Byno Hypophosphites

A General Tonic

An excellent tonic which quickly restores strength and energy to the system when run down, or suffering from the after effects of illness. It stimulates the digestion and enables those who suffer from loss of appetite to enjoy their meals thoroughly and derive full benefit from them. When feeling weak or easily becoming tired after slight exertion, Byno Hypophosphites is invaluable.

Obtainable from all Chemists, Stores, etc., throughout the B.W.I.

The Mystery of Rutledge Hall

OR

"The Cloud With a Silver Lining"

CHAPTER XIV.

"What is love that all the world Talks so much about it? What is love that neither you Nor I can do without it? Love's a tyrant and a slave, A torment and a treasure! Having it, we know no peace, Lacking it, no pleasure."

Dolly Daunt's sweet soprano voice rang gayly through the room, singing the quaint words set to the music of a quaint old melody. Sidney, from her low seat by the fire, glanced over at the singer with a sudden wistful look flashing for a moment into her dark eyes.

The time was that most charming hour of the day between the "gloaming and the morn'g," devoted to afternoon tea and cozy fire-lit chats, when it is too dark to read or work, and too light still to induce one to ring for candles when it is "blind-man's holiday," and there is every excuse for idling and enjoying to the full that sweetness of doing nothing which is so seldom allowed in this busy work-a-day world of ours. And no more delightful place for enjoying the dolce far niente could have been found on that chill gray autumnal evening than Sidney Daunt's drawing-room, with the fire-light dancing up merrily and playing over the costly artistic furniture, the dainty carvings, and the quaint old china with which it was adorned. It was a charming room, beautiful and yet home-like, thoroughly artistic, and yet with an every-day appearance about it, which is a necessary addition if a room is to be really comfortable and cozy. It was a large room, rather low ceiled, with walls painted in a very delicate shade of gray and with silver moldings, while the furniture was a charming mixture of ancient and modern art and foreign treasures, curious and costly Eastern rugs, inlaid ebony tables, low luxurious cabinets and chairs, low luxurious fauteuils, a writing-table which was simply perfect in its happy union of the useful and the beautiful, china everywhere, and flowers in delicious profusion. There was but one opinion about Sidney Daunt's new home in Ashford, that Easthorpe was the perfection of a residence, and that the architect Mr. Daunt had employed to build the house which had been his wedding-present to his son had done his work admirably.

Mrs. Daunt ought to be a happy woman, people said; but the face of the girl lying back in the easy-chair in the fire-light was not the face of a happy woman, not the face which should have been that of a four months' wife, a prosperous and peevish young matron.

"Ah, but Lambwood is nearer Ashford than Easthorpe!"

"Why, Sidney, what nonsense you are talking!" the young girl answered, with a laugh. "Easthorpe is nearly a mile nearer Ashford."

"Is it?" Sidney questioned, negligently. "At any rate it takes your brother longer to drive to Easthorpe than to Lambwood."

Her voice and manner were perfectly indifferent; she might have been speaking of one of the grooms, so entirely careless was her tone. Dolly's pretty face, bent over the silver and Crown Derby china, shadowed over with a look of pain, and her blue eyes had a very wistful expression in their depths as she brought Sidney's tea to her side.

"Mr. Milner's visit will be a very pleasant break in the monotony of our lives," Sidney said, looking up with a little smile, as she held out her hand. "This constant succession of calls and callers is as bad as the treadmill, I imagine. Surely every one has called by this time, Dolly; and I have returned all visits—have I not?"

"I think so," Dolly answered doubtfully. "It is a necessary evil, Sidney."

"Yes; and I could understand it if your brother had married a stranger. Natural curiosity to see the bride would have moved me in that case; but if he had married any girl as well known in Ashford as I was, I certainly should not have been so eager."

"You speak very coolly about his marrying some one else."

"Why not? I can even contemplate it coolly."

"Because it is impossible that he should," said Dolly, laughing.

"Is that why? Well, perhaps so."

There was a short silence; Sidney sipped her tea languidly, and Dolly looked over at her with wistful admiring eyes. She was so changed, so much more beautiful and so much more proud than the girl whom Stephen had married four months before; then she had been so gentle and tender and true, now she seemed so cold and negligent and careless, thinking only of amusement and dress. Could it be true, what some one had hinted in Dolly's hearing, that she had married Stephen for money and position and for deliverance from that home which a stepmother's presence had made unbearable to her?

"We must try to get up some gayety here this winter," Sidney remarked, presently. "Amateur theatricals would be fine, would they not? And the great charm of them is that they give so much employment beforehand. I don't really know how we shall get through our time unless we do something of the kind. It is not life here, you know, Dolly—it is merely existence."

Little Jack Rabbit

by David Cory

After having motored the bunny boy around to every little house, burrow and nest in the Shady Forest and the Sunny Meadow to tell the good news that Old Mr. Dog's Cross Word Puzzle would be printed in the Bunybridge Bugle the following morning, kind Uncle Lucky stopped at the Farmyard, and an additional source of pleasure when the time comes for the last scaffolding of barrier to be cleared away and for the entire structure to be pronounced safe and secure again.

"It stands to reason that whatever the grouting costs, much expenditure will have to be incurred over incidentals of various kinds before everything in the Cathedral can be restored and put back into its place as it should be. The recognition of this need seems to be implied by the excess of the donations over the minimum; every one who has given appears to have thought that the work of restoration should not be done, but done thoroughly. Meanwhile the operations made possible by the Funds are proceeding. The noise caused by them in the building is not wholly ungrateful to the ear, nor would remote supporters of the Cathedral in Yukon and New Zealand find it harsh if it could be conveyed to them by wireless transmission."

"I'll surely buy the paper," Crowded Little Cockey Doodle. "But if I do not find my name I'll scold that old Kiyoodle."

answered the little rooster. They away sped dear Uncle Lucky with his bunny nephew, who was now half asleep, weary from having shouted the good news all the afternoon to his many friends.

By this time the shadows were creeping through the valley and up the hill, and in the distance the whip-poor-will was singing. From the treetops the katydids were sounding their calls and now then Hooty Tooty Owl from the forest depths sounded his weird "Who-o, who-o!" Looking down for a moment at the little rabbit, Uncle Lucky saw that he was now sound asleep. "Ker-runk, ker-runk!" croaked Granddaddy Bullfrog from his log in the Old Mill Pond. The next minute Tommy Trestoad sang from a nearby tree. Dear me, what sleepy naps! No wonder the bunny boy still dreamed of Cross Word Puzzles and

St. Paul's Appeal

Oversubscribed

A WORLD-WIDE RESPONSE.

London, Sept. (Canadian Press).—Thanks to a heavy response from all parts of the world, which resulted in contributions continuing long after the time had officially elapsed, the funds for restoration of St. Paul's Cathedral has now reached the high mark of a quarter of a million sterling. The Times announces: For weeks past a small but persistent aftermath of contributions to the Fund for the Preservation of St. Paul's has continued, and at the end of August the grand total of subscriptions received since the appeal was launched in January amounts to a quarter of a million pounds.

A quarter of a million is nearly twice as much as the Dean and Chapter found it their duty to ask for at the beginning of the year; for their Commission of experts, who had taken over three years to consider the problem, put the required amount at £120,000 of £140,000. The appeal had not been before the public longer than a fortnight when, on St. Paul's Day, the Fund handsomely exceeded the greater of these two sums. It was evident, however, that that crowning day in response to the appeal would certainly not be the last on which money would be collected, and from then until now contributions have flowed in.

"The distance from which some of the latest contributions have come are as typical as any of the far places in the Globe over which St. Paul's casts its glamour," says the Times. One cheque hails from Yukon, another from Ballarat, another from Geelong, and a fourth from the Diocese of Christchurch, New Zealand. Nothing could have better illustrated the unity of the English race than their loyalty to the Cathedral Church of the mother city of the Empire.

"It is not to be supposed that all who have given to its support have seen St. Paul's with their own eyes; but its name and fame and shape are a common possession. It is the first building which newcomers to London desire to visit, as the crowds daily to be found in the nave and crypt prove. To have seen St. Paul's now, in the days of its abbreviated glory, will no doubt be a cherished memory to many, and an additional source of pleasure when the time comes for the last scaffolding of barrier to be cleared away and for the entire structure to be pronounced safe and secure again."

"It stands to reason that whatever the grouting costs, much expenditure will have to be incurred over incidentals of various kinds before everything in the Cathedral can be restored and put back into its place as it should be. The recognition of this need seems to be implied by the excess of the donations over the minimum; every one who has given appears to have thought that the work of restoration should not be done, but done thoroughly. Meanwhile the operations made possible by the Funds are proceeding. The noise caused by them in the building is not wholly ungrateful to the ear, nor would remote supporters of the Cathedral in Yukon and New Zealand find it harsh if it could be conveyed to them by wireless transmission."

Manna to Retire

DERBY WINNER WHICH WON £23,534 FOR HIS OWNER.

Mr. Morris has decided to retire Manna, this year's Derby winner, forthwith.

The horse injured himself at Doncaster, sustaining concussion of the fetlock and in a lesser degree of the knee joint of the off foreleg. It is believed it happened before the race for the St. Leger, for as he was going to the post another horse came across him and Donoghue had to pull him very sharply to one side.

Manna, who is by Phalaris out of Wadlee, was bred by Mr. J. J. Maher and was bought by Mr. H. B. Morris, the millionaire Shanghai broker, for £400 guineas at the Doncaster September sales in 1923, and he sent the colt to be trained by Mr. Fred Darling at Beekhampton.

This season Manna made turf history by winning both the Two Thousand Guineas, worth £10,240, and the Derby, worth £11,095, but before his bad fall at Doncaster he had finished third to Solario, the St. Leger winner, and Sparus in the Ascot Derby.

Grilled Partridge

BY AN OLD MAID.

"Partridge roasted; partridge boiled; partridge grilled"—it should be grilled, if it might have the choice. And September's other gift, mushrooms, appeals to me also. A bird that has hung as long as I dare let it, clear, steady fire, and a gridiron heated and rubbed with suet—with these I could achieve a fair repeat. With the feathers in a basket at my feet and a lighted spill of white paper in my hand, I would sing the partridge quickly; then, draw out and split it lengthwise in two, and dry it inside and out as wisdom dictates. A few seconds more, and I would have the partridge seasoned with cayenne and salt.

With the lid on the gridiron I would not lift my eyes from the bars for an instant—not till twenty minutes had passed and my September lunch was done. I would rub it with butter and stand the bird in the oven while I attended to the mushrooms. The oven would not be too hot and the door would be ajar.

Grilling the Mushrooms.

Little mushrooms, "button" ones just grown fat-headed, are always best for grilling. They would be peeled and be placed upside down on the gridiron, where I had lifted out each stalk I should press a tiny pat of butter, and strew over it white pepper and salt. When they were cooked—I should taste one to see—they would be laid in a hot dish with more butter placed here and there.

If I might choose, the grilled partridge would be served with the mushrooms, and both would be "very" hot.

After having motored the bunny boy around to every little house, burrow and nest in the Shady Forest and the Sunny Meadow to tell the good news that Old Mr. Dog's Cross Word Puzzle would be printed in the Bunybridge Bugle the following morning, kind Uncle Lucky stopped at the Farmyard, and an additional source of pleasure when the time comes for the last scaffolding of barrier to be cleared away and for the entire structure to be pronounced safe and secure again.

"It stands to reason that whatever the grouting costs, much expenditure will have to be incurred over incidentals of various kinds before everything in the Cathedral can be restored and put back into its place as it should be. The recognition of this need seems to be implied by the excess of the donations over the minimum; every one who has given appears to have thought that the work of restoration should not be done, but done thoroughly. Five Burgeo Seamen Drowned When Schr. Inez G. Capsizes

War With Turkey Unlikely Says Dominions Secretary--No Hope For 34 Men Entombed in S-51--Dr. Harvey J. Howard Rescued From Chinese Bandits.

DISASTER OVERTAKES BURGO SEAMEN

SYDNEY, N.S., Sept. 27.—The schooner Inez G. of Burgeo, Nfld., and five seamen were drowned last night when the vessel capsized about three miles off Lunenburg, according to reports from the coast guard. The men drowned were Captain Vatcher, Robert Strickland, Edward Harris, John Hiscok, R. Strickland and James Wheeler. All of the men were from Burgeo, save Wheeler, whose home is in North Sydney, where he leaves a wife and seven children. Kenneth Bragg, Burgeo, and George Bangay, North Sydney, were saved. They got to shore in a dory which Bangay was able to get afloat as the schooner went down. Bangay and Wheeler, swordfishermen, were on the Inez G., getting a passage back to North Sydney from the fishing ground.

CAPTAIN DETERMINED TO GO DOWN WITH HIS SHIP.

SYDNEY, N.S., Sept. 28.—"If she goes down I'll go down with her," were the last words spoken by Captain Vatcher before the Inez G. capsized, according to Bragg, one of the two men saved.

DOMINIONS' SECRETARY SCOUTS IDEA OF WAR.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—On arrival here this evening, Col. L. C. Amery, Secretary of State for the Dominions, fresh from the Geneva League of Nations Council sessions, scouted the possibility of war with Turkey which had preceded him in rumors from the Geneva sessions. Col. Amery regretted that a final settlement of the Mosul difficulty was necessarily postponed three months until the World Court meets at the Hague, but believed there was no danger of frontier warfare between Turkish and British forces so long as the League of Nations representative remained on the scene.

ALL HOPE FOR SUBMARINE CREW ABANDONED.

NEW LONDON, Sept. 27.—Naval officers declared to-night there was no hope of raising submarine S-51 from her deathbed, 125 feet under water, a few miles off Block Island, until to-morrow noon, and believe there is no possible hope that any of the 34 men who went down with their vessel, when the submarine was rammed Friday night by the steamer City of Rome, can be saved alive.

LEAGUE ASSEMBLY ADJOURNS.

Queen of Rum 'Runners' Regains Control

LONDON, Sept. 21.—Madame Gloria De Vere Casares, whom the London papers call "the beautiful rum runner" asserted recently that she had regained control of her schooner, the General Serrett, appointed a new skipper and settled the difficulties with the crew over the matter of wages.

She said that her new skipper, Capt. O'Flaherty, has boarded the ship but will not assume command until Monday, as Captain Whitburn, the former commander is off on leave, but is still considered to be in command.

Madame Casares is receiving many offers from movie producers and newspapers for the use of her life story for filming or for serial articles.

It is now reported that the owners of the liquor cargo, which the schooner shipped at Antwerp and which was destined to be run through the United States dry fleet to the arid United States, wireless the ship soon after she left Antwerp not to proceed to Halifax. The General Serrett put into Dover and later was brought to London, where the liquor cargo was unloaded.

British Idea of Dominion Blamed

Bishop Bidwell Declares Canadian Patriotism is Questioned.

OTTAWA, Sept. 19.—(C.P.A.—R.) Rev. Dr. Bidwell, Bishop of Ontario, speaking at the University Club of Ottawa, on the question of immigration yesterday, told his audience that one of the reasons why the Dominion of Canada was not getting its fair share of British immigrants, was that in England there was an idea abroad that Canada was not so much British as some of the other Dominions.

"There is an idea over there that we in Canada are more American in our views and customs. For instance, they do not want to be deprived of their glass of beer when they emigrate. They know that we in Ontario, until recently, were not able to get our glass of beer, and they object to being deprived of that," the Bishop said.

Bishop Bidwell said he had found in his 21 trips to England there was far too much ignorance about conditions in Canada. This wide-spread ignorance had amazed him, he said. There was a certain amount of mistrust of Canada over there also, he had found. He thought this might have arisen from the "unfortunate Grand Trunk Railway affair." He had discovered an idea among English people too, that British people were not wanted in Canada.

He said that he thought this might have sprung from the fact that the other Dominions offered much cheaper rates to emigrants. They could do a six weeks' journey to New Zealand or Australia, for 12 and 15 pounds while for a week's voyage to Canada it cost them £18. This had had something to do with the inequality in the amount of immigration coming to Canada as compared with the other Dominions.

One the other hand there was a most extraordinary interest taken over in the old land in everything Canadian. He had been simply snowed under with requests to address meetings in England during his recent visit. People were suspicious of the official information sent out by the Government, but were eager for information from unofficial sources.

A King at Wedding of Bricklayer

ROYAL TOAST AT VILLAGE INN.

King Alfonso, during a recent visit to Escorial, accompanied by several court officials, stopped his motor-car at a village inn, where a bricklayer's wedding breakfast was proceeding amidst the greatest jollity.

The King entered and was immediately recognized. He shook hands with all the guests, and the bridegroom shouted to the innkeeper to bring champagne, but the King declared he preferred ordinary table wine, in which he drank the health of the newly married couple, accepting a cigar, which he smoked before leaving.

ALL NIGHT ON EMBANKMENT WITH SEVERED FOOT.

Hearing moans while on the way to Houghton railway station, near Blackton, a woman looked over the embankment and saw Stanley Orme, aged 12, of Franklin Street, Blackburn, whose left foot had been severed. He also had injuries to his thigh and head, and was in an exhausted condition through loss of blood and exposure.

He told the police that when out for a walk he was knocked down by a train. He managed to crawl from the line to the embankment, and had been there since 8.30 on Monday night. After first aid had been rendered he was removed to the infirmary.

Fashion's Latest Inspirations

Green is to be the most fashionable colour for evening wear. Vivid shades of "grass" and emerald will be preferred.

Black silk stockings are returning to favour. Lemon-yellow hose is considered the smartest complement to a black evening toilette.

Red ermine is the latest "novelty" in furs. It looks magnificent on red chiffon-velvet theatre cloaks. Bottle-green shaved lamb is being used for quaint Eton jackets which are to have a big vogue when the colder weather sets in.

The newest handbags are made of white serpent skin. Patchwork is making another attempt to regain popular favour. This time it is seen on smart pull-on hats made of pieces of metal ribbon, kid wool, silk and fur. Striking short coats are also made of crazy-work.

MISSIONARIES WHOM BANDITS KIDNAPPED.

A brief message received at the Church Missionary Society's headquarters recently from Mienyang in Szechwan Province, announces that the eight British missionaries and a child, kidnapped from the summer resort, North Cheng-tu, on August 6, have been released by the bandits.

The captives are reported to be safe and well. Their release is believed to have been effected by the action of the Chinese authorities, who sent a force of soldiers to pursue the brigands operating from the hills.

The party included Bishop and Mrs. Mowll.

Belvedere Orphanage Collection

Yesterday's collection for the Belvedere Orphanage totalled the handsome sum of $4700 which was a slight decrease from last year.

Following the usual custom the collectors proceeded to the Convent Rectory where the various amounts were formally handed over by Messrs. J. C. Pippy of the Cathedral, M. Bambrick of St. Patrick's and R. Smith of St. Joseph's. The latter parish had the distinction of registering an increase over last year.

Rev. Dr. Carter, Chaplain of the Convent, graciously accepted the collection and thanked all present for their efforts, making special mention of the new superiors, Mother Patrick, who replaces the present Mother General, Philippa.

Mr. J. J. Lacey took occasion to move a hearty vote of appreciation of the generosity of the city press and Chairman Pippy referred to the big advt. financed by the Knights of Columbus.

Before the close an appeal was made for concerted effort and an enlarged committee membership and a formal motion to this effect was made by Mr. Comerford, seconded by Mr. Lacey, after which the gathering dispersed.

WOULD YOU GO BACK?

"Would you go back to a man if he admitted that he had been unfaithful to you?"

A Letter Friend asks me what I think about this one of the oldest and most poignant human problems. It is not easy to give a simple answer to that question.

Once, many years ago, I could have given a short and very simple answer. A word of two letters uttered with great finality would have sufficed to settle the matter.

But as we grow older, we tend to grow less sure about many things. No One Knows Till The Time Comes. Besides, though she asks it in that form, she doesn't really want to know what I would do. And I couldn't tell her if she did, because no one can really tell what he or she will do when faced with certain conditions until the conditions come.

What she really wants to know, I suppose, is what I think about the problem as a whole.

And all I can say is that a hundred factors might enter into it.

The first two would be whether the man still loved his wife, and whether they had children.

If a man came to you and told you that he loved some other woman more than you, you would probably want to give him up.

Worth The Humiliation.

If he came to you and told you that he had been unfaithful to you but that he really still cared for you more than anyone on earth, you would probably want to try to patch things up. You would realize that a great deal of happiness might lie before you if you could somehow pass through this painful time and you might think it worth the humiliation and the readjustment and the submerging of self and of vanity. To grow old with the husband or wife of your youth with a thousand shared memories and tendernesses between you is a beautiful thing. It is worth much sacrifice. And I hope if you decided to make the sacrifice you would not forget that it means the future as well as the present, that it would mean that you would not keep this as a bone of contention between you, but as something that would be buried and forgotten as far as possible.

Then, of course, the existence of children is a vital factor. For the sake of the children many a woman stays with a man who she knows no longer loves her. It must be one of the bitterest things to have to give up one's pride as well as one's happiness. Perhaps, though, the reward may be that in the end the man may discover that what he thought was love was after all only infatuation, and his wife will not only have saved the home for the children but will find that his heart has come back to her.

Don't Forget The Temptation.

Another factor that I do not think women should forget is the amount of temptation. It does not justify a man that his wife was wrapped up in babies and the home and that other women deliberately tried to charm him, but it does, somewhat explain him. A wife might ask herself, "If my opportunity and temptation were as great as I sure that I would be stronger? I dream sometimes of an imaginary lover who understands me and adores me. I always think of myself as sending him away but am I sure that I would?"

What would I do in my Letter Friends position? God knows. I don't. And, like every woman, I hope I shall never find out.

But perhaps some woman who does know because she has passed through this fiery furnace can tell us how she decided and why, and thereby help other women.

As Pat approached Mike sitting beside a mudpuddle with his jaw pulled out as if he had had a toothache, he asked: "Wot is you doing, Mike?"

Mike: "Fishing."

Pat: "Well, wot you got in your mouth?"

Mike: "Worms."

FOOLS AND FOLLY.

"I've been a fool," a young man said, in anguish, to his lawyer; that he might paint the village red he stole from his employer.

"I traveled with a crowd too swift, which caused him grievous losses; he stealthily began to lift the coin that was his boss's. Of course he knew that this was wrong, but he was smooth and clever, and he'd put back the coin ere long, and then go straight forever. And now we see him in the jail, his projects in abatement; 'I've been a fool,' we hear him wail, and we endorse his statement. So often men don't realize the wisdom of their folly until in jail they swat the flies, in woe and melancholy. And then, their lives reduced to wreck, their folly, as they view it, seems monstrous, and they cry, 'By heck, what demon made us do it?' All lads are fools who leave the road of honest men and steady; for them the harpoon and the god of Nemesis are ready. All men are fools who yearn to spend more money than they're earning, who tap the till that they may wend where garish lights are burning. Far better live on shredded hay and wear old hats and whiskers, than chase along the Great White Way, among the giddy friskers, and know, while quaffing bleakers cool, that some day you'll be moaning in bitter tones, 'I've been a fool!' where prison doors are groaning.

500,000 H. P. From the Fundy Tides

NEW YORK, Sept. 24—Development of power from the tides of Passamaquoddy Bay, a project approved by the people of Maine in a referendum vote, would result in formation of an electrical system costing $100,000,000 and covering New England, according to engineers who surveyed the situation. It would be linked with the power lines from Niagara on the west, the report said.

Majestic Theatre at Corner Brook

At the Townsite, Corner Brook, a spacious theatre has been erected by the proprietors of the Majestic Theatre, St. John's. The building is an imposing structure and is constructed of reinforced concrete. It has seating capacity for 600 people. Two machines have been installed thus avoiding any interruption in the picture. They have secured rights in this country for the famous Fox pictures, and also the control of the Keith Vaudeville of Boston. The Majestic at Corner Brook will be managed by Mr. O'Neill, Jr., son of Mr. T. O'Neill of St. John's. Corner Brook is favoured in the matter of the Fox pictures in that they are shown there first before any other place in the country.

Falling off in Canadian Emigration

London, Eng., Sept. (Canadian Press Despatch)—According to official figures, there was a remarkable drop in the number of emigrants last year, the total being 145,906 against 230,911 in the previous twelve months. The largest decrease occurred among male adults of eighteen years and upwards, the number of these emigrants being 88,931 against 130,188 in the previous year. By far the largest groups are those of the young men who left the country to take up agriculture and the young women who went into domestic service. Nearly 19,000 men emigrated for farm work, and about the same number of women entered service abroad in households, hotels, etc. Commerce and finance absorbed 9,488 men and 3,079 women; 742 men were workers in the engineering or metal industries, 3,761 professional men and 2,774 miners and quarrymen.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR SORE FEET.

The women described as "wives or housewives" numbered 29,537. The relative percentages of emigrants in relation to occupations show a steady increase in the proportion of agricultural workers among men and domestic servants among women. As against this exodus there has to be set 53,000 persons who came into the country during the same period.

These included 4,693 commercial workers, 4,118 engineers, etc.; 2,649 farm workers, 3,590 women domestics and 13,26 housewives.

These figures showed a considerable increase upon the two previous years but on the balance there was a net loss of population last year by emigration of 41,509 males and 37,512 females of 18 years and over. It is the younger men and women who Africa.

Wesley Church Notes

Through the courtesy of exchange of pulpits Wesley Church congregation had the privilege last night of hearing a most impressive and eloquent discourse delivered by Rev. Mr. Power of St. Andrew's Kirk. His subject was "The Separating Power of Sin" and the text, "And Cain went out from the presence of the Lord." In opening the preacher drew an entrancing picture of the Garden of Eden filled with surpassing beauty, flowers diffusing their fragrance, and happiness abounding, but into this Paradise sin entered, and immediately all lost their fragrance. God had walked in the cool of the day with our first parents, it was the sweetest fellowship the world had ever known; but one evening when God came as usual Adam and Eve were nowhere to be seen, they had hidden themselves, it was the first evidence of the separating power of sin. And next we see this sad and tragic incident when Cain slew his brother and instantly he became a fugitive and a vagabond upon the earth, without a house or a friend. Shut out from God's presence with a mark on his brow that no man could efface, Cain became an outcast. Men shunned him, women withdrew from him, little children hid from him as he wandered to and fro, but every sound that told of love and home were not for him.

Perhaps there are no sadder words in all the Bible than the preacher's text, and when stated with intense pathos to a gripped audience as it was last night the effect was very marked. Henry Drummond in the Assembly Hall of Edinburgh preached to hundreds of students from the words "He made his bed in Hell," and when on his way home suddenly in the darkness a young man rushed to him crying "Oh preacher, I have made my bed in Hell" and then disappeared in the darkness. Drummond said afterward that the lonely misery of that cry would ring in his ears until his dying day, and the speaker remarked "there was a loneliness like that on Cain." True there is a sense in which every man is lonely we have our own burden to bear, battle to fight, temptation to overcome, and in a very deep sense our master Christ was lonely for instance in Gethsemane when the pale moon looked down, not a leaf stirred, his disciples a stone's cast away. He was alone, kneeling, but what a world of difference between the two. Christ drinking the cup alone, bearing His cross alone, suffering for others. Cain had sinned against his brother, with every harmony destroyed and now going out into a strange land, an alien. The continual effect of sin is to intensify the isolation and estrangement from God, and all that is best and purest in fellowship and love.

The next point emphasized by the preacher was "Sin separates a man from his ideals." Almost as soon as a boy can talk he will tell you what he is going to be; one a captain, another a doctor, or a minister, and with an ideal one can never be lonely, waking or sleeping, it will hold one, and let the ideal be but a dream, men will fight for it, and in fighting the heart will forget his loneliness. Questions from Tennyson and Sir Walter Scott aptly illustrated this point. Sin clips the wings and takes away the desire to fly. The instance of a talented lad whose desire and aim was to be a doctor was vividly told. He studied while others played. He followed the gleam, and for a time all went well, but alas sin clipped his wings; the clipping began at college. Although he had great ability he barely scraped through with a pass, disappointed his friends and soon disappeared. Many men commence well, build up a lucrative business, but something goes wrong, and many promising careers end in failure, disgrace and tragedy. Sin has held them back from what they could have been, the beckoning hand had vanished by separation from God. Cain could have been a successful farmer, but work gave place to envy, and when the morning of the rejected sacrifice came, the brooding scorn gave place to anger, the murderous blow was struck, and this time separation was complete and final, it did more than divide the brothers, Cain went out from the presence of the Lord.

The fear of trespassing upon your space and kindness forbids further expansion of my notes. May I finish by saying that the reverend gentleman's closing exhortation was most forceful and solemn. He reminded all that God has established numberless relationships in human life and means that we are to be friends, brothers. God is love, the source of all righteousness and inspires all love, but sin destroys all love, separates parents and child, husband and wife, murders family relationships, creates division in the state, disturbance among the nations. There is no tie so tender or bond so strong that sin will not sever leaving those affected sadder, poorer, and lonelier as in Whittier's beautiful story of the friendship of Rabbi Nathan, so fittingly told by the speaker. But the most terrible separation of all will be to fall away from the fellowship of God. We recognize Him the great world around, sea, sky, we detect His presence in conscience, and feel His power in our lives, and with Him siding we can never be lonely, it is the sweetest fellowship, full, true and tender. But sin can ruin all that, and send us into darkness worse than Samson's blindness or the despair of Judas. What can cause this change? Love of pleasure, liquor, drugs, gambling, immorality, sending those who shut out God, to be in everlasting punishment with no hope and to realize like Cain the separating power of sin. A.W.M.

A Horrible Law

Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir.—The person who perpetrated the Liquor Law was a sad humorist. Parts of it, were they not so tragic, would be most laughable. Imagine Judge Morris, with a grave face, telling a gentleman before him for the third time for having drunk not wisely but too well, that the fine is two hundred dollars or, in default of payment, three months with Mr. Parsons. It is so ridiculous! If the fine were paid Judge Morris would receive an irrecoverable stroke. If it were paid, it would be monstrous, for that would be almost a year's earnings for the class of gentleman I have in mind. It must be remembered that it would not turn a hair for the two hundred dollars would not come out of his pocket, but would deprive his wife and family of that much groceries, clothing, etc., of which they are so badly in need. Should the loving wife by any means raise the fine and her erring husband once more lapse from virtue and again come before His Honour, and was asked to pay the thousand dollars for the fourth offence, he might just as well be asked to buy out the Bank of Montreal or some reputable financial institution. He certainly was a humorist of the first order whose brain was put that law on the long-suffering and marvellously tolerant people of this country. To illustrate the sad side of the joke I will give you an instance, of what happened to a gentleman friend of mine. He came before Judge Morris for the third time since this iniquitous law was sprung on the community. The first time he was, as the Act peremptorily lays it down, fined the modest sum of two dollars. He probably raised the amount himself. The second time he was fined ten dollars which, with difficulty, and the help of her neighbours and friends, the afflicted wife scraped together. The third time the Judge said the fine was two hundred dollars, and the comic tragedy began. The rotten part of the law is that Judge Morris, the one man in this country who knows these people and knows how to administer the law so that the punishment will not fall on the wrong person, is allowed no discretion. If he were, he would moderate between raising a large family in to occasionally load up. A new sensation is what people to-day are after. Think of the fappers with their cigarettes and cocktails. Think of those more fortunate in this world's goods when spifflicated, being sent home in a taxi by a good-natured policeman. It is only the poor devil with many hostages to fortune who is flogged to the "pen" and punishment appears in the morning before Judge Morris. He naturally goes down for the third offence. This friend of mine who has on other occasions accepted Mr. Parson's hospitality, was sentenced, bowed to His Honour and, with a sense of irresponsibility, like one going on a holiday, left the Court Room, went down the stairs, and was watted to the Penitentiary where, for the next three months, relieved of the harassing cares of providing for a wife and seven children, one of whom is eight months old, relieved of the burden of paying rent, taxes, and many of the other ills that flesh is heir to, will fatten under the food provided by a paternal Government which gives plenty, even though it cannot truly be said that the variety is charming. Of course the first fifteen days are not too pleasant, but a fortnight passes quickly under such pleasant circumstances, company and surroundings. There is very little class distinction there and most are half-fellow, well met and so the three months pass delightfully. In the meanwhile what about the wife and seven small children? That is where this laughable law is seen in all its tragic humor. She has no reputable earning power, and, if she had, could not use it, for she is tied to the home with the baby and the other children. In this case I am illustrating, the eight months' baby is very sick, the wife has no money, no food, no fire, and little clothing. Can you beat it? Imagine if you can, the suffering brought about by giving the cause of it a three months' rest cure! The innocent wife and dear little children are not only deprived of the companionship, guidance and moral support of their husband and father, but also deprived of earning power, which but for an occasional burst from a monotonous existence, is promptly placed before his struggling wife. What would you do under such circumstances? Can you wonder at wives similarly placed, getting wrong, chucking up the job of trying to live respectably, clearing out of the home they are no longer able to look after, abandoning the children and for a time leading the life of wild women? What else is there for them to do? One way of course, apply for charity to some institution, or to her neighbours, but think of a poor proud honest struggling woman being placed in that position. Is not that enough to break her spirit, and when her spirit is broken any consequences are likely to follow. These are not suppositional facts. These things actually happen. Thanks to Mr. Brownrigg, five dollars' worth of groceries were sent on Saturday to the starving wife and family. Otherwise the consequences must have been horrible. It is too terrible to contemplate. What is to be done in this matter? There is certainly one thing to be done and that is to remove the absurdity of the two hundred or one thousand dollar fine, and restore to the Judge his discretionary power. Otherwise another Pen or two will have to be built and the town will be flooded with women who are driven to desperation, whose children are deserted, who, in time, like their parents, will become paupers, prostitutes, and criminals, simply because some crazy ass was allowed to tinker with laws of which he had no knowledge or experience. I regret being so long. Briefly, if the goal of wit, but how could anyone be either brief or witty over such a terrible condition of affairs. I do trust you will use the influence of your widely read paper to remedy what must appear to you as a horrible iniquity.

Yours sincerely,
GEO. W. B. AYRE.

A Message to Everyone Interested in Education

At the opening of the United Business College recently a message on the value of education was emphasized by the Principal, Mr. P. G. Butler, M.C.S. The question was asked: "Are parents equipping their children for the future?" and research made by Dean Lord, Boston University College of Business Administration, was read, showing that business education pays big dividends for life:—

"The average yearly income of the untrained man is $1,000; of the high school graduate $2,000; of the college graduate $3,000. The untrained man goes to work as a boy of fourteen and reaches his maximum income at the age of thirty. The figures show that more than 60% of untrained workers are dependent upon others for support at the age of sixty." The conclusion is: "Classical education pays well, but business education best of all."

Hubbard, a philosopher, who was drowned in the Lusitania, was right when he wrote, as follows:—
"A classical education may or may not help you to earn a living, but a business education always does. Graduates of good business colleges, positively without exception, have paying positions awaiting them. They do not have to borrow, beg or stand in the bread line."

Business education emphasizes not only the possession of knowledge, but the ability to think and reason for business tact and ambition to succeed. Perhaps no subject develops this more than Business English, especially Debiting and Sales Correspondence; While Rapid Calculations, Stenography and Accounting quickly develop accuracy and dispatch so essential to success. Everyone should endeavour, therefore, to attend a Business College where these subjects and qualities are developed by capable teachers of the work, a valuable service to any country and deserving of support and encouragement in Newfoundland.

"Spring Cleaning"

AT THE CASINO TO-NIGHT.

"Spring Cleaning," the sensational London and New York success—the most talked of play that the stage has seen in ten years. The brilliantly witty, yet intensely human and poignantly dramatic hit of all hits, will be presented by the W. S. Harkins Players to-night. On the opening night of this Company, at the Majestic Theatre, Halifax, the Morning Herald of that city, speaks as follows:—
"Spring Cleaning, the comedy presented, is most entertaining, particularly as it is out of the ordinary run, with modern ideas, dealing with its subject in a masterly and clever manner. It is thoroughly up to date, having plenty of dialogue such as to keep an audience thoroughly interested to follow the lines. It will be known to some movie followers who have seen it under the title of "The Fast Set."

It is the style of play that would fall in the hands of other than talented performers, and their splendid presentation and the general comments of satisfaction from the large audience was a tribute to their excellence, the performance running with such smoothness as to make it surprising when it was known that this was the first time the company appeared publicly together. The company is particularly well balanced, each adapted to their respective parts. Miss Deane gives a most delightful and a charming and artistic portrayal of the lengthy and difficult role of Margaret, the wife. There was no attempt to overdo, no effort for dramatic effect, but a thoroughly natural portrayal, just as in real life, and she has a pretty English accent which adds to the pleasure of her performance. She fascinated her audience with her talented work, while she looked well and dressed handsomely. Joseph Selman, who played the husband with such success, was here some years ago, and for the past nine seasons has been in New York productions. He is a superior actor, handling his role with that skill that is possessed by the best professionals, and he played the lengthy part in a manner that showed his marked ability. Frederick Neilson is a newcomer who at once stamped himself a favorite. He presented his role of the man who was estranging the wife from her husband, not in the customary somewhat distasteful manner, but with a coolness and plain spoken terms that brought about the unusual happening of the audience laughing with "the villain." Joseph Demter supplied the role comedy in a clever way, and Messrs. Benware and Rogers were also good in their roles. Jas. A. Bliss, who was here quite a few years ago, demonstrated what a good actor can do with such a small part as the servant.

A featured portrayal was Mona, by Miss Mary Jepp, speaking her lines with such distinctness, displaying careful ability, showing both sides of the character effectively, and kept the part within bounds, when there were so many opportunities to make it otherwise. Her appearance also added to her presentation.

The Company has a capital investment in Doris Haslett; bright, pleasing, with lots of life in her work, she captivated as Fay Colten, and Miss Eugenie DuBois, who was here some seasons ago and became very popular, was a splendid Lady Walton, giving a thoroughly good performance. All the ladies wore handsome costumes, the scenery and stage settings most striking, the orchestra under Harry Cochran as entertaining as ever, and the whole production such as ensures most attractive performances during the engagement. There will be matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Home From Official Visit TO ROTARY CLUB IN ANCIENT COLONY.

John A. Young, district governor of the Rotary clubs in the Maritimes and Newfoundland, and L. G. MacKay, a member of the Sydney club, returned on Tuesday morning from Newfoundland, where Mr. Young paid an official visit to the St. John's Rotary Club.

Both Mr. Young and Mr. MacKay are highly pleased with their trip. While in St. John's they were royally entertained by the members of the Rotary Club and Mr. Young was the recipient of a handsome present in the shape of a sterling silver cigarette case inscribed on the face with Labradorite. The case is inscribed with Mr. Young's name on the face and on the back with "Presented by the St. John's Rotary Club, September, 1925."

great improvement is being made in the Newfoundland Government Railway through the laying of new rails. Already 75 miles of new track have been laid westward from St. John's, and it is the government's intention to run the new track through to Port aux Basques. The cars run over the new rails so smoothly as our own do over the best Canadian National Railway lines," Mr. Young said. Passing through Corner Brook the Rotarians saw a new steamer, which was built solely for the purpose of carrying paper across to the Old Country. The steamer was loading the first rolls of paper turned out of the big new Armstrong-Whitworth plant at Corner Brook.—Sydney Record.

Making New Forests 50,000,000 TREES BY NEXT SPRING.

LAND AND HOUSES FOR THE WORKERS.
Between now and next spring more than 39,000,000 new trees will have been planted in Great Britain. This is the programme arranged for the planting season, which begins next month, by the Forestry Commission, which has already been engaged for five years in the work of restoring the forests of England, Wales, and Scotland.
By the end of the season these trees will occupy 22,000 acres of what would otherwise be chiefly waste land, the proportion being on an average 1,800 trees to an acre.
Since it began its work the Commission has planted 53,500 acres and assisted local authorities and private owners to plant another 50,000 acres. This has resulted in 184,000,000 new trees being planted.
The programme, spread over ten years, provides for the planting of 250,000 acres with 450,000,000 trees. The largest English plantation is at Thetford, in Norfolk, where a forest of about 24,000 acres, about the size of the New Forest, is being created.
Between 1924 and 1925.
Most of the trees planted consist of different varieties of fir and spruce, and 20 years from the first planting

Pirates Secured 5,000 Cases of Whiskey From Schooner

Piracy on the high seas is still a "going business" among opposing factions of the rum-running fraternity. It was learned this morning, when the Jean Louis, of St. Pierre, Melon owned and registered steamer, arrived in Halifax Harbor, and her captain reported the wholesale depredation of hi-jackers, who had successfully robbed him of his entire cargo of 5,000 cases of whiskey, 150 barrels of malt, and numerous cases of both beverages.

Trouble began for the Jean Louis on September 10th, when she arrived at a position 22 miles southeast of San-katy Head. A speed boat drew alongside and a man boarded the ship. Proper credentials were tendered, which showed the visitor to be in the "circle," and apparently proved him to be a trustworthy purchaser. He stated that he wished to obtain a quantity of liquor, and arrangements were immediately made to discharge a portion of the steamer's cargo.

To the surprise of the master and crew of the Jean Louis, six men appeared over the vessel's side, and with leveled revolvers enforced their order of "hands up." Immediately, six more men appeared from the cabin of the speed boat. Four of the raiders then instituted a search for concealed weapons, after which the members of the crew were herded into the forecastle, where they were placed under the guard of two armed men.

The captain was taken in charge and ordered down into his cabin, where he was called upon to produce all papers, including the ship's roll, which were immediately confiscated by the pirates. Strict orders were issued that no lights were to be shown aboard the vessel.

Another vessel came alongside and the captain of the Louis Jean was ordered, at the point of a revolver, to return to his post and have his helmsman steer a course, that would keep him a short distance behind the hi-jackers boat. All during the night the crew were kept prisoners in their quarters continually, under the surveillance of two armed men, replaced from hour to hour.

With the coming of daylight, on the morning of Sept. 11th, it was seen that the other ship was the Charming No. 2, of New York. This ship drew alongside the Louis Jean and 100 cases of whiskey and 100 barrels of malt were taken from the St. Pierre schooner, along with a number of casks of gasoline. During the shifting of the cargo the crew of the pirate's vessel were forced to lend a hand, at all times being menaced by the firearms in the hands of their captors.

Following this discharging of liquors, which was all done at night-time, the captain was ordered to return to his cabin and was forbidden to communicate with his men. Orders of a similar nature were also issued to the chief engineer.

On Sept. 14th, a cutter came alongside and all of the regular crew of the Louis Jean were ordered below decks for a period of fifteen hours. The pirates spoke with the cutter and evidently satisfied the coastguardmen that there was nothing amiss, for after a short time she sailed away.

The following day another cutter came alongside and there was a repetition of what had occurred upon the occasion of the previous day's visit.

On Sept. 18th the pirates sailed away in their ship, after successfully taking the entire cargo of 5,000 cases of whiskey, 150 barrels of malt and additional liquor, aboard the Charming No. 2.

Before deserting the Jean Louis the hi-jackers ransacked the schooner, taking all articles that they considered of value, including all the captain's clothing. They did not disturb the captain's private money, due to the fact that it was Canadian currency.

The Jean Louis arrived in port this morning, when her captain related the details of the unusual experience through which he and his crew had passed.—Evening Mail, Sept. 21.

Placentia Notes

On Saturday Messrs. Job, Hutchings, McNeil, Knowling and Sinnott arrived by train to shoot over the Ship Cove, Gooseberry and St. Bride's partridge grounds, where birds are reported in abundance.

On Sunday Rev. Fr. O'Flaherty and P. Croke motored to Colinet on a shooting trip to the Colinet grounds, and Messrs. T. Kemp and W. Sullivan left in a motor truck for Lear's Cove barrens.

About noon on Sunday, H. Verran of the W.I. Telegraph Co. returning from the cable hut at Freshwater hailed a fishing boat to give him a passage over in their dory to the town site, owing to the ferry being at Dunville at the time and there was no means of getting over. When the dory touched the wharf Mr. Verran jumped, missed the dory and went overboard. When he came up he swam to the dory and with the assistance and good management of young Patrick Brown of Barhaven swung on board without shipping a scoopful of water.

On Monday M. Sinnott, Sr., and Const. Whelan left on their usual fall visit to Branch. Fish are reported very plentiful from St. Brides to Ship Cove, dories and motor boats averaging from three to eight qts. per day; also bay boats fishing from here are doing extra well.

On Tuesday his Lordship Bishop Renouf landed here from S.S. Portia on a visit to Rev. Fr. O'Flaherty.

On Wednesday Mr. Metcalf arrived with his second drove of cattle from Cape Shore, which went forward to the city to supply the meat markets.

The industrious people of Cape Shore who raise hundreds of cattle and other farm produce, and are also busily engaged in fishing, should get better treatment from the Government than they are getting at present. The Cape Shore road is a disgrace to civilization.

Some salt for the Ship Cove fishermen arrived here a few days ago, but as the weather was too stormy for a motor boat to come for it, and the road impassable, their fish was left to rot in consequence.

Mr. R. Verran, who is spending his holidays at his home here, is returning by Sunday's express to resume his duty at the Deer Lake Power House.

Mining matters are pretty dull here just now, but we are glad to see that through the energy of Inspector General Hutchings his mine on Jersey Side in charge of L. Roche is improving every day, and we all wish he will soon strike the main lode.

Mr. Chas. Sinnott and family arrived a few days ago and are now living at the old homestead.—COR.

 PHILOSOPHY.
 High sounding phrase is not philosophy,
 Npr polished sentence turned in quiet state;
 He teaches best whose life to some degree
 Shows faith unshaken by the blows of fate.

They who have suffered much, yet smile again,
 And bravely bear the hurts they cannot cure
 Teach us when words from happy lips are vain
 What pain the spirit can and should endure.

They are the world's philosophers!
 Not we
 Who write of faith or sing of courage bold;
 There is a glory which the eye can see,
 A living lesson for the young and old.

From them whose feet have walked the cruel way
 To find at last future's calm retreat,
 We catch the hope that we shall come as they
 To see our sorrow changed to memory sweet.

Oh, they are wisest who have suffered much,
 Not those who glibly speak, or wield the pen,
 For there is no philosophy can touch
 The brave examples of our fellow men.

Discusses Trade Treaties With W. I.

NOT SO EASY TO ARRANGE, SAYS SIR WM. CHANDLER.

Trade treaties between Canada and the British West Indies are not so easy to arrange as might be supposed, explained Sir William Chandler, of Bridgetown, Barbados, at the Carlton Hotel yesterday, for the British West Indies comprise several different autonomous units, each having their own governments and distinct economic interests.

Sir William Chandler has been a member of the Legislative Council of Barbados since 1892 and President since 1910. He retired from the judicial bench last February after forty years' service.

The situation, he pointed out, is complicated by the fact that while sugar is the chief product of certain parts of the Indies such as British Guiana, Barbados, and St. Kitts, it is only a subsidiary product in Jamaica, Trinidad, and St. Lucia, where cocoa and fruit are the chief products. From the other colonies no sugar is exported.

Therefore if sugar is to be admitted free into Canada the sugar producing islands would have to make tariff concessions to Canada which other colonies would not be expected to make. It might be possible to order things so that the sugar producing colonies whose products came into Canada duty free granted in return special concessions to Canada, Sir William suggested.

The question might arise whether Canada as part of the British Empire had the right to make tariff arrangements with another part of the Empire superior in value to those granted elsewhere to countries under the British flag, concluded Sir William, but as long as a substantial preference is given to all parts of the Empire no harm could be done to the Empire as a whole by any special arrangements between two component parts.—Montreal Star, Sept. 19.

The Hush Family

In reference to an enquiry regarding the Hush family which appeared in Friday's Telegram, we have received the following information:—

Mr. John Hush and his family left St. John's about 26 years ago, for North Shields, England. Up to the time of his departure from here he filled the position of engineer on the steam tug D. P. Ingraham. A short while after living in his native home he died, leaving a widow whose maiden name was Elizabeth Horwood (Quid Vial), also 3 daughters and 2 sons. The girls were, Isabella, Ethel and Alice Maud. Isabella died in England, the boys were Nutting and Donald. Nutting, so far as is known, was killed in the late war. Donald was adopted by a lady and gentleman belonging to California, while they were on a visit to England. Ethel married at home to a Mr. Edmonson, Maud and her mother some time after went to California and about ten years ago Mrs. Hush's address was 4654 San Sebastian Avenue, Oakland, California. John Hush's brother, James, was a bricklayer by trade. He was here for a short while and left again for his native home.

The Greatest of All Films at the Nickel

"THE GREAT DIVIDE" OPENS TODAY. DON'T MISS IT.

"The Great Divide," that wonderful stage success which has thrilled the American public, has been made into a gigantic moving achievement and has been secured by Mr. J. P. Kiely for local screening. The picture is headed by Alice Terry and Conway Tearle.

The story concerns a prime Massachusetts girl with New England ideals meeting a strange, uncouth man of the Painted Desert of Arizona.

The girl, Ruth Jordan, is captured by three marauders of the West, who are drunken and bestial. They shake dice to see which will possess her, and the other two are not satisfied when Stephen Ghent wins, so he has to fight one and give the other a chain of gold nuggets to seal the bargain.

He is in ignorance of her fitness and her moral laws and sees her only as a woman and desirable.

She weaves baskets and sells them to get money to buy herself back and eventually she obtains the original chain of nuggets, give them to Stephen, and triumphantly leaves him.

The story is brimful of thrills and the scenery of the gorgeous Painted Desert makes a fitting background for the staging of it.

SERVICE DISCONTINUED. — The steam coach service between the city and Bowling Park closed for the season yesterday. The coach was largely patronized and all those who have availed of the popular service during the past months regret that, with the passing of summer, it will be discontinued.

Met With Painful Accident

A resident of Outer Cove, Patrick O'Donnell, had two fingers of his right hand blown off yesterday, whilst engaged in firing a volley of musketry as a token of welcome to His Grace Archbishop Roche, who was making a visit to the settlement.

Mr. O'Donnell who was one of a party using guns, had the misfortune to allow the weapon to slip from his grasp, the muzzle coming across his hand the moment the gun went off, two fingers were shot away. The injured man was rushed to the city for treatment at the General Hospital. He is doing as well as can be expected.

Not Mr. T. J. Kennedy

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I feel that I should write to you to correct an erroneous impression which has developed in connection with the recent accident on the Topsall Road, when a motor car driven by Mr. E. Cantwell collided with a horse and wagon driven by Mr. Kennedy.

People at various times since the accident have approached me concerning it, and I wish to state publicly through your columns that I am not the Mr. Kennedy who figured in the accident. I am no relation of his nor is there anything in common between us, and furthermore it is unnecessary to add there can be no truth in the rumour that I lodged a complaint with the police.

Yours truly,

Eighteen Thousand Ton Order

FOR RAILS SECURED BY BESCO.

The British Empire Steel Corporation has secured an order for eighteen thousand tons of rails, which the mill will commence rolling Monday next. This will mean added and more continuous work for those already on the payroll, and others who are not at the moment employed.

Announcement is also forthcoming from the General Office that a second battery of coke ovens will be started operating at once, and No. 4 blast furnace will be blown in Friday.

The open hearth furnaces will be relighted and will be producing steel by Sunday.

This means that all the mills will be operating next week. There remains a third battery of coke ovens to commence producing.

As already stated in The Post, the wire and nail mills have just closed the best year in their history, and with the rail plant going better times are in store for the big works in general.—Sydney Post, Sept. 23.

IMPORTANT MEETING.

A meeting of the N.A.A.A. will be held in the office of Mr. C. J. Cahill, Law Chambers, when business of importance will be dealt with by the Association. It is urgent that every member should attend.

JUNIOR LEAGUE HAD SUCCESSFUL SEASON.

A meeting of the Junior Football League was held on Saturday night when all matters in connection with the season's activities were finalized. The reports of the Secretary and Treasurer were received, and showed that the League had a very successful year both financially and otherwise. It was decided to purchase medals for the Championship team, the order for which will be placed immediately. A well merited vote of appreciation was passed Mr. Coultas, the official referee. He gave entire satisfaction at all times to the various teams the whole season, the League did not receive a single word of protest on any point. Before the meeting closed speeches were made, complimenting the T.A. team on winning the championship.

T. A. TEAM TO BE DINED.

The T. A. football team, first time champions of the Junior League, will be tendered a dinner at the T. A. Armory nine o'clock to-morrow night, in honour of their recent victory. A number of guests have been invited, a toast list with song sheets arranged, and the evening promises to be one of real pleasure for all. The catering will be looked after by the T. A. Ladies' Auxiliary.

MICKY WALKER RETAINED HIS TITLE BY GETTING DECISION AFTER FURIOUS GO WITH SHADE.

YANKEE STADIUM, N.Y., Sept. 21.—Micky Walker, of Elizabeth, N.J., retained his world's welterweight title when he scored a judges' verdict over Dave Shade, of California, in a furious 15-round title match at the American League baseball park to-night. A thrilling rally in the final round won the verdict for Walker, who had been absorbing plenty of punishment from his challenger in the early rounds. Walker had been wearing down his challenger with a concentrated body attack and reaped the harvest in the final round when he hammered Shade around the ring with a charge which retained for him the world's 147-pound crown. Walker weighed in at 144 1/2; Shade, 147.

A crowd of 15,000 saw the fight.
Round by Round.
Round One—The champion took the aggressive after a clinch and scored heavily in the in-fighting against his tarr just as the bell ended the round.

Round Five—Walker crashed over a wicked left to the head, which almost floored the challenger. Shade came back with a furious charge and for a few seconds they hammered away without a thought of protection. Walker missed a right cross and Shade scored with both hands to the head. Walker got over a pretty left to Shade's body, but little damage was done. Shade scored heavily to Walker's head without a return.
Round Six—The challenger opened up a furious attack at the champion as the round opened, landing effectively with both hands. Walker put over a vicious right square to Shade's face which sent the challenger back on his heels. Four times Walker landed to the head without a return. Another left caught Shade off balance and he almost fell. The crowd was in a frenzied uproar at the fight assumed faster proportions. Both landed vicious blows to the head in a torrid exchange. Both fighters nearly went down under the slaughter. The bell halted a furious exchange.
Round Seven—Shade was bleeding from the mouth and from a cut under his right eye as he came up. Walker landed with both hands to the head. They locked in a clinch, but the in-fighting was even. A straight right sent Walker to the ropes. An uppercut jarred him. Both landed smashing drives straight to the face as they fought openly. A right and left to the chin forced Shade to clinch. They were sparring openly at the bell.
Round Eight—They mixed at close range as the round opened. The champion missed two left hooks. A left to the body doubled Shade. Both missed wild rights. A left jab spun Shade round. They fought furiously at close quarters. The action slowed until Walker started a charge which lasted for only a moment, during which they both fought openly.

crouching challenger. Shade staggered Walker with three straight left jabs to the face. Shade almost floored Walker with a right to the head. Another right sent Walker to the ropes. Both landed damaging blows in a fierce encounter near the ropes. Shade's crouching position and his dodging tactics puzzled the champion. They were sparring at the bell.
Round Two—Shade's left sent Walker's head backward. They locked arms but both got one free and pounded away in a fierce fashion. Shade almost upset Walker with an overhead right. Clinch followed clinch as Shade crouched to protect himself from Walker's charges. Shade scored a beautiful right uppercut which turned Walker half way round. The crowd was in an uproar as the bell ended a furious skirmish.
Round Three—Walker hooked his left to Shade's jaw. Another left caught Shade's jaw and a clinch followed. Shade staggered Walker with a driving left to the face. Walker almost floored Shade with a right to the jaw. Both landed weakly to the head. Walker scored with his left and Shade clinched. Five times Shade landed to Walker's face with a hard right. The referee had to pry them from a clinch as the bell ended the round.
Round Four—Walker continued to punch away at Shade's body, as the challenger drove into a clinch at every charge. Both missed frequently. Walker stung Shade with a right cross to the jaw and followed with a beautiful left. There was plenty of in-fighting. Walker staggered Shade with a left but took a right uppercut on the return just as the bell ended the round. Both landing effective blows in exchange. Just as the bell rang Walker doubled Shade with a left to the body.

Round Nine—They fell into the inevitable clinch. Walker scored heavily in the in-fighting. Both missed furious rights. A left to the face sent Walker half round, but he came back to stagger Shade with a left to the body. Shade smashed at the champion's face, but Walker was wide with his return. They stood toe to toe and battled furiously, Shade having an edge in the exchange. Three times Shade's left sent Walker's head back. The challenger was forcing the fighting. They were both in the centre of the ring at the bell.
Round Ten—Shade staggered Walker with a stiff right to the head. The champion continued to center the attack on Shade's body. Shade came up with a pretty uppercut and the champion came up with a bleeding mouth. Both blasted away viciously at the head, Shade getting the better of the battling. Shade landed to the head but took two on the body. Three uppercuts rocked Walker's head. Shade forced Walker to the corner and poured leather at the champion from all directions. The champion came back strong, however, and forced Shade into a clinch as the bell ended the round.
Round Eleven—Walker's eye displayed a nasty cut as he came up for the round. Walker staggered Shade with a left hook to the head. Walker continued his body punches. Both of Shade's eyes appeared to be cut as they came out of a clinch. Walker missed three leads. A weak right grazed Shade's face. He staggered Walker with a countering right. Shade's crouching tactics had Walker at "sea." Walker measured Shade with a right but the bell prevented the blow.

Round Fifteen—They shook hands. Walker covered in the in-fighting as the two clinched. Shade landed to the head but clinched when Walker missed with his left. Walker stung Shade with a right to the body. Another crashing right to the head sent Shade to the ropes. Mickey was rallying. He poured a furious onslaught at Shade. The crowd was in an uproar yelling for the champion to finish his weakening rival. Blow after blow landed on Shade's head and body. Walker stung his right to Shade's face. They were pouring it furiously at each other at the bell.

To New Zealand in a Small Boat

FATHER AND DAUGHTER SET SAIL

Crowds of men, women, and children gathered on the quayside at Sutton Pool, Plymouth, to take a last glimpse of a little white boat with ruddy sails as she threaded her way out into Plymouth Sound on a daring voyage.

It was full of the spirit of the sea; George Devo, the skipper of the good boat Merganser (she is too small to form a ship, being but 30 ft. in length), William Unitt, an ex-Navy man, and his "crew" consisting of his only daughter, Dora 15, weighed anchor, and set sail for the Antipodes, a voyage of 13,000 miles.

In an interview the Merganser's master said: "We expect, if all goes well, and with favourable weather, to reach our destination, Dusky Sound, New Zealand—where I intend to spend with my wife and family—in about four months."

"The Merganser is as good a yawl-rigged nine-tonner, as you will find anywhere. I have done every bit of the fitting out myself, even to installing the paraffin 14-h.p. engine. We shall rely on our sails as far as possible, but in emergencies the engine will give us a useful speed of about ten knots an hour."

"My wife and son are booking passages to New Zealand by liner, but Dora, my daughter, accords to go that way. She is a fine sailor and splendid swimmer, and has proved on previous cruises that she can handle the Merganser as well as I can."

"Our craft is well found in every respect—we have the luxury of two mattresses in the bunks of our 23-ft. cabin, which is lighted by electricity and a powerful wireless equipment will enable us to receive and to send out signals."

"I have chosen the Cape route to New Zealand and this time of the year because the conditions are most favorable."

"We shall touch, among other places, on our way to Cape Town, Ascension Island and St. Helena, and then will come our longest non-stop run, a little hop of between four and five thousand miles across the Indian Ocean, where we shall have to negotiate the 'Roaring Forties' to the Australian coast."

Mr. Unitt makes light of the hazards attending his enterprise, and his "crew" fully shares his optimism.

October Number of Rod and Gun in Canada

What promises to be one of the best and most interesting of wild life series commences in the October issue of Rod and Gun, just published. The series is written by the well-known naturalist, Raymond Thompson, and the first article is a lengthy and very interesting account of the beaver. Judging by the material contained in this article, the rest of the series should prove valuable and interesting reading matter for the lover of wild life.

Appropriate to the season a number of hunting stories are included in this fall number. The regular articles and departments covering birds, dogs, outdoor life, shooting and fishing seem even better filled than usual. This is especially true of Fishing Notes, which contains in addition to the articles of Robert Page Lincoln stories by G. P. Sinden of Toronto, goes to make a splendid section for the angler. The open seasons for game birds in Ontario are included in the issue.

Rod and Gun is published monthly by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ont.

How to Water-Wave the Hair

There are some women with straight hair to whom an "iron" wave is not always becoming. It gives them rather an artificial look and often refuses to stay in for more than a day or two. But all the same, quite straight hair has to be dressed very smoothly, with not a strand out of place, to look its best, and such severe styles are extremely hard to carry off successfully. Because it supplies a wave that is not too pronounced, but will stay in place and come to me and asked what they could do to their hair, having tried water-waving without success. A few questions soon elicited the fact that they had been soon discouraged and did not carry on with the treatment. My own hair was quite straight some years ago, and as an "iron" wave did not suit me I set to work to remedy this defect by water-waving. The results of a "natural" wave and hair that is daily becoming more amenable in every way have amply rewarded my patience and trouble.

Need for Patience.
 The chief point to remember about water-waving is that it is necessarily a slow process and requires abundant patience and perseverance. It is possible to "rush" the hair to become wavy in time, and the results are well worth the trouble and time expended on it. Many women have come to me and asked what they could do to their hair, having tried water-waving without success. A few questions soon elicited the fact that they had been soon discouraged and did not carry on with the treatment. My own hair was quite straight some years ago, and as an "iron" wave did not suit me I set to work to remedy this defect by water-waving. The results of a "natural" wave and hair that is daily becoming more amenable in every way have amply rewarded my patience and trouble.

After the Shampoo.
 Many hairdressers will water-wave the hair if required to do so, but it is a simple task which can be undertaken at home. After shampooing the hair rub the head vigorously for at least five minutes to get as much moisture out as possible. Then carefully comb the hair, make the usual parting; coax the hair into waves and keep them in place with the aid of small combs and hairpins. Two combs put in opposite directions—their teeth facing each other—are sufficient to make a pretty wave in the front of the hair. As many waves can be made as desired, but one or two big waves suit the straight-haired woman better than a number of small ones.

If possible, dry the hair in the sunshine and air, using a fan to help the process. Fire or gas heat is inclined to make the hair brittle and harsh. But do not disturb the "set" of the waves, and even when the rest of the hair is dry keep the combs in place as long as possible.

Pin the Hair in Position.
 This is the stage where I find that so many women fall short of successful water-waving. Instead of helping the hair they expect the wave to look after itself, with the consequence that in a day or two—or even an hour or so—all traces are gone. They quite forget what a help invisible hairpins are and do not pin the waves in place—the front one especially—before they put on their pull-on hats, which often spell ruin to artificial waves. It takes just a second and is so very little trouble, but what a difference it makes! Last thing at night, too, just damp the combs and run them through the hair once or twice. Set the waves and combs in place. Even if they refuse to stay in place all night they will have done a little good work before coming out. Never have a hot bath without seeing that the combs are keeping the waves well in place, for the steam will undo the patient work of months if this is omitted.

"Training" the Hair.
 These constant little attentions are the mainstay of water-waving, and without them success does not come to the very straight-haired. Do not despair if, when your hair is shampooed, all traces of wave have gone. Gradually, as the hair becomes trained, it will look quite wavy when it is wet. Perseverance and water-waving go hand in hand.—B.B.

Site of Black Friars' Priory

LONDON DISCOVERY.
 Workmen engaged on excavations between Queen Victoria-street and Ludgate Hill, E.C., have discovered the base of a stone column and other remains of the ancient Dominican Priory of the Black Friars, after whom the neighbourhood is named. The priory, with its church, dates back to the 13th century. Father O'Hanlan, of St. Dominic's Priory, Southampton-road, N.W., who has made a particular study of mediæval history and is taking a special interest in the discovery, said that when the Black Friars' priory was built permission was given for a part of the wall of London to be knocked down and used in its construction. He said: Part of the Priory projected through the space thus made in the old wall, and it was possible therefore to gain access to the Priory from outside London's wall. It is probable that the building was planned in this way in order that beggars and other persons seeking sanctuary, who would not be allowed to enter the City, might gain shelter.

What has become of most of the remains of the ancient Priory of Black Friars is a mystery, but it is fairly certain that even in modern times much of the old building was used for road-making in the City.

Foot Below Street Level.
 It is not possible for the general public to view the site of the discovery as it is enclosed by a high wooden hoarding.

The excavation in which the remains have been found is in a rectangular area of ground surrounded by Church-entry, Carter-lane, Friar-street, and Ireland-yard. It is in the midst of the tangle of narrow streets and alleys lying between Queen Victoria-street and Ludgate-hill, which covers the sites of many famous buildings of ancient London.

Mountficht Castle, pulled down in 1275, was on or near this site, and Baynard Castle, once stood on the spot and a fragment of a burial ground adjoins the excavations.

A Daily Mail reporter who visited the site recently discovered that some of the remains of the monastery are only a foot or so below the street level.

Says Saklatvala is Undesirable

Representative Johnson Defends Action of Secretary Kellogg—Places Blame on Communist Fears of Congress of United States.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(Star Special)—Shapurji Saklatvala, Communist member of the British Parliament, errs when he blames Secretary of State Kellogg for barring him from the United States, said Representative Albert Johnson, chairman of the House Committee on Immigration, today.

"The blame, to use Mr. Saklatvala's word, but more properly access to the United States, to this preacher of revolutionary propaganda lies with the Congress of the United States and not with any one official. If Secretary Kellogg had consented to the admission of Mr. Saklatvala, the Secretary in effect would have been guilty of connivance at the violation of an explicit law."

Representative Johnson speaks with authority. He is the author of the language in the existing immigration law which forbids the admission to the United States of those who advocate revolution by force or violence. The first statement on this subject was in the immigration law passed in February 1917. This was before the entrance of the United States into the Great War. The provision then was not so stringent as the one now existing, but even under it, Saklatvala, on his utterances in England, quoted by Secretary Kellogg yesterday could have been denied admission.

Critiques Kellogg.
 The anti-revolutionary provision was enlarged by the Act of October 6, 1918. When Representative Johnson became chairman of the Committee on Immigration in May 1919, in response to a very general demand that Communists, Bolsheviks and advocates of armed revolution should be denied admission to the United States, he secured a further amendment making the language more specific and that is the existing law.

Sport in Argentina

By A RETURNED ENGLISHMAN.
 In Argentina the Prince of Wales is finding plenty of opportunity to indulge his love for sport.

The British community has a splendid country club at Hurlingham, just outside Buenos Aires. Here are a golf course, two racquet courts, lawn tennis, and polo.

Polo in Argentina, as the Prince probably discovered during his recent game, is of a higher standard than anywhere else in the world, excepting, perhaps, Meadowbrook, in the United States. Mr. Lewis Lacey, a British resident in Buenos Aires, and Mr. Milburn, of New York, are the greatest living exponents of the game.

In the last few years the Argentines have taken keenly to golf. I have played over several of their courses at St. Andrea's, Palermo, and La Plata. The courses are of good inland class. As in other parts of the world the chito (caddle) seldom knows where the pelota (ball) has gone.

The young Argentine distinguo (young man of good family) is not, as some suppose, only expert at dancing the tango. He takes a keen interest in games and has lately interested himself in boxing, and is as ready to answer an insult with a straight left as he was formerly with an automatic. The unwritten law governing the conduct of a caballero—that he must not strike another with his fists—has died out.

However, though the Prince is sporting some polo and golf, the sporting life that will surely fascinate him most will be that on the estancias, or big ranches. No one fond of everything to do with horses, as our Prince is, can fail to be thrilled by the riding mark round each nut with a knife, and when cold break the toffee where marked. Store in an air-tight tin lined with grease-proof paper, with paper between each layer.

Almonds or any nuts may replace walnuts. Double this quantity may be made in the above proportions, but inexperienced sweet-makers begin with small quantities.

When no scales are handy, remember that 1/2 lb. shelled walnuts or almonds (whole) are 1 1/2 level breakfastcupfuls, 1 oz. of butter is one slightly rounded tablespoonful, 1 oz. of sugar equals one level tablespoonful.

Hudson's Bay Building in London

Tucked away behind the Mansion House Underground station, at the corner of Great Trinity-lane and Little Trinity-lane, the new building of the Hudson's Bay Company, now in course of erection, is not likely to receive the degree of attention which is due to its latest addition to London's new business places.

There was a time when architects entrusted with the designs for important City buildings considered the lavish use of marble and of all manner of Renaissance and baroque "trimmings" to be indispensable. Messrs. Williams and Cox, the architects of "Beaver House"—which is the name given to the Hudson's Bay offices—have preferred to depend for their effect on the contrast of plain bricks with Portland stone edgings and columns, and to base their design on the English tradition of the Queen Anne period instead

 Boil the milk and sugar, stirring all the time for 10 minutes, add the coco-nut and continue to boil while stirring until the mixture thickens, but do not let it brown. Pour half into a wetted tin, colour the other half pink with cochineal and pour it on the top of the white. Cut it into bars when nearly cold.

Carving of a Beaver.
 This portico, with a recessed door behind a colonnade of two round and two square pillars, is one of the most pleasing features of the building. Under the architrave of the entrance door is a boldly carved representation of a beaver, and above it a panel in low relief showing the sailing of the Nahanch for Hudson's Bay, in 1658. The portico is crowned by a coat of arms supported by two moose.

The chief fault of the building is that the articulation of the outside gives no idea of the finer planning. It is also difficult to conceive how the artist will manage to establish a logical connection between the finished pedimented wing and the plain brick continuation along Little Trinity-lane, the roof of which is to rise to the same height as the crowning curve of the pediment.

One Big Union Plan Rejected

CRUSHING DEFEAT FOR THE REDS.

The Reds sustained another defeat at the Trades Union Congress at Scarborough yesterday when the delegates rejected by a decisive majority a resolution the object of which was to establish one big union.

The decision was especially a rebuff to Emperor Cook, the Communist secretary of the Miners' Federation, who has declared "I am one of the Big Five," and "My God! I have a debt to pay and I am going to pay it."

Mr. Ben Tillett said: "We are not out to make emperors or big sizes. We are not manufacturing halos for heroes."

I am afraid there are some in our movement now who would hardly get a halo on with the aid of a shoe-horn. The result of the card vote on the resolution was:

For 1,787,000
Against 2,138,000

Later Emperor Cook showed great delight when a youth succeeded in carrying a resolution dealing with the "struggle to overthrow capitalism."

EVEN THE MINERS VOTE AGAINST THE SCHEME.

The debate on the industrial organization resolution which was defeated was initiated in this truly Cookian motion by the National Union of General Workers:

(a) That the number of unions should be reduced to a minimum.

(b) That congress should not encourage the formation of any new unions.

(c) That this congress instructs the General Council to continue its work of the amalgamation of existing unions with one big union as the ultimate goal.

Naturally the level-headed trade unionists were against the proposal, and the London Society of Compositors tabled the following amendment:

That this congress, while welcoming all efforts to consolidate the trade unions, deprecates any proposals having for their object the merging of all affiliated bodies in one big union.

Even Mr. Ben Tillett, although professing himself in favour of the resolution, contemptuously declared amid general laughter, that they were not "out to make emperors or big sizes. We are not," he said, "manufacturing halos for heroes. I am afraid there are some in our movement now who would hardly get a halo on with the aid of a shoe-horn."

Mr. T. E. Naylor, M.P., of the London Society of Compositors, in urging the amendment proposed by his organization, called attention to the fact that the resolution had been seconded by the United Operative Plumbers' Association, which was engaged in a dispute with another union. One union claimed to control the hot water pipes and the other the cold water pipes, with the result the one union had come out on strike because the other union insisted in working on their particular pipes, a ridiculous position in connection with a union attempting to teach all trade unionists to organize one big union.

Mr. Neil McLean, M.P., (Workers' Union) urged that it would be an excellent thing to get all the workers in all the trades altogether to oppose all the bosses in the country.

Mr. J. Walker, of the Iron and Steel Confederation, scornfully remarked that some people at the congress who talked about being progressive were so far behind real progress that they thought they were leading. It was all very fine for Mr. McLean to support a one big union for everyone, but he was the man who got up in the House of Commons and declared that Scotland could only be ruled by Scotsmen.

MINERS' VOTE AGAINST.

The congress rejected both the resolution and the amendment, even Emperor Cook's faithful entourage, the miners' contingent, voting against.

But there has been one glad moment in the Emperor's otherwise drab life-to-day. It was when the Trades Union Congress, in a spirit of fatherly toleration, passed a young firebrand's frankly revolutionary resolution. The Emperor was delighted. He clapped his hands, stamped his feet, and brayed "Hear, hear!"—the only time his voice was heard all day—to the feeble accompaniment of three or four enthusiastic Reds, while the majority of the delegates watched the incident with intense amusement.

Indeed, it was amusement and tolerance which characterized the whole of this particular debate, for the real feeling of the delegates had been expressed when they rejected the Emperor's own pet project for one big union.

SHOP COMMITTEES.

This particular resolution stood in the name of the Tailors and Garment Workers' Union and was proposed by a Mr. E. Joseph, a youth who had made himself conspicuous throughout the congress by his many points of order. He proposed:

This congress declares that the trade union movement must organize to prepare the trade unions, in conjunction with the party of the workers, to struggle for the overthrow of capitalism. At the same time congress

PORTUGUESE SOLDIERS ACQUITTED.

LISBON, Sept. 28. All the officers and soldiers being tried for participation in the rebel riot last April when 19 were killed and 73 wounded, were acquitted to-day. The court decided that the accused were inspired with patriotic intention.

warns the workers against all attempts to introduce capitalist schemes of co-partnership, which in the past have failed to give the workers any positive rights, but instead have usually served as fetters retarding the forward movement. Congress further considers that strong, well-organized shop committees are indispensable weapons in the struggle to force the capitalists to relinquish their grip on industry, and therefore pledges itself to do all in its power to develop and strengthen workshop organization.

FORGOTTEN HIS NOTES.

Unfortunately for Mr. Joseph, the impression he wished to create was sadly marred by the fact that when the president called upon him to move his resolution he could for a moment get no further than "Mr. President and fellow-delegates." He had to confess that he had been taken by surprise and had lost his notes.

Mr. Harry Pollitt, of the Boiler-makers' Union and secretary of the Minority Movement, seconded. It was impossible, he said, to obtain any improvement of the condition of the working classes unless they immediately turned their fight into a revolutionary and political one.

A FATHERLY TALK.

Mr. James Sexton talked to Master Joseph in a fatherly way. "This young man," he said, "is an enthusiast. So was I once. I remember my first parliamentary election. I got 400 odd votes out of 12,000 and then sang, 'England arise! the long, long night is over.'" This sally moved the congress to roars of laughter.

He added that he could not possibly support the resolution, for it pledged the congress to principles of Communism, and he was not going to be a party to the use of their great industrial machinery for political purposes. Working folk did not want revolution.

MR. JOSEPH, CYNIC.

The president was about to take the vote when Mr. Joseph, vociferating that he had found his missing notes, claimed a right to reply. Speaking with all the weight of his twenty-two or three years, he said: "I have seen too many wet towels and damp blankets smothering the old men of the movement that I am no longer an enthusiast, but a hardened cynic," a little bit of vanity which roused the congress uproariously.

Anxious to get away for an afternoon's pleasure the delegates insisted on a card vote being taken, and the cynic's resolution was declared carried by 2,456.00 votes to 1,218.000. The Emperor was in high fettle for it was a badly needed sop after the congress action earlier.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR SPRAINS

AGIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST
GENE STRATTON-PORTER'S OWN PRODUCTION OF HER FAMOUS NOVEL

ROMANCE, THRILLS, ACTION, COMEDY, DRAMA, ADVENTURE
THE SUPER SPECIAL YOU'VE WAITED FOR. HERE IT IS!

He hurled the denunciation at this woman of the Limberlost who, for years, had fostered her child on hate and revenge in place of love and understanding. But it was another woman who finally brought the mother to her senses! It was another woman who told her the truth about the dead husband she sorrowed for and turned the devotion she held for his memory to the daughter who deserved it!

All the simplicity, all the drama, all the pathos, all the spirit of the outdoors with which Gene Stratton-Porter's novel is so richly endowed has been transferred to the screen in a manner that will make you love every second of it.

A cast of eminent artists, including such well-known names as Gloria Grey, Emily Fitzroy, Raymond McKee, Cullen Landis, Gertrude Olmsted, Virginia True Boardman, Ruth Stonehouse and many others, has made every character a real human being!
