

Councillor Mullyly was not satisfied with this, averred it was $600 short of the estimates and that there was an evasion of payment on the part of many.

The Secretary denied this, said that several had paid up within the past few days, when the Councillor retorted that this upheld his contention and that these taxes should have been paid long ago. He asserted that how the receipts in this account were so short.

The Secretary observed that when the estimates were compiled there was an error of $600, which was corrected when the estimates were recompiled.

Councillor Mullyly held it was for the Council not the police to act, and said he would prove that auto owners were evading the matter of paying their taxes. He did not believe 14 autos were idle, and would refer again to this matter at the next meeting.

The Board decided to continue the extension of the sewer along Cornwall Avenue though it will cost several thousand dollars.

A general discussion then followed the employment of labour there. Councillor Martin held that none but city labourers be employed and backed his contention by a motion. The others thought that this matter might be left in the Engineer's hands. Councillor Martin held to his point that only city labourers be employed. The Engineer was given power to act, but the city labourers will get the preference.

New Sewer.

A new sewer will be laid along Le-Marchant Road to take surface water and that from freshets along to the Casey Street sewer, thus stopping washouts on Pleasant Street, in future.

Councillor Conker referred to the Contractor building Anthony Joseph's place, Water Street, blocking the sidewalk. The Mayor and Councillors Mullyly and Ryan thought they were acting within their rights and the matter dropped.

A crossing will be laid on Mullock Street.

With the passing of the equal accounts and pay roll the meeting adjourned.

Belfast Demonstration Against Home Rule.

KING WILLIAM'S FLAG OF THE BATTLE OF THE BOYNE PRESENTED TO SIR EDWARD CARSON, WHO DECLARED, "IF THEY WISH TO FIGHT, THEN BY HEAVEN WE ARE READY."

Special Evening Telegram. BELFAST, To-day. The singing of the national anthem by an audience of three thousand persons, comprising everybody representative of Belfast's great industrial, mercantile, civil and religious community last night brought to a close the great anti-Home Rule meeting in the Ulster Hall amid a fervor not equalled even by the Home Rule Convention of 1892.

The meeting renewed the adoption of a resolution passed by that convention protesting against the Home Rule parliament for Ireland. The supreme dramatic moment of the memorable gathering was the unfurling and presentation to Sir Edward Carson, chief propagandist of the banner of King William of Boyne, amidst frenzied cheering of the spectators. No pronouncement of Unionist policy was made at the meeting. Ulster's watchword is: "We will not have Home Rule," but none of the various speakers nor letters of influential Unionist leaders which were read in their absence attempt to reveal a plan of resistance. If such plan exists, should King George sign a Home Rule measure. The day, however, gave a remarkable indication of Ulster's determination not to accept Home Rule.

This determination was expressed in an orderly and enthusiastic manner, which can hardly be overestimated by the Government with food for serious reflection. The Weekly Outlook makes the startling announcement that one-third of the officers of the British Army are Irishmen over 90 per cent. of them are Unionist Protestants and that they are now considering how to resign their commissions in order to lead Ulster in arms against Home Rule. Before the commencement of the meeting, a vast crowd congregated. The hall was decorated with Union Jacks. The most conspicuous feature of the decorative scheme was a device stretched across the front of the platform with big letters which read "We will not have Home Rule." The Government has wrecked the constitution," said Landdowne's letter, "but it also has succeeded in wrecking its own reputation." Recent by-elections have revealed the extent to which it is discredited. In its attempt to wreck the union it will fall, as its predecessors failed in 1886 and 1893. The Lord Mayor of Belfast after reading the letters moved a resolution denouncing Home Rule. There was a dramatic scene when Carson rose to speak. The entire audience stood and cheered him for seven minutes. Carson then refrained "For he's a jolly good fellow." Col. Wallace, representing Orangemen, presented to Carson the King's banner of King William of Boyne at the Battle of the Boyne. Amidst the cheering of the audience Carson holding the flag aloft replied to Wallace: "I accept this flag as a token of victory over Home Rule and liberty. I hand it back to you as an ask you to keep it as a sacred trust until we have killed the conspiracy that confronts us." Carson then returned the banner to the King's representative. He expressed thanks for the gift. Sir Edward proceeded, "We are not in doubt in defiance but in defence. The covenant means to carry out all the things that are in the mind of the covenant means to the very end, whatever the consequences may be. I will tell the government with your sanction that under no circumstances will we accept Home Rule for Ireland." The resolution denouncing Home Rule for Ireland was carried by acclamation, amid renewed scenes of enthusiasm. Sir Edward then addressed an overflow meeting of twenty thousand in front of the hall. His appearance on the balcony under the folds of the Boyne flag was the tremendous moment of the demonstration. Sir Edward made a stirring speech, concluding it by saying: "We wish peace but not at any price. We will preserve our right and tell those who govern, without fear or hesitation, that if they wish to fight then by heaven we are ready." Repeated waves of cheering followed Sir Edward's return into the hall. The crowd then formed itself into a procession and marched into the streets cheering, singing, and in some cases blank shots from revolvers. Sir Edward and the police at no time had to interfere with the marches on account of disorder.

Something Wrong With Mail Work.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—For the benefit of myself and many others who are wondering what delays our mails, I wish to ask the P. M. G. if he will kindly, through the columns of your paper, give us some information on the subject. He is now, of course, in a position to do so, since the Inspector, (Mr. Campbell), has made his inspection of the district offices.

That it is a disgrace for any department to have its work handled in such a loose and unbusiness like way cannot be denied and until the matter is made public, the neglect and inefficiency are shown up things will remain as they are. In April last mail matter was delivered ranging from the 9th of Nov. till 26th of March. Again in July we received papers dated from February up till July 1st. A letter posted at Currant Island on May 17th, was delivered at Grignon July 21st. Important letters from the Mission at St. Anthony's were delivered three days after Prospero's arrival.

I could go on and on enumerating such things but I think I have said enough to let the P. M. G. know that there is "something wrong." I admit that any one may make a mistake but so many of them can only mean carelessness and in justice to those who are trying to do their duty the gully ones should be exposed. It is time for a change and we need it before 1913. Thanking you for space, I remain,

Yours truly,

Keep Your Liver and 30 Feet of Bowels Clean With Delicious "Syrup of Figs."

Primitive folks did not need laxatives. They lived outdoors, ate plenty of fruit, and all of their food was coarse. We modern people are different. We exercise too little, eat little fruit, and our food is too fine-fooled.

We simply can't have our ten yards of bowels clogged up, liver choked with sour bile and stomach full of foul effete matter and feel well. It means that the food and waste retained in the stomach and thirty feet of bowels ferments—decays. The decay creates poisonous gases and acids, and these poisons are sucked into the blood through the very ducts intended to suck in the nutriment. Then we have sick headaches, become dull, bilious, tongue coated, nervous, restless, and we feel miserable all day long. So, we must make our choice.

Montreal Man Shot In His Home

Posse of Armed Men Are Searching for Giant Negro.

Montreal, Sept. 23.—Louis Betournay, fifty-two years old, is dying in the Royal Victoria Hospital, while an armed posse of fifty men strong and his numbers constantly augmented is tracking down a giant negro who shot Betournay early this morning in his home at St. Lambert. Betournay had come down stairs from his bed room to light the fires. He found the negro crouched under a table in the corner of the kitchen. Kicking him he ordered the man out of the house.

The intruder sullenly emerged and Betournay started to leave the room. The negro stealthily followed him along the hall and suddenly whipping out a revolver fired three shots in rapid succession. The first crashed through Betournay's back, and the other two went wild. The negro leaped past his victim, darted out the front door and down the street, but despite his wound Betournay chased him. For nearly a quarter of a mile he kept up the pursuit, but as loss of blood made him weaker, he was forced to give up the chase, and staggering back to his room collapsed.

The negro was seen around St. Lambert for several days, and his hat, dropped on the lawn as he fled, gave a clue to the police, and a posse was organized. The negro had disappeared into the woods back of St. Lambert and at noon had not been located, although it is inevitable that he will before nightfall be rounded up. He is expected to put up a desperate resistance.

The Spectacular Feature.

Making a Show of Poor Old Fishermen. Editor Evening Telegram. Being here doing business for a couple of weeks I was struck by an article that I saw in the "Chronicle," speaking of the old huckeeyed falsehood about Bond's Secret Letter. Well this is an old designing falsehood chiefly designed to cover up their own iniquitous conduct in handing over to the Railway Contractors about 12 million dollars worth of property for one million dollars. And now, with Premier Morris, their own Premier, looking them in the face and giving the lie to their own utterances they repeat the old lie, heavy with age and reeking with the lowest form of corrupt journalism. Compelled to face Sure Defeat in Advance. Every kind of ruse must be tried to save the reckless crowd from falling in pieces, or from destruction by intestine quarrels. But it is too late now. Our people will neither be lulled, nor bought or sold. They have made up their minds that the plentiers and grab-bills must and their carnival of corruption and that by the largest vote that was ever polled in this country.

Mott's Insulting Dictation. We have been informed that Mott was Premier Morris' Reporter during his canvass of St. Barbe District and these are said to be Mott's own words—at least they are the last words published in the last paragraph of the report of the Morris meetings in St. Barbe, and they are attributed to him—making Mott. Here they are:—"The spectacular feature of the Premier's tour was that at nearly every meeting he had an old age pensioner near him with his pension in his pocket. I think things are come to a pretty pass when a man like H. Y. Mott will dare to mock the misery of our aged people and throw ridicule in their faces. It is bad enough to give old men, at 75 years a pension of $21—the other $24, making up the $45 would be theirs under the poor law—without trying to humiliate them without holding them up as "old sports" turning up everywhere "with their pensions in their pockets."

A More Spectacular Kind of Business. Was it not a more spectacular kind of business where one or two of these sleek and designing grab-bill gentlemen, just for one little scenic trip to the Hague, were permitted to take from the people's funds 12 or 14 thousand dollars—enough to make over a hundred yearly pensions for over a hundred worn-out fishermen, and yet these are the very men that will smile approval when our poor old men are insulted and ridiculed. We can assure our friends that there will be quite a different "spectacular" display in St. Barbe if Mott dare to show his nose there again to solicit the people's votes. The good independent bone and sinew of the old Liberal district of St. Barbe will hurl back the insult offered and then the spectacular feature will really begin. Mr. Editor, when I get back to my home I will not forget to let the people know they are being ridiculed and insulted by the Morris crowd, and you may expect to hear from me how things are going, politically of course.

Be Sensible With That Corn

Don't pare it. That merely removes the top layers. And that form of home surgery is dangerous. A slip of the blade means infection. And that means blood poison, sometimes. A chemist has discovered a way to end corns. This discovery is embodied in our B & B wax—the heart of a Blue-jay plaster. Apply this little plaster and the pain ends at once. Then this B & B wax gently loosens the corn. In two days the whole corn, root and all, comes out. No pain, no soreness. You completely forget the corn. There is no other way to do this. That is why Blue-jay is the only treatment used by folks who know. It has removed already fifty million corns. Let it deal with yours.

A in the picture is the soft B & B wax. It loosens the corn.
B protects the corn, stopping the pain at once.
C wraps around the toe. It is narrowed to be comfortable.
D is rubber adhesive to fasten the plaster on.

Concentration in Clothes.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

A young friend of mine, a recently decided to have about half as many clothes as she now has. No, she has never been a Flora McFlimsey. Nor is she doing this because she wants to give up the vanities of the world. She has simply come to the conclusion that she will get more out of her clothes if she concentrates. This is the way she puts it: "I have always had a lot of clothes, none of them very expensive and not more than half of them especially becoming. Now I don't really need so many and I know I'd enjoy them more if I had fewer and put more thought and money into each dress. Last year I had seven or eight dresses for the summer and there were only three I really liked, and I wore them practically all the time. Next year I'm going to have more than three or four but they are all going to be just right. Of course, I'll have to wear them over and over again but I know I'll be better off."

Don't you think this young person has come to a wise decision?
I do.
Just about three out of every four women have too many clothes. And by too many clothes, I mean just the condition this girl describes—they have more clothes than they can have and have them right.

One of the best dressed women I know among women of moderate incomes has attained this desirable distinction by concentrating in this way. She isn't one of the women whose ambition is to appear in a different gown at every function. On the contrary she has very few clothes but what she has are always perfect.
"I might have twice as many gowns," she said to me once, "if I would be content with what most women in my circumstances are satisfied with. But the way I've thought it out is this—I believe that anyone would rather see me again and again in a thoroughly becoming and attractive gown than to see me in two or three different dresses that weren't any of them particularly attractive. Of course, I'd rather have a lot of lovely gowns, but since, with my income, that isn't possible, I'd rather have a few distinctive things than a lot of nondescript ones."

Now every woman of average income has this choice between quantity and quality to make.
We all want both, but if we can't have them, we must make up our minds which is better.
Which have you chosen?
Ruth Cameron

For The Nervous Woman,

Or the woman who experiences hot flashes nothing is so good to soothe, quiet and calm the nervous system as a pure glyceric extract of native medicinal plants, and made without alcohol, which has been sold by druggists for the past forty years, and most favorably known as Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. In younger years some women suffer from dizziness, or fainting spells, hysteria, headache, bearing-down feelings and pain. All these symptoms of irregularity and female disturbance are relieved by the use of this famous "Prescription" of Doctor Pierce.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system, and in particular to the organs of the female system. For over-worked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, it is an excellent appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

My disease was called neuritis," writes Miss Lizzie McDougall, of Mecosta, Mich., Route 1. "I had nervous chills and numb spells and they would leave me very weak. Then I had inflammation and the doctor said I had a footing away. I doctored seven months with our family physician. He said I would have to have an operation. Then I tried his medicine. After taking three bottles of Dr. Pierce's medicine I have not had any nervous chills or weak spells. I am better than for years."

My daughter is now taking the "Prescription" and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, also the "Pellita" for nervousness and weak, tired feeling. These remedies have helped her ever so much in a short time. We have great faith in your medicines for female troubles."

Household Notes.

If before putting down a carpet the floor is scrubbed with hot water made very salty, and if, after the carpet is laid, it is sprinkled with salt once a week before sweeping, moths will disappear.

When silk is spotted with grease, rub it with French chalk or magnesia, then hold the spotted portion near the fire. The chalk will absorb the grease and can be brushed off, taking the chalk with it.

Bread crumbs can be made quickly by tying stale pieces of bread in a muslin bag and rubbing gently between the hands for a few minutes. The crumbs will be fine enough to use for any purpose.

To get a good light from an oil lamp, the wicks must be changed when they become clogged. Soaking wicks in vinegar twenty-four hours before putting them in the lamps adds in getting a clear flame.

Plain pongee can be washed in soapuds, rinsing well and ironing it before it is quite dry; but as pongee varies in quality, it is best to experiment with a sample to see if water will have a bad effect.

The tag which comes with wool makes a very good start for the ball, and if more wool is needed, the tag, with the number and size of the wool on it, will be there when the end of the ball of wool is reached.

How Nerve Cells Are Broken Down

Every man or woman who works with the brain uses up daily an enormous amount of nerve force. Millions of tiny nerve cells are broken down and must be replaced if mental and bodily efficiency is to be maintained. If brain fog, headaches, sleeplessness or irritability set in, the evidence is plain that nature is not rebuilding as fast as work is breaking down. You cannot allow this depleting process to continue long if nervous prostration or paralysis is to be ward off.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will help you to get the balance on the other side of the account, so that each day will add a little to your stock of health and vitality. A man whose work is largely mechanical may keep going with health below par, but the brain worker must have a clear head or fall behind in the race. Restore the wasted nerve cells with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and know the joys of good health and success.

The Lord's Day Alliance.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Kindly allow me space in your valuable columns to make a few remarks on the letter appearing in your issue of the 23rd inst., signed Pastor R. A. Humbley.

First: Let me say that he did not make a straightforward reply to the question at issue but took a side track in another direction and said that it was not a question with himself, as to which was the right day to observe for the day of rest, or in other words the Sabbath, for the question was settled for all time and Eternity by the Word of God.

Now, Mr. Editor, with all due respect to the Pastor, I differ from him there in that, I cannot think that it was before life and immortality was brought to light by the Gospel so it is to-day.

We understand that in the year 2513 from the Creation, God handed down the Ten Commandments to Moses on Mount Sinai, and the fourth one reads in this way—"Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it Holy, etc." Of course, we all understand that the word Sabbath means rest in the Hebrew tongue.

Now, let us open the Bible and turn to the Book of Numbers, 15, chap. 32-34 verses, inclusive. There we read of a man who was put to death by the order of God for gathering wood on the "Day of Rest," or in other words for desertion of the Sabbath Day. Now I could not tolerate such a law as that for the 20th century or try to enforce such iron rules for Sabbath observance in our day and generation, although I believe it was all right in the laws of Moses, and positively believe that he had to deal with just such characters as we have seen to deal with to-day, who I might say, neither feared God nor regarded man.

In reference to the Fourth Commandment, I would say that to look upon the surface of that Scripture we would be inclined to think that it was a literal and irrevocable decree that went forth from the Great God intended for all time and Eternity. But when we see our Blessed Lord Jesus the incarnate God criticised by the Jews concerning that Commandment and the people who violated it pronounced blameless by the Lord of the Sabbath Day, we view it in a far different light—(Matt. 12 chap. 1-8 verses, inclusive).

Mr. Humbley states in his letter that I do not recognize the underlying principles that actuated the men who fought the Reformation of the 16th Century. Yes, sir, I do. It was religious liberty which the Lord's Day Alliance do not attempt to raise any objection to. We all appreciate liberty, I think I may include the whole posterity of Adam in all ages of the world's history has set a high price on liberty.

In closing my letter I would say that Mr. Gladstone, in my humble opinion, was one of the greatest politicians that ever we had in our British Empire, and as a statesman said: "make it as easy as you can for a man to do right, and if you are not doing that you are not doing your duty as a statesman."

A Worthy Priest.

FATHER CACCIOLA'S HARD TASK.
Some weeks ago a man named Thomas Tobin died at Bar Haven, or what was formerly known as Barron Island, Placentia Bay. About two years before the man fell on the ice and strained the tendons in his side, was sent by Father Cacciola to the Hospital here, at the expense of the good priest, and being a man of good physique he, after some time, pulled through. However the hurt impaired his health and he later developed dropsy with fatal results. Somehow the people got the idea into their heads that the man died of beri beri and none would go near the abode of the dead man whose son, named Michael Tobin, was also ill. Father Cacciola who has studied medicine, assured the people that the disease was not contagious and that they could visit the men, that if it were contagious he would have to acquaint the Health authorities in St. John's, and the fact of this not being done should be an assurance that there was no danger in going to the poor fellow's house. Nothing however could persuade the people that the man had not some terribly virulent and highly contagious malady. Father Cacciola, though he knew the man to be dangerously ill, had business on the mainland and pressed the poor fellow to come here, however he was not uneasy as far as matters appertaining to religion were concerned and when he received word that the man was dead (knowing the peculiar belief which the people held as to the disease from which Tobin suffered), he hurried back home. On arrival he was horrified to find that the man lay dead in his house for nearly ten hours and none would go near the place so fearful were they of contracting what they believed to be a deadly disease. With his own hands, unattended and alone, the good priest washed and dressed for burial the corpse, decently laid it out, and with none but himself and a dead there kept the vigil which is generally observed by his people for two nights. However at his solicitation Thomas Culleton, James Hanlon and Patrick Wadden admiring the priest's devotion came to his aid and after making a coffin aided the priest in putting the remains in it and helped him inter it in the cemetery.

Ten days later, Michael, the poor fellow's son, quite a young chap, died from purely natural causes. Knowing him to be in extremis Fr. Cacciola who was again called to the mainland on parochial duties, administered the last rites of the Church, but believed that the people were reassured by this time would attend to the body. When he returned, however, he found that the same impression prevailed and none would approach the house where the corpse lay for several hours with none to prepare it for burial. Again had the devoted cleric to perform for the son those same sad offices which were necessary for the father and unflinchingly and tenderly did he give his services "waking" the dead boy alone, though he was again helped by the same men as to confining the remains and interring them.

Father Cacciola does not, however, blame the people. They have a horror of beri beri which he believes to be highly contagious and deadly. As a matter of fact the father died of dropsy and the son of lung trouble. However one thing stands prominently forward in this particular case and that is the devotion of this good priest, a highly talented man, but one who is much attached to his flock, and who is doing a noble work for them, educating their children (several at his own expense) and otherwise forwarding their material as well as their Spiritual interests.

Tourist Traffic Over.

The Florizel this trip had only 14 round trippers, and it looks now as if this season's tourist traffic has come to a close. Owing to the cold, wet weather of June, July and August few people travelled, and the number of many who visited here and who intended coming were detained by the reports of those who came along in the Red Cross ships. The number of tourists coming this way from New York was the smallest for several years. As the traffic was not up to expectations several stewards and other help were laid off early from the steamboat lines.

Rev. M. P. Dwyer who has recently been appointed to the Parish of Bonavista, left Holyrood after a short holiday home, on Tuesday evening for his new mission. Father Dwyer was pastor of Grand Falls for the past three years and did his work quietly and acceptably and with good results. The beautiful Church and the Roman Catholic separate school are some of the first fruits of his mission work. The past summer he was sent as missionary priest to the Straits and Labrador.
