SEVEN DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE
ARRIVAL OF THE PERSIA.
 New York, March 20th.
 The Persia arrived at her dock at 6 A. M.
 from Liverpool.
 The Persia and the Quaker City arrived at Liverpool together on the morning of the 2nd instant, both steamers were detained off the bar for want of water for some hours. The Quaker City sailed from Liverpool on Wednesday the 7th.
 No intelligence of the Pacific has reached England.
 The Quaker City took out a report of signing of preliminaries of peace, but subsequent information would imply that the plenipotentiaries had merely appended their names to preliminaries formalities.
 In the Emperor Napoleon's speech to the Legislative Assembly, he spoke in cordial terms of the English alliance, and stated that while he hoped for peace, that it was not necessary to be prepared for either peace or war.
 A general rumour prevailed that the negotiations proceed satisfactorily, and that the plenipotentiaries were well inclined considerably.
 Friday a better feeling was manifested.
 Provisions generally unchanged.
 Money continued dear: Consols were quoted at 91 1/2.
 American stocks without change.
 The weather continues favorable for farming operations.
 Ashes are easier.

THE CONFERENCE.
 Nothing is known of the proceedings of the negotiations.
 The Independent Belge publishes a communication from Paris, which says that the plenipotentiaries of the four powers met on Thursday the 14th inst. for a discussion on Saturday was reported to be very warm, and was so, in fact, between Baron Brunnow and the English Plenipotentiary Count Orloff remained quiet, but at the close he broke his long silence, and spoke as for the first time. We are greatly interested in our certain details. It was I who made the treaty of Constantinople, and to me it belonged to tear it. We accept the ratification of the limits proposed for Bessarabia and the Asiatic provinces. We adhere to the condition about not establishing the fortress of Bonassar and desire that the islands of Anadour should be a menace to no one. There is no difficulty as to Nicholasief, and we give up without compensation the City of Kars to the Sultan.
 The paper goes on to say that the language used, as well it might, a profound silence so profound that the plenipotentiaries remained silent, no doubt with joy. One of them found his countenance sufficiently to say, "As we are all agreed so let us sign." The signatures were at once affixed, and the plenipotentiaries shook hands and parted.
 The Emperor's speech was so short would contain the announcement that peace would be made. The Independence also maintained that the preliminaries are signed.
 This story is reported in Paris, is similar to the first talk of April of Sebastopol, and already attained the appearance of Gazette de la Presse.
 Despatches from Berlin speak of a similar state of things there, and it is suspected that a combination existed both in Paris and Berlin for the fabrication of news, with a view to produce speculation.

CRIMEA.
 Delegates from the two armies has met

It is reported that the Russian war steers, accompanied by three gunboats, have got out of Swaborg, by breaking the ice. These vessels have appeared in the Baltic.

THE FALL OF KARS.

The particulars relating to the fall of Kars have been laid before Parliament, and published in a blue book. They embrace the whole subject of the war in Anatolia, the defence of Kars, the conduct of Lord Stratford, the proceedings of the Allied Generals, and the policy of the Allied Government.

On the 14th July, 1855, General Simpson forwards to his Government the particulars of the Conference, attended by Generals Pellissier and Marmora, Admirals Lyons, Bruat, Stuart, and General Simpson, at which Omar Pacha endeavored to induce them to the evacuation of the troops from the Crimea to Asia.

Omar Pacha offered to proceed with the 15,000 men which he brought from Eupatoria to Asia, for the relief of Kars.

All the generals and Admirals assembled were unanimous in rejecting his proposal; and as he still maintained his opinion, he left for the Sultan. In order to counteract Omar's proceedings the Allied Generals wrote to Lord Stratford de Redcliffe,—"Use your powerful influence to cause our opinions to prevail over that of His Highness, for great public interests are at stake, and serious consequences might result from his success."

On the 24th of August Lord Cowley, a powerful diversion from Redoubt Kars, with a view of menacing the communications of the Russians, and compel them to raise the siege of Kars.

This project found favor in the Turkish Government, and Count Guiseppe should oppose it. Omar Pacha has approved of it, at least of a trial of the plan, and attributed the opposition made to it, to the French Government. He, (Clarendon) therefore, wrote to Lord Cowley, the British Minister, at Paris—"I regret that the British Government should oppose this expedition, and the British Government would doubt if it were worse, even if it had the right to so, to object to the adoption of such a course by the Porte, since the void made by the withdrawal of Omar Pacha's troops in the Crimea, might be filled up by sending General Vian's contingent either to Balaklava or Eupatoria."

On the 4th of August Lord Cowley replied by telegraph—"The French Government will not oppose the projected expedition to Asia, under Omar Pacha, provided that the number of the Turkish contingent before Sebastopol is not diminished." On the same day, Lord Clarendon wrote to Lord Redcliffe:—"Omar Pacha is anxious to relieve Kars, and I understand he does not diminish the Turkish troops before Sebastopol or disturb the garrison of Yenikale. Desire General Vian to hold himself in readiness to go to Eupatoria with the Turkish contingent."

Napoleon seems to have exposed some new objections, for it appears that on August 10th Lord Cowley again wrote to Lord Clarendon,—"The Emperor has no objection to the removal of the Turkish troops, they being replaced by others, provided the allied commanders have no objections; but he will not take upon himself the responsibility of saying more."

On the 10th Dec. General Codrington writes to Lord Stratford,—"I wrote to Marshal Pelissier on the general tone of your letter, expressing to him the great object it seemed to be to get the Turkish troops to Trebizonde, and that if done at all it should be done at once; and offered my assistance, if I could, by communicating to Lord Kars, for, I understand, he is anxious to do so. His answer was that he could not consent to their leaving Eupatoria without the express sanction of the Emperor."

General Williams meantime continued to note after note to Lord Stratford, and at length complains he had written 54 despatches and 54 private letters, and the only reply he had received was a request to try to recover some Russian ladies who had been carried off by a Turk. At length Lord Stratford vouchsafed to give the following lame explanation:—"It remains for me to say a word respecting my silence towards Colonel Williams. It has in truth continued longer than I intended. It originated in an anxiety not to occasion disappointment by announcing measures which might or might not be carried into effect. I knew that the general public would little care to be deceived by a success, and I preferred, under the pressure of business flowing in abundantly from other sources, to give my correspondent an answer in full rather than keep up a succession of partial communication."

PAVIA.

The Session of the Senate for 1856 was opened on Monday by the Emperor in person. The Emperor delivered the following "Speech:—

"PEERS AND SENATORS,—On the last occasion of your assembling serious anxieties prevailed. The allied armies were engaged in a siege, where the object of the military was to strengthen their success. Europe, uncertain, seemed to be awaiting the end of the struggle before pronouncing itself.

"To maintain the war, I asked from you a loan, which you voted unanimously. The amount has appeared excessive. The rise in the price of provisions has increased the loan a fresh cause of inconvenience, and a disturbance of our monetary system caused a fear that business and labor would slacken. Thanks to you and to the energy displayed both in France and England, and above all, to the assistance of Providence, these dangers have been for the most part averted.

"A grand feat of arms at the camp of Pavia has for the struggle unexampled in history for its intricacy. The opinion of Europe was more openly expressed, and strengthened. The second loan was completed without difficulty. The country gave me a fresh cause of inconvenience, and a disturbance of our monetary system caused a fear that business and labor would slacken. Thanks to you and to the energy displayed both in France and England, and above all, to the assistance of Providence, these dangers have been for the most part averted.

Thanks to you and to the energy displayed both in France and England, and above all, to the assistance of Providence, these dangers have been for the most part averted.

"The hazards of war revived the military spirit of the nation. Never has such order among the volunteers, or so much order among the troops, been seen before by lot.

"This brief speech of the present situation must be added facts of great political significance. The Queen of Great Britain desired to give a proof of her confidence and of her esteem for our country, and to stand our relations more intimate, came over into France.

"I have seen that France, by the treaty she has signed, has given us a proof of her how uniform were the sentiments her presence inspired, and was of a nature to strengthen the alliance of two peoples.

"The King of Piedmont, who, without looking behind him, embraced our cause with that generous spirit which before had exhibited in the field of battle, has also come to France to consecrate a union already cemented by the bravery of his soldiers.

"These Sovereigns beheld a country, lately agitated, now prosperous, peaceful and respected; maintaining war, not with the momentary spirit of the day, but with the permanent sense of justice and the duty of duty. They have seen that France, the ally of duty, to all the same time all the arts of peace, and meant to say to Europe: the existing powers are always heartily directed towards arms and peace. Let us neglect nothing which may lead to a decisive step not throw into a field of battle the resources all the energy of a great nation.

The appeal seems to have been understood, and the winter, by suspending hostilities, favors the intervention of diplomacy.

Austria resolved on a decisive step and introduced into the deliberations the influence of a Sovereign of a vast empire.

Sweden linked herself as closely to England and France by a treaty that guarantees the integrity of her territory.

At last the advice or entreaty of all cabinets prevailed on Peterburg, so that he had not created, seemed to be seized with a sincere desire to put an end to the war that led to this sanguinary conflict.—It determined to accept propositions submitted by Austria. The honour of arms was satisfied. It was to his own honour to the clearly expressed wish of the plenipotentiaries of the allied and belligerent powers are now assembled in Russia to decide the conditions of peace. The spirit of moderation and equity that attends all men necessarily creates the hope of a durable result. Nevertheless, let us await until the end of the Conference, and we shall equally readily if necessary to draw the sword anew or extend a hand to those whom have fairly fought. Whatever may happen, let us occupy ourselves with the means calculated to augment and strengthen the riches of France—let us, if possible, draw from our understanding the most salutary advantages and sacrifices, of which peace will far better exhibit the reciprocal advantages.

Finally, in this solemn moment for the destinies of the world, let us put our trust in God; to the end that he may guide our steps in the direction most conducive to the interests of humanity and civilization."

The Emperor was most enthusiastically received in his passage through the House.

The friends of Mr. Sadlier, a Commissioner of the Royal Swedish R. C., Co., it is asserted by a lately and preliminary examination, for the over rest of commerce company, amount to 16,291 five-pound shares, and 18,782 eight-pound shares; but the company admits that as yet it is impossible to arrive at the correct amount; that the total issue appropriated to himself possibly prove to have been £200,000. A new commissioner, to make a more searching investigation, has been appointed.

The rails are a great improvement but they are now built and considered them in a state of ruin. I look ahead with a good deal of anxiety to the time when they will be altered, and thus more comfortable and profitable."

Our correspondent also expresses the idea of a smoke stack on each of our locomotives however a railroad is out of the question, by using a fire of huge inclined stors along the whole road.

During winter, in the northern States, and mail routes, no doubt, would prove very comfortable; but we really should want the roofs taken Grand Trunk Railway in Canada proposed by Wm. Lyon McKenzie two years ago and for that country where the snow is generally deep, it seems some good idea. Certainly not.—Scientific American FRANÇOIS LOVE OF SCANDAL.—A French official paper contains the following:— "The trial took place at our assizes. It was rich food for scandal. All the people came to see the defendants, the smartest toilets and crowded to court-house. On seeing this, the judge rose and said, 'Persons assembled as spectators are not of the nature of the cause. I would invite all decent women to leave.'—A new order was given, the female president arose from her seat, this, the moving again rose and said, 'Officers of the court, now all decent women have retired, turn the remainder.'"

VINEGAR.—A writer in the Boston Cultivator proposes the following method, by which he thinks the best vinegar can be made at a trifling expense:—The juice of a hundred of sugar beets, worth twenty-five cents, which any farmer can raise with ease, will make from five to six gallons of vinegar equal to the best made by elder weeds. Grate the beets, and express the juice in a cheese press, or in any other contrivance which a little ingenuity can suggest, and pour the liquor into a barrel; cover the bung with a piece of calico, and in fifteen minutes it will be fit for use. By this method you can make vinegar without any trouble; and I hope all who would do vinegar will try it.

HUMAN DESPENDENCY AND ITS CAUSE.—The law of life is, in the sweat of thy brow shalt eat bread. No man can evade this law with impunity. Like all God's laws, it is an unexcusable. It has strange lessons annexed to it—would you know

The fact is, the capacity of man is one of the signs of man's immortality. It is his sign, which makes inaction misery. It is made us only to be insects, with no are incumbent on us than the preservation of our lives, or the pursuit of happiness, it be contrary to both from sweetness and from bad to doer. STERILIZED MILK.—This is made by adding a small amount of fresh milk of water to a and a teaspoonful of bi-carbonate of soda. It is then evaporated in a white-hot moderate temperature, being stirred and all the while, but so moderately as not to scorch. In three hours it assumes consistency, and by constant manipulation and warming, it is reduced to a rich cream, looking rather like butter. Our ships and steamers take this solidified milk convenient and economical, and it may come into general use. It is particularly convenient for use in rooms and hospitals.—Memphis Med- ical effect of the moonlight on the eyes of the natives (Egypt), is singularly injurious. I tell you, as I afterwards found in Arabia, to always cover your eyes at night in the open air. It is rather that the passage in the Psalms—"The moon shall not smile them by day, nor the moon shall shine at night."—should not have been thus illustrated. He allusion seems to be to the moon striking strikes and effects the sight, when exposed to it, much more than the effect of which I had a very unpleasant experience last night, and took care to guard against afterwards. Indeed, the sight of a man who should sleep with his face exposed to the moon would be impaired or utterly destroyed."

THE RISE OF THE MOON AT NIGHT.—Mr. H. in his "Letters from the East," has said:

Value of Property $64,000.

THE HIGHEST PRIZE BEING A GRIST MILL, VALUED AT $3,125, AND WHICH CAN BE LEASED FOR $400 PER ANNUM, WITH 639 OTHER PRIZES. VARYING IN VALUE FROM $1,027 TO $25.

PROSPECTUS.

THIS Scheme for disposing of valuable REAL ESTATE would not have been entered into unless circumstances compelled the owner either to compromise with those to whom he is indebted, or by some other mode of honorably liquidating all demands against him. He feels therefore that bringing the subject before the public, he can do so, in the firmest conviction that no honorable mind will do otherwise than honor him for his intentions.

The Property offered has been appraised by gentlemen well-known for their integrity. The value set down to each Prize is rather under than over what it is really worth, while the principal Prize is sufficient to render the fortunate winner comfortable for life as it could be rented for $400 per year.

Some people believe, and conscientiously too, that Tirages are discreditable, as generally speaking, they are only carried out in a spirit of wild speculation. Nothing of this kind attaches to the present scheme, because, were it possible to dispose of the Property in any reasonable time by public or private sale, without sacrificing it, the subscriber would at once adopt one or other of the latter plans. The state of the money market, however, precludes the possibility of his being able to sell his Property by an ordinary sale; and he is desirous of holding his property all to whom he is under pecuniary obligations, the scheme of disposing of the Property in this manner occurred to him as being the best and surest method of freeing himself and his friends from the onerous position they are placed in.

During a period of 40 years he has fought his way in the world: by hard labor and economy he purchased what he is now about to dispose of, and but for the unfortunate circumstance attending on the stoppage of the Brockville & Ottawa Railway, he could have enjoyed the fruits of his hard labor by living in comfortable ease during the remainder of his days. These hopes, long cherished of others, however, passed away, and the only desire he now has, is to dispose of his Property, pay his debts, and begin the world again; not the most pleasant thought to a person whose all has to be disposed of, and whose only resource is the sale of others: the chief cause of which failure, he believes, being brought about by the death of one of the contractors, Jas. Sykes, Esq., of Sheffield, England, he being drowned in the ill-fated Arctic, while on his way to Canada, for the purpose of carrying on the Railroad, and the Subscriber's all was at stake.

The Property to be disposed of is situated in the Township of Young, Eliza, and Welford, in the United Counties of Lanark and Renfrew, and is situated in the Township of South Sherbrooke, in the United Counties of Lanark and Renfrew.

The Property in the Township of Young, comprises a part of Lots 11, 12, 13 and 14, in the 5th Concession, upon which the Village of Farmerville is situated; Lots 10 and 21 in the 10th Concession; Lots 20 and 22 in the 11th Concession: making in all 500 acres—value $7,051.55.

The Property in Elizabethtown consists of a part of the Commons, in the 9th Concession, and a part of Lot No. 24, in the Village of Greenbush, making 453 acres—value $2,950.

The Property in the Township of Welford, consists of 12 acres, and the whole water-power attached to the land; that in South Sherbrooke, 419 acres—value $2,927.10. The full extent of property offered containing 1,296 acres. Tickets $5 each, payable on demand. The prizes are so arranged as to give one Prize for every 20 tickets.

The Cash Prizes will be paid on presentation of Tickets so soon as the Drawing is completed. All Prizes requiring Deeds of Transfer will be made out free of charge to the winner, 30 days after drawing.

The Drawing will positively take place on the 28th May, 1856, under the superintendence of gentlemen of the highest respectability, character and standing in society, who will see everything connected with the Drawing fairly and honorably attended to. Plans of the Property, full particulars thereof and certificates from the most respectable and influential persons in Canada West, relative to the value of the Property and its object of Sale, can be obtained from the following AGENTS:

Ottawa, Thomas Farmer, and Benjamin Gordon; Bell's Corners, Nepean, Hugh Bell; Richmond, Edward Kelly; North Gower, William Cowan; Pontiac, John R. O'Connor; Arnprior, Jas. Bell.
