NO FUTURE CHALLENGE

uccess Must Be So Complete as to Ensure Lasting Peace.

Aug. 4.—Premier Lloyd rge on opening his address in n's Hall on the third anniversary war, asked what would have ed, if Great Britain had not ed the war. He answered this saying: Europe would have been at the mercy of a cruel military wer. Russia would have disinte-sted sooner. France would have ught bravely but might have been erwhelmed. The Monroe doctrine would have been treated as a scrap of paper. The fact today is that we have checked the ambitions of Ger-

The British prime minister said he did not trust the German peace talk. "Neither the kaiser nor the chancellor," he declared, "has yet said he would be satisfied with German soil. They talk glibly about peace, but stammer over the word restoration. Before we have a peace conference they must learn to use the word restoration. So far they have not learned even the first letter of the alphabet. "War is a ghastly business, but it is not so bad as their peace. While they know their plot has miscarried this ime, the Prussian war lords have determined to succeed the next time. The British prime minister said h "War is a shastly business, but it is et so bad as their peace. While they now their plot has miscarried this ime, the Prussian war lords have dethe termined to succeed the next time. There must be no next time. This generation must eliminate war from the tragedies of human life."

Shall Reap Defeat.

Shall Reap Defeat.
Continuing, Mr. Lloyd George said:
"If we sow seeds of discontent and disunion in, the nation we shall reap defeat. A nation which falters before it reaches its purpose will never become a great people. No one in Great Britain, France, Italy and Russia, or even in Germany and Austria, has any idea how near we will never be supported by the support of the today to the summit of our hope. PROGRESSIVE PROGRAM

Winnipeg Will Pass Advanced Measures Next Week.

Winnipeg, Aug. 4.—The outlook is that the Liberal convention will pass an advanced and progressive- pro gram next week

The feeling against a unionist government under Borden is hardening, owing to the re-emergence of House Rotert Rogers. The Pree Press of this morning says the political situation is hopeless while he remains on the scene.

the scene.

Sir Clifford Sifton will be here on Monday, back from Calgary. One of his friends said today: "Sifton has no idea of seeking any leadership of the western Liberals; would not take it even if offered him; if asked his advice he will tell the convention to uphold conscription, to choose a western leader from among themselves, and to demand a non-partisan unionist government. He may be back in Ottawa before the convention is over.

A Forecast of the Convention.

A Forecast of the Convention. (From The Montreal Star.) Winnipeg, Aug. 3.—Hon. J. A. Calder, the astute minister of the Saskatchewan Government, unquestionably has the first call on the leadership. He has the support solid of the Saskatchewan delegates who favor divorce of the east and west, and some from Alberta. The Manitoba delegates lation can be found anywhere than that of Pavlowa.

There has been a suggestion by the content of the suggestion by the suggestion by the content of the suggestion by the suggestion by the content of the suggestion by the suggestion of the suggestion by the suggestion of the suggestion by the suggestion of the

There has been a suggestion by the Sifton influence that John W. Dafoe, editor of The Free Press, might be acceptable to both the Calder and Hudson factions as leader, and he had some following. The attitude of The Free Press for a western party and for the past eleven years, catering the relation of Signature 1 and Free Press for a western party and for the rejection of Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the conscription policy has given the editor much vogue among Liberals of independent thought.

The indications, however, favor ultimate compromise on Mr. Calder. He is an experienced ring general with a long record of political triumph in the west.

The big fight in the convention will come first on the adoption of the conscription resolution, and then the disavowal of Sir Wilfrid Laurier as a leader of western Liberals and the communication of the conscription resolution, and then the disavowal of Sir Wilfrid Laurier as a leader of western Liberals and the communication of the conscription resolution. leader of western Liberals and the selection of a new man to lead the western wing of the party. These questions are expected to show the gnment of the delegates. Afterwards will come the problem union government plan, possible negotiations with representatives of Robert Borden, and the working out of a campaign routine on which the election would be fought.

In that event the old party machinof the Liberal forces will be left the hands of the wing of the convention which has refused to disown represent the Liberal party and may name candidates in opposition thru name candidates in opposition thru the west to the union or conscription

Another furious assault on the Sifton influence appears editorially in The Daily Tribune, aimed not particularly at Sir Clifford Sifton, but at the influence of his type in the affairs of the Dominion at this critical stage. The Free Press and The Tribune agree only on union and conscription and the appointment of a western leader. There they separate sharply, and The Tri-tune stands apparently for Mr. Hudson, the obviously for any man to beat Sir Clifford Sifton. Friends of both sides assert they hope to bring these two factions together, but each paper has asserted it will support no man who does not favor conscription, he he of whatever party or faction. What is Program?

From The Toronto Star:
Winnipeg, Aug. 4.—What is the program? is heard on every hand. and apparently no one can answer the question. Everyone is at sea. Frem-ier Norris or Attorney-General Hud-son will preside at the opening, the latter being convention manager, but the permanent leader of the western Liberals may not be named, that decision being left to a committee appointed for that purpose.

It will be largely an agricultural convention and the platform will be of an explosion of a tank of ammonia at the east end plant of monia at the east end plant of Company of Canada, C. sires. Oklahoma City, Okia., Aug. 4.—Indulging in a dream of revolution, and resisting the draft law, at least half a dozen armed bands of tenant farmers, half-breed indians and negroes, are runing rampent thruout five counties in east central Oklahoma today. As the disturbed territory is about 100 miles long by 90 miles wide, the topography of which is rugged, only an estimate can be made of the total number of rioters, most of whom are bent on resisting the draft law. Reports placed the number of resisters variously at 500 to 1600. Cafe Chantant. (Songs, Jingles, Tunes, Refresh-ments).

"CITADEL OF QUEBEC"

Grandstand Spectacle to Be Worthy of Confederation Year.

Thru the courtesy of J. G. Kent, manager, and Joseph Hay, publicity agent of the Canadian National Exhibition, a party of newspeper men were permitted to inspect the preparations being made to entertain amuse and instruct visitors in the next few weeks. All the indications are that the coming fair will, despite the war, be the greatest in its history. No money, no labor and no effort has been spared to keep Canada and Toronto in the forefront in staging exhibitions that embody every known industry, science and art, and include almost every known variety of entertainment and spectacle.

In Germany some years ago. It turns out a large sized oriental carpet in a few hours.

Military Exhibit.

The majority of the 7,000 articles which it requires to fit up the men for overseas will be on display in the educational building.

One of the great efforts to be made by the education of the fair will be in showing the farmer how he can produce more. This will be done by practical tractor demonstrations. Upwards of forty of these machines will be used, and every assistance given to those desiring advice on operating them. In conjunction with this demonstration will be the thrift campaign conducted by the domestic science staff. Here the careful housewife will be shown how to cook on the highest standard of efficiency with the least possible waste.

At present a small army of carpenters, painters, decorators, artists and all manner of mechanics are busily engaged in putting "the world's greatest annual" in shape. The interiors of the buildings are being transformed in many ways and many new booths being added to make way for the increased demands of the exhibitors. ducts of the fields and vineyards as the annual farm labor stress approaches, California is in bitter mood toward the I. W. W.

Within two weeks this state is likely to be confronted by the most critical moment in its industrial and labor history. Record crops have rewarded a great effort to help the nation, in the food crisis. So great are the crops that some authorities say that 40,000 more laborers than there is any chance of getting could be used to advantage.

chance of getting could be used to advantage.

The opportunity is a golden one for the agitators. If their influence is great enough they can have the state by the throat, It is perhaps in their power to reduce greatly the harvests by withholding labor thru direct action, or terrorism. The destruction of one group of warehouses by fire would mean the loss of $10,000,000 worth of grain. A few sticks of dynamite judiciously placed can destroy the crops on 170,000 acres in a single locality. There is abundant evidence that this stab-in-the-back attack is well financed. The money apparently comes thru stab-in-the-back attack is well financed. The money apparently comes thru Mexico, presumably from German sources. Mexican. Hindoo and Chinese laborers, long idle, are in ample funds. It is suspected that the plan is to luli the farmers into security by promises of abundant help, which will never be fulfilled. Then, when the producers are frantic at the prospect of total loss of their crops, they will, it is expected, make peace with the I. W. W. at any terms. Wholesale incendiarism is reckoned on to make the farmers amenable to I. W. W. reasons.

California farmers think the situation calls for a speedier sort of federal action than is provided by a grand jury. They say that on, the promise that labor would be provided they have raised immense crops. Now that the extra labor is not being delivered, they argue that it is up to the government to protect them against I. W. W. anarchy, desruction and terrorism.

Up to this time it has been the pol icy of official California to avoid ublicity regarding the I. W. W., on the theory that publicity would breed further offences and play into the hands of the agitators by suggesting imita-tion of the published crimes. This is now yielding to the belief that pub-licity will put everybody on guard. Unless the sternest measures are resorted to the I. W. W. may strike a blow in California that will stag-

SOUSA'S FAMOUS BAND

FEARED IN SOUTH Great Bandmaster and Composer Always Endeavors to Please Every Musical Taste.

The Sousa Library is the accumulation of thirty years or more, a getting together of the greater and lesser products of composers of all time and degrees, from the first down to the last. Nobody knows how many arrangements there are, multiple parts of each composition, but the number is so great that several large music rooms are required to house them. It may be inferred from this that when John Philip Sousa squares himself to make out programs for a tour, he has a colossal undertaking before him.

With such a mass of works and arrangements confronting him, it would seem almost like attempting to pick the choicest blossoms in a field of clover or a garden of roses; but Sousa is ever alive to the period in the matter of growing vegetables, but she grew them herself, and during the past week has seen the result of

Most military critics believe the battle may last a month, with far-reaching developments, gradually extending to the entire front.

WORKING HOURS OF BIRDS

Our hours are nothing to the birds. Why, some birds work in the summer sixteen hours a day. Indefatigably they clear the crops of insects. The thrush gets up at half-past two every summer morning. He falls to work at once and he never stops until half-past rine at night-a clean nineteen hours. During that time he feeds his voracious young 206 times. The slackbird starts to work at the same hour as the thrush, but he lays off earlier. Pils whistle blows at half-past seven, Tanks Win Glory.

thes. It is not in making advances, however, but in repelling counter-attacks that the troops sustain their heaviest losses.

After the beginning of the offensive, the guns moved forward early in the day, showing that the British higher command has solved the baffling problem of mobility for the arbillery, and implying an intention of rapidly following up the initial advance by other formidable attacks in an endeavor to break the German front and to restore a campaign of man couvre on the plains of Flanders. If so, the allies chose the wrong day for their opening advance, for rain which fell on the morning of the attack increased in torrential volume, and it ended all hopes of following up the advance for several days. Flanders has the most rainfall of any country in the world except, perhaps, Terrar del Fuego. It rains in Flanders on an average of 186 days a year, making the ground the reverse of ideal for campaigning by a modern army with its immense impediments of guns shells, pontoons, food and other stores.

Large Concentration

Correspondents on the spot reveal that a large allied concentration of force assembled on this front. The weight of massed artillery exceeded the weight of massed artillery exceeded the weight of the massed artillery exceeded to the weight of the massed artillery exceeded to weight of the massed artillery e

The first day's work equalled expec-tations. Its valuable gain comprised high ground which curves about Ypres. The scene of the advance consisted not only of the Ypres salient and the strip along the Ypres Canal, but the sec-tion of new front created by the chemy after his defeat of Massines Ridge. after his defeat of Messines Ridge. A large part of the ground captured comprises the strip of territory lost by the French and the Canadians in the German gas attack of the second battle of Ypres, May, 1915. Previous writers on the war have dwelt for ob-vious reasons on the defensive value of the Ypres salient, but the offen-sive value is incomparably the greater. The salient owed its birth to the attempt of Sir John French with numbers hopelessly inadequate for the task, to advance so as to seize Menin, task, to advance so as to seize Menin, use it as a pivot, swing round on a front between the Lys and Roulers, and get behind the line of the Scarpe, occupied by the Germans after the battle of the Marne in 1914. The Germans had too many troops, too many guns, and the valuable aid of their principal lines of railway from Berlin and Westphalia behind them to permit the success of the British effort. and Westphalia behind them to per-mit the success of the British effort. Particulars from Canadian Pacific Every British commander in chief by Every British commander-in-chief has made exhaustive studies of Marlbor- trict passenger agent, Toronto, Ont. ough's campaigns in Flanders, 200 years ago, and every one in the same theatre of the war would try to repeat his strategy.

Value of Advance

A mere advance into Belgium at this present juncture by the British would create tremendous military and politi cal difficulties for the German Govern-ment. If it merely had the partial success of driving the Germans from the coast and of occupying Antwerp the effect would reverberate thruout Germany and extend even to Constantinopie and Turkey. One of the prizes of the war that the enemy has been fighting to annex is Antwerp. This city has received advertisement as a prospective German possession from the pan-Germans for many years. All degrees of Germans desire to keep Antwerp in order to make it a menace to British sea power, and to force Holand into the German federation. It Germany then lost Antwerp, then all Germans could see that her arms were failing her, and that she was surey travelling downward towards defeat. The educated classes have being. They have begun to understand what is the allied strategy, what the what is the allied strategy, what the siege of Germany feally means. A mere victory over Russia would not lift the siege. A severe loss, such as Antwerp, Lille, or the lines of the Scarpe, would tell the German lower classes the dreadful story of steady downfall, and it would serve to weaken still further the popular support of the war. New Line Holds

The British advance, except for small section in the centre, attained all its objectives. The Germans im-mediately organized counter-attacks and regained St. Julien, but they failed in their attempts to regain the pre-cious high ground, found St. Julien untenable, and the British reoccupied the ruins of this village on Friday.

The waves of British infantry reached Langemarck, but fell back in the mists. Hollebeke is another objective towards which the British troops are proceeding in local attacks. The combined Anglo-French advance captured ten villages, including the celebrated Contrary to the German claim that the allies won a shell crater only, it is affirmed that they captured the strongest conceivable defences. The

The situation in Russia has ipmroved since last week. The Russian troops are fighting the enemy, the still retiring, whereas last week they retired without fighting. The anarchists and their dupes suffered severely from the measures of Gen. Korniloff. He has now assumed command of the Russian armies in the field because Brusiloff threw up his command in disgust at the doings of the provisional government.

Socialist Deputies Decide by Vote to Refuse His Resignation.

Paris, Aug. 4.—Socialist deputies in the chamber decided last night by a vote of 56 to 9 that Albert Thomas, minister of munitions and member of the war coun munitions and member of the war council, shall continue as a member of the government. After M. Thomas had given his reasons for remaining in office Jules Guesde, a former memter of the cabinet, supporting him, pointed out that in view of a recent resolution inviting Socialists to abstain from entering cabinets which are snimated by imperialist designs, the withdrawal of M. Thomas might be wrongly interpreted and give the central powers a pretext to accuse the French Government of pursuing a policy of conquest.

Somebody asked about the brief seasons that even supposedly successful pieces have been able to hold the boards in London in the last two years, and then "Chin Chin" and its unparalleled run in New York came in for comment. The producer testified:

"Yes, I know all about 'Chin Chin." Its music has not been released on this side, in phonograph records, sheet form or otherwise. The piece would exactly fill the London year this summer, and I know a manager who had contracted to bring it here.

But when you get the right libretto these times you can't possibly get music for it. If by luck you find a piece of music that serves your purpose there isn't a libretto to carry it. "Of course all this is temporary. There are composers in the world who can give us good music, but they haven't been trained to the specialty of making light opera stuff. There is no chance now for training men, for developing a new school for this kind of work. Doubtless the result will be in time a diffusion of this particular specialty art, but that doesn't help the poor devil with a house on his hands and not a piece in sight that the public will pay to hear."

Tubes That Reduce Tire Costs

Good tubes-Goodyear Tubes-will help you get that lower-tire-cost-per-mile that offsets your high gasoline cost-per-mile.

For the tube has a more than superficial bearing on tire costs. It may make or break a casing.

Consider the slow leak—a common feature of poor tubes. It is a nuisance, necessitating constant inflating. But it is more serious. It causes under-inflation—which ruins casings.

If tire costs matter to you—if greater mileage is desirable—choose tubes carefully. Choose Goodyear Tubes because they are fair to your tires.

Lamination is a quality-giving process. By it we insure air-tightness of a greater degree than is otherwise Fine rubber is rolled out thin as paper so that it can be rigidly inspected for leak-causing flaws. Then these transparent, perfect sheets are built up, layer on layer, into a Goodyear Tube. To perfect it we valcanize the valve patch in instead of sticking it on.

A Mistake of Motorists "One Tire is about as good as another".

Veterans know this is not true. The road-test has proved it wrong. If you are not riding on DOMINION TIRES, you will realize your mistake with the first set of "NOBBY TREADS" or "CHAIN TREADS" that you put on the car.

"NOBBY TREADS" are the heroes of the highway; as nearly puncture-proof as any tire can be; 100% motoring ease, pleasure and economy. Costing more to begin with, they give a net service in mileage and freedom from tire troubles, that make these "Aristocrats of the Road" the most economical on any car.

One tire isn't as good as another. DOMINION "CHAIN TREADS" are not as good as "NOBBY TREADS"—not as heavy; probably won't give the mileage; but then they don't cost as much. In their price-class, however, there is nothing to touch them for service.

Draws 3,200 Lbs. From Whitby TAKES ALL HILLS EASILY

This knex Traction Unit outfit, consisting of a 1912 Ford Runabout, Knex Traction Unit and an ordinary box bodywagon, with steel tires on rear wheels, drew a lead of 3,200 lbs. from Whitby and 4,500 lbs. from Newmarkst without the slightest trouble or delay, in quarter of the time that would have been taken by a horse-drawn wagon. The power from the Ford engine is so greatly increased by the use of the Knex Traction Unit that all of the hills on the trip were taken on high gear. Rough, rutty and deep sand roads did not affect the power of the engine or the speed of the outfit. This performance, which is an ordinary every-day occurrence for the Knex Traction Unit, demonstrated beyond any doubt the fact that the Knex is the final solution to the haulage problem. We are prepared to demonstrate the Knex Traction Unit for you at any time to suit your convenience.

Every eoal and ice dealer, contractor, wholesale grocer, lumber dealer, storage and moving van concept, farmer, general draymen—in fact all who handle heavy loads—can use the Knex Traction Unit for hauling at a greater profit than any other horse or power-drawn truck.

THE KNOX TRACTION IDEA

With the Knox, the change from horses and wagons is made at least cost, because horses are high, and it is unnecessary to buy wagens—and, as everybody knows, good second-hand pleasure cars are as numerous as rooters at a ball game. All you need buy new is the Knox Traction Unit itself.

The object of this appeal is to provide farm labor for the forthcoming harvast.

farm labor for the forthcoming harvest.

In the letter, it is pointed out, that while this call for national service may involve a sacrifice, men are invited to consider the fact that thousands of Canadians are today submitting to untold discomforts, risking their health and yielding their lives in the great struggle in France and Flanders for a remuneration of $1.10 per day.

It is also pointed out that every man who is accustomed to manual labor and most of those who are physically able to practice out of door sports. Will be quite able to render useful services in the harvest fields. In this time of national stress the appeal is to men of all classes that for a great national purpose they shall give temporary aid in harvesting Canada's abundant crops, a portion of which will otherwise be lost. All classes are now soldiering and performing the hardest sort of manual labor at the front.

The national service board has on record the names of over 300,000 men, who on their national service carfs, indicated their willingness to change their occupations in order to undertake essential work.

WOOD USED WITH FLOUR

Rice, Barley and Vegetables Now Employed as Adulterants.

London: War bread has been giving the people of all the European countries a vast amount of worry lately. It is made in different ways in different countries, but the theory of it is pretty much the same everywhere. Inasmuch as there is not enough wheat to permit the people enough wheat to permit the people to use wheat bread to the extent they formerly have, the laws and regulations have required that other cereals or vegetables should be mixed with wheat ficur.

In England, rice, barley and Indian corn have been the most important ingredients used as adulterants. On the continent, however, a considerable variation.

The Dagland, Fice, barley and Indian Corn have been the most important in England. For many years travelmake variety of vegeties, a coordinate that the chemists have discovered at treatment for certain kinds of wood pulp which makes it possible to use it as an adulterant. Wood bread, it is needless to say, is not particularly popular, despite the assurange of the scientists that it is a a first-class food. U. S. Has Advantage.
The United States has one great advantage over any of the European countries except Italy in this regard because of the established taste for corn bread. Unfortunately for for corn bread. Unfortunately for England and France, they never were willing to learn the tastefulness of properly prepared corn. If the English people were willing today to use corn bread and griddle cakes on the breakfast table to the extent they are used in America it would be unnecessary to mix corn median unnecessary to mix corn meal with wheat flour. The result would be that good corn bread could be eaten at breakfast, and indeed at other meals and genuine wheat bread would be possible at other times.

As it is, the only way to get the Britisher to eat corn is to disguise it in the mixture with bread flour, with the result that the combina-tion is thoroly undesirable. It doesn't possess the nutritive quality nor the tastefulness of either wheat bread or corn bread.

Much attention has been devoted lately by serious minded people to the necessity for culinary reform

Try a Week at Grimsby

You'll Come Back Again ---Year After Year

HERE'S no other vacation-resort quite like Grimsby. No spot in Canada has a finer situation-and not one can compare with it in convenience and comfort. It is so easy to get to—so delightful when you are there. In scenic splendor it rivals the much-talked-of expensive resorts—even in the mountains or at the seashore you will not get better air. There's health in the pine-laden breezes that sweep across its beautiful park. There's much to do to while away the summer hours in summer comfort—bathing, boating, fishing. And the paths through the Pine Grove are just the thing for those who would rather walk than paddle. In short, Grimsby is an ideal vacation resort—with the unique advantage of being near the city and easy to get to.

A Fine Cuisine at the LAKEVIEW

This hotel is one of the features that make Grimsby Beach the wonderful Resort it is. With a cuisine such as you'd expect at a much more expensive resort, the Lakeview caters to families of refinement and discrimination. A quiet, comfortable, "homey" hotel—in the heart of a beautiful group of pine trees and with spacious verandahs overlooking Lake Ontario. Sixty-five splendid rooms, with electric lighting and modern appointments.

Write W. D. Twynam manager, Lakeview Hotel, Grimsby Beach, or ask at office of Canada Steamship Lines (Toronto representatives), 46 Yonge St., Toronto.

How to Get to Grimsby

Boat service takes you to Grimsby in a little over two hours. Boat leaves Toronto early every week-day, with an extra boat every Wednes-day and Saturday afternoon. Business men spending Sunday at the Beach can return to town by a special early-morning boat on Monday.

estimated that over three million people annually in this country alone are taking Nuxated Iron. Such astonishing results have been reported from its use both by doctors and laymen, that a number of physicians in various parts of the country have been asked to explain why they prescribe it so extensively, and why it apparently produces so much better results than were obtained from the oid forms of inorganic iron.

Extracts from some of the letters re-ceived are given below: Dr. Ferdinand King, a New York Physician and Medical Author, says:

"There can be no vigorous iron men without iron. Pailor means anaemia. Anaemia means iron deficiency. The skin of anaemic men and women is pale. The flesh flabby. The muscles lack tone, the brain fags and the memory falls and they often become weak, nervous, irritable, despondent and melancholy. When the iron goes from the blood of women, the roses go from their cheeks.

In the most common foods of America, the starches, sugars, table syrups, candies, polished rics, white bread, soda crackers, biscuits, macaroni, spaghetti, tapioca, sago, farina, degerminated cornmeal, no longer is iron to be found. Refining processes have removed the iron of Mother Barth from these impoverished foods, and silly methods of home cookery, by throwing down the waste-pipe the water in which our vegetables are cooked are responsible for another grave iron loss.

As the present shaft is near the easten boundary of the property, development has been towards the western or central part of the property, where it will be necessary to sink a permanent working shaft of sufficient capacity to take care of the large tonnage of ore which is now in sight. Near the new or which is now in sight. Near the new or central shaft a mill and power plant will be erected. The mill will have an initial daily capacity of 150 tons and will be so constructed that another unit can be added at any time at a minimum cost.

Torrid Weather Causes Closing of New York Exchange on Saturday.

New York. Aug. 4.—(Financial Review.)—Trading was at the low-cest ebh of the year on the stock exchange this week, the torrid weather causing the officials of that institution to suspend the week-end session. Price changes were almost wholly towards higher levels, however, the advance being attended by a further reduction of the short interest.

One of the chief factors sentimentally was the marvelous showing of the United States Steel Corporation for the second quarter.

Other industrials, notably the more conspicuous war issues, also moved forward, their improvement being predicated on the actual or prospective placing of large orders by the home government. Metals also participated in the rise, coppers being in general demand at higher quotations.

Aside from an enlarged inquiry for low-priced issues, rails were duil and without substantial change, probably in consequence of the publication of June reports, some of which disclosed severe losses in net earnings. Crop advices gave greater promise and cotton carriers reflected the strength of the market for that staple.

Peace rumors had their usual place in the week's developments, together with a steady outflow of gold, most of which was consigned to Japan. Such alteration as occurred in the foreign excitange market was adverse to this centre in the main, rates on neutral countries again rising quite generally. Rupture Appliances

On Monday Mr. Kyte of Richmond, N. S., led a discussion upon the high cost of living, and the profits on bacon of the Wm. Davies Company, based upon the now 'amous report of W. F. O'Connor, K.C. Mr. Kyte labored to show that the Davies Company was making an unconscionable profit as middlemen handling the necessities of life. He especially dwelt upon the fact that Canadian bacon, cheese and flour sell for less in England than in Canada, Strangely enough he did not dwell, upon the enormous spread between what the farmer gets for the hog and what the consumer pays for his bacon.

Hon. T. W. Crothers, minister of labor, was placed in a somewhat awkward predicament. Mr. O'Connor is an official of his department, and no one doubts that he has done remarkably good work. Yet, another commission having been appointed to overhaul the O'Connor report, and possibly to upset it, Mr. Crothers felt constrained to admit that the report had its deficiencies. The opposition will appeal to a good many people in this crusade against the ipparently extortionate prices now iharged for so many necessaries to the consumer. The government has scarcely answered the case by appointing a food yontroller, desirable as it was that such an official should be appointed. Mr. Hanna is a man of ability, but he is, unfortunately, associated in the public mind with the most odious monopoly on the American continent. Moreover he

The conscription debate in the senate proved to be more bitter than the debate in the house of commons. The Liberals who opposed conscription did so more boldly, and men like Senator Edwards talked almost like Nationalists. Indeed, someone suggested that when Senator Edwards bought Mr. Bourasse's model farm in Montebello, he must also have acquired the library.

On the other hand many of the speeches in favor of conscription went further, and were more vehement than the speeches in support of the bill which were delivered in the green chamber. The senate early Saturday morning gave conscription its second reading; it will get to its final stage without much further discussion.

Flying shepherds may add a pictursque touch to life on western sheep ranches if the plans of a wealthy Montana herdsman prove to be as practicable as they are original. Last season 2600 of the rancher's sheep wancable as the control of the rancher's sheep wandered into the hills and perished. Therefore he has purchased a biplane and has been receiving instruction at Los Angeles in its operation. He expects to patrol the ranch with the air craft and locate missing flocks. By dropping smoke bombs positions will be marked. The machine is to be equipped with radio apparatus so as to be in communication apparatus so as to be in communication apparatus so as to be in communication with the pack train. British Shipyard Rushes Work On Huge New-Type Submarines something better to show, but if so it still remains a secret.

From the first days of the war everything appertaining to submarines has been enveloped in secrecy. For a time we received reports of ships that had been torpedoed, but now the admiralty supplies the public with no names of the ships lost or their tonnage. Much has been written about the various devices employed in snaring submarines, but never has there been any official statement for public consumption. Columns and columns have been published about the activities of the Uboats, but rarely is there is a line printed about British submarines.

The British navy has been shrouded in mystery, and no department of it has been more jealously guarded from the eyes of the outside world than that of the submarine is a submarine.

that of the submarine.

The submarine is a surprise weapon. More than any other fighting implement, the submarine depends upon the slement of stealth. And that secrecy element of stealth. And that secrecy which covers its movements at sea hegins at the time its keel is laid under a shed guarded by armed soldiers. The principle upon which the submarine tructors, but every month finds some mprovement made in the complicated nery of the boat.

I had an opportunity of seeing the interior of the latest British subnaterior of the latest British sub-narine but even if I was permitted to than putting together the wheels and size makes their pre-war output seem almost negligible. Teday they are rushing work on submurines just as if Admiral Jellicoe had Admiral Capelle's job to do. If the Vickers yard were in Bremen instead of Barrow the new British food controller would have a whole lot more to worr im. Some of their boats are big enough to accept a challenge from a destroyer or even a light cruiser.

There are a few Americans who per-sistently underrate their country and spread great chunks of gloom around whenever anything is said about the part America can play in the war. But, after a visit to one of the great munition factories, such as Vickers, Americans get a real appreciation of Briggs' "Ain't It a Grand and Glorious Feelin'?" First you look at one of these new sea marvels, and ther your guide takes you into an engine shop and says something like this: "See those rows of machines! They came from America. So busy over here we have had to get most of our new plant from the States. See those new engines! American type. Strong and reliable. We are using them in our new submarines. Where are we setting our steel plates? America. You people have made lots of money out of us, but I don't know what we should have done without you."

Crews Number Fifty Men.

I am not permitted to state the number of submarines Vickers have built since the beginning of the war can I give the length and tonnage of the latest, but you may get dea of the size when you know that it takes a crew of nearly fifty to run one. They can submerge in less than a minute and they have a surface speed considerably exceeding that of a Sandy Hook steamboat. These undersea boats can remain away from their bases as long as, if not longer than, the best Germany has produced. Every one has a pho negraph and some miniature cinemas to amuse the men while the boat rests on the bed of the sea off a German port sometimes for a period of 24 hours. At best life aboard a submarines is tedious, dangerous and irksome, but the new boats are equipwas impossible to install in the cramped quarters of the earlier types.

Pre-War Boats Pigmies.

There seems to be no limit in size in the building of submarines. The last three years have brought a type which makes the pre-war boat look like a pigmy, and still the naval constructors are not satisfied. The de-velopment in submarine construction has been as rapid as the progress made in airplane building. Some day in the near future there may be a submarine as long as a transatlantic namenger steamer.

they commit cruel acts, the German U-boat sailors are brave and Mful men. One of Germany's greatand to train them for submarine work. The motion of a submarine makes for seasickness, no matter how experienced the sailor. Before a new crew goe out it is necessary for it to spend a month or six weeks in training un monun or six weeks in training under conditions approximating as nearly as possible those at sea. Germany has lost a great number of submarines, and she has been compelled to draw heavily on her regular navy to make good the losses in men.

On the other hand, Britain, primerily a nation of seamen, has a much marity a nation of seamen, has a much larger supply of material from which to draw submarine crows. The inde-

Alongside a light cruiser in the naval construction yards of Vickers, finds no difficulty in forming crews Limited, I saw a long, whale-backed craft which looked for all the world like one of the grain-carrying ships of the Great Lakes; in the office of the plant I saw a model of an undersea boat built in the same yards a few years ago, and it looked like one of the toys which delight the young skippers of the Prospect Park Lake in Brooklyn. Put these submarines side by side and one begins to appreciate the development in undersea construction in the short span of years since the war started. The latest type of British sallor, and the royal navy finds no difficulty in forming crews as fast as there are boats to fill. If conditions were reversed, and Britain had the submarine offensive instead of the defensive, the toll of shipping would undoubtedly run much higher. Not even Von Tirpitz realized in July, 1914, that the submarine would had a submarine have exceeded the expectations of everyone. It was not until near the end of the first campaign that Germany decided to concentrate on the building of submersibles, and to use them as her chief (fensive weapon. Just as airplanes have made this primarily a war of positions in which armies take to trenches instead of fighting in the open, the submarine has revolutionized sea fighting, making it necessions. positions in which armies take to trenches instead of fighting in the open, the submarine has revolution-ized sea fighting, making it neces-sary for dreadnoughts and super-dreadnoughts to stick close to their bases and await "der Tag."

There have been fights between submersibles, but some day there is going to be a real tussle between two of the giants of the British and German navies. That fight will be more thrilling and spectacular than anything this war has produced. It ordinary when resting on the floor of a gun-mounting shop alongside of several others, but if it rested in the turret of a battleship off Sandy Hook and was pointed at New York City it would be semething else again.

They are building that type of guns at Vickers as well as 18-pounders, the British equivalent to the French "75." The 18-pounder, as it is turned out, has all the features of the "75." That is a direct result of the grand alliance, in which interests are pooled in the common cause. For years the secrets of the "75" were carefully guarded by the French, but now they are shared with the British.

The long-barrelled naval gun has Batteries and lamks, wheels and levers, speaking tubes and electric buttons are so mixed up that all the novice gets is a feeling he has stepped inside the storeroom of an overstocked hardware store. But even a novice can see at a glance that everything has a certain function to perform, and that the multiplicity of devices forms a harmonious whole. It takes considerable time to build the hull of a submarine and even longer to construct and instal its "vitals."

Vickers' Yard is Busy.

by G. Wardell, who beat Williams with a great shot. Reid and Forsythe next put in some clever, play. Valentine was pulled up for offside, as was Dobson at the other end. Gow dribbled cleverly past two defenders, his final effort going to Valentine, who was robbed in the act of shooting. Flay remained in the Ulster half until Allen cleared with a longkick. Long obtained possession and passed to Forsythe, who put in a terrific shot, which Wenthorne saved brilliantly at the expense of a corner. Two other corners followed in rapid succession, but nothing came from them.

Ulster now pressed strongly and Dobson passed cleverly to Long, who again scored, giving Wenthorne no chance. The imperials came back again and Purdie cleared, giving away a corner in doing w. Reid raced away on the left and entred the tall, it going behind after being played by Ure. From the resulting corner kick, well placed, by Reid, Cummings scored a fourth goal. Shortly after this Dobson added a fifth at close range. Undismayed by this, the Imperials attacked, and Valentine had hard luck in not scoring when in front of the goal. From a combined movement between the Irish forwards, Dobson added the sixth goal. The Ulster trio on the left. Adgey, Reid and Forsythe, are showing great understanding, which augurs well for Torontos on Monday. Money next made a great run, beating Adgey and Purdy, his final shot only missing its mark by a couple of inches. At the other end, Dobson beat Wenthorne close in, giving the goalie no chance.

Following this ... Forsythe went thru from the half line and tested the Imperial goalkeeper again with a fast shot, which he cleverly saved.

The weather bad turned very hot when the game was resumed. In spite of the large score the Imperials are putting up a good game and the score is not directly an indication of the play, the Ulster were decidedly superior, particularly in front of goal.

In the opening stages of the second half the Imperials attacked and Money, beating two defenders, sent in a splendid shot, which Williams cleared. G. Forsythe and Reid passed the ball up the length of the field and showed wonderful control. Both sides attacked in turn, long and Gorg making good efforts at long and Gow making good efforts at scoring. Allen cleared from Valentine when the last named was in a danger-

OGAMES STAGED Five of Larry's Leafs Are Hitting Over Three Hundred

Frank Truesdale Shifts George Whiteman Out of Second Place-Manager Lajoie Still the Leader---The Averages.

GOOD CROWD ATTENDS sult there was considerable of a shake-up in the batting averages.

Manager Larry Lajoie picked up again and added four points to his mark and still is the leader.

Frank Truesdale is playing sterling ball since he joined the local club and has turned in a batting average of .325 for 19 games. This is an increase of 13 points in a week.

Larry now has five .300 hitters on his club. The Montreal series to date has been the heaviest clubbing affair of the season and it is noticeable in the averages. Whiteman, Schultz and Altenberg are the others in the charmed circle.

Lena Blackburne, the hustling infielder, had a great week. He gathered 16 hits in the nine games and tacked on 20 points to his average. Jacobson continues to improve and put on three points.

George Whiteman fell off, but he can be relied on to pick up during the next week. Whiteman is still the leading run-scorer with 74 runs in 101 games.

The averages, including Friday's game, are as follows:

First Half.

Sunderland kicked off and midfield play was the order for a short time. until the Filers got the ball started to wards Sunderland goal, which was in danger for a few moments; then play was transferred to the other end, where Sunderland succeeded in getting the ball inside the fliers' goal, but it was declared offside. A few minutes later they tried again and almost succeeded, Bleakley just managing to tip the ball over the top of the net. The play now grew very fast, the ball traveling from end to end. EDITORIAL

Juggling With Food Issue!

By way of explanation for the heading of this editorial, let me say, it has been my custom from time to time to devote a certain amount of space to some of the current issues. Apparently, a great many people are reading those editorials, for nearly every mail brings a batch of letters either approving or disapproving my views. I can say though, that the greater number of letters are favorable. What I have to say at this time is due to a number of letters that have reached me during the last few days are. have to say at this time is due to a number of letters that have reached me during the last few days asking "why I have not said anything on the high cost of living"? Some weeks ago, when Mr. Hanna was appointed, I took occasion to make some observations of a congratulatory character on the Honorable gentleman's appointment. His previous record as a public man, and his well known integrity and fearlessness, led me to hope for an aggressive handling of the food question, and I had high hopes that ere this we would have seen something of a tangible character as a result of the appointment. It is most regrettable to find that there are few indications to lead one to think that Mr. Hanna is fully seized of the regrettable to find that there are few indications to lead one to think that Mr. Hanna is fully seized of the great opportunity he has, or that as yet, he has become fully cognizant of what the public expect from him. He has been generous in giving us all advice and warming, that we should not eat as rapaciously as of yore, and that we should make an effort to get along with the common necessities of life. Obviously, the Honorable Food Controller has been laboring under the delusion that the average weekly wage carner has been faring sumptuously on bacon at 40 to 45 cents a pound, butter at 45 to 55 cents, bread at 11 to 12 cents, and eggs at 45 to 50 cents.

Mr. Hanna mildly enjoined us to allow our preferences to run to FISH, and immediately the finny tribe rebelled at the bare suggestion of playing second fiddle to old King Meat, and jumped to 25 cents per lb., just to be fashionable. But there is still hope. At one of those "pink tea" affairs which are now so frequent in Mr. Hanna's repertoire, he very naively, hinted that "IF HE HAD TO CONTROL PRICES—HE COULD DO IT." The manner in PRICES—HE COULD DO IT." The manner in which it was said leads me to believe that the Honorable Food Controller has had new visions, and the "profiteers" will have to get off the trail some time before

SHAWNEE COUNTRY CLUB PRO. TOURNEY

New York, August 4 .- One of the few open tournaments in which professional golfers will have a chance to compete for "real" money is carded for the links of the Shawnee Coun-try Club, August 8 and 9. For several years the "pros." have been play-ing for the Shawnee shield and attractive purses, but because of war conditions many have been wondering of late if the original program would hold good. That the affair is very much on may be realized from a glance at the following prize list: First, $250, a gold medal and the name of the winner engraved on the trophy; second, $150 and a silver medal; third, $75; fourth, $50; fifth, $40; sixth, $20; seventh, $15; eighth, $10. In addition to the foregoing there is a $25 prize for the best eighteen hole score made during the tournament. Should the event be won by an amateur he will receive a suitable

In speaking of this annual compe tition, Charles C. Worthington, president of the Shawnee Country Club, said: "You see we are putting the money entirely in the hands of the professionals, which is where it belongs. My view is that they long ago as a body of men showed that it is perfectly safe to rely upon their doing their duty so far as contribut-ing to war relief work is concerned ing to war relief work is concerned without instructions or inducements from any outsiders. If any one of them can afford to contribute to the war relief I believe he will do so without any oheck or resolution on the part of committees, and where he cannot afford it he certainly is entitled to keep what money he can sarn in the line of his profession."

BALL TEAM HAS WON

This Number of Consecutive Games Will Probably Stand as Amateur Record.

Uittsburg, Aug. 1.—Ninety-three consecutive baseball victories! It's quite a record—a record that is likely to stand for some time to come even in the amateur ranks. The Oakland Rebels, an amateur team of this city, have won nineteen straight games the season and in the last three seasons have won a total of ninety-three games without being defeated. The modern record in professional baseball for consecutive games won was established by the Glants last year, when the New York club won twenty-six before it was defeated.

In 1869 the old Cinciunati Rieds went thru the season without being defeated, winning eighty-one games. No record has ever been kept for consecutive victories in amateur baseball, but it is reasonable to assume that the Oakland Revels have as good a claim to a record as any.

IS JOHNSON THRU AS TENNIS CHAMPION?

New York, Aug. 4.—William H. Johnston's tennis again is the main topic of discussion among the devotees of the sport. Four years ago the Californian signaled his debut in the Californian signaled his debut in the east by winning at Longwood his first tournament on grass. Great things were predicted for him. For two years he failed to live up to them, and then all of a sudden uncovered his real form by winning the national title in remarkable style. Last year he was just short of his 1915 form. His appearances in the east this year have been disastrous. On winning in Longwood in 1913 he was compared with McLoughlin. Again this ed himself out.

Second Half.

On resuming, play was mostly towarus the fliers' end for a time, but soon turned into end-to-end play, which was very fast and exciting, both teams being pretty evenly matched. Sunderland's goal was in danger a number of times, las was the fliers' also. Just before the whistle blew for full time Sunderland scored, but it was declared offside. Immediately foll-wing this they tried again and May succeeded in making the final score: Sunderland 1, R.F.C. 0.

And Jones is about right. Those who have seen the star of the Browns in action, call Sisler the ideal player. He has a powerful physique, a mighty arm, a wonderful judgment as to pitched balls, and is a wizard in fielding and a whirlwind on the sacks. TRAPSHOOTING IS A GROWING SPORT: RIVALS BASEBALI

the last five years the number has swelled to the enormous total of 700,-000 in Canada and the United States. The money expended by these men and women runs away up into the millions. In all, about 36 million clay rocks are "killed" each year, and, deducting the number not destroyed, the cost of these would be about $270,000. Competent authorities estimate that each shooter fires about 500 rounds of ammunition in a year, and on this basis the item for shells alone totals nearly $12,000,000 annually.

Traveling expenses and dues to gun clubs on the basis of $60 per person would account for another $40,000,000. Another big figure is the cost for guns. The trap shooter is very particular about his gun. One instance of the excessive expense that some shooters go to may be mentioned. B. M. Shanley, of Newark, examateur champion of New Jersey, paid $750 for a single shot trap gun, it is not unusual to find some of the men paying $350 for their guns. However, taking the average as only $40. not unusual to find some of the men paying $350 for their guns. However, taking the average as only $40 the amount invested on the guns, allowing one to each of the shooters, and many have more, is $27,000,000.

The growth of the sport can be shown by other statistics. In 1913 the number of contestants in registered ments in America was 7014, a year later it was 7849; in 1915 it was 8140 and in 1916 10,528. The numbe of tournaments for these respecti years were 286, 314, 333 and 546.

THE demand for a closed body for all-year driving has brought into effect Saxon "Six" Sedan. No expense has been spared to make this not only a serviceable closed car, but one that possesses all the refinements and improvements sought for in a car of this class.

The body is of metal, of the touring sedan type. The windows are designed to drop into the body for pleasant-weather driving and are easily raised into place for stormy or severe days.

The upholstering is over-stuffed with a grey all-wool Bedford whipcord covering. The front seats are of a divided Pullman type. There is a pitch to these seats which increases the riding comfort and makes for easier handling of the car. The back seat is of ample width and breadth to allow three people to ride in perfect comfort. perfect comfort.

Raggs' Weekly Letter

The Farmlet.

Up-North-and-Beyond.

My Dear Toronto-Onters: Today 1 came across the "creed" of the late William Winter, veteran dramatic critic of America—a man who criticized flercely, for its own good, the works and activities of the stage, but held the players in a rare reverence. If any man living was able to speak of the private lives of the actors, it was Winter; for while not of them, he lived among them for a long lifetime; and, accordingly, he loved them. No one was more scathing in criticism of stage unworthly, for he loved at as an artist loves his studio, and jeal-ously guarded it from calumny. He spoke of the characters played by Mrs. Patrick Campbell as "a long processory" and the thrillers of Bayard Veiller, while not office and the characters played by Mrs. Patrick Campbell as "a long processory" and the thrillers of Bayard Veiller, while not office building in New York. At one time unkind things were said from New York pulpits of stage people, and his reply was the following "Creed of a Dramatic Critic," published in The N. Y. Tribune, on which paper he was critic for forty-four years:

"I believe the theatre, as an institution, to be intrinsically as powerful for good as the church is; and I know that it is far more interesting. I believe that the members of the dramatic rofession, as a class, are as moral and as respectable as the members of I believe that the theatre, had management and bad public inice-to evil propensities that are in human nature—is of the greates benefit to society; and that, rightly administered, it is a blessing to civili-

That "bad public influence" phrase contains the germ of a sorry truth! Perhaps if the public had some realiration of what stage people are they might, for their sakes, if not for their own, stop flocking, for curiosity's sake, to unhealthy plays. The public could so easily influence a certain type of manager-whose most sensitive point s the box office—to cease choosing dramas for production that are beast-

If you, Mr. Business Man, had to find a new Position every September, wouldn't you, for the sake of your family, take what offered? And yet when that wave of "problem plays" swept over New York, and consequently the whole country, a few years ago many actors and actresses jeopardized their future (in the eyes of their friends) by frankly telling influential managers that

I wonder if the woman with the "stingy" husband came across the rhyme or the "legal adrice" first when wonder which of the wo items made her feel most like crying?

We have some laws in Canada that, it seems to me, ought to be rent asunder—and here's hoping that the newly-made women-citizers will see about it!

Perhaps you think here were probably faults on both sdes in this case—perhaps the woman was a movie fan, or a whiskey tippler, and it wasn't safe to give her mokey to squander.

One-third of a pound of roast beef or 4 eggs a day would supply all this protein but, because some protein is found in nearly all foods—milk, bread, etc., only a small portion of meat or the "high-protein" foods should ever be used. And these high-proteins are high-priced. But then we have "formed the habit" and with most of us habit means—a necessity.

BISMARCK'S MEMOIRS.

London.-When Bismarck died he left instructions that the concluding portions of his memoirs should not teresting by laying all the emphasis upon what few dramatic features they may possess. The result is an utterly false picture, albeit a lively one. Thus in covering a meeting of some scientific body a reporter will devote much less of his story to the announcement of a revolutionary discovery in analytical chemistry than to the account of a squabble over the presidency of the organization. Few people are pass/onately interested in chemistry, but everybody likes a row.—Deems Taylor in Century.

Any correspondent can fool any paper is once; but it is to the credit of editors that an over-imaginative correspondent rarely gets a second chance to exercise his talents. After all, the principal reason why our press does not print lies is that newspaper men as a class are honest, considered to their code, strictly hone orable. Certain things may be permitted by that code that strike the layman as peculiar, but deliberate mendacity is not one of them.

News is not merely the unknown, or the unusual; it is the unusual in which the average person is likely to be interested. This average person is the cause of much distortion of news values. A great many things so on in the world that are important and deserving of record, but in which the average man is not interested at all. After his death began the downfall and decline of the Serbian Empire, owing partly to the internal disagreement and partly to alternate attacks of Hungarians and Turks. But still, when Lazar Grebelyansvich, descendant of Dushan the Great, or Czar Stephen Dushan ascended the Serbian throne, in 1371, the Serbian Empire was strong enough to defeat, first Hungarians, and little later, in the famous lattle of Plotchnik, Turks, who lost nearly all their troops in the mountains of Montenegro.

But all this usexampled courage and resistance on the part of Serbians was not strong enough to check the steady progress and advance of the savage and barbarous Turks. Provoked by the unique Serbian endurance, Turkish Sultan Amurath I.

friend overseas who is twenty-seven. I met him in the summer, but I did not have a proper introduction to him.

He is a very nice young man. I have met his people several times, and they have treated me very well. I live with my aunt and I have introduced him to her and the rest of the family. They approve of him, except for the way in which I became acquainted with him.

Now, dear Annie Laurie, I want you to tell me if it is right for me to keep on corresponding with him. I think a lot of him, and he says he does of me, and he thinks a lot of receiving letters from me. He has asked me several times for a photo of myself. Would it be right for me to send him one? Hoping to see a reply to this as soon as possible.

CATHERINE: It is indeed unfortunate that you were not properly introduced to the young man, Catherine. But I can see no real good reason for breaking the friendship now when it has been growing for so long a time, especially as your families know of your friendship for each other.

It is never a wise thing for a girl to give her photo to a man to whom she is not engaged. I like to think that our soldier boys ought to have especial courtesies and attentions, but don't you think it would be better to wait a while before sending the picture? Just now themails are a trille uncertain, too, on the delivery of photos.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am deeply in love with a nice young man who is a doctor. I am eighteen years of age, and he is twenty-nine. I can't help thinking of him all the time. I think by his actions he loves me, but he never says so, and I would like to know if he does really love me. Could you tell me how to find out?

ESTHER.

ESTHER: I think the best way to find out is to be careful of your actions, sure of your dignity and then wait until he tells you, little sir!. I hardly think he cares for you, for a man of twenty-nine does not usually care for a sirl of only eighteen.

Wouldn't it be better not to think so much about him? I believe it wouldnesses the property of th

Under nutrition often leads to excitability of the nervous system. Many cases of neurasthenia, nervousness and hysteria are improved by a plentiful diet. The lack of phosphorous in the diet may be a great drawback to under nutrition of brain workers, and neurasthenics, the greatest reproaches to our civilization and culture.

If the state could only believe these things and see that the poorer children are well nourished even at the state's expense I believe the money would be returned many fold and we would not have to pay nearly as much for the maintainance of hospitals, workhouses, reformatories, and prisons as we do to-day.

The cretinous child should have a diet ontaining phosphorous and lime, zs. well as the thyroid treatment. The adult student whose mental faculties have become impaired might seek medical advice upon the same diet and be well re-come impaired might seek medical advice upon the same diet and be well repaid.

The diet of the brain worker should be well adapted for his work. When creative work is to be done, such as the formulating of new ideas, a meat and fish diet with eggs and green vegetables might be taken in rational quantities. For scholars, musician composers, who wish to elaborate some new ideas, such a diet with meat and fish once a day would be indicated.

When it is desired to carry out the details of an already established program and do this with a clear head and a quiet mind, a milk-egg vegetable diet with meat excluded, retaining the fish would be best. This diet should be largely a vegetable diet. For bookkeepers, cashiers, etc., who require accuracy will do well on a diet containing a little meat and largely vegetable diet. Their industry would far exceeed those of the meat eaters, even the manager would do well on a milk egg vegetable diet and he might not lose nearly so much in his speculation, if any. To prove some of these things experiments have been performed on animals and man, and these are the conclusions of all larger men.

The hunting dog should be given meat

The hunting dos should be given meat The hunting dos should be given meat daily to successfully perform his tasks. When deprived of such a diet becomes vecless as a successful tracker and cannot scent out his game. The car-dog does better work on less neat and more carbohydrates. Therefore, phyhical work is largely carried on at the expense of carhohydrates and mental work cannot be accomplished without a sufficient supply of albumen, and according to Rubner albumen is the greatest producer of energy. It is, however, particularly difficult to generalize, but a mental worker must use moderation in eating and drinking. As a beverage rich in phosphorous I might suggest cocoa or a glass of milk with an egg in it.

Vater at meal time is bad for it checks the flow of gastric juices to the stomach. Childed water causes the flow of gastric juices and often stimulates an appetite before meals or the appetite seems to come while we are eating if we take a drink of water just before eating. This may help the flow of gastric juices where the patient is neurasthenic and the mind fails to produce the flow of gastric juice. Mineral waters containing some form of carbonic gas are often used for this purpose.

Coffee—Over indulgence in coffee and tea will cause a change in the tone of the blood vessels and a constant diation of the vessels will cause bad effects. Yet when one longs for slimulation and does govern his appetite, coffee is an excellent stimulant, yet without nourislment, except for the milk and sugar we may take with it. The Arabian shepherd with his flock grazing upon the coffee bean, noticed they were always lively and active after grazing upon these beans. While coffee contains caffine 1.16 per cent. and tannic acid 4.56 per cent., which when taken in large quentiles are injurious we cannot confine 1.16 per cent, and tannic acid 4.56 per cent., which when taken in large quentities are injurious, we cannot condemn its use in these times of war when we have to draw upon our reserves of energy, strength, patience and contentment, and we can accomplish this sometines with coffee, the drink the Mohammedans consider as a gift of God on account of their abstinence from alcohol. The finer the aroma the better the taste and stimulant. Distilled water also helps its taste. Restaurant frequenters are hardly ever served with fine tasting coffee, due to the fact that they make a supply lasting the whole day and deal out the black soup as it is required, its exhilarating effect is due to its caffine content, which excites the central nervous system. Owing to the increased blood pressure coffee should be forbidden where the patient suffers from arterio-scierosis (hardening of artery walls). Coffee is not indicated in stomach troubles.

To neutralize the tannic acid Roberts recommends that a small quantity of bicarbonate of soda be placed in the teacup. The taste is not affected he claims.

Tea contains a substance identical with caffeine called theine, this also has a stimulating effect upon the nervous system in many cases more so than caffeine. It should not be given to nervous persons any more than coffee, however, everyone cannot do without these drinks since they are injurious to certaince individuals, hence they should be diffuted with milk, which also aids in the tannic acid being made less injurious.

Camille Corot was born in Paris in 1796. His father was a tradesman. Everything was very cosy in the Corot home. The father did well in his trade, so he had plenty of money to make his family comfortable, write Olive B Home and Katharine L. Scobey, in their "Stories of Great Artists."

In the summer time the Corot family did not stay in Paris. They had a pretty little home in the country. Near the house was a large pond. Camille was always glad to leave the hot, dusty streets of Paris. It was so cound shady under the trees by the pond.

ROMANCE AND HISTORY IN STORY OF KINGSTON

denote that Kingston, good old Kingston, has produced some nation builders.

There is not, perhaps, a city in central Canada that has such an ideal location. It is almost at the extreme east end of the beautiful lake and where it joins the St. Lawrence, Kingston might properly be called the gateway of the Thousand Islands. Thousands of tourists and excursionlists pass the port on a holiday joint each week during the summer months from the upper lake ports to Montreal or thru the islands. The Cataraqui, River, which is now the southern end of the Rideau Canasi, connects the city with the Dominion capital. To the west the clear waters of Lake Ontario unobstruct the view to the horizon. Some three miles to the south is seen the pretty and also productive Wolfe Island. It is some 20 miles long and a great many splendid farms produce a good living to those who will work them. The pleasure seeker often makes an excursion trip there to fish, etc.; others prefer to take a trip up the Rideau, to the Bay of Quints, or perhaps across the lake to the American town of Cape Vincent. Also commercially Kingston is excellently located. Its barbor is alive with fleets of vessels bringing down grain from the upper lakes. All the largest steamers, pleasure or freight, plying on the St. Lawrence and the eastern, provide excellent railway facilities.

Industrial Centre.

As a manufacturing centre the city is not to be forgotten. The largest mercantile concern is the Canadian Locomotive Co, which turn out scores of large monul engines, which are now running all over Canada. There is also a knitting mill, textific mill, a tannery, two drydcokes, a foundty, two of large transport of the city and the company of the city and the control of the city and the contro

The village has a history of its own, and as it was intended to be what its namesake is in England, its name came from the same place. But its early shipbuilders were a failure, with the result that it is a failure, with the result that it is still a very small village, and only in name does it follow in the "footsteps" of the great English seaport. It is said that the ships built there were not according to specifications, and were therefore unsatisfactory. Thus Portsmouth, which is no larger today than the process years again.

then it was twenty years ago, is still famous for its large penitentiary and its big hospital for the insame.

A Military Town.

From the time that Count Frontenae built his fort there, in 1673, until the present, Kingston has always been a military centre. Years prior to the present war, a permanent force was quartered there. At the present it is fore they invent an entirely new kind the headquarters of the third military of bread. All over Canada the name of Barriefield has been famous for its military camp. Every June, in peace times, some 3000 men from various parts of the district congregated there and spent about ten days under canvas.

And when the war is over will we revert to the ways of former days, when we bought from the wagon or the store? When we shoaled out our good money for stale, flat and unprofitable green stuff which anyone can duplicate in his own backty yard, only ever so much nicer? No, sir? Never! Never again! We're wise!

Kaiser Still Fights For Autocracy and Throne.

What has transpired of the policy of Germany since the new chancellor, Dr. Michaelis, took office, indicates that no real change has occurred in the temper of the Kaiser and his following. There has been since the Russian revolution a demand for more democratic administration in Germany. But this is the one thing that Kaiserism, junkerism, militarism, will not brook. Dr. Michaelis is apparently a less scrupulous man than the late chancellor, or at least he is blunter and less inclined to sugar-coat his pills. He gives little encouragement to democratic Germans, and it is surmised that President Wilson's intimation that America would be willing to treat with the German nation, but not with a Hohenzollern has had its effect in stiffening the resolution of the German war party. The Kaiser is now fighting for his own life and that of his dynasty. In the great world arena of conflict his gladiatorial effort has failed to please, and the thumbs of the spectators all signal down. Nothing remains, then, but some phenomenal coup which will please his own complaining subjects, silence their grumoling, and give him control over his enemies. This, however, is not possible. The best that Chancellor Michaelis could do was to make a speech and attempt to put a new face on the old frauds. Premier Lloyd George made a short work of this plan to discount a military situation which grows worse every day.

With respect to the war, Premier Lloyd George went to the heart of the matter when he said: "Whatever manner of government they choose to have rule over them is entirely the business of the German people themselves. But what manner of government we

German People Must Choose Peace or War. can trust to make peace with—that is our business. Democracy has not its guarantee of peace, and if you cannot get it in Germany, then we must secure other guarantees as a substitute." Whether this be taken as a threat or a prophecy or a plain statement of fact there is no consolation in it for the Kaiser nor for the pacifists who-good easy men-still insist that in lending money to strangers it is wisest to do without notes or security. It may be this passage to which Dr. Michaelis takes special exception, tho it is indirectly he does so. In a recent statement to a large number of newspaper men summoned to Berlin for the purpose, he declared that the Entente Allies have in view the conquest of territory, the enslavement of Germany, and, generally, the overthrow and subjugation of those quiet, innocent and peaceably disposed people, the Prussians. The speech is intended, of course, for consumption in Germany. and possibly also for seditious purposes in Russia, but it is rather ridiculous for the violator of Belgium and Luxembourg, the despoiler of Serbia and Roumania, to talk of French plans of conquest. Conquest is the last thing France dreams of. But protection she and the other nations must have from the militarist autocrats. A genuinely democratic government in Germany would afford all the guarantee of peace that the Allies require, but failing that there must be some barrier like the Rhine between Western Europe and war. The Chancellor, in spite of President Wilson's speech, still gives no evidence of knowing that the struggle is between autocracy and democracy, not between Germany and France or other nations.

War Was Decided by the Kaiser on July 5, 1914.

No doubt the real cause of Dr. Michaelis' communication to the newspaper men was not Premier Lloyd George's speech, nor France's "lust for conquest," but the revelation by The Times a couple of days before the chancellor's keyhole account of the proceedings of the French Chamber. The Times charges that the allusion in Representative Haase's speech in the Reichstag, on or about July 19, inst., to the meeting of July 5, 1914; covers an extraordinary depth of turpitude in the German Government. The events of that July are still for the most part subterranean, but it is impossible that policies so fraught with evil to humanity shall not yet be probed to the utmost, and their origin and creators revealed to the world. Much has hitherto been felt to depend on the occurrences of July 28, when the chancellor hastily summoned to Potsdam, took council with the Kaiser. They definitely determined the fate of Europe at that meeting, and set in motion the long train of tragedy. It now appears that a policy previously determined upon was then only ratified and confirmed. Three weeks earlier, on July 5, there was a meeting at Potsdam of the Kaiser, Bethmann von Hollweg, Tirpitz, Falkenhayn, von Stumm, Archduke Frederick and Holizendorff. Jagow and Moltke were not present. It was at this meeting that the Austrian ultimatum was decided upon, in terms to which it was known that Serbia and Russia could not submit, with the necessity of war as a consequence Having settled this and set the train, the Kaiser left on a holiday in Norway, a ruse to lull the powers into unsuspecting quiet. It is known that the German reserves in America were called out about this time, showing that mobilization had then been decided upon. No wonder Sir Edward Grey's plea for a conference was refused by the Kaiser.

the nations is laid before the nations, as in due time it will, the pacifists will, be in the same case as when, during the war in heaven, Michael and his Angels warring with the rebels, were interrupted by a pacifist deputation, which submitted the iniquity of war and of taking up arms to be unworthy of the high archangelic dignity, and called for a peace conference. This must have been about the time Lucifer was on the point of starting on his nine days' fall, as Milton relates it. While war is highly obnoxious to a pacifist, nothing really revolts him like a complete victory over the transgressors. We can imagine who inspired the pacifist delegation on that occasion, and how innocently they accepted the plausible generalities. It was Michael, undoubtedly, with his "preparedness," and his well-known pugnacity, that had forced the strife, would be the contention. It is thus the Russians have been bedevilled by all sorts of German secret agents who have almost succeeded in wrecking, not only the democratic revolution, but the European alliance against Germany. The head of this conspiracy is evidently Lenine, who was rushed across Germany from Switzerland shortly after the revolu-Another agent is Parvus, alias Belfand, a Russian Jew, a Social-Democrat, who had trouble over the party funds, and has since been in Germany. that blows no one any good has often been quoted in connection with the war.

been fought, there is no doubt but that tremendous forward strides in the of the gr tly changed co things. The most spectacular advances have, of course, been made in aviation and aviation machinery. There can be no doubt but that aviation, as a direct result of the war, has come to stay as a regularly and generally recognized ndustry as stable as the automobile ndustry was in pre-war days. A very little while after the war is ended, privately owned airplanes will be crisscrossing our skies in all directions, and regular mail, and probably even passenger routes will be established be-tween the large cities. In those days it will be a matter of three hours between Toronto and Montreal. At the longest, man sending a letter from one of these cities to the other will receive an answer the next morning. If the letter carries a special delivery stamp he will, no doubt, receive his answer the same day. And the same thing may practically be said of the mail service between Toronto and New York. One of these days, too, air-traveling machines patterned something like the zeppelins, will be carrying passengers and mails over the Atlantic.

While tremendous advances in aviation have followed upon the use of flying machines by the fighting armies, the automobile industry has also received its share of impetus from the war. Most of the world's finest cars have hitherto been built in Europe, and it is safe to say that all the European factories have been put to the supreme test. Certainly the rough usage, accorded all motor vehicles in war work must have brought out all the weak points, and no doubt these have been corrected as they became known. The world will not know what mechanical and constructive advances have been made in this connection until after the war is over. We do know that production has been tremendously speeded up by the European manufacturers. Standardization has been introduced into their factories to an extent never before thought of. When the war is over this increased production by individual manufacturers of trucks and notor cars will, naturally, continue to large extent, and when metal, and perhaps labor prices get back to something like their normal level, we shall probably see a considerable reduction in the prices of the products as compared with those ruling before the war.

The news cables Chaos In Russia from Russia present and the Women to the newspaper enables him to intelligently understand just how chaotic conditions there have been ever since the revoution first broke. It is quite evident, however, that those who hope for anything like a speedy return to normal conditions are, to say the least, doom-

With so much of that sort of thing going on it is no wonder the Kerensky government has had but small chance to impress its claims to recognition upon the reasonableness of the peo-

Women are taking a prominent part in these meetings. One is not used to associating the women of Russia with public demonstrations, but it is evident they are playing their full part in the drama now going forward. We have heard of the regiment of women and the work it has already performed. The history of the formation of this regiment is evidence that a large section of the thinking populace is solidly behind the present government. The idea first arose in the Okhta district where the women speakers have been particularly prominent. The women of that district, and evidently of many others, began to have serious apprehensions as to what might happen them if the Germans got full sway in Russia. They had been taught what to expect by the experiences of those parts of Russia that had been overrun. They saw their retreating army failing in the first duty of men and citizens, that of defending women and children, and the country from truculent foe, and they began to agitate for the formation of female fighting units. Many meetings and much agitation finally resulted in government acquiescence, and the formation of women's regiments was begun. Under the regulations made, girls and young women, and the mothers of young children must stay at home. Fighting amazons must be selected from women whose situation in life leaves them untramelled. Nor do they actually insist upon killing German men. "We can do nine-tenths of the work needed in the rear of the fighting front," they say, "and we have learnt of late how important it is to have the rear lines in good order. We shall not go on drunken debauches, pillaging the country-side, destroying the hopes of daily bread for the future and ruining the country."

Women having the qualifications laid down have volunteered quite largely, and it is stated that if enough do not come forward later on, the government will be asked to introduce a compulreader but little that sory female service law. "If the men cannot manage things better than they are doing, it is quite time we had a try." appears to be the women's fundamental idea in this movement. Somehow, that seems very like what the suffragettes were saying in England before the war.

Quoted in The New York Times the authority says the appointment of the new chancellor is a concession and a long step towards the democratization of Germany, and he goes on to state that part of Michaelis' task is to provide Germany with a new form of

"Finite God" of Mr. Wells, which he has failed to identify with the God and the Son of St. Paul? T IS THE SACERDOTALISTS who are real objectors to lay prophets like Mr. Wells and their teaching. They objected just as strenuously to the teaching of Jesus in His day as they do to that of Mr. Wells. They refuse to see that any man in whom the Christ spirit is present is a Christ. They aecline to recognize the logical deduction from the acceptance of Jesus' injunction to His disciples-"Be ye perfect even as your Father in Heaven is perfect." Men who thus "perfect" Mr. Wells preaches. If we translated the word "initiated" instead of "perfect," it would carry a more accurate meaning for modern ears. It is because people insist on thinking of the Son as the man Jesus, of nineteen hundred odd years ago, instead of "Christ in you, the hope of Glory," today, as always and ever, that all the confusion has arisen. "Thou lovedst me before the foundation of through Him, we are told, that He all change.

T IS THE INTELLECTUAL MIND that refuses to accept such simple teaching as Mr. Wells places before his readers. I was reproached recently, as I frequently am, for being too intellectual. I frequently enough declare that there is nothing in the intellectual world but disappointment and the bitter ashes of Dead Sea fruit. But the intellectual mind, "which is at enmity with God," refuses to become as a little child, and one must offer such consolations as one can on intellectual grounds. Real religion never appeals to the intellectual mind, so when Mr. Wells gets a hoid of a real experience and feels God. he need not expect the intellectual people to respond. - "God, the Invisible King" calls for action. Intellectual people do not desire to act. They wish to remain exclusive, and read exquisite books and analyze the universe. "A little child shall lead them." But not at first. They do not wish to become as little children, as simple, as confiding, as loving, as full of wonder. Perhaps the Gate of Wonder is the intellectual man's nearest way into the Kingdom. Here, too, comes some men that have done their work for assistance and supervision.

Some Originators.

The idea of this farm originated with a few of the rotarians, including Messrs. H. G. Stanton of the R. S. Williams Co., Ralph Connable of the F. W. Woolworth Co., W. H. Alderson of the Gutta Percha & Rubticular day, for it seemed to me appropriate, but at the last moment it Life, George Brigden of Brigdens, Ltd., and president of the Toronto afterward that the Germans had, for Rotary Club, Ed Hopkins, each of whom "manage" the farm one day

Williams, chairman; Mrs. Alderson, Mrs. Henderson, Mrs. Denison, Mrs. Stone, Mrs. Dinsmore, Mrs. Balsour and others, with the co-operation of Mayor Church attended the rally, made an inspection of the farm, participated of the special Rotary lunch and gave the members a short address, complimenting them on their efforts and the surprisingly good results obtained thereby.

Several more of these rallies will be held from time to time, especially during the harvest season when the crop will be reaped and marketed. It should be borne in mind that all of the workers on this farm are executives of big rusinesses and the total capitalization of the companies repre-sented at one of these rallies was the ous sum of $95,990,000. And the fact that the work is done by such men who are enthusiastic, guarantees thoroness and carefulness, the results of which are reflected in the splendid condition of the crops. This work carries with it an enthusiasm that would be wonderful if it could be imparted to all farms, and in fact, all

The workers each day are in charge of the managers for that day, who are made up of the men mentioned ear-lier in the article, who started the novement, and to these steady workers is most of the credit due, as they work all day long without any of the display and celebration that characterizes the big rallies when they are

But from now on lunches will be served each day to the members working. by a ladies' committee that has been appointed for this purpose, with the result that the healthy farm appetite generated by this work, will be satisfied with real hot mid-day lunch. "See, dad!" he calls, from where he haz crawled upon the top of a submerged rock. "See how far I swam!"

Little Abel, his mother's favorite, is less venturesome. He goes out but a short distance. But he can swim too. Lying down upon his tummy in the clear water and spreading his legs, he kicks like a frog, endeavoring to show "murgny" how to do it, and to entice her to follow his example.

But Eve is timid. Up and down the margin she wanders happily, where the waves barely cover her ankles, seemingly getting a full share of the enjoyment in the feel of the soft, oozy mud and sand which squeezes up between her toes.

Adam is breasting the waves, far out from shore—so far that Eve grows fear-ful. "Don't venture too far, dear," she Adam gets back all right, and by this time enters fully into the spirit of the occasion. His brain is clear and active, and teeming with new ideas. Right there and then he invents the spring-board, Centinued on Page Three.

KING GEORGE'S DOUBLE HAS EXCITING TIMES

Ordinary Observer Can Not Distinguish Betwee His Majesty and Capt. B. B. Binks of the Indian Army.

Captain Bertie B. Binks of the Umbalish Umtidahs, who arrived in New York to purchase a hundred hogshead of tabasco sauce for the Indias army, has had the last five years of his life saddened by resemblance to King George V. of England.

He bears such a striking likeness to the king that persons stare at him in the streets and in public places until, the captain becomes embarrassed and seeks refuge in the dark caverns where food is dispensed with shaded lights.

Captain Binks descended the ganghank in khaki uniform, with an Indian topee on his head, and wearing a bored look like one who was sated of the world's pomps and vanities. The navy trimmed beard and serious gaze of King George were marvelously duplicated in the fectures of the captain of the Umbalish Untidahs, who are known on the burning plains of India as the 'panther esters.' Experts on royalty, including a Canadian, who once met the king at Calgary wheat he was Prince of Wales, said that Captain Binks was a trifle thinner and his whiskers slightly fairer, but the ordinary observer would not be able to tell the difference between them.

Sh-shi the Czar in Disguise.

Some excitement was caused on the pler while the baggage was being examined by one of the longshoremen, Arzof Gumdink, a Finn, who asserted in loud tones that Captain Binks was the Czar Nicholas in disguise and that he had been smurgled out of Petrograd. Orderly and Cooks Serve Guns London.-Writing from the war correspondents' headquarters in France, W. Beach Thomas says: "Everything new that is heard of our latest and best battle proclaims the debt owed to the spirit and skill of our gunners compared with the German. A gun of one battery, discovered and heavily hammered by the enemy with gas, high explosive and shrapnel, was finally served during our barrage by the orderly and two battery cooks until others from the detachment returned from the dressing station. The cooks who helped to repel the hordes of Germans at the first battle of Ypres did no finer thing.

"We may compare the steadfastness of these gunners to some German crews who brought up extra heavy guns on the eve of battle They were seen by the airmen, and when shells began to fall they abandoned their guns on the road, where they were finally knocked out without a shell being fired."

I laughed too, and everybody in the trench about us laughed. It doesn't take much to make people laugh when their nerves are a bit on edge. We had a thrying time all the day before, for every gun of ours and the Germans had been goin' at it all the time like thunder on the hills.

Food Controller May Be Considering Such a Move, Which Is Hardly Likely, at Least Not Until Other Experiments With Cattle and Hogs Have Failed.

Hon. W. J. Hanna, Dominion food controller, is considering, so some people hear, the slaughter of Ontario's moose, to conserve the supply of beef. Moose after many years' of protection in this province are fairly plentiful in some parts of the more newly opened up north country. South of the C. P. R. they were practically exterminated many years ago. They are said to be coming back to some parts of their ancient range, and some few have been reported in the more inaccessible parts of Algonquin Park. In the French River country also there are a few moose killed each year in the fall. In the Temagami district and in the flats of the Blanche year in the fall. In the Temagami district and in the flats of the Blanche River district and up the Montreal moose grew plentiful again under rigid protection, but the settlements, the mining activity, and the lumbering operations, and the sportsmen have driven them further back or thinned them out. Licensed hunters have to run longer chances of getting their antiers; or journey further back than when the closed season was re-opended a few years ago.

Caribou Disappeared.

Time was when the woodland caribou roamed the Timiskaming and the Temagami country and all the region. of the north shore out to Rainy River. But the caribou disappeared when men became numerous, and you don't hear of caribou south of the Height of Land until you get west as far as the Nicigon. Caribou are wilder than the moose and they drift away if disturbed and travel long distances to new pastures. Moose take their old ranges, and red deer follow up the moose. Red deer, they say, clin- to the fringe of the settlements, because their mortal enemies, the wolves, are less bold in the neighborhood of men. North country observers say that when the moose come in the caribou get out and when the red deer come the moose drift farther back. Thirty or forty years ago there were no Germans had been goin' at it all the time like thunder on the hills. We were stuck in the trenches, shoulder to shoulder, packed tight as herrings in' a fishing boat on Gweebara Bay. All we could do was talk about ould times and ould times are about ould times and ould times are never so nice as when you talk about them in a shelled trench. Battle of Somme.

The third anniversary of Great Britain's entry into the war, an event that assured the downfall of Prussia and not her exaltation to the dominance of the world, witnessed a gigan-tic struggle in progress in French Picardy. The fight was for none less than the Somme watershed. This height of land or divide had passed into German hands after the miracle of the Marne in 1914, and the enemy held it as a barrier to the approches of the Schedit, the main route of invasion and retreat between France and Belgium. The Somme watershed was the strongest natural position in western Europe. The British army actually began this battle in July, 1916, two months before it was quite ready, because the deliveries of big old Roman road from Bapaume to the guns did not really begin until the sea. It remained for the Canadians to end of August or the beginning of capture this celebrated position, consideral situation in September. It was their arrival which assisted in the making of the rapid British advances up the Albert-Ba-paume road, past the height of land. The British high command had then as its general objects for attacking the enemy the relief of the pressure on the French before Verdun, the prevent-

But this was not all. The British army ad-

The war in the past year has shown Germany generally on the defensive, both against Great Britain and France as well as Russia, and Austria on the defensive on the three fronts, Balkan, Italian, and Russian. Only against Rumania has the enemy gained an advantage, while in France his strong and socalled impregnable lines have bossible to observe for or to re-site are tillery, and in consequence the full results of the fighting last summer did not mature till early in the spring of this year, when the Germans retreated to an intermediate line at the sources of the Scheldt tributaries and the Scheldt tributaries and the Scheldt tributaries and the Scheldt River itself. The original action of the Somme, assisted by its succeeding actions on the Ancre, accomplished all their military objects, general and particular, and so they constituted an important victory.

Canadians in Action.

The details are too voluminous to relate, but some important features of the Sattles stand out from the rest. One battles stand out from the rest. One of these was the remarkable success of the Canadians in the action of Cource-

They proceeded as far as the Chemin des Dames, and they carried the Casemates, Californie, and Vauclere Plateaux, besides important positions like the Hurtebise Farm. The seriousness of the defeat to the Germans is plainly shown by their incessant efforts to recapture the lost positions, and to retrieve the disaster. Every other day, to to the time of this writing, the enemy has driven forward his best and his bravest, only to have them hurled back in confusion and ruin by the stout-hearted French soldiers. Altho the al-lies have contrived to attack the enemy and to overthrow him at the cost of smaller losses than he can inflict, the French hold on the heights of the Aisne permits them to cause much greater losses to the Germans during

The war in the past year has become more and more of a gigantic duel between the British and German empires. Gladstone's assertions that war between British and Germany herself has become a gigantic military power, with more men under tary power, with more men under arms than Germany herself has, for a few more duel to the facts, arms than Germany herself has, for a few more duel to the facts, arms than Germany herself has, for a few more duel to the facts, arms than Germany herself has, for a few more than the past year has become a gigantic military power, with more men under arms than Germany herself has, for the past year has become a gigantic military power, with more men under arms than Germany herself has, for the past year has become a gigantic military power, with more men under arms than Germany herself has, for the past year has become a gigantic military power, with more men under arms than Germany herself has, for the past year has become a gigantic military power, with more men under arms than Germany herself has, for the facts, and they held their new ground for a week without communication with their rear, and in contsant fighting, they yielded no ground and beat of the spring operations can find they prove a fallacious, to believe, as the Germans appear to beli Michaelis, that the French will remain content with merely a passive defence until some time in 1919, for not only will the French generals seize an opportunity for a smashing blow to the enemy when it comes, but, if Dr. Dillon is to be believed, the French people have had about enough unfulfilled promises from their politicians, and they may throw them out of office.

Rumania joined the allies in September. There is no doubt that a great coup was pending against Austria-Hungary when everything was spoiled by the blundering in allied statesman-ship, induced it is charged by muddled thinking. Rumania had signed a convention with Bulgaria whereby was to attack the other. The allied governments, in allowing her to do this, had failed to grasp the strategy of the war. The allies were enveloping the enemy on both flanks. Any Balkan movement would take the form of a turning movement in order to assist the envelopment. The turning movement must necessarily proceed against Bulwould swing for an offensive. The allies proceeded to act on the supposition that their attacks than a steady advance their next operations deprived him of these pivots, and diverted his contemplated spring offensive into a series of ineffectual efforts to recapture his lost pivots.

The spring offensive of the allies opened with the British attack on and capture of Vimy Ridge. This position greater losses to the Germans during their attacks than a steady advance obstacle, and therefore, the principal obstacle, and therefore and therefore the principal obstacle, and therefore and the principal obstacle, a garia, because she was the principa capture of Vimy Ridge. This position has such a high strategic value that the French devoted practically the whole of the 1915 operations to an atwhole of the 1915 operations to an attempt at its reduction, suffered a loss of 100,000 men in killed, and yet failed to surmount its summit, marked by the must break up in detachments and lose to attack, even with greatly inferior forces. The fighting quality of a force consists of its numbers plus its guns, plus its mobility. The enemy made up

> The Germans also won a success in the Transylvania with a greatly inferior force numerically, but with a great-ly superior gun power. They compelled the Rumanians, who had invaded this province, to retreat, to stand on the defensive. Rumania also lost a great many guns, and was placed at greater ans offered a brave defence, as the Germans admit, but superior metal broke them down, and they had to abandon half of their country, including their beautiful capital, Bucharest. Some politicians attempted to explain the defeat on hypothesis, that the Rumanians were poor fighters, but the allied peoples blamed the politicians. The results were the upsetting of the British and the French Governments, Russian Revolution. The Russian revolution had its first cause in the rising of the duma against the inefficient and repressive autocratic government of the czar. The social democrats had also been planning another revolution, and so they were ready to take advantage of the situa-tion. They organized a workmen's and soldiers' council, consisting mostly of delegates from the workmen and garrison of Petrograd, and these began their attacks on the provisional government. It gave way to a coalition govern-ment, and then crazy theories began to be put in practice. The government ordered a relaxation of the army discipline, the election of officers by the men, the appointment of soldiers on committees of discipline. Because the mass of the Russian army was not so-cialistic, but rather pacifist anarchists, like Tolstoi, with a dislike for organ-ganized violence and a taste for individual violence, the government threw it open to socialistic propaganda. The avowed anarchists and the Maximalsector. Then the whole rottenness of the new army system developed.

An army is only as strong as its weakest link, and the Germans speedily found the weakest link in the Russian army. It was a regiment made unstable by the propaganda pf the Radical Socialists. This unit gave way and retired without firing a shot. Regiments on its right and left had to fail back without fighting in order to keep in alignment. Lack of disciplinging penalties made the soldiers disobey with impunity, and other units joined in the retrograde. The Germans followed up the retiring Russians, but they lacked troops to give effectives pursuit. The mishap is best regarded as an accident, lucky for the enemy in eastern disher command strove to relieve the pressure of the enemy in eastern disher command strove to relieve the linestability of troops, undermined also by Socielists and their propaganda, prevented the development of this offensive.

The Russian army had opened a successful offensive in Eastern Galicia in July. It proceeded so rapidly with its advance that it looked as ir the whote enemy position would collapse. The Germans, however, contrived to mass troops for a counter-attack in one

Canada must face her road-building problems squarely-and soon. Right now is the time to decide on a roadbuilding program which shall put this country's transportation on a proper basis—even though the actual building of the new and better highways must be postponed until the war's conclusion. It is the pressing duty of every citizen to post himself thoroughly on the subject of road-building. Not until our people know the facts will they be aroused to action. And action of the most aggressive kind is needed to enable Canada to abolish her road waste. the spread of scattering shrapnel. The casing, having lost much of its momentum, drops to the ground.

Should the force of the explosion within the powder pecket not be sufficient to strip the threaded connection between the fuse body and the shell casing, the steel shell would explode, but only in such a case. To retain the effectiveness of the shrapnel, the fracture would be limited to a section near the mouth of the casing, where its walls are comparatively thin, and the shrapnel would be scattered from the remainder of the casing, as before. The shattering of the steel casing takes place only when a shrapnel fails to brook properly. It is not what a shrapnel does ordinarily, but what it may do in the case of an emergency.

A shrapnel which breaks properly during flight simply scatters shrapnel balls, not fragments and pieces of lagged shell, such as fly from an exploding high-explosive shell. When a shrapnel, thru failure of the time fuse to respond, does not explode until it comes in contact with the ground or some other firm object in its path, then, and only then, the steel shell is fractured and pieces scattered in all dicections. Damage frequently described as caused by flying pieces of shapnel casings, therefore, is more probably correctly to be ascribed to fragments of high-explosive shells.

at the present day we have a convinchas ever witnessed. Before our entry into the war, in each of the countries music calculated to set the patriotic nerve of the individual tingling, to wake indifference to enthusiasm, to bring home by way of emotion what reason and logic were often unable to "get across." And music of every kind of the day is unmoved by a symphonic

For politics is a utilitarian science, it is an art which deals with sake. For politics is a utilitarian science, it is an art which deals with the concrete and not the abstract There was a time when there was not much money in music, from the poin of view of politics, so politics did no bother with music. Now all that has changed. Music is almost as essential to us as the air we breathe, the food we eat, the coal we burn. Music and the making of music has become a vast industry and vast industries are some evening for a number of years, gave the king of Spain the necessary stimulus to sign the state papers. thing politics never neglects. The Song of the Needle

BY ROBERT PARTRIDGE.

And the tears oftentimes fall fast and thick.

Purl and plain, with worsted and thread,

With nimble fingers, the hearts are sore.

The flashing needles go click, click, click.

With a heart, the wrung with a dumb despair,

Yet-a trembling smile on the brave face there.

Of the throbbing heart . . . Ah, well not here,

In the street outside Still plain and purl Worsted and thread, with a web of care

From the stout brave heart of the woman there.

In and out' neath a half-bow'd head.

Stockings, mufflers, sweaters galore,

Morn 'till night, be they well or sick,

Far on the fields where red rivers run.

Stitch! thru a fog of blinding tears,

Stitch with a woe of nameless fears.

Plain and purl, each stitch is wove

A knock down the street She will start to her feet,

Click, click,

To the ceaseless tick

Into the garment with threads of love;

Hand press'd to side to still the beat

And a brave smile chases away her fear. And in and out, while the lights they flick, Once again the needles go click, click, click.

Of the old timepiece, as the tears fall thick.

Stitch to the sound of the tolling bell,

As it solemnly tolls a warning knell.

Stitch to the sound of the busy whirl

Stockings, mufflers, sweaters galore,

The nimble fingers will toil 'till sore.

Morn 'till night, the the heart be sick, The flashing needles go click, click, click.

With the silent pray'r that is born of pain, "Oh, God, send him safely home again."

For nearly three years, or ever since "Tipperary" was made famous by the heroic "Irish Fusiliers," late in 1914, the boys of the Seventh Illinois Infanthe boys of the Seventh Illinois infantry, who are noted for their ability as singers as well as soldiers, have been searching for a song of the same type, which they could adopt as their very own, and at last they have found what they have been looking for. The members of Capt. P. D. Toleston's "Singing Company L." who have had the matter in hand, have tried out practically every patriotic song writpractically every patriotic song writ-ten since the beginning of the world conflict, but not until W. R. Williams' "We Don't Know Where We're Going, But We're On Our Way," was called to their attention last week, did they encounter what they wanted. Immediately upon hearing the new composition the boys of the Seventh voted to accept it as their "official war song," and as soon as the publisher, Will Ros-siter, was notified, he announced that he would dedicate it to Col. Moriarity and his regiment. From now on the title-page, which will be printed in green, will be decorated with photographs of Col. Morfarity and several companies of the "Fighting Seventh."
The song is written to a thrilling march air. It has a decided military lit and a haunting melody.

Albert Dewning, the tenor, has been engaged for the annual concert of the Sons of England in Massey Hall next October. His selections will include "The Death of Nelson," sung at the up and then without turning it press it up, when it will strike the lever, raise it and so release the bolt; still pressing the Germans. These two well known 'singers will sing Oratorio together this coming season in several of the larger cities both in Canada and the United States.

Max Fleischmann has left Toronto to continue his studies with Jan Hambourg, who is staying in New Hamp-shire for the summer. In the fall he will accompany Mr. Hambourg to New York. took great pleasure in talking over with jobs about the house; there is great his old drill master the experiences of years ago when he played in his orchestra in Toronto. Mr. Clark is one of the best cornetists in the world, and he attributes much of his success to the training he received under Dr. Torrington, whose enthusiasm and exacting work were an inspiration then. valuable hints as to the methods of acting work were an inspiration then, as now, to all who play under his doing some of these household odds

On both the bolt and the lever there is a projecting piece of metal—the one on the bolt is called the fence and the one on the lever is called the gating one on the lever is called the gating—the purpose of which is to keep the bolt in position, or locked, when it is thrown back as well as when it is thrown out, and to the end that this may be done a flat steel spring is fixed in the lock so that one of the ends presses down on the lever; now when the bolt is clear in or clear out, the gating on the lever engages the fence on the bolt and the spring prevents them from slipping past each other, or in other words, the bolt is locked.

This is all there is to a simple levertumbler lock, but you should by all means take one off a door, unscrew the cap and examine its construction and action, when you will know more about a lock in five minutes than you probably knew in all your life before.

a lock in two minutes than you probably knew in all your life before.

The average lock on a dresser drawer is far more simple than the door lock just described, since the whole mechanism consists solely of a bolt with a small straight steel spring fixed to it to give it tension. There is a half round cut made in one side of the bolt, and any kind of a barrel key with a blade on it having the right length will open it. From the construction and operation of rim and mortised locks, it must be clear that, in order to open a lever-clear that, in order to open a lever-tumbler lock, it is only necessary to force up the lover when the bolt can be easily thrown.

Now, if the door is locked and the key is lost, bend a piece of steel wire about one-eighth inch in diameter and four and one-half inches long, which is a half-sized lock pick with a pick on each end.

To open the lock, put the pick into the key hole with the projecting end up and then without turning it press it the latter back.

To make a pick to open a simple lock of this kind all you have to do is to bend over the end of a stout wire. Put the latter back.

Two distinct Power Ranges

Velvet smoothness and lightning pick up, on half fuel rations; brute power and thundering speed when you want it-such is the contrasting performance of the Peerless Eight.

The Loafing Range

Here's an eighty horsepower eight cylinder car that in all ordinary driving consumes about half the fuel you would expect in a car of its size and power. Yet it has all the smoothness, all the flexibility and the lightning pick-up which you associate with a Peerless Eight.

The Sporting Range

But super power and thundering speed are also available in your Peerless when you call upon its Sporting Range. You can change its whole character. Your superlatively soft, smooth motor is also capable of power and speed which Replets only a few other cars of the utmost class and distinction can equal.

Let us show you in the Peerless Eight a wider range of performance than you have ever seen in any car.

REGARDING GOVT. CONTROL OF GASOLINE CONSUMPTION

Rumor to the effect that the consumption of gasoline will be drastically controlled as a war measure, and that the importation of motor cars will be prohibited or radically curtailed by the government, have apparently gained wide circulation and some credence, as they have on several occasions been called to our attention of late. These rumors might well have had a mischievous effect, in that they purport to have emanated from the powers-that-be at Ottawa.

Fortunately for the welfare of the country, the Federal Government is not contemplating anything of the kind. We have dealt at length in these columns heretofore with the importance, yes, necessity of the motor car in our economic scheme of things and we have no intention of reiteration here, other than to state that the government is not so foolish as to stultify itself by suicidal sumptuary or restrictive legislation that would partially or totally paralyze our greatest transportation facility—the motor car. motor truck and tractor-disrupt one of our greatest industries, throwing tens of thousands out of employment in Ontario alone, and generally strip the gears of the Dominion's economic and efficient military, industrial.

commercial and agrarian activity. There are sophists abroad in the land who have educed a specious argument to the effect that because Great Britain has practically commandeered all gasoline, greatly restricting private consumption, Canada should do likewise-inferentially so that what Canada could save would go to the mechanical transports, air fleets and navies of the Allies. Of course the fallacy of such argument lies in the fact that Great Britain and her European allies are not being deprived of one drop of gasoline or oil by Canadian consumption. England imposed its restrictive legislation, not because an abundance of gasoline and oil was not procurable, but because tank-ships could not be secured in sufficient numbers to transport gasoline and oil overseas in the quantity necessary to supply both war and normal civil consumption. To totally abolish the consumption of gasoline in Canada would not lay down one gallon more overseas.

Suppose, tho, that Canada should abolish gasoline—what then? We import more gallons of gasoline than we product of crude oil, popular opinion to the contrary notwithstanding. By abolishing the consumption of gasoline we would simply cut off importations from the States—giving Uncle Sam so much more "gas" for his three and a-half million cars, to say nothing of his trucks, tractors, motorboats, etc. Our net saving in gasoline would be pitifully small, our economic loss enormous. After great labor the mountain would have brought forth a mouse and then been at a loss to know what to do with it.

If the time comes when gasoline-conservation on this continent is a war factor, then Canada must act in conjunction with the States or act ineffectually. There is absolutely no reason to believe that such a time is imminent or in sight. Shameful misuse of gasoline is at no time to be condoned, least of all at these times. Joy riding, especially by slackers, finds no sympathy in these columns. Joy riding, however, is indulged in by a trivial, almost negligible, number of motorists.

To cut off the supply of gasoline to all as a punitive or correct measure for joy riders, would be like cutting off the Dominion's face to get rid of

DO NOT DRIVE NEW

This notice appears on the wind-shield of every car shipped by Willys-Overland, Ltd., of Toronto, and ac-cording to distributors and dealers is doing a great deal of good.

All engineers and most good me-chanics know that nothing is so injurious to a new mechanism as high speed, yet probably a vast majority of new cars are driven at high speed inside of 24 hours from the time they are delivered to the retail purchaser.

It is this tendency on the part of inexperienced drivers which the Willys-Overland, td., is trying to combat.

In no other line of manufacturing, and the state of the state possibly, is the product so quickly turned over to the mercies of a man who knows little of its mechanical con-struction and still less of the way to take care of it.

"A high speed passenger locomotive officers an excellent comparison," said Francis Jarvis Slight, general manager of the Willys-Overland, Ltd., in discussing this topic.

"The locomotive is built to run easily and pull a tremendous load at 70 miles an hour. But is that locomotive put at once into such service? Hardly. The superintendent or master mechanic who would permit such a thing is not fit to hold his positiotn.

"The locomotive is run 'dead' in a freight train to its point of delivery. Then it is easily and carefully 'broken in' by being given slow freight service before it is turned over to the passenger crews.

"It is a good deal the same in the case of a steamship. She is built under a contract guaranteeing so many miles per hour, but no shipbuilding should be assured of quick and efficient service in the above mentioned lines, and solicit a call from all automobile owners.

"To insure that the working parts of the motor adjust themselves properly, this car should not be driven in excess of 25 miles per hour during the first 500 miles."

concern would think of submitting a new boat to a trial run until after her engines had ample time to 'wear in." It should be the same with motor cars. The better a car is built, the more care should be exercised when the motor is new. "Careful handling of a car when new means a better and smoother engine and fewer repair bills."

Stewart of Stewart-Warner Leaves A Big Fortune

The late Mr. Midas is outdone by the heirs of John K. Stewart, who was head of the Stewart-Warner Speedometer Company, until his death. Remarkable disclosures have been made in this mysterious estate, which was $4.000,000, then $4.690,000, and which is now nearly $7,000,000 thru the discovery that Mr. Stewart had many safety deposit boxes. Bills for rental of these boxes reached the executors from six loop bank and safety deposit vaults, one of which container a $1,000,000 in big bills, another $1.050,000 and another $250,000. Earl W. Mc. Gookin, former sales representative of Mr. Stewart in Detroit, says that this does not surprise him as, after the panic of 1907, Mr. Stewart prepared himself by putting away ready cash. Two daughters, Jean 5 and Marlon 15, inherit the entire $7,000,000 which may yet reach $10,000,000, acccording to friends of the speedometer maker.

Mr. Vidal is mak-ing his trip to endeavor to secure more cars from the Eigin Motor Car Corporation with which to meet the demand in Porto Rico. The high price of sugar has enriched a large number of the Porto Rico planters, and as the island has excellent roads, the demand for automobiles has in-creased amazingly. The first three Elgin cars, Mr. Vidal says, created a strong demand for these cars. There are now from 2000 to 3000 automobiles

Hudson Racing Records

What They Should Mean to You

Speedway tests are endurance tests. The tremendous strains and stresses to which racing cars are put bring out the two most important qualities a car owner should demand endurance and power.

In a few hours the speedway may show weaknesses that it would take miles of ordinary travel to reveal.

You will probably never want to own a racing car. You do, though, want a car that has endurance. You require performance not for a few but for thousands of miles. This year a team of racing cars proved endurance for the Hudson Super-Six on the speedway.

> Endurance Proved on the Speedway

No team of racing cars has ever shown such a record for Track records were established at Chicago, Cincinnati and Omaha. The fastest time ever recorded at Tacoma and Minneapolis was made by the Super-Six Special, and claims for track records will be considered by the American Automobile Association.

Hudson Specials won firsts in four events; second in six; third in two; fourth in three; fifth in three; and sixth, seventh and eighth in one each.

All stock car and stock chassis records made by the Super-Six last year still stand, although many attempts have been made to lower some of them. Here is a partial list of Hudson stock performance:

> Stock Car Records Also Prove Endurance

For 100 miles a stock car fully equipped, carrying two passengers, averaged 74.67 miles per hour.

The double transcentinental record was made by a seven-passenger Super-Six phaeton from San Francisco to New York and return—7000 miles in 10 days and 21 hours—a new record for both ways and the first round trip across America ever attempted against time.

And Now Other Cars - Cost as Much as Hudsons

Cars which recently sold at $1500 to $1800 now cost almost as much as the Hudson Super-Six. Surely Hudson records for consistent endurance and their service to 37,000 owners make it the preferred car to any. you prefer it to any costing $3500 or under?

Price is not now an attraction except that there is no certainty that present prices can be continued on Hudsons. When present materials are exhausted there must be a readjustment on the basis of present material costs. Then real car worth will be established and Hudson prices will advance to a point where they more nearly represent true values.

Today you can buy a Hudson Super-Six made from materials bought last year. If you delay you must pay on the basis of the present market—the market which has forced other makers to raise their prices.

WINDSOR TO TORONTO 7 HOURS 44 MINUTES

SUNDAY MORNING AUGUST 5 1917

McNamara shattered the Windsor-to-Toronto record by doing the run in seven hours, forty-four minutes elapsed time in a Maxwell touring car, carrying in addition to himself, two adult observers, Mr. A. Drake of the Windsor Record and Mr. W. Addyman, traffic manager of the Maxwell Corp. of Canada, three suitcases and auxiliary gasoline and oil reservoirs, auxiliary headlights and spare rim and tire. The car was a standard stock Maxwell touring car, with complete equipment, save for the absence of a top. The car was checked in by the contest official observer of the Ontario Motor League at Sunnyside station, Toronto, at 6.50 in the morning. It checked out of Windsor at 11.06 the previous evening. Two tires were changed en route. Those familiar with the roads will realize the gruelling test that little Maxwell's stamina was put to and how truly remarkable was the record made.

More Motor Car Value At Less Actual Cost

This is the day of big values in motor cars. Never before in the history of the industry have you been able to buy, per dollar, so much comfort, so much utility, so much real motoring value.

We make this statement in the face of sensational advances in the cost of labor and materials. Those motor car makers who have followed the scientific, progressive manufacturing methods that have made the industry remarkable have not been forced to advance the price of their cars anywhere near the proportionate increase in the cost of materials.

We believe that no other industry has achieved as a group of successful motor car manufacturers among them the Paige-have achieved-in constantly increasing quality and constantly keeping down the cost.

Today you can buy more motoring value for $2000 than you could for $3500 five years ago.

Then your purchase price did not include a self-starter, a windshield, a top, headlights, tire carrier, etc. Now you find all these things, as well as innumberable others, making for luxury and comfort, on your car when it leaves the factory. The purchasing power of the dollar in this field has increased to an extraordinary degree.

As for the relation of price to value the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company has always been in a most fortunate position. Low capitalization, low overhead, low profit per car combined with scientific manager ment and the most complete manufacturing equipment have enabled this company to put the maximum of value into its product and also to keep the price down.

These unique assets, too, account for the quality that goes into every Paige car - quality which has reduced to the minimum the cost of maintaining and driving and enjoying The Most Beautiful Car in America.

That is why you can buy so much quality in The Most Beautiful Car in America at so low a figure in spite of rising markets. It is the secret of Paige leadership and Paige popularity.

On account of the patriotic nature of the meet and the fame of the riders who will be participating, it is expected that a record-breaking growd will be in attendance. Every can in Toronto wants to see Arthur Spencer, the first Canadian to win the National Professional Championship of the United States, who is coming from Newark to start in the three sprints for the Canadian Professional Championship. The other great professional riders in this competition will be Frank L. Kramer of Bast Orange, who held the American title for sixteen years; Reggie Mc-Namara, the champion of Australia,

The Police, the Courts and Car Thefts.

The vigilance and courage of the Toronto police in endeavoring to discourage motor car stealing is as laudible as the apathy of the court is lamentable. On several processions policemen, have is hamentable. On several occasions policemen, have risked their lives and suffered considerable bodily injury in overtaking and apprehending car thieves. Yet the courts continue to let car thieves (than whom what greater menace is there to public safety?) off on suspended sentence.

That the epidemic of car stealing is still with us is in no small part thanks to the apparent apathy of the court. Certain it is that the police force is not at fault.

An article in an English weekly deals with the subject in a very sensible way. If the machines are all thrown on the market at once by the government or its agents, it will likely and would likely pick a lemon, even if it was cheap. Not only that, but it would be unfair to the maker. If a novice rider bought a war machine and it didn't happen to turn out all right he would likely blame the

The suggested plan is that government return the machines in batches to the makers, and let them thoroly overhaul them, and dispose of them in batches as they get them Do your motor truck buying early. Nothing, aside from a good muffler and a perfectly adjusted motor, contributes more to motorcycle silence than padded chain guards.

The rider of a machine not so fitted can readily accomplish the padding himself. Asbestos paper placed between the guard and a back covering of galvanized iron which is riveted to the guard will materially assist in quieting the machine. You don't mention whether it is a twin or a single. The timing for a twin is—with the piston of the front cylinder on top dead centre of compression stroke with spark retarded, have the points on your mag just going to break. The two raised parts in the contact breaker time each cylinder, the back is for the front cylinder and front for the back. When the front is timed the back will come automatically.

To time the machine by marks:

The third annual economy run for Saxon dealers brought forward this new fuel record which once more proves beyond any question the low cost of operation of Saxon "Six" motor cars under every road and weather condition.

From the torrid wastes of Texas and Arizona to the snappy summer climate of northern Canada dealers in every city of size and many smaller communities drove a stock Saxon "Six" over a 300 mile course in their immediate territory. Checked by a disintersted observer, the dealers were required to keep an accurate record of fuel consumption and the average of all of their results establishes a new mark for Saxon operating expense.

were found and the average takes into account these factors.

The run was not a "measured gallon" affair, conducted with a high test gasoline. Every entrant used the same quality of gasoline that is used daily by every motorist in his particular territory and the amount of fuel used was determined by measuring the gasoline in the tank at the start and the amount left at the finish. In a great many cases, the entrants started the run with whatever gasoline happened to be in the car and filled up at some station along the way.

There were a number of entrants in the test whose gasoline consumption was less per mile than the average and there were those who took greater amounts. Generally, however, the fuel cost was quite close to the average.

Last year's average was 23.5 miles to the gallon. That run demonstrated conclusively to thousands of motorists the advantages offered by Saxon "Six" in, low operating costs. The run this year substantiates that and more—for it proves that ordinary driving, not skilled or professional wheeling, can be done in a Saxon at a cost far lower than the majority of six cylinder motor cars. six cylinder motor cars.

But what have aniline dyes got to do with actual fighting, with the advancement or retirement of armies arrayed in battle, and with the conquering of the enemy by physical force? Surely dye-stuffs are not used to fight with.

Would you believe it, one of the most powerful high explosives we have in use today is an aniline dye, which is both the "lion" and the "lamb" rolled into one.

Picric acid, which is a beautiful yellow crystalline body, has been used for many years for dyeing clear shades of yellow on silks or woollens, and thru an accidental explosion occurring in a dye works where picric acid was stocked it was investigated as to its use as an explosive. Nearly all the other explosives, if not highly colored bodies like picric acid, are very, very closely related to dye-stuffs, and their intermediate compounds, and are made mostly in the same plants as the dye-stuffs themselyes.

Gun-cotton is used to fill torpedoes and mines, besides being used in shells, and as cordite in rifle cartridges. Now we come to the most vital part of the science of modern explosives,

This rather unusual state of affairs is largely due to certain features peculiar to a number of these organizations, usually known as "centros."
These were originally organized by Spanish residents of the city for the purpose of uniting in social organizations those of their compatriots who would be of very little use. DERHAPS the most renowned author of military story and drama in America is Augustus Thomas. He, at any rate, knows the American "Sammy" better than any other writer of military stories concerning the Mexican frontier. In his previous play, "Arizona," which when it was produced some 17 years ago, was acclaimed as the representative American drama. The same thing was said of another play by this same author, called "Alabama." In his latest play, Mr. Thomas again goes to the Mexican frontier for his material, only this time he treats with the last crisis which resulted in Gen. Funston invading that country with a small force of American regulars in his vain search for Villa. The love element in 'The Rio Grande" is even stronger than the love story of "Arizona," the method of treating the subject is different, the basic principles of when ther an officer who has forgotten himself can redeem himself, are cleverly worked out. There will be a special matinee of "The Rio Grande" given on Monday, Civic Holiday, August 6.

TEADING the bill at Loew's Yonge Street Theatre and Winter Garden this week will be the well-known Hebrew character comedian, Lou Welch, a former star in one of the "Potash and Perlmutter" companies, with his clever comedy playlet of Jewish life, "The Prodigal Father," Mr. Welch is quite different from any of his contemporaries, and his dialogue and wit never descends to vulgarity or suggestiveness. His new piece is said to be the best in which he has yet appeared in vaudeville. Another big headliner on this bill is the Pernikoff-Rose Ballet, a feature of several Winter Garden shows, and one of the finest dance productions in vaudeville. Ethel Rose is a beautiful dancer, one of the best in musical comedy. and has surrounded herself with a wonderful group of dancing girls. They were formerly with "The Honeymoon Express." Another feature act will be Fred Pisano, and Kitty Bingham, in their clever playlet, "At the Barber's Pole.". They represent an Italian barber and an Irish cook, and mix clever comedy with their singing. Beth Mayo, a little slip of an Irish lass. with a beaming personality, will sing new songs. Other acts will include the Exposition Jubilee Four, one of the best singing quartots in vaudeville: Frank Ward, an eccentric comedian and singer, and Joseph and Jessie Burns. On the screen dainty June Caprice will be seen in her latest film production, "Patsy," a tale of love and adventure of a most absorbing

The Douglas Family, a sextette of wellknown Toronto people who have achieved success in vaudeville, will head the variety bill in a series of smart songs and dances, Irish and Scotch songs, modern and classical specialties. B. Kelly Forest, better known as "The King of the Hoboes," is a monologist who is unsurpassed in vaudeville. He has gathered a number of odd, humorous stories, which he tells in a quaint manner that is all his own, while his parodies on popular song hits are sure to be appreciated. The chic singing comedienne, Emma Partridge, has a melange of mirth and melody which she calls musical nonsense. Senna and Webber, two clever vocalists, have all the season's newest song hits and some smart dancing numbers. The Hong Kong Mysteries present feats of magic and illusion that are truly astounding. His appearance last season, even before his elevation to "Stardom," actually amounted to this: "Good morning, have you been down to the Star to see Bates?" Of equal importance to theatre-goers is the appearance of Charlotte Worth, who is acknowledged the best female entertainer in burlesque. She fills a "niche" hitherto untouched, by any other performer, one to which she is particularly fitted by personality and artistic ability, which is

Madison Corey and Harrison Grey Fiske have joined forces for the production of at least one new play next season. The title of this play is "Servir." It is the work of Henri Lavedan and is said to deal with an absorbing domestic phase of patriotism and pacifism, and reports say, had a tremendous vogue in Paris last season.

As "Servir" is in two acts a curtain-raiser is needed to bring the offering to full-evening entertainment length. For this purpose Corey and Fiske are lucky to be able to offer the often-mentioned "A Night at an Inn." by Lord Dunsany.

The first Mcrosco play of the New York season is said to be "Lombardi, Ltd.," now playing in Los Angeles. This offering is to open the Morosco Theatre here about Labor Day.

The Manhattan Opers House is to have

The Manhattan Opera House is to have The Wanderer" as its opening offering, with practically the same cast that made it so successful last season. The date of Aug. 20 is set for the second debut.

Oct. 18, "Chu Chu Chow," the oriental fantsy, which has been a success at His Majesty's Theatre in London for some time, is to be produced, to follow "The Wanderers," at the Manhattan Opera House. While it is believed that some of the original English actors will come to this country to play their parts here, opinion is evenly divided as to whether or not the British authorities will grant the necessary permissions.

For, be it known, the British Government is daily becoming more strict in its passport permissions to its actor subjects. The New York Hippodrome is said to be selecting a new act to take the place of one refused traveling permission when at endeavored to sail for this country. There are reports current along Broadway that several English actresses, more or less famous, have been compelled to cancel contracts on this side of the water because their government frowned upon their passport requests. And the efforts of more than one English actor to obtain permission to sail the seas for this pleasant haven have met with failure.

The tide has turned so overwhelmingly sant haven have met with failure.

The tide has turned so overwhelmingly in favor of American actors and American plays this season, it seems likely that London will soon be treated to plays and players "made in America" as a large share of its entertainment fare. A certain English manager of note managed to secure a passport to come to this city to look over the field and to bid for himself and nis fellow-managers for the English rights of the productions he feels will be popular in his own country. True, this has for years been the gradually-growing custom but the desire, as evidenced by this gentleman, this year is more marked than ever before.

Indeed, the amusement situation in London, due to the number of English actors and dramatists now at the front, has caused a dearth in materials and in performers. To meet the demand, that will be even greater immediately after the close of the war, it is said, one American producer is carefully hoarding all of his plays and oigeon-holing them for immediate use when that happy time arrives. A. H. Woods, also, as reported to be laying firm plans to invade London as soon as the war is finished. He purposes to take at least six of his most recent successes across jut as soon a the war cloud passes. To further this end Mr. Woods is said to have engaged passage for himself and certain members of his staff to rush into the harvest field on the first steamer sailing after that event. Thereafter he hopes to spend at least half the year in the English capital fostering the successes he is sure these plays will have.

DEEP INTEREST STORY

Ethel Clayton, Supported by Rockliffe Fellowes, Has Strong Part.

Grace was tricked in handing over to Mordant her interests in the Western Power and Development, and only realized it when, eager to ascertain Mordant's intentions, she overheard a conversation between he and Hurd. Hurd was the man who wanted to gain control in the big development company of which Grace's husband was president, and who with the shares held by her, had the upper hand. Mordant had agreed to secure this for Hurd for a consideration of une Caprice in "Patsy," a tale of thrills and adventure at Loew's

Beautiful Emmy Wehlen, the talented Metro. star who has made such a that in addition to representing the lasting impression upon film devotees, will headline the bill at the Hippodrome this week in the new Metro. release, "The Trail of the Shadow." The picture deals with life in the west, the olden, golden west, and contains plenty of thrills. Following is an outline of the story! Sylvia Mason lives alone in her little cabin in the mountains and supports herself by making beadwork. Henry Hilliard, a young easterner of wealth and position, buys some of her bead-work and falls in love with the carefully nurtured girl who is making such a, brave struggle for existence.

Sylvia is startled one night to see a man crawling toward her door as the wounded, and she helps him into her cabin. No sooner is he inside than he points a revolver at her head, and demands that she hide him from the border police.

When the men have gone, the outlaw emerges and Sylvia recognizes with horror Jack Lesiie, her father's plartner, who had demanded her hand in marriage and, when scornfully refused, had first ruined her father in business and then caused his death. He tries to take her in his arms. They struggle, and she falls to the floor, striking her head against the table and losing consciousness. The sight of her lying helpless before him arouses his latent sense of honor, and he goes away leaving her unmolested.

However, wishing to humble her pride, he leaves a note which intimates the opposite.

Leslie returns to the neighborhood, and sends for Sylvia. She answers the call because she is determined to be revenged. Taking her revolver, she goes to the adobe but he has mentioned as the rendezvous, and a dramatic struggle ensues. Leslie hears someone approaching, and dashes away on his Hilliard, with the sheriff's

With his last breath Leslie confesses his love for Sylvia, saying she is the only good woman he has ever known and acknowledging her innocence. The posse rescues Henry and as soon as he is revived he tells her Leslie's last words. An early wedding in the little town unites the lovers and the trail of the shadow is gone forever.

Treatment to Strengthen Prints.

IT PROTECTS CELLULOID

Many Film Corporations Have Reported Double Life to Reels.

What promises to be an important discovery in the motion picture industry has been recently made by Major O. J. Allenbaugh in his new process for strengthening and protecting films. Such an invention has been sorely needed for a long time.

Major Allenbaugh was one of the first to enter the industry, and has shways taken a keen interest in the mechanical side of the business. Sev-What promises to be an important mechanical side of the business. Seven years ago he began as an ex-lmbitor in Baltimore, and later opened an exchange carrying the Paramount and Metro pictures. It was during this period of his career that film trouble was first brought to his attention. As an exhibitor, his operators were continually complaining the that the sprocket holes were tearing und that the wear and tear on returned to the exchange was all proportion to their use, neturally started him thinkhe line of a solution, which only as a protector, but reserver. This makes his place one of the largest in Maryland, and is valued at $150,000, exclusive of the out and that the emusision came off horses and cattle and the planting of this season.

This new land is devoted to the raising of potatoes. To this part of farming Mr. Bushman has paid especial attention. He estimates that the crop for this season, which will be a late one, will bring close to $10,000. To decorated the mammoth place more than two hundred bushes have been placed. It is the aim of Mr. Bushman to make his farming land as scenic as possible by the planting of shrubbery in lanes dividing the various crops.

FEATURE AT HIPP: This Excellent Picture Gives

For the first time since her advent into motion pictures, Emmy Wehlen has a part which utilizes all her dramatic abilities in Sylvia, the heroine of the Metro wonder play, "The Trail of the Shadow," which will be seen at the Hippodrome Theatre all week. Gueat moments come to Sylvia, events calling for powerful dramatic handling, and Miss Wehlen revels in the opportunity to visualize these for the public. Not since her starring tour thru Europe in the masterpieces of Ibsen and Sudermann has she had such a chance to display to the full her splendid play of action and romance.

'Not only is it of value for recruiting purposes, but it sustains the interest and is a most worthy photoplay," Gen. White added.

Cabanne, who also wrote the story, was lauded highly.

The story of "The Slacker" is simple. It tells of a man who married that he might hide behind the petiticoats to escape military service. From the beginning it is made evident, however, that he had worthy traits, but these are seldom prought to the front. His wife, unaware when she marries him that he was trying to dedge his duty, learns the truth, and makes life hard for him. Eventually he is brought to see the light, enlists in the army and goes to France, leaving his wife to endure the greatest sacrifice a woman could make for her country.

The music supplied by the Strand orchestra we's very patriotic—too much so, in fact. Three times the audience was compelled to stand. This fault will be corrected, however, for the regular showing.

From the point of view of the exhibi-

showing.
From the point of view of the exhibitor, "The Siacker" is unquestionably a picture that demands attention, for it will fill his house to capacity. Being a war picture without battle scenes, it escapes the rut into which many war productions fall.

Appealing as it does to every not to

Appealing as it does to every real American, the Metro offering cannot fail to bring the exhibitor good returns. It will not keep his Teutonic patron away, for there is nothing in the picture which could offend a pro-German, even the it is strongly pro-American.

Emily Steven's name is a drawing power in itself. The title is one that will appeal to every motion picture enthusiast. The subject is one that will prove absorbing, because it answers a question of today.
