

CIHM/ICMH Microfiche Series.

A ROAD

CIHM/ICMH Collection de microfiches.

Canadian Institute for Historical Microreproductions / Institut canadian de microreproductions historiques

Technical and Bibliographic Notes/Notes techniques et bibliographiques

The institute has attempted to obtain the best original copy available for filming. Features of this copy which may be bibliographically unique, which may alter any of the images in the reproduction, or which may significantly change the usual method of filming, are checked below. L'Institut a microfilmé le meilleur exemplaire qu'il lui a été possible de se procurer. Les détails de cet exemplaire qui sont peut-être uniques du point de vue bibliographique, qui peuvent modifier une image reproduite, ou qui peuvent exiger une modification dans la méthode normale de filmage sont indiqués cl-dessous.

Coloured covers/ Couverture de couleur	Coloured pages/ Pages de couleur
Covers damaged/ Couverture endommagée	Pages damaged/ Pages endommagées
Covers restored and/or laminated/ Couverture restaurée et/ou pelliculée	Pages restored and/or laminated/ Pages restaurées et/ou pelliculées
Cover title missing/ Le titre de couverture manque	Pages discoloured, stained or foxed/ Pages décolorées, tachetées ou piquées
Coloured maps/ Cartes géographiques en couleur	Pages detached/ Pages détachées
Coloured ink (i.e. other than blue or black)/ Encre de couleur (i.e. autre que bleue ou noire)	Showthrough/ Transparence
Coloured plates and/or illustrations/ Planches et/ou illustrations en couleur	Quality of print varies/ Qualité inégale de l'impression
Bound with other material/ Relié avec d'autres documents	Includes supplementary material/ Comprend du matériel supplémentaire
Tight binding may cause shadows or distortion along interior margin/ La re liure serrée peut causer de l'ombre ou de la distortion le long de la marge intérieure	Only edition available/ Seule édition disponible
Blank leaves added during restoration may appear within the text. Whenever possible, these have been omitted from filming/ il se peut que certaines pages blanches ajoutées lors d'une restauration apparaissent dans le texte, mais, lorsque cela était possible, ces pages n'ont pes été filmées.	Pages wholly or partially obscured by errata slips, tissues, etc., have been refilmed to ensure the best possiblé image/ Les pages totalement ou partiellement obscurcles par un feuillet d'errata, une peiure, etc., ont été filmées à nouveau de façon à obtenir la meilleure image possible.
Additional comments:/ Commentaires supplémentaires;
•

This item is filmed at the reduction ratio checked below/ Ce document est filmé au taux de réduction indiqué ci-dessous.

.

The to t

The pot of film

Ori beg the sio oth firs sio or

The sha TIN wh

Ma diff ent beg righ req me re létails es du modifier er une 'ilmage

88

errata | to t peiure, on à The copy filmed here has been reproduced thanks to the generosity of:

National Library of Canada

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol  $\longrightarrow$  (meaning "CON-TINUED"), or the symbol  $\nabla$  (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

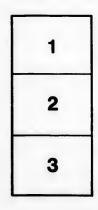

Bibliothèque nationale du Canada

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole  $\longrightarrow$  signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole  $\nabla$  signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvant être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'Images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants Illustrent la méthode.

1	2	3
4	5	6

EXEMPLIFIED, IN THE

TRENCH AND INDIAN CRUELTY

I F E,

AND

VARIOUS VICISSITUDES OF FORTUNE.

PETER WILLIAMSON,

WHO WAS CARBIED OFF FROM ABERDEEN THE AFE INFANCY, AND SOLD FOR A SLAVE IN PENSTLYANIA.

CONTAINING,

The Hiftory of the Author's furprifing Adventures in NORTH AMERICA; his Captivity among the Indiana and Manner of his Escape; the Customer, Deck. det of the Savages; Military Operations in that Quarter, with a Description of the British Settlements, to Sec

TO WHICH IS ADDED,

An Account of the Proceedings of the Magistrates of Aberdonia' against him, on his Return to Scotland; a brief History of him Process against them before the Court of Scilion; and a there Differtation on KINNAPPING.

EDINBURGH:

MINTED FOR AND SOLD BY THE BOOKSELLERS

andri a 'ne se is a do autorado no no se da da de se estas no se a da da de se estas

ST HER REPERTING AND A STREET a share and a share and a start a share a sh

State Artic

Har har anno in

il curtanti, curtanti cur

Contraction of the

Yan America Barta San (2010) - 2010 - 201

ELOSUCIELE.

APRA PASSAN

CHI ki He arri · wrec Sold at Defcrip His ma His he Himfel The cr favag The fhe mily Other i Defcrip The au Accom His ma His arr fora Kind re Examin Enters His arr Joleph by th His fon lames ( of M

8.2

CONTENTS.

I. French and Indian Cruelty.

'HE Author's birth, and manner of his being kidnapped at Aberdeen He arrives off the coast of America, and is shipwrecked at Cape May 10 Sold at Philadelphia to a planter 11 Description of the city of Philadelphia 12 His marriage and fettlement in a plantation His house burnt by the Indians; and Himfelf carried off by them The cruel treatment he fuffered while among the lavages The shocking massacre of Jacob Snider and his fa mily. Other inftances of the barbarity of the Indians Description of their drefs, and dispolitions The author meditates his efcape; and Accomplifies it, at the rifk of his life His manner of travelling and concealing himfelf His arrival at the house of John Bell, who takes how for an Indian, and threatens to floot him Kind reception among his wife's friends Examination before Governor Morris Enters a volunteer in Shirley's regiment His arrival at Bofton, and a description of it Joseph Long, Elq. with his house and servants, burns by the Indiana His fon and daughter carried off by them

fames Crawford, Efq. his expedition for the server

A 2

CONTENTS.

The deplorable condition in which the was found 43	& full
Fifty of the favages killed and fealped	Callving
The young lady's account of the maffacre of her	Advanta brother 45	With -
Mifs Long married to her deliverer 46	Their c
March of the forces for Ofwego	the ti
Account of the different nations of the Indians 48	Method
Their education, manners, religion, &c 49	1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1
Preparations for defending Ofwego 53	in it a
The Author's danger in a batteau among the cataracts 56	н. А Mutiny of the foldiers for want of provisions and pay 57 General Braddock's defeat, and mifconduct in that	S. S. L.
expedition 59	Deferip
Arrival of 3000 French in Canada - 60	trade Delcription of New York 61.
Fresh incursions and devaltations of the favages 62	YP. C
Many inftances of their diabolical cruelty - 63	ELL Scarooyada's speech to the Assembly - • 64
The Author goes on an expedition against the Indians 67 Defence against the favages in Kennorton-head	V F-6 church
Pufh shrough the Indians and retire with loss - ib.	The en Reinforced by Gen. Frankland from Philadelphia 69	and the state Further outrages by the favages, in which George	1 4 4 5 1 4 A
Hunter, Elq. and 16 of his family are burnt 70	A A A A A A A A A A A A A A A A A A A
Col. Armstrong's expedition against them	The A
Capt. Jacobs, chief of the Delawares, and squaw killed	relat
Lieut. Hogg's bravery	Profect
The Author wounded at the Great Carrying-place 75	- His bo Skirmin with a body of Indians near Olwego 77	Bat in Sin Irishman scalped when drunk, yet. recovered ib.	The M
The French discovered coming to attack Ofwego 82	Improl
Trenches opened before Fort Ontario - 83	prać
The fort abandoned by the English - 84	Proof Preparations to attack the Old Fort 85	Depoh
The brave Colonel Mercer killed 86	INT Surrender of the fort and garrifon, with the articles 87 Cruelty of the Indians on that occasion - 88	- 1. 5. 7 F. 51 and the second s
The English conducted by Montreal to Quebec 89	Res Sedence
Bad confequences of the lofs of Ofwego - 91 A full	1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 2 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4

iv

CONTENTS

ler

rge

A full account of the Indians; their manner of Colliving, fighting, &c. Mathematica Advantage of the English in maintaining friendship with them 97
Their complaints against the fraudulent dealings of the traders	1
Methods suggested for removing these complaints 109	13 is a company of a company of a company in the second interest of the second process.
H. Account of the British Settlements in North America.	. 1
CALL CALL CALL CALL CALL CALL CALL CALL	· Definition of New Frederick foil and the Defeription of New-England, its foil, produce,	73 irade, &c	1
of New-York, &c. 102
of Penfylvania, &c.	10.0
- Manual and Gan	Ti .
of Virginia, &c.	12
and a second 5.0
of Nova Scotta, &c.	1. X. of Canada, &c.	a mini
The embarkation at Quebec for England	- and a first of blade i grant Paulo rolling rates	Sec. 1
THE A THEFT A	14 5
III. A Discourse on Kidnapping. and the second the second of the second second second the second second	1
The Author's arrival at Aberdeen in queft of his relations
Profecution of the Magistrates against him	1
His books feized and burnt hy the Hangman	1
His books feized and burnt hy the Hangman Part in confinement till he fubloribed a recentation 1.
THE RE DESCRIPTION OF THE POPULATION A FECCER PROPERTY	1
The Magiftrates judge in their own geoglass. 113 Improbability that they could be ignorant of the	1.50 practice of Kidnapping
Proof of that practice by a cloud of Witnefice 115	1 44
THE END AND A SALE STORES AND A SALES AND A	69.4
of John Wilfon
Depolition of Alexander King of John Wilfon Differencies Frafer, Efq.	1. 1. 4 of Robert Reid Thinks a water 1817	enes. of Habel Willon	1
of light Willion	1000 3
of Margaret Reid	-
of Margaret Reid	18.5

- 17

CONTENTS.

TT.

, , ,	1 4
Deposition	n of George Johnston 119
	of Alexander Grigerion
	- of Margaret Rofs : 4 - 1 - 1 - 1 - 1 - 1 - 1 - 1 - 1 21 of William Jamieson 124
-	of George Leslie - 127
	- of Christian Finlater - ib. of Robert Brand 128
+ the -	- of George Mackie - ib.
	of James Rattray 129
· · ·	of George Garioch 130 of Alexander Gordon 132
	- of Alexander Gordon 132 - of Alexander Gray - 133 - of Helen Law of Helen Law ib.
Harrison Harrison	of James Robertion 135
1 11	of James Smith 136
3. 503200	of Walter Cochran
all all a second	of William Giblon - 138
1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1. 1	of John Dickson - ib.
Wickedne	is of the practice of Kidnapping exposed 140
Querics co	oncerning the lawfulness of it 141 of the various stratagems used to invergle children
The mann	er of disposing of them abroad - 143
The ulago	they receive from the planters - 144
Bad chara	cter of those who voluntarily indent them(elves	and the second sec es which artificers, &c. may reap in settling th	iere 146
	The second s ory of the Process between the Author and Magistrates of Aberdeen.
the Production of the	and the second of the second of the second of the second s
Institution	and authority of Magistrates 147
Irregulari	y of their proceedings - 148
The Aut	or applied for redrefs - 149
Interlocut	or of the Court of Seffion 150
Letter fro	m two of the Bailies of Aberdeen 151 nappinel	of a country where law and juffice prevail 154 publishing this narrative Articular	description of the Indian Tomalante
Stand Star	FRENCH
and the second the	A set of the set of th in the infance Was pompfcripti Europ years being wife e mufer quil a fuch me, .c never what impan and v at, I truth heart what

m'n

FRI

FRENCH AND INDIAN CRUELTY.

133

135

136

137

138

ib.

140

141

142

143

144

145

146 thor

147

148

149

150

ISI

154

155

HE reader is not here to expect a large and useless detail of the transactions of late years, in that part of the world, where, ever fince my infancy, it has been my misfortune to have lived. Was it in my power, indeed, to fet off with pompous diction, and embellish with artificial defcriptions, what has fo engrofied the attention of Europe, as well as the fcenes of action for fome years paft, perhaps I might; but my poor pen. being wholly unfit for fuch a talk, and never otherwife employed than just for my own affairs and amulement, while I had the pleasure of living tranquil and undiffurbed, I must beg leave to defift from: fuch an attempt; and, if fuch is expected from me, claim the indulgence of that pardon which is never refuled to those incapacitated of performing what may be defired of them. And, as a plaine impartial, and fuccinct narrative of my own life, and various vicifitudes of fortune, is all I thall aim at, I shall herein confine myself to plain simple truth, and, in the dictates refulting from an honeft heart, give the reader no other entertainment than what shall be matter of fact; and of fuch things as have actually happened to me, or come to me wa knowledge, in the fphere of life in which it is been my lot to be placed. Not bee 1 h may be allowed, now and then, to once on my narrative from the informations I have received of fuch things as relate to my delign, though they have not been done or transacted in my prefence.

It being usual in narratives like this, to give a thort account of the Author's birth, education, and fuvenile exploits, the fame being looked upon as necessary, or at least a fatisfactory piece of information to the curious and inquifitive reader; I shall, without boafting of a family I am no way entitled. to; or recounting adventures in my youth to which I was entirely a stranger, in a short manner gratify fuch curiofity; not expecting, as I faid before, to be admired for that elegance of ftyle, and profusion of words, to universally made use of in details and hiftories of those adventurers, who have of late years obliged the world with their anecdotes. and memoirs ; and which have had fcarce any other: existence than in the brains of a bookfeller's or print. ter's Garretcer; who, from fewer incidents, and tels furprising matter, than will be found in this fort narrative, have been, and are daily enabled. to fpin and work out their elaborate performances: to three or four volumes. That I, like them, pub-Will this for support, is true; but as I am too fenfible, the major part of mankind will give much more to a bookfeller, to be in the fashion, or fatisfy their curiofity, in having or reading a new puffid ap hiltory or novel, than to a real object of difficient for an accurate and faithful account of a feries of misfortunes, I have thought it more ad1 Fifeable to confine myfelf as to fize and price. than. by making a larger volume, mils that all ftance and relief, of which I at prefent and in its great ficed and difference of the first of the word of wo

Kudw, therefore, that I was born in Himney We the parish of Aboyne, and county of Aberdeen, North not b mark

onc

TEL.

Brital

Britais

whof

civ-

ugh.

pre-

VC 2:

and

1 28

ma-

hall.

itled.

hich

gra-

ibes-

and.

have

lotes.

ther

stin2.

and this bledi

necs:

oub.

fen-

uch:

atist

Duf

1 of

of

ad1.

than.

ance

Toat

14IO

Britain, if not of rich, yet of reputable parents; who fupported me in the best manner they could, as long as they had the happiness of having me under their infpection : but fatally for me, and to their great grief, as it afterwards proved, I was lent to live with an aunt at Aberdeen; when, under the years of pupillarity, playing on the quay, with others of my companions, being of a fout robust constitution, I was taken notice of by two fellows belonging to a veffel in the harbour, employed (as the trade then was), by fome of the worthy merchants of the town, in that villanous and exectable practice called Kidnapping; that is, ftealing young children from their parents, and felling them as flaves in the Plantations abroad. Being marked out by those monsters of impicty as their prey, I was cajoled on board the fhip by them, where I was no fooner got, than they conducted me between the decks, to fome others they had kidnapped in the fame manner. As that time, I had no fense of the fate that was deftined for me, and fpent the time in childish amufements with my fellow-fufferers in the fteerage, being never fuffered to go upon deck whilit the veffet lay in the harbour; which was until fuch a time an they had got in their loading, with a complement of unhappy youths for carrying on their wicked commerce.

In about a month's time the fhip fet fail for America. The treatment we met with, and the trifling incidents which happened during the voyage, I hope I may be excufed from relating, as not being, at that time, of an age fufficient to remark any thing more than what must occur to every one on fuch an occasion. However, I cannot forget, that, when we arrived on the coast we were delined for, a hard gale of wind forung up frim the S. E. and, to the captain's great hisperile (he not thinking he was near land), although having been eleven weeks on the passage, about twelve o'clock at night the fhip ftruck on a fand-bank, eff Cape May, near the capes of Delaware, and, to the great terror and affright of the ship's company, in a fhort time was almost full of water. The boat was then hoifted out, into which the captain, and his fellow-villains, the crew, got with fome difficulty, leaving me, and my deluded companions, to perish; as they then naturally concluded inevitable death to be our fate. Often, in my distreffes and miferies fince, have I withed that fuch had been the confequence, when in a state of innocence ! But Providence thought proper to referve me for future trials of its goodnefs. Thus abandoned and deferted, without the least prospect of relief, but threatened every moment with death, did thefe vilhins leave us. The cries, the thricks, and tears of a parcel of infants, had no effect on, or cauled the least remorfe in the breafts of thele mercilefs wetches. Scarce can I fay, to which to give the preference; whether to fuch as thefe, who have had the opportunity of knowing the Christian relision, or to the tavages herein after described, who profane not the gospel, or boalt of humanity; and they ach in a more brutal and butcherly manner, yet it is to their enemies, for the fake of plunder and the rewards offered them, for their principles are alike; the love of fordid gain being both their motives. The thip being on a fand-bank, which did not give way to let her deeper, we lay in the fame deplorable condition until morning, when, though we faw the land of Cape May, at about smile's diftance, we knew not what would be our

10

BITC.

The wind at length abated, and the captain (anwilling to lofe all her cargo), about to o'clock, have cut at us kno

Legor

fome of ving

elve

eff

, to anv.

The

tain.

ome

ons,

evi-

effes

had ice !

for

and

bat

vil

s of

tho

ilefs

the

lave

reli-

who

and

ner,

and

are heir

hich

the

ien;

Jour

our

B.B ...

fome of his crew in a boat to the fhip's fide to bring us on fhore, where we lay in a fort of a camp, made of the fails of the vefiel and fuch other things as they could get: The provisions lafted us until we were taken in by a vefiel bound to Philadelphia, lying on this ifland, as well as I can recollect, near three weeks. Very little of the cargo was faved undamaged, and the vefiel entirely loft.

When arrived and landed at Philadelphia, the capital of Penfylvania, the captain had foon people enough who came to buy us. He making the mole of his villanous loading, after his difaster, fold us at about 16 l. per head. What became of my unhappy companions, I never knew; but it was my lot to be fold to one of my countrymen, whole name was Hugh Wilfon, a North Briton, for the term of feven years, who had in his youth under gone, the fame fate as myfelf; having been kida napped from St Johnstown, in Scotland. As I shall often have occasion to mention Philadelphia during the course of my adventures, I thall, in this place, give a mort and concile description of the final city in America, and one of the best laid out in the I at the stand and to g world.

This city would have been a capital fit for an empire had it been built and inhabited according to the proprietor's plan. Confidering its has foundation, it is a large city, and most commodicatly fituated between Delawafe and Schuylkill, two mayiga'lle rivers. The former being two miles broad, and navigable 300 miles for fmall veffels. It extends, in length two miles from one river to the others There are eight long ftreets two miles in length, cut at right angles by fixteen others, of one mile in length, all ftraight and (pacious. The houles in littly, very numerous (being near 3000), and full in length, and all carned on regularly weeding to the first plan. It has two fronts to the water, one on the eaft fide facing the Schuylkill, and that on the weft facing the Delaware. The Schuylkill being navigable 800 miles above the falls, the caftern part is most populous, where the warehouses, fome three ftories high, and wharfs are numerous and convenient. All the houfes have large orchards and gardens belonging to them. The merchants that refide here are numerous and wealthy, many of them keeping their coaches, &c. In the centre of the city there is a space of ten acres, whereon are built the state-house, market-house, and schoolhouse. The former is built of brick, and has a prifon under it. The streets have their names from the feveral forts of timber common in Penfylvania; as Mulberry-ftreet, Saffafras-ftreet, Chefnut-ftreet, Beech-ftreet, and Cedar-ftreet. The oldeft church is Chrift-church, and has a numerous congregation; but the major part of the inhabitants, being at first Quakers, still continue fo, who have feveral meeting-houfes, and may not improperly be called the church as by law established, being the originals. The quay is beautiful, and 200 feet fquare, to which a ship of 200 tons may lay her broad-side. As the advantages this city may boaft of, has rendered it one of the best trading towns out of the British empire; fo in all probability it will increase in commerce and riches, if not prevented by party, faction, and religious feuds, which of late years have made it fuffer confiderably. The affemblies and courts of judicature are held here, as in all capitals. The French have no city like it in all America. . . Mere owni alle se 1947.

12

Happy was my lot in falling into my countryman's power, as he was, contrary to many others of his calling, a humane, worthy honeft. many Having no children of his own, and commiterating myunh until I year of n ftate I co more fit e fé Stante, which fhould b the cont indulge agteed time. tience fo grels in much f fchool, made a t improvin master 1 when h fervice, about 12 his wear Being my poc myfelf i any that when th better w one ftep which ftantial ceptable foon con destaw, water,

that ylkill

eaft-

oules,

erous

hards'

hants

many.

centre

ereon

chool-

has a

from vania (

ftreet,

hurch

grega-

being

leveral

called

origi-

quare,

d-fide.

s ren-

of the

hcreafe

party,

in all

untry-

others

cratte

my unhappy condition, he took great care of me until I was fit for busines; and about the 12th year of my age, let me about little trifles; in which state I continued until my 14th year, when I was more fit for harder work. During fuch my idle iceing my fellow-fervants often reading and the incited in me an inclination, to learn, which I intimated to my mafter, tehnischim; I fhould be very willing to ferve a year longer them. the contract by which I was bound, if he would indulge me in going to school; this he readily agreed to, faying, that winter would be the beft time. It being then fummer, I waited with impatience for the other feason; but to make some progrefs in my defign, I got a Primer, and learned as much from my fellow-fervants as I could. At Ichool, where I went every winter for five years, I made a tolerable proficiency thave ever fince been improving myfelf at leifure-no. With this good master I continued till I was fevencen years old, when he died; and, as a reward for my faithful fervice, left me 2001. currency, which was then about 120%. Sterling, his best horse, faddle, and all his wearing apparel.

Being now my own master, having money in my pocket, and all other necessaries, I employed myself in jobbing about the country, working for any that would employ me, for near feven years: when thinking I had the second provident to follow fombetter way of life, I applied to the daughter of a tubftantial planter, and found my fuit was not unacceptable to her or her father, fo that matters were foon concluded upon, and we married. My fatherinclaw, in order to establish us in the world, in spiment of motouffluent manner, made me a died of machine mack of land, that lay (unhappily for ma

13

14.

as it has fince proved) on the frontiers of the province of Penlylvania, near the forks of Delaware, in Berks county; containing about 200 acres, 30 of which were well cleared, and fit for immediate ule, whereon was a good house and barn. The place pleasing me well, I fettled on it; and though it ceft me the major part of my money, in buying ftoek, household-furniture, and implements for outdoor work; and happy as I was in a good wife, yet did my felicity last me not long: For about the year 1754, the Indians in the French interest, who had for a long time before ravaged and deftroyed other parts of America unmolested, I may very properly fay, began to be very troublefome on the frontiers of our province, where they generally appeared in fmall skulking parties, with yellings, shoutings, and antic postures, instead of trumpers and drums, committing great devastations. The Penfylvanians little imagined at first, that the Indians, guilty of fuch outrages and violences, were fome of those who pretend. ed to be in the English interest; which, alas! proved to be too true to many of us: For, like the French in Europe, without regard to faith or treaties, they fuddenly break out into furious, rapid outrages and devaltations, but foon retire precipitately, having no ftores or provisions but what they meet with in their incursions; fome indeed carry a bag wich bileuit, or Indian corn therein, but not unleis they have a long march to their deftined place of action. And those French, who were fent to difpeffels us in that part of the world, being indefatigable in their duty, and continually contriving, and using all manner of ways and means to win the Indians to their interest, many of whom had been too neuligent, and fometimes, I may fay, crucily sreated the those who pretend to be their protectors friends, found it no very difficult matter to to the materelt many who belonged to this tions i they ga fcalp of Terr the bar are not ry! Sc or other cruelty. as to n eafy fta tender litics, to that pea ftian w the mo learce c on me, good wa day wen as I ftaid none bei was my IL o'clo or war-y fuch occ ha, ha, h foon fou to the ch twelve in to come gave me ing to go l muß ne pro-

laware,

res, 70

mediate

. The

though

buying

or out-

ife, yet

he year

ho had

d other

roperly

rontiers

ared in gs, and

s, com-

ns little ch out-

retend.

prov-ike the

or trea-

oid out

bitately,

y meet

y a bag

t unless

lace of

to dif-

adefati-

ng, and

the In-

tog Steated

200.000

1¢

Valu

fions in amity with us, especially as the rewards they gave them were fo great, they paying for every fealp of an English person 15 /. Sterling.

Terrible and thocking to human nature were the barbarities daily committed by the favages, and are not to be paralleled in all the volumes of hiftory! Scarce did a day pass but some unhappy family or other fell victims to French chicanery and favage cruelty. Terrible indeed it proved to me, as wellas to many others; I that was now happy in an ealy flate of life, bleffed with an affectionate and tender wife, who was poffeffed of all amiable qualitics, to enable me to go through this world with that peace and ferenity of mind, which every Chriftian withes to poffes, became on a fudden one of the most unhappy and deplorable of mankind; fearce can I fustain the shock which for ever recoils on me, at thinking on the laft time of feeing that good woman. The fatal 2d of October 1754, the that day went from home to visit fome of her relations ; as I staid up later than usual, expecting her return, none being in the house befides myself, how great was my furprife, terror, and affright, when, about IL o'clock at night I heard the difmal war-cry, or war, whoop of the favages, which they make on fuch occasions, and may be expressed, Woach, woach, ba, ba, bach, woach, and to my inexpressible grief, foon found my house was attacked by them; I flew to the chamber-window, and perceived them to be twelve in number. They making feveral attempts to come in, I asked them what they wanted ? They gave me no answer, but continued beating; and trying to get the door open. Judge then the condition I must be in, knowing the cruelty and precisely and precise the second of those favores should I fall- interstation bands. To escape which dreadful misforce Series. death, if they should not defist. Die Dow B 2

16

vain and fruitless are the efforts of one man against the united force of fo many! and of fuch mercilefs. undaunted, and blood-thirfty monsters as I had here to deal with. One of them that could fpeak a little English, threatened me in return, " That if I did " not come out, they would burn me alive in the " house;" telling me farther, what I unhappily perceived, " That they were no friends to the Eng-" lifh, but if I would come out, and furrender my-" felf prifoner, they would not kill me." My terror and distraction at hearing this is not to be exprefied by words, nor eafily imagined by any perfon, unless in the same condition. Little could I depend on the promises of such creatures; and yet, if I did not, inevitable death, by being burnt alive, must be my lot. Distracted as I was in fuch deplorable circumftances, I chole to rely on the uncertainty of their fallacious promifes, rather than meet with certain death by rejecting them; and accordingly went out of my house with my gun in my hand, not knowing what I did, or that I had it. Immediately on my approach, they rushed on me like to many tigers, and inftantly difarmed me. Having me thus in their power, the mercilefs vilfains bound me to a tree near the door : they then went into the house, and plundered and deftroyed every thing there was in it, carrying off what moveables they could; the reft, together with the house, which they fet fire to, was confumed before my eyes. The barbarians, not fatisfied with this, fet fire to my barn, stable, and out-houses, wherein were about 200 bulhels of wheat, fix cows, four horles, and five theep, which underwent the fame fate, being all entirely confumed to alhes. During the conflagration, to defcribe the thoughts, the fears, and mifery that I felt, is utterly impossible, as it is even now to mention what I feel at the remembrance thereof.

Hav which with a the wo them, This I thing f Provid out of gave m which the mo the gre should monfe ed me again I the blo a fire 1 ed me was: go Thi dious as they others reflect tabof recour viation Te Per ing to

Lie aut

A.

againft

rcilefs, id here

a little

f I did

in the

happily

e Enger my-

Ay ter-

be ex-

ould I nd yet,

s alive,

deplo-

uncer

n ineet

in my

had it.

on me

ed me.

efs vil-

y then

ftroyed

F. what ith the

before the this,

where-

s, four e fame

Duriog

ocffible.

the re-

All and an and an and Having thus finished the exectable business about which they came, one of the monfters came to me with a tomabarth * in his hand, threatening me with the worft of deaths, if I would not willingly go with them, and be contented with their way of living: This I feemingly agreed to, promiting to do every thing for them that lay in my power; trufting to Providence for the time when I might be delivered out of their hands. Upon this they untied me, and gave me a great load to carry on my back, under which I travelled all that night with them, full or the most terrible apprehensions, and oppressed with the greateft anxiety of mind, left my unhappy wife should likewife have fallen a prey to these cruel monflers. At day break, my infernal mafters ordered me to lay down my load, when tying my hands again round a tree with a fmall cord, they forced the blood out of my finger-ends. They then kindled a fire near the tree whereto I was bound; which fill. ed me with the most dreadful agonies, concluding I was going to be made a facrifice to their barbarity. This narrative, O reader 1 may feem dry and tedious to you : My miferies and misfortunes, great as they have been, may be confidered only as what others have daily met with for years past; yet, on reflection; you can't help indulging me in the recital of them: For to the unfortunate and diffressed, recounting our miferies, is, in fome fort, an alleviation ofithem. A. s. Abbirth ing to you the deplorable condition I then was in,

A TOMAHAWK is a kind of hatchet, made fomething the out plafterer's hammers, about two feet long, handle and iff. To take up the hatchet (or TOMAHAWK) among them, to declare war. They generally use it after using them must by muching on their enemies, and fracturing or cleaving them fulls with it, and very feldom fail of killing at the first for that is more than can be deferibed to you, by one who thought of nothing lefs than being immediately put to death in the most excruciating manner these devils could invent. The fire being thus made, they, for fome time, danced round me after their manner, with various odd motions and antic gestures, whooping, hollowing, and crying in a frightful manner, as it is their cultom. Having fatisfied themselves in this fort of their mirth, they proceeded in a more tragical manner; taking the burning toals and flicks, flaming with fire at the ends, holding them near my face, head, hands, and feet, with a deal of monstrous pleasure and fatisfaction; and, at the fame time, threatening to burn me entirely, if I made the least noife, or cried out: Thus tortured as I was, almost to death, I fuffered their brutal pleafure without being allowed to vent my inexpreflible anguish, otherwise than by shedding filent tears; even which, when these inhuman tormentors observed, with a shocking pleasure and alacrity, they would take fresh coals, and apply near my eyes, telling me my face was wet, and that they would dry it for me, which indeed they cruelly did. How I underwent these tortures I have here faintly defcribed, has been matter of wonder to me many times; but God enabled me to wait with more than common patience for a deliverance I daily prayed for a fight set allot a sugar the set

HOT

B

Having at length fatisfied their brutal pleafure, they fat down round the fire, and roafted their meat, of which they had robbed my dwelling. When they had prepared it, and fatisfied their voracious appetites, they offered fome to me; though it is eatily imagined I had but little appetite to eat, after the fortures and miferies I had undergone; yet was a forced to feem pleafed with what they offered me left, by refuting it, they had again re-affumed their hellifh practices. What I could not eat, I could trived I was'l imagin again conditi When covered tom, t traces . Thu firft di may fe underv tormen eye-wi happy Goi for the we arri or Blu logs of thence bourin his un childre got ad where and w N. 65 34

Sc/

to and the

which t

their ne

deci

u, by mme-

man-

thus after

in a

ng fal

they

gthe

it the

s, and

fatis-

burn

d out:

ffered

vent

dding

n tor-

d ala-

near dithat

ruelly

here

to me

with nce I

afures

meat,

When

acious

i jt is , after et was od and

1

trived get between the bark and the tree, where I was fixed, they having unbound my hands till they imagined I had eat all they gave me; but then they again bound me as before; in which deplorable condition was I forced to continue all that day. When the fun was fet, they put out the fire, and covered the afters with leaves, as is their ufual cuftom, that the white people might not difcover any traces or figns of their having been there.

Thus had thefe barbarous wretches finished their first diabolical piece of work; and shocking at it may seem to the humane English heart, yet what I underwent was but trifling, in comparison to the torments and miseries which I was afterwards an eye-witness of being inflicted on others of my unhappy fellow-creatures.

Going from thence along by the river Sufquehana for the space of six miles, loaded as I was before, we arrived at a spot near the Apalachian mountains, or Blue-Hills, where they hid their plunder under logs of wood.—And, oh, shoeking to relate I from thence did these hells monsters proceed to a neighbouring house, occupied by one Jacob Snider, and his unhappy family, consisting of his wife, five children, and a young man his fervant. They foon got admittance into the unfortunate man's house; where they immediately, without the least remorfe, and with more than brutal cruelty, scalped * the * SCALPING, is taking off the 1kin from the top of the head; which they perform with a long knife that they hang round their neck, and always carry with them. They cut the 1kin round as much of the head as they think proper, fometimes quite from the neck and forchead, then take it in their fingess block it off, and often leave the unhappy creatures, he ferred to die in a most milerable manner. Some, who are not on the temples or fcull, live in horrid torm nts many have, and fometimes a day or two after. The deline, or here taken off, the areferve and carry home in humph, where receive, as is laid before, a confiderable them for every tender -

tender parents and the unhappy children : Nor could the tears, the thricks, or crics of these unhappy victims prevent their horrid maffacre : For having thus fealped them; and plundered the house of every thing that was moveable, they fet fire to the fame, where the poor creatures met their final doom amidit the flames, the hellish miscreants standing at the door, or as near the house as the flames would permit them, rejoicing, and echoing back in their diabolical manner, the piercing cries, heartrending groans, and paternal and affectionate foothings, which iffued from this most horrid facrifice of an innocent family. Sacrifice ! I think I may properly call it, to the aggrandizing the ambition of a ing, who wrongly flyles himfelf Most Christian ? For, had these favages been never tempted with the illuring bait of all-powerful gold, myfelf as well as hundreds of others, might still have lived most happily in our flations. If Christians countenance, nay, hire those wretches, to live in a continual repetition of plunder, rapine, murder, and conflagration, in vain are missionaries fent, or fums expended for the propagation of the gospel. But these sentiments, with many others, must, before the end of this narrative, occur to every humane heart. Therefore to proceed; not contented with what these infernals had already done, they ftill continued their inordinate villany, in making a general conflagration of the barn and ftables, together with all the corn, horfes, cows, and every thing on the place. Thinking the young man belonging to this unhappy family would be of fome fervice to them, in carrying part of their hellish acquired plunder, they spared his life, and loaded him and mylelf with what ex had here got, and again marched to the Bluewhere they flowed their goods as before. My ellow-fufferer could not long bear the cruel treatment compl procee as mu Billie affifta ches; moan ing as with which where fudde gree, quite be the thoug which but ft for fo or wh came faved Th their fkulki and A fcarce where alread bited John buc. fcalpe

fore t

sid -2:

ticy.

Rath.

ment

ment which we were both obliged to fuffer complaining bitterly to me of his being under proceed any farther, I endeavoured to condole as much as lay in my power; to bear up under him afflictions, and wait with patience, till, by the divine allistance, we should be delivered out of their clut ches; but all in vain, for he still continued his moans and tears, which one of the favages percenting as we travelled on, inftantly came up to us, and with his tomahawk, gave him a blow on the head, which felled the unhappy youth to the ground, where they immediately fealped and left him, The fuddennels of this murder shocked me to that degree, that I was in a manner like a flatue, being quite motionlefs, expecting my fate would foon be the fame : However, recovering my diffracted thoughts, I diffembled the uncafinets and anguila which I felt as well as I could from the barbarians, but still, fuch was the terror that I was under, that for fome time I fcaree knew the days of the week, or what I did, fo that at this period, life indeed became a burden to me, and I regretted my being faved from my first perfecutors, the failors.

The horrid fact being completed, they kept-on their courfe near the mountains, where they lay fkulking four or five days, rejoicing at the plunder and flore they had got. When provisions became fcarce, they made their way towards Sulfquehana ; where, fkill to add to the many barbarities they had already committed, paffing near another house inhabited by an unhappy old man, whole name was John Adams, with his wife and four finall children ; aud, meeting with no reliftance, they immediately fcalped the unhappy wife and her fourchildren, befure the good old man's eyes. Inhumane and hertid as this was, it did not fatiate them a formitien they had murdered the poor woman, they select with her in fuch a brutal manner, as discours, or

h what Blue

e. My

treat-

membrance of the crime, will not permit me antion : and this even before the unhappy hufd, who, not being able to avoid the fight, and scapable of affording her the least relief, entreated them to put an end to his miferable being : but they were as deaf, and regardlefs to the tears, prayers, and entreatice of this venerable fufferer, as they had been to those of the others, and proceeded in their hellish purpose of burning and destroying his house, barn, corn, hay, cattle, and every thing the poor man a few hours before was maîter of. Have ing faved what they thought proper from the fames, they gave the old man, feeble, weak, and inthe milerable condition he then was, as well as myfeld, burdens to carry, and loading themfelves likes wie with bread and meat, purfued their journey on commute the Great Swamp; where being arrived, they lay for eight or nine days, fometimes diverting themfelves in exercifing the most arrocious and barbarous cracities on their unhappy victim, the old man ; fometimes they would ftrip him naked, and paint him all over with various forts of colours, which they extracted, or made from herbs and soots ; at other times they would pluck the white hairs from his venerable head, and tauntingly stell him; He was a fool for living to long, and that they would Iber bim kindness in putting him out of the world, to all which the poor creature could but vent his fighs, his course his means, and entreatics, that, to my affrighted interination, were enough to-ponetrate a boart of adamain, and forten the most abdurate fivage. In vain, also h were all his tears, for daily did they tire themselves with the various they they thed to torment him; fometimes tying to a tree, and whipping him ; at others, fcorenmg his furrowed cheeks with red hor coals, and busining his 1826, quire to the wickedly or high winds burning his legs, quite to the knees: but the good the div even in his: pra thankly the flan limbs, of the And, d fernal p his hea One ni he and at the twenty by anot fallen town, n by the ing act mitted. cated a a large with 2 from t guels at dians ir I shall t those th This pa in their thole w tragedie when J children ilerab ad eve

t me

huf-

and

ated

but ray-

they

d in

z bie

the

lavie

the

d'in-

my-

hkeu

y on ved

tiog

and

the

ked a

UTS-

and

hite

Heep

but

tics.

h to

noft

AT8,

lous

ying reh-

and

L.

the divine juffice, like many others in fuch cale even in the greatest agonies, incessantly offered u his prayers to the Almighty, with the most fervent thanksgivings for his former mercies, and hoping the flames, then furrounding and burning his aged limbs, would foon fend him to the blifsful manfions of the just, to be a partaker of the bleffings there. And, during fuch his pious ejaculations, his infernal plagues would come round him, mimicking his heart-rending groans, and pitcous wailings. One night after he had been thus tormented, whilft he and I were fitting together condoling each other at the misfortunes and miferies we daily fuffered. twenty fealps and three prifoners were brought in by another party of Indians. They had unhappily fallen in their hands in Cannocojigge, a fmall town mear the river Sulquehana, chiefly inhabited by the frifh. These prifoners gave us some shocking actounts of the murders and devaltations committed in their parts. The various and complicated actions of these barbarians would entirely fill a large volume; but what I have already written, with a few other inftances which I fhall felect from their information, will enable the reader to guels at the horrid treatment the English, and Indians in their interest, suffered for many years past. I shall therefore only mention, in a brief manner, those that suffered near the same time with myself. in their power to begin their wickedness as foon as thole who visited my habitation; the helt of their tragedies being on the 25th day of October 1754. when John Lewis, with his wife, and three imall children, fell facrifices to their cruelty, and were ferably scalped and murdered; his house, barn, ad every thing he poffeded, being burne and de-Received of On the 28th, Jacob Miller, with his and fix of his family, together with me ming on his plantation, underwent the fame fate. The 20th, the house, mill, barn, twenty head of cattle, two teams of horfes, and every thing belonging to the unhappy George Folke, met, with the like treatment; himfelf, wife, and all his miferable family, confifting of nine in number, being inhumanly scalped, then cut in pieces, and given to the fwine, which devoured them. I fhall give another instance of the numberless and unheard of barbarities they related of these favages, and proceed to their own tragical end. In thort, one of the fubstantial traders belonging to the province, having bufinefs that called him fome miles up the country, fell into the hands of these devils. who not only fealped him, but immediately roafted it before he was dead; then, like canning for of other food, cat his whole body d'of he head made what they called an India pudding.

11724

From these few instances of favage cruelty, the deplorable fituation of the defenceles inhabitants, and what they hourly suffered in that part of the globe, must strike the utmost horror to a human foul, and cause in every breast the utmost detestation, not only against the authors of such magic ficenes, but against those who through perfidy, inattention, or putillanimous and erroneous principles, suffered these favages at first, unrepelled, of even unmolessed, to commit such outrages and incredible depredations and murders: For no torments, no barbarities that can be exercised on the human facrifices they get into their power, are left untried or omitted.

The three prifoners that were brought with these additional forces, conftantly repining at these loss and almost dead with their excellive hard meanings, contrived at last to make their eleaper, but being far from their own fortienfents, and not knowing the cou the trib back to joiced a The pe fustenar elopeme barbaria and a gi mained when or ript ope burnt th cutting, breafts, till they referved crificed close to for him earth ra his nec ground remain nies; af head, c torment only cry his brai all his pl ing to b and fuch ture fuff dead !! with th graves, and of t fight n

the country, were foon after met by fome others of the tribes or nations at war with us, and brought back to their diabolical mafters, who greatly rejoiced at having them again in their infernal power. The poor creatures almost familied for want of fustenance, having had none during the time of their elopement, were no fooner in the clutches of the barbarians, than two of them were tied to a tree, and a great fire made round them, where they remained till they were terribly fcorched and burnty when one of the villains, with his fcalping knife, ript open their bellies, took out their entrails, and burnt them before their eyes, whillt the others were cutting, piercing, and tearing the flesh from their breafts, hands, arms, and legs, with red hot irons, till they were dead. The third unhappy victim was referved a few hours longer, to be, if possible, facrificed in a more cruel manner; his arms were tied clofe to his body, and a hole being dug deep enough for him to fland upright, he was put therein, and earth rammed and beat in all round his body up to his neck, fo that his head only appeared above ground; they then scalped him, and there let him remain for three or four hours in the greatest ago. nies; after which they made a fmall fire near his head, caufing him to fuffer the most excruciating torments imaginable, whilft the poor creature could only cry for mercy in killing him immediately, for his brains were boiling in his head : Inexorable to all his plaints, they continued the fire, whillt, mocking to behold! his eyes guilted out of their fockets : and fuch agonizing torments did the unhappy creature luffer for near two hours, till he was quite dead . They then cut off his head, and buried it with the other bodies; my talk being to dig the graves, which, feeble and terrified as I was, the are d of fuffering the fame fate, enabled me to do. half not here take up the reader's time, in white, attenipting bewith milebeing en to anord of prone of vince, s up evils, rafted for d of pud-, the tants, f the uman fefta-Magit y, inciples, even edible ts, no an lantried theft fate.

id of 26

strempting to describe what I felt on fuch an occafion, but continue my narrative, as more equal to my abilities.

A great flow now falling, the barbarians were a little fearful, left the white people fhould, by their traces, find out their fkulking retreats, which obliged them to make the best of their way to their winterquarters, about 200 miles farther from any plantations, or inhabitants: where, after a long and tedious journey, being almost starved, I arrived with this infernal crew. The place where we were to reft, in their tongue, is called Alamingo. There we found a number of wigwams * full of their women and children. Dancing, finging, and fhooting were their general amusements; and in all their feftivals and dances, they relate what fucceffes they have had, and what damages they have fultained in their expeditions; in which I became part of their theme. The feverity of the cold increasing, they ftript me of my clothes for their own use, and gave me fuch as they usually wore themselves, being a piece of blanket, a pair of morganes, or floes, with a yard of coarle cloth, to put round me inftead of breeches, To defcribe their drefs and manner of living may not be altogether unacceptable to fome of my readers; but as the fize of this book will not permit me to be fo particular as I might otherwife be, I shall just observe,

That they in general wear a white blanket, which, in war-time, they paint with various figures; but particularly the leaves of trees, in order to deceive their enemies when in the woods. Their mogganes are made of deer-fkins, and the beft fort have them

"Wiewais are the names they give their houses, which are no more than little huts, made with three or four torked fields drave into the ground, and covered with deer or other flows, which for want of them, with large leaves and earth.

bound bands. for ftoo dalhes : lower run in. thereof benind. knen th but the them o Pecone off to They ar ing trin and ne is made fiells, cars and hang da beards, ments a hair of pluck o from th with w The wo backs, their he OT COPP inftead and con maiden tinge, I their fo Massan ister A

0000 ust to

were a their

bliged

inter-

nd te-

1 with

ere to ere we

70men

were fivals

have

their heme.

ipt me

e luch

ece of

and of eches.

r may

read-

nit me

[ fhall-

which,

s; but

eceive

gganes

them

nich and d'Anders Ine : ene bound round the edges with little beads and ribands. On their legs they wear pieces of blue cloth for flockings, fomething like our foldiers fpatter. dathes; they reach higher than their knees, but not lower than their ancles; they effect them eafy to run in. Brecches they never wear, but instead thereof two pieces of linen, one before, and another benind. "The better fort have fhirts of the finefs hinen they can get, and to these some wear ruffles; but these they never put on till they have painted them of various colours, which they get from the Pecone root, and bark of trees, and never pull them off to wash, but wear them till they fall to pieces. They are very proud, and take great delight in wearing trinkets; fuch as filver plates round their wrifts and necks, with leveral ftrings of wampum (which is made of cotton, interwove with pebbles, cockley fhells, Gc,), down to their breafts; and from their ears and nofes they have rings and beads, which hang dangling an inch or two. The men have no beards, to prevent which they use certain instruments and tricks as foon as it begins to grow. The hair of their heads is managed differently, fome pluck out and deftroy all, except a lock hanging from the crown of the head, which they interweave with wampum and feathers of various colours. The women wear it very long twifted down their backs, with beads, feathers, and wampum; and on their heads most of them wear little coronets of brafs or copper; round their middle they wear a blanker inftead of a petticoat. The females are very shafte, and constant to their husbands ; and if any young maiden should happen to have a child before martinge, the is never effeemed afterwards. As for their food they get it chiefly by hunting and theor? ing, and boil, broil, or roaft all the meat they eat. the bruifed and boiled over a geptle fire, his ven

Ca

or twelve hours. Their bread is likewife made of wild oats, or fun-flower feeds. Set nieals they never regard, but eat when they are hungry. Their gun, tomahawk, fcalping knife, powder and thot, are all they have to carry with them in time of war; bows and arrows being feldom ufed by them. They generally in war decline open engagements; bush fighting or skulking is their difcipline; and they are brave when engaged, having great fortitude in enduring tortures and death. No people have a greater love of liberty, or affection to their relations; but they are the most implacably vindictive people upon the earth, for they revenge the death of any relation, or any great affront, whenever occasion prefents, let the distance of time or place be never fo remote. To all which I may add, and what the reader has already observed, that they are inhumanly cruel. But, fome other nations might be more happy, if, in fome inftances, they copied them, and made wife conduct, courage, and perfonal frength, the chief recommendations for warcaptains, or werowances, as they call them. In times of peace they vifit the plantations inhabited by the whites, to whom they fell balkets, ladles, fpoons, and other fuch trifles, which they are very expert in making. When night comes, if admitted into any house, they beg leave to lie down by the fire-fide, chufing that place rather than any other, which is feldom refused them, if sober, for then they are honeft; but if drunk, are very dangerous and troublefome, if people enough are not in the house to quell them. Nor would they at any time he guilty of fuch barbarous depredations as they are, did not those calling themselves Christians, entire them thereto with strong liquors, which they are valtly fond of; as well as by the peconiary rewards which they give for the fealps. If any person gannet be gratified, or superiority obtained, other wife th in thof inordir favour instant fcalped raging as obn mind, they fo laid fo ing the to the tims: t them fond wicke their t figns ! fo into own e ing tl among cious fpeak not in very f the The render munit and es had, practi age, f shet h 198.0

Serens

Same ST

ide of

cy ne=

Their

I fhot.

me of

ed by n' en-

r dif-

naving

. No

ection

acably

venge

front.

ftime

I may

, that

ations

they

, and

r war-

h In

abited

ladles.

e very

nitted

by the other.

then

zerous

in the

ey are,

entice Trate

No and A

wife than by the death of thousands, would it not, in those who seek such airy phantoms, and are so inordinately fond of their fellow-creatures lives, favour a little more of humanity to have them killed instantly, and, if they must have proofs of murder, fcalped afterwards, than, by allowing and encouraging fuch mercilefs treatment, render themfelves as obnoxious, cruel, and barbarous, to a humane mind, as the very favages themfelves?-However, they fometimes fuffer by their plots and chicanery laid for the destruction of others; it often happening that the traders or emiffaries fent to allure them to the execution of their schemes, rightly fall victime themfelves; for, as they always carry with them horfe-loads of rum, which the Indians are fond of, they foon get drunk, quarrelfome, and wicked, and, in their fury, often kill and deftroy their tempters : A just reward for their wicked defigns ! nay, it has fuch an effect on them, that when fo, intoxicated, they even burn and confume all their own effects, beating, wounding, and fometimes killing their wives and children: But, in disputes among themfelves when fober,' they are very tenacious of decorum, never allowing more than one to speak at a time. Profane swearing they know not in their own language how to express, but are very fond of the French and English oaths.

The old people, who are by age and infirmities rendered incapable of being ferviceable to the community, they put out of the world in a barbarous and extraordinary manner; an inftance of which I had, whilft among them, an opportunity of feeing practifed on an old Indian. He being, through age, feeble and weak, and his eyes failing him, fo that he was unable to get his living either by bunting of the leading ones, who word in be his praces. Before whom being come, and inving nu-

L: 3

mang

30

thing to fay for himfelf (as how indeed could he prove himfei: to be young?) they very formally, and with a feeming degree of compassion, passed fentence on him to be put to death. This was foon after executed on him in the following manner: He was tied naked to a tree, and a boy, who was to be his executioner, flood ready with a tomahawk in his hands, to beat his brains out; but when the young monfter came to inflict the fentence, he was fo fort of flature, that he could not lift the tomahawk high enough; upon which he was held up by fome others, a great concourfe being prefent; and then, though the young devil laid on with alf his firength, he was not for fome time able to fracture the old man's fcull, fo that it was near an hour before he was dead.---- Thus are they from their youth inured to barbarity! i de - in the second

When they found no remains of life in him, they put him into a hole dug in the ground for that purpole, in which he flood upright. Into his lefthand they put an old gun, and hung a finall powder-horn and fhot-bag about his fhoulder, and a ftring of wampum round his neck; and into his right-hand a little filk purfe, with a bit of money in it; then filled the hole round, and covered him over with earth. This I found to be the ufual manner of treating the old of both fexes; only that the women are killed by young girls, and put into the ground with nothing but a ladle in one hand, and a wooden difh in the other.

They are very strict in punishing offenders, especially fuch as commit crimes against any of the royal families. They never hang any; but those sentenced to death are generally bound to a state, and a great fire made round them, but not so near as to burn them immediately; for they formetimes remain roassing in the middle of the flames for two or three days before they are dead. mig exco plar rend tion agai cou the whi the Iw doo har unk ind wel the the my abo lity gar

"ing

and

ten

pla

TY.

1

After

Sto A

the

kept

grou

and

After this long digression, it is time to return to the detail of my own affairs .- At Alamingo was I kept near two months, until the fnow was off the ground. A long time to be amongst fuch creatures, and naked as I almost was Whatever thoughts I might have of making my escape, to carry them into execution was impracticable, being fo far from any plantations or white people, and the fevere weather rendering my limbs in a manner quite fliff and motionless; however, I contrived to defend myself against the inclemency of the weather as well as I could, by making myfelf a little wigwam, with the bark of the trees, covering the fame with earth, which made it refemble a cave; and, to prevent the ill effects of the cold which penetrated into it, I was forced to keep a good fire always near the door.

Thus did I for near two months endure fach hardships of cold and hunger as had hitherto been unknown to me. My liberty of going about was, indeed more than I could have expected, but they well knew the impracticability of my eloping from them. Seeing me outwardly easy and submissive, they would fometimes give me a little meat, but my chief food was Indian corn, dreffed as I have above deferibed. Notwithstanding such their civility, the time passed for tedious on, that I almost began to despair of ever regaining my liberty, or feeing my few relations again; which, with the anxiety and pain I suffered on account of my dear wife, often gave me inexpressible concern.

At length the time arrived when they were preparing themfelves for another expedition against the planters and white people; but before they fet out, they were joined by many other Indians from Fort the Quesne, well stored with powder and ball they had received from the French.

As

ould he rmally, pafied as foon hanner : was to hawk in hen the nce, he lift the as held refent : with alf to fracan hour m their m, they

at puris leftll powand a nto his oney in im over manner he wonto the , and a s, efpeof the t those stake,

o near

or two

After

1 Patr

32

As foon as the fnow was quite gone, and no traces. of their vile foot-fteps could be perceived, they fet forth on their journey towards the back parts of the province of Penfylvania, leaving their wives and children behind in their wigwams. They were now a terrible and formidable body, amounting to near 150. My duty was to carry what they thought proper to load me with, but they never intrusted me with a gun. We marched on feveral days without any thing particular occurring, almost famished for want of provisions; for my part I had nothing but a few stalks of Indian corn, which I was glad to eat. dry: Nor did the Indians themselves fare much better, for as we drew near the plantations, they were afraid to kill any game, left the noise of their guns fould alarm the inhabitants.

When we again arrived at the Blue Hills, about 20 miles from Cannocojigge, the Irish settlement before mentioned, we encamped for three days, though God knows we had neither tents, nor any thing elfe to defend us from the inclemency of the air, having nothing to lie on by night but the grafs. Their usual method of lodging, pitching, or encamping, hy night, being in parcels of ten or twelve men to a fire, where they lie upon the grafs or bulhes, wrapt up in a blanket, with their feet to the fire. During our flay here, a fort of council of war was held, when it was agreed to divide themselves into companies of about twenty men each; after which every captain marched with his party where he thought proper. I still belonged to my old ma-Rers, but was left behind on the mountains with ten Indians, to flay until the reft fould return; not thinking it proper to carry me nearer the Cannocojigge, or the other plantations.

Here being left, I began to meditate on my efcape; and though I knew the country round tratremely well, having been often thereabouts with my co yet wa of fuc ter the ers the of gan fuch when down what fatigu them be in to fee tions ing al I fou exulte might vity, being partie get or my de I mad hads vain. gainin rying confic tectio was. my t halted fearfu left t Was 2

ary p

1.86

my companions, hunting deer, and other beafts, yet was I very cautious of giving the Teaft fuspicion of fuch my intention. However, the third day after the grand body left us, my companions or keepers thought proper to visit the mountains in fearch. of game for their fublistence, leaving me bound in fuch a manner that I could not elcape: At night, when they returned, having unbound me, we all fat down together to supper on two polecats, being what they had killed, and foon after (being greatly fatigned with their day's excursion) they composed themfelves to reft as usual. Observing them to be in that fomniferous flate, I tried various ways to fee whether it was a scheme to prove my intentions or not; but after making a noile, and walking about, fometimes touching them with my feet, I found there was no fallacy. My heart then exulted with joy at feeing a time come that I might in all probability be delivered from my capital vity, but this joy was foon damped by the dread of being discovered by them, or taken by any straggling parties. To prevent which, Brefolved, if pollible, to get one of their guns, and, if discovered, to die in my defence rather than be taken; for that purpoles I made various efforts to get one from under their heads (where they always fecured them), but in vain. Frustrated in this my first effay towards regaining my liberty, I dreaded the thoughts of carrying my defign into execution : yet, after a little confideration, and trufting myfelf to the divine protection, I fet forwards naked and defencelefs as I was. A rath and dangerous enterprife! Such was. my terror, however, that in going from them & halted and paufed every four or five yards, louking fearfully towards the fpot where I had left them, left they they Id awake and mits me; but when I was about two hundred yards from them, I mended my pace, and made as much hafte as I could to the

foor

races ey fet f the and now near prod me thout d for g but to eat much they their about it bequgh gelfe aving Their ping, en to ihes. re. war elves after here m2h ten not 000-iy e-

CRA

with

- HOY

34

foot of the mountains; when on a fudden I was fruck with the greatest terror and amaze at hearing the wood-cry, as it is called, and may be expressed Jo hau! Jo hau! which the favages of had left were making, accompanied with the most hideous cries and howlings they could utter. The bellowing of lions, the fhricks of hyenas, or the roarings of tigers, would have been mulic to my cars, in comparison to the founds that then faluted them. They having now miffed their charge, I concluded that they would foon feparate themfelves, and hie in quest of me. The more my terror increased, the fafter did I push on, and scarce knowing where I trode, drove through the woods with the utmost precipitation, fometimes falling and bruifing myfelf, cutting my feet and legs against the stones in a miferable manner; but, though faint and maimed; I continued my flight until break of day, when, without having any thing to fustain nature but a little corn left, I crept into a hollow tree, in which I lay very foug, and returned my prayers and thanks to the Divine Being, that had thus far favoured my elcape. But my repole was in a few hours deftroyed at hearing the voices of the favages near the place where I was hid, threatening and talking how they. would use me, if they got me again; that I was before too fenfible of, to have the leaft reft either in body or mind fince I had left them. However, they at last left the spot where I heard them, and I remained in my circular afylum all that day without further molestation.

At night I ventured forwards again, frightened and trembling at every bufh I paft, thinking each twig that touched me to be a favage. The third day I concealed myfelf in the like manner, and at night I travelled on in the fame deplorable condition, keeping off the main road used by the Indians is much as possible, which made my journey many miles

was

aring

effed-

eous

low-

cars.

hem

uded

the

cre F

moft.

my-

se in

med;

hich

d my

oyed

place

they.

ither

and

with-

ened

third

d at lians

nany

miles

miles longer, and more painful and irkfome than I can express. But how shall I describe the fear, the ror, and shock, that I felt on the fourth night, when, by the ruftling I made among the leaves, a party of Indians, that lay round a fmall fire, which I did not perceive, ftarted from the ground, and feizing their arms, run from the fire, amongst the woods. Whether to move forward, or to reft where I was, I knew not, to diffracted was my imagination. In this melancholy fate, revolving in my thoughts the now inevitable fate I thought waited on me, to my great confternation and joy, I was relieved by a parcel of fwine that made towards the place I gueffed the favages to be; who, on feeing the hogs, conjectured that their alarm had been occafioned by them, and very merrily returned to the fire, and lay down to fleep as before. As foon as I perceived my enemies fo difpofed of, with more cautious step and filent tread, I purfued my course, fweating (though winter, and feverely cold) with the fear I had just been relieved from. Bruifed, cut, mangled, and terrified as I was, I ftill, through the divine affiftance, was enabled to purfue my journey. until break of day, when thinking mylelf far off from any of those milcreants I to much dreaded, I lay down under a great log, and slept undiffurbed until about noon, when getting up, I reached the fummit of a great hill with fome difficulty, and looking out if I could fpy any inhabitants of white people, to my unutterable joy I faw fome, which I gueffed to be about ten miles distance.

This pleafure was in fome measure abated, by my not being able to get among them that night i therefore, when evening approached, I again recommended myfelf to the Almighty, and compoled my weary mangled limbs to reft. In this morning, as foon as I awoke, I continued my journey towords the nearest cleared lands I had feen the day before

before, and about four o'clock in the afternoon arrived at the house of John Bell, an old acquaint. ance, where, knocking at the door, his wife, who opened it, feeing me in fuch a frightful condition, flew from me like lightning, fcreaming into the coule. This alarined the whole fantily, who immediately fled to their arms, and I was foon accofted by the master with his gun in his hand. But . on my affuring him of my innocence as to any wicked intentions, and making myfelf known (for he before took me to be an Indian), he immediately carefied me, as did alfo his family, with a deal of friendthip, at finding me alive; they having all been informed of my being murdered by the favages fome months before. No longer now able to fupport my fatigued and worn-out fpirts, I fainted and fell to the ground. From which flate having recovered me, and perceiving the weak and familhed condition I then was in, they foon gave me fome refreshment, but let me partake of it very sparingly, fearing the ill effects too much at once would have on me. They for two or three nights very affectionately supplied me with all necessaries, and carefully attended me until my fpirits and limbs were pretty well recruited, and I thought myfelf able to ride, when I borrowed of these good people (whose kinducis merits my most grateful return) a horse and fome clothes, and fet forward for my father-inlaw's house in Chefter county, about 140 miles from thence, where I arrived on the 4th day of January 1755; but scarce one of the family could credit their eyes, believing, with the people I had lately left, that I had fallen a prey to the Indians. Great was the joy and fatisfaction wherewith I was procised and embraced by the whole family, was received and embraced by the whole family, but, oh; what was my anguilh and trouble, when on inquiring for my dear wife, I found the had been dead near two months! This fatal news, as every has mang and ra verand been is The law's was' fe tions. me, be quiring living them. his exc gentler to all i cially i me aw ties. who pi mer; inhum on the were d friends plied t and gr excurfi traordi take an great p ball, E fied his ed, the conten of my es well

feat m

mane

1 21-

aint

who

tion.

the

im-

204 any

(for

ately

al of

been ages

fup-

and

t re-

ished

lome

ring-

ould

very.

and

imbs

able

hofe

norfe

r-in-

from

uary

redit

ately

ich L pily 3 vhen

Deen

nanc

But .

37

ting

entite reader must imagine, greatly lessened the joy and rapture I otherwise should have felt at my deliverance from the dreadful state and captivity I had been in,

The news of my happy arrival at my father-inlaw's house, after so long and strange an absence, was foon fpread round the neighbouring plantations, by the country people who continually vifited me, being very defirous of hearing and eagerly ina quiring an account of my treatment and manner of living among the Indians; in all which I fatisfied them. Soon after this my arrival, I was fent for by. his excellency Mr. Morris, the governor, a worthy gentleman, who examined me very particularly as to all incidents relating to my captivity, and efpecially in regard to the Indians, who had first taken me away, whether they were French or English parties. I affured his excellency they were of those who profeffed themselves to be friends of the former; and informed him of the many barbarous and inhuman actions I had been witnefs to among them, on the frontiers of the province; and also that they were daily increasing, by others of our pretended friends joining them; that they were all well fupplied by the French with arms and ammunition, and greatly encouraged by them in their continual excursions and barbarities, not only in having extraordinary premiums for fuch fealps as they should take and carry home with them at their return, but great prefents of all kinds, befides rum, powder, ball, &c. before they fallied forth. Having fatisfied his excellency in fuch particulars as he request. ed, the fame being put into writing, I fwore to the contents thereof, as may be feen by those who doubt of my veracity in the public papers of that time; as well in England as in Philadelphia. Heing done with me, Mr. Morris gave me three pounds; and icht the affidavit to the affembly who were then fitting in the flate-house at Philadelphia, concluding on proper measures to check the depredations of the favages, and put a flop to the barbarous hostilities of the diffressive inhabitants, who daily suffered death in a most deplorable condition; besides being obliged to abscond their plantations, and the country being left desolate for several hundred miles on the frontiers, and the poor sufferers could have no relief, by reason of the disputes between the governor and the assertion of the disputes between the governor and the assertion of the disputes between the governor and the assertion of the disputes between the governor and the assertion of the disputes between the governor and the assertion of the disputes between the governor and the assertion of the province, for that it caused great confusion among the people to see the country for destroyed, and no preparations making for its defence.

28

36

However, on receiving this intelligence from his excellency, they immediately fent for me. When I, arrived, I was conducted into the lower houfe, where the affembly then fat, and was there interrogated by the fpeaker, very particularly, as to all I had before given the governor an account of. This my first examination lasted three hours. The next day I underwent a second for about an hour and a half, when I was courtcoully difmissed, with a promise that all proper methods should be taken, not only to accommodate and reimburfe all those who had fuffered by the favages, but to prevent them from committing the like hostilities for the future.

Now returned, and once more at liberty to purfue my own inclinations, I was perfuaded by my father-in-law and friends to follow fome employment or other; but the plantation, from whence I was taken, though an exceeding good one, could not tempt me to fettle on it again. What my fate would have been if I had, may eafily be conceived. And there being at this time (as the affembly too late for many of us found) a neceffity for raising ment to check those barbarians in their ravaging depredations, I inlifted mytelf as one, with the greatest and crity an utmoft ish aut! of New Majefty ed upor part of Into of this years. tiers, to foon as Oc. at ] ed for t firm in was tho in winte pretty w fton, to left beh we arriv ed throu Mendon rived ab ment rea Bofto the large the Span account It is p compafs.

which th

and not three shi

18 TOOM

by fever

maft ren

which ft

critt

ding f the.

ies of

th in liged

being

fron-

f, by

d, the ins of tereft

ution

oved,

m his

hen L

oule,

erro-

all I

This

nelt

and a pro-

not

o had

from

pur-

y my ploy-

nce I

d not vould

And o late

en to reda-

t alle

crity

erity and most determined resolution, to exert the utmost of my power; in being revenged on the hellish authors of my ruin. General Shirley, governor of New England, and commander in chief of his Majefty's land-forces in North America, was pitched upon, to direct the operations of the war in that part of the world.

Into a regiment immediately, under the command of this general, was it my lot to be placed for three years. This regiment was intended for the frontiers, to deftroy the forts erected by the French, as foon as it should be completely furnished with arms, Ge. at Bofton in New England, where it was ordered for that purpofe. Being then very weak, and infirm in body; though poffeffed of my refolution, it was thought adviseable to leave me for two months in winter-quarters. At the end of which, being pretty well recruited in strength, I fet out for Bofton, to join the regiment with fome others, likewife left behind : and after croffing the river Delaware, we arrived at New Jerfey, and from thence proceeded through the fame by New York, Middletown, Mendon in Connecticut, to Boston, where we arrived about the end of March, and found the regiment ready to receive us.

Bofton, being the capital of New England, and the largest city in America, except two or three on the Sparish continent, I shall here subjoin a thort account of it.

It is pleafantly fituated, and about four mites in compass, at the bottom of Maffachuset's Bay, into which there is but one common and fafe passage, and not very broad, there being fcarce room for three ships to come in a-breass; but once in, there is room for the anchorage of 500 fail. It is guarded by several rocks; and above a dozen islands; the most remarkable of these islands is Castle-IA and, which shands about a league from the town, and so

D :

fituated.

fituated, that no thip of burden can approach the town, without the hazard of being fhattered in pieces by its cannon. It is now called Fort-William. and mounted with 100 pieces of ordnance; 200 more which were given to the province by Queen Aune, are placed on a platform, fo as to rake a fhip fore and aft, before the can bring about her broadfides to bear against the cassle. Some of these cannon are 42 pounders; 500 able men are exempted from all military duty in times of war, to be ready at an hour's warning, to attend the fervice of the caftle, upon a fignal of the approach of an enemy, which there feems to be no great danger of at Bofton ; where in 24 hours time, 10,000 effective men, well armed, might be ready for their defence. According to a computation of the collectors of the Light-house, it appeared there were 24,000 tons of thisping cleared annually.

The pier is at the bottom of the bay, 2000 feet long, and runs to far into the bay, that thips of the greatest burden may unload without the help of boats or lighters. At the upper end of the chief ftreet in the town, which comes down to the head of the pier, is the Town-house, or Exchange, a fine building, containing, befides the walk for merchants, the Council-chamber, the Houfe of Commons, and a spacious room for the courts of justice. The Exchange is furrounded with bookfellers thops that have a good trade : Here being five printing-houses, and the preffes generally full of work, which is in a great measure owing to the colleges and schools in New England; and likewife at New York and Philadelphia, there are feveral printing-houses lately crected, and bookfellers constantly employed, as well as at Virginia, Maryland, South Carolina, Barbadoes, and the Sugar-Iflands.

The town lies in the form of an half-moon, round the harbour, and confifting of about 4000. houfes, roundin the bui fo good forfeit. at abou called a Baptift. The of the c of Lon when h turc, th did and In th ing for executio which commit provinc fhall rel cording Jofep in thefe warrior in expe others. mong fe to pais had exe 1756, 2 tion, at the woo tunity proving to prese nine fer

Thei

houles.

41

houses, must make an agreeable prospect; the furrounding shore being high, the streets long, and the buildings beautiful. The pavement is kept in so good order, that to gallop a horse on it is 3s: 4d. forfeit. The number of inhabitants is computed at about 24,000.

There are eight churches, the chief of which is called the Church of England-church; befides the Baptift-meeting, and the Quakers meeting.

The conversation in this town is as polite as in most of the cities and towns in England. A gentleman of London would fancy himfelf at home at Boston, when he observes the number of people, their furniture, their tables, and drefs, which perhaps is as splen-. did and showy as that of most tradesmen in London.

In this city, learning military discipline, and waiting for an opportunity of carrying our schemes into execution, we lay till the first of July; during all which time, great outrages and devastations were committed by the favages in the back parts of the province. One instance of which, in particular, I schall relate, as being concerned in rewarding, according to defert, the wicked authors thereof.

Joseph Long, Esq. a gentleman of a large fortune in these parts, who had in his time been a great warrior among the Indians, and frequently joined in expeditions with those in our interest, against the others. His many exploits, and great influence among feveral of the nations, were too well known to pais unrevenged by the favages against whom he had exerted his abilities. Accordingly, in April 1756, a body of them came down on his plantation, about 30 miles from Boston, and skulking in the woods for fome time, at last feized an opportunity to attack his house, in which, unhappily proving fuccefsful, they fcalped, mangled, and cut to places, the unfortunate gentleman, his wife, and nine fervants; and then made a general conflagra-DR tion

h the d in liam, 200 ucen a fhip road+ cannpted ready of the iemy, t Boective fence. of the ons of ø feet of the elp of chief e head a fine hants, s, and he Exs that nouses, is in a bols in d Philately ed, as rolina, m0000. 1 4000 loules

tion of his houfer barns, cattle, and every thing he possessed, which, with the mangled bodies, were all confumed in one blaze. But his more unfortunate fon and daughter were made prifoners, and carried off by them, to be referved for greater tortures. Alarmed and terrified at this inhuman butchery, the neighbourhood, as well as the people of Boston, quickly affembled themselves, to think of proper measures to be revenged on these execrable monfters. Among the first of those who offeredthemfelves to go against the favages, was James Crawford, Efq. who was then at Boston, and heard of this tragedy; he was a young gentleman who had, for some years, paid his addresses to Miss Long, and was in a very little time to have been married to her. Distracted, raving, and shocked as he was, he loft no time, but instantly raifed 100 refolute and bold-young fellows, to go in queft of the villains. As I had been to long among them, and was pretty well acquainted with their manners and cuftoms, and particularly their skulking places in the woods, I was recommended to him as one proper for his expedition; he immediately applied to my officers, and got liberty for me. Never did I go on any enterprife with half that alacrity and chearfulnels I now went with this party. My wrongs and fufferings were too recent in my memory, tofuffer me to helitate a moment in taking an opporrunity of being revenged to the utmost of my power. Being quickly armed and provided, we haftened forward for Mr. Long's plantation on the 29th, and after travelling the most remote and intricate paths through the woods, arrived there the 2d of May, dubious of our fuccess, and almost despairing of meeting with the favages, as we had heard nor could discover nothing of them in our march. In the afternoon, some of dur men being fent to the top of a hill to look out for them, foon perceived a greatfmoke media a fire into r let th them - Ar Craw quick them, Upor as we time, men i on; the ca follov ftantl every Gr as we us bu py yo and f we, For. race y the n inferi with the n her tl OUTS. Behol and b in th anns bound

fmoker

hing

were

ortu-

and

torbutle of k of

rable

fered ames

neard

who

Jong,

rried

was,

e vil-

and

and.

es in pro-

ed to I go

hear-

rongs

ppor-

ower.

tened, and

paths

May,

ng of could

ne af-

op of moké

43 if Relation

fmoke in a part of the low grounds. This we immediately, and rightly conjectured, to proceed from a fire made by them. We accordingly put ourfelves into regular order, and marched forwards, refolving, let their number have been what it might, to give them battle.

Arriving within a mile of the place, Captain Crawford, whofe anxiety and pain made him quicker fighted than any of the reft, foon perceived them, and gueffed their number to be about 50. Upon this we halted, and fecreted ourfelves as well as we could, till 12 o'clock at night. At which time, fuppoling them to be at reft, we divided our men into two divisions, 50 in each, and marched on; when coming within twenty yards of them, the captain fired his gun, which was immediately followed by both divisions in fucceffion, who inftantly rufhing on them with bayonets fixed, killed every man of them.

Great as our joy was, and flushed with fuccess as we were at this fudden victory, no heart among us but was ready to burft at the fight of the unhappy young lady. What must the thoughts, torments, and fenfations of our brave captain then be, if even we, who knew her not, were fo fenfibly affected ! For, oh! what breaft, though of the brutal favage. race we had just destroyed, could, without feeling the most exquisite grief and pain, behold in fuch infernal power, a lady in the bloom of youth, bleft with every female accomplishment that could fet off the most exquisite beauty ! Beauty, which rendered her the envy of her own fex, and the delight of ours, enduring the feverity of a windy, rainy night ! Behold one nurtured in the most tender manner, and by the most indulgent parents, quite naked, and in the open woods, encircling with her elbeller arms and hands, a cold rough tree, wherein the was bound, with cords fo ftraitly pulled, that the trickled from her finger-ends! Her lovely tender body, and delicate limbs, cut, bruifed, and forn with ftones, and boughs of trees, as the had been dragged along, and all befmeared with blood! What heart can even now, unmoved, think of her diffrefs, in fuch a deplorable condition; having no creature, with the leaft fenfations of humanity, near to fuccour or relieve her, or even pity or regard her flowing tears, and lamentable wailings!

The very remembrance of the fight has, at this. instant, fuch an effect upon me, that I almost want words to go on.-Such then was the condition in which we found this wretched fair, but faint and fpeechlefs with the flock our firing had given her tender frame. The captain, for a long time, could do nothing but gaze upon and clasp her to his bofom, crying, raving, and tearing his hair like one bereft of his fenfes; nor did he for fome time perceive the lifelefs condition the was in, until one of the men had untied her lovely mangled arms, and the fell to the ground. Finding among the villains plunder, the unhappy lady's clothes, he gently put fome of them about her; and after various trials, and much time fpent, recovered her diffipated fpi-re rits, the repossession of which the first manifested by eagerly fixing her eyes on her dear deliverer, and fmiling, with the most complaifant joy, bleffed the Almighty, and him, for her miraculous deliverance.

During this pleafing, painful interview, our men were bufily employed, in cutting, hacking, and fealping the dead Indians; and fo defirous was every man to have a fhare in wreaking his revenge on them, that difputes happened among ourfelves, who fhould be the inftruments of further fhewing it on their lifelefs trunks, there not being enough for every man to have one wherewith to fatiate himfelf. The captain obferving the animofity between us, on this occafion, ordered, that the two divisions fhould caft lo work : whofe ftood the re activit otherv vetera The home how t condit ther, until and th turns, in fon all the defpoi the m of he tender even his fo Th dire tioned confu brath for fo ping whilf heru fame the t Dair I T bee

broug

ler

ith

red

art

in re.

1C-

W-

his

int

in.

nd

her

uld

00-one

er-

of

ind

ins

out

ils,

ted

ind

the.

ce.

ien

ind

vas

ige !

es.

z it

for

lf

on 11

pi- ...

caft lots for this bloody, though agreeable piece of work: which being accordingly done, the party, whofe lot it was to be excluded from this bulinefs, ftood by with half-pleafed countenances, looking on the reft; who, with the utmost chearfulnefs and activity, purfued their revenge, in fealping, and otherwife treating their dead bodies as the most inveterate hatred and deteftation could fuggest.

The work being done, we thought of fteering homewards triumphant with the 50 fcalps; but how to get the lady forwards, who was in fuch a condition as rendered her incapable of walking further, gave us fome pain, and retarded us a little, until we made a fort of carriage to feat her on s and then, with the greatest readiness, we took our turns, four at a time, and carried her along. This, in fome measure, made the captain chearful, who all the way endeavoured to comfort and revive his desponding afflicted mistres: but, alas ! in vain, for the miferies the had lately felt, and the terrible fate of her poor brother, of whom I doubt not but the tender-hearted reader is anxious to hear, rendered even her most pleasing thoughts, notwithstanding his foothing words, corroding and infufferable.

The account fhe gave of their difaftrous fate and dire cataftrophe, befides what I have already mentioned, was, that the favages had no fooner feen all confumed, but they hurried off with her and herbrather, pufhing, and fometimes dragging them on, for four or five miles, when they flopr; and ftripping her naked, treated her in a flocking manner, whilft others were ftripping and cruelly whipping her unhappy brother. After which, they, in the fame manner, purfued their journey, regardlefs of the tears, prayers, or entreaties of this wretched pair; but with the most infernal pleafure, laughed and rejoiced at the calamities and diffreffes they had brought them to, and faw them fuffer, until they arrived at the place we found them; where they had that day butchered her beloved brother in the following execrable and cruel manner: They first fealped him alive, and after mocking his agonizing, groans and torments, for fome hours, ripped open his belly, into which they put fplinters, and chips of pine-trees, and fet fire thereto; the fame (on account of the turpentine wherewith these trees abound) burnt with great quickness and fury for a little time, during which, he remained in a manner alive, as the could fometimes perceive him to move his head, and groan. They then piled a great quantity of wood all around his body, and confumed itto afhes.

arrived

Thus did these barbarians put an end to the being of this unhappy young gentleman, who was only 22 years of age when he met his calamitous fate. She continued her relation, by acquainting that the next day was to have seen her perish in the like manner, after suffering worse than even such a terrible death, the fatisfying these diabolical miscreants in their brutal lust. But it pleased the mighty to permit is to rescue her, and entirely expate this crew of devils!

Marching eafly on her account, we returned to the captain's plantation the 6th of May, where, as well as at Bofton, we were joyfully received, and sewarded handfomely for the fcalps of those favages we had brought with us. Mr. Crawford and Miss Long were foon after married; and, in gratitude to the fervices we had done them, the whole party were invited to the wedding, and nobly entertained; but no riotous or noify mirth was allowed, the young lady, is we may well imagine, being still under great effliction, and in a weak state of health. Nothing further material, that I now remember, happened during my stay at Boston; to proceed, therefore therefo expedi On for Of New ] Hadfie about 1 mouth Schene Here d flat-bot ends) c to Ofw barrels men be ftrong : vent th the rive abound places . wade a togethe ter, ren being a lifh mil rying p and bat miles to quite t got wit but Col rive un with hi Rad in feriptio caliont difagred moute i therefore, with the continuation of our intended expedition.

he

inft

rig.

en.

ips:

on

ees.

r a-

ner

ove.

an....

it.

be-

Nast

ous

ing

in:

ven

ical

the

ely

tor

as

ind

ges

lifs

to ere.

but

ng

der

er,

cda

AC.

On the 1st of July, the regiment began their march for Ofwego. The 21ft we arrived at Albany, in New York, through Cambridge, Northampton, and Hadfield, in New England. From thence, marching about twenty miles farther we encamped near the mouth of the Mohawk river, by a town called Schenectady, not far from the Endlefs Mountains. Here did we lie some time, until batteaux (a fort of flat-bottomed boats, very fmall, and fharp at both ends) could be got to carry our ftores and provisions to Ofwego; each of which would contain about fix barrels of pork, or in proportion thereto. Two men belonged to every batteaux, who made use of ftrong foutting poles, with iron at the ends, to prevent their being too foon deftroyed by the ftones in the river (one of the fources of the Ohio), which abounded with many, and large ones, and in fome. places was fo shallow, that the men were forced to wade and drag their batteaux after them. "Which, together with fome cataracts, or great falls of water, rendered this duty very hard and fatiguing, not being able to travel more than feven or eight Eng. lifh miles a-day, until they came to the Great carrying place, at Wood's Creek, where the provisions and batteaux were taken out, and carried about four miles to Alliganey, or Ohio great river, that runs quite to Ofwego, to which place General Shirley got with part of the forces, on the 8th of August; but Colonel Mercer with the remainder, did not arrive until the 31ft. Here we found Calonel Schuyler with his regiment of New Jerfey provincials, who had there fome time before. A fhort deferintion of a place which has afforded to much occalion for animadversion, may not here be altogether difagreeable to those unacquainted with our fettlements in that part of the world.

Olwego

Ofwego' is fituated N. lat. 43 deg. 20 min. near the mouth of the river Onondago, on the fouth fide of the lake Ontario, or Cataraquie. There was generally a fort and conftant 'garrifon of regular troops ' kept before our arrival. In the proper seafons, a fair for the Indian trade is kept here: Indians of above twenty different nations have been observed here at a time. The greatest part of the trade between Canada and the Indians of the Great Lakes, and fome parts of the Millillippi, pals near this fort ; the neareft and fafeft way of carrying goods upon this lake being along the fouth fide of it. The diftance from Albany to Ofwego fort is about 300 miles weft; to render which march more comfortable, we met with many good farms and fettlements by the way. The Outawaes, a great and powerful nation, living upon the Outawae river, which joins the Catarique river (the out-let of the great lake), deal confiderably with the New-York trading houses here.

The different nations trading to Ofwego are diftinguishable by the variety and different fashions of their canoes; the very remote Indians are clothed a fine of various forts; and have all fire-arms; fome come to far north as Port Nelson in Hudson's Bay, N. lat. 57 deg. and some from the Cherokees well of South Carolina, in N. lat. 32 deg. This feems indeed to be a vast extent of inland water carriage, but it is only for canoes and the smallest of crast.

Nor will it in this place be improper to give fome account of our friends in those parts, whom we call the Mohawks, viz. The Iroquois, commonly folced the Mohawks, the Oriciadaes, the Onondagues, the Cayugaes, and the Senekaes. In all accounts they are lately called the Six nations of the New York Friendly Indians; the Tuscararoes, stragglers from the old Tuscararoes of North Carolina, lately are reckoned as the fixth, — I shall here reckon them as I ha Mohaw nectady Peofyly having 40 mile fencible from tl about 2 25 mile place or filting o 70 mile Senekae Sufqueh ing men fix natio men, an ing in a thefe, tl N.E. of from th confiftin count of the Engl occasion them. . It man detail of the nativ but they complexi and lying fpecially ftraight, deformed They are lo ignora as I have been informed they were formerly. 1. The Mohawks: they live upon the Mohawk's or Schenectady river, and head, or lie north of New York, Peofylvania, Maryland, and fome part of Virginia; having a caftle or village, weftward from Albany 40 miles, and another 65 miles weft, and about 160 fencible men. 2. The Oneiadaes, about 80 miles from the Mohawk's fecond village, confifting of about 200 fighting men. 3. The Onondagues, about 25 miles further (the famous Ofwego, a trading place on the lake Ontario, is in their country), confifting of about 250 men. 4. The Cayuages, about 70 miles further, of about 130 men : And, 5. The Senekaes, who reach a great way down the river Sulquehana, confift of about 700 marching, fighting men : fo that the fighting men of the five or fix nations of Mohawks may be reckoned at 1500 men, and extend from Albany, weft 400 miles, lying in about 30 tribes or governments. Befides thefe, there is fettled above Montreal, which lies N. E. of Ofwego, a tribe of fcoundrels, runaways from the Mohawks: they are called Kahnuages, confifting of about eighty men .- This flort account of these nations I think necessary to make the English reader acquained with, as I may have occasion to mention things concerning fome of them.

It may not be improper here alfo, to give a fuccinct detail of the education, manners, religion, Sc. of the natives. The Indians are born tolerably white; but they take a great deal of pains to darken their complexion; by anointing themfelves with greate; and lying in the fun. Their features are good, e. fpecially those of the women. Their limbs clean, ftraight, and well proportioned, and a crooked and deformed perfon is a great rarity among them. They are very ingenious in their way, being neither to ignoranty nor fo innocent, as fome people ima-E near 1-fide is geroops a fair above re at n Ca+ fome nearlake from ft; to e met way. living arique

e difons of lothed arms ; idfon's rokees This water malleft e some ilder-

we call stated ies, the is the York is from cly are a them

gine: On the contrary, a very understanding generation are they, quick of apprehension, fudden in dispatch, fubtle in their dealings, exquisite in their inventions, and in labour alliduous: The world has no better marksmen with guns, or bows and arrows, than the natives, who can kill birds flying, fishes fwimming, and wild beasts running; nay, with such prodigious force do they discharge their arrows, that one of them will shoot a man quire through, and nail both his arms to his body with the fame arrows.

6.0

As to their religion, in order to reconcile the different accounts exhibited by travellers, we mult fuppole that different tribes may have different notions, and different rites: and though I do not think myfelf capable of determining the cafe with the precision and accuracy I could with; yet, with what I have collected from my own observation when among them, and the information of my brother-captives, who have been longer conversant with the Indians than I was, I shall readily give the public all the fatisfaction I can.

Some allure us the Indians worthip the images of fome inferior deities, whole anger they feem to dread; on which account the generality of our travellers denominate the objects of their devotion, dewils; though at the fame time it is allowed they pray to their inferior deities for fuccefs in all their undertakings, for plenty of food, and other neceffaries of life. It appears too, that they acknowledge one Supreme Being ; but him they adore not, because they believe he is too far exalted above them, and too happy in himfelf, to be concerned about the trifling affairs of poor mortals. They feem also to believe a future ftate; and that, after death, they will be removed to their friends who have gone before them, to an Elyfium or Paradife beyond the Weffern Mountains : others again, allow them either no re-

Surger - Har Var Mitty - Litte Blakers

8. Jan 14

* 355.8

higion a but all tious, "a these de for the they cal ting the they car moon; fpirit, G Certa the Frer niftering " Son 'e " matik "troub "and th " to wa " all det " God, " rits fr " nothin these fall fuits; the to niaffac God mig from. the by extern Being gave at th thall, bef thort reci in regard fort and t upon fucl been-long los truth.

figion at all, or, at most, very faint ideas of a deity; but all agree that they are extravagantly superfitions, and exceedingly afraid of evil spirits. To these demons they make oblations every new moon for the space of seven days; during which time, they call lots, and facrifice one of themselves, putting the perfor devoted to the most exquisite misery they can invent, in order to fatisfy the devil for that moon; for they think if they please but the evil spirit, God will do them no hurt.

Certain however it is, that those Indians, whom the French priefts have had an opportunity of ministering unto, are induced to believe, " That the " Son of God came into the world to fave all " mankind, and deftroy all evil fpirits that now " trouble them; that the English have killed him; "and that ever fince, the evil fpirits are permitted " to walk on the earth : that if the English were. " all deftroyed, the Son of the Good Man, who is "God, would come again, and banif all evil fpi-"rits from their lands, and then they would have " nothing to fear or difturb them." Cajoled by these false but artful infinuations of the French Jefuits; the Indians from that time, have endeavoured to maffacre all the English, in order that the Son of God might come again on the earth, and rid them from their flavifh fears and terrible apprehenfions, by exterminating the objects thereof.

Being now at Ofwego, the principal object that gave at that time any concern to the Americans, I thall, before I continue my own account, give a thort recital of what had been done in thefe parts, in regard to the defence and prefervation of the fort and the colonies thereabouts, before I came, wpon fuch authorities as I got from those who had been long at Ofwego, and I can well depend upon

E 2

Parta Part La

General

geneden. in n their rid has TTOW'S, fishes h fuch rs, that h, and arrow. he dife must nt not think ith the with rvation ny broiverfant ily give ages of cem to our traion, deey pray underfaries of one Suule they and too rifling believe willing

before

Weffern

TIND PC

for which.

could 1

miles

the fol

fet; a tacked

only fi

ent m care, ]

againft

Ofweg

iron wa

who ha

were f

but on that f

would

rived

month,

tario N

fchoon

fwivel-

force w

was vid

New-Y

provisio

taken

when

mine,

little re

expecte

ley) we

attack ]

my was the real

their p

maria

Abo

The

General Shirley, in 1754, having etected two new forts on the river Onondaga, it feemed probable, that he intended to winter at Ofwego with his army, that he might the more readily proceed to action in the enfuing fpring. What produced his inactivity afterwards, and how it was, that fort Of. wego was not taken by the French in the fpring 1755, are things my penetration will not enable me to discuss. But Ofwego is now loft, and would have been to in the fpring of 1755, if more important affairs had not made the French neglect it. At this time the garrifon of Ofwego confifted only of 100 men, under Captain King. The old fort being their only protection, which mounted only eight four pounders, was incapable of defence, becaufe it was commanded by an eminence directly crofs a narrow river, the banks of which were covered with thick wood.

In May 1755, Ofwego being in this condition, and thus garrifoned; thirty French batteaux were feen to pafs, and two days after, eleven more; each batteau (being much larger than ours) containing fifteen men; fo this fleet confifted of near 600 men: A force, which, with a fingle mortar, might foon have taken pofferlion of the place.

A refolution was now taken to make the fort larger, and erect fome new ones; to build veffels upon the lake; to increase the garrison; and provide every thing neceffary to annoy the enemy, fo as they might render the place tenable. Captain Broadstreet arriving on the 27th of May at the fort, with two companies, fome finall fwivel-guns, and the first parcel of workmen, made fome imagine that a stop would be put to the French in their carrying men in fight of the garrison; yet they still permitted eleven more French batteaux to pass by, though we were then superior to them in these boats, or at least in number. The reason our forces could not attack them, was, because they were four miles in the offing, on board large veffels, in which the foldiers could fland to fire without being overfet; and our batteaux, in which we must have attacked them, were fo fmall, that they would contain, only fix men each, and fo ticklifh, that the inadvertent motion of one man would overfet them. No care, however, was taken to provide larger boats against another emergency of the fame kind. At Ofwego, indeed, it was impracticable for want of iron work; fuch being the provident forecast of those. who had the management of affairs, that though there were fmiths enough, yet there was, at this place, but one pair of bellows, fo that the first accident that should happen to that necessary instrument, would ftop all the operations of the forge at once."

53

Such

The beginning of June, the fhip-carpenters arrived from Bofton, and on the 28th of the fame month, the first vessel we ever had on the lake Ontario was launched and fitted out: She was a schooner, 40 feet in the keel, had 14 oars, and 12 fwivel-guns. This vessel, and 320 men, was all the force we had at Oswego, the beginning of July, and was victualled at the expense of the province of New-York. Happy indeed it was, that the colony provisions were there; for so little care had been taken to get the king's provisions fent up, that, when we arrived, we must have perished with famine, had not we found a supply, which we had little reason to expect.

About the middle of July, an attack was again expected, when we (the forces under General Shire ley) were still near 300 miles distant. And, if the attack had then been made, with the force the enemy was known to have had at hand, it must, for the reason I have just before given, have fallen into their possession.

E 3

o with ced to ed his rt Offpring ole me d have ortant At this of 100 g their t four it was narrow

t two

. pro-

dition, x were ; each taining ar 600 might h thick

he fort veffels nd promy, fo Captain he fort, as, and magine eir carhay ftill pals by, n thefe r forces

Such was the flate of Ofwego, when we arrived there: Where we had been but a fmall time before provisions began to be very fearce; and the King's allowance being ftill delayed, the provincial flores were foon exhausted, and we were in danger of being foon famished, being on lefs than half allowance. The men being likewife worn out, and fatigued with the long march they had fuffered, and being without rum (or allowed none at least), and other proper nutriment, many fell fick of the flux, and died; fo that our regiment was greatly reduced in fix weeks time: A party that we left at the important carrying place, at Wood's Creek, being abfolutely obliged to defert it for want of neceffaries.

Sicknefs, death, and defertion, had at length fo far reduced us, that we had fcarce men enough to perform duty, and protect thofe that were daily at work. The Indians keeping a ftrict look-out, rendered every one who pafied the out-guards, or centinels, in danger of being fcalped or murdcred. To prevent confequences like thefe, a captain's guard of fixty men, with two lieutenants, two ferjeants, two corporals, and one drum, befides two flank-guards of a ferjeant, corporal, and twelve men in each, were daily mounted, and did duty as well as able. Scouting parties were likewife fent out every day; but the ficknefs ftill continuing, and having 300 men at work, we were obliged to leffen our guards, till General Pepperel's regiment joined us.

A little diligence being now made use of, about the middle of September, four other vessels were got ready, wiz. a decked floop of eight guns, four pounders, and 30 swivels; a decked schooner, eight guns, four pounders, and twenty-eight swivels; one undecked schooner of source swivels; and sourteen oars, and another of twelve swivels, and sourteen oars; about 150 tons each.

On a con fmall were withf could hind, had n withi. be go again ing in was d or en not be gage, teau; men b haraf very : weina catara the h near impof ning f forts quired get th forced great' carrie fore w four n longin out, it behind

OR

59

On the 24th of October, with this armament, and a confiderable number of batteaux, which were too fmall to live upon the lake in moderate weather, we were preparing to attack Niagara; though (notwithftanding we had taken all the provisions we could find in Ofwego, and had left the garrifon behind, with scarce enough for three days) the fleet had not provisions fufficient on board, to carry them within fight of the enemy, and fupplies were not to be got, within 300 miles of the place we were going against. However, the impracticability of fucceeding in an expedition, undertaken without victuals, was discovered time enough to prevent our march, or embarkation, or whatever it may be called; but not before nine batteaux, laden with officers baggage, were fent forwards, four men in each batteau; in one of which it was my lot to be. The men being weak, and in low fpirits, with continual haraffing and low feeding, rendered our progrefs very tedious and difficult; add to this the places we liad to pais and afcend; for, in many parts, the catara he or falls of water, which descended near the head of the river Onondaga (in fome places near 100 feet perpendicular), rendered it almost impoffible for us to proceed; for the current running from the bottom, was fo rapid, that the efforts of twenty or thirty men were fometimes required to drag the boats along, and efpecially to get them up the hills or cataracts, which we wereforced to do with ropes: Sometimes, when, with great labour and difficulty, we had got them up, we carried them by land near a quarter of a mile, before we came to any water. In thort, we found four men to a batteau infufficient; for the men belonging to one batteau were fo fatigued and worn out, that they could not manage her, fo that the lay behind almost a league. The rrived before King's ftores of beallownd fal, and ), and e flux. duced ne imng abaries. gth fo ugh to aily at t, renr cend. To uardof s, two guards each, s able. y day; ng 300 guards, about s were. s, four

, eight

s; one

four

d four-

On

THE LIFE OF THE

The captain that was with us, observing this, as foon as we had got the others over the most difficult falls, ordered two befides myfeif to go and help her forwards. Accordingly I got into her, in order to fteer her, whilft my two comrades and her own crew dragged her along. When we got to any cataracts, I remained in her to fasten the ropes, and keep all fafe, whilft they hauled her up; but drawing her to the fummit of the last cataract, the ropes gave way, and down the fell into a very rapid and boifterous ftream; where, not being able by myfelf to work her, the flove to pieces on a fmall rock, on which fome part of her remaining till morning, I miraculoufly faved myfelf. Never was my life in greater danger than in this fituation; the night being quite dark, and no affistance to be obtained from any of my comrades; though many of them, as I afterwards learned, made diligent fearch for. me; but the fall of the water rendered the noife that they, as well as myfelf, made, to be heard by one another, quite ineffectual.

In the morning they, indeed, found me, but in a wretched condition, quite benumbed, and almost dead with cold, having nothing on but my shirt.

After various efforts, having with great difficulty got me up, they ufed all proper means to recover my worn-out fpirits; but the fire had a fatal effect to what they intended, for my flefh fwelled all over my body and limbs, and caufed fuch a deprivation of my fenfes, that I fainted, and was thought by all to be dead. However, after fome time, they pretty well recovered my feattered fenfes, and fatigued body, and with proper care conducted me, with fome others (who were weak and ill of the flux); to Albany, where the hofpital received our poor debilitated bodies.

The mande where tion. Guffic during ing N Th fels th unrigg any ut Lake, interit to rea the lal The led ot foon i wega works fenfibl ing in and t which year th forgot I was fix we AI the G this ca theitv the na ding t myfell after t his pla our co

Line

5, 28

liffia .

help

rder

own

Ca-

and

raw-

opes

and

yfelf

, OII

ig, I

fe in t be-

ined

hem,

for

noife

d by

in a

al-

t my culty

cover

effect

over

ation

by all

retty

d bo-

fome

o Al-

ebili-

The

The reft, not able to proceed, or being countermanded, beut their courie back again to Ofwego; where, a friendly from preventing an embarkation, when a frock of provisions was got together (fufficient to prevent them from eating one another, during the first twelve days), all thoughts of attacking Niagara were laid afide:

Thus ended this formidable campaign. The veffels that we had built (as I afterwards learned) were unrigged and laid up, without having been put to any ufe; while a French veffel was cruifing on the Lake, and carrying fupplies to Niagara, without interruption; five others, as large as ours, being alfo ready to launch at Frontenac, which lies acrofs the lake Ontario, north of Ofwego.

The General, whatever appearances might have led others, as well as myfelf, to think otherwife, foon indicated his intention of not wintering at Ofwego; for he left the place before the additional works were completed, and the garrifon, by infenfible degrees, decreafed; the 1100 men still living in perpetual terror, on the brink of famine, and become mutinous for want of their pay; which, in the burry of military bufinefs, during a year that was crowned with great events, had been forgotten: for, from my first inlisting, to the time I was laid up at Albany, I never had received above fix weeks pay.

A little, indeed, may be offered in vindication of the General, in regard to the numberlefs delays of this campaign; viz. That it took fome time to raife the two regiments which were in British pay, as the name of inlifting for life is fomewhat forbidding to the Americans (a few of whom, as well as myfelf, made our agreement for three years; but after that time, I doubt, we must have depended on his pleafure for our being difcharged, according to our contract, had it not fallen out otherwise). The unufual unufual drynefs of the fummer rendered the river down to Ofwego in fome places impaffable, or very difficult for the batteaux to proceed; and it was whifpered, that a gentleman, lately in an eminent ftation in New York, did all in his power to hinder the undertaking, from a pique to the General. By thefe difadvantages, he was detained at Albany till Auguft; and even when he did reach Ofwego, he found himfelf put to no little difficulty to maintain his ground for want of provisions: and the men being fo reduced, more than once, to fhort allowance, as you have feen, became troubled with the flux, and had not any thing neceffary; not even rum fufficient for the common men, to prevent the fatal effects of that diforder.

18

In this manner the furnmer was spent on our fide; and the reason why the French-did not this year take Ofwego, when they might, with so little trouble, was, as many beside myself conjectured, that they thought it more their interess, to pursue their projects on the Ohio, and preferve the friendfhip of the confidential Indians; which an attack upon Ofwego, at that time, would have destroyed. How far they succeeded in such their projects, and the reason of their successes, a little animadversion on our own transactions will let us into the light Gr. For, as appearances on our fide were very favourable in the spring; General Braddock's defeat greatly increased the gloom, which fat on the countenances of the Americans.

Great things being expected from him, he arrived early in the fpring at Virginia, with a confiderable land-force; and Fort du Quefne feemed to be ours, if we did but go and demand it. The attacks defigned against Niagara, and Fort. Frederick, at Grown Point, were planned in the winter, and the troops employed against the French in Nova Scotia, embarked at Boston in April. Let us view the events Bradd through ing w frefh and fo fary to those. dence of the where bad ef knowf henfio could judiced and w as an attack to inft: of figl to, I numbe very 1 people culty c ful, to The duce th the jar meet v the w petty troops. delays; in the ander that pr events, vers

iery

W:19

ient

ain-

erals

any

ego,

ain-

the

t al-

with even

the

our

this

ittle

red

rfue

end∔ tack

ed.

ects,

nad=

the:

were

bck's

h the

rriy-

der-

o be acks

, at

the

Sco-

the

ents,

events, befides those already mentioned. General Braddock was ready to march in April. But through ignorance or neglect, or a mifunderstanding with the governor of Virginia, had neither fresh provisions, horses, nor waggons provided; and fo late as the latter end of May, it was neceffary to apply to Penfylvania, for the most part of thofe. This neglect created a most pernicious diffidence and difcredit of the Americans, in the mindof the General, and prevented their ufefulnefs, where their advice was wanted, and produced very bad effects. He was a man (as it is now too well known and believed by ... means of quick apprehenfion, and could not conceive that fuch a people could instruct him; and his young counfellors prejudiced him still more, fo as to slight his officers, and what was worfe, his enemy; as it was treated as an absurdity to suppose the Indians would ever attack regulars : And, of course, no care was taken to inftruct the men, to refift their peculiar manner of fighting. Had-this circumstance been attended to, I am fully perfuaded 400 Indians, about the number that defeated him, would have given him very little annoyance : Sure I am, 400 of our people, rightly managed, would have made no difficulty of driving before them four times that handful, to whom he owed his defeat and death.

The undertaking of the eastern provinces, to reduce the fort at Crown Point, met that fate which the jarring councils of a divided people commonlymeet with; for though the plan was concerted in the winter of 1754, it was August before these petty governments could bring together their troops. In short, it must be owned by all, that delays were the banes of our undertakings, except in the Bay of Fundi, in Nova Scotia, where secret and expedition were rewarded with success, and that province reduced.

59

The

of that briefly

New

the pro

houles.

all wel worth

city of

Their :

drefs, drinkin

Ameria

built in church

of Dut

town,

Havi

out for found t

was gr

them.

thip w with a faries,

lefs ftat

French

parts o

men, w

unhapp

A fe

haviour shalt he ever fee

demnit

that the

mong t

time be

The General continued inaQive, from the time he left Ofwego, to March 1756; when he was about to refume the execution of his fcheme to attack Frontenac and Niagara. What would have been the iffue of this project, neither myfelf, nor any other perfon, can now pretend to fay, for, juft at this crifis, he received orders from England to attempt nothing, till Lord Louden fhould arrive, which was faid fhould be early in the fpring. However, his Lordfhip did not get there until the middle of July, fo that by this delay, time was given to the Marquis de Montcalm (Major General Diefkau's fucceffor) to arrive from France at Canada with 3000 regular forces, and take the field before us.

But to return from this digreffion to other tranf-When I was pretty well recovered again, actions. I embarked on board a veffel from Albany for New. York; where, when I arrived, I found to my forrow, Captain John Shirley, the General's fon, had been dead for fome time. He was a very promifing, worthy, young gentleman, and univerfally regretted. His company was given to Major James Kinnair, who ordered, that none of his men should go out on the recruiting parties, as was at first intended by his predecessor; but that the private men should either return to Ofwego, or do duty in the fort at New York. Not liking my flation here, I entreated the General, who was now arrived, for a furlough, to fee my friends at Penfylvania, which he having then no great occasion for me at New York; granted for three months. . Control of goting the

As I have here mentioned New York, and before given a flort account of the two cities, Philadelphia and Bofton, it would be a difrespect flown to this elegant one not to take notice of it, as well as, in fome measure, debarring the reader from such information as may not be dilagreeable; but not being

And the of any average bios

61 of that note or confequence with the others, I shall briefly observe; that ime

oout

tack

neen

any

ft at

at-

hich

ver.

e of

the

cau's

000 ranf-

gain,

New:

for-

had ifing, gret-

Kin-

ld go

tend= men

h the

re, I

for a

ch he York,

efore

lphia this is, in

h IDH

being

New York is a very fine city, and the capital of the province of that name; it contains about 3000 houles, and near 9000 inhabitants. The houles are all well built, and the meaneft of them faid to be worth 100%. Sterling, which cannot be faid of the city of the fame name, nor of any other in England. Their conversation is polite, and their furniture, drefs, and manner of living, quite elegant. In drinking and gallantry they exceed any city in America.

The great church is a very handfome edifice, and built in 1695. Here is alfo a Dutch church, a French church, and a Lutheran church. The inhabitants of Dutch extraction make a confiderable part of the town, and most of them speak English.

Having obtained my furlough, I immediately fet out for Penfylvania, and arriving at Philadelphia, found the confernation and terror of the inhabitants was greatly increafed to what it was when I left them. They had made feveral treaties of friendthip with the Indians, who, when well fupplied with arms, ammunition, clothes, and other neceffaries, through the pacific measures, and defencelefs flate of the Philadelphians, foor revolted to the French, and committed great outrages on the back parts of the province, deftroying and maffaering men, women, and children, and every thing that unhappily lay in their way.

so roule the affendly from the lethargic and inactive condition they abfolutely remained in.

For, about the middle of October, a large body of Indians, chiefly Shawonoefe, Delawares, & c. fell upon this province from feveral quarters, almost at the fame inftant, murdering, burning, and laying waste all wherever they came; fo that in the five counties of Cumberland, York, Lancaster, Berks, and Northampton, which compose more than half the province, nothing but scenes of destruction and desolation were to be seen.

The damages which these counties had fustained by the defertion of plantations, is not to be reckoned up, nor are the miseries of the poor inhabitants to be defcribed; many of whom, though escaping with life, were, without a moment's warning, driven from these habitations, where they enjoyed every necessary of life, and were then exposed to all the fewerity of an hard winter, and obliged to folicit their very bread at the cold hand of charity, or perish with hunger, under the inclement air.

To these barbarities I have already mentioned, I cannot pass over the following, as introductory causes of the Philadelphians at last withstanding the outrages of the barbarians.

At Gnadenhutten, a small Moravian settlement in Northampton county, the poor unhappy sufferers were fitting round their peaceful supper, when the inhuman murderers, muffled in the shades of night, dark and horrid as the infernal purposes of their diabolic fouls, stole upon them, succhared, scalped them, and confumed their bodies, together with their horses, stock, and upwards of fixty head of fat cattle (intended for the subsistence of the brethren at Bethlehem), all in one general stames for that next morning furvished only a melancholy spectacle of their mingled albes. hours ol

this mar

with her

under he

on the gi

his bowe

In and child, fin

the enem

ftrong cal

cent child

vage rufh

the head

fcoured b

the child,

ed.-The

under the

Many

favages in

fate than thapes; a

by favages

more crue

hings been

Yet eve

Aire

dy of

ll up>

ft at

lying

five

lerks,

half

n and

ained

ckon-

itants

aping

iriven

every

Il the

folicit

or pe-

P CENT

ned, I

uctory

ng the

ent in fferers

en the night,

ir dia-

calped

with

of fat

ethren

fo that

fpcc+

Sport: SAL

d acAs

1:1

62

fon

At the Great Cove in Cumberland at Tulpehockin, in Berks, and in feveral other places, their barbarities were ftill greater, if pollible. Men, women, children, and brute beafts, fhared one common deftruction; and where they were not burnt to afhes, their mangled limbs were found promifcuoufly firewed upon the ground; those appertaining to the human form fearce to be diftinguifhed from the brute !

But, of all the inftances of the barbarities I heard of in these parts, I could not help being most affected with the following: One family, confisting of the husband, his wife, and a child only a few hours old, were all found murdered and scalped in this manner: The mother stretched on the bed, with her new-born child horribly mangled and put under her head for a pillow, while the husband lay on the ground hard by, with his belly ript up, and his bowels laid open.

In another place, a woman, with her fucking child, finding that the had fallen into the hands of the enemy, fell flat on her face, prompted by the ftrong call of nature, to cover and thelter her innocent child with her own body. The accurfed favage ruthed from his lurking place, ftruck her on the head with his tomahawk, tore off her fcalp, and foured back into the woods, without obferving the child, being apprehensive that he was discovered.—The child was found fome time afterwards under the body of its mother, and was then alive.

Many of their young women were carried by the favages into captivity, referved perhaps for a worfe fate than those who fuffered death in all its horrid fhapes; and no wonder, fince they were referved by favages, whole tender mercies might be counted more cruel than their very cruelty itfelf.

Yet even during all this time, this province (had things been properly ordered) need but, in compari-

4 than

. good

f ing f

6 f If

300 are fo

< fincei

and a

as fee

Deaft

muft

fight

comin

refolv

will d

as old

thren,

the n

• what · you w

The

fulting

fate o

and be fures !

will p

outa

4 with

arms,

· build s_than

· B

· their .

64

fon to her firength, have lifted her foot and crafhed all the French force on their borders; but unufed to fuch undertakings, and bound by non-refifting principles from exerting her ftrength, and involved in difputes with the proprietors, they flood ftill, vainly hoping the French would be fo moderate as to be content with their victory over Braddock, or at leaft confine their attacks to Virginia: But they then faw and felt all this was delution, and the barbarities of the Indian parties headed by French officers: Notwithstanding all which, they continued in domestic debates, without a foldier in pay, or a penny in the treasury. In short, if the enemy had then had but 1500 men at the Ohio, and would have attempted it, no rafhnefs could have been perceived in their marching down to the city of Philadelphia.

Thus flood our affairs on the fide of the Ohio, when an old captain of the warriors, in the interest of the Philadelphians, and their ever faithful friend, whofe name was Scarooyada, alias Monokatoathy, on the first notice of these misfortunes, came hastening to Philadelphia, together with Colonel Weiser, the provincial interpreter, and two other Indian chiefs. Scarooyada immediately demanded an audience of the allembly, who were then fitting, to whom he spoke in a very affecting manner. His speeches being printed, and fold about Philadelphia, I procured one of them, which was as follows to

BRETHREN,

• We are once more come among you, and fincerely condole with you on account of the late bloodfhed, and the awful cloud that hangs over you, and over us. Brethren, you may be undoubtedly affured, that these horfid actions were committed by none of those nations that have any fellowfhip with us, but by certain false-hearted and treacherous brethren. It grieves us more than all our other misfortunes, that any of our good friends, the English, should suspect us of have s ing false hearts.

65

our

BRETHREN,

bodia

ed to prived in vain-

to be t leaft

then

rbari-

ficers :

omef-

iny in n had empt-

a their

Ohio.

nterest

friend,

toathy,

hasten-

Veiler.

Indian

an au-

ing, to

. His

elphia,

nd fin-

he late

TOYOL BE

be un-

ns were

ave any hearted

is more

6 than

15:50 5

f If you were not an infatuated people, we are 300 warriors firm to your interest; and, if you are fo unjust to us, as to retain any doubts of our fincerity, we offer to put our wives, our children, and all we have into your hands, to deal with them as feemeth good to you, if we are found in the Sleaft to fwerve from your But, brethren, you must support and affist us, for we are not able to fight alone against the powerful nations who are · coming against you; and you: must this moment refolve, and give us an explicit answer what you will do :: For these nations have fent to defire us, as old friends, either to join them, or get out of their way, and thift for ourfelves. Alas! brethren, we are forry to leave you! We remember the many tokens of your friendship to us: But " what shall we do? We cannot stand alone, and you will not ftand with us !---the states and the states of

BRETHREN.

"The time is precious. While we are here confulting with you, we know not what may be the fate of our brethren at home. We do therefore once more invite and requeft you to act like men, and be no longer as women, purfuing weak meafures that render your names despicable. If you will put the hatchet " into your hands, and feud fout a number of your young men in conjunction " with our warriors, and provide the neceffary arms, ammunition, and provisions, and likewife • build fome ftrong houses for the protection of

1 133 M. e. (15)

* See the Note under Tomahawk, p. 17.

AGOTHE LIFE OF TER

Ca

comp

derito

tained

melfr

by th witho

confif

24th

WCI

high

the f

Co

for h

march

ans ;

in the

kindly

wagge

Appal

called

defert

men,

reft, t

Difpo

on til

which Ha

above

fudde

which

favage enfign

othets

We

our old men, women, and children, while we are " absent in war, we shall foon wipe the tears from ' your eyes, and make these false-hearted brethren. repent their treachery and baseness towards you, • and towards us.

66

STOR BURNER

But we must at the same time folemnly asfure you, that if you delay any longer to act in conjunction with us, of think to put us off, as ufual, with uncertain hopes, you must not expect to Ice out faces under this roof any more. We must whift for our own fafety, and leave you to the mercy of our enemies, as an infatuated people, upon whom we can have no longer depends ence.? Pinstres and H

The tears flood in the old man's eyes, while he delivered this laft part ; and no wonder, fince the very being of his nation depended upon their joining the enemy, or our enabling them immediately to make head against them are the

the That your att the 1116.115

10:11:3

It was fome time, however, before the affembly could be brought to confent to any vigorous meafures for their own defence. The back inhabitants lost all patience at their conduct. Until at length, the Governor exerted his atmost power, and procured the militia and money bills to pafs. By virtue of the former, the freemen of the province were enabled to form themfelves into companies, and each company, by a majority of votes, by way of ballot, to chule its own officers, viz a captain, lieutenant, and enfign; who; if approved of, were to be commissioned by the Governor. So that the Philadelphians were at last permitted to raife and arm themselves in their own defence. They accordingly formed themfelves into companies: the Governor figning to all gentlemen qualified, who had been regularly ballotted, committions for that pole.

re are

from

thren

s you,

affure

con₄ ufuala

to lee

must o the

pend-

ile he ce the

joindiately

Tembly

mea-

habit-

ntil at er, and

s. By

rovince

panies;

by way

aptain, were

hat the ile and

he Ga-

houted

Captain Davis was one of the first who had a company, and, being defirous of my fervice, in order to instruct the irregulars in their discipline, obtained from the governor a certificate to indemnify me from any punishment which might be adjudged by the regiment to which I already belonged; for without that, I had not gone. Our company, which confisted of 160 men, was not completed until the 24th of December 1755; when, losing no time, we next morning marched from Philadelphia in high spirits; resolving to shew as little quarter to the f wages as they had to many of us.

Colonel Armstrong had been more expeditious, for he had railed 280 provincial irregulars, and marched a little time before against the Ohio-Mori-. ans, but of him more hereafter.

We arrived the 26th of December at Bethlehem, in the forks of the river Delaware, where, being kindly received by the Moravians, we loaded fix waggons with provisions, and proceeded on to the Appalachian Mountains, or Blue Hills, to a town called Kennorton-head, which the Moravians had deferted on account of the Indians. Fifty of our men, of whom I made one, were ordered before the reft, to fee whether the town was destroyed or not. Disposing them to the best advantage, we marched on till we came within five miles of the place, which we found standing entire.

Having a very uneven, rugged road to it, and not above four men able to go a breaft, we were on a fudden alarmed by the firing of the flank-guards, which were a little in the rear of our van. The favages brickly returned their fire, and killed the enfign and ten of the men, and wounded feveral others.

Ending this, I being chief in command (having is lieutenant, and received pay as fuch from fift entrance, for my trouble and duty in learning

67

Hills;

maind

the m

tion :

to the 1600

place,

only t

extirp

were't

tain I

ing a

until

der co

and at

by Ge

fet ou

arrive

occafi

(which woods

but bo

Wc th

churc

this w

ner;

gainft

fifteet

the p

Fort.

calpe

schat

GIGD

· On

On

The

The

ing in the company) ordered the men to march on with all expedition to the town, and all the way to keep a running free on the enemy, as they had fallen on our rear.

We would have got there in very good order, had it not been for a river we had to crofs, and the weather being fo excellively cold, our clothes froze to our bodies as foon as we got out of the water. However, with great difficulty we reached the town, and got into the church with the lofs of 27 men. There we made as good preparations for our defence as pollibly we could, making a great fire of the benches, feats, and what we could find therein, to dry our clothes; not effeeming it the leaft facrilege or crime, upon fuch an emergency.

The Indians foon followed us into the town, and furrounding us, tried all methods to burn the church, but our continual firing kept them off for about fix hours, until our powder and ball were all expended. In the night they fet feveral houses on fire; and we dreading the confequences of being detained there, refolved to make one bold effort, and push ourfelves through the favage forces, which was accordingly done with the most undawated courage. The enemy fired continually on us during our retreat, and killed many of our men, but in their confusion many of themfelves alfo; it being fo very dark that we were not able to difcern our own party; fo that only five of us kept together, and got into the woods; the reft, whom we left behind, I doubt, fell facrifices to the favages. 11.20 gains out yet b a che restant

The night being fo excessive cold, and having but few clothes with us out of the church, two of my comrades froze to death, before we could reach any inhabited place. In fhort, we did not get any relief till four o'clock in the morning, when we arrived at a house that lay in the gap of the but

n on

iy to

had

der,

l the

rcze

ater:

bwn,

men.

de-

re of

rein,

acri-

1 State

and

irch.

it fix

ided.

wei

here,

elves

ingly

ene-

and

ma-

it wa

t on-

ods;

ifices -

hin

z but

my

each

ant

e at-

Date

ALCON R. R.O.

69

Hills; where our captain had arrived with the remainder of the men and waggons the day before. The captain inquiring our fuccefs, I gave him the melancholy detail of our unfortunate expedition: upon which an express was immediately fent to the governor with the account, who ordered 1600 men to march the next morning for the fame place, under the command of General Franklin, not only to bury the dead, and build a fort there, but to exturpate the favages who infested these parts, and were too powerful for our small number under Captain Davis.

The remainder of our little party were now building a fort at the place where we lay for our defence, until more affiftance fhould arrive; for we were under continual apprehensions of the Indians pursuing and attacking us again.

On the oth of January 1756, we were reinforced by General Franklin and his body; and the next day fet out again for Kennorton-head; where, when we arrived, to our great confernation, we found little occasion to bury our unhappy comrades, the fwine-(which in that country are vafily numerous in the woods) having devoured their bodies, and nothing but bones strewed up and down were to be seen. We there built a fort in the place where the old church had stood, and gave it the name of Fort Alleny this was finished in fix days, and in so good a manner, that 100 men would make great resistance asgainst a much greater number of Indians.

On the 18th, 1400 of, us were ordered about fifteen miles diftant from thence, on the frontiers of the province; where we built another fort called Fort Norris. In our way thither we found fix men, icalped and murdered in a most cruel manner. By what we could diftern, they had made a vigorous manner, the barrels and flocks of their guns being broke broke to pieces, and themfelves cut and mangled in a terrible manner.

70

From thence we were ordered to march towards a place called the Minnifinks, but this journey proved longer than we were aware of. The Indians committing great outrages in thefe parts, having burnt and deftroyed all the houfes, &c. in our way: Fliefe tragic actions caufed us to divide ourfelves into feveral parties, who were ordered divers ways, to cut off as many of thefe favages as poffible.

The day after this scheme was put into execution, we met with a fmall party, which we put to the rout, killing fourteen of them. We then made all. possible dispatch to fave fome houses we faw on fire, but on our nearer approach found our ( - leavour in vain : John Swifher and his family having been before scalped, and burnt to ashes in his own house. On the following night the house of James Wallis underwent the fame fate ; himfelf, wife, feven children, and the reft of his family, being fealped, and burnt therein. The houses and families of Philip Green and Abraham Nairn fuffered in the like manner. Nor did the cruelty of thefe barbarians ftop here, but attacked the dwelling-house of George Hunter, Efq: a gentleman of considerable worth, and a juffice of the peace, who made a brave reliftance, and rather than fall into the hands: of these miscreants, choic to meet death in the flames; which he, his wife, and all his household, confifting of fixteen in number, did with the utmost bravery, before any affiftance could be received from our General; who had dispatched 500 ones for that purpose, on an express being fent to him that morning Anonamer, 2013 Lands on Systemic of built Furt Nerris. On the 9th of March we fer out with 1000 men to the head of the Minnianks, and built a honou foned Afte the wo tures, corn tu from h Not the 13 by pro in, and about Allen; rified the wh deed (f imagin wife he but the ter the

The himfel and bu Ted half the mitted fore, t gan th fcalped where partoof fellali had by tionate prayer Such fcheme built

gled

ards

ney

In-

hav-

our

our-

vers

pof-

ion,

the

e all

on leaving

own

mes

, fe-

alp

s of

the

rba-

e of

able

leia

inds:

the

old,

holt

rom

that

TIL

1

and

OUT ??

and

uit

built another fort, which we named Franklin, in honour of our General. All which forts were garrifoned with as many men as we could pollibly fpare; After this we were daily employed in fcouring the woods, from fort to fort, of these noxious creatures, the Indians, and in getting as much of the corn together as we could find, to prevent favages from having any benefit therefrom.

Notwithstanding our vigilance, these villains, on the 13th, attacked the house of James Graham, but by providence he, with his wife, who had just lain in, and the young infant in her arms (with nothing about her but her shift) made their escape to Fort Allen, about fisteen miles distant. The child perished by the way, and it was matter of wonder to the whole garrison to find either of them alive; indeed they were in a deplorable condition, and we imagined they would expire every moment. The wife however, to our great aftonishment, recovered, but the husband did not survive above fix hours after their arrival.

The house of Isaac Cook suffered by the flames; himself, his wife, and eight children, being scalped and burnt in it.

Tedious and shocking would it be to enumerate half the murders, conflagrations, and outrages, committed by these hellish infidels; let it suffice therefore, that from the year 1753, when they first began their barbavities, they had murdered, burnt, scalped, and destroyed, above 3500; above 1000 whereof were unhappy inhabitants of the western part of Philadelphia. Men, women, and children, fell alike a prey to the favages: No regard being had by them to the tender entreaties of an affectionate parent for a beloved child, or the infant a prayers in behalf of his aged father and mother. Such are the miserable calamities attendant on schemes for gratifying the ambition of a tyrannid monarch monarch like France, or the weak contrivances and indolent measures of blandering ministers and negeciators.

72

The time of my furlowsh at length expiring, I prepared to fet out for my regiment. Having a recommendatory letter from General Franklin to Major Kinnair, as to my fervices, I marched forward for New York: Where being arrived, I waited on the Major, he being a worthy gentleman, univerfally beloved by the whole regiment; and after giving him an account of all our transactions, and the hardships and labours we had gone through, I was difmisfed.

After fome flay there, I was ordered to proceed on my march for Ofwego once more. But, before I go further with my affairs, I thall just recount the sefult of those provincials, who went, as I mentioned before, to quell the favages, under the command of Colonel Armstrong.

He having under his command 280 provincials, defined against the Ohio Morians, against whom nothing had been attempted, notwithstanding their frequent incursions and murders, penetrated 140 miles through the woods, from Fort Shirley on Janiata river, to Kittanning an Indian town, on the Obio, about 25 miles above Fort du Queine, belonging to the French. He foon joined the advanced party at the Beaver-dams; and; on the fourth evening after, being within fix miles of Kittanning, the fcouts difcovered a fire in the road, and reported that there were but three or four Indians at it. At that time it was not thought proper to attempt furprising these Indians, left, if one should escape, the town might be - alarmed : Lieutenant Hogg, therefore, with twelve men, was left to watch them, with orders not to fall upon them until day-break ; and our forces turned out of the outh. to pais their fire, without diffurbing them.

Abo by the in the perches tack be gave th ly throu general dered th by the this, fo reach t Jacobs, fcalped, ed the fpare a off in q and qu stored in throwin

Eleve

formed a of Frence

French

cobs, to twenty-f

precedin

that had

our ped

wounder

attacked

fize, but three of them an

the reft.

fled. the

loonafte

ABout

and

d ne-

ıg, I

a re+

Ma-

d for

n the

rfally

d the

Iswas

wieids.

ocead

nt the

ntion-

mand

ncials, whom

their

d 140

n Ja-

n the

ne ad-

n the

of Kit-

ndians

10 20

fhould tenant

eft to e outh.

Alleht

About three in the morning, having been guided by the whooping of the Indian warriors, at a dance in the town, they reached the river at about 100 perches below it. As foon as day appeared, the attack began. Captain Jacobs, chief of the Indians, gave the war-whoop, and defended his house bravely through the loop-holes in the logs. The Indians. generally refusing quarter, Colonel Armstrong ordered their houses to be fet on fire, which was done by the officers and foldiers with great alacrity. On this, fome burft out of the houses and attempted to reach the river, but were inftantly fhot:- Captain Jacobs, in getting out of a window, was thot and fcalped, as were also his Squaw, and a lad they called the King's fon. The Indians had a number of spare arms in their houses loaded, which went off in quick fucceffion as the fire came to them; and quantities of gunpowder, which had been stored in every house, blew up from time to time, throwing their bodies into the air.

Eleven English prisoners were released, who informed the Colonel, that that very day two batteaux of Frenchmen, with a large party of Delaware and French Indians, were to have joined Captain Jacobs, to march and take Fort Shirley; and that twenty-four warriors had fet out before them the preceding evening; which proved to be the party that had kindled the fire the preceding night; for our people returning, found Lieutenant Hogg wounded in three places : and learned, that he had attacked the supposed party of three or four at the fire, but found them too ftrong for him. He killed three of them however, at the first fire, and fought. them an hour; when, having loft three of his men, the reft, as he lay wounded, abandoned him and fled, the enemy purfuing. Lieutenant Hogg died toon after of his mounds. Endel

Enough of these two expeditions has been faid, nor can I well tell which of the two was most fuccessful, both losing more of their own men than they killed of the enemy.

A little retrofpection again on the actions and behaviour of the Philadelphians, and the other provinces, and places in conjunction with them, may here be fomething neceffary : For, when I arrived at Philadelphia, I found, that however melancholy their lituation had been of late, this good effect had been obtained, that the most prejudiced and ignorant individual was feelingly convinced of the neceffity of vigorous measures; and, besider national and public views, then the more prevailing ones of revenge and felf-interest gave a spur to their counfels. They were accordingly raising men with the utmost expedition; and had, before the end of the fummer, a confiderable number, though not equal to what they could furnish, having at least 45,000 men in Penfylvania able to fight.

And, pursuant to agreement fome months before, the four governments of New England, in conjunction with New York (which last furnished 1300) had now affembled 8000 men (for the attack of Fort Frederick) at Albany, 150 miles N: of New York, and about 130 from Crown Point, under the command of General Winflow. But many people dreading the cruelty of the French, were not fo very eager to join them this year as the laft; an imprefs therefore of part of the militia was ordered in New York government. To prevent which, fubforiptions were fet on foot to engage volunteers by high bounties; fo loath were they that fome got nine or twelve pounds Sterling to inlift. 12, 16. The 44th, 48th, 50th, and 51ft regiments of Great Britain were defined for the campaign on the great lake Ontario, and mostly marched for Ofwego, thence to be carried over in 2005 great whalebuilt a long, bottom tion of high. Fort F French men we a ton b Albany lake and wife 30 (as I fo four arr before r vice, ar carpente for that the prep but how known a I fhall of a lor Ofwego, that I ar in-my m Colonel May, at with the killed an I made hand, w fingers; encies fo hand dre

nexe balt

whale

.74

n faid, ft fucn than ns and er pron; may arrived incholy ect had d ignothe nenational ones of r counvith the l of the ot equal 45,000

s before, conjuncd 1300) ttack of of New nder the y people e not fo ; an imrdered in ich. fubnteers by iome got #1 ..... mentsion na agisa chat for OO greek what.

100

whale-boats, which were then at the lake, and were built at Scheneclady on Mohawk's river, and were long, round, and light, as the batteaux, being flatbottomed and fmall, would not answer the navigation of the lake, where the waves were often very high. They were then, at laft, intended to attack: Fort Frontenac, mentioned before, and the other French forts on the lake. Upwards of 2000 batteau men were employed to navigate the batteaux, each a ton burthen, laden with provisions and ftores from Albany by the Mohawk river, then through Oneyda lake and river, down to Ofwego. There were likewife 300 failors hired and gone up from New York (as I found, when I arrived there) to navigate the four armed thips on the lake, built there, as I have before mentioned, the laft year, for the king's fervice, and two others were then building; finiths, carpenters, and other artificers, having gone there for that purpose some weeks before. Such were the preparations and armaments for this campaign; but how fruitlefs, to our great difgrace, was foon known all over the world!

I thall not trouble the reader with a long account of at long march I had to take from New York to Olwego, to join my regiment: fuffice it therefore, that I arrived there about the middle of July; but in my march thither with fome recruits, we joined Colonel Broadstreet at Albany, and on the 6th of May, at the Great Carrying-place, had a fkirmith with the French and Indians, wherein feveral were killed and wounded on both fides; of the latter I made one. Receiving a flot through my left hand, which entirely difabled my third and fourth fingers; and having no hospital, or any conveniencies for the fick there, I was, after having my hand dreffed in a wretched manner, fent with the next batteaux to Albany to get it eured.

G 2

ing p

and I

conve

to and were

one.

throu ber of both f at laft entire

wound

two n

would

been f

tranfad

time o

is ablo

who k

one M

being

arrived

pierced

cated;

bled fr

the gan

(as is c

ins fca

fergean

on his

to be d

him fro

found

what h

the ftra

him h

phid,

ng

I ca

As foon as I was well, I fet forwards for Ofwege again.' And, when I arrived there, I began to make what observations I could, as to the alterations that had been made fince my departure in the month of October preceding. The works of Ofwego, at this time, confifted of three forts, viz. The Old Fort, built many years before, whole chief ftrength was a weak ftone-wall, about two feet thick, fo ill cemented, that it could not refift the force of a four pound ball, and fituated on the east fide of the harbour; the two other forts, called Fort Ontario and Fort George, were each of them at the diftance of about 450 yards from the Old Fort, and fituated on two eminences, which commanded it; both thefe, as I have already observed, were begun to be built last year upon plans, which made them defenfible against mulquetry, and cannon of three or four pound ball only, the time not allowing works of a ftronger nature to be then undertaken.

For our defence against large cannon, we entirely depended on a fuperior naval force upon the like, which might have put it in our power to prevent the French from bringing heavy artillery against the place, as that could only be done by water carriage, which is my opinion, as well as many others." If the naval force had but done their duty, Ofwego might have been ours to this very day, and entirely cut off the communication of the French from Camada to the Ohio: But if I would infift on this, as the particulars require, I perhaps should affront fome, and injure myfelf, all to no purpole, or of any beneficial fervice to recall our former loffes; for that reason, I shall defer enlarging on the subject, although at the fame time, I can give very good circumstances to maintain my argument, if required.

A day or two after being at Ofwego, the fore was alarmed by hearing a firing; when on difpatch-

77

)fwcgo o make ns that onth of go, at he Old trength , fo ill ce of a e of the Ontario tiftance fituated ; both in to be i defenhree or g works

we enpon the r to prey against ater cary others. Ofwego entirely rom Cah this, as affront e, or of r loffes; the lubive yery ment, if the fort dilpatchmg ing proper fcouts, it was found to be the French and Indians engaging the batteau men and failors, conveying the provisions to Ofwego, from one river to another. On this, a detachment of .500 men were ordered out in pursuit of them, whereof I was We had a narrow pais in the woods to go. one. through, where we were attacked by a great number of Indians, when a desperate fight began on both fides, that lasted about two hours. However, at last we gained a complete victory, and put them entirely to the rout, killing fourteen of them, and wounding above forty. On our fide we had but two men killed and fix wounded. Many more would have been killed of both parties, had it not been for the thickness of the woods.

I cannot here omit recounting a most fingular transaction that happened during this my second time of being there, which, though fcarce credible, is absolutely true, and can be testified by hundreds, who know and have often feen the man : in fhort, one Moglasky, of the 50th regiment, an Irishman, being placed as centinel over the rum which had arrived, and being curious to know its goodnels, pierced the cafk, and drank till he was quite intoxicated; when, not knowing what he did, he rambled from his poft, and fell afleep a good way from the garrifon. An Indian skulking that way for prey (as is conjectured) found him, and made free with his fcalp, which he plucked and carried off. The fergeant, in the morning, finding him proftrate on his face, and feeing his fcalp off, imagined him to be dead; but on his nearer approach, and railing him from the ground, the fellow awaked from the found fleep he had been in, and afked the fergeant what he wanted. The fergeant, quite furprifed at the ftrange behaviour of the fellow, interrogated him, how he came there in that condition ? He rephild, He could not tell; but that he had got very G 3 drunk, drunk, and rambled he knew not whither. The fer. geant advised him to prepare for death, not having many hours to live, as he had loft his fealp. Arrah, my dear, now (cries he) and are you joking me? for he really knew nothing of his being ferved in the manner he was; and would not believe any accident had happened him, until feeing his clothes bloody, he felt his head, and found it to be too true, as well as having a cut from his mouth to his ear. He was immediately carried before the Governor, who afking him, how he came to leave his post? He replied, That being very thirfy, he had broached a cafk of rum, and drank about a pint, which made him drunk ; but if his Honour would forgive him, he'd never be guilty of the like again. The Governor told him, it was very probable he never would, as he was now no better than a dead man. However, the furgeons dreffed his head there as well as they could, and then fent him in a batteau to Albany, where he was perfectly cured; and, to the great furprife of every body, was living when I left the country. This, though fo extraordinary and unparalleled an affair, I aver to be true, having leveral times feen the man after this accident happened to him. How his life was preferved feems a miracle, as no inftance of the like was ever known.

78

I had forgot to mention, that before I left Albany the last time, upon Colouel Broadstreet's arrival there, in his way to Ofwego, with the provisions and forces, confisting of about 500 whale-boats and batteaux, intended for the campaign on the great lake Ontario, mentioned before, I joined his corps, and proceeded on with the batteaux, &c.

Going up the river Onondago towards Ofwego, the batteau men were, on the 29th of June, attacked near the Falls, about nine miles from Ofwego, by 505 French and Indians, who killed and wounded 24 of our men, before we could get on flore, which whic with ed, v H their been Colo difci Fren after and f He batte ftores canne Carry bring necta

ed to

care,

and r

Aber

was e

would

Front Ontar

in the

archit

ours,

tuatio

and 1

time,

and or

ging,

ffreet

non

Frenc

On

79

the

ie fer. having Arrah; for he : mannt had dy, he s well le was no afkeplied, of ruin, ik; but uilty of as very better dreffed en fent erfectly y body, though I aver an after life was of the t Albas arrival ovilions pats and he great s corps, )fwego, attack-)fwego, woundn fhore, which, which, as foon as we did, the French were routed, with the loss of 130 men killed, and feveral wounded, whom we took prifoners.

Had we known of their lying in ambush, or of their intent to attack us, the victory would have been much more complete on our fide, as the troops Colonel Broadstreet commanded were regular, well disciplined, and in tolerable health; whereas the French, by a long passage at fea, and living hard after their arrival at Canada, were much barassed and fatigued.

However, we got all fafe to Ofwego, with the batteaux and provisions, together with rigging and stores for the large vessels, excepting twenty-four cannon, fix pounders, that were then at the Great Carrying-place; which Colonel Broadstreet was to bring with him, upon his next passage, from Schenectady; to which place, as foon as he had delivered to the Quarter-master all the stores under his care, he was ordered to return with the batteaux and men to receive the orders of Major-general Abercrombie. In his return from Schenectady, it was expected that Halket's and Dunbar's regiment. would have come with him, in order to take Fort Frontenac, and the other French forts on the lake Ontario. But, alas ! as fchemes for building caftles in the air always prove abortive, for want of proper architecture and foundation, fo did this fcheme of ours, for want of a due knowledge of our own fituation !

On the arrival of thefe forces, a new brigantine and floop were fitted out; and, about the fame time, a large fnow was alfo launched and rigged; and only waited for her guus and fome-running rigging, which they expected every day by Col. Broadfireer; and had he returned in time with the cantion and batteau-men under his command, the French would not have dared to have appeared on the lake; but Col. Broadstreet happened to be detained with the batteaux at Schenectady for above a month, waiting for the 44th regiment to march with him: The dilatorinefs of this embarkation at Schenectady cannot be imputed to Col. Broadstreet, becaufe General Shirley waited with impatience for the arrival of Lord Loudon Campbell from England; and when his Lordship landed at New York, he, in a few days after, proceeded to Albany, where his Lordship took the command of the army from Gen. Shirley, and upon comparing, and confidering how bad a fituation his forces, and the different governments upon the continent were in, his Lordship, with the advice of feveral other experienced officers, thought himself not in a condition to proceed on any enterprise for that feason, no further than to maintain our ground at Ofwego; for which purpofe, Colonel Broadstreet was immediately ordered off with the batteaux and provisions, as also the aforesaid regiments; but before Broadstreet arrived at the Great Carrying-place, Ofwego was taken, with all the fhips of war, although our naval force was far fuperior to the French.

Before I relate the attack of Ofwego, I shall review a little what the French were doing during these our dilatory, pompous proceedings.

The Marquis de Vaudreuil, Governor and Lieutenant-general of New France, whilft he provided for the fecurity of the frontiers of Canada, was principally attentive to the lakes. Being informed that we were making vaft preparations at Ofwego for attacking Niagara and Frontenac, he took and razed, in the month of March, the fort where we had formed our principal magazine; and in June following, deftroyed, on the river of Chonegan or Ofwego, fome of our veflels, and made fome prifoners. The fuccefs of thefe two expeditions encouraged him to act offenfively, and to attack us at Ofwego.

from

intelli

of the clear -

quain

impor

Το

Ofw

Ofwego. This fettlement they pretended, and ftill infift on, to be an incroachment, or invation, which we had made in time of profound peace, and againft which, they faid, they had continually remonstrated, during our blundering, negociating Lawyer's refidence at France. It was at first, fay they, only a fortified magazine; but in order to avail themfelves of its advantageous fituation in the centre almost of the French colonies, the English added, from time to time, feveral new works, and made it confist-of three forts, as above defcribed.

The troops defigned for this expedition by the French amounted to near 5000 men, 1300 of which were regulars. To prevent his defign being dilcovered, M. de Vaudreuil pretended, in order the better. to deceive us, who had fo long before been blind, that he was providing only for the fecurity of Niagara and Frontenac. The Marquis de Montcalm, who commanded on this occasion, arrived the 29th of: July at Fort Frontenac : and having given the necelfary directions for fecuring his retreat, in cafe it fhould have been rendered inevitable, by a fuperiorforce, fent out two veffels, one of twelve and the other of fixteen guns, to cruife off Olwego, and posted a chain of Canadians and Indians on the road. between Ofwego and Albany, to intercept our courriers. All the forces, and the veffels, with the artillery and ftores, being arrived in the bay of Nixoure, the place of general rendezvous, the Marquis de Montcalm ordered his advance-guard to proceed to a creek, called Anfe aux Cabannes, three leagues from Ofwego. But,

To carry on this account the more accurate and intelligible to the reader, I fhall recite the actions of the French and ourfelves together, as a more clear and fuccinct manner of making those unacquainted with the art of war, more fensible of this important affair.

Colonel

vea irch n at cet, for nd ; :, in his Gen. how ernhip, cers, d on n to purered the rived ken, force

de-

ll re-

Lieu-

vided was rmed wego and re we June an or e prins enus at wego.

82

Colonel Mercer, who was then commanding of ficer of the garrifon at Ofwego, having, on the 6th of August, intelligence of a large encampment of French and Indians, about twelve miles off, difpatched one of the schooners, with an account of it to Captain Bradley, who was then on a cruife with the large brigantine and two floops; at thefame time, defired him to cruife as far to the eastward as he could, and to endeavour to prevent the approach of the French on the lake; but meeting the next day with a fmall gale of wind, the large brigantine was drove on fhore near Ofwego, in attempting to get into the harbour; of which miffortune, the Indians immediately gave M. de Montcalm, the French General, notice, who took that opportunity of transporting his heavy cannon to about a mile and a half of the fort, which he could not otherwise have done, had not there been some neglect on our fide.

For on the 10th, the first division of the French being arrived at Anfe aux Cabannes, at two o'clock in the morning; the van-guard proceeded, at four in the afternoon, by land, acrofs woods, to another creek within half a league of Ofwego, in order to favour the debarkation. At midnight their first division repaired to this creek, and there erected a battery on the lake Ontario.

Colonel Mercer, in the morning of the roth, on fome cances being feen to the eaftward, fent out the fmall fehooner to make difcovery of what they were; fhe was fcarce half a mile from the fort, before fhe difcovered a very large encampment, clofe under the opposite point, being the first division of the French troops above mentioned. On this, the two floops (the large brigantine being still on thore) were fent out with orders, if possible, to annoy the enemy; but this was to no purpose; the enemy; cannon being large and well pointed, hulled there or fix fe

veftel

vessels almost every shot, while theirs fell short of the shore.

This day and the next, the enemy were employed in making gabions, faucifions, and fafcines, and in cutting a road acrofs the woods, from the place of landing, to the place where the trenches were to be opened; and the fecond division of the enemy arriving on the 11th in the morning, with the artillery and provisions, the fame immediately landed without any opposition. Though dispositions were made for opening the trenches on the 10th at night, which was rather a parallel of about 100 toifes * in front, and opened at the distance of 60 toifes from the fols of Fort Ontario, in ground embarrassied with trunks of trees.

About five in the morning of the 11th, this parallel was finished, and the workmen began to erect the batteries. Thus was the place invested by about 5000 men, and thirty-two pieces of cannon, from twelve to eighteen pounders, besides several large brass mortars and hoyets (among which artillery was part of General Braddock's). About noon they began the attack of Fort Ontario, with small arms, which was briskly returned. All this day, the garrison was employed on the west fide of the river, in repairing the batteries on the south fide of the Old Fort.

The next morning (the 12th) at day-break, a large number of French batteaux were discovered on the lake, in their way to join the enemy's camp: on which, Colonel Mercer ordered the two floops to be again fent out, with directions to get between the batteaux and the camp; but before our veffels came up, the batteaux had fecured themfelves under the fire of their cannon.

• A toile is a French measure, and contains about two fathoms, of fix feet, in length.

ofith of lifof ife the aftthe ing rge 'atnifontthat to bluc ome ench lock four ther r tofirft ed a , on out they beclofe on of the nore) r.the mys tied

In the evening, a detachment was made of 100 men of the 50th (General Pepperel's) regiment, and 126 of the New Jerfey provincials, under the command of Colonel Schuyler, to take poffeffion of the fort on the hill, to the weftward of the Old Fort, and under the direction of the engineer, Mr. McKneller, were to put it into the beft ftate of defence they could; in which work they were employed all the following night.

The enemy on the east fide continued their approaches to the Fort Ontario, but, with their utmost efforts, for a long time they could not bring their cannon to bear on it. However, drawing their cannon with great expedition, next morning (the 13th) about ten o'clock, to a battery crected within fixty yards from it, they played them very hotly on the garrifon, notwithstanding the constant fire kept on them, and the loss of their principal engineer, who was killed in the trenches. A council of war was immediately held, by the officers of General Pepperel's regiment, who, observing the mortars were beginning to play, concluded it most adviseable to quit Fort Ontario, and join Colonel Schuyler's regiment at Fort George or Fort Rafcal; and an account of this latter battery being fent to Colonel Mercer, by the commandant of the enemy, ordering him to evacuate the fort, they accordingly did, about three in the afternoon, deftroying the cannon, ammunition, and provisions therein, and managed their retreat fo as to pass the river, and join the troops at the west fide, without the loss of a man. These troops, being about 370, were immediately ordered to join Colonel Schuyler, which they accordingly did, and were employed all the following night in completing the works of that fort.

M. Montcalm immediately took possession of Fort Ontario, and ordered the communications of the parallel to be continued to the banks of the river, where, where a gran could from ment In being eighty and the but the harbour before well as regular vanceriver, The ing up fide, w from t non. w pieces, earther which on' the the lear of Shir At d on that the eve in raifi The Canadi fwimm up to t the Old tirely c the cele and omthe fort, Mr. deemapmoft their their (the ithin ly on kept ineer, war eneral ortars feable r's ren acolonel lering y did, nnon, naged in the man. diately ey acowing of Fort of the river, where, where, in the beginning of the night, they began a grand battery, placed in fuch a manner, that it could not only batter Fort Ofwego, and the way from thence to Fort George, but also the intrenchment of Ofwego.

In the morning of the 13th, the large brigantine being off the rocks and repaired, a detachment of eighty men of the garrifon was put on board of her and the two floops, in order to go out immediately; but the wind continuing to blow directly into the harbour, rendered it impossible for them to get out before the place was furrendered. This night, as well as the night before, parties of the energy's irregulars made feveral attempts to furprife our advance-guards and centinels, on the welf fide of the river, but did not fucceed in any of them.

The enemy were employed this night in bringing up their cannon, and raifing a battery. On our fide, we kept a conftant fire of cannon and fhells from the Old Fort, and works about it. The cannon which most annoyed the enemy, were four pieces, which we reversed on the platform of an earthen work, which furrounded the Old Fort, and which was entirely enfiladed by the enemy's battery on the opposite fhore : In this fituation, without the least cover, the train, affisted by a detachment of Shirley's regiment, behaved remarkably well.

At day-break, on the 14th, we renewed our fire on that part of the opposite fhore, where we had the evening before observed the enemy at work, in raising the battery.

The enemy, in three columns, confifting al-2500 Canadians and favages, croffed the river, fome by fwimming, and others by wading, with the water up to their middles, in order to inveft and attack the Old Fort. This bold action, by which they entirely cut off the communication of the two forts; the celerity with which the works were carried on, H

T

and t

were

bring

of the

and - cers v

terms

made

terms

Chrift

follow

AR

" fone

" to ]

" hun

" agre

", the

" have

" be a

" they

By v.

rendere

diately.

which

orders,

and pro

But

ftation,

vages,

The

HE.

G

II.

86

in ground that we thought impracticable; a continual return of our fire from a battery of ten cannon, twelve pounders; and their preparing a battery of mortars and hoyets, made Colonel Mercer think it adviseable (he not knowing their numbers) to order Colonel Schuyler, with 500 men, to oppose them; which would accordingly have been carried into execution, and confequently, every man of the 500 cut off, had not Colonel Mercer been killed by a cannon-ball, a few minutes after. The resolution of this valiant Colonel, seemed to be determined to oppose the French to the last extremity, and to maintain his ground at Ofwego, but his final doom came on so unexpectedly, that his loss was universally regretted.

About ten o'clock, the enemy's battery was ready to play; at which time, all our places of defence were either enfiladed, or ruined by the conftant fire of their cannon; Fort Rafcal or George, in particular, having at that time no guns, and fearce in a condition to defend itfelf against fmall arms; with 2500 irregulars on our backs, ready to florm us on that fide, and 2000 of their regulars as ready to land in our front, under the fire of their cannon. Whereas,

Fort Rafcal might have been made a very defenfible fortrefs, lying on a hill, and the afcent to it fo fteep, that had an enemy been ever fo numerous, they must have fuffered greatly in an attempt to ftorm it. Why it was not in a better flate, it becomes not me to fay, but matters were fo.

And in this fituation we were, when Colonel Littlehales, who fucceeded Colonel Mercer in the command, called a council of war, who were, with the engineers, unanimoufly of opinion, that the works were no longer tenable; and that it was by no means prudent to rifk a ftorm with fuch unequal numbers.

The chamade was accordingly ordered to be beat, and the firing ceafed on both fides; yet the French were not idle, but improved this opportunity to. bring up more cannon, and advance the main body of their troops, within mulquet-fhot of the garrifon, and prepared every thing for a ftorm. Two officers were fent to the French General, to know what terms he would give; the Marquis de Montcalm made anfwer, that they might expect whatever terms were confiftent with the fervice of his Most Christian Majesty: He accordingly agreed to the following :-

ARTICLE I. " The garrifon shall furrender pri-" foners of war, and shall be conducted from hence. " to Montreal, where they shall be treated with " humanity, and every one shall have treatment; " agreeable to their respective ranks, according to ", the cuftom of war.

II. " Officers, and foldiers, and individuals, shall " have their baggage and clothes, and they shall " be allowed to carry them along with them.

III. " They shall remain prisoners of war, until " they are exchanged."

Given at the camp before Ofwego, August 14, 1756.

MONTCALM.

for

By virtue of this capitulation, the garrifon furrendered prifoners of war, and the French immediately took pofferfion of Ofwego, and Fort George, which they entirely deftroyed, agreeable to their orders, after removing the articlery, warlike ftores, and provisions.

But to defiribe the plunder, havock, and devastation, made by the French, as well as the favages, who ruthed in by thoufands, is impossible. H 2 continnon, ery of ink it order them; o exee 500 l by a lution mined and to doom s unis ready lefence ant fire ı partiarce in arms; o ftorm is ready cannon.

v defento it fo merdus, empt to ; it be-Colonel r in the re, with that the

was by unequal

The

what

parts

ule o

place

thing

nac,

fourt

canno

a bra

thirte

fwive

of lea

dred :

bamb

fix in and ty

mulqu

brigan

of ten

eight

burnt

barrels

eighty and ty

fifteen

militar

eighte livres.

foldier

being

Quebe

the fin

trence,

moder

delizo

On

For notwithstanding the Christian promife made by the General of his Most Christian Majesty, they all behaved more like infernal beings than creatures in human shapes. In short, not contented with surrendering upon the above terms, they scalped and killed all the sick and wounded in the hospitals; mangling, butchering, cutting, and chopping off their heads, arms, legs, &c. with spades, hatchets, and other such diabolical instruments; treating the whole with the utmost cruelty, notwithstanding the repeated intercessions of the defenceless sick and wounded for mercy; which were indeed piteous enough to have softened any heart possified of the minutest particle of humanity!

Here I cannot help obferving, that notwithstanding what has been faid of the behaviour of the officers of these (the soth and sift) regiments, I must, with the greatest truth, give them the characters of brave, but I with I could fay, experienced men; every one of them that I had an opportunity of obferving during the fiege, behaving with the utmost courage and intrepidity. Nor, in this place, can I omit particularly naming Colonel James Campbell and Captain Archibald Hamilton *, who affifted with the greatest spirit and alacrity the private men at the great guns. But for fuch an handful of men as our garrifon then confifted of, and the works being of fuch a weak and defenceless nature, to have made a longer defence, or have caufed the enemy to raife the fiege, would have been fuch an inftance as England for many years hath not experienced; and I am afraid will be many more before it will, for reasons that are too obvious.

The quantity of ftores and ammunition we then had in the three forts is almost incredible. But of * Colonel Campbell and Captain Hamilton are at prefent in Scotland, the former refides near Glafgow, and the latter in Edinburgh. what de by ney all res in h furd and pitals; ng off tchets, ng the k and piteous of the istandhe offimuit, ters of men; of obutmoft , can I impbell affisted ate men ofmen orks beto have e enemy inftance rienced; it will,

we then But of present in

what

what avail are powder and balls if walls and ramparts are defenceless, and men infufficient to make ule of them? In fhort, the French by taking this place, mades them felves masters of the following things, all which were immediately fent to Frontenac, viz. feven pieces of brafs cannon, nineteen, fourteen, and twelve pounders; forty-eight iron cannon, of nine, fix, five, three, and two pounders ;a brafs mortar of nine inches four-twelfths, and thirteen others of fix and three inches; forty-feven fwivel-guns; 23,000 lb. of gunpewder; 8000 lb. of lead and mulquet ball; two thouland nine hundred and fifty cannon balls; one hundred and fifty bombs, of nine inches, and three hundred more, of fix inches diameter; one thousand four hundred and twenty-fix grenadoes; one thousand and feventy musquets; a vefiel pierced for eighteen guns; the brigantine of fixteen, a gœletta of ten, a batteau of ten (the floops already mentioned), another of eight guns, a skirff of eighteen swivels, and another burnt upon the flocks; feven hundred and four barrels of bifcuit, one thousand three hundred and eighty-fix firkins of bacon and beef; feven hundred and twelve firkins of meal; thirty-two live oxen; fifteen hogs, and a large fum of money in the military cheft, amounting, as the French faid, to eighteen thousand five hundred and ninety-four livres.

On the 16th they began to remove us; the officers were first fent in batteaux, and two hundred foldiers a-day afterwards, till the whole were gone, being carried first to Montreal, and from thence to Quebec. Our duty in the batteaux till we reached the first place, was very hard and flavish: And during the time we were on the lake or river St Laurence, it appeared very easy and feasible for Commodore Bradely, had he thought proper, to have the first place all the enemy's batteaux, and have prevented them from ever landing their cannon within forty miles of the fort. But he knew his own reafons for omitting this piece of fervice beft.

H 3

vented

90

Our party arrived at Montreal in Canada on the 28th. We were that night fecured in the fort, as were the reft as they came in. The French ufed various means to win fome of our troops over to their intereft, or, at leaft, to do their work in the fields, which many refufed, among whom was myfelf; who were then conducted on board a thip, and fent to Quebec, where, on arriving, the 5th of September, we were lodged in a gaol, and kept for the fpace of one month.

During this our captivity, many of our men, rather than lie in a prifon, went out to work and affift the French in getting in their harveft; they having then fcarce any people left in that country but old men, women, and children, fo that the corn was continually falling into the ftubble, for want of hands to reap it; but thofe who did go out, in two or three days, chofe confinement again, rather than liberty on fuch terms, being almost ftarved, having nothing in the country to live on but dry bread, whereas we in the prifon were each of us allowed two pounds of bread, and half a pound of meat aday, and otherwife treat d with a good deal of humanity.

Eighteen foldiers were all the guard they had to place over us, who being greatly fatigued with hard duty, and dreading our rifing on them (which had we had any arms we might eafily have done, and ravaged the country round, as it was then entirely defencelefs), and the town's people themfelves fearing the confequences of having fuch a number of men in a place where provisions were at that time very fcarce and dear, they thought of fending us away, the most eligible way of keeping themfelve on b B hom fhort tende the r part a fafe A nicat was i with A fe Tying the c given that t thouf ftill g defen doned under to Bu Natio Th wego, there, to Tie der th fhame arriva while our pe Th at the

retrea

Tent to

01

The

ithin rea-

n the rt, as ufed er to n the s myo, and f Sepor the n, ral affift naving ut old n was int of in two r than having bread, llowed neat aof hu-had to h hard (which done, ien enmfelves number at that iending themfelres felves from famine, and accordingly put 500 of us on board a veffel for England.

But before I continue the account of our voyage home to our native country, I fhall just make a short retrospection on the confequences which attended the loss of Oswego, as appeared to us and the rest of the people at Quebec, who knew that part of America, to which this important place was a fafeguard.

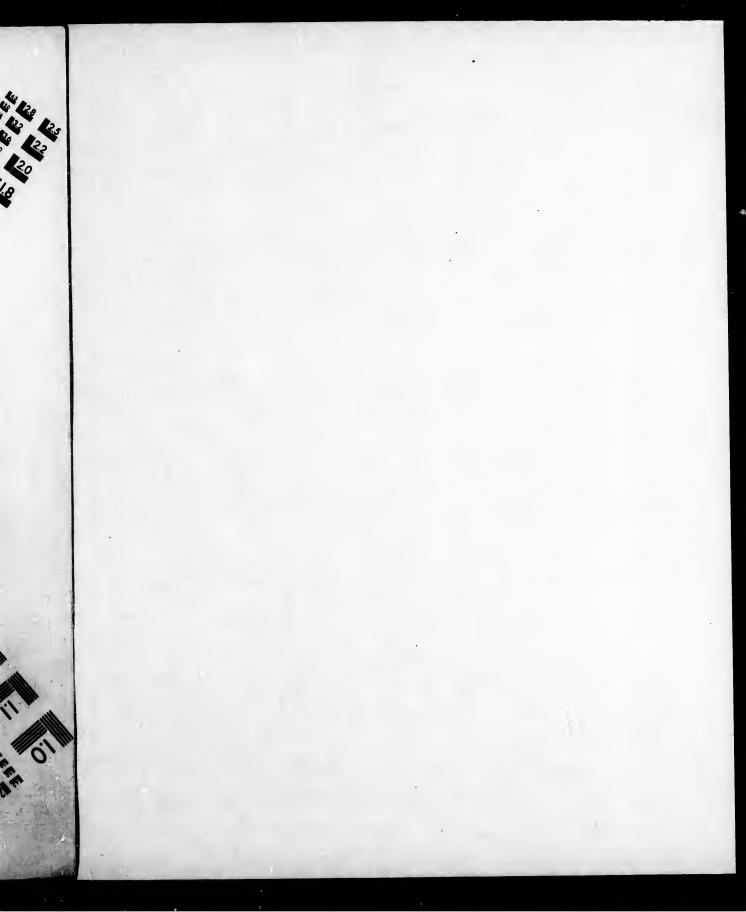

As foon as Ofwego was taken, our only communication from the Mohawk's river to the lake Oneida was stopt up, by filling the place at Wood's Creek with great logs and trees, for many miles together. A few days afterwards, the forts at the Great Carrying-place, and then our most advanced post into the country of the Six Nations, which I have before. given a fhort account of (and whe there were at that time above three thousand men, including one thousand two hundred batteau men, and which still gave the Six Nations fome hopes that we would defend their country against the French), were abandoned and deftroyed, and the troops which were under the command of General Webb, retreated to Burnet's Field, and left the country and the Six Nations to the mercy of the enemy.

The French, immediately after the taking of Ofwego, demolified, as is faid before, all the works there, and returned with their prifoners and booty to Ticonderago, to oppofe our provincial army under the command of General Winflow, who had fhamefully been kept, in expectation of the dilatory arrival of Lord Louden, from attacking Crown Point, while the enemy were weak, and it was eafily in our power to have beat them.

The confequences of the deftruction of our forts at the Great Carrying-place, and General Webb's representing to Burnet's Field, is now, alas! too apparent to every one acquainted with American affairs.

fea

tio

Ind

per

of 1

plac

one

diff

new

chat

that

the

cano

to n

for 1

old

Add

ther

fifter

ty, c offen

enen

fpace

will

fuch fectu

fake

bitra

tle t

taker

frien

only

with 25 .

then

ICI.

0

T

N

62

The Indians of the Six Nations undoubtedly looked upon it as abandoning them and their country to the French: for they plainly faw that we had no ftrong-hold near them, and that (by the place at Wood's Creek being flopped) we could not, if we would, afford them any alfiftance at Onondago, Cayuga, and in the Senekea's country, which were their chief caffles: That the forts begun by us in those countries were left unfinished, and therefore could be of no use to them, and which, if we had kept the Carrying-place, we might have finished, and given them ftill hopes of our being able to defend.

But defpairing of our being further ferviceable to them, those Iroquois; who were before our friends, and fome of the others, have indeed deferted us, and the confequences of fuch their junctions with the French, was foon after felt in the loss of Fort George on Lake Eacrament.

The fine country on the Mohawk's river down to Albany, was by this step left open to the ravages of the enemy, and an easy passage opened to the French and their Indians into the provinces of Pensylvania and New Jersey, by the way of Susquehana and Delaware rivers, which were before covered by our settlements on the Mohawk's river, and the Six Nations.

I thall here give the best description of the Indians, their way of living, Ge. in my power.

It is difficult to guels what may be the number of the Indians fcattered up and down our back fettlements; but, if their own account be true, they amount to many thousands. Be this, however, as it will, they are not to be feared merely on account of their numbers; other circumstances confpire to make them formidable: The English inhabitants, though numerous, are extended over a saft tract of land, 500 leagues in length on the

oked

ry to

d no

ce at f we

Layu-

their

thole

could

kept

, and

end.

ble to

iends.

d us,

s with

E Fort

down

avages

to the

f Pen-

ulque-

re co-

river,

he Innumber

ack fet-

e, they

owever,

rely on ces con-

lich in-over a

OD LAR

fea-

r.

lea-shore, and for the most part have fixed habitations, the ealiest and shortest passages to which, the Indians, by constantly hunting in the woods, are perfectly well acquainted with; and as their way of making war is by fudden attacks upon exposed places, as foon as they have done the mifchief at one place, they retire, and either go home by fome different route, or go to fome diftant place to renew their attacks. If they are purfued, it is a chance if they do not enfnare their purfuers; or if that be not the cafe, as foon as they have gained the rivers, fo dexterous are they in the use of their canoes, that they prefently get out of reach. It is to no purpole to follow them to their fettlements; for they can, without much difadvantage, quit their old habitations, and betake themfelves to new ones: Add to this, that they can be fuddenly drawn together from any diffance, as they can find their fubfiftence in travelling from their guns.

No people on earth have a higher fenfe of liberty, or ftronger affection for their relations: when offended; they are the most implacable vindictive encuries on earth; for no diffance of place, or space of time, will abate their referement; but they will watch every opportunity of revenge, and when fuch opportunity offers, they revenge themselves effectually:

They will fooner facrifice their own lives for the fake of liberty, than humble themfelves to the arbitrary control of any perfon whatfoever. In battle they never fubmit, and will die rather than be / taken prifoners.

Our late transactions in America testify, that the friendship of the Indians is to be defired, and the only way to maintain a friendly correspondence with them, is by making such propositions to them as will fecure their liberties, and be agreeable to their expectations; and not only by keeping these propolitions

grea

ing

aver

cove

one

be w

cove

but a

of a

by th

have them

whic

come upon

well

they

holes

when

fo tha

into o

alarm

late ;

on the

from

avoid cades.

exerci

back -

fome

ry by

down

the en

behin

great

Th

W

A

94

propositions inviolable as well in time of peace as in time of war, but also renewing our treaties with them from time to time; for they are very jealous and tenacious of an affront or neglect. They are very proud, and love to be efteemed. In time of peace, they live upon what they get of the white people, for which they barter skins, furs, & Their clothing, and every thing elfe they want, such as arms, they get in the same manner. In war-time, they live upon what they can procure by their gun, and, if that fails, upon roots, fruits, herbs, and other vegetables of the natural produce of the earth.

They have never the forefight to provide neceffaries for themselves; they look only to the prefent moment, and leave to-morrow to provide for They cat of every wild beaft which they itfelf. kill, without distinction. They always prefer game to vegetables; but when they cannot get venifon, they live on roots, fruits, and herbs. They deftroy a great deal of meat at a time, when they have it in their power, and when they leave any, be it never fuch a great quantity, it is ten to one if any of them will take the trouble to carry a pound of it, but will rather leave it behind them ; yet, notwithstanding this extravagance, fuch is their tempers, and they are fo inured to hardships, that if they cannot conveniently get at food, they can, and actually do faft fometimes for near a week together, and yet are as active as if they lived regularly. All their. fpare time is taken up in contriving fchemes to fucceed in their intended expeditions. They can never be taken in a pursuit by any European. They will travel feventy miles a-day; and continue for months together, as I have reason to know from experience; and they are fure to bring their purfuers into a fnare, if they are not wary, and have fome Indians on their fide to beat the bulhes. When they are overtaken with fleep, they light a

2 23

with ?

lous

are

ie of lite

heir

h as ime,

gun,

other

ecef-

pre-

e for

they

game

iifon,

ftroy

tit in never

them

, but

Itand-

, and

annot

lly do

d yet

their.

to fuc-

n ne-

They

ue for

from

pur-

have

uthes.

ight a

great

great fire, which prevents the wild bealts from falling upon them; for wild bealts have a natural averfion to fire: nor is it eafy for an enemy to difcover them in this condition; for the country is one continued tract of thick wood, overgrown with bruth-wood, fo that you cannot fee the fire till you be within a few yards of it. They have nothing covering them from the inclemency of the weather but a blanket put upon them, fomething in the fhape of a Highlander's plaid.

And further, to prevent their being long observed by their pursues, or to be seen too soon when they have a mind to attack any plantation, they paint themselves of the same colour with the trees among which they hide themselves.

When they are to attack a plantation they never come out till night, and then they rufh inftantly upon the farms, &c. and deftroy every thing, as well men, women, and children, as beafts; then they fall to plunder, and return to their lurkingholes till another opportunity of plunder bappens, when they renew their attack in the fame manner; fo that if fome method is not taken to draw them into our intereft, our colonies will be in a continued alarm, and the country will foon become defolate; for no body will venture their lives to fettle on the back parts, unlefs the Indians are our friends.

The Indian manner of fighting is quite different from that of other nations. They industriously avoid all open engagements; and, belides ambufcades, their principal way is bush-fighting, in the exercise of which they are very dexterous; for the, back country being one continued wood, except fome few spots cleared for the purpose of husbandry by our back settlers, the Indians squat themselves down behind the trees, and fire their muskets at the energy; if the energy advances, then they retreat behind other trees, and fire in the same manner, and as they are good markimen, they never fire in vain, whereas their purfuers feldom hit.

and

96

Notwithstanding the polite schemes of France are nearly brought to a period, yet if the Indians are not fatisfied with the conclusion of a peace betwixt us and the French as to America; I mean, unless they are fairly dealt with, we shall gain but little by all our conquests; for it is the friendship of the Indians that will make Canada valuable to us. We have already more lands than we are able to manage; but the advantage, nay the necessity of keeping Canada, I have already shown; and therefore I shall go on with my account of the Indians.

When last in London, I remember to have heard some coffee-house politicians, chagrined at the devaltation they made on our back fettlements, fay, that it would be an easy matter to root out the favages by clearing the ground. I answer, that the task may feem eafy to them, but the execution of fuch a scheme on such a tract of land, would be so difficult, that I doubt whether there are people enough in Great Britain and Ireland to accomplish it in a hundred years time, were they to meet with no oppolition; but where there is fuch a fubtle enemy to deal with, I am afraid we should make but little progrefs in reducing the Indians, even allowing the country to be all cleared, as there are hills and other fastnesses to which the Indians can retire, and where they would greatly have the better of every attempt to diflodge them. The only way I would advise, is to keep friends with the Indians, and endeavour to prevail on them to fettle in the fame manner as the planters do, which they will be the more cafily brought to, if the French are excluded from Cana-For, notwithstanding their wandering way of da. life, I have the greatest reason to believe they have no diflike to an easy life. And as they will have tio temptations to murder, as they had when firred up by they w WI

coloni

of peo

quite literat of alm But civiliz vices. cient ] bow, comm Strang confide they w happy innoce Aructe trines ( of the what w The with of an ear with th lands t entered the En of the make t fome y offices.

treated

terent

perty

indigen

up by the subjects of his Most Christian Majesty, they will soon become useful members of society.

When first the English arrived in the American colonics, they found the woods inhabited by a race of people, uncultivated in their manners, but not quite devoid of humanity. They were strangers to literature, ignorant of the liberal arts, and destitute of almost every conveniency of life.

But if they were unpractifed in the arts of more civilized nations, they were alfo free from their vices. They feemed perfect in two parts of the ancient Perfian education, namely, fhooting with the bow, and fpeaking truth. In their dealings they commonly exchange one commodity for another. Strangers themfelves to fraud, they had an entire confidence in others. According to their abilities, they were generous and hofpitable. Happy, thrice happy had they been, if, ftill preferving their native innocence and fimplicity, they had only been inftructed in the knowledge of God, and the doctrines of Christianity ! Had they been taught fome of the more uleful parts of life, and to lay afide what was wild and favage in their manners !

They received the English, upon their first arrival, with open arms, treated them kindly, and shewed an earnest defire, that they should fettle and live with them. They freely parted with some of their lands to their new-come brethren, and chearfully entered into a league of friendship with them. As the English were in immediate want of the affistance of the Indians, they, on their part, endeavoured to make their coming agreeable. Thus they lived for some years, in the mutual exchange of friendly offices. Their houses were open to each other; they treated one another as brothers. But by their different way of living, the English soon acquired property, while the Indians continued in their former indigence; hence the former found they could easily

re in

rance

dians

e be-

nean,

n but

Idfhip

ble to

e able lity of

there-

ians.

heard

ne des, fay,

he fa-

he task f such

o diffi-

nough

t in a no op-

enemy t little

ing the

d other where

ttempt

vife, is as the

cafily

Cana

way of

ry baye

H have

firred

of the poor forbids

hockin

Englif

fered

on. ] called;

Aronge

come a

at liber

country

to civil till at 1

themfel

most in thele tr

Indians

of the very un

eafily b

by our

where t

man ha

in favo

and is i

conceiv

one, bu nation, converti doned. religion exaggen the trad treaties. If to ties, the live without the latter, and therefore became lefs anxious about preferving their friendship. This gave a check to that mutual hospitality that had hitherto fublished between them; and this, together with the decrease of game for hunting, arising from the inerease of the English fettlements, induced the Indians to remove further back into the woods.

Ate

98

From this time the natives began to be treated as a people of whom an advantage might be taken. As the trade with them was free and open, men of loofe and abandoned characters engaged in it, and practifed every fraud. Before the coming of the white people, the Indians never tafted fpirituous liquors, and, like most barbarous nations, having once tasted, became immoderately fond thereof, and had no longer any government of themselves. The traders availed themselves of this weakness; instead of carrying our cloaths to cover the naked favages, they carried them rum, and thereby debauched their manners, weakened their constitutions, introduced diforders unknown to them before, and in short corrupted and ruined them.

The Indians finding the ill effects of this trade, began recomplain. Wherefore laws were made, proluming any from going to trade with them without a little from the Governor, and it was alfo made actist for the Indians to flave the cafks, and fpill the rum was brought among them; but this was a little purpole is the Indians and the little comresolve of themfelves to do the table, and were while prevalled upon for to complete this law; and the character more the state of trade, by then of the sharacter more the state of trade, and then employing under them which is a state, and then employing under them when the states ported hither from Bessie and the second when they feat with goods into the states are to trade an their account. These states are not the trade and ne lefs is gave itherto ith the the inhe In-treated taken. men of it, and of the rituous having thereof, mfelves. aknefs; e naked eby deonftitubefore, is trade, de, prowithout lo made nd fpill his was le comid were We salud Station 1 de, and honour CARES . ion lie? trade an a reci of the law, executed unheard-of villanies upon the poor natives, committing crimes which modely forbids to name, and behaving in a manner too shocking to be related.

99

At every treaty which the Indians held with the English, they complained of the abuses they fuffered from the traders, and trade as then carried on. They requested that the traders might be recalled; but all to no purpose. They begged, in the ftrongeft terms, that no rum might be fuffered to come among them; but were only told they were at liberty to fpill all the rum brought into their country. At this time, little or no pains was taken to civilize or instruct them in the Christian religion, till at length the conduct of the traders, profeffing themselves of that religion, gave the Indians an almost invincible prejudice against it. Besides, as thefe traders travelled among diffant nations of the Indians, and were in fome fort the reprefentatives of the English, from them the Indians formed a very unfavourable opinion of our whole nation, and eafily believed every mifrepresentation made of us by our enemies. There are inflances in hiftory, where the virtue and difinterested behaviour of.one man have prejudiced whole nations of barbarians. in favour of the people to whom he belonged; and is it then to be wondered at, if the Indiane conceived a rooted prejudice against us, when not one, but a whole fet of men, namely, all of our nation, that they had an opportunity of feeing or conversing with, were perfons of a loose or abandoned behaviour, infincere and faithlefs, without religion, virtue, or morality? No one will thinked exaggerate these matters, who has either known the traders themselves, or who has read the public. treaties

If to this be added, what I find in the late treaties, that they have been wronged in fome of their I 2 lands,

. In

the c dians

carry

innec

firm

thing

of yea

the fu

In

the cl

ca. .

The

vaftly.

and no

73 de

lat. ] little b

in Eng

rather church The

nerally countr

is rock

feverei 10. de

clearer

ter and their f

hotter

terous

countr

blows

Sen 13

I uight

lands, what room will there be any longer to wonder, that we have to little interest with them's that their conduct towards us is of late to much changed, that, inftead of being a fecurity and protection to us, as they have been hitherto, during the feveral wars between us and the French, they are now turned against us and become our enemies, principally on account of the fraudulent dealings and immoral conduct of those heretofore employed in our trade with them, who have brought difhonour upon our religion, and difgrace on our nation? It nearly concerns us, if pollible, to wipe off thefe reproaches, and to redeem our character, which can only be done by regulating the trade.-And this the Indians, with whom the government of Philadelphia levely treated, demanded and expected of us.

At prefent, a favourable opportunity prefents for doing it effectually. All those who were engaged in this trade, are by the prefent troubles removed from it; and it is to be hoped that the legislature will fall upon measures to prevent any such from ever being concerned in it again. This is the only foundation upon which we can expect a lafting peace with the natives. It is evident that a great deal depends upon the perfons who are to be fent. into the Indian country: from these alone the Indians will form a judgment of us, our religion, and manners. If these then who are to be our reprefentatives among the Indians, be men of virtue and integrity, lober in their conversation, honeft in their dealings, and whole practice corresponds with their prefettion, the judgment formed of us will be fayourable : if, on the contrary, they be loofe and profane perfons, men of wicked lives, and profligate morals, we must expect that, among the Indians, our religion will pais for a jeft, and we in general. fur a people faithlefs and delpicable.

WON-

hem

much

i pro-

luring

they

emies,

alings

ployed difho-

ur na-

ipe off

racter,

ade .---

nment

nts for ngaged

emoved

illature ch from

he only

lafting a great

be fent

the In-

on, and

r repre-

tue and in their

th their

U be fa-

ofe and

rolligate

Indians, general

I might

I might here add fome observations respecting the commodities proper to be carried among the Indians, in kind as well as quality, with a method of carrying on the trade, fo as to preserve the native innocence of the Indians, and at the fame time confirm them immoveable in our interest; but these things, as well as some remarks I have in a course of years made upon the Indians, I shall leave for the subject of fome future history.

I shall now proceed to give a concife account of the climates, produce, trade, &c. of North America. And first,

5 132 C

Store W

OF NEW-ENGLAND.

The province of New-England appears to be vaftly extensive, being about 400 miles in length, and near 300 in breadth, fituated between 69 and 73 deg. W. long. and between 41 and 46 deg. N. lat. It was first fettled by the Independents, a little before the commencement of the civil wars in England: They transported themselves thither, rather than they would communicate with the church of England.

The lands next the fea in New-England, are generally low, and the foil fandy; but farther up the country, it rifes into hills, and on the north-east it is rocky and mountainous: The winters are much feverer here than in Old England, though it lies 9 or 10 degrees more fouth, but they have ufually a clearer fky and more fettled weather, both in winter and fummer, than in Old England; and though their fummers are fhorter, the air is confiderably botter while it lasts. The winds are very boifterous in the winter feason, and the north wind blowing over a long tract of frozen and uncultivated countries, with feveral fresh water lakes, makes it 11:025 exceflive 12

IOL

tride

and,

whe

Weed

ftore

flow

in re

TI :

and

than

the c vince

weft,

it lyi

in Ne

tution

vania

falt

whea

dian

Gc.

impo

ram, clothi

of_th York

flax,

If

of its

prope

with

with

hon.

The .

2 2

excellive cold. Their rivers are fometimes congealed in a night's time: the climate is generally healthful, and agreeable to English constitutions.

The fruits of Old England come to great perfection here, particularly peaches, which are planted trees; and we have commonly 1200 or 1400 fine peaches on fuch a tree at one time; hay, of the fruit of one fingle apple tree, in one feason, nine barrels of cyder have been made. English wheat I find does not thrive here, within 40 or 50 miles of Bofton; but farther up in the country, they have it in great plenty, and I think it comes to the fame perfection as in Britain. Now, why wheat thould not grow near this city, I confess I can affign no. reason that will fully fatisfy the reader's curiofity. The conjectures upon it are various: Some venture to fay, that it was occasioned by the unjust perfecution of the Quakers, the Independents having vented their spleen against them in a way the most rigorous, and in flat contradiction to the laws of Christianity. All other grain but wheat thrives in this place with great fuccels; in particular Indian corn, one grain whereof frequently produces. 1200, and fometimes 2000 grains. This corn is of three different colours, viz, blue, white, and yellow:

Of NEW.YORK.

The fituation of this province is between 72 and 76 welt long. and between 41 and 44 north lat. being about 200 miles in length, and 100 miles in breadth. The lands, in the Jerleys and fouth part of New York, are low and flat; but 28 you alcend 20 or 30 miles up Hudfon's river, the country is rocky and mountainous. The air is much spilder here in winter than in New England, and informner it is pretty much the fame. The produce and

con-

crally

ns. . .

erfec-

fine

nine

wheat

y have fame hould

gn no.

iofity.

e ven-

unjult s hav-

ay the

c laws

hrives

ar In-

oduces.

, and

72 and

rth lat.

iles in

th part

afcend

spilder

Num.

ce and

tride of New York and the Jerfeys confift in cattle, and a good breed of horfes. They have plenty of wheat and other grain, fuch as Indian corn, buckweed, oats, barley, and rye. It abounds also with ftore of fish: they fupply the fugar islands with flower, falt beef, pork, falt fish, and timber planks, in return for the produce raifed there.

OF PENSYLVANIA.

The extent of this colony is 200 miles in length and 200 miles in breadth. The foil is much better than in Jerfey, chiefly confifting of a black mould : the country rifes gradually as in the adjacent provinces, having the Apalachian mountains on the weft, and is divided into fix counties. The air, it lying in the 40 deg. of N. lat is near the fame as in New York, and very healthy to English constitutions. The produce and merchandife of Penfylvania confifts in horfes, pipe flaves, leef, porkfalt fifh, fkins, furs, and all forts of grain; viz. wheat, rye, peale, oats, barley, buck-weed, Indian corn, Indian peafe, beans, pot-ashes, war, Gc. and in return for these commodities, they import from the Carribee islands, and other places, rum, lugar, melaffes, filver, uegroes, fait, and clothing of all forts, hardware, &c. The nature of the foil in Penfylvania, the Jerfeys, and New York, is extremely proper to produce hemps fax, Erc.

If the government of Penfylvania, fince the death of its first proprietor, William Penn, had takens proper methods to oblige the traders to deal justive with the Indians, whole tempers, when conferrated with referitment, are more favage than the hungry him, these difasters might have been, in a good dea grief prevented.

103

Lintend

104

I intend to conclude this argument in a few words, and fhall endeavour to do juftice on both fides, by adhering firicitly to truth. Know, therefore, that within thefe late years, the Indians being tolerably acquainted with the nature of our commerce, bave detected the roguery of fome of the traders, whereupon they lodged many and grievous complants to Col. Weifer, the interpreter between them and the Englifh, of the injurious and fraudulent ufage they had received for feveral years backwards from white people, who had cheated them out of their fkins and furs, not giving them one quarter their value for them.

-Likewife they remonstrated, that whereas hunting was the chief way or art they ever had to earn a livelihood by; game was now become very fearce, because the whites practifed it so much on their ground, deftroying their prey. Colonel Weifer, their interpreter, advised them to bring down their skins and furs to Philadelphia themfelves, promifing that he would take proper care, to fee their goods vended to their advantage. Whereupon they did fo, in purfuance of his inftructions, and finding it their interest, resolved to continue in the way he had chalked out for them; for now they were supplied with every thing they wanted from the merchants fliops, at the cheapest rates. And thus it plainly appeared to the Indians, that they had been long imposed on by the traders, and therefore they were determined to have no more dealings with them. This conduct and fhynels of the Indians was very difagreeable to feveral gentlemen of the province, who were nearly interested in that fpecies of commerce.

Accordingly, in the year 1753 and 1754, fome of the traders had the affurance to renew their friendship with them, when, instead of remitting them cloaths and other necessaries as had been ulual.

'ulua

infid

rum

were

In th

QUOI

they

and

bauc

kille

to th

Eng

their

neit

farth

they

for e fame

ficer

Tere

reald

tion

of N

Pent

lefs

pron

furý

T

and

flat

rife

tain

prov

and

voras

fides;

efore;

z tole-

nerce.

aders.

com-

them

dulent -

wards

out of uarter

hunt

) earn;

very

ch on lolonel.

bring:

them-

are to

Vhere-

Aions.

nue in r now

vanted

rates.

s, that more ,

zentlefted in fome

their

anting

been

ufual,

100

welt

ulual, and were most proper for them, they, with infidious purposes, carried them large quantities of rum in fmall calks, which they knew the natives were foud of, under colour of giving it them gratis. In this manner were the favages inveigled into liquor by the whites, who took the opportunity, while they were intoxicated, of going off with their fkine: and furs; but the natives, recovering from the debauch, foon detected the villany, and, in revenge, killed many of the traders, and went directly over to the French, who encouraged them to flay every English perfon they could meet with, and destroy their houses by fire, giving them orders to fpare neither man, woman, nor child. Belides, as a farther incitement to diligence in this bloody talk, they promifed the favages a reward of 15%. Sterling, for every fealp they should take, on producing the fame before any of his Most Christian Majesty's afficers, civil or military.

Thus our perfidious enemies infligated those unreasonable barbarians to commence acts of depredation, violence, and murder, on the feveral inhabitants of North America in 1754, and more especially in Penfylvania, as knowing is to be the most defenceless province on the continent. This confideration prompted the favage race to exhaust their malicious fury on it in particular.

Of MARYLAND.

This country extends about 150 miles in length, and 137 miles in breadth. The lands are low and flat next the fea; towards the heads of rivers they rife into hills, and beyond lie the Apalachian mountains, which are exceeding high. The air of this province is excellive hot fome part of the fummer, and equally cold in the winter, when the northweft wind blows; but the winters are not of fo long duration here as in fome other colonies adjoining to it. In the fpring of the year, they are infefted with thick heavy fogs that rife from the low lands, which render the air more unhealthy for English conftitutions; and hence it is, that, in the aforefaid feason, the people are conftantly afflicted with agues.

106

The produce of this country is chiefly tobacco, planted and cultivated here with much application, and nearly the fame fuccefs as in Virginia, and their principal trade with England is in that article. It alfo affords them most forts of the grain and fruits of Europe and America.

Of VIRGINIA.

The extent of this province is computed to be 260 miles in length, 220 miles in breadth, being mostly low flat land. For one hundred miles up the country, there is fcarce a hill or a ftone to be feen. The air and feafons (it lying beween 36 and 39 of north lat.) depend very much on the wind, as to heat and cold, dryneis and moisture. The north and north-welt winds are very nitrous and marcing cold, or elfe boifterous and ftormy: The fouth and fouth-east winds, hazy and fultry hot. In winter they have a fine clear air, which renders it very pleafant : The frofts are fhort, but fometimes to very tharp that rivers are frozen over three miles broad. Snow often falls in large quantities, but feldom continues above two or three: days at moft.

The foil, though generally fandy and fhallow, produces tobacco of the best quality, in great abundance. The people's usual food is Indian corn made into hommony, boiled to a pulp, and comes the nears the buttered wheat of any thing I can compare hogs wild much from litia, and Their moun tive r childu flaves

 $\mathbf{Th}$

lengtl here a

feen

way

where

miles

and c lachia

tant f

are ve

per fo

grain

fectio

perly

wine,

of rice

nies al

weigh and to

with a

Which

DACE

f fo

ad-

are

the

for

the

fled

cco,

ion,

heir

It

o be

be-

niles

e to

1 36

the

ture.

trous

my:

ultry hich

but

over

uan-

three

llow,

bun

made

, the

Date

107

ter

pare it to. They have horses, cows, sheep, and hogs in prodigious plenty, many of the last running wild in the woods. The regulation kept here is much the fame as in New England; every man from 16 to 60 years of age is inlisted into the militia, and mustered once a-year at a general review; and four times a-year by troops and companies.— Their military complement, by computation, amounts to about 30,000 effective men; the collective number of the inhabitants, men, women and children, to 100,500, and including fervants and flaves, to twice that number.

Of CAROLINA.

This colony is computed to extend 660 miles in length; but its breadth is unknown. The lands here are generally low and flat, and not a hill to be feen from St. Augustine to Virginia, and a great way beyond. It is mostly covered with woods, where the planters have not cleared it. About 100 miles west of the coast, it shoots up into eminences, and continues to rife gradually all along to the Apalachian mountains, which are about 160 miles diftant from the ocean. The north parts of Carolina are very uneven, but the ground is extremely proper for producing wheat; and all other forts of grain that grow in Europe, will come to great perfection here. The fouth parts of Carolina, if properly cultivated, might be made to produce filk, wine, and oil. This country yields large quantities of rice, of which they yearly thip off to other colonies about 80,000 barrels, each barrel containing 400 weight; belides they make abundance of tar, pitch, and turpentine. They carry on also a great trude with deer-fkins, and furs, to all places of Europe, which the English receive from the Indians in barter for guns, powder, knives, scissars, looking-glasse, beads, rum, tobacco, coarse cloth, scc,

The English chapmen carry their pack-horfes five or fix hundred miles into the country, weft of Chareftown; but most of the commerce is confined within the limits of the Creek and Cherokee nations, which do not lie above 350 miles from the coast. The air is very temperate and agreeable both summer and winter. Carolina is divided into two distinct provinces, viz. North and South Carolina.

Of NOVA.SCOTIA.

This place extends about 600 miles in length, and 450 in breadth: The air is pretty much the fame as in Old England : The foil is, for the most part, barren; but where it is cleared and cultivated, it affords good corn and pasture. Here is fine timber, and fit for building, from whence pitch and tar may be extracted. Here also hemp and flax will grow, fo that this country will be capable of furnishing all manner of naval stores. It abounds likewife with deer, wild fowl, and all forts of game. On the coast is one of the finest cod-fisheries in theworld. European cattle, viz. fheep, oxen, fwine, horfes, &c. they have in great abundance. The winters are very cold, their frofts being tharp and of a long duration : Their fummers are moderately hot; to that the climate, in the main, feems to be agreeable to English constitutions.

Of CANADA.

I shall close the description of the American colonics with a short account of the soil and produces of French Canada. Its extent is, according to their map, 1800 miles in length, and 1200 in bandth. The soil, in the low lands near the river St. Lanrence, it fo f above About mount dians ever, weed, fwine, kind d of the long d The fu climate ropean vinces It is at Queb England paquetwe faile French we were biscuit; our allo few clos major p all weat laft, to fixth of and hard

period formers

hore, as

French

until the

Talty tho

TO NO

affes,

s five

ft of fined

ions.

coaft.

fum-

ngth,

h the moft ltivat-

is fine

ch and

d flax

ble of

ounds

game:

in the-

fwine,

The

rp and

erately

s to be n colo-

reduce to their

t. Len

TENE

100

rence, will indeed raife wheat; but, withal, I found it fo fhallow, that it would not produce that grain, above two years, unlefs it was properly manured. About 20 miles from the faid river, fo hilly and mountainous is the country, that nothing but Indians and wild ravenous beafts refort there. However, they have plenty of rye, Indian corn, buckweed, and oats; likewife of horfes, cows, fheep. fwine, &c. But I have observed that fruits of any kind do not come to fuch perfection here as in fome of the English settlements, which is owing to the long duration and excellive cold of their winters. The fummer is fhort, and temperately hot. The climate, in general, is healthy and agreeable to European conflitutions. And fo much for the provinces in North America.

It is now high time to return to the embarkation at Quebec. Five hundred of us, being to be fent to England, were put on board La Renomme, a French paquet-boat, Captain Dennis Vitree commander : we failed under a flag of truce, and though the French behaved with a good deal of politenels, yet we were almost starved for want of provisions. One bifcuit, and two ounces of pork a-day, being all our allowance, and half dead with cold, having but few clothes, and the veffel being fo fmall, that the major part of us were obliged to be upon deck in all weathers. After a passage of fix weeks, we at laft, to our great joy, arrived at Plymouth, on the, fixth of November 1756. But these our troubles and hardfhips were not, as we expected, put to a period for fome time ; fcruples arifing to the Commilliries and Admiral there, about taking us on shore, as there was no cartel agreed on between the Trench and English, we were confined on board, until the determination of the Lords of the Admiralty thought be known; lying there in a miterable condition

THE LIFE, Stc.

IIO

condition feven or eight days, before we received orders to difembark, which, when we were permitted to do, being ordered from thence, in different parties, to Totnefs, Kingfbridge, Newton Bufhel, Newton Abbot in Devonshire, I was happy in being quartered at Kingfbridge, where I met with fuch civility and entertainment as I had for a long time been a stranger to

1211

to

nat

tra

place,

ftrates

June .

my fla

rative.

fale in

of fubi

compl:

their c

town-o

of Jud

me con

ty of c

this fci

upon

chants

withou

poratic were g fore I fon ar whole licty bu and in ing ad wat bu

A DIS-

In about four months we were again ordered to Plymouth-dock, to be draughted into other regiments; where, on being inspected, I was, on account of the wound I had received in my hand, difcharged as incapable of further fervice; and was allowed the fum of fix fhillings to carry me home to Aberdren, near the place of my nativity. But finding that fum infufficient to fublift me half the way, I was obliged to make my application to the honourable genelemen of the city of York, who, on confidering my neceffity, and reviewing my manuscript on the transactions of the Indians, herein before mentioned, thought proper to have it printed for my own benefit, which they cheatfully fubfcribed unto. And after disposing of several of my books through the faire, I took the first opportunity of going in quest of my relations at Aberdeen. where I received very barbarous ulage and ill treatment, occasioned by complaining against the illegal practice of kidnapping, in the beginning of my book, which I shall hereafter finally discribe in the totlowing pages.

A DISCOURSE ON KIDNAPPING:

[ 111 ]

cived ermitferent

ushel,

with long

red to regi-

on ac-

d. dif-

d was

. But alf the

to the

, who,

ny ma-

herein print-

lly fub-

of my pportu-

erdeen.

and ill

inft the

ning of cribe in

A DIS.

With proper directions for tradefmen and others, to avoid flavery, when transported from their native country, by the instigation of persidious traders.

O make the subject of the ensuing pages the more accurate and diftinct, I shall, in the first place, begin with the proceedings of the Magiftrates of Aberdeen, when I arrived in that town in June 1758, after having completed the period of my flavery, as related in the beginning of this narrative. No fooner had I offered this little work to fale in that town, which was then my only means of fubfiktence, than I was arraigned in a fummary complaint at the inftance of the Magistrates, before their own tribunal, and carried by three or four town-officers to the bar of that tremendous Court of Judicature. The complaint exhibited againft me contained in fubftance, "That I had been guilt ty of caufing print, and of publishing and dispersing this fourrilous and infamous libel, reflecting greatly upon the characters and reputations of the merchants in Aberdeen, and on the town in general, without any ground or reason; whereby the corporation of the city, and whole members thereof, were greatly hurt and prejudged; and that therefore I ought to be exemplarily punished in my perfon and goods ; and that the faid book, and whole copies thereof, ought to be feized and publich burnt." Such was the tenor of the complaint; and instead of allowing me an opportunity of rates ing advice, in time to prepare for my defences was hunded before them, and concuffed by three

Su

deen

forth mann

they I

of the

eft ab

and d

by wh afterw

fo irre

were

melan

have a tection

fet fo

of his

fued

who n flictin

is a v

youthi ber for carried

a who

numbe

collect before

all the

had th

town,

which

the hi in the

pofitio

are co

men o

Such

112

of imprisonment to make a declaration of a very extraordinary cast, and dictated by themselves; bearing, that "I had no ground for advancing and uttering the calumnies mentioned in my book against the merchants in Aberdeen, but the fancy I took in my younger years, which stuck on my memory, though I did not find that I had reason so to do; nor did I believe these these things to be true; and that I was willing to contradict, in a public manner, what I had so advanced," &c.

After eliciting this declaration, the Magistrates, without adjournment, " appointed me to find caution to fland trial on the faid complaint at any time when called for, and imprifoned till performance; and ordered all the copies of my books to be lodged in the clerks chamber." My books were accordingly feized, and myfelf .committed to the cultody of the town-officers, who conducted me to jail, and where I must have lain till next day, had not my landlord bailed me out. Nex forenoon the Magistrates proceeded to fentence on their own complaint; and accordingly they " ordained the offensive leaves of all the copies of the faid book to be cut out, and publicly burnt at the market-crofs by the hands of the common hangman, the townofficers attending and publishing the cause of the burning; that I should give in a figned declaration of much the fame tenor with the former; begging pardon of the magistrates and merchants in the most submissive manner, and defiring this my recantation to be inferted in the York newspapers, or any other newspapers they should think proper; and also ordained me to be incarcerated in the tolbooth, till I granted the faid declaration; and amerciated me in ten shillings Sterling, under the pain of imprisonment; and immediately' after to remove out of town."

VETY

lves; g and book incy I

emory,

; nor

I was

vhat I

trates.

cau-

it any form-

sks to s were

to the

me to

, had

enoon

ir own

ed the

ook to

t-crofs

town-

of the

aration

bcg-

ants in his my papers,

roper;

he tol-

; and

er the fter to

Such

Such was the fentence of the Magistrates of Aberdeen against me, every particular of which was forthwith put in execution in the most rigorous manner. Had these judges had the least reflection; they must have been conscious, that, in every step of their procedure, they were committing the groffeft abufe. The complaint was made by their order and direction, and ferved at their own inftigation, by which means they were first the Accusers, and afterwards the Condemners. The fubject of it was to irrelevant, that they must have been fentible they were profecuting an innocent man, for relating the melancholy particulars of his life, which ought to have rendered him rather an object of their protection, than of their malice. The facts he had fet forth in his book, relating to the original of his misfortunes, were fo flagrant, that, had he fued for it, he was entitled to redrefs against the authors of his miferies, from those very Magistrates who now had the cruelty to aggravate them, by inflicting additional hardfhips. To pretend ignorance is a very lame excuse. He must have been a very youthful Magistrate in 1758, who could not remember fome circumstances of a public branch of trade carried on in 1744. It is inconceivable, that, of a whole bench of Magistrates, no lefs than fix in number, not one was of an age capable of recollecting what had happened only fourteen years before; nor is it to be prefumed, that, of almost all the inhabitants of Aberdeen, they alone, who had the best access to know the traffic of the towir, fhould remain ignorant of a commerce, which was carried on in the market-places, on the high fireets, and in the avenues to the town. in the most public manner. Neither of these suppolitions will eafly gain credit. The Magistrates are commonly of fuch an age, and ought to be men of fuch reflection, as to render the first inte K 3 Doffible possible, and the fecond, for the reasons given above, is equally incredible. Every impartial perfon must therefore be perfuaded, that the Magistrates were not unacquainted with that illicit species of trade openly carried on in that city about the year 1744, and prior to that period. To prove that there was such an infamous traffic, 1 appeal to the depositions of several witness, some of whom shared in the calamity by the loss of their children and other relations. These I have subjoined, as they occur in the proof taken on my part, by way of notes to the treatlic.

114

From these vouchers it appears, that the trade of carrying off boys to the Plantations in America, and felling them there as flaves, was carried on at Aberdeen, as far down as the year 1744, with an amazing effrontery. It was not carried on in fecret, or by ftealth, but publicly, and by open violence. The whole neighbouring country were alarmed at it. They would not allow their children to go to Aberdeen, for fear of being kidnapped. When they kept them at home, emiffaries were fent out by the merchants, who took them by vio-Jence from their parents, and carried them off. If a child was amiffing, it was immediately fuspected that he was kidnapped by the Aberdeen merchants; and, upon inquiry, that was often found to be the cale; and to little pains were taken to conceal them, when in the poffession of the merchants, that they were driven in flocks through the town, under the infpection of a keeper, who overawed them with a whip, like to many theep carrying to the flaughter. Not only were these flocks of unhappy children locked up in barns, and places of private confinement, but even the tolbooth and public work-houses were made receptacles for them, and a town-officer employed in keeping them. Partics of worthless fellows, like preis-gange, were

hire boys The

De

A

boyn Pete

a boy

diate

that when

the b belier

of C

that .

a litt

at A

fevera the 1

Willi

poner

his fo

him.

the I

barn a

him;

the D ried a flave.

port,

one I

he do away Willia

Was C

ther f

Dered

215 no

JOHN

hired to patrol the freets, and feize by force fuch boys as feemed proper fubjects for the flave-trade. The practice was but too general. The names of

Depositions of witneffes on the part of Peter Williamson.

ALEXANDER KING depones, That he knew the decealed James Williamson, in Hirnley, in the parish of Aboyne : That the faid James Williamfon had a fon, named Peter Williamson, whom the Deponent knew when he was a boy; and he feeing the faid Peter Williamson immediately at his emitting this deposition, he is very fure that he is the identical Peter Williamson, whom he knew when he was a boy. Depones, That fome years before the battle of Culloden, and, fo far as he remembers, he believes it was upwards of four years before the battle of Culloden, it was the general report of the country, that when the faid Peter Williamson, the Pursuer, was a little boy, going with a clipped head, he was taken at Aberdeen, and carried to Philadelphia, along with feveral other boys. Depones, That, about that time, the Deponent had a conversation with the faid James Williamson concerning his fon Peter, who told the Deponent feveral times, that he came into Aberdeen feeking his fon Peter, but they would not let him near hand him. Depones, That the faid James Williamfon told the Deponent, that his fon Peter was in cuftody in a barn at Aberdeen, and they would not let him speak to him ; and afterwards, the faid James Williamfon told the Deponent, that the merchants of Aberdeen had carried away his fon to Philadelphia, and fold him for a flave. Depones, That he heard in the country by report, that John Elphingfton merchant in Aberdeen, and one Black a merchant there, whether Muses or George he does not remember, did deal in that way of carrying away boys. And further depones, That the faid James Williamfon told him, the Deponent, that his fon Peter was carried away without his confent, and he faw the far ther fundemany falt tears on that account.

given perrates es of year that o the vhom ldren d, as y way trade

erica, on at ith an in fen viowere ildren apped. were ov vioff. If pected hants; be the conceal chants, town, erawed ying to of unaces of

th and

r them,

Par-

WETC

bited

to

but

sith

Dep

Wil

the

him.

mém

fee h

go to over fome

went

barn, curre

that !

of m to go

that thirty

the D

go in refuía

Aboy

her,

deen

and a

Aber

decoy

ticula

to go

barn

Ame

upon

to the

that t

Is

R

to

no lefs than fifteen merchants, concerned in this trade, are mentioned in the proof: And when fo many are fingled out by the witneffes, it is hardly

JOHN WILSON depones, That he knew, and was well acquainted with James Williamfon, in Himley, and with all his children, particularly his fon Peter Williamfon. Depones, That the faid Peter Williamfon having gone to Aberdeen, as the Deponent was informed, he was carried away therefrom to the Plantations; and when his father and friends milled him, they made fearch for him many ways in the country, but could not find him ; and the faid Ismes Williamfon went to Aberdeen in fearch of him, and, upon his return, he told the Deponent, that he had been at Aberdeen feeking his fon Peter, but could not find him, and was informed that he was taken up at Aberdeen, and carried to the Plantations. Deponce, That he believes, when the faid Peter Williamfon was amilling, he was about eight or ten years of age, and was a ftout boy; and the Deponent feeing the faid Peter Williamfon immediately at emitting this depolition, he where that he is the identical perfon whom he knew, wefore he went away, to be James Williamfon's fon, and whe at the faid Peter Williamfon's baptifm.

FRANCIS FRASER of Eindrack, Elq. depones, That, about twenty years ago, he knew the deceased James Williamfon living in Upper Balnacraig, in the parish of Lumphanan, and that he heard the faid James Williamfon lived formerly in Himley, in the parish of Aboyne. Depones, He knew feveral of the faid James Williamfon's children, and he heard it was the practice of fome of the merchants of Aberdeen to kidnap young children, and fend them to the Plantations to be fold for flaves. Depones, He heard in the country, that the faid James Williamfon, or his wife, had gone into Aberdeen, and one of their fons, called Peter Williamson, had followed, and that James Smith, faddler in Aberdeen, had picked the faid Peter; and The Deponent heard he was either not in prifon, or put on board a thip, till the thip failed. Deponce

117%

larly

to be imagined it flould be confined to thefe only, but that they must have omitted many, who were either principals, or abettors and decoys in this infamous

this

n fo

rdly

to

was

, and

lliam-

c was en his

r him

; and

rch of

hat he could

ip at

ponce,

on was

Peter

ofition,

knew,

That,

James arish of

liainfon

e. De.

amfon's

e of the en, and

l lames

en, and

bllowed

picked

a cither

o failed.

Deponce

De-

Depones, It was the voice of the country, that James Williamfon and his wife regretted, or made a clamour for the lofs of their fon, not knowing what was become of him.

ROBERT REID depones, That, to the best of his remembrance, he came to Aberdeen in the year 1740, to fee his fifter; that his fifter proposed to the Deponent to go to a barn, to fee the country boys who were going over to Philadelphia, and to carry home to their parents fome accounts of them ; that the Deponent accordingly went over, and heard mulic and a great noife in faid barn, but the Deponent refused to go in, becaule it occurred to him, that he had heard in his own country that many boys had been decoyed by perticular artifices of merchants (and he has heard John Dirnet named) to go over to America. Depones, That he was told that the number of boys in the faid boy me between thirty and forty. Depones, That, find time after thus, the Deponent's mother refused to allog the Deponent to go into Aberdeen, and mentioned as the reason of this refusal, that the fon of one Williamson, a tenant of Lord Aboyne's, in Hirnley, and who lived within two miles of her, was amiffing."

ISABEL WILSON depones, That the went to Aberedeen in the year 1740, and lived there for feven years and a half, and that the heard it frequently reported in Aberdeen, that many young people of both fexes were decoyed by the artifices of merchants in Aberdeen, particularly John Burnet and John Elphingston, to engage to go over to America. That the once went in a maltbarn to fee one Peter Ley, who had engaged to go to America, and might be about thirty years of age : that, upon that occasion, the faw the barn full of boys and men, to the number of fifty and upwards, as the believes, and that they had a piper amongit them; and that particu-

118

infamous traffic. Some of the withoffes depone, That it was the general opinion, that the Magistrates themfelves had a hand in it. But what exceeds every larly fhe faw two young boys, called Elfmies, whom fhe knew, and who were the fons of a widow-woman there ; the youngeft of whom appeared to her to be about ten years of age, and the eldeft about fourteen years. Depoines, That after fhe left Aberdeen and went back to ber own country, fhe has heard James Williamson, tenant of Lord Aboyne, in the town of Hirnley, frequently complain that a fon of his had been amisfing, and he did not know what became of him.

MARGARET REID depones, That, about the year 1740 or 41, fhe heard that many young boys were decoyed by merchants in Aberdeen, particularly John Burnet, to go over to America; and that, about that time, one Peter Ley, and two brothers of the name of Elimie, who lived in Aboyne, in the Deponent's neighbourhood, were aimming, and were much regretted by their mother, and who were believed to have been carried over to America. Depones, That, in the parish of Aboyne, they were genetally afraid to fend their boys on errands to Aberdeen, for fear they should be carried off. Depones, That the did not know the age of the faid two Elimies, but from their appearance, the one might be ten or twelve, and the other feven or eight years. Depones, That James Williamson, tenant in Hirnley, of Aboyne, had a fon who was amilling, whole name was Peter, and who the Deponent knew very well at that time, and who in the year 1740, might be nine or ten years of age, in the Depanent's opinion; that in that year he was fent into Aberdeen to berunder his aunt's care, his mother being dead : That foon thereafter he was amiffing, and the Deponent has frequently heard his father regret him very much, who went into Aberdeen in fearch of him, this could not find him; and that it was the general opinion of the country, and the opinion of his father alfo, that he was carried over to America.

GEORGE

CYCI

18, t

ing

to V

frien

the

the f

boys

of ye

frequ

by diwith

parti

over

the e

the o

boug

ginia

which

ferve

years

ed, th

Burne

ploye

he kn

tioned

them,

ponen

the y fold to

nent l

prehe

ferve

do, h

month

there

he wa

above

Fro

can

every proof, and is equal to an acknowledgment, is, that, from a book of accounts, recovered on leading the proof, recording the expences laid out

GEORGE JOHNSTON depones, That he was fent over to Virginia by an uncle, to be put under the care of a friend there; that the ship in which he failed was called the Indian Queen, Captain Ferguson commander; and the faid ship failed from Aberdeen, and had above fixty boys on board, under indentures to ferve for a number of years in Virginia :« That, as the Deponent has been frequently informed, many of these boys were engaged by different artifices to enter into the faid indentures, without the confent of their parents ; and the Deponent particularly knows, that there were two brothers went over in the faid thip, to wit, James and William Sheds, the eldest of whom was about fifteen years of age, and the other about fix years; that there two brothers werebought by one John Graham, in Quantigo Creek, in Virginia ; that the eldeft ferved out the time of his indenture, which was five years, and the youngest was adjudged to ferve the faid John Graham until he was twenty-one years of age. Depones, That he has been well informed, that James Abernethy, John Elphingfton, and John Burnet, merchants in Aberdeen, were very much employed in enga' ng boys as aforefaid. Depones, That he knows that lix or feven of the boys before meationed were fold in Virginia to different mafters; one of them, named Thomas Whitehead, was fold to the Deponent's master; that one of them, called James Shed, the youngest of the two Sheds above mentioned, was fold to a planter within three miles of where the Deponent lived ; that he deferted his mafter's fervice; was apprehended, and whipped for fo doing, and adjudged to ferve for a year longer than otherwise he was obliged to do, he having deferted his fervice for the space of the month. Depones, That he knows that in the year 174 5 there came a ship from Aberdeen to Virginia, and the he was particularly acquainted with Thomas Whiteh above mentioned, who, upon recollection, he remember one, rates ecds very n fhe here ; it ten Deck to enant comd not 1740 ed by to ga Peter s lived ere ar, and nerica. ere gerdeen. at the t-from e, and James on who he Dein the he Dent into being he Dem very m, but opinion

LORGE

o, that on one cargo of these unfortunate objects, it appears, that no less than fixty-nine boys and girls were carried over to America along with me, an

of

came over a passenger in that ship, and not in the ship before mentioned; that the faid Thomas Whitehead acquainted the Deponent, that he was engaged by James Abernethy, merchant in Aberdeen, to go to Virginia to ferve there. Depones, That the boys brought over as above, and engaged to ferve in Virginia, are in use to be maintained by their mafters during the time of their fervice; and at the end of their fervice to get 50 s. Sterling, and have no other encouragement. Depones, That during their fervice, they are commonly very harfhly used by their mafters, and kept upon a very coarfe diet, fo that they are often forced to desperate measures, and to make away with themfelves. Depones, That he returned to Britain in the end of the year 1745, and foon thereafter came to Aberdeen ; and that there feveral of the parents of the children that had gone over with him, came to the Deponent, and with great anxiety inquired after their children; and particularly, one Helen Law asked the Deponent about her fon; and at the fame time poured out a great many curfes upon the faid James Abernethy, for decoying young boys, and fending them to America, and particularly her own fon; and that this the did in prefence of the faid James Abernethy. And depones, That the Deponent was fent down by his mafter along with John Spriggs, to bring up the faid Tho-, mas Whitehead, together with feveral others of the boys that came along with him, in order for fale. Depones That he never faw the Purfuer in Virginia, but has good reafon to believe he was there, not only becaufe fome of his nearest relations had told him fo, but that he himfelf had converfed particularly with him, with regard to feveral perfons and places there, of which he gave a just and true account.

ALEXANDER GRIGERSON depones, That he and anether boy (whole name he does not remember) were coming of wh wreck flaves.

coming

feeking kirk of with th they all long wi would a things 4 other b with th perhaps in respe young t That up men, tl alighted were, ty nent, an themfel them, b in three them fa and if v them up about h faid thre nent, an

Marc the had years o and wh Gray m the Pla about ei with ot of whom fuffered the fame fate of being fhipwrecked, and many of them, that of being fold as flaves.

ap-

girls

1115 fhip

1 ac-

ames

ia to

er as to be

fer-

rling,

That

ufed

t, fo nd to turn-

foon

alof

him.

uired

Law

time

es A-

them

that

And

5 ma-

Tho-

boys

pones good

me of

him-

ind to

ajult

nd and

oming

of

After

ing

coming from the mill of Crathy, where they had been feeking their meat, and near to a birch-wood near to the kirk of Crathy, three countrymen on horfeback came up with them, but the Deponent knew none of them; and they asked the Deponent and the other boy that was along with him, if they would go with them, and they would clothe them like gentlemen, and faid very kind things to them; but the Deponent, being elder than the other boy, made answer, That they would not go along with them; for it ftruck the Deponent in the head, that perhaps he and the other boy were to be carried abroad, in refpect of a rumour prevailing in the country, that young boys were carried abroad at that time. Depones, That upon their refusing to go along with the faid three men, they faid they would force them; and thereupon alighted from their horfes; and while the faid three men were tying their horfes to growing trees, he, the Deponent, and the other boy, run away into the wood, and hid themfelves into a thick bush, and the three men followed them, but did not find them, though they paffed by within three yards of them; and the Deponent heard one of them fay, " Go you that way, and I shall go this way, and if we can find them in this bufh, we can eafily take them up." Depones, That he and the other boy flayed about half an hour in the bush, till they found that the faid three men were gone away, and then he, the Deponent, and the other boy, went back to the mill of Crathy.

MARGARET Ross depones, That about 17 years ago, the had a fon, named James Ingram, then about twelve years of age, whom the fent an errand to Aberdeen, and who at that time was taken up by Alexander Gray merchant in Aberdeen, in order to be carried to the Plantations; that he was detained in Aberdeen about eight days, but had liberty to go through the town with other boys, and they used to go in companies beat

MOSTHE LIFE OF

After fuch a demonstration of my veracity, and the maltreatment I had formerly suffered, the reader, it is believed, cannot but reflect with some degree

ing the drum. Depones, That, on Sunday thereafter; the came to the Chapel in the Gallowgate to hear worship, and the faw her fon there, and got hold of him, and carried him home with her to Loanhead, which is about half a mile from Aberdeen. Depones, That the kept her faid fon at home for fome time, until four men came out of Aberdeen for him, in the night-time, while the Deponent and her hufband were in bed, and their fon James lying at their feet. Depones, She knew none of these four men, but they told they were come from the faid Alexander Gray, and wanted to carry the faid James Ingram into Aberdeen. Depones, That when her fon heard them faying fo, he wept and fied tears; and they infifting, cauled him to rife out of bed, and go along with them to Aberdeen; and his father followed them; and the was told by her hufband, they went to Alexander Gray's house. Depones, That next day, the faid John Ingram, her husband (as he informed the Deponent), came into Aberdeen, and met with Alexander Gray, and fought back his fon; who faid to him, That if he would pay feven pounds Scots, for the expence of maintaining his fon while he was with Alexander Gray, in that cafe he should get back his fon; but their circumftances could not allow them to pay the faid feven pounds. Depones, That thereafter fhe came into Aberdeen, and met with Provoit Aberdeen, who was then Provoit of the town, and represented the case to him, and he fent for Alexander Gray, to come to the town-house and speak with the Provoft. Depones, That when he came, the Provost asked him, if he had a boy of the Deponent's with him; to which Alexander Gray answered, that he had a boy, one James Ingram; whereupon the Provoft faid to him. That he did not think it right to take up any perfon's child without confent of parents, to which Alexander Gray answered, that the boy complained that his mother was not good to him; and the Provost replied, degree the m mal f

plied,

and d

where charge

fame 1

Mr. C

Provo

be fou

to go

the the

the Pr

give tl

pay th

when ]

he bei

That 1

back-fi

boys w

an offic

the bo

for fhe

her for fired to

given and the

thirt,

the ker

felf, th

up (as

who w

Depon

into th

ral we went t

there,

and Inc

1 15

, and i, the i fome degree

ter; she vorship, m, and hich is 'hat fhe ur men , while neir fon none of om the d James her fon nd they ng with m; and lexander id John ponent), r Gray, at if he of main-Gray, in circumpounds. een, and oft of the fent for nd fpeak ame, the nt's with t be had voft faid up any o which ined that ovost replied, degree of indignation on the iniquitous fentence of the magistrates of Aberdeen, and commiserate the difmal situation to which I was reduced in consequence of

plied, that a parent could not correct a child out of time. and defired, that the Deponent should get her fon; whereupon Alexander Gray afked, who would pay his charges for maintaining the boy while he had him; at fame time Gray faid, he had given off the boy to one Mr. Copland, in the Gallowgate. Depones, That the Provost fent an officer for Mr. Copland, who could not be found that day; but the Provost defired the Deponent to go home, and return next day to the town-house, and she should get her son. Depones, That, on her return, the Provost sent for Mr. Copland, and ordered him to give the Deponent her fon; and he asked, who would pay the charges of him; and the Provoft replied, that when his father grew rich, he would cut flones for him, he being a stone-cutter to his employment. Depones, That Mr. Copland went along with her to a barn at the back-fide of the town, where her fon and feveral other boys were, the door whereof was open, and James Rofs an officer flanding thereat. Depones, That feveral of the boys came out of the barn, calling to Mr. Copland for floes and other necessaries that they wanted, and her fon came to the door to her, and Mr. Copland defired to take from him a striped waistcoat that he had given him; which was taken from him accordingly. and the Deponent put a plaid about her fon above his thirt, and carried him home with her. Deponce, That the kept her fon at home a confiderable time with herfelf, thereafter he went into Aberdeen, and was taken, up (as the was informed) by one Lunen in Aberdeen. who went over with boys, a trader to the Plantations. Depones, That, before her fon went away, he was put into the tolbooth of Aberdeen, and kept there for feveral weeks by the faid Mr. Lunen; and the Deponent went twice or thrice to the tolbooth, and faw her for there, and gave him her bleffing before he went away, and the never faw him fince. Depones, That when the L 2. WCD

THE LIFE OF THE

flight

nifhe

born

divert

who.

town

Burn

poner

they ferved

upon

that

lowed Mr. I

with

ried h

+ off, a faw, tl

put th

were

above

think

when

ponen

media

to fpe

get le

come

feer le

the D

fon af

town

was to he ha

for hi

sale :

thole

which

5.1901

diverting

of that tyrannical decision. Stript at once of my all, and of my only means of sublistence, branded with the character of a yagrant and impostor, and ftigmatized went into Alexander Gray's shop, who caused first to apprehend her boy, to seek him back, the said Alexander Gray took her by the shoulders, and thrust her out of his shop. Depones, That, at the aforesaid time, when her fon was taken up and carried away, provisions were very dear and scarce, and many were difficulted to get their bread; but the Deponent and her husband were in condition to have maintained her fon, and never confented to his being carried off.—JOHN INGRAM depones, conforms to the faid Margaret his spoule.

WILLIAM JAMIESON depones, That, in fpring 1741, and for fome years before and after, the Deponent refided with his family in the town of Old Meldrum, which he reckons to be twelve computed miles from Aberdeen; that the Deponent had a fon, named John, who was, in the fpring 1741, between ten and eleven years of age; that about that time, the faid John his fon having been amifling from his house, the Deponent was informed by the neighbours in Old Meldrum, the day alter he was amiffing, that they faw a man, whom they faid was a fervant to John Burnet, late merchant in Aberdeen, who was commonly called Bonny John, with the Deponent's faid fon, and two other boys much about the fame age, travelling towards Aberdeen; and that his for would be fent to the Plantations: That, in two or three days after receiving this information, the Deponent went to Aberdeen, where he found the faid John Burnet, who told him that he had feveral boys, but did not know whether the Deponent's fon was amongst them; but faid, that though he was, the Deponent would not get him back, becaufe he was engaged with him; that the Deponent upon this left Mr. Burnet, and went down about the fhore, where he had been informed the boys were out getting the air; that when he came there, he observed a great number of boys, he thinks about 60,

125

of! my randed r, and natized to apexander out of , when ns were i to get were in confentlepones, g 1741, nent reeldrum, es from d John, d eleven John his leponent um, the , whom chant in in, with ch about that his two gr Deponent Burnet, ot know m : but I not get that the nt down the boys here, he bout 60. diverting ftigmatized as fuch in the Aberdeen Journal, banifhed from the capital of the county wherein I was born, and left to the mercy of the wide world, loaded diverting themselves; that they were attended by a man, who, the Deponent was informed by the people of the town, was employed for that purpose by the faid John Burnet; that this man had a horfe-whip, and the Deponent observed him striking the boys therewith when they went out of the crowd., Depones, That he obferved his own fon John amongst these boys, and called upon him; that the boy came up to him, and told him that he would willingly go home with him if he was allowed ; that immediately upon this, the perfon who was Mr. Burnet's overfeer, came up and gave the boy a lash with his whip, and took him by the shoulder, and carried him amongst the reft, and immediately drove them off, and carried them to a barn, where the Deponent faw them locked in by the fore-mentioned overfeer, who put the key in his pocket : that the place where the boys were flanding, when the deponent fpoke with his fon as above deponed on, was on the fhore, and the Deponent thinks, as far diftant from the fore-mentioned barn, as from the Writers Court to the Nether-bow Port; that when the boys were marching up to the barn, the Deponent kept pace with the overfeer, who followed immediately after the boys, entreating of him to get liberty to speak to his fon; who answered him, that he should get leave to fpeak with him by and by when they were come to the barn : but when they came there, the overfeer locked the door as above mentioned, and refufed the Deponent access; that the Deponent never faw his fon after this: that the Deponent, in passing through the town of Aberdeen after his fon was locked up from him, was told by feveral trades-people, and others to whom he had told the ftory of his fon, that it would be in vain for him to apply to the magistrates to get his fon liberate; because some of the magistrates had a hand in those doings, as well as the faid John Burnet ; upon which the Deponent went home. That in fummer 1.3 thereafter at STOTE.

ftate,

2 Civi

than's

boaft

GE

1742,

stabler

merch

might

the fai

along

where

and th

took h

their g

boy w boy b

Black

but the boy af

and gi

were fe

they w

CHN

before

the Ga

there,

the Pla

Mackie

Gallow

him ch

boys lo

and the fent to places

fent aw

and bel

of age,

loaded with all the infamy that malice could invent. What a deplorable fituation this | I could not help confidering myfelf in a more wretched ftate.

thereafter, the Deponent came up to Edinburgh, to take advice what he should do in this matter, being certainly informed by the voice of the country, that the thip on board of which his fon was put, had failed for Maryland about a fortnight or fo after that day when the Deponent was at Aberdeen, and faw his fon as before mentioned. That after the Deponent came up to Edinburgh, he was recommended to the deceased Mr. William Seton, writer to the Signet, who gave him a libelled fummons againft the faid John Burnet, before the Lords of Council and Seffion, for restitution of the Deponent's fon ; that none of the meffengers in Aberdeen would execute the fummons against Mr. Burnet, because they would not difoblige him for any thing the Deponent could give them ; . which obliged the Deponent to fend a meffenger from Old Meldrum to Aberdeen; that the Deponent having inlifted in this fummons, the faid John Burnet applied to the late Earl of Aberdeen, who lent for the Deponent's father, his tenant; and the Deponent's father came and carried him to the houfe of Haddo, where the Earl and John Burnet were at that time ; that, at this meeting, it was agreed, that the faid John Burnet should give the Deponent his bond to reftore his fon to him, within the space of a twelvemonth, under the penalty of 50%. Sterling ; that the Deponent did not get the faid bond, but that the Earl of Aberdeen promifed that he would caufe John Burnet to grant the bond; that the Deponent thinks, to the best of his remembrance, this meeting was in the ead of fummer 1742; that fhortly thereafter, Lord Aberdeen died, and the Deponent having inlifted as a foldier, was fent over to Flanders, where he ferved fome years, and upon his return John Burnet was become bankrupt, and had left the country; and the Deponent knows not whether his fon is dead or alive, having never heard of him fince he was carried from Aberdeen, and never got the bond before mentioned from John Burnet. GEORGE

122

Confcious

d incould tched ftate,

o take minly ip on ryland ponent ioned. he was writer againft cil and t none e fumiot difthem ; * r from having ilied to onent's me and arl and eeting, ive the hin the f. 50%. l bond, would a ponent neeting reafter. inlifted ferved become eponent ginever m, and Burnet. EORGE fate, to be reduced to fubmit to fuch barbarities in a civilized country, and the place of my nativity, than when a captive among the favage Indians, who boaft not of humanity.

GEORGE LESLIE depones, That, about the year 1742, it was the current report, That Hugh Mackie stabler in Aberdeen, was employed by John Burnet merchant in Abendeen for taking up boys, that they might be carried to the Plantations. Depones, That the faid Hugh Mackie, with a gang of five or fix boys along with him, was at the back of the Gallowgate, where the Deponent was working as a majon's fervant, and they observing a boy coming down the street, they took hold of him; but the boy ftruggled and got out of their gripes ; whereupon Hugh Mackie kicked the faid boy with his foot, and turned him into the loch, and the boy being hurt, was confined in the houfe of Harry Black stabler, for eight or ten days, till he recovered ; but the Deponent does not know what became of that boy afterwards. Depones, That he faw a parcel of boys and girls confined in a barn in the Green, before they were fent to the Plantations. Depones, That he believes they were of different ages, from ten to fifteen years.

CHRISTIAN FINLATER depones, That, fome years before the battle of Culloden, Hugh Mackie stabler in the Gallowgate of Aberdeen, and James Wilfon ftabler there, were employed for taking up boys to be fent to the Plantations; and one time the faw the faid Hugh Mackie driving, a parcel of boys before him down the Gallowgate, with a ftaff in his hand, and the has feen him chafing boys in at clofes. Depones, She faw fome boys looking out at the window of a barn in the Green, and the reckons they were kept there till they should be fent to the Plantations ; and the heard there were other - places in town where boys were kept until they floud be fent away: Depones, That, according to ber knowledge and belief, fome of thefe boys would have beenit the years of age, others of them thirteen, and fome mar and fome CIS S of fo

of o

befor

fon,

him :

flair,

opper

nent of the

that t

becon

for hi

he fig

faid P

nent }

fore t

Magil

Peter

and to

figna

that if again

hurrie

than a

his bag

Newca

ingly.

from t

ward

merch

ing yo

ent ag

named

Gario Gray,

in Ab

bit stan

SE- AR

three.

Confcious of my own integrity, and fired with refentment at the indignities poured upon me by this arbitrary decree, I was, by the advice and affiftance of

lefs; and the faw among them, lads from the Highlands of the fize of men, and women alfo; and the boys were generally strapping boys. Depones, That the heard one Mr. Copland in Aberdeen was concerned in employing Hugh Mackie and James Wilfon for the above purpole.

ROBERT BRAND depones, That, about the month of June 1758, he, the Deponent, faw James Thomfon, Dean of Guild's officer, carrying out of George Mackie's houfe (where Peter Williamfon was quartered at that time) a parcel of books, bound or flitched in blue paper; the Deponent does not know the number of them. but James Thomfon had his arms extended full of them. Depones, That thereafter he faw a fervant-maid of George Mackie's coming down flairs of Mr. Mackie's houfe, after the town-officer had come out of it, and the Deponent afked her what was the matter; and fhe anfwered her, that it was the town-officers carrying away Mr. Williamfon's books to the clerks chamber, where Mr. Williamfon was himfelf, and this was the fecond burden of them.

GEORGE MACKIE depones, That two or three of the town-officers came to the Deponent's own house, and he faw them carry away all the copies of the faid pamphlets or books, and the faid Peter Williamfon was along with the officers, and they were carried to the town-house. Depones, That he faw fome of these copies drop by the way, as the officers were carrying them to the town-houfe, but he does not know how many copies were fo dropped, neither did he fee Peter Williamfon take up any of the dropt copies. Depones, That when Peter Williamfon was appointed by the Magistrates to find bail for his appearance to ftand trial on the complaint against him, at the instance of the Dean of Guild and Procurator-fifcal, and when he was put in prifon till he should find the faid bail, he, the faid Peter William-E REAL fon, of some worthy friends, induced to raife a process of oppression and damages against these my judges, before the Court of Session, the supreme tribunal of fon, fent for the Deponent to speak to him, and to bail him: Accordingly the Deponent came up the tolboothflair, and found him confined in that part of the prifon opposite to the door of the court-room, and the Deponent fpoke to the faid Peter Williamfon through the bars' of the door of the place where he was confined; and that the faid Peter Williamson defired the Deponent to become bail for him, and he the Deponent became bail for his appearance before the Magistrates, and he thinks he figned fomething for that purpole, and thereupon the faid Peter Williamson was set at liberty; and the Deponent had him over to his house, and presented him before the Magistrates next day. Depones, That, after the Magistrates had pronounced sentence against the faid Peter Williamson, he came over to the Deponent's house, and told the Deponent, that he had been threatened to fign a paper, obliging himfelf to go out of the town, and that if he did not fign the paper, he was threatened to be again imprifoned; thereafter, the faid Peter Williamfon hurried himfelf away out of the Deponent's house in lefs than a quarter of an hour, leaving behind him fome of his baggage, which he defired to be fent after him to Newcaille, and which the Deponent fent to him accordingly. Depones, That he was an inhabitant of Aberdeen from the year 1740, and that about the year 1741, downward to the year 1744, it was a cultom for feveral of the merchants of Aberdeen, to carry on a trade of transporting young boys and women to the Plantations, of different ages. Depones, That he knew the perfons afternamed were concerned in that way of trade, viz. George Garioch, John Elphingston, John Burnet, Alexander Gray, Lewis Gordon, and Andrew Logie, all merchants in Aberdeen, and James Smith faddler there.

JAMES RATTRAY depones, That fome more than three years ago, the Purluer, Peter Williamson, was in Aberdeen, the seas of the state of the st this tance

hlands were d one loying pofe.

month mfon, ackie's t that ue pathem. them. them. aid of ackie's ackie's and the he ang away where fecond of the le, and he faid fon was to the iefe cog them v many er Wils, That giftrates he comof Guild rifontill Williamfon of justice. And as the Lord Ordinary was pleafed to allow both parties a proof at large, under the fanction of his authority, I ventured to revisit the city

Aberdeen, and being carried before the Magistrates by the town-officers, the Deponent, as he underflood Peter Williamfon was a stranger, having been several times in company with him before that day, he went into the court-house, where he heard the clerk and some of the Magistrates, but cannot particularly fay which of them, challenge the faid Peter Williamfon for felling and diftributing the pamphlet libelled, reflecting upon the merchants of Aberdeen as Kidnappers, and that they uled very rough language to the faid Peter Williamfon, but he does not remember the expressions, not having given great attention thereto, at leaft, the expressions have now escaped his memory. Depones, That before the Deponent left the court, he faw the Pursuer carried off by the town-officers by order of the court, but knows not where they carried him to, further than that next day, or the day thereafter, the Deponent happening to be in the house of George Mackie innkeeper, he was informed by the faid George Mackie, that Peter Williamfon was obliged to leave the town; and that he, the faid George Mackie, had become bail to prefent him to the Magistrates any time within fix months, under a penalty; and that both Mackie and his wife faid to the Deponent, that he had been very ill used by the Magistrates.

Depositions on the part of the Magistrates.

GEORGE GARIOCH, merchant in Aberdeen, depones, That about the year 1740, and-forward for fome years, feveral of the gentlemen merchants in Aberdeen, were in use to indent fervants for America; and if any young boys or girls of under age were fo indented, and that any of their parents or relations came to claim them back, even after they were indented and attefted, they were, fo far as the Deponent knows or remembers, delivered back to their parents or relations, upon paying up what money the merchant had difburfed on their account. De pones, city when powe

pone

atteft

Was

were

time

fervar

not a fundr

and in

at tha

the all of fca

being

or not

fervan

inlifte

volunt

never

dented

came'

rily to he has

ney of

Peter or chil

dented rents,

back f

fend o

to be :

and de

boys o

to you your 1

miffed

fell fuc

cafed t the t the city

tes by Peter mes in to the of the them, distrie mery uled n, but given s have ire the ied off knows atinext ning to was in-Villiamthe faid to the enalty; Deporates.

e years, were in young nd that m back, y were, lelivered up what nt. Depones, city from which I had been formerly banished, where, in spite of all the disadvantages with which power, wealth, and influence could overwhelm me, pones, That he was informed, that, unless a fervant was attested, their indentures were of no avail, and which was his own opinion. 'Depones, That feveral fervants. were indented in the years 1740 and 1741, at which time provisions were fcarce in this country; that many, fervants were turned off from their mafters, who could not afford them daily bread for their work, which forced fundry perfons to come from the country to Aberdeen, and indent; and on that account, the Deponent himfelf, at that period, indented feverals out of charity, and, for the above reasons, believes he was the first, at that time. of fcarcity, that began to indent fuch fervants. And being interrogate by the faid Peter Williamson, whether or not he employed people to go and inlift fuch kind of fervants through the country por if all the fervants he inlifted about that period, came to the Deponent's house voluntarily, to be indented by him? Depones, That he never employed perfons to go and bring perfons to be indented as fervants at his house, but such as he indented. came of themfelves, or with their companions, voluntarily to him; and that fome of those who had indented, he has afterwards discharged, without exacting any money of them. And being further interrogate by the faid Peter Williamfon, whether or not there were any boys. or children from eight to fourteen years of age that indented themselves with the Deponent, or did their parents, after they were indented, come and demand them back from you after they were indented ? Or did you not fend over boys of that age, after they defired themfelves to be released, or that their parents or relations had come and demanded them back ? and were any of fuch young: boys or children offered up by their parents or relations. to you to be indented for fearcity of brend, who were to your knowledge the mafter of fuch fervagte, who difmilled them as before faid ?. And whether or not "d you fell fuch indepted boys in America, for what number of .

130

years,

me, I was enabled to lead fuch a proof, as convinced that most honourable and impartial bench to which I now appealed, that I had met with the higheft years, and what fums did you receive for them? Depones, That he never indented any boy or girl of eight or ten years of age, except when the parents of fuch children indented with him likewife. Depones, That he never fent off any boys or girls of under-age indented with him, that had been demanded back by their parents or friends. Depones," That never did he indent any boys or girls in town without their parents confent. Depones, That feveral fervants were indented as aforefaid to the Deponent, who told the Deponent they were turned off by their mafters for want of bread, but does not remember the names of their masters. Depones, That he went not to America himfelf, but that their indentures were fold there from 5 l. to 8 l. Sterling ; that fuch as were of under-age might be indented for five or fix years, and fuch as were of full age only for four.

A. 3768 .

Sili Tis

LUT TAKE

2 4. .....

ALEXANDER GORDON, fhipmaster in Aberdeen, depones, That it has been a practice for to indent fervants to be carried from Aberdeen to the Plantations in America, from the year 1735, downward to the year 1753; and that during the forefaid period, he has been concerned himfelf in that trade of indenting, for his own account and of his owners, fervants from Aberdeen, and carrying them over to the American Plantations, in different ships commanded by him on different voyages, viz. in the brig. Diligence, to Philadelphia, and the Ruby, to Virginiaand Maryland. Depones, That he has carried over boys, but not under fourteen years of age, and that no indentures can be taken for fervants of fourteen years of age to continue longer than the fervants attain the age of twenty-one years, by the cultom of Maryland; and that the price he generally received for fuch' fervants, in Maryland and at Philadelphia, amounted to about 10%. Sterling over head.

highe deceri the re as bef

AL

That i fince,

were in attefte

ther ju

of his

Caufa j

1741,

Aberd

to carr

Black,

Mr. C

mercha mafter,

feveral

diet to

Depon

May la

a parce

ried ov

Captain

of the

werein

and me

afterwa

Aberd

Depon

and die

M'Wil

years o

means

Canic

ALEXANDER

Her

D12

h to h the ghest

Deeight hchilhe nel with nts or boys pones, to the ned off ememe went as were vere of rs, and en, deervants: Ame-1753; oncernaccount arrying nt ships the brig Virginia er bovs, indenof age age of id; and vants, in but 10% IANDER. highest injury and injustice, and induced them to decern a fuitable redrefs.—For the fatisfaction of the reader the fubstance of this proof is fubjoined, as before mentioned.

The

133

ALEXANDER GRAY, merchant in Aberdeen, depones, That it was a cultom nineteen or twenty years ago, and fince, that feveral merchants in the town of Aberdeen, were in practice of hiring boys, girls, and other fervants, attefted before the magistrates of Aberdeen, or fome other justice of peace, to be carried to America, or other of his Majesty's Plantations, to be disposed of there. Caufa fcientie, the Deponent dealt in that way himself.

HELEN LAW depones, That about the years 1740, 1741, 1742, and fince, feveral of the merchants of Aberdeen were in practice to inlift boys to be indented. to carry over as fervants to the Plantations, viz. George Black, Alexander Gray, George and Andrew Gariochs, Mr. Copland, James Abernethy, John Elphingfton, all merchants in Aberdeen, and Capt. Robert Ragg fhipmafter, and James Smith faddler there ; and that thefe feveral merchants have employed the Deponent to furnific diet to boys and fervants that had indented with them. Depones, That about seventeen years past the month of May laft, the Deponent was employed to furnish diet to a parcel of boys and fervants that were afterwards carried over from Aberdeen to the Plantations by the faid. Captain Robert Ragg. Depones, That there were nine of the young boys, whom the dieted at that time, that were never confined, but that feveral of the big boys and men, who were threatening to run off, that were afterwards confined in prifon, or in the workhoule of Aberdeen, for fome fhort time before Capt. Ragg failed. Deponer, That among the boys that were never confined. and dieted at her houle, there was one boy named Peter M'William, who would have been upwards of twelve years of age, a long flowie clever boy (by which the means a growthie boy). Depones, That these boys came not all at one time to diet with her the began M with. The following pages, when duly confidered, will be obvious to the meaneft capacity, as the fubject is entirely calculated to open the eyes of the deluded with fome of them a little after Martinmas, and they were continuing to come to her till within a day or two before the failing of the fhip in May thereafter; and that their weekly board was twenty-pence a-week for each, and that the boy Peter M'William was fome weeks dieted by her. Depones, That there were four or five of those. boarded with her that were delivered back by the merchants to their friends, on paying the charges they had coft the merchants. Depones, That for five weeks before the ship commanded by Captain Robert Ragg failed from the harbour of Aberdeen, the lay at the key of Tory, and the boys were carried over to the fhip : during which space the Deponent went over and hired a houle at Tory, in which house the made their diet, and carried it to them on board the faid thip during that fpace : and the Deponent was informed, that the reafon why the ship lay at Tory, was, that the was neeped, and had no water to carry her over the bar. And being further interrogate, If Peter Williamson, whom the now fees before her, is the identical perfon that dieted at the time forefaid with her, then named Peter M'William ? Depones, That the cannot fwear that he is the fame perfon, for feveral of these boys returned from the Plantations a few years after, whom the did not know again when the faw them, by reafon of the change at that time, Depones, That fire. had a fon of her own that the year before had been car-, ried over by James Abernethy, merchant in Aberdeen, whom the had afked back, and Mr. Abernethy agreed at three different times to deliver him back to her ; but he was refolute to go, and went accordingly. And being interrogate by the faid Peter Williamson, whether or not the Deponent was not always in ule to alk leave of. the keepers on board of the thip, for the boys to come afhore any time when they lay at Tory, and fuch liberty was only obtained on the faid Helen Law's obliging her to return them back on hipboard ! Depones, That the did alk $ 198

luded tion fo of nat

afk leav

the faid ingly .

back t

mile, fl

the toy

them a nothing

tures, a

none, a through their pa

them by

That, a

the De

as keep

would

of them

their inc

to be ca

with oth

alfo inde

deen, ito

bour of

Ragg, f

ried ove

boys on afterwar

and ftay

boys and for the f ed, and

bour, til

from who

Depones

JAME

135

, will bject c deluded

v were before t their 1, and ted by thofe merey had ks befailed Tory, which Tory, o them Depolay at ater to rogate, her, is id with hat she eral of ears afthem; hat fhe en carerdeen, reed at but he d being ther or leave of o come liberty ing her the did alk luded poor, many of whom have fuffered tribulation for the lofs of their children, whom the ties of nature bind every Christian parent to preferve afk leave of the keepers on board of the fhip for fome of the faid boys to come affore with her, which fhe accordingly obtained, and did become bound to return them back to the fhip, and on her verbal obligement or promife, fhe was allowed to bring fome of them even over to the town of Aberdeen with her, and always returned them again on fhipboard. Depones, That fhe knows nothing about their parents confenting to their indentures, as fome might have had parents and fome of them none, and feverals of them were begging their bread through the town. But depones, That when any of their parents and relations claimed them, they were given them by the merchants on paying their charges.

JAMES ROBERTSON, stahler in Aberdeen, depones, That, about feventeen years past the month of May last, the Deponent was employed by James Smith faddler, as keeper of feveral young boys, the youngeft of whom would have been about ten years of age, and fome of them fixeeen and upwards, who were indented, and their indentures attefted by the Magistrates of Aberdeen, to be carried over to the Plantations in America, along with other fervants, both men and women of full age, alfo indented and attefted by the Magistrates of Aberdeen, to be hipped on board a hip lying at the harbour of Aberdeen, then commanded by Captain Robert Ragg, fhipmafter in Aberdeen, and which fhip was carried over to Tory, where the lay and received the faid boys on board of her. The Deponent was fome time afterwards employed by the faid James Smith to go over and flay on board the faid ship as a keeper of the faid boys and other fervants, to the best of his remembrance, for the space of twelve or fourteen days, till the ship failed, and he went with them in faid thip out of the harbour, till the thip was in the road before Aberdeen, from whence he returned back to the town of Aberdeen. Depones, That, during the time the faid James Robert-· M 2 fon and cherish as their own lives: For, as it is absurd to imagine that any parent, though in ever so necesfitous a condition, would dispose of their own field and fon was on hipboard as above, there was also another keeper, named Robert Adam, along with him, employed likewife to take care of the faid boys and fervants. Depones, That all the night they were confined, and put to their beds in the hold of the thip, but all day had liberty to go upon the deck, and even to play them ashore, their keepers always looking after them; and fome of them allowed to go to Helen Law's house, to help her on board with victuals for themselves and others. Depones, That among the boys under the Deponent's, and the other keeper's care, there was a boy of about fourteen years of age, who was called Peter MWilliam. Depones, That Peter Williamson, whom he fees prefently before him, is the fame perfon that was then named Peter M'William, as he prefently apprehende, but will not fwear politively that he is the fame perfon ; for that Peter W'William had black brows, and was pock-marked, and fo is Peter Williamfon whom he now lees; but does not remember any by then aboard called Peter Williamfon; and that Peter MeWilliam was a ftout, clever, rough lown, and very ill to guide.

JAMES SMITH, faddler in Aberdeen, depones, That, to the best of the Deponent's memory, about nineteen or twenty years ago, but cannot be abfolutely positive about the precise time, he was employed by John Elphingston merchant in Aberdeen, and Captain Robert Ragg shipmaster in Aberdeen, and Mr. Walter Cochran town-clerk depute of Aberdeen, in partnership with them, to make leather-caps, and pay for diet, and to pay tailors for clothing furnished to several young boys and other servants, that had entered into indentures; attested before the Magistrates of Aberdeen, with the above-named Captain Robert Ragg, to be carried from Aberdeen to America to be disposed of at Philadelphia, Depones, That he accordingly furnished the faid fervants with leather-caps, and paid for their clothing and diet, and b cent o and fi for all

named

vanta

Willia

of the

the be but de

Chrifti

tody a

that w

year I

him at town-c

leaves,

26th J

withst

receive

balance

charge

and na

by the

Depon

heard t

who ca

1743, depone

bound i

Fordyc

begins

twelve

charge

grantin

the bal

comple

and the

WAI

¥36

ablurd necefn flelh and nother ployed . Deput to liberty alhore, ome of elp her . Det's, and at four-Villiam. ces preas then rehends, perfon ; nd was he now d called was a

, That, nineteen politive ohn El-Robert r Cochnip with and to ng boys entures; rith the ed from delphia. fervants nd dict, for and blood to ftrangers, who make a prey of innocent children, to accumulate their ill-gotten wealth, and support their grandeur, by conveying the unhappy for all which the was afterwards repaid by the abovenamed gentleman. Depones, That, among those fervants that were fo indented, there was one boy named Williamfon, of about 12 years of age, and another boy of the fame furname, of about 13 or 14 years of age, to the beft of the Deponent's knowledge and remembrance; but depones, He does not know any of the faid two boys Christian names." Depones, That he has not in his cuftody any accounts or writings relative to the fervants that were fent from Aberdeen to the Plantations in the year 1753: But depones, That the account flewn to him at deponing, and exhibited by Walter Cochran, town-clerk depute of Aberdeen, confifting of twelve leaves, with a docquet on the last page thereof, dated 26th July 1743, is a just and true account, all wrote with the Deponent's hand-writing; and the Deponent. received from the faid Walter Cochran payment of the balance of faid account, conform to his receipt and difcharge : and the whole of the articles in faid account, and names therein infert, are genuine and true as wrote by the Deponent, and which account is figned by the Deponent and Commiflioner at deponing. Depones, He heard the fhip the Planter, Captain Robert Ragg master, who carried fervants for the Plantations in the year 1743, was firanded on Cape May the other 'I' off

WALTER COCHRAN, town-clerk depute of Aberdeen, depones and produces an account, wrote book-ways, and bound in marble paper, entitled, Account Baille William Fordyce and Company to James Smith, which account begins the third day of December 1742, and confifts of twelve leaves, and upon the laft page thereof is a difcharge by James Smith, dated the 26th July 1743, granting the receipt from the Deponent of payment of the balance of 181. 14  $\approx 5 d$ . Sterling, being full and complete payment of the above and foregoing accounts; and therefore difcharging the Deponent and Company of M 3

¥37

happy victims to the remotest parts of the globe, where they can have no redress for the injuries done them, these cautions are offered to prevent their falling into the fnare.

$28

Senfible

all he could demand of them : upon the fecond page of which account, there is charged a fix-pence for a pair of flockings to Peter Williamson, and five-pence for a woollen cap to ditto, as difburfed 8th January 1743; and op the third page, there is charged one fhilling and threepence Sterling, for five days board of Williamfon, as difburled 13th January 1743. Depones, That he received the forefaid account from James Smith, faddler in Aberdeen, and paid him the balance contained in the forefaid account, and which account is figned by the Deponent and Commissioner, and produced with the rcport; and further adds, that the forefaid account has been lying by the Deponent for feveral years paft, he being one of the company that were owners of the thip the Planter, Robert Ragg mafter, who transported ferwants to the Plantations, and was wrecked at Cape May.

WILLIAM GIBSON, carpenter in Tory, depones, That before the F2th of May 1743, the Deponent was hired a fhip-carpenter to Captain Robert Ragg, to fail a voyage from Aberdeen to Virginia, on board his fhip, called the Planter, and that there were shipped a number of boys, girls, and other fervants, under indenture, as he heard; but that in their voyage them ship was stranded on Cape May; but some time after, all the fervants they carried over were safely recovered, and a sloop came down from Philadelphia, and carried all of them inp there.

JOHN DICKSON, mariner in Stonchive, depones, That the deponent, to the belt of his remembrance, was engaged as a failor in the year 1743; to ferve under Captain Ragg, to navigate his fhip called the Planter, from Aberdeen for Virginia. Depones, That trut nate COVE Sep tam arbi fion Har fecu byw ledg the gone abfei recal my recei 1 11 ...

the f

perfo she fa

nent

in he

good

boys,

for be of in frand

ifland

a wre

many

place, went

of the

the re

down

110-333

mort

the

SUS

ngai

globe, njuries

enfible

15.95 page of pair of a woolandion threelon, as he refaddler d in the by the the reunt has past, he the ship rted fert Cape s, That as hired l a voyip, callnumber ture, as ftrandfervants lepones, brance, o ferve led the , That the a floop

of them

Schfible I am, that what I have already faid against my first profecutors, quadrates with the truth in every particular, and that many unfortunate perfons have been involved in mifery, and decoyed into flavery and bondage, as well as myfelf. Separated from their dearest relations, and obliged tamely to submit to the caprice and chastifement of arbitrary mafters, who have lefs pity and compatfion on them than on their beafts of burden. Hard fate to fuffer all this! harder still to be profecuted for telling the interefting tale ! I speak this by woful experience, as well as from the knowledge of the hard fate of feveral young people, in the neighbourhood of my nativity, whither I had gone in queft of my relations. After fo long an absence, my personal appearance must no doubt recall to the memory of my friends, the manner of my being carried off in my infancy, and they mult receive me with wonder and amazement, whom THE PART . A PRIVE LAW . B. HOAT AND ME.

the faid ship, on her arrival from London, in order to perform the faid voyage, lay at the pier of Tory until the failed from faid river on her voyage, as the Deponent remembers, on the 12th of May 1743, and took in her cargo there, which confided of fome parcels of goods, and feveral fervants, being men, women, and boys, who, he believes, were all indented as fervants, for behoof of the contractors with them, to be difpoled of in Virginia: That the ship was, before her arrival, ftranded to the northward of Cape May, upon a little island in the province of New Jerfey, where the became a wreck. Depones, That how foon the thip ftruck, fo many of the crew took out a yoal to discover a landing place, and the reft of the crew, and fome of the fervants, went into the long boat, and got fafe ashore; and some of them returned with the long boat, and brought out the reft of the fervants; and afterwards a floop came down very foon, and carried them up to Philadelphia.

they

MONTHE LIFE OF TOT

they had for many years deemed for loft. The fatisfaction my prefence gave them, of which they had been to long deprived, it is not to be expressed; and the comfort I enjoyed in the profpect of feeing my nearest relations, was in fome degree a folace for the miferies I had undergone. But, even in this, hard fortune purfued me still, and my troubles were not yet at an end. New enemies farted up, who, as if the abettors of those who laid the fnare for me when a child, now contrived a new species of captivity for me, when I was a man. They begrudged me my liberty, and the freedom I took to relate my misfortunes; in order, therefore, to fupprefs a difagreeable truth, they again deprived me of it for a time; destroyed my means of sublistence, and loaded me with infamy and reproach; from which, thanks to the justice of my caufe and the integrity of my judges, I have at last been honourably delivered, KIDNAPPING, a species of trade followed by these monsters of impiety for the luft of gain, may be compared to the practices of the favages formerly mentioned, who, to gratify their propenfity to mifchief, cut, mangle, burn, and deftroy, all the innocent people they can catch. And furely the guilt of the kidnapped muft be much greater than that of the favage race, who boaft not of humanity. If the latter commit fuch crimes, it is against those they imagine to be their enemies, for the fake of plunder; but the former are void of all excuse. What then can some of the worthy merchants of Aberdeen fay for themselves. Prompted by avarice, and despiling the laws of God and all civilized nations, have they not been guilty of this atrocious crime? And does not the blood of the innocent, feveral of whom have died under the hands of their cruel masters, cry against them for vengeance? Certain it is, that this exccrable practice of kidnapping was put in execution from from mer t00 . Irer idle and the pare fic, to fe mile fatal even from cont the Were man wha imag Such preh with my pity thin who in a tifed perit occu kidn + 43 T

Carr

the

pare

ofk

. . . 5 !

140

from the year 1740 and downwards, by feveral merchants in that city, fome of whom, for reafons too well known, have fince deferted their country. I remember that much about that time, there were idle fellows employed by those traders, to cajole and decoy men, women, and chudren, to ferve in the Plantations in America. The poor dehuded parents being ignorant of the nature of the traffic, and equally ignorant how or where to apply to for redrefs, were obliged to rely on the fair promifes of the merchants, whole delutions proved fatal to many of the unhappy victims, who were even come of age, and much more fo to infants from fix to fourteen years, who were incapable to contract for themfelves, and transported without the knowledge or confent of their parents. These were left to lament the lofs of their children; many of them without the confolation of knowing what had become of them; and who could only imagine that an untimely end had been their fate. Such, it is to be supposed, were the dreadful apprehensions that filled the eyes of my aged parent with tears, from whom I was thus feparated in my non-age. What heart can be unmoved with pity at the relation of fo difmal a tale ? Who can think, without heror, on these monsters of impiety, who could make a traffic of their fellow-creatires in a Chriftian country, almost as openly as is practifed on the coaft of Guinea? Quis talia fando temperit a lachrimis?---And here the following queries occur, which will tend to explain the meaning of kidnapping. That to go he sugar bar strate of the

I. Whether or not, when children are either carried off by force, or decoyed by fraud, without the confent, or without the knowledge, of their parents, in a flate of infancy, or under the years of pupillarity, and incapable of entering into a contract

The they :fled ; eeing ce for hard were who. efor ies of y beok to ) fupd me tence, from d the nourtrade e luft of the their nd de-And much boaft rimes, r eneer are of the felves. ws of t been ot the e died gainft s execution

from

141

STA. THE LIFE OF

contract or indenture, may not this be called KID-NAPPING?

142

II. Whether or not, the flutting these children up in prisons, or places of confinement, in order to make fure of them as a prey, and conceal them from their parents, is not contrary to law; and an atrocious crime?

III. If these proceedings were agreeable to law, and the inclinations of the persons so imprisoned, what occasion was there for confinement? When a person inlist himself in any service as a volumteer, where is the necessity of putting him in prison? But,

ilV. If these proceedings were contrary to all laws, human and divine, what punishment can be inflicted adequate to the crime?

My betrayers well knew the impracticability of making children abide by any obligation extorted from them, or any agreement to which they were decoyed; and therefore they confined us in barns; on board fhips, and other convenient places; and; to make our time pafs away the more infenfibly and free of reflection; they entertained us with mufle, cards, and other childifh diversions, till fuch time as they had got their complement, and the fhip was ready to fail.

Various were the arts and ftratagems made ule of to inveigle these unhappy creatures. Some were infnared by receiving a trifle of money, and then told they were fairly inlifted. Others were tempted with the hait of great promises, being told that they were going to a country where they should live like gentlemen; that they should ride in their coaches, with several negroes to attend them; that they should pulles large plantations of their own, and foon be in a condition to come home and visit their friends with great pomp and grandeur. By these specieus and artful infinuations, many unthinking

ID-

lren

rder

hem

l'an

....

law,

ned;

hen

lun

in

40 TA 4

) all

n be

Pea ....

y of

orted

Nere

ITIS;

and.

and

mu-

fuch

the

ulo

vere

then

bted

hey

like

nes,

hey

and vifit

By

uning

3 2 .

thinking giddy youths were feduced into flavery, relying on promites which were meant only to infnare, and not to eurich them. Some were carried off from their parents by violence, and whipt into the flock, like ftrayed fheep going to the fhambles. All these methods, and many more, were practifed in this execrable branch of traffic, of which the reader will find a proof to his conviction, by perusing the depositions formerly inferted.

How far these specious promises were fulfilled, will appear from the treatment we met with when landed in America. On our arrival there, our merchant; or fupercargo, who had the charge of us, took the earlieft opportunity to dispose of us to thei planters, fome of whom will buy ten, others twenty, to labour in their plantations and cultivate their. ground. Thus were we driven through the country: like cattle to a Smithfield market, and exposed to fale in public fairs, as fo many brute beafts. When thus maltreated by our countrymen, what reasons had we to expect better ulage from our new mas fters, whole property we now were ? Luckily for me, I fell into the hands of one of my own countrymen, who had undergone the fame fate himfelf, and who used me in a more tender manner than many of my companions in flavery had to boaft of. No thanks, however, to my Kidnappers; for if the devil had come in the shape of a man to purchase us, with money enough in his pocket, it would have been as readily accepted as of the honefteft and most humane man in the world. Besides, these children are fometimes fold to barbarous and cruel mafters, from whom they often make an elopement, to avoid the harfh usage they daily meet with; but as there is fcarce a poffibility of making a total efcape, they are generally taken and brought back, and for every day they have been ablent, they are compelled to ferve a week, for every week a month, and for every month a year; they are befides obliged to pay the colt of advertifing, apprehending, and bringing them back; which often protracts their flavery four or five years longer. But a more flocking cafe often occurs; fome of these poor deluded flaves, after groaning for fome time under the yoke of tyranny and oppression, with only a distant prospect of relief, in order to put an end to their bondage, put a period to their lives at the same time. What a dismal reflection this, to be the inftrument of driving an innocent helples creature to despair, and ruining him both in foul and body 1

The planters themfelves are generally of an idle indolent disposition, not caring to fatigue themselves with work. As foon therefore as they can raife 20 or 301. they purchase Tervants from the European merchants, whom they make flaves; fome for four or five, others for feven years. These they fend to the woods, or employ in other kinds of hard labour, and oblige them to perform a certain talk of work in a day; in which if they fail, they are feverely punished by their masters, who review their work at night. Nor dare the fervant, when he is thus chaltized, prefume to vindicate himfelf, for fear of giving a new offence to this unrelenting tyrant, whofe humour must be indulged, even at the expence of ftrokes and blows. This is generally the cafe throughout the different colonies in North America; but more especially in Maryland and Virginia. These two are the best markets to which our European merchants can refort for the fale of their illicit cargoes of flaves. Here they may barter them for tobacco, the ftaple commodity of thefe colonies, upon which they have an immenfe return. of profit.

The fervants in Maryland are mostly convicts, who have been banished their native country for misdemeanors mifden riod of own, in the They ents in and ch plantat dertake they e destruc induce when to ferv wages, try. B the exp Be affi ment i your in countr the dife are fur nakedn Befie ner, la that-co presum come t rately a number notorio in this class of home, vices. engage ably on les obnding. otracts a more e poor under. only a. end to. ie fame the inreature body !! an idle mfelves aife 20 iropean or four fend to labour, f work feverely it work is thus fear of tyrant, the exally the North nd and which fale of hay bar_ of these e return onvicts, ntry for canors :

1.44

mildemeanors; yet some of them, when their period of flavery is over, acquire plantations of their own, and are very expert in raifing tobacco, and in the other branches of trade in that country. They frequently contract with their correspondents in Europe, to fend them over men, women, and children, to be employed in the culture of their plantations: But the fallacious promifes of the undertakers here, are fo pernicious to those whom. they engage, that they generally prove their utter. destruction. By their manner of cajoling, they induce those ignorant creatures to believe, that, when they indent themfelves for four or five years, to ferve in the Plantations, they are to have high wages, to be paid annually in their mother-country. But when these deluded perfons come to make the experiment, they will find it quite the contrary. Be affured, you will meet with no fuch entertainment in any part of America; for you must ferve your indented time, agreeable to the laws of the country, without one farthing of allowance, but at the difcretion of your master; and it is well if you are furnished with clothes fufficient to cover your nakednefs.

Besides, you who indent yourselves in this manner, labour under another difadvantage; for, in that country, they are of opinion (and a natural prefumption it is), that when men and women. come to the age of maturity, wilfully and deliberately agree to transport themselves as flaves for any number of years, they must have been guilty of some notorious crime; those, therefore, who come over in this manner, are looked upon as in the black class of convicts, who, for fear of a profecution at home, take this step to prevent a discovery of their vices. For fome time, honeft people, who had engaged to ferve in that country, fuffered confiderably on this account, both in their characters and fortunes_ N ortunes, as thefe renegadoes were allowed to be evidences against them, and to fwear away their reputations. But this has at last been debarred by the laws of the country, as none are allowed this privilege, unless they bring along with them a certificate, figned and attested by perfons of character and repute, bearing, that they were defcended of honess parents, and that nothing criminal or difhoness can be laid to their charge; this being approved of and recorded in the books of a Court of Justice, the perfon's oath is then deemed legal.

From hence it appears, that numberless inconveniencies and difadvantages attend the perfon, who, though of an age capable to dispose of himself, by foolithly liftening to the deceitful promifes of these recruiters for flaves, at once flakes his hap; inefs, his liberty, and perhaps his life. You will perhaps be told, that you are going to a country flowing with milk and honey. Thefe, it is true, are to be had in great plenty in America; but before you come to enjoy them, you will find that you must wade through an ocean of labour and fatigue, and that out of the fweet cometh forth bitternefs. Whereas, if you are poffeffed but of three or four pounds to pay your paffage, and are of an ingenious disposition, whether in mechanics, commerce, agriculture, or manufactures, you are certain not only of handfome bread, but, by moderate frugality and industry, of making a genteel fortune in a few years.

IN K Magil ing th thenef candid treatm of the but di I was : tribuna they ad in whi I shall proof 1 a loss t the po have r That li confide equipoi the aut people. enforce the law authorit falutary executio rection tion: Y tim wit wifely in 151. . . .

Short

AS

P

of 46

d to be heir re-

rred by ved this

n'a cer-

naracter nded of

l or dif-

eing ap-

Court of inconve-

n, who,

nfelf, by

of these

appinefs,

l perhaps flowing

are to be fore you

you must

gue, and bitternefs.

e or four ingenious

rce, agri-

not only

gality and in a few

Short

gal.

147

A Short history of the Process between PETER WILLIAMSON and the Magistrates of Aberdeen.

IN the introduction to the former Discourse on L Kidnapping, I furly flated the cafe betwixt the Magistrates of Aberdeen and me, without difguifing the truth in any the most minute particular. I therefore appeal to the unbiaffed judgment of the candid Reader, whether, after the unmerited maltreatment I fuffered from the arbitrary proceedings of these magistrates, merely for relating a simple, but difagreeable fact, I fay, I fubmit it, whether I was not entitled to fue for redrefs before a higher tribunal. The motives or principles upon which they acted, in the irregular profecution against me, in which they were both my Accufers and Judges, I shall not pretend to determine; but, from the proof before inferted, the reader will hardly be at a loss to form a conjecture. In order to accertain the power of a magistracy, it is necessary to have recourse to the original institution of it. That liberty which the conftitution of this country confiders as its favourite object, is the refult of the equipoife which our laws have established between the authority of Magistrates and the rights of the people. As the relative duties of fociety must be enforced by the Magistrate, and compliance with the law exacted from the Citizens, by means of his authority, all the power that is necessary for these falutary purposes is vested in him; and, in the due execution of it, he is not only entitled to the protection of the laws, but is an object of its veneration : Yet the fame principles that have thus armed tim with authority, for the benefit of fociety, have wifely imposed upon him a restraint from abusing it. Senfible

N 2

thre

Law

inter

who

the.

of m

to hi

to de

to an

the C

ward

here

minu

begin

fion

again

Lord

facts

Proof

at Ab

men i

here,

this o

from

and th

conne

yet th

count

minds

to bri

numb

prived

Au

condu

million

on the

Reps

I met

threw

328

Sensible that authority improperly used, may become the most dreadful instrument of oppression, the law has not only declared wilful malversation in office to be a crime, but to those who have suffered by the proceedings of Magistrates, whether through inattention or ignorance (for ignorance is never blameles in a Magistrate), it has given an action of oppression and damages, for reparation of the injury the private party has suffered.

In this light did I confider the harfh fentence of the Magistrates of Aberdeen against me, p. 112. Had they acted, according to the established forms of all courts of Justice, their proceedings would, at leaft, have had fome colour of regularity; though their fentence would not have been lefs iniquitous. Why was not I complained of, by a party having intereft in the caufe ?- Why was not the complaint ferved upon me, and I appointed to give in anfwers? Why were not the legal inducia, or days, allowed me to prepare for my defence? All these forms were neglected or despised. The Magistrates themselves instigated the complaint; they proceeded to judge upon it without fervice; without allowing ing inducia; and without answers. It is evident, therefore, they acted not as Magistrates, but as private oppreflors.

Banished from the capital of the county wherein I was born, and ftript of my all, I now bethought myself where or how to apply for redrefs. In this view I purfued my journey to Edinburgh; but, ignorant of the law, and unacquainted with any of its members, equally defitute of money and friends, and labouring under the reflections which the calumnious advertifement published by the Magistrates threw on my character, I was utterly at a loss to whom, or in what manner, I should apply to for direction. From this dilemma, however, I was foon relieved by the affistance of kind providence, who

140

Diy

nay bepreffion, rerfation ave fufwhether orance is given an ration of tence of p. 112. ed forms would, at ; though iquitous. y having complaint ive in anor days, All thefe lagistrates proceeded t allowing is evident. but as prity wherebethought In drefs. urgh; but, with any of nd friends, hich the ca-Magistrates at a lois to ly to for di-I was foon dence, who threw threw me in the way of a Gentleman versant in the Law, a Gentleman of knowledge, character, and integrity, by whofe advice I was conducted, and by whole interest I was supported, from the infancy to the conclusion of my process. On a fair relation of my grievances, the injuries I fuffered appeared to him to flagrant, that he did not helitate a moment to declare his opinion, That I was not only entitled to ample damages from my profecutors, but that the Court of Sellion would find no difficulty to award thefe, with full cofts of fuit. It is unneceffary here to take up the Reader's time in running over minutely the different steps of the process from the beginning. Suffice it to fay, that a process of Oppreffion and Damages was commenced at my inftance, against the Magistrates of Aberdeen, wherein the Lord Ordinary allowed both parties a proof of the facts alleged on either fide. And accordingly a Proof was take, partly at Edinburgh, and partly at Aberdeen, of which the Reader has feen a fpecimen in the preceding pages. I fhall only observe here, that my perfonal prefence being neceffary on this occasion at the last-mentioned place, I fet out from Edinburgh for Aberdeen in September 1760, and though I had not the leaft knowledge of, or connection with any fingle evidence I might bring, yet the trade of Kidnapping was fo flagrant in that country, and had left luch an impression on the minds of the people, that I was under no difficulty to bring a complete proof of the practice, by a number of perfons who had fuffered by it, being deprived of their children.

Aud here I cannot forbear doing justice to the conduct of the Gentleman whom I named as Commillioner, to take the depolitions of the witneffes on the part of my Opponents. During the various steps of procedure in leading the Proof, wherein I met with all the obstructions that the malice of N 3

100

my enemies could throw in my way, he acted a most candid and ingenuous part:

After a fhort dependence, the caule at last came to be advised in course, before the Court of Session, by Memorials on the proof; when, after hearing of parties at the bar at full length, their Lordships were pleased, on the 2d of February 1762, to pronounce the following Interlocutor:

" The Lords having advifed the flate of the prose cefs, testimonies of the witness adduced, writs reproduced, with the memorials given in hine inde, and having heard parties procurators thereon, find the libel relevant and proven; and find the f defenders, conjunctly and feverally, liable to the "Purfuer in damages, and modify the fame to the 45 fum of 100 1. Sterling, and decern; and find the Defenders alfo, conjunctly and feverally, liable " to the Pursuer in the expences of this proces, and of the extract of the Decreet, as the fame " fhall be certified by the Collector of the clerk's " fees; for which the Lords declare the Defenders to be perfonally liable, and that the fame shall be " no burden upon the town of Aberdeen; and ordain an account of the faid expences to be given # in; and ordain the account-book mentioned in the State, and produced upon oath by Walter " Cochran, and figned by the Lord Prefident, of " this date, to remain in the hands of the clerk of " this process, till further order of the Court."

aga

deci

priv

con

agai

can

kney

the

port

in b neiti

fuch

lieve

from

we c refpe

very

which

felf

and

proc fuch cafily

bad

Copy

time

Against this Interlocutor, the Magistrates presented a reclaiming Petition, craving either to be affoilzied from the Process; or, at least, that the damages awarded should be modified. To this Petition is subjoined the following curious letter.

Copy of a Letter from William Davidson and James Jopp, late Bailies of Aberdeen, to Walter Scott, Writer to the Signet.

SIR,

Aberdeen, February 4, 1764.

W E are very forry to find by yours of 30th paft, that there is a fentence pronounced against us in Williamson's process, whereby we are decerned to pay to him's very large fum out of our private pockets.

We think it neceffary to inform you, that our conduct and intentions, with regard to our fentence against him, have been entirely misunderstood. We can with the greatest integrity declare, That, at the time of pronouncing that fentence, neither of us knew, directly or indirectly, that Walter Cochran, the depute-clerk, was any ways concerned in tranfporting boys to America, or that there ever was in being the book he produced in the proof: That neither of us had ever any interest or concern in fuch trade : That we never knew, and did not believe, that any men and boys were ever transported from Aberdeen to America contrary to law : That we confidered the paragraph in Williamfon's book, respecting the merchants of Aberdeen, to be a very calumnious and reproachful afpersion on them, which they did not deferve : That Williamion himfelf had the appearance of being an idle stroller, and could give no good account of himfelf, and had procured this pamphlet to be composed for him, of fuch flocking circumstances, in order the more eafily to impose upon, and draw money from the credulous vulgar: And, upon the whole, That we had no motive of intereft, either on our own account.

came effion, earing rdfhips to prone pro-, writs nc inde, nercon, nd the to the to the ind the , liable proceis, e fame clerk's efenders thall be and ore given oned in Walter lent, of clerk of rt. " ..... presento be afthe dais Peti-Ye count, or any perfon whatever, or any prejudice against Williamfon (having never before feen or heard of him), to induce us to pronounce the fentence against him: That we did it purely, as what we judged material justice to vindicate the character of those we believed to be innocent, and were unjustly reflected upon; and that whatever in the fentence appears to their Lordships to be either oppressive or illegal, proceeded entirely from error in judgment, and not from any finister defign: So that however far the fentence has been wrong, we are ready most freely to make any declaration that may be necessary, that it proceeded from the most innocent intention.

Red a

Copy

Under these circumstances, you will easily perceive how much we were surprised on reading yours, giving account of the sentence against us; and how hard a thing it is to be decerned to pay a sum of money, as a fine, for doing what we considered to be our duty.

W. DAVIDSON, JAMES JOPP.

be

In

me

not

will

the

cald

ven

gal

pro

ten

enci

peri

be a

dur

been

they

to b

bet

of th

thei

the

decl

prife

new

and

and City,

an

affer

the

of f

prov

firm

a fo

wick

give

This letter, however, did not avail their caufe. It was in van to deny their being in the knowledge that fuch an illicit species of traffic was carried on hy some of the merchants in Aberdeen, when it was to be a manner, that the meanest relidenter in the city observed it; when the fama clams a of KIDNAPPING overspread the whole country, so that the poor people, whose business led them frequently to town, were afraid to carry their children along with them, left they should dice

1 01

fen-

vhat

rac-

vero

the

op-

r in-

So

we

that moft

per-ding

:us :

pay.a.

onfi-

yers,

g pe-

their.

atter.

SON,

cause.

ledge

arried

when

caneft

fama

whole

finefs

carry

hould

be

P.

be picked up, and transported to the Plantations. In the end, they infinuate that their feptence against me proceeded from an error in judgment, and not from any finister defign; and that they were willing to make any declaration necessary, to evince the innocence of their intentions. But if a fentence calculated for the suppression of truth, and to prevent the detection of a commerce the most illegal and most destructive of fociety, can be faid to proceed from no finister de in, then every fentence that has a tender w to seen the guilty and encourage those monsters who make a traffic of the perfons and liberties of their fellow-creatures, mult be accounted innocent. The whole of the procedure of the Magistrates against me appears to have been directed to this fingle end. From this view, they first caused the whole impression of my book to be feized, and those offensive tell-truth leaves to be burnt, that they might not revive the memory. of this villanous trade, and rife in judgment against their brother-merchants. 2do, In order to make the furer work of it, they extorted from me the declaration inferted, p. 112, under the terror of imprifonment; and caufed publish the fame in the newspapers, in order to fligmatize my character, and brand me with the infamy of being an impostor and a liar. And, lafly, They banished me the city, left I should retract my declaration, and have an opportunity to fpread the truth of my former affertions. Their schemes, however, had an effect the very reverse of what they intended. Instead of suppressing the truth. their proceedings have proved the means of bringing it to light, and ronfirming it by indubitable evidence; and to opening a fcene of the groffest impiety, barbarity, and wickedness.

To the above reclaiming petition, answers were given in on my part; and the Lords, after re-con-

üdering

3 54

idering the merits of the caufe, were pleafed to adhere to their former Interlocutor. Thus ended this process of oppression, carried on by a poor man, against the Magistracy of one of the most opulent and most respectable boroughs in Scotland.

It is the peculiar happiness of this land of liberty to be bleffed with a Supreme Court, wherein justice is difpented with an equal hand to the poor and rich; wherein the caufe of the King and the Beggar is weighed in the balance of equity and law, and decided in favour of him whole feale preponderates. Happy is that nation whole judges are men of integrity, uninfluenced by power, unbiaffed by party, and untainted by corruption! Such become the Guardians of the liberties and properties of the people, the protectors of the innocent, the fcourges of the guilty, the fupporters of the weak, and the terrors of the tyrant and oppressor. Such are the members of that honourable tribunal to which I appealed my caufe, who redreffed my grievfices, and allowed me fuch compensation for those acts of violence and opprefion which I had fuffered from my tyrannical profecutors, as they, in. their wildom, thought just and equitable. Nor mult I omit to pay a tribute of gratitude to these worthy and learned Gentlemen who appeared in my caufe at the bar, and who nobly exerted themfelves in opening up and displaying that scene of oppression and lawless perfecution wherewith I had been haraffed, and that without any prospect of fee or reward. In particular, I must acknowledge my obligations to that learned Lawyer, who was affigned me as Counfel by their Lordships, when my circumftances could not afford the price of a confultation. He generoully embarked in my caules. and, by force of argument, law, and eloquence, exposed the injustice-done me, and the weakness of my Opponent's reafonings, in fuch a light, that

TH ments. been ti prietor when I were of mahaw fmiths was acc a plafte give an invention them. tobacco of thro

my

my

to-t jeft

my

and.

oft

for t

fy o

Tiche

lefs 1

groa

have

Jufti

way,

the ---

apon

EI.

my plea became as clear as noon-day, and obvious to the meanest capacity.

ad

this

ian.

lent

erty

tice

and

Beg-

law,

)0n-

are

affed

be-

rties

the

veak, Such

thofe

fuf-

Nor

thole

d in

hem-

he oF

had

A of

ledge

when

of 2

aulet

encer

knets

that

TIT

I shall trouble the Reader no further on this subject, my chief intent in publishing this narrative of my Process, being, to warn Gentlemen in power and station, not to abuse them by a lawless exercise of their authority against the poor and innocent; for they may be affured, that power will not fanctify oppression, nor will justice be hood-winked by riches. On the other hand, the weak and friendless need not despair of obtaining redress, though groaning under the yoke of tyranny: Let them have but the resolution to apply to the College of Justice; Providence will throw friends in their way, their oppressions shall hide their-heads, and the cruelties they have committed be retaliated upon them.

A particular Description of the # INDIAN TOMAHAWK.

THE hatchet or axe, which the Indians call a Tomahawk, is used by them in many different employments. This instrument, in its prefent form, is faid to have been the invention of the great William Penn, first proprietor of Penfylvania. The tools used by the Indiana, when he came among them, were made of flone ; which were of little use in cutting wood. He procured a Tomaliawk, and a scalping knife; and employed European imiths to make fuch after the Indian pattern; which was accordingly done. The Tomahawk was made like a plasterer's hammer, with a whiftle in the handle, to give an alarm in cafe of danger : by this, and fuch-like inventions, the name of Penn became famous among them. The Indians he found much addicted to fmoking tobacco; but for want of a better method, they moke ed through leaves twifted up into a kind of a pipe.

10 g

he distributed leveral groß of English tob used to fuch brittle ware, the pipes would not their rough slage, but quickly broke's which his credit among them, as they concluded d of so fervice. Father Penn, so they called him. respon obliged to reftore the Indian goods he prived in exchange for the pipes; and was glad in fpeedy reflitution to prevent bad confequences. canled the Tomahawk to be made to hold toto inoke by : an infrument of fuch beneficial where entirely regained him the confidence of the Inthe she whill at the end. It is now become uleful many counches of their bulinels. In time of war bey very it with them, under their belts, and, when there are a to their fide, after firing their guns, or and upon their counce with it. their fulls; very feldom failing of killing with is and will firike an object at 50 yards diffance. her also employ it in cutting wood, and in barking at the feelon when they make their cances. On of the Tomahawk they record the occur-tion of war. When their warriors are fent to fight, our he many notches on the handle of the hatchet. know their number by. Their wounded are also hed down, with the number of priloners they take the energy; each in a different manner. So that the date, they are enabled to form an ellimate of the of their fine : the returns of the moon; and converting with my of their wife man TIXIS

