IN THE DAYS OF SNUFF
(Weekly Scotsman)

Today our lady of fashion carries on her person a delicately scented cigarette with the same ease and enjoyment as her great-grandmother would produce her little Laurencekirk box and take a pinch of snuff. In other words: Today they say "Have a smoke?" whereas the day before yesterday it was "Have a pinch?" The same habit in different form, and the hospitably now as then. Her great-grandmother is said to have altered her dress to suit her habit. Some of the dames of that period kept the snuff in pouches "and abandoned, for its sake, the wearing of white ruffles and handkerchiefs."

Of course, even at that time there were those who did not smile upon the unhygienic practice of snuffing. Robert Chambers in his Traditions of Edinburgh states that: "In one of the monthly numbers of the Scots Magazine for the year 1748 there is a satirical poem upon the practice of snuff taking, by a swain: to which a lady replies next month, defending the fashion as elegant, and of some account in coquetry."

In the eighteenth and the beginning of the nineteenth century swains went to present to their lady-loves pretty snuff-boxes, and it is with the industry that sprang into prominence in consequence of the snuffing habit with which I wish to deal. Of course, let it be understood that the habit was more heavily indulged in by the male element of the country, but as usual, not so censoriously treated.

A Renowned Maker

The manufacture of snuff-boxes became of considerable importance in Scotland towards the close of the eighteenth and the beginning of last century, and the most renowned maker of them was Charles Stiven of Laurencekirk. Robert was born in Glenberrie in 1753 and became snuff-box maker for that parish. About the year 1783—that calamitous year of 1783—as the writers of that period said, owing to the failure of the crops—Stiven removed into the village of Laurencekirk in Kincairdineshire. It seems probable, although there is no direct proof, that Lord Gardenstone induced the maker of snuff-boxes to establish himself there. His lordship, a few years before, had rebuilt the village, carried out many improvements, and, no doubt, would realize the possibilities in the introduction of the trade. At any rate, Stiven, while in Laurencekirk, invented and perfected the "concealed hinge and wooden pin" for which his Laurencekirk boxes ultimately became famed throughout the world. For many years a thriving trade was carried on. Two other firms sprang into existence, and each had as its principal a man who had served with old Charles Stiven. But the parent house outlived each of these, and was eventually honored by being appointed Box-maker to Her Majesty Queen Victoria.

Sir John Sinclair, in his Statistical Account of Scotland, states that in 1798—ten years after Stiven had set up business—there were in Laurencekirk ten wrights and "an artist in drawing." No reference to the snuff-box manufacture is made but may one not assume that these workers were included in the wrights and that "the artist in drawing" was engaged in decorating the favorite boxes?

By a strange chance this prosperous industry migrated from Kincairdineshire into Ayrshire, where, at the beginning of last century, it developed with amazing rapidity. A country gentleman residing in the Auchenleck district was the possessor of a Laurencekirk snuff-

A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN
Can be Averted by Feeding the Starved Nerves with Rich, Red Blood

Nourish your nerves—that is the only way you can overcome life's worst misery, nervous exhaustion. The fits of depression and irritation, the prostrating headaches, the weakness and trembling of the legs, the unsteady hand and the imperfect digestion that mark the victim of nerve weakness, must end in nervous breakdown if neglected.

Nourish your nerves by the natural process of filling your veins with rich, health-giving blood. Your nerves are crying out for pure blood and the mission of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is to make new, rich blood. This explains why these pills have proved successful in so many cases of nervous disease that did not yield to ordinary treatment. For example, Mr. Wilfrid Donald, West-Flamberg, Ont., says: "Before I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I was in a serious condition. I was not only badly run down, but my nerves seemed to be completely shattered. I slept badly at night, and when I got up in the morning was as tired as when I went to bed. I seemed to be on the verge of a nervous breakdown. At this stage I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In the course of a few weeks I felt much relief, and continuing the use of the pills they completely restored my health. I can now sleep soundly, eat well, and an enjoying complete freedom from the old nervous troubles. You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont."

box. He accidentally broke the hinge, and Laurencekirk being so far away, he showed it to a clever young blacksmith, Crawford by name. Crawford undertook to repair the hinge, and when working at it discovered the secret process of its manufacture. Receiving assistance from his master the young man turned his attention to the production of "invisible hinge" snuff boxes at Auchenleck. Twelve years later he removed his works into Cummock. The new industry soon extended and prospered.

But the secret of the manufacture was "out" and other competitors entered the field at Mauchline and Cummock. In course of time the lucrative industry in "Mauchline boxes"—as they were later called—began to dwindle and the market to be over-stocked. Of course, the manufacturers did not confine themselves to the making of snuff-boxes. They turned out other articles in wood. Famous Artists Engaged

When the industry was at the height of its popularity many young artists were engaged in painting views on the snuff-boxes. Horatio MacCulloch, in his early years, worked for Mr. Smith of Mauchline, and at least two others associated with MacCulloch in this work later became artists of great prominence. They were Daniel McNece and Letich.

There is an Ayrshire version of the origin of the "invisible hinge." It is that MacCulloch was really the inventor and that a pedlar named Wyllie, who knew Crawford, and had somehow learned the secret of the hinge, had in his travels revealed it to the Laurencekirk manufacturers. But the industry was long established in Kincairdineshire before heard of in Ayrshire.

For many years the boxmaking industry has been extinct in the village of Mauchline in Scotland in Auchenleck and Cummock; but there is still a boxmaking factory in Mauchline. It is owned

GUARD BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SUMMER

The summer months are the most dangerous to children. The complaints of that season, which are cholera infantum, colic, diarrhoea and dysentery, come on so quickly that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realizes he is ill. The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they do come on suddenly to cure them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during hot weather as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels and are absolutely safe. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"Father, what is an empty title?"
"Well, an empty title is your mother's way of calling me the head of the house."

Fatigue After Battle.

It is commonly said that the surgeon in war has the advantage over his peace colleagues in that his subjects are healthy young adults. This, of course, is true, but still, a well-known surgeon writes in the Lancet, there is the strain caused by days of watching and alertness and of nights when sleep is difficult, interrupted, or impossible to obtain. Just before an action, very likely both artillery and trench mortar bombardment increase to their maximum. Then there is the exertion of battle coming on the top of days of constant strain. The excitement of battle, for the time being at any rate, obliterates all sense of fatigue, so that many men do not know how tired they are until some wound is received which prevents them going further.

Despite High Prices

"War prices," said Mayor Mitchell at a luncheon in New York, "will scarcely stop our rich gourmands from over-eating."

Mrs. Normansell was seventy-two years of age and leaves no immediate relatives.

SURPRISED AT CURB ON GERMAN PAPERS
Officials in Washington Think Berlin Seeks to Offset Effect of Adverse News
Washington, July 6.—Surprise has been caused in official circles here by the German government's action in interfering with the comparative freedom which the German press has enjoyed ever since the war began in 1914. An explanation of the new interference affecting government as well as other organs was given in an official quarter today. It was that for the first time in the war the press was beginning adversely to affect the German morale. The newspapers heretofore have been the least affected of all German enterprises by special measures taken with a view of regulating production and consumption. The government especially acted to protect the press from unfavorable conditions of supply. The German government has made use of the press perhaps more than has any other belligerent government, employing it to spread propaganda, in neutral countries, to direct opinion, and to sustain the national morale, and has caused it to be maintained at the highest point of efficiency so as to be ready to serve the German cause when peace is concluded.

PREPARING TO OUTFIT FIRST MILLION MEN
Clothing and Camp Equipment Ready by Sept. 1, U. S. War Department Announces
Washington, July 7.—Clothing and camp equipment for the first million men of the new forces will be delivered by Sept. 1, the tentative date of the mobilization of the first increment of the national army. A statement issued by the War Department says that adequate supplies for all the National Guardsmen, and for the regulars, are called out. The department has already equipped 500,000 men. National Guardsmen and regulars, and the troops in France have with them stores to last six months.

ROAD WORK IS INCREASED AS THE WEATHER IMPROVES
Fredericton, N. B., July 7.—The rainy weather of the past week and summer has seriously delayed the road-making operations of the provincial department of public works, and with a few weeks free from heavy rains, marked progress will be made.
Burton M. Hill, provincial railway and highway engineer, is in charge of the work, with D. W. Burpee as assistant. Mr. Burpee, who belongs to Fredericton, recently returned from Newfoundland, where he had been following his profession.
Gravel is the material which is being used extensively by the department in an attempt to improve the highways. Pits are purchased in various sections, and the gravel dug from them is transported by motor trucks.
The principal operations carried on so far have been in Westmorland and York. One fleet of trucks is operating in the parish of Douglas, northwest of Fredericton. Another is operating between the Nova Scotia border and Moncton, improving some important highways in that section. In Douglas the Williams' gravel pit is being used, and a pit has been purchased near Moncton.
Next week several new crews with trucks will be put at work in other sections. One truck will be in the vicinity of McAdam, another in Madawaska, working out from Edmundston. Two trucks will operate in Charlotte.

NOT A CHEERING WELCOME! THIS FOR VISITORS
A lady with three young children came to St. John recently from one of the far western provinces to spend the summer. She went to a family hotel and was quartered $60 a week. She went to another, and was accommodated at the rate of $40 a week, but could not take her children to the dining room, and had to pay for having their meals served in her room. She sought rooms at a suburban resort, and engaged them, took her children and belongings out there, only to learn that children were not desirable. She had to return at once to the city, and finally got a location at another place a few miles out of town. When she goes west again, what will she say of St. John as a tourist resort?

ROOMS TO LET IN KING STREET EAST HOTEL
Only Five Commitments to Jail in June; 75 in Same Month Last Year—Some Conditions Under Prohibition
Sheriff Wilson is thinking of advertising rooms to let. There were only five commitments to the jail during June, compared with seventy-five in June of last year. The number now behind the bars is a mere handful compared with former records.
And this introduces another problem. There are practically no hard labor prisoners, and therefore nobody to do the work of cleaning around the jail yard, or other work usually done by prisoners. In short, there is a shortage of labor this summer even in the jail. And with only five women in the cells there is a serious shortage in kitchen help.
All this has come about as a result of prohibition. Another result is given by Sheriff Wilson. A man who had been in jail for drunkenness most of the time since the first of May, but is working for wages every day. "I have seen him in the street when he was not fit to look at," said Sheriff Wilson, "but the other day I saw him and he was dressed like a gentleman."

ST. JOHN RUNNER IN MACEDONIA
Eldridge Eastman, Well Known Colored Sprinter, Challenges World's Champion
Here is a sporting item of interest from the front in far-off Macedonia. The Balkan News, a soldiers' paper, published a challenge from the Eldridge Eastman, the well-known colored St. John sprinter, to Corp. A. Applegarth, former British amateur sprint champion, and now holder of the world's championship title. Eastman's challenge was to Applegarth, or any man in the Saloniki forces, for the sum of $500. He proposed three races, 60 yards, 100 yards and 220 yards.
In the same issue was a challenge from a private soldier to box any of the soldiers in service in the east at 140 pounds. The sporting spirit is still strong in the midst of the horrors of war.

HAMPTON PEOPLE ENJOY VISIT OF SUSSEX MINSTRELS
An evening of burnt cork merriment was keenly enjoyed by a large and representative audience that gathered in the assembly hall of the Hampton Consolidated School last night, when the Sussex Lady Minstrels, under the auspices of Hampton Court Chapter I.O.O.F., gave an excellent entertainment, which included southern songs, clever dancing and "end jokes," with bright local hits.
The visitors, who journeyed from Sussex by auto, were cordially welcomed on their arrival at the school, and after the performance were entertained by the I.O.O.F. at the home of Mrs. Noah Barnes, leaving for their homeward trip a little before midnight.
The entertainment was well abreast of the excellent standard of Sussex entertainers, and Hampton people will look back upon it with much pleasure.

Dear Mary:—
Do you know I faithfully believe that very few men think about the personal comfort of their wives. It is only careless, ness in most of them. A man wants his wife to appear pretty and cheerful in the evening, but seldom thinks of what she must go through with in keeping house during the day.
I wish I could get every husband in this town in an opera house and tell him that he owes it to his wife to give her new furniture and rugs, and make her housekeeping easy.
Affectionately—HELEN

Mr. Balfour On The German Frightfulness

Jncivilized and Barbarous Conquerors of Belgium; Speech at Meeting of Relief Committee in London

(London Morning Post, June 16) The face of distant tragedies which could be by no possibility touch themselves. (Cheers.) I think you will agree with me that on the whole the Belgians of this land are one of which we are connected with it and have been connected with it from the beginning, may well be proud. It has come to an end in its active capacity of a collecting body, but it still remains as I understand it, with an organization capable of immediate expansion or of being put to immediate use should some more and wholly unforeseen and unexpected necessity arise. America's Generosity. But through the generosity of our great allies the actual financial burden of supplying food to our unhappy friends in Belgium has been removed from the shoulders of the voluntary subscribers and has been taken over by a country which has already in this very connection shown what it is capable of. (Cheers.) It is only since America became itself a belligerent that it has been either possible or fitting that it should take over as a nation these great responsibilities. But the work that was done by America organizers, American diplomats, and American philanthropists before America became a belligerent must be, and will be, a matter of eternal gratitude, not merely to the Belgian people themselves, but to all who are interested in the fate of Belgium. (Cheers.) Unhappily—and it is the only trace of ill consequences that I am aware of amid the infinite advantages of the American co-operation—we can no longer help the cause in Belgium itself. She cannot do so from the nature of the case. The work is now being carried on by the Spanish government, who have always been associated, I am glad to think, with it, and also by the help of the Dutch government. Nevertheless, although actual work in Belgium is forbidden by mere considerations drawn from belligerency, I am glad to think that my friend Mr. Hoover has not withdrawn from the work of organizing relief. An immense amount of that organization has to be done, and must be done, outside the limits of Belgium itself, and as I understand the present arrangement, Mr. Hoover and his friends are going to give what time they can to carry on in the future the work which they have so splendidly performed in the past. (Cheers.) And when I remember that Mr. Hoover has now taken upon himself the colossal task of organizing food problems on the other side of the Atlantic—food problems which, indeed, are in a sense American problems, but which, believe me, we are quite as much interested in as anybody living in the free Republic itself—when I remember that Mr. Hoover has taken over these colossal responsibilities and is carrying them out with his admirable organizing power I feel that our debt of gratitude to him, already great, becomes almost overwhelming. (Cheers.) German Militarism. This opens a new chapter in our relations to sufferings in Belgium. I am not going to attempt any historical retrospect or survey of the history of that cruelly used community since war broke out. But I think it is impossible to survey the past, as Mr. Bann has surveyed it in the report, without considering what bearing the Belgian case has upon the world case for the war. Just consider what light this history of the last two years throws upon German militarism. It may be said—it was said—by those who endeavored to excuse German atrocities in the early weeks of the war that after all an invading army was almost always accompanied by some regrettable incidents, and that you must judge a nation too harshly because some of its troops behave badly. The excuse, even at the time, was hopelessly inadequate. The investigations made by impartial tribunals, the evidence that that hostilities have broken out with Germany—all conclusively prove that the frightfulness exercised by German troops in Belgium was a deliberate frightfulness. It was never repressed but was constantly encouraged; it had a deliberate purposive view, and it was carried out as part of a scheme—a part of a settled policy. It is not denied by the Germans themselves that the invasion of Belgium was a gross breach of treaty engagements. They say: "Well, but it was a military necessity, and in face of military necessity even treaty engagements must give way." We do not agree. But we ask: Is there any evidence that that was the sole motive—that military necessity was the sole motive of German aggression? Had it been so what would any other nation in the world have done when it had been necessary to invade Belgium? Is it not excused, but for the sake of argument grant that it had some shadowy basis in international morality—I think that it has none—what would the plain fact of treaties broken, and scornfully broken. Do you ask whether in future you can or cannot trust this militant and imperialist Germany—for it is only for that Germany I am speaking—to show some regard for humanity? You have the example of Belgium, on which I have just been dwelling, staring you in the face. The almost incredible horrors of the Armenian massacre are remote.

Although their total result is beyond question, the details are not open to our examination, and we do not know what share of these unexampled abominations are due to Turkish inspiration or how much are due to German inspiration. But in Belgium you have the German carrying out his policy in his own way undisturbed by Allies, and everything that is done he has done. We know what he has done, what he is doing. We know at this moment the censured German press is perpetually engaged in discussing the advantages of retaining a country which they promised to defend, which they brutally outraged, and which they now coolly suggest would be to the advantage of the German empire if it perpetually remained under their yoke.

Do not let familiarity with this terrible story blunt the moral which should be drawn from it. I do not know whether you have read the report of the magnificent speech which appears in today's papers made by the President of the United States upon the causes of the war and the underlying necessity under which the whole of liberty-loving mankind lies to see that such a war is never repeated. But if you read that speech, as I strongly advise those who have not yet read it to do so, and bear in mind German action in Belgium, German promises about Belgium, German policy in Belgium, Germany's future intentions with regard to Belgium—if you remember all those things you will see that the general observations

CENTENARY'S NEW PASTOR

Transcript, Thursday—Rev. H. A. Goodwin, of the Central Methodist Church, and family, left this afternoon for their new home in St. John. They will spend the summer months at Duck Cove. Mr. Goodwin will probably preach his inaugural sermon in Centenary Methodist church, St. John, early in August, having been granted a month's vacation by his new charge. Both Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin have many friends in Moncton, who sincerely regret their departure from our city. Rev. Mr. Goodwin, during his four years stay here, by the earnestness and sincerity with which as a citizen he took an active part in the discussion of all questions for the betterment of our city generally won many friends, not only in the church, with which he was so closely connected, but among the citizens of Moncton generally. Mrs. Goodwin, by her pleasing manner and kindly demeanor also endeared herself to a wide circle of friends in this community. At the railway station this afternoon, when Mr. Goodwin and his family left for St. John, they were bidden farewell by two or three scores of friends and acquaintances.

CARSON ASSAILS CRITICS

London, June 19.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—The attitude of the British navy toward its critics among the press and public was for a long time one of amiable tolerance. Of late it has grown more reticent, and many naval leaders now believe that discipline is essential to the navy must present a really belligerent front toward its detractors.

"Let me take me a long time to answer the criticisms which are being passed upon the work of the admiralty and my navy," said Sir Edward Cardwell, first lord of the admiralty. "I can divide the critics into several categories. There are my political critics, there are my newspaper critics, there are my naval critics who have been disappointed in the past. There are present naval critics who are read criticisms of Sir John Jellicoe, try to find out what is the origin of them.

"If criticism all it does not really matter; there will always be grumblings and growlings. Let them grumble and growl; let us get with our work. The work of the admiralty, the work of the great British navy is done silently and courageously. It is done in the day, it is done in the night. It is done every hour and every minute, and I tell you with all confidence, that I believe in the whole history of the British navy there never was a time when our men displayed greater heroism than they do at the present moment."

A group of naval men the same afternoon were discussing some of the recent utterances of one of the most acid of the navy's critics. "The navy has failed us," was one of his remarks which they quoted, "there has been lack of energy in tackling the U-boat menace. New men are wanted, and changes in the higher command." It was remarked that one of the reasons for this particular critic's opposition to the present naval regime was its failure to adopt a naval invention of his. The senior officer present said:

"If criticism does not really matter, constructive and single-purposed, the navy rightly resents it as impertinent and mischievous. In times like the present, to scare a public some what ignorant of this special subject by a mere meaningless mélange of words, is an abuse."

"Tommy," said the young man to his prospective brother-in-law, aged five, "will you be sorry when I marry your sister?" "Yes," answered Tommy. "I'll be sorry—for you."

have done wonderful work," said Mrs. Shears-Hicks, who has charge of the Red Cross Supply Rooms on King street. "Some of them have never relaxed their efforts from the very beginning. Churches and clubs are doing perfectly splendid and steady work. It is only natural that there should be a little dropping off from the first enthusiasm of the war."

EXAGGERATE LOSSES OF DOCTORS IN WAR

British Medical Casualties on Western Front Total 64 Since the War Began

Many various and extravagant figures have been published of the casualties in the Medical Service of the British army. To obtain authoritative information in regard to these figures Dr. Robert H. Halsey of New York, who is a captain in the medical reserve corps, wrote to Colonel T. H. Goodwin of the British army medical service, who has been at the western front since the war began until very recently, when he was detailed to the British commission in the United States. Colonel Goodwin thereupon cabled to the British war office and obtained the following information, which was transmitted to Dr. Halsey:

WORLD'S FOOD SUPPLY

(Toronto Globe)

Examination of the following data of crop year 1916-1917, and comparison with previous years and the average for the five previous years, indicates that all reserves are being rapidly exhausted, and that the present economy is necessary. Authorities state that, according to all indications, the 1917-1918 cereal crops will show improvement compared with the preceding year, but in view of the heavy requirements for all purposes, including the supply of the armies in the field, and the reduced reserves, it is probable that we shall face the necessity of finding substitute foods for cereals, especially wheat. An indication of this is encouraging to note that the production of vegetables, fruits, food oils and a few other foods including corn, is increasing.

The essence of conservatism is that it substitutes the law of the land for persuasion, for rebuke, for denunciation. These are methods associated with volunteering. When voluntary recruiting ceases, they cease. When the law touches a man on the shoulder and tells him to go there is no sense in scolding him, sneering at him, and asking him why he did not go of his own accord. Talk of all kind becomes idle. The law of the land should work with something of the silence and dignity of a law of nature.

ALLIES CAN GO ON FOR YEARS BUT THE ENEMY CAN NOT

(Toronto Star.) There is no reason to doubt that Britain and the United States are able and willing to continue the struggle for years in order to get a just and permanent peace. It is equally certain that France, with declining effectiveness, because her strength is ebbing, will fight on so long as there is the slightest possibility of gaining a complete success. So much cannot be said for any one of the four enemy countries. All want peace and three of them want it so badly that they would make huge concessions to get it. Germany herself is willing to abandon most of the spoils if thereby she can bring the struggle to an end. Hoffmann, the Swiss foreign minister who acted as her agent in the effort to get a separate Russian peace, says that Germany should let the world know how far she authorized him to go in her anxiety for peace. The German Socialist who has acted for the German government in arranging for the Stockholm conference says that each week Germany adds to the concessions she offers to get peace. The Young Emperor of Austria-Hungary is divorcing himself by degrees from German control, and he tells the political leaders of Austria that he is working unsuccessfully for a settlement. In this he is co-operating with the King of Bavaria, who is not disposed to follow Prussian dictation, and it is probable the allies could eliminate Turkey at any time but for their resolution that Ottoman rule in Mesopotamia and Armenia must terminate. Bulgaria has put on several feelers for a separate peace and cannot help being concerned by the sight of Greece lining up with the allied powers at this stage when Bulgaria is exhausted by nearly five years of continuous war. Today the Prussian food controller is urging the people to hold out to the last crust. The London Times correspondent on the Roumanian front reports that the morale of the German troops in that region is very low and their shells of poor quality and that the fear that their families would be persecuted alone deters the troops from deserting. The Canadian correspondent on the western front vouches for the fact that even prisoners who have not suffered from hunger or great privations declare that "if the war does not end soon there will be a revolution in Germany." We know that already large hordes have been made into the supply of German munitions that should become available in 1918 and that some at least of the boys of the 1919 class have been used and been taken prisoner. In short the strain of three years of war has so reduced the morale of the armies and populations of the enemy power that it is hard to believe that they can carry on the struggle beyond the end of the year 1918. One more great attempt of the enemy to bluff the al-

Inequalities Noted—Some of the Stay-at-Homes—More Equitable Distribution of Financial Burdens of War Suggested

(By Rev. Peter Bryce)

Many inquiries have reached me in the last few weeks in respect to the questions I have endeavored to answer in this article. The evidence of considerable public interest has led me to make the necessary investigations and the figure given are as nearly accurate as possible. 1. WHAT IS NOW THE TOTAL ENLISTMENT IN THE EARLSCOURT DISTRICT? The enlistment for the district in the army and navy is now in the neighborhood of 2,000 men. Forty men are serving in the navy. Eighty-five men have been killed, two hundred and forty wounded, twenty are prisoners of war in Germany, one is interned in Switzerland, and about fifty have been honorably discharged. A large number of men have offered, and been rejected. In addition, in almost every home there are photographs of sons, or brothers, or nephews in the British army. The war has most powerfully affected the district. In every gathering the garb of mourning is conspicuous and the absence of men pronounced. 2. WHAT IS THE PROPORTION OF ENLISTMENT TO THE POPULATION? The population of the district is estimated at 20,000; thus the enlistment would be one in ten of the population. The same proportion throughout Canada would give a Canadian army of 700,000 men. The men left behind are chiefly employed on munitions. The majority are physically unfit for the army or of value as workmen in war enterprises. 3. HOW MANY WOMEN AND GIRLS ARE WORKING ON MUNITIONS? I cannot claim to answer this question with accuracy, but I have reached the figure that nearly 500 women and girls are now employed on munitions. This estimate I have reached after consultation with several people who have opportunities for observation in the matter. I do not believe women with little children should be employed, nor that women should work during the night. If this is done, certain results are inevitable. 4. WHAT IS THE ATTITUDE OF THE MEN AT THE FRONT TO THE CONDITIONS AT HOME? An intense interest is apparent in all that pertains to the home, the wife and the children. Any consideration shown to them is greatly appreciated by the men. I received very many letters from the men during the past six months. A significant note in recent letters has been the hope frequently expressed, that more soldiers' wives and mothers during the winter. Anything done to encourage and strengthen the home life is deeply appreciated. Measures taken to help the returned soldiers awaken keen interest, and the men ask that the best possible be done for them. WHAT IS THE ATTITUDE OF THE ALLOWANCE MADE TO THE DEPENDENTS OF SOLDIERS? There are very few complaints in regard to the administration of the funds, but there is now a strong feeling that the allowance made is not enough, in view of the great increase in the cost of living. It is thinking he is unable to put my foot into that government. That attempt, we venture to think, will fail absolutely.

Make the most of the Early Fruits

STRAWBERRY JAM Weigh the fruit and heat slowly in a preserving kettle to extract the juice. Do not cook more than three or four pounds at a time; for best results an even smaller quantity. When the fruit has boiled five minutes add an equal weight of LANTIC SUGAR which has been heated in the oven and cook slowly until the liquid jellies when tried on a cool dish. Put away in jelly glasses, cups or any convenient container. Sealing is not necessary, but a thin layer of paraffin will prevent mold.

STRAWBERRIES, raspberries and cherries will soon be here. How delicious they will taste next winter when fresh fruits are few and scarce—economical too. A jar of home-preserved fruit costs only about half as much as a can of tinned fruit not nearly so good in flavor. In all your preserving use LANTIC SUGAR. It is the best and purest sugar, absolutely free from adulteration and artificial coloring, and the "Fine" Granulation dissolves instantly in hot fruit juice making a clear sparkling syrup as attractive as it is wholesome and delicious.

PRESERVED CHERRIES Very fair cherries, either white or red, may be preserved with stones in them. This adds a high flavor, saves labor and makes the fruit go further. Cherries which show signs of knots or worms must be carefully stoned. Cook for twenty minutes in their own juice with the addition of just a little water at the start. For sweet cherries use a cup of LANTIC SUGAR to every quart of fruit. Sour cherries should be considerably sweeter. Pack the fruit in hot sterilized jars sealed with new, strong, jar rubbers. No matter how many you put up, the family will ask for more.

Atlantic Sugar Refineries Limited :: Power Building, Montreal

Canadas in 1841 followed the investigation and report by Lord Durham after the insurrection of 1837. At union, Lower Canada was more populous than her sister, but agreed to equal representation. Not long afterwards the rush of immigration to the upper province turned the balance. The inevitable result was an agitation, headed by Brown, for "representation by population." In 1859 the Reformers of upper Canada at a great convention declared for a dissolution of the union and a federation of the two Canadas, an idea which was the germ of the larger union. The action of the maritime provinces in calling the Charlottetown Conference was one of the coincidences of history. The Canadian ministers were quick to seize the occasion, and uninvited journey to the island capital, where the eastern men were virtually stampeded into the new scheme. The story of Confederation is lighted by the beacons of sacrifice and patriotism. Brown threw away his party fortunes, and was never in power again, except in the hearts of his countrymen. Macdonald and Cartier divided office and patronage with their political enemies. Tilley, by espousing the union cause, risked and met defeat, but rose later to high place in the national councils. Tupper had a two-year struggle for many months all customers have been rationed on a carefully considered basis which has proved satisfactory."

THE DISTRICT TO CONSCRIPTION? The attitude of the district may be summed up in the words of a man of fine character, but of limited education, who said to me: "We must now have a sense of resentment to forced service, and a deep regret that such a course is apparently necessary. With the passing of the measure, a coalition government should come into being, representative of the very best in the Canadian nation. Organized labor must be asked to make its contribution to such a government. Labor has not been recognized. It must have its representatives in the supreme councils of the country. The scope of the measure must be for all Canadas; it must recognize no social distinctions, and its administration must be non-partisan."

before his policy triumphed in his province. These great leaders saw their duty clearly and marched steadily to the goal. Economy in Matches In their annual report Messrs. Bryant & May, match makers, state: "The supply of matches through the stoppage of imports has been reduced by 80 per cent, and it will be by strict economy only in use that the reduced quantity will be sufficient to go round. For many months all customers have been rationed on a carefully considered basis which has proved satisfactory."

SACRIFICES FOR CONFEDERATION

(Toronto Globe.) Amid the distractions and divisions today in a retrospect of half a century of organized political life, the Confederation found a means of solving problems that seemed insoluble, and of evolving peace and national unity from jarring elements, racial and religious, that appeared to be irreconcilable. It is difficult for the generation of today to realize the sacrifices which were made by the leaders who in 1864 buried the animosities of years and entered into a compact for the welfare of their country. A few years before, John A. Macdonald had scathingly referred to the "accursed Browns." They flung each other in their speeches, and there was no such thing as personal intercourse. As soon as they had achieved their purpose by the coalition, they parted, and the old antagonisms were revived. Brown, in 1867, said: "I understood what degradation it was to be compelled to adopt that step (John Macdonald) by the necessities of the case, by the feeling that the interests of my country were at stake, which alone induced me ever to put my foot into that government." Brown's relations with Cartier, who was also in the coalition, were scarcely less bitter. Each was the champion of his own province. In the critical days of 1864 they appreciated the solemnity of their undertaking, and were proud to join hands. Without the collaboration of these three great figures Confederation would not have been possible in their day and time. In the chaos prior to the coalition four ministries had been defeated in three years, and two general elections had failed to break the deadlock which threatened to make all government in Canada impossible, as Pope says in his biography of Macdonald. The distrust and antagonism between Upper and Lower Canada were chief among the evils which oppressed the state. George Brown broke down his party machine and incurred the enmity of not a few influential Reformers in upper Canada. In joining with Macdonald, Cartier was opposed by A. A. Dorion and other strong men in the public life of Lower Canada. But both kept steadily in view the one object, and never faltered until it was achieved. When Brown, prematurely, as it seems, left the cabinet in the fall of 1865, it was distinctly understood that he would continue to support Confederation, and this he loyally did. Confederation was the second step in the development of responsible government in Canada. The union of the two

In the Balance

"In acute disease or sudden injury the steady, constant drinkers' chances of recovery are diminished 50 per cent."—Professor Gilbert Barling, F.R.C.S., Vice-Chancellor of Birmingham University.

It was at the bedside of a very sick man. The physicians gravely watched the struggle between Life and Death. All depended upon the heart. Could it cope with the crisis? Life hung by a thread. The thread snapped. The newspapers said he died of pneumonia, and so he did. But the physicians remarked, "Too bad he used alcohol, or he could have passed the crisis." Here's the tremendous significance of his case: He always voted true to his convictions. Moderate drinkers form a large proportion of the vote upon which the Traffic depends for existence. In fact, in many communities the moderate drinkers hold the "balance of power."

Help to Enforce Prohibition

When, after the war, the people vote for or against permanent Prohibition the moderate drinker may turn the scale as he wills. Prohibition is on trial. The moderate drinker of the class mentioned is needed in the fight for vigorous enforcement—the means to permanent victory—and who is more likely to be indifferent? Would that all the moderate drinkers in New Brunswick could thoroughly realize the seriousness of even slight acquaintance with John Barleycorn. Prohibition would be assured forever! In the name of common sense why will intelligent men vote for such a curse! Think of thousands of good citizens being the Traffic's main political support by voting "wet." Will the moderate drinkers take the responsibility of killing Prohibition after the war? We think decidedly not. But we want their help now—to enforce the laws and thus make freedom a certainty. Use your influence with every moderate drinker you know. Help to enforce Prohibition.

The Red Cross Nurse says to you: "Alcohol, by lowering resistance, nine times out of ten, makes it just so much harder for the patient to recover."

"Nature" chose Assam

Scientists tell us that Assam in northern India was the original home of the tea plant. Thousands of years ago "Nature" chose the climate and soil of this favored region as most suitable for growing tea. It is, therefore, natural that the hillside gardens of Assam (see picture) grow the teas which to-day are famous for their flavor, fragrance and rich strength. It is of these Assam teas, skillfully blended with choice Ceylons, that Red Rose Tea consists. It is this rich Assam strength that users of Red Rose Tea must thank for its splendid economy—for the greater number of cups it yields to the pound, fully one-third more than ordinary teas. To make certain that these Assam qualities are fully preserved for you we put Red Rose Tea into dust, odor and air proof sealed packages. Red Rose Tea reaches you pure, fresh and full strength—we guarantee it. Try a Package of this Economical Tea. Red Rose crushed coffee is as generously good as Red Rose Tea and just as easy to make.

Search For Prizefighter—Murdered Man Was Talking to Wife About Funeral When Appeal for Protection Came

New York, July 6.—Policeman John P. Flood, attached to the Thirty-first Precinct, on East Thirty-seventh street, was murdered in a flat on the second floor of a house at 802 East Seventy-seventh street. He had gone to the apartment on the plea of the owner, Mrs. Kitty O'Connor, who said that a man there was threatening her life, and when inside, the police think he was beaten to death with his own club. A general alarm has been sent out for Milton Blier, a prizefighter, charging him with the murder. The circumstances of the crime—for Flood's forehead was crushed as by the blow of a hammer, while the back of his skull was cut and slashed, apparently with a large knife or hatchet—may indicate that more than one man is implicated, but at present the police are proceeding on the theory that Blier alone is responsible, and an arrest is expected soon.

there won't be much to this. Just wait until I come back." The two went to the flat, which Flood entered when Mrs. O'Connor opened the door. What happened after that can only be conjectured. Mrs. O'Connor says she ran away and waited with her sister in the street outside for Flood to come out. Nearly a half hour passed and he didn't return. Then she told the police, she went back to the door and heard moans. Julius Schneider burst the door open and found the body of Flood on the floor. The room was upset. Flood's night stick was on the table beside him covered with what looked like blood, and in the absence of another weapon the police believe that it was snatched from his hand when he entered the room. Dr. Caughlin from the Flower Hospital pronounced Flood dead. According to Coroner Healy either blow, the one on his forehead or that on the back of his skull, would have been sufficient to cause death.

Elihu Root, the special ambassador and head of the commission, is in receipt of an enthusiastic telegram from General Scott briefly describing the battle. Standing on a hill overlooking the Russian and Austrian lines near Zloczow, General Scott's party had an opportunity of observing the Russian artillery preparation and the charge which followed. General Scott described the artillery preparation as "excellent" and said that he personally saw the Sixth Corps of the Eleventh Army take three lines of Austrian trenches.

At the time he was called in by Mrs. O'Connor his wife was talking to him on post about their going to buy a floral wreath for the body of a little girl, Mary O'Connell, who was drowned. Mrs. Flood waited in vain for her husband to come back from the apartment, and later, when she was told the news, she was prostrated and had to be carried home. Mrs. O'Connor and her sister told their story to Inspector Cray and Deputy District Attorney Joyce in the East Sixty-seventh street station. They are both held as material witnesses. All New Ford Cars Have Champion "X" Plugs

The fact that all new Ford and Maxwell cars are exclusively equipped at the factory with Champion Dependable Spark Plugs is the best reason in the world why owners of these cars should replace with Champions. The manufacturers selected Champions because they insure maximum efficiency in their motors—prevent loss of compression and are absolutely dependable in emergencies. The Champions illustrated were developed especially for service in Ford and Maxwell motors and efficiently meet their exacting requirements.

WHEN you have nothing else to do with your money, it may be alright to spend it on extravagant food and out-of-season delicacies. But now—in this critical year of the war—there are more important uses for it!

Save it by purchasing economically—and to do this, study food values. You will be surprised to know how extravagant some supposedly cheap foods are, and how some that seem high are really more economical. These true values are brought out clearly in a new National Service pamphlet, "How to Live in War Time," which we will gladly send you on request.

Under present conditions careless buying is worse than wasteful. It encourages still higher prices, and makes conditions harder yet for the less fortunate who are already feeling the pinch.

Buy carefully for their sake—for your own sake—and for your country! Canada needs every dollar you can save and invest in Canadian War Savings Certificates. Buy these certificates at any Bank or Money Order Post Office, at $21.50, $43 or $86. In three years you will get back $25, $50 or $100, respectively—which means over 5% interest. # TREMBLOUS PART RUBBER HAS PLAYED IN NATIONAL LIFE

Advertising Manager of The Dunlop Rubber Co. Gives Some Interesting Facts and Figures Concerning Industrial Growth and Rubber's Part Therein—Incidentally Dunlop's Contribution—Has Warm Praise for the Maritimes.

Austin A. Briggs, the advertising manager of the Dunlop Rubber Company, of Toronto, and a well known newspaper man and magazine contributor, is in the city. Mr. Briggs is a type of keen-eyed, wide-awake Canadian who is at present making a tour through Eastern Canada in the interests of his company, but in his trip he has made observations on the prevailing conditions which obtain in each place visited, which show him to be a most wide-awake and energetic member of his fraternity.

Last fall Mr. Briggs made an extensive trip across the continent, going as far north as Alaska, and covering altogether a distance of more than 10,000 miles. Mr. Briggs was a member of the J. K. Cornwall expedition of magazine writers who went to the Arctic Circle in 1910.

Eulogizes the Maritimes.

In speaking to a reporter of The Times at the office of the Dunlop Rubber Co., 85 Canterbury street, which E. R. Fenwick is divisional manager, Mr. Briggs spoke in glowing terms of what he considered to be the future of the maritime provinces. He is a great admirer of the people in this portion of the great dominion, and speaks highly of their leading characteristic of stability. We do not, he says, carry our emotions on the surface but keep going ahead no matter how trying the conditions we have to face.

"The maritime provinces," he said, "are not built on the 'mushroom policy' but are solid and substantial, and it is proverbial that when the country receives an industrial jolt the maritimers are the last and least affected."

Mr. Briggs is much impressed by the go ahead spirit evident in St. John today. "Your city is thoroughly modern and up-to-date, and now that the tap of the ship carpenter's hammer again resounds from your shipyards truly a period of additional prosperity is yours."

The Times' representative then questioned Mr. Briggs regarding the scope and extent of the Dunlop Company's operations.

Dunlop the Pioneers.

"I understand that the Dunlop Company are the pioneers of the tire industry in Canada."

"That is correct," said Mr. Briggs. "We made our first bicycle tire in 1894, like many other business enterprises, we started in a small way and grew with the country. One of the things that appeals to me the most when contemplating the history of Dunlop achievements is this: Long before the company had a factory they were selling policy, which, summed up in a few words, meant 'Make Good Products and Keep Them!' Name is the source of pride to think of those early days when the total staff consisted of a few people who made a complete today that the company has fourteen full-fledged branches, as follows: Halifax, St. John, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton, London, Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon, Calgary, Edmonton, Vancouver and Victoria. In a number of distant offices, as well as approximately 10,000 distributors over all Canada."

That Goin' Stout.

"Naturally, when people think of the name Dunlop, they think of the 'Two Hands' put in The Times man. It is true that in following the policy of originality in featuring the 'hands' your company were unconsciously the means of causing the government to enact a special statute on advertising."

"What you refer to is the stunt put over by the Dunlop Company some years ago. Our people evolved the idea of stamping a number of coins with the trademark. Whenever a coin was returned the successful holder of same was given an honorarium. The idea created so much interest at the time that the Canadian government shut down on it, and put through a statute making it impossible to get up such a scheme in the future. Yet, to show you how the 'Two Hands' had been seeded on the minds of the people, eight years after the discontinuance of the contest, the Dunlop Company received a letter from a man in a small town in Quebec, accompanied by one of the special five cent pieces. He wanted to know if the money belonged to us. You can imagine how large a pair of hands would be on a common five cent piece when those hands were imprinted into a space clear of all words and border. Yet, this man, living in a district where we did no direct advertising, found out what the mark meant and who it belonged to.

Widening of Trademark.

"While we are on this subject, it may not be amiss to note that originally the 'Two Hands' mark carried the slogan 'These Are The Only Tools You'll Need'—reference being to the Dunlop idea of quick-detachability in bicycle tires. After years of popularizing in Canada, until the 'Two Hands' became one of the widest-known trademarks in the country, the tire industry commenced to broaden out from the bicycle end of the business to include carriages, automobiles, truck and motorcycle tires. The trademark had to be broadened, too—not only because the tire business had developed new ramifications—but the Dunlop Company had also embarked into what is known as the mechanical end of the rubber goods business, namely: Rubber belting, rubber packing, rubber hose—in fact, practically everything in rubber products."

Twenty-three Years Association.

"Obviously, the 'Two Hands' sign, with the original slogan, had no bearing whatever on the mechanical end of the business, but the 'Two Hands' sign, with an association now of twenty-three years back of it, had come to mean a quality standard, a business indicator that stood out from the field because of its unique character."

"So the phrase 'These Are The Only Tools You'll Need' was changed to 'Seal of Quality'. Then, the 'Two Hands' and the phrase were brought into a scroll arrangement that immediately linked them up with the ideas of Dunlop Automobile Tires, Dunlop Truck Tires, or whatever might be the individual line receiving the publicity. 'Dunlop' being registered in Canada and the 'Two Hands' a registered trademark, gives the company double trademark strength."

Bicycle "Comeback."

Mention of the revival in bicycling immediately brought an enthusiastic statement from Mr. Briggs. "No other sport in the history of the world," he went on, "looked such a great hold on such a large number of people simultaneously as cycling. That is a broad statement, but tinged the sports world through the many seasons of sport since 1894, or who have kept in close touch with various sporting innovations through the years, we believe, confirm us in the above declaration."

Bicycle Tire History.

"J. B. Dunlop invented the pneumatic bicycle tire in 1889, and, as noted previously, it was in 1894 that the Dunlop Company commenced the manufacture of the pneumatic bicycle tire in Canada. It is probably the most remarkable thing in the whole history of tire events which followed, because the success of the bicycle pneumatic tire, which in their case, of course, was at first merely an enlargement of the Dunlop bicycle tire."

"You probably have noticed that in our advertising we use the phrase, 'If it isn't a Dunlop it's an imitation.' This is a reference to matter of fact feature which we commenced manufacturing under patents twenty-three years ago. Eighty per cent of the bicycle tires used in Canada are Dunlop."

The Famous Dunlop Race.

Mr. Briggs continued: "Of course, no reference to the bicycle is complete without a reference to the Dunlop Trophy Race which, undoubtedly more than any other single factor, kept the bicycle 'game' alive. Of all the 'annuals' started in the '90's the 'Dunlop' alone is left. It has been run continuously for twenty-three years. The very first race in 1894 was conducted in a blaze of excitement. Feelings ran so high when the results were announced that the losers in the contest took the matter to court in an effort to upset the bicycle judges' decision. The court upheld the bicycle in their ruling. This decision brought the famous phrase, 'Did McCarthy turn the Bernall,' to which even the poet has devoted his muse."

"In addition to the event noted above, the two greatest achievements in connection with the Dunlop Trophy Race were put on, firstly, in 1912 when before thousands of people, the Dunlop Company staged the first bicycle, motorcycle and auto meet ever held in Canada on one track at one time and, secondly, in 1915 when a monster meet was held before ten thousand people and

The following is an amusing anecdote of Cooke, an actor and musician:

At a trial in the Court of King's Bench, in 1883, betwixt certain music publishers and an alleged piracy, in an arrangement of the song of "The Old English Gentleman." Cooke was subpoenaed as a witness by one of the parties. On his cross-examination by Sir James Scarlett for the opposite side, he learned counsel questioned him thus:

"Now, sir, you say that the melodies are the same but different; now what do you mean by that sir?"

To this Cooke promptly replied: "I said that the notes in the two copies were alike, but with a different accent, the one being in common time, the other in six-eight time; and consequently the position of the accented notes was different."

"Now, pray, sir, don't beat about the bush, but explain to the jury, who are supposed to know nothing about music, the meaning of what you just accented the meaning of what you just accented."

"Accept in music is a certain stress laid upon a particular note, in the same manner as you would lay stress upon a word in a sentence. The accented notes were different."

"Now, pray, sir, don't beat about the bush, but explain to the jury, who are supposed to know nothing about music, the meaning of what you just accented the meaning of what you just accented."

"Accept in music is a certain stress laid upon a particular note, in the same manner as you would lay stress upon a word in a sentence. The accented notes were different."

"Are you satisfied, Sir James?"

Sir James (who had become scarlet in more than name), in a great huff, said: "The witness may go down."

To Have Perfect Skin Throughout the Summer

These days the face needs special care and attention. Flying dust and dirt, the heating and dry winds on your skin, their besetting effects are best overcome by the application of pure, polished wax. This keeps skin and pores in a clearly cool, comfortable, and beautiful condition. The complete Old Dutch Cleanser is actually absorbed by it. One ounce of mercuric ointment, obtained at any drug store, is sufficient to completely remove the dirt and oil from the face in the morning. The skin tends to expand in warm weather, causing wrinkles to form. A good astringent lotion should be used. Dissolve 1 oz. powdered sulphur in 1 qt. witch hazel. Wash the face in the morning with the lotion, and before going out for exercise or social affairs, use a remarkable skin tightener and wrinkle eraser.

Dr. McLeod and Dr. Watson—these were contrasts in size—were in the West Highlands together on a tour, before leaving for India. When they were crossing a loch in a boat, in company with a number of passengers, a storm came on. One of the passengers was heard to say: "The two ministers should begin to pray, or we'll be drowned."

"Ah, na," said a boatman. "The little one can pray, if he likes; but the big one must tak' an oar."

Are you acquainted with the tube used in auto tires. You would hardly think, though, that nineteen different and distinct operations are represented in the making of the Dunlop product. And what is more important, Dunlop Tubes are the only tubes made by an exclusive and patented process which ensures absolute uniformity in thickness and weight.

"Of course, you are acquainted with the tube used in auto tires. You would hardly think, though, that nineteen different and distinct operations are represented in the making of the Dunlop product. And what is more important, Dunlop Tubes are the only tubes made by an exclusive and patented process which ensures absolute uniformity in thickness and weight."

"And, just let me add, as a final statement," went on Mr. Briggs, "that there is no fairer business in the world than that of tire-making. I am speaking now for all rubber companies. Do you know that in the period from 1911 to 1914 there was, almost a complete revision of prices downward? The ethics of the rubber business demand that the moment crude rubber prices drop to any appreciable extent, the price of tires to the people also drop. So that if there is one thing the tire-buying public can be sure of it is this: No controller of the price is necessary. The crude rubber market, thousands of miles away, does the controlling."

Jess Willard Is Very Wealthy

Said to be Worth $500,000—Made This Fortune Since Defeating Johnson

New York, July 5.—Jess Willard, one-time champion, according to tradition and present world's champion heavyweight and circus owner, may also be billed now as a capitalist. At least Jess has climbed into the circle of plutocrats, if the statement of Tom Jones, late pugilistic champion to the Pottawatomie mastodon, is to be accepted. Of course severance of connections with Willard and contemplated legal action for financial redress may play its part in Jones' statement.

However, Tom blew into Chicago, and in passing the time of day deposited as follows: "Willard is worth between $600,000 and $800,000 today. Of that amount about $425,000 is stored away in cold cash on deposit in Chicago banks. One bank on the loop carries $90,000 in Willard's name, and another has $60,000. There is still a third neighborhood bank near where Jess lives that carries a healthy check account. All of this has been salted away since Jess slapped the pugilistic crown from the ebony dome of Jack Johnson down in Havana on April 5, 1915. "Things have been breaking pretty soft for Willard since he won the crown. When he took an inventory after the Havana battle his financial sheet showed a deficit of $10,175. But pickings were very fat and juicy with the circus. Some weeks Willard's percentage ran as high as $8,000. Sums slightly below that were ordinary. And always the amount totalled up handsomely. In addition to the actual money which Willard has on deposit, he owns a farm of 3,000 acres, another of 600 in Michigan, four bungalows in Los Angeles and his home in Rogers Park, Chicago."

If Jones' statements are true, Willard has gathered in an average of better than $5,000 a week since winning the title.

Bezdak Pirate Manager

Pittsburgh, July 4.—Acting Manager Hans Wagner of the Pittsburgh Pirates positively refused to continue longer in that capacity today, and Hugo Bezdak, superior of physical instruction and football coach at the University of Oregon, was appointed manager for the rest of the year.

He took charge in 1916 and directed the play from the bench, and was in uniform. He has been sporting for the Pirates for some time, and was at one time a star fullback on the University of Chicago football team.

Ex-Manager Jimmy Callahan was in the stand at the game this afternoon, and said he was reporting every day, as he had simply been relieved of the management and not released outright. He will demand a season's salary on his contract, and losing four, and giving only one game since his retirement as manager and has lost seven.
