The boat has to be cut in two to enable it to go through the locks.

THE PEACE CONFERENCE

The Hague, July 4.—The sub-committee of the peace conference on the proposed prize court, M. Bourgeois, (France), presiding, met today and discussed the Anglo-German propositions regarding the establishment of an international supreme court. Baron Marschall von Balthard (Germany) made a speech explaining the German project, and Sir Edward Fry (Great Britain) and several other delegates made brief statements on the subject. General Horace Porter said the Americans wished to present their statements in writing. Four out of the eight questions forming the set on the subject were approved.

M. Bourgeois said that the presidents of committees had agreed with the view of hastening the work, that no new questions shall be introduced after the end of the present week, and that further modifications can only be proposed as amendments.

CALL TO REV. DR. PIDGEON
FIRST PRESBYTERIANS EXTENDToronto Junction Pastor the Unanimous Choice of the Congregation.

At a meeting of the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church held last night, it was decided by a unanimous vote to extend a call to the pastorate Rev. Dr. Pidgeon, of Toronto Junction. For several weeks a special committee has been looking about for a successor to Rev. W. J. Clark, now of Westmount, Montreal, and last night it submitted a report to the congregation recommending that the call be extended to Rev. Dr. Pidgeon. No opposition whatever was offered to the report, and at the conclusion of the meeting the call was very largely signed by both members and adherents.

The committee's report was submitted by Dr. F. W. Merchant, while Mr. Edward Reid and Mr. Alex. Stuart, R. C., also members of the committee, addressed the congregation. The report stated that after a careful and diligent search, and judging from the reports and information received from both laymen and clergymen, the committee had come to the conclusion that the congregation could make no mistake in calling Dr. Pidgeon to the pastorate. Dr. Merchant also reported that the committee was of the opinion that should the call be extended, Dr. Pidgeon being an experienced clergyman, and in every way the equal of the late pastor, should be given the same salary.

Mr. Reid spoke at some length, advising the congregation to endorse the report of the committee. He told of the wide experience and great ability of Dr. Pidgeon, and assured the congregation that they would not make a mistake in extending the call.

Mr. Stuart also reported that there must be many present who were in ignorance as to the qualifications of Dr. Pidgeon, and that they must be relying entirely on the good judgment of the committee. Mr. Stuart concluded by telling how he had been impressed with Dr. Pidgeon when he met him on several occasions. He had found him to be a man of exceedingly attractive personality, possessed of great power of speech, and capable of inspiring those with whom he came into contact. He was also a man of a very sympathetic nature, and high feeling. The conclusion in his opinion could not get a better pastor.

Mr. John Cameron, who was not a member of the committee, urged the congregation to be unanimous in whatever step they took, for he said that the spirit in which the call was extended would have a powerful influence over the invited pastor when he came to consider the call.

Several questions were asked regarding Dr. Pidgeon to ascertain if he is a Canadian, and where he was educated. The questions were answered by the members of the committee, who assured the congregation that Dr. Pidgeon is a Canadian and that he had received his education in Knox College and in Toronto University, holding the degrees of B. A. and D. D.

After the vote had been taken almost every member of the congregation present and also the adherents signed the call.

Rev. Alexander Henderson, interim moderator, presided over the meeting.

SUDDEN DEATH OF
TWO LONDONERSMiss Agnes Russell and Mr. R.
Robertson Pass After Short Illness.

The death of Miss Agnes Russell took place this morning at the Brown House, corner of Talbot and King streets. Miss Russell was a sister of Mrs. Brown, wife of the hotel proprietor, and she was taken ill about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. A doctor was called, and she appeared to improve somewhat, but at an early hour this morning she was seized with convulsions and died in a short time. The deceased had resided at the Brown House since the present proprietor took possession of the place.

Death of Robert Robertson.

Mr. Robertson, a resident of this city for many years, died very suddenly at his home, 421 Pall Mall street, at an early hour this morning. Mr. Robertson was a baker, employed by D. S. Perrin & Co., and although not in very good health, he went to work yesterday morning, remaining until noon. His condition at 3 o'clock became such that he was compelled to take to his bed. Dr. Pingel was called, but the patient continued to grow worse. About 4 o'clock this morning Mr. Robertson began to sink rapidly, and he died shortly after the arrival of the family physician. Uraemic poisoning was the cause.

The deceased was a native of Scotland, but had lived in this city the greater part of his life. He was a member of the Sons of Scotland, and was also connected with the Presbyterian Church. He is survived by a wife, one daughter and four sons. Mr. John Robertson, of Simcoe street, is a brother.

NERVY WORKMAN
IN THIS TRENCHPrevents a Serious Cave-In on the South Street Sewer.

All the heroes in London do not work on the fire department nor yet do they receive gold watches and diplomas.

Some of them work right down in the ditch, and a deep ditch at that on Ottawa avenue, near Maitland street.

Contractor Dill is putting down the Ottawa avenue and Nelson street sewer there, and for two months he has had a most difficult task.

The trench at the time was forerun by the cars of the London Street Railway shake the ground every time they pass, with the result that the quicksand beneath gives way, allowing the sand along the shoring to slide down.

As a result, the trench is warped and twisted in places, and only the steel struts, or small jacks, prevent its caving in altogether.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Dill was supervising the placing of a tile—it is good work to get in four tile in a day—when a slight accident occurred.

The tile, when swung in the trench on the ropes, struck one of the struts or braces, and knocked it out. In an instant the underpinning caved in, while tons of sand began pouring down the shoring at the sides.

In the trench at the time were Foreman McBride and two experienced workmen. The man at the bottom has been in the business for years, and when Mr. Dill shouted at the men to get out of the trench, the workman quickly surveyed the timbering. There was an ominous cracking and sinking for 25 feet along the trench, but the workman remained at his post, and called for another jack. Then, with the aid of the foreman and others, he drove the underpinning back, after which he lighted his pipe and took a rest.

A man requires plenty of nerve to work on sewers in quicksand, as a glance at the Ottawa avenue trench will demonstrate. Mr. Dill is making slow progress with the work, but he says he is satisfied, and, as already stated, hopes to be out of the bad portion of the big ditch in a week at the latest.

MISFORTUNE MAY
RE-UNITE COUPLECharles Lancaster Would Have Wife Return in Time to See Dying Child.

A Detroit dispatch says:
"With his young child said to be lying at the point of death at the home of his mother, Mrs. Harriett Gattson, 358 Ridout street, London, Charles S. Lancaster, of Woodstock, Ont., is in Detroit, searching for his wife, who, he says, left him and deserted her young child last Friday."

"After Mrs. Lancaster left her home last Friday, Lancaster says he took his baby to his wife's parents' home on a farm a few miles out of London."

"Sunday the child was kicked by a horse on the farm, and Lancaster then took the injured child to the home of his mother in London, so that it could get better medical attendance. Monday the child became much worse and today, when the doctor said it could not recover, Lancaster left the dying child with its grandmother and came to Detroit in search of the mother in the hopes that he could find her and take her back before the child died."

"Lancaster says he has no idea where his wife is in Detroit and he applied to the police to help him locate her. Lancaster says he and his wife had a slight quarrel Thursday night, but that when he left for work Friday morning everything seemed to be all right. When he returned Friday evening he found his wife had departed for parts unknown, leaving a note for him on the table. The note read:

"You get the other woman. I am going away and I suppose you don't care."

"Lancaster says he has no idea who the other woman is that his wife referred to in her note. He says he has no woman other than his wife."

"Since coming to Detroit Lancaster has put in his time walking up one street and down another in the hope that he can find his wife, but without success."

Lancaster came to this city on Friday night, and early the next morning found his wife in a Grand Trunk train, prepared to go to Detroit. He grabbed her purse and ran up the street, but was overtaken by P. C. Probyn. The purse was returned to Mrs. Lancaster, who went to Detroit, leaving her husband here.

SUMMER SCHOOL
NOW IN PROGRESSSeparate Teachers Writing for Certificates Required Under the New Act.

The summer school for teachers of the separate schools of this district is now being held in the Sacred Heart School, Queen's avenue. It is in charge of Principal Merchant and Vice-Principal Dearness, of the London Normal School.

Sixty-six teachers are in attendance. Twenty-eight are Sisters of St. Joseph, 13 are Ladies of the Holy Name, from Windsor, 15 are Ursuline nuns, from Chatham, and ten are madames from the Sacred Heart.

The school commenced yesterday and will continue until August 3.

The great majority of the teachers in attendance have qualifications which far exceed those demanded by the department of education for Ontario, but as many of the certificates were secured in provinces other than this, and some of them in other countries, they are not honored under the new school legislation.

To meet the requirements of the educational act, all the teachers are now attending the summer school.

FOURTH RACKET
HIDES MURDERERYoung Italian Girl Shot to Death
While Standing at Open Window.

New York, July 4.—While combing her hair at the window of her room, Ninipia Grizzanti, a 19-year-old Italian girl, was killed today by a bullet through the head, which the police are convinced was fired by someone who sought to conceal the source of the fatal shot in the noise of Fourth of July fireworks. Another shot buried itself in the wall of the room. The tragedy occurred on Elizabeth street. Several arrests have been made of Italians living in the rear of a flat-house on Mott street, which is opposite to the house where the girl was shot. Two empty cartridge shells were found in the hallway of the Mott street house.

The police have so far been unable to find any motive for shooting the girl, as she was not known to have any enemies.

SEES U.S.-JAP WAR
WITHIN 5 YEARSRear-Admiral Thompson, U.S. N., Declares a Struggle Is Inevitable.

Seattle Wash., July 4.—A special to the Post-Intelligencer from Norta Yaki, N. Y., says:

Rear Admiral W. J. Thompson, U. S. N., retired, who has arrived here from a short stay in the Orient, predicts a war with Japan within five years. Admiral Thompson says that war is inevitable, but he does not believe that Great Britain will assist her ally in such a struggle, and thinks that in the end the resources of the United States must result in defeat for the Japanese. He believes that in the event of hostilities France would give financial aid to Japan.

DIAMOND JUBILEE OF M'CLARYS
TO BE CELEBRATED NEXT WEEKSixtieth Anniversary of the Largest Stove Manufactory
in the Empire.

The diamond jubilee of the McClary Manufacturing Company occurs next week.

In sixty years the company from small beginnings has grown to the largest stove manufactory under the British flag—and this means something, for there are some gigantic stove foundries in the empire which covers one quarter of the earth's surface.

John McClary, who with his brother Oliver, started the present immense business, is still hale and hearty, and every working day in the year is to be seen in his office on the corner of York and Wellington streets.

Today the business has grown to such proportions that the large factory, which occupies three-fourths of the block bounded by Wellington, King, York and Clarence streets, was found inadequate some time ago, and now the firm has another and larger factory in the south end of the city.

The new factory covers many acres, but it is constantly being added to, and at present a building 200 feet long and, 100 feet wide and six stories high is being completed and will be ready for occupation shortly.

Mr. John McClary, one of the founders and today the head of the giant industry, which now employs over 1,000 hands, was born at Niles town, about six miles from London, in 1829. He was the youngest son of a family of twelve. His father had been a lumber merchant of Pennsylvania, but he was one of those whose business was ruined by the war of 1812.

In 1813 a large cargo of lumber was seized and burned, and he was unable to weather the financial loss. In 1817, he decided to immigrate to Canada, and to try and repair his fortune. He came to this part of the country and settled near Niles town, where John McClary was born.

The McClarys had the right kind of blood in their veins. General Stark, who had fought for the old flag against the revolutionists, was an ancestor. John McClary's grandmother was a niece of John Adams, second President of the United States and a cousin of the late John Quincy Adams, sixth president of the union.

John McClary began life as a tin-smith, but after a time, with his brother Oliver, established what proved to be the nucleus of the present plant. Sixty years ago the shop was a modest affair, and it is only a few years ago that the old house on King street in which John McClary lived and worked his way to the front was torn down.

Now the company makes all classes of plated and stamped tinware, all classes of enameled and japanned ware, stoves, furnaces, copper ware, etc.

It is a factory of which Londoners are proud, and its weekly pay roll circulates many thousands of dollars in this city. At its present rate of advancement, it is likely to cover double the ground occupied at present, and employ twice as many hands in a few years.

Mr. McClary possesses the happy faculty of associating himself with men who have great executive ability, and amongst these is Col. W. M. Carshore, the manager of the huge concern, who is known as one of the most wide-awake and enterprising businessmen in Canada.

The celebration next week will take the form of a dance on Friday night to mark the opening of the large new warehouse in the south end. On the following day the annual picnic of the employees will be held at Port Stanley.

McGowan of the local church from the denomination, the church will withdraw from the connection and organize as an independent church. Some other members say this will not be done. Rev. Mr. McGowan was read out of the denomination last week for insubordination.

BILL AND TOMMY
COLLIDE TODAYSquires and Burns Battle For Heavy-Weight Championship

AUSTRALIAN SLIGHT FAVORITE

Jim Jeffries Is Referee and Will Challenge
Antipodean Should He Win.

San Francisco, July 4.—One of the principal events in the sporting world this year is the 45-round glove contest between Bill Squires, the Australian champion, and Tommy Burns, the heavy-weight champion of the world, a percentage of the gate receipts and a side bet of $5,000, which will take place this afternoon at Colma. The fight is one of the most important events in pugilistic circles since James J. Jeffries, the undefeated heavy-weight champion, who will referee the contest, abdicated, and has aroused international interest in sportdom.

What adds interest to the fight is the appearance in the arena of Jeffries as referee, and his declaration last night that he will referee the ring and fight the Australian, if Squires is victor today.

The large, open-air arena, having a seating capacity of 8,000, has been completed, and everything is in readiness for the men to enter the ring at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The advance sale of seats is in the neighborhood of $12,000. Promoter James Corbett gave out a statement last night to the effect that he expected a $22,000 house. This is based on the expectation that 7,000 people will attend the contest.

Squires No Squitter.

Betting on the fight veered last night from 10 to 7, at which it has stood for some time, to 10 to 9. This was caused by the appearance of considerable Burns money, little of which has heretofore been in sight. A number of bets were registered at this figure, and the prediction was made that when the men entered the ring this afternoon the betting would be even. This has been somewhat overdrawn, and Squires will doubtless step in the ring a favorite.

Squires, it is stated, will have an understanding with Referee Jeffries in the ring today, that no one will have the right to toss up the sponge for him. He says he never has, and never will give anyone the right to signal defeat on his behalf. Both men are in excellent condition, and Squires will enter the ring at 182 pounds, and Burns at 179. Besides three pounds in weight, the Australian has the advantage of three and a half inches in height, and half an inch in reach over the Canadian.

It was announced last night by Burns that Professor Lewis would be his chief second, and that Jimmy Burns (George Mennis) and George Brown, his sparring partner, will be in the corner with him. Barney Reynolds will be the chief second for Squires, and will be assisted by Tim McGrath, Eddie Hanlon, Martin Murphy and Jim Russell.

The impression prevails that Burns will let Squires do the forcing for the first eight or ten rounds, in the expectation that the Australian will tire himself out. Jeffries finally prevailed upon Burns yesterday not to wear his pneumatic belt attachment which has been the source of trouble and argument before.

"I look for a good hard fight," said Jeffries last night. "I don't see why Squires is so much of a favorite for he is an unknown quantity. Burns is a better man than the Pacific coast fans think. If Squires wins, and if the public demand it, and there is enough money in sight, I will fight him."

"I haven't fully decided on my style of fighting," said Burns. "I always select my fighting method after I have measured my man. I never felt more sure of winning in my life."

"I don't expect the fight to go over 15 rounds," was Squires' comment. "I am in perfect condition, and the fight will be on the square. The preliminaries preceding the main event will commence at 1 o'clock. Many sporting men from Los Angeles, the Nevada gold fields, and other points arrived last night and this morning."

A CROSSING ACCIDENT

Embro Run Down By a Train
Near Beachville.

Woodstock, July 3.—Mr. Alex. M. Ross, from near Embro, had a thrilling experience at the G. T. R. crossing close to Beachville today. Crossing after the passing of an eastbound train, his rig was hit by one westbound. Mr. Ross was stunned, and in some miraculous way, carried along by the engine without being killed. While badly bruised, his injuries are not considered fatal. The rig was smashed beyond repair, the horse escaping injury.

THE FROST AND CROPS

Some Damage Done to Beans, Tomatoes and Corn.

Dispatches from the vicinity of Thamesville, Ingersoll, Blenheim and Tilbury say that considerable frost was in evidence yesterday morning, and that some damage has been done to the bean, corn and tomato crops. Other crops were not far enough advanced to be seriously injured. The fruit crop has not been affected.

Calling a water "pure" does not certify it safe for you to drink. Water can be pure and yet be harmful. Boiled water is pure, in one sense, because heat destroyed the bacteria it contained, but heat does not remove harmful salts from water, nor the organic matter. Q. Distilled water, used so much on shipboard, is chemically pure; but seafaring men will warn you against drinking too much "condenser" (distilled) water. ## NEW YORK AFTER TRACTION MERGER

Ryan-Belmont Combine Owes City Millions Which Cannot Be Collected.

New York, July 3.—Almost simultaneously with the publication today of a dispatch that either the Ryan or the Belmont interests, and perhaps both, were back of the scheme to finance the proposed Chicago subways, came the announcement that Corporation Counsel Ellison, of this city, is planning to get after the Ryan-Belmont traction merger to find out just what kind of a combination it is, and why the city cannot get more information concerning the earnings of the different companies it absorbed.

The corporation counsel could institute a series of suits and bring the officials of the merger into court and compel them to testify, but as the board of aldermen have full power to make an investigation it is thought that the inquiry will be made before that body.

There were a number of companies existing before the merger was effected which before the merger was supposed to pay the city a certain sum based on their earnings. When all these companies were juggled together the city found itself unable to untangle the accounts of the individual companies, and Mr. Ellison has brought several suits to collect money due to the city.

To Learn Hidden Facts. He will now, it is declared, undertake to learn and make public the hidden facts leading up to the gigantic merger by which, according to its critics, the people have been forced to suffer miserable traction service, and the city has been beaten out of its dues. Some say that if the problem is done thoroughly corruption on an immense scale will be brought to light.

A cornerstone, which was laid in 1874 for the old Coal and Iron Exchange was replaced today by one weighing nine tons. The new one is a part of the city, though it will be somewhat dwarfed by half of the block bounded by Broadway, Cortlandt, Liberty and Church streets. This building will be one of the largest structures in the city, though it will be somewhat dwarfed when the Singer building rises ten stories higher nearby. The city investment building will be finished next May.

Drama Is Growing Better. Those who have been troubled by the report of the decadence of the American drama received word of hope from Henry Arthur Jones, the English playwright, just before he stepped aboard the Cunarder Caronia this morning to steam away to Britain, Mr. Jones said:

"Some little time before Thomas Bailey Aldrich died I was dining with him at the house of Mark Twain, and during the conversation Mr. Aldrich said: 'I believe we are in a measurable distance of a great uplifting of the drama.'"

"I believe that is true. The interest American universities are beginning to take in the drama as a most encouraging sign, because it will help to set a standard, and that standard will permit the great body of playgoers, who would look up to it, to know where to begin. I would like to see the drama take a position along with the arts, such as painting and literature. I think I see every sign of life in the American drama."

The biggest horse mackerel of the season arrived in town today and was gobbled up in a hurry by a syndicate of little Italy purveyors who wanted it for their clientele of epicures. It took only four hours to dispose of it at the Fulton market.

The big fish was captured off Montauk point by the steamer Ranger of the Fisheries Company, a Philadelphia concern, which has a fleet of steam mackerel seiners swarming up and down the coast. It weighed 1,000 pounds and was nine feet long. Its body was almost as big as that of a horse.

C. P. R.'S NEW CROSS-CONTINENT FLYER.

"Trans-Canada" Makes Fastest Time Across America. The business of the country is growing to such an extent that the C. P. R. finds it necessary to run an additional train between Montreal and Vancouver, making three trips a week during July and August. This train, which will be known as the Trans-Canada Limited, will make the fastest time of any train across the American continent. It will carry baggage car, dining-car and palace sleeping-cars only, of the very latest design and with most modern improvements, and only first-class passengers will be carried. She will leave Montreal on the first trip July 2. Berths can be reserved in Toronto for passage from North Bay to points west of Winnipeg at which the Trans-Canada Limited stops. No passengers will be carried from Toronto to Winnipeg or points east thereof, as Winnipeg passengers arrive only one hour later by taking the Imperial Limited. List of stops, full particulars and berth reservations can be obtained at C. P. R. local ticket office, or from C. P. R. D. P. A., C. P. R., Toronto.

THAMESFORD HAPPENINGS

Golden Wedding Celebration—Rifle Association Contest.

Thamesford, July 4.—The garden party in connection with the Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's Church at the home of Alex. Wallace, was a success as far as the weather permitted, but in points of attendance was not up to the anticipation. The rain poured in torrents, hindering the orchestra from giving full justice to their music and the lovers of it from enjoying it. The proceeds, however, were over $100, which would have been greatly increased had the day been fair.

The golden wedding of Mr. David Reith and his amiable wife was also participated in on Dominion Day, when their children, grandchildren and friends assembled to participate in one of those gatherings that are denied to many. Upwards of forty sat down to dinner, and the presents were befitting the occasion, upwards of $50 in gold coin being presented to the worthy couple. Mr. and Mrs. Reith have been blessed with a large family, the majority of whom are still living and were present on this joyous occasion.

The Rifle Association of the County of Oxford are to have their annual contest for the Sutherland trophy on Friday at the range, when a good time and attendance is expected. The ladies of the Farmers' Institute are providing luncheon, and will no doubt make it pleasant for those who patronize their booths.

The Day picnic was held at the home of Russell Day at Embro Station on Tuesday, and was a decided success, 127 persons sitting down to dinner and supper. All went home well pleased, and all agreed it was well to meet at least once a year.

We are pleased to hear of the safe arrival of Miss Westlake in London, Eng., where she has gone to spend the summer.

Mrs. Lottie Randall, of Detroit, Mich., visited Mrs. Wm. Oliver during the holidays, returning to her home on Tuesday.

Dr. and Mrs. George Gordon, of Brimley, Mich., are expected to visit home this week.

Mrs. George McKay, of North Dorchester, is in a very low condition at her father's home. Small hopes are entertained for her recovery.

OPENING OF MISSION

First Anglican Service To Be Held in Orange Hall on Sunday Evening.

The extension to the Church of England work in the north end of the city has assumed definite shape, for on Sunday evening next a service is to be held in the Orange Hall at the corner of Grosvenor and Adelaide streets.

The congregation of the Church of St. John the Evangelist, of which Rev. W. T. Hill is rector, has secured the permission of the Orange order for the use of the hall, and a service will be held there every Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. Mr. H. Ashby, who has been duly licensed by the Bishop of Huron, will be in charge, and it is expected that the work will meet with great success. There is no church of England in the northern part of the city east of Wellington street, and the need of one has been felt very much of late, there being many Anglican families in the district named who find it inconvenient to go as far west as the Church of St. John or as far south as the Memorial Church or St. Paul's Cathedral.

Writing to the Advertiser regarding the opening of the mission, Rev. W. T. Hill, rector of St. John the Evangelist, says: "Sincerely do I hope that all in the neighborhood will attend and assist Mr. Ashby in every possible way. I am more than sorry that I am obliged to be away from home at the time, but a good attendance will more than make up for my absence."

The progress of the work in the northeast of the city will be watched by all Anglicans with special interest.

FAILURES IN CANADA

Dun-Wiman Reports Show an Increase During Last Year.

New York, July 3.—Insolvency returns from the Dominion of Canada for the first half of 1907, as reported by R. G. Dun & Co., show 573 failures, with liabilities of $5,426,433. These figures compare with 632 failures last year, when liabilities were $5,214,975. The number of failures is smaller than in any recent year, except 1903, and the amount of liabilities is below the average for recent years. The increase in liabilities over the figures of 1906 was supplied by the manufacturing class, in which 152 failures, for $2,657,555, compared with 153 last year, when the indebtedness was $2,108,919. Trading failures were 407 in number, against 463, and $2,481,257 in amount, against $2,710,256 last year. There were 14 other commercial failures with an indebtedness of $277,650, against 16 last year, when the amount involved was $422,800. In neither year was there a banking suspension. The comparison as to provinces shows that failures were more numerous than last year in Ontario and Nova Scotia, while there was a noteworthy improvement in Quebec and Manitoba. This year the largest liabilities were reported by Quebec, but there still appears a decrease of over $200,000 in comparison with the returns from the same province in 1906. The total for Ontario was within $30,000 of the figures for Quebec this year, while that province showed the heaviest increase over last year's figures, the difference being about $600,000, and occurring chiefly in the manufacturing class. Manitoba and New Brunswick both reported much smaller liabilities than a year ago, and there was some decrease in British Columbia and Prince Edward Island, while more failures in Nova Scotia supplied a larger amount of liabilities.

Literature, art, love and sport, each has its group of knaves, who are prospering on the recently acquired knowledge that our "society" is little else than half-witted. During the last quarter of a century "society" in England has lost over a hundred millions in the city, and has received sixpence on the pound as a commission on the "Three seasons of rainfall have transferred New Mexico from an expanse of unproductive territory into a country of beautiful crops, running streams and happy, prosperous people," is the report which E. W. Fox, register of the Government Land Office at Clayton, N. B., brought to Washington last night.

The Frenchman of the middle class

sacrifices everything in order to obtain for his children some official position or other, a mean one, perhaps, but a sure one, leading after 30 years of penury to a pension verging on destitution. This is one aspect of the decay of the French race. It is easy to understand that two races are not evenly armed for the struggle for life if one be made up of aspirants to official positions and the other of individuals possessing initiative, daring and energy. For this reason do Latin races decline, while Anglo-Saxon races grow and multiply.

A PILL FOR GENEROUS EATERS.—There are many persons of healthy appetite and poor digestion who, after a hearty meal, are subject to much suffering. ## THE WATER PLEBISCITE.

The vote by mail on the water question is a new "winkle" in civic affairs.
Whether any large number of ratepayers will respond remains to be seen. If the water commissioners wish their innovation to be regarded seriously they have gone the wrong way about it. By partial and misleading statements. There is no precedent for spending the money of the citizens to boon a scheme which has already been rejected at the polls, and to disparage and misrepresent other schemes upon which they are asked to vote. This is another original feature introduced by the present board.

The cost of the Komoka scheme they estimate at $75,000, and the annual charges $39,952. The figures of Engineer Maury for this plan are $60,000,
and $47,167 respectively. There is no explanation of this wide discrepancy.

The Titus scheme is dismissed with the mere assertion that in 30 years it will cost $327,000 more than the Ko-moka scheme, with greater permanent running expenses; but there is not a figure to prove it.

The independent fire-fighting system has been singled out for special injustice. The ratepayers are told that this plan will cost $46,066 per year for 30 years, as compared with $39,752 for the Komoka scheme. They are not told that some thousands of dollars saved yearly by merchants and property-owners in insurance rates would go toward defraying the cost of the high-pressure service. They are not told that the saving of water by the meter system would effect a corresponding saving in the cost of pumping. The wording of the so-called ballot and of the circular letter accompanying it is so grossly unfair that the plebiscite is discredited before a vote has been counted.

In a few weeks the annual symptoms
of the water shortage will appear.
Street watering will be shut off and the lawn service curtailed. Why? Not because the reservoir is empty, but because the water must be maintained at a certain height as a precaution against fire. There will be a state of semi-panic until the next rainfall, lest a fire should break out in the down-town
district. With a high-pressure system, and the whole river to draw on for
fire protection, and for street watering,
the citizens would not be greatly concerned if the water in the reservoir were lower for a week or two than can safely be permitted under present conditions. With a steam fire engine and a chemical engine the residential district would be amply protected, even if the water pressure were lower than normally.

The installation of a high-pressure
system, saving at least half a million gallons of spring water daily, and relieving citizens from apprehension of a disaster fire, would allow the city to proceed leisurely to check the present waste of water by the gradual installation of meters. In the first year all the large consumers, the hotels, the livery stables and factories, should be metered. Later on shops, stores, office buildings, lawn services, and houses with modern improvements should be included. Engineer Chipman estimates that with 50 per cent of the services metered, three-fourths of the preventable waste would be checked. The city could proceed to meter all the services or not, as experience dictated. When more water is needed, the Byron and Kilworth springs may be added next, and other springs as they are required. There is no reason why the taxpayers of today should be called upon to furnish all the money to settle the water
question for the generation to follow.

If it is found necessary a quarter of a century hence to go far afield for spring water, or resort to filtered river water, the taxpayers of that day, when the city will be much larger and wealthier than now, can easily finance the undertaking. The commissioners admit this when they advocate a scheme which, according to their figures, will give a sufficiency of water for only fifteen years. If the present wasteful system is continued.
At the end of that period the city
would be compelled to install meters,
or to secure water from some other source than the territory between Springbank and Komoka. Why not check the waste and loss of water
now before spending a great sum in finding more water? There would be ample time to investigate all possible sources of supply in this district, and to choose the best available. There is no guarantee of the purity of much of the water which it is proposed to pound in the neighborhood of Ko-moka. At least two engineers have thrown suspicion upon it.

As to the filtration scheme, it is unthinkable that citizens will consent to impair the quality of the spring water which is the pride and boast of London, and one of its greatest assets and attractions, so long as it can be procured in sufficient quantity at reasonable expense.
The day when the city will be obliged to go to the river for drinking water
is not yet in sight.

CANADA'S NEW CITIZENS.

One of the best answers to Premier Roblin's recent scare speech about the "American Peril" in the Canadian West is furnished by the official returns as to naturalization for last year. The American farmer, like the citizen of every other country, is loyal first to his own family. Were it otherwise there would be no American "Invasion" of Canada. It is the prospect of making a better living and laying up a competence for his old age under conditions as good at least as he has been accustomed to that is the moving force with these new-comers to our soil. The returns recently issued at Ottawa show that during last year the number of Americans naturalized was 10,242, compared with 6,632
in the year preceding. Under the law
a three-years' residence in Canada is necessary before the final papers can be secured. Only the heads of families and males of 21 years and upwards, of foreign birth, are required to take the oath to become naturalized,
so that the figures for 1906 represent between 30,000 and 40,000 people. The naturalization figures, when compared with the total immigration, show
clearly that almost all the male "immigrants" those from the United States included, are becoming British subjects. The returns further indicate that these new-comers rarely delay the securing of naturalization papers; on the contrary, it is a matter
they first turn their attention to on arriving in this country. And the longer they remain here the more they will appreciate the unique benefits of British laws and institutions. They will find here a freedom as great as the world knows, and will soon realize that in Canada there is greater security of life and property than they have been accustomed to. Under such circumstances it will not take long to make good Canadians of the farmers from the United States—men who will be content to abide here and help build up a great nation alongside that which they have left.

This is the season for light summer reading. Vacation seekers are studying railway and steamship folders and summer resort literature.

Our local contemporary's notion of fair play is even more warped than that of the water commissioners. It will not print their ballot correctly.

There is no reason why the All-Red Line should be a party issue, but the Conservative press seems determined to make it one.

The Hamilton Spectator suggests that London needs soap as well as water. Unlike Hamilton, we don't need to wash our drinking water.

One of the things a Londoner is always grateful for when he returns from some other city, is a glass of London's spring water. Don't throw away this boon.

Ralsuit, the pest of Morocco, has captured General Sir Harry MacLean.
The world knows what Great Britain did, when the King of Abyssinia performed a similar trick. Rescuing a "Mac" would be congenial work for the Black Watch.

VACATION'S AFTERMATH.

[Detroit News.]

Reggie Ship groaned.
"Ah, woe is me," he murmured softly.
Being a "softy" this was easy for Reggie.
"The bright hours," he sadly sighed, "are rocked in the bosom of the past."
Sighing came easy, too, for Reggie had been at the sea-side.
"Now, woe is me," he said, half unconsciously repeating himself.
"All my griefs seem towering at my side,
like the shadows of love's griefs for a whole season."
"My vacation is over. I'm tired to death, my nose is peeling, my feet are sore, my purse is fractured and tomorrow—ah, ouch! Tomorrow, I must go to work again!"

A NATION OF SHOPKEEPERS.

[London Saturday Review.]

Napoleon must have been right after all.
We are a nation of shopkeepers. There is nothing in the shop we are not ready to sell at a price. We do not doubt would sell the Great Seal if we could get a good enough offer from the Foreign Office.
Shakespeare folios, first editions of Morgan,
the portraits of Reynolds, of Romney,
only given a fat enough offer, we are happy to part with to any foreign nation
that has the taste and money to buy them.
We can put them up as coolly as Charles Surface did his forgeries.

SEEING DOUBLE.

[Illustrated Bits.]

A Scotch elder and his friend, coming from a wedding, began to consider the state in which their nuptials at the feast had left them.
"Sandy," said the elder, "just stop a minute till I go ahead. Perhaps I don't walk steadily and the girl might remark something not just right."
He walked ahead for a short distance, and then called out: "How is it? Am I walking straight?"
"Oh," answered Sandy, thickly,
"ye're a right—but who's that wi' ye?"

AN ANOMALY.

[Chicago News.]

"Ever notice it?" queried the proponent
of questions on the installment plan.
"Did I ever notice what?" asked the party of the audience.
"That the man with the narrow mind
is prone to make the broadest assertions?"
concluded the other.

THE HABIT OF NERVOUSNESS.

[Milwaukee Sentinel.]

"What an extremely nervous woman Mrs.
Tompkins is, isn't she?"
"I hadn't noticed it, my dear."
"Then you haven't been paying attention. Her new silk skirt doesn't stop rustling a moment."

EASY.

[Philadelphia Press.]

"Pa," said little Tommy Dumley, "teacher
says we got to be able to tell her tomorrow
what meter The Charge of the Light Brigade is in."
"Oh," replied old Dumley. "Why that's simple enough. Gas meter, of course."

NOT WITH THE MAJORITY.

[Punch.]

Parson (on a bicycling trip)—Where is the other man who used to be here as keeper?
Park gatekeeper—He's dead, sir.
Parson (with feeling)—Dead, poor fellow!
Joined the great majority, eh?
Park gatekeeper—Oh, I wouldn't like to say that, sir. He was a good enough man as far as I know.

DIPLOMATIC.

[Punch.]

Diplomatic Bachelor (who has forgotten
whether the baby is a boy or a girl)—Well,
well, but he's a fine little fellow, isn't he?
How old is it now? Do her teeth bother him much? I hope he gets through his second summer without getting sick. She looks like you, doesn't she? Every one says it does.

LEARNING GOLF.

[Peoples' Journal.]

Beginner at Golf—How many have I taken, my boy? Is it fifteen or sixteen?
Diagnosed Caddie—Ach, I dinna ken. I do caddie ye need—it's a billiard marker.

BY ONE WHO "NOSE."

[Holton (Mo.) Banner.]

We regret to learn that Mrs. Walter Smith, one of our leaders of fashion, tripped over a rug while chasing a cat out of the house the other day, and landed on her nose and badly disfigured that organ.
The Banner tenders her heartfelt sympathies. We too, have our sorrows and our dark hours.

TOO POLITE.

[Exchange.]

An old farmer who lived by himself sent for the parish gravedigger and explained to him where he wanted to be buried. "And here, Sandy," said he, "are ten shillings
for digging my grave. Ye see, ye wadna, maybe, be as sure o' the pay after I'm away."

SEVENTY YEARS MARRIED.

celebrating the seventieth anniversary of their wedding, which took place on June 3, 1837. They live in Regents Park.
The anniversary was marked by a great reception of friends, relatives and work-

CARLYLE ON ART
OF LETTER WRITING

AN EXTRACT FROM HIS BOOK ON HEROES AND HERO-WORSHIP.

Certainly the art of writing is the most miraculous of all things man has devised. Odin's Runes were the first form of the work of a hero; Books,
written words, are still miraculous Runes, the latest form! In Books lies the soul of a whole people; the art
of articulate audible voice of the past;
when the body and material substance of it has altogether vanished like a dream. Mighty fleets and armies, harbors and arsenals, vast cities, high-domed, many-engined—they are precious, great; but what do they become? Agamemnon, the many Agamemmons, Pericles, and their Greece;
all is gone now to some ruined fragments, dumb mournful wrecks and blocks; but the Books of Greece! There Greece, to every thinker, still very literally lives; can be called-up again into life. No magic Rome is stranger than a book. All that mankind has done, thought, gained or lost, it is lying as in magic preservation in the pages of books. They are the chosen possession of men.

Do not books still accomplish miracles, as Runes were fabled to do? They persuade men. Not the wretchedest circulating library novel, which foolish girls thumb and con in remote villages, but will help to regulate the actual practical weddings and households of those foolish girls. So "Clifford" felt, so "Clifford" acted; the foolish Theorem of Life, stamped into those young brains, comes out as a solid practice one day. Consider whether any Rune in the wildest imagination of mythologist ever did such wonders as, on the actual firm earth, some books have done! What built St. Paul's Cathedral? Look at the heart of the matter, it was that divine Hebrew book—the word partly of the man Moses, an outlaw tending his Midianite herds, four thousand years ago, in the wilderness of Sinai
it is the strangest of things, yet noting is truer. With the art of writing, which printing is a simple, an inevitable, and comparatively insignificant corollary, the true reign of miracles for mankind commenced. It related, with a wondrous new continuity and perpetual closeness, the past and distant with the present in time and place; all times and all places with things were altered for men; all modes
of important work of men; teaching,
preaching, governing, and all else.

To look at teaching, for instance.
Universities are a notable, respectable product of the modern ages. Their existence too, is modified, to the very basis of it, by the existence of books.

Universities arose while there were yet
no books procurable; while a man, for a single book, had to give an estate of land. That, in those circumstances, when a man had some knowledge to communicate, he should do it by gathering the learners round him, face to face, was a necessity for him. If you wanted to know what Abelard knew, you must go and listen to Abelard. Thousands, as many as thirty thousand, went to hear Abelard and that metaphysical theology of his. And now for any other teacher who had also something of his own to teach,
there was a great convenience opened;
so many thousands ages to learn were already assembled yonder; of all places the best place for him was that.
For any third teacher it was better still; and grew ever the better, the more teachers there came. It only needed now that the King took notice of this new phenomenon; combined or agglomerated the various schools into one school; gave it edifices, privileges, encouragements; and named it universities, or school of all sciences; the University of Paris, in its essential characters, was there. The model of all subsequent universities; which down even to these days, for six centuries now, have gone on to found themselves on. Such, I conceive, was the origin of universities.

It is clear, however, that with this simple circumstance, facility of getting books, the whole conditions of the business from top to bottom were changed.
Once invent printing, you metamorphosed all universities, or superseded them! The teacher needed not now to gather men personally round him, that he might speak to them what he knew;
print it in a book, and all learners far and wide, for a trifle, had it each at his own fireside, much more effectually to learn it! Doubtless there is still peculiar virtue in speech; to universities among others. But the limits of the two have nowhere yet been pointed out, ascertained; much less put in practice; the university which would completely take in that great new factor of the existence of printed books,
stand on a clear footing for the nineteenth century as the Paris one did for the thirteenth, has not yet come into existence. If we think of it, all that a university, or final highest school can do for us, is still but what the first school began doing—teach us to read. We learn to read, in various languages, in various sciences; we learn the alphabet and letters of all manner of books. But the place where we are to get knowledge, even theoretic knowledge, is the books themselves! It depends on what we read, after all manner of professors have done their best for us. The true university of these days is a collection of books.

LONDON'S WATER SUPPLY.

It has been calculated that if a dis-
tern covering 850 acres and 345 feet high could be constructed and the water supply of London for one year turned into it, the warships of all the world's navies could ride at anchor there. The figures are given by The Bits, which adds:

If we now dig a canal 100 feet wide across Europe, from the extreme north to the south, and empty our cistern into it, we shall find that the water in our canal, which is 2,400 miles long,
will rise to a uniform height of ten feet. Every drop of it is consumed by the inhabitants of Greater London
within a year; while each man, woman and child living today throughout the world could draw 50 gallons from it without exhausting its contents.

The mains through which these hundreds of millions of tons of water flow for the use of London are almost long enough to stretch a quarter of the way around the earth at the equator, while it would take a locomotive, traveling at the rate of 60 miles an hour, more than four days and nights to race from one end of them to the other.

CHAPTER VIII. THEY CALL HER GUILTY.

Geoffrey stood for a moment taken aback as Ted Sealey stared incredulously into his face.

"It can't be Geoffrey Clavering, surely," he repeated.

Geoffrey made a movement as though he would have shrunk back into the shadow, and then hesitated. After all, Ted had been one of the few friends he had had when he had worked at the mill, and he was honest and faithful—he could trust him. He put out his hand.

"Ted!" he said, a little huskily.

Ted stood looking into his eyes.

"Geoff, old chap, I'm glad to see you," he cried, "and I never thought I should again. I thought you had gone for good!" He hesitated for a moment, his hands clasped tightly. "What brings you back?" he asked. "They said you would never dare to come. They said you had done bad things, and the earl spoke of it openly when they sent a deputation to him from the coal mines the day after you went. He said he should prosecute you if you ever showed your face in Oldcastle again, and that you had tried to ruin his son."

"He said—he said that?" Geoffrey was white to the lips. "But Lord Fanshawe denied it, of course?"

Ted shrugged his shoulders.

"I don't reckon Lord Fanshawe up to much," he said, "and you know I never did. A coward he is, and never was anything else but once, and that was when he struck the ugly past with Evelyn Walter. But you heard about that. It was years ago; it must have happened before you went."

Geoffrey shook his head. He could not speak. The past, the ugly past was back upon him, gripping and holding him in its grasp.

Ted Sealey pushed his hat back from his forehead.

"Why, there was an announcement in the Oldcastle Chronicle," he said, "saying that the earl's son was to marry Sir Arthur's daughter, and Lord Fanshawe, he just struck out about it."

"Yes—yes!" said Geoffrey, sharply. "Go on."

"He refused to have it, and there was a scene at the castle. It appeared that the earl had had the announcement put in the paper himself, or at least people said so and he was about as mad as he could be when Lord Fanshawe refused to abide by it, and try as he might he couldn't get him to marry Evelyn Walter. The rumor was denied the next week, and then it was that people began to say things about Lord Fanshawe."

"What sort of things?" Geoffrey asked, hoarsely.

"Why, that he was more than harum scarum. People don't mind a chap being a little devil-may-care, but they begin to say that he was more than that! Rumor began to get about that he was going a bit too far. A fellow may get into debt, and all that—he might even gamble, but he doesn't persist in it if he's got any grit in him, and he doesn't do other worse things. They said that Lord Fanshawe was leading other young men on, young men who were in inferior positions to himself and couldn't af-

AT FORTY

Some of the signs that life has passed its zenith appear. Exertion is followed by fatigues that are not quite worn off next morning—and the beginning of that slow decline is commenced which culminates at seventy.

At forty, men and women should be careful. Nature needs a little help, and no remedy equals Ferrozone as a strengthening system builder. It renews health by producing new blood, by supplying food elements to rebuild the nervous system.

In this way the decline that sets in at forty is postponed by Ferrozone. The vital fluid is renewed, surplus vigor is created, the nervous system is invigorated.

With increased appetite, sound sleep and strong nerves you are bound to feel better—you will surely feel the enormous push Ferrozone has given your health. Try it. Thousands use it every day, just one tablet before meals. 50 cents per box, at all dealers.

ford to live his life, and there was Giles' clerk—you remember Giles' clerk—John Andrews? He was found in the river one night and they said he had left a letter behind to Lord Fanshawe, but nobody ever saw it, and there were some queer things whispered then for he had embezzled £500 of Giles' money, and it was known that he had been playing high with Lord Fanshawe a few nights before he was found drowned. And there were other things, and people were whispering and talking—why, there were even some as said that whatever it was you had done he had probably led you into it, and he was running about all over the town with Hetty Lancaster and—well—he got a bit of a bad name after you had gone, I can tell you. And on the top of it all came that black business of the Lancasters."

Geoffrey caught his breath.

"The men at the forge had opened the furnace door again, and the great piece of iron had come out red hot, lying on its chain, rolling to the center of the floor, where the men began sharply scraping away the shell that had formed upon it in the fire."

Geoffrey turned and began walking away from the forge, away from the patch of light into the dusty street. The twilight prevented Ted from seeing his face plainly, but he turned it from him all the same as he walked.

"What of the?" he asked hoarsely.

"What of the Lancasters?" and Ted stared in surprise.

"Do you mean to say that you never heard of that?" he cried. "Why, you must have been asleep, you must have been buried in the wilds all this time not to have heard that."

"Yes, I've been in the wilds," said Geoffrey huskily, "but tell me."

Ted gave him a quick glance. His sharp eyes saw the pallor of his face in spite of the dusk. They saw, too, the drawn look of suffering about his lips, and he abruptly linked his arm in his.

"It would have hurt you years ago," he said at last, "but I reckon you've forgotten her long since while you've been knocking about the world. But if it hurts you to hear—stop me. It would have been bad for you years ago. You were so wrapped up in her and believed in her so and after all she wasn't worth it, Geoffrey. Many a time I felt thankful you were out of Oldcastle. She wasn't worth a minute's headache, wasn't worth an honest man's thought."

"He looked at him shrewdly again, and slightly shook his head. Geoffrey hadn't got over the old pain—what he had to tell him would hurt him after all."

"Hetty—Hetty turned out different to what you expected," he said slowly. "She didn't run straight after you left Oldcastle. She ran crooked, Geoff. I wouldn't say aught to hurt you for anything anybody could give me, but Hetty's best forgotten."

"Forgotten?" The word broke so harshly from Geoffrey's throat that Ted started a little. "Forgotten? Do you think that I could ever forget, whatever she has done? I loved her, then, I love her still, whatever she is, whatever she has done. Nothing will ever change me, Ted, and I want to hear everything, all she went through, all she suffered, everything she did."

He put out his hand almost helplessly, and once more Ted linked his arm in his.

"It isn't good hearing," he said, after a minute. "I think after you went that Lord Fanshawe affected her, upset her balance, so to speak, for she was odd in more ways than one. After the rumour at the castle she was seen everywhere with Lord Fanshawe, and they said the old lord was mad about it, and couldn't help it. Then they said that she was secretly married to Lord Fanshawe. Then one night there were high words between her and her father, and Molly Burns—you remember Mr. Lancaster's cook?"

he heard then, and heard Hetty crying out that something was a lie.

"It was that night that she went. She declared to Molly that she would never speak to her father again, and went and shut herself up in her own bedroom."

"In the morning she was gone, and two nights later Mr. Lancaster was found dead in his study, murdered!"

He broke off. Geoffrey had given a cry and wrenched his arm from his.

"That isn't true," he cried, sharply. "It can't be true."

"Well it was never proved," said Ted, "and it was Mr. North who came in there. He declared that old Mr. Lancaster had died naturally of heart disease. He swore that he had been attending him for months because of it, and he had expected him to die suddenly, but nobody believed him, for we all knew that he was in love with Hetty Lancaster like a dozen more."

Geoffrey knew that he would enquire if he could, but nobody expected the coroner to believe what he said, and everybody thought that another doctor would be called and an examination held, but nothing was done. Dr. North got his way, and the jury called it "Death from natural causes."

Geoffrey caught his breath in his throat. The very words Jackson, the lawyer, had uttered in the same case, as if Hetty had escaped what she deserved. Had they all turned from her just as they had turned from himself? Was there nobody in Oldcastle who believed in her, just as there was nobody who believed in him?

But he had forgotten. Ted had been loyal. Ted's faith in himself had never faltered or wavered.

"There were many things against her," Ted went on. "She hadn't been seen for two days, and then on the second night she came back. Molly Byrne says her, and Bessie Merrill saw her, and heaps of people. Bessie said she came back to get her father's pardon, but it's like Bessie to work her imagination for any one she loves, and she loved Hetty Lancaster and to this day sticks out that I'm a fool to be believing her guilty. And there's one thing I can't understand about Bessie. She was that emphatic about Hetty's innocence, and yet, lately, she's been taken up and going about with Barker, the lawyer's clerk, who believes her guilty. I suppose it's like a woman, but it isn't like Bessie, somehow. Why, she would scarcely speak to me, she'd scarcely look at me at the time when everybody was talking about the case, and when I said that things looked black for Hetty, she declared that if I ever doubted her she'd be hung for me herself! Yet there she is now playing about with that dandy of a clerk at Jackson's. And I've heard him say that there isn't any doubt whatsoever that Hetty murdered her father. What can you make of that, Geoff? They're puzzlers for any man, I reckon; monkey puzzles I call 'em. Imps of Satan half of 'em, every one with a bit of devil in her, and yet, for Geoff, the amount of angel in 'em, too, staggers a man sometimes."

He broke off. Geoff was staring down at his feet, and the half smile that things looked black for Hetty, she declared that if I ever doubted her she'd be hung for me herself! Yet there she is now playing about with that dandy of a clerk at Jackson's. And I've heard him say that there isn't any doubt whatsoever that Hetty murdered her father. What can you make of that, Geoff? They're puzzlers for any man, I reckon; monkey puzzles I call 'em. Imps of Satan half of 'em, every one with a bit of devil in her, and yet, for Geoff, the amount of angel in 'em, too, staggers a man sometimes."

"But what was there against Hetty, after all?" he said abruptly. "There was nothing, only the suspicions of people. Why should she have done such a terrible thing as murder? There was no reason, there could have been no reason."

Ted shook his head.

"There was plenty," he said, "and it would have been a bad look out for her if it hadn't been for Dr. North. For Mr. Lancaster had forbidden Lord Fanshawe the house, had forbidden Hetty to have anything to do with him, and in a letter to the earl, which was found in his pocket, he said that it was his painful duty to have to accuse Lord Fanshawe of a crime. There was plenty of reason for the quarrel, plenty of reason for the crime."

"But—" stammered Geoff. "Why should that have caused Hetty to do murder?"

Ted looked straight into his face.

"Nobody knew what the crime was that Mr. Lancaster thought Lord Fanshawe had committed, but Lord Fanshawe's name stood for everything bad in Oldcastle just then, and if it was true, as people said, that Hetty was secretly married to him, why, what was more likely than that she should try to prevent her father from speaking out?"

"But—but—order!" cried Geoff, "and why should it have been Hetty? It might have been anyone; Fanshawe, himself, perhaps. Oh, Ted, it wasn't before heaven it couldn't have been Hetty."

Ted stood silent for a moment and then lifted his head slowly.

"You'd better forget her, and all about her," he said deliberately. "She murdered him for sure, for she was seen."

"Seen?"

"Yes, Molly Byrne, the cook, saw her and Miss Walter, who was behind her, saw her, too, saw her in the window, half in, half out, just as she was getting away."

CHAPTER IX.

A cry broke from Geoffrey's lips. He could not, would not believe it. It was impossible, horrible. He turned to Ted.

"All the same I don't believe it," he said huskily. "I don't believe she was guilty. I don't believe she had any hand in it, and I want to find her, Ted, and prove her innocence, and I'll do it, too."

Ted stared at him dully for an instant, then thrust out his hand. "I hope you'll succeed," he said. "With all my heart I hope you'll succeed. I hope you'll find her all you hope and wish. I hope there'll be no disappointment for you, Geoff."

"Disappointment!" He stared away down the street. How chill it seemed how dark! "Ted," he added, "I have suffered so much that I think nothing can hurt me now, but if I thought I should be disappointed in her, I'd drop my body into the river tonight! If I thought I should lose my belief in her, I couldn't face the morning, Ted. But I can't do that. I have a will, I have a shame in it then, and I can't believe there is now. Anyhow, I shall have to see it before I believe it, and until then—"

His hand suddenly met Ted's in a warm grip.

"Until then," cried Ted. "Whatever I can do I'll do it with a will. God grant you may be right about her, Geoff, and forgive me for doubting her."

He turned away his head a little. He could not meet Geoffrey's eyes just then, for the doubt in his own mind, the fear what Geoffrey would find, the sure certainty in his own heart that she was guilty, turned his face gray and his lips white.

"But now," he added abruptly. "It's getting late. Where are you stopping tonight, Geoff?"

Geoffrey hesitated. He had brought a small bag which he had left at the station, but he had had it packed by his valet without thinking, and in it there were no doubt things which would make Ted open his eyes. He had told his man to put in clothes only for one night, but the bag had gold fittings, and had an expensive look, and even though he might tell Ted the history of his life during the last eight years, yet he did not want anyone else to hear it, or to suspect who and what he was. If he was to trace Hetty and prove her innocent, he must remain unknown. If Mr. Lancaster had been murdered then the real murderer might be difficult to track. Meanwhile Ted had given a keen glance at his clothes.

"Come home with me for the night," he suggested. "I lodge at old Mrs. Sharpe's, and there's a room there you can have, I dare say you won't charge you much for it. You wouldn't mind a couple of shillings, would you? And you could share my breakfast in the morning."

Geoffrey could have laughed aloud. In his pocket was a check book and twenty pounds in notes and gold. In London, at the Hotel Cecil, his rooms were costing him six guineas a day. He was paying his valet at the rate of double Ted's wages. Poor old Ted!

"I can afford more than that," he said, slowly. "I haven't been doing badly. I'll tell you all about it some day, Ted, but not now. Meanwhile, if I come with you, can I come unrecognized? I mean, will people know me again?"

Ted looked at him sharply.

"I should say it's not likely," he replied. "I've been looking at you while we've been talking and wondering how it was I recognized you at all. You're not a bit like the Geoffrey Clavering who left us. The years have altered you beyond belief."

"Well," Geoffrey looked vaguely about the street. "I don't want to be recognized, Ted, and if I am to find out about Hetty it might ruin everything if it leaked out who I was. So I want you to keep my identity a secret and let nobody know that I am Clavering. I'll tell you all about things presently, Ted."

HATES MENTION OF MANKIND

Objects to the Use of Masculine Term for Characterizing Everything.

Berlin, July 3.—It has remained for Fraulein Dr. Kaethe Schirmacher, one of the most learned leaders of the German woman movement, to discover that even in language—in all languages—the female sex is humiliated, belittled, despised and trampled upon. The erudite Fraulein demands that all women, of every nationality, unite to wipe out this humiliating oppression of the tyrant man.

"Every spoken language bears the indelible impress of male hands," declares the indignant Fraulein doctor. "One can hardly speak a sentence without saying something which shows the mark of the beast. Take our most common forms of expression. When we are told to be heroic we are not told to be womanly, but manly."

It is impossible to reproduce the deep disgust which the Fraulein embodies in her sarcastic emphasis of every repetition of the word "man."

"Be a man" means to be filled with courage and fortitude," she continued. "The word man contains in itself these noble qualities, but an adjective must be prefixed when the talk is about woman—a 'heroic' woman, a 'noble' woman, and so on."

"A man's expression 'those women' voices a volume of contempt. The worst name he can apply to a fellow man is to call him an old woman. He speaks with contempt of petticoat government, of petticoats and apron-strings, and a polite Frenchman when he wishes to speak very contemptuously of his fellow-Frenchman, says, 'C'est une fille,' (He is a girl)."

"Men even borrow from the names of animals and continue the same implied slur of our sex. It is outrageous. When even in written and spoken language the overbearing, masterful assumption of male superiority is maintained, it is surely time that the language be reconstructed. All women should unite in a movement for this."

The Fraulein doctor blames users of the language as well as the original speakers for the situation, and she is indignant with those of her sex who placidly acquiesce in it.

"A pianist plays with manly force," said she. "Ernest Renan called the highly-gifted Clemence Royer 'presun' homme de genie' (almost a man of genius). George Sand says, 'Elle avait une tete puissante, une tete d'homme' (she had a powerful head—the head of a man), and so on."

"The worst of it is that women are found who agree with all this, especially women writers. They talk of 'virile,' 'male' and 'masculine' as though those adjectives were the highest praise they could bestow. The worst sinner is a German novelist who lately wrote that her heroine had borne pain like a man. All the world knows that men do not bear pain anything like as well as women do, yet no man would dream of writing he bore pain like a woman! It would be an insult, would it not?"

And the scholarly champion of woman sneered.

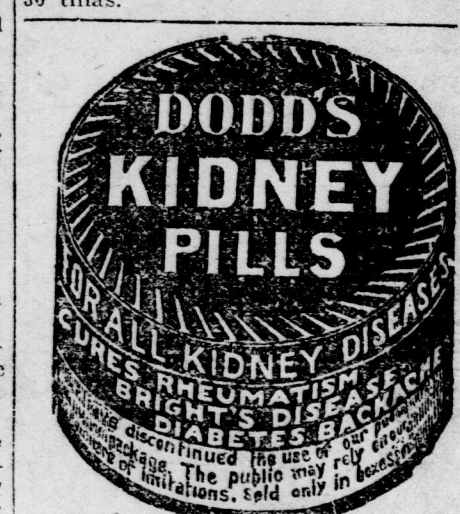

"Away with all languages," she

THE NEW Nestle's Food The Best Nourishment for Even the YOUNGEST INFANTS

Not content with the original formula of the Swiss chemist, Henri Nestle, the manufacturers of Nestle's Food for the past few years have been seeking to improve their product. The recent work done in both Europe and America by leading pediatricists has been carefully followed.

After five years of experimentation, slight changes were made in the formula. Since 1902 this New Nestle's Food has been sold in Switzerland and generally throughout Europe. The improvements made on theoretical grounds have in the course of the past three years been proven by thousands of clinical tests to be a step in advance.

THE CHANGES

Since July 1, 1906, the Nestle's Food made and sold in this country has been prepared according to the new formula.

Chief among the modifications made is the conversion of a larger percentage of the wheat starch into dextrin and maltose. Nestle's Food has not, however, become a "malted food" by this change, as the percentage of maltose is inconsiderable.

Other changes are the increase of fat percentages, and the reduction of the amount of cane sugar.

No change has been made in the appearance of the package, the label and outside wrapper being the same as have been used for the past thirty-five years.

MILK

The basis of Nestle's Food is pure cow's milk, condensed in vacuo, and so treated that the proteins are easily digested.

One of the principal reasons for the great success Nestle's Food has attained in all parts of the world, is that water only is added to it to prepare it for use.

It is well known that a large percentage of infants cannot digest fresh cow's milk, no matter how carefully it is modified. In such cases Nestle's Food is especially valuable, since its mode of manufacture and preparation renders its constituents readily assimilable by even the youngest infants.

STARCH

The percentage of starch in Nestle's Food has been reduced to one-half the former amount, but a certain proportion of starch is still retained. Jacob, Chapin, Shaw and Keller have demonstrated the value of cereal decoctions in infant feeding. It is now certain that the presence of starches is of the greatest value in overcoming the indigestibility of the casein of cow's milk.

FATS

The percentage of fats in the New Nestle's Food is higher than it was under the old formula. Beyond a certain percentage it is not possible to go in the manufacture, without impairing the keeping qualities.

A FULLER STATEMENT

A full description of Nestle's Food and statement of the considerations that led to the changes in the formula, have been set forth in a pamphlet entitled "Recent Work in Infant Feeding." This we will gladly mail (with samples of Nestle's Food if desired) on request.

ALICE SET THEM RIGHT

Mrs. Keppel, Friend of King Edward, Has Tongue in Her Head.

London, July 3.—Then, Hon. Mrs. George Keppel, the King's favorite friend, is never at a loss for an answer. She is very popular with women as well as men, but of course, there are one or two wildly jealous of "Alice"—as they call her—and never miss an opportunity of giving her what is politely called in the smart set a "shaker."

At Lady Bache Curd's party, which she gave for the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia the other night, Mrs. Keppel was wearing a rather old-fashioned yellow gown and a still more old-fashioned necklace. A certain envious peeress approached her with a society smile and remarked: "What a sweet necklace you're wearing tonight, dear! Quite early Victorian."

"Yes, it's rather nice," replied Mrs. Keppel in her blindest manner. "You're quite wrong about the era—it's Victorian and was given to me only last week."

BID GOOD-BYE TO THEIR PASTOR

Lambeth Church Takes Leave of Rev. A. G. Harris, Who Comes to London.

Lambeth, July 4.—Don't forget the garden party on Tuesday evening at the Methodist Church. Strawberries and ice cream, and a 15c return fare from the city.

The I. O. F. and A. O. U. W. have postponed their annual picnic on account of the cool weather.

The Advertiser's correspondent writes: On Saturday evening the congregation of the Methodist Church met at the parsonage to bid farewell to the Rev. A. G. Harris and family who have so faithfully labored among us for the past four years. After spending a social hour the following kindly worded address was read by Mr. E. Thornicroft, behalf of the church and congregation.

"To the Rev. A. G. Harris, Dear Pastor:—Another revolution of the great itinerancy having brought us to the close of another pastoral term with all that is involved therein both to pastor and people, we think it fitting in view of your early removal to another circuit to offer a few words of hearty appreciation of the faithful service you have rendered during the past four years.

"The expositions of Sacred Truth you have given in the pulpit have been full-orbed and inspiring. We were never left in doubt as to any of the great essentials of our holy religion; and the earnestness with which they were presented always gave us the best evidence we could desire that the truth you presented to others was not loosely held, but you could say with the Great Apostle 'I believe, therefore have I spoken.'

"Such faithful ministrations cannot be in vain in the Lord. We are thankful for fruit that has already appeared, but there is more to follow, for 'He that goeth forth weeping, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again, rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him.'

"The unflinching interest you have manifested in the prayer and class meetings has been duly noticed and has not been in vain. Every department of our church work has been well sustained by you. And your faithful pastoral visitation has shown that you truly appreciate the importance of home life and heart-to-heart contact with those committed to your care. The young in the Sunday schools and Epworth Leagues, the careless, the sick, the discouraged have all been evidently on your mind and in your heart. It has been your constant aim to minister to all these classes, by personal visitation, words of hearty counsel, and earnest prayer. Such labor is not in vain in the Lord.

"As you are about to leave us, and will soon enter upon the work of an adjoining circuit, you may rest assured of our continued interest in you and your dear family, who have all been so earnest and helpful in the good work in which you have been so long engaged.

"Will you kindly accept this purse as a slight, tangible expression of our highest esteem. Our earnest prayers and our best wishes will follow you to your new field, coupled with the hope that you may be long spared to do valiant service for Christ and his church.

"Signed on behalf of your many friends:—
"F. G. THORNICROFT,
"JOHN MILL."

Hill Street Church, London, is to be congratulated on securing the services of such a pastor as the Rev. A. G. Harris.

SARNIA MAN IN SEARCH OF WIFE

Calls Her Ungrateful and Unfaithful But "Gosh-Durned Fine Cook."

Detroit, July 3.—The Detroit Free Press of today says:

George Albert Day, of Sarnia, and a dock wallop by confession, stood in front of the little wire window of detective headquarters in Detroit yesterday wearing a worried look and a button that read, "If you love me, grin."

Everybody to whom George talked seemed to have a marked fondness for him, leading him into the depths of a deep, deep love that ranged from grins to the horse-laugh. But it was all the same to George, for he said that he couldn't read, and didn't know what the button meant. If he did, he probably wouldn't have been wearing it. It was vastly out of place, for George wasn't grinning, and he was looking for his wife, who, he said, had run away with another man after he had bought and paid for her.

George Albert declared up and down that he had bought and paid for her, which made Detective Lieutenant Baker prick up his ears somewhat and take notice.

"Yep, I married her six months ago, in 1886, in Port Huron," he declared.

"Six months ago, in 1886?" asked Baker.

"Yep," said George.

"And then what?" asked Baker.

"Well, then, two years ago, about a month after I married her, she ran away and she's living here with another fellow," said George Albert.

"Well, why don't you let her go and get another one?" asked the lieutenant.

"Humph!" said George, grinning.

"Guess I couldn't get another one as easy and cheap as I got her. Sure, I bought her. How much? Well, I paid $10 for the license—yes, sir, $10; and then I paid $3 to the English minister up there to marry us. And then in six months she ran away with this other fellow, and I treated her right, too. Spent $32 on her while she lived with me, for grub and such like. Yep, $32 in six months."

"Perhaps you were too extravagant with her," suggested Lieutenant Lalley. "You know, there is such a thing as spoiling these women."

"Yep," said George Albert. "That's just what a fellow told me up in Sarnia County, so I cut her off, and wouldn't spend any more on her. Then she said and left me. Women is ungrateful. But she's a gosh-durned good housekeeper, and I'd like to have you fellows get her back to keep house for me."

The detectives told him to go and find her, get evidence that she was living with another man, swear out a warrant and they'd get her for him.

"Is that all there is to it?" asked George Albert.

George doesn't know much more about fiddlers than he does about reading and writin'. That's what made him get so mixed up on his dates. He allowed that he didn't know much difference between 1886 and 1906, but declared up and down that he married his wife six months ago; that she lived with him six months, left him after she had lived with him a month, and had been here in Detroit for about six months.

All of which puzzled everybody but George Albert. He said that it was as clear as mud.

And he is sure that his wife is here with another man. He is also confident that he can find her and get her back.

SAVINGS OF BISMARCK

Berlin, July 3.—Herr Von Poschinger has printed a number of unpublished sayings of the late Prince Bismarck. The following are a few samples:

"Princes would do well to make a thorough study of the personalities of foreign sovereigns whom they are about to visit, and in accordance with the result of this study receive with caution and friendly reserve any proposals in regard to the future that they may make."

"I do not consider myself infallible. I admit that I have made many mistakes. Fortunately for me, my opponents always committed greater ones."

This one was written after his retirement from office.

"It is perhaps to be regretted that I did not remain in Berlin after my dismissal. How much could I have seen and experienced there! I would gladly have gone to the theater from time to time. People would have become accustomed to Bismarck in retirement, whereas if I should let myself be seen in Berlin now the people would almost overwhelm me."

"I have no desire to accept the invitation to participate in the celebration at Berlin on Jan. 18, 1896, of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the foundation of the German Empire and the proclamation of the German Emperor. I consider myself too good to appear as a piece of old decorative furniture."

Squires Is the Favorite in Betting Tigers Lose in the Tenth Innings Good Record of St. George's Team

FASTEST TIME OF THE SEASON MADE BY JOHNNIE K. AT MATINEE

George McCormick's Horse
Travels Half-Mile at Queen's Park in 108.

Half fields and an apparent laxity in rivalry, were the order of things at the matinee races at Queen's Park yesterday afternoon, and as a consequence the events seemed tame to those previously run off this season.

The track was never in better condition, and some very good time was made, especially in Class I, which was taken by Johnnie K. The last heat of the race was the fastest of the season, and was run off in 1:08, which is just two seconds slower than the matinee record held by Clipper.

Bella Mack had "something" on Eolo Rex in the next class, and won handsily in straight heats.

Possibly the fastest race of the afternoon was that between Nixon Bros. Grocery Boy and Dr. F. L. Wood's Assinibola, in the second and final heats of Class 3. Dr. Wood's horse led until the stretch, when, on being urged a little too hard he went off his feet and was passed by the Nixon horse, which maintained the lead until within a hundred yards of the wire, when Assinibola passed him, whereupon the other horse went up, but finished a fair second, nevertheless.

Ruby K. and Master Roy—both owned by Billy Robinson—had a nice little skirmish of three heats in Class IV, and it was anybody's race at all stages. The first named, with Dr. Barnes up, managed to take the first and third heat.

Maud H., a new horse started by Alex. Henderson, slipped matters up in the final heat of the Class V race, but wasn't quite speedy enough for McCormick's Diopa, who showed vast improvement over last week's form.

IAN BARS LOWERS TRACK RECORD

Prangley's Horse Goes Half Mile in 1:04½ at Stratford
—The Free-For-All.

Stratford, July 3.—A first-class track, good fields, and fast going served to make today's races the best of the week.

In the three-year-old pace, Ian Bars, J. W. Prangley's fast colt, broke the track record for the half-mile, going the route in 1:04½.

Darkey Hal had little trouble in taking the $1,000 free-for-all; his closest competitor being Capt. Sphinx. Geary, the London horse, showed up rather poorly. Summary:

BETTORS PLUNGE ON BILL SQUIRES

Australian a 10 to 7 Favorite in Fight With Tommy Burns Today.

San Francisco, July 3.—Heavy betting for the first time since interest became active in the fight between Squires and Burns for the heavy-weight championship of the world, was on tonight. Burns was an even favorite in the afternoon, but in the evening there was talk of a big plunge in many quarters on Squires, and a few hours before midnight the Australian was a 10 to 7 favorite.

The betting feature has been by no means up to expectations, as expert fight dopesters say they know nothing of Squires to either back him or bet against him.

Burns is in wrong on the coast because of his mix-up with Jack O'Brien, and he knows it. He says he is out tomorrow to show the people that he can box and fight when against a man willing to stand up in the ring, instead of making a running race of it.

"I'll waste no time sparring," says Burns. "I'll keep at him from the first going. I've got speed, more of it than I ever had, and I've trained long and hard for a meeting with a man of endurance. I'll mix, and I'm only hoping to win, too."

Around the Squires camp all is quiet as usual. Squires has made no direct statement of how he will fight or what he will do.

The comparative figures of the two fighters are as follows:

FORM FOLLOWERS HAD GREAT DAY

Four Out of Six Favorites Took First Money at Windsor Meeting.

Windsor, July 2.—Today proved an excellent day for the followers of form, four out of six favorites taking first money. Senator Paynter, in the fourth event, furnished the real sensation of the day. Opening at 10 to 1, the Senator was backed to 8 to 1, and then beat out Prescott by a nose. Fare, the even-money favorite, was never in the running. Senator Paynter took a long lead early in the race, and held it well into the stretch, with Abrupt the only seemingly possible contender. In the stretch, Prescott, the second choice, came strong. It was nose and nose right to the wire, Senator Paynter winning out by scant inches. Abrupt was third.

First race, selling, $300, for fillies and mares, 4-year-olds and up, 6 furlongs—Cousin Kate, 105 (J. Hennessy), 2 to 5 and out, 1, by four lengths; Oleasa, 105 (Swain), 5 to 1, 2 to 1, and even, 2; Donasette, 107 (D. Boland), 10 to 1, 4 to 1 and 8 to 5, 3. Time, 1:13 4-5. Boland), 5 to 1, 3 to 2 and 3 to 5, 3. Time, 1:01 4-5. Meadow Green, Eleanor Day, Charley Mange, Chroydon and Sir Cyril also ran.

Fourth race, selling, purse, $350, for 2-year-olds, 5 1-2 furlongs—Senator Paynter, 102 (Burton), 3 to 1, 2 to 1 and even, 1; Prescott, 102 (Delaby), 2 to 1, 4 to 5 and 2 to 5, 2; Abrupt, 109 (Connolly), 4 to 1, 6 to sand 1 to 2, 3. ### ST. GEORGE'S, WINNERS OF PUBLIC SCHOOL BASEBALL LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP.

The St. George's nine of the Public School Baseball League got through the season with only two defeats in a total of seventeen games played. One of the defeats came in the first half of the schedule, and it was administered by the Colborne street nine, who hung the sign on the champions 11 to 2. The second loss was experienced at the very outset of the second half of the schedule, the Rectory street school nine doing the trick 8 to 6.

However, the record of the league champions is one of which they have good reason to be proud. The boys played good consistent ball throughout the entire season, and deserve the trophy offered by the Board of Education for competition every year. In the matter of run-getting the St. George's boys far excelled their opponents in nearly every game won. In the entire series they scored a total of 197, or an average of over 11 per game, while their opponents scored a total of only 70, an average of four per game. Here is the record of the games played by the champs:

| First Half.  | Runs.          | St. George's | Victory |
|--------------|----------------|--------------|---------|
| St. George's | 8 Rectory      | 6            | 3       |
| St. George's | 10 West London | 6            | 3       |
| St. George's | 31 Victoria    | 5            | 3       |
| St. George's | 5 West London  | 4            | 3       |
| St. George's | 16 Simcoe      | 11           | 3       |
| St. George's | 2 Colborne     | 11           | 3       |
| St. George's | 12 Aberdeen    | 4            | 3       |
| St. George's | 9 Talbot       | 3            | 3       |
| St. George's | 13 Lorne       | 0            | 3       |
| Second Half. | Runs.          | St. George's | Victory |
| St. George's | 6 Rectory      | 8            | 3       |
| St. George's | 7 Princess     | 5            | 3       |

Of the two shutouts scored by St. George's, Scatcherd pitched in one. Beach pitching the other against Victoria, when the score was 32 to 0. Scatcherd pitched fifteen games during the season, losing but one of them. He is probably the best twirler in the league, being steady at all times. While St. George's team landed the championship, it looked for a time as though the honors would go to the Lornes. The latter started out the season exceptionally well, but illness among the members of the team caused them to take a slump in the second half. At the end of the first half, the Lornes and St. George's were tied for first place, with Colborne and Rectory tied for second. In the last half of the schedule, the Rectory street nine made the best showing, winning every game, but they could not overcome the lead attained by the champions in the first half. The batteries which did the best work for their respective schools during the season were: St. George's Scatcherd and Logan; Lornes Morrison and Potheringham; Rectory, Mitchell and Ashplant; Princess Avenue, Cruickshanks and Forsythe; West London, Murray and Stanton; Simcoe street, Weekes and Chatto; Colborne street, Morrison and Wright; Aberdeen, Ross and McKenzie; Talbot street, Thorne and Laskey; Victoria school, Scandrett and Seyne. Clubs having the best batteries, however, were St. George's, Lornes, Rectory street, Colborne street and Princess Avenue nines.

The executive of the league feel that their efforts to promote good, clean sport among the boys of the various public schools have met with great success, and that the result will be the formation of a still stronger league next year to compete for the trophy. The latter was offered for the first time last season, when it was won by the Princess Avenue nine.

Only three protests were received during this season. Of them but one was sustained, it being proved that a team had played a boy who was not attending school.

It is safe betting that Johnson Bros., the owners of Geary, bewail the day that big fellow made his mark. It is impossible to start the handsome animal in anything but the free-for-all and the 2:06 paces, and apparently the best he can do is to finish in fifth place in either event. Yesterday at Stratford he finished in the same place he did at London.

J. Swartz's Ducky Hal, driven by Jack Rombough, took the race in straight heats, and was never pushed.

NO FAKE ABOUT THIS RUN.

Tonight at the Jubilee Rink the great Longboat will run an exhibition race, which is being advertised for three miles. If it is possible to arrange matters, a couple or more of the local boys will also give an exhibition. But very few London people have seen the Indian in action, and that the rink will be filled, goes without saying. Sherring drew a great crowd when he was here last winter, and that despite the fact that the weather was disagreeable on the night of his appearance. Sherring has announced that Longboat could beat him at his best, and comparisons should prove interesting. Those interested in bringing the famous redskin here should be accorded much credit for their success.

"DIDN'T I TELL YOU SO?"

Tomorrow the tongue of the "I-told-you-so" fellow will be unleashed. This party and the results of battles won and lost in the prize ring are inseparable.

Tonight, out on the Coast, our Tommy Burns and Bill Squires will engage in a padded mitt fiesta, and just what will be the outcome is problematical. What betting has been done has generally favored the antipodean. Why this should be so, we cannot surmise unless it be that there is something of a shady nature in the wind. Squires has yet to meet a man of the acknowledged caliber of Burns, and just why he should be favorite is something for easterners—especially Canadians—to ponder upon, and for the Coast bookies to explain. The American sporting writers are spreading tanks of ink in discussing the big scrap, while the Canadian scribes are evincing practically no interest in the probable outcome.

But no matter which way the affair terminates, the "I-told-you-so" person will be on the job with his time-worn remark, and he will not be denied.

BROWNS BEAT TIGERS IN TENTH

Made Five Clean Hits Off
Mullin In Extra Session—
Giants Lost Again.

Detroit, July 2.—Five clean, hard hits netted St. Louis five runs in the tenth inning off George Mullin, giving them the game. After the Tigers had gained what looked like a safe lead in the early rounds, the Browns pulled within reaching distance in the fifth by five singles. But one of those hits was clean but they were effective, nevertheless. In the eighth they tied the score on still more hits and some loose fielding by Cobb. From the fourth inning on, Glade had the locals at his mercy. He allowed but one hit in the last six innings.

APPRECIATE WORK OF THEIR PASTOR

Talbot Street Baptists Send Letter of Confidence to Rev. J. J. Ross.

At a special meeting of the Talbot Street Baptist Church, called last evening for the purpose, the following letter of confidence was unanimously adopted, and ordered to be sent to their pastor, Rev. J. J. Ross:

"Dear Pastor,—In accordance with the vote of the church at its last regular meeting we present to you this letter of confidence and appreciation. Words fail us to adequately express our feelings, but we cannot accept your resignation as our pastor without returning to you the expression of our sincere love and confidence in you, also our deep gratitude to God for the many spiritual blessings we as a church have received under your ministrations during the past three years and a half.

"You know, doubtless better than we ourselves, the numerical and financial increase of the church, but when we recall the names of individuals who have been brought out of darkness into the light and liberty of the children of God during your pastorate, we are constrained to praise God at seeing the marvelous tokens of his power to save, and how he has honored his own Word through your instrumentality, an evidence beyond question that the Lord is with you, and has honored you in his service. For this we are glad, and sincerely pray that in your new field of labor you will see a much larger ingathering of precious souls.

"We shall miss both you and Mrs. Ross from the church and every department of its work here, whether it be in the Sunday school, B. Y. P. U., Gideon Band or the mission circles. The influence of you both has been very marked in all these organizations for Christian service.

"The Gideon Band and all our young people tell us that they cannot begin to express to you the great heartache which your resignation has caused them.

"We are losing a pastor who has at all times sympathized and loved and has led us to a higher standard of living, and who, we know, lived not to please man, but God.

"As we watched your life and listened to your words, we have not only been instructed, but we have been made to love more earnestly to be like our Saviour, and have been made to feel that you could truthfully say in regard to us as a community, whether saved or unsaved, the words of the Apostle Paul, found in Acts, xx, 18-24. You are pure from the blood of all men, for you have not shunned to declare unto us the whole counsel of God.

"In severing your relations with us as pastor, we deeply grieve, but pray that the will of the Lord be done, and if it is his will that you should labor among other people, we wish you God-speed, assuring you that we shall always rejoice to hear of your increasing success in the ministry of the Gospel which you so much love to preach.

The address was signed by a committee representing the various organizations of the church.

NEWS OF PORT STANLEY

A Belated Visitor's Cool Reception—Moving Pictures Moved.

(Special to The Advertiser.)
Port Stanley, July 3.—The Marquette steamer Bessmer No. 2 arrived from Conneaut last night about 11 o'clock. A weary passenger wended his way to the long, dismal pier to the village, and found all the hotels in darkness. Although he pined and shouted for admittance, he received no answer. The unfortunate gentleman was forced to walk the streets till morning, and the night was not the warmest. The stranger from Uncle Sam's domain was greatly surprised at the cool reception afforded him, on this his first visit to Canada. He vowed never to visit Port Stanley again.

CALL SUSTAINED BY PRESBYTERY

Action Taken in Regard to Invitation to St. Thomas Pastor From Duff's Church.

The Presbytery of London held its regular July meeting in the Presbyterian Church, Port Stanley, on Tuesday. Rev. W. H. Reade was in the moderator's chair, and among those present were Revs. Drs. McCrae, McDonald, and Munro, John Currie, E. L. Pidgeon, T. A. Watson, Hector MacKay, J. G. Stuart, McDermid, Mann, Atkinson, Kelso, Rollins, Malcolm, Weir and Orr. Among the elders were John Lawson, H. F. Jolly and Wm. Campbell.

It was agreed that in future the copies of assembly minutes be expressed by the clerk to the various sessions. Delegates to the General Assembly reported their attendance. All declared that the meeting was one of the greatest and best in the history of the church.

A call from Duff's Church, Dunwich and Talts Corners was presented by Rev. James Malcolm. It was unanimously in favor of Rev. H. W. Reade, of Alma Street Church, St. Thomas. The stipend will be $950., with prospect of an increase in the near future. The call was sustained by the Presbytery, and the Alma Street Church was summoned to appear for their interests at a special meeting to be held on July 23, in Knox Church, St. Thomas, at 10:30 a.m.

Rev. Mr. Shearer, of Melbourne, is still in poor health and Presbytery members will continue to supply his pulpit.

A motion was passed that no member of the court be convener of any committee for more than two years. There was a lively discussion in connection with the examination and licensure of Mr. Stevenson, of Queen's College. Ultimately, however, Mr. Stevenson was duly licensed to preach the Gospel.

The ladies of the church entertained the Presbytery at a splendid banquet, and on motion of Mrs. McCrae and Mr. McDonald, received the enthusiastic thanks of the court for their generous hospitality.

The death occurred in Victoria Hospital last night of Mr. James Howe, of Wallaceburg, who came to London for treatment. The body is being sent to Wallaceburg for interment.

The residents of Colborne street north, between St. James and Oxford streets, are complaining about the condition of the thoroughfare. A cement curb and gutter were recently constructed in the block, but the contractors failed to clear away the rubbish.

Mrs. A. W. Pestell, of 885 Dufferin avenue, who is a member of Companion Court No. 362, I. O. F., was waited on at her home on Tuesday night, by her fellow-companions and presented with a very handsome leather suitcase. Companion Pestell leaves today on a trip to England, and her friends took advantage of the occasion to show their appreciation of her as a Companion and a lady. After the presentation refreshments were served and all spent a very pleasant time.

Mr. Harry Olney, of 165 Wray street, an employee of the London Rolling Mills Company, had two fingers cut off in the mills today. As Mrs. W. J. and H. A. Stevenson dressed his injury.

TOOK HONOR STANDING.
Miss Winnifred Lancelotti, youngest daughter of Rev. E. B. Lancelotti and Mrs. Lancelotti, has been notified that she obtained honor standing in Junior piano at the recent examination in connection with Toronto University.

WAS MUM ABOUT BRIDGE.
Superintendent Pyatt of the Pere Marquette was in London yesterday, and had a talk with City Clerk Baker. He said nothing of the company compelling the city to pay for the new bridge, however, evidently leaving that matter for his general manager, Mr. Cotter.

ITALIAN LABORER INJURED.
An Italian laborer, employed by the Grand Trunk Railway, had his foot crushed through a rail falling on it some days ago. Dr. Drake, who was summoned last evening, had the man removed to Victoria Hospital. It is hoped to save the foot. The patient cannot speak English, and he is entered as patient No. 4, in the public ward.

BOTH PASSED EXAM.
Mr. W. G. Pearce, of Talbot street, and Mr. Fred Mann, 464 Park avenue, were successful in passing the international examinations in mechanical drawing, held in New York city, for students in technical education, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. The class studied in the local association under Mr. Carless, chief draughtsman for E. Leonard & Sons.

TO VISIT OLD LAND.
City Clerk Baker leaves tonight at 6:55 for Montreal, where he will take a steamer for England. Today his brother officials bid him good-bye and a safe journey. Mr. Baker says he would be pleased to have all his friends at the depot tonight, provided none of them came armed with rice or Irish confetti—commonly termed bricksbats.

NOW IS THE TIME
Architect's Advice Is Build Now—The Prices Will Advance.

A local architect stated to The Advertiser today that people who are thinking of building will never have a better opportunity to have their houses put up than just at present. The architects report that while they are fairly busy, there is no rush, and the builders in all lines have plenty of time and material to go ahead with jobs.

As far as prices are concerned, the architect quoted declared that they are lower now than they will be three months hence.

DISPUTE ABOUT A DUMP
Trouble Ends in Slugging Match—Man and Wife in Melée.

London dumps are becoming as notorious as the London Bazaar. This morning a chunky little teamster named Fred Pugsley appeared before Police Magistrate Love on a charge of assault preferred by Louis Solbesky, who resides at the foot of Clarence street, and who is owner of the dump at the foot of the city. The dump has long been recognized as a public one, and consequently yesterday Pugsley was sordid by Solbesky to empty a load of ashes which he was hauling at the foot of the hill instead of on top of it, he became indignant and heatedly inquired just what the other man had to do with it. Instead of informing the driver that he was owner of the property, Solbesky grabbed hold of the trespasser and slapped his face for him, whereupon Pugsley retaliated with a well-aimed blow which put the other man on his feet, besides blackening an eye and leaving a marked impression upon his nasal organ.

The magistrate said that while he considered Pugsley to be in the wrong to some extent, Solbesky himself was not entirely blameless, and should have informed the driver that he was owner of the dump, Pugsley, who was defended by Mayor Judd, was dismissed with a reprimand, and a warning to respect the wishes of property owners in the future when on their land.

Five first offenders in the drinking line were also set free.

His honor had a hard case to decide in that of Albert Hallam, a Market Square restaurant-keeper, charged with being drunk and disorderly. Hallam lives on Wilson avenue, and according to the witnesses, he and his neighbors, both he and his wife being engaged in a regular old-fashioned family scrap, in which the better-half was slightly worsted. When asked whether any bad language had been used or not by Hallam on the witnesses (a young lady) said there had been both vulgar and obscene language.

Officer James Hignsted, who made the arrest, said that he received a call from the Hallam neighborhood to the effect that the prisoner was beating his wife. On the way over to Wilson street, Hignsted had met Hallam and took him back to the house, where Mrs. Hallam was found to be nursing a bleeding mouth and other injuries. A moment later she and Hallam were in the midst of another battle—this time of words, however. They both landed in the station-house. As there was no charge upon which to hold the woman, beyond being partially intoxicated, she was allowed to go shortly afterward. Hallam told the magistrate that his wife was a hard drinker, and that she abused his children. Several times, he said, he had been obliged to call in the Children's Aid and Salvation Army people for assistance when the woman was drinking.

After hearing all the testimony his honor decided that if both parties signed the pledge, and Hallam gave bonds in $200, the peace he would dismiss the case.

Charles Cassidy was fined $5 and costs, and a number of minor offenders paid $1 each.

HAYWOOD WITNESS KILLED
Meets Death While En Route to the Trial at Boise.

Denver, July 4.—Frank Schmelzer, of Silverton, Colo., who was on Tuesday elected a member of the executive board of the Western Federation of Miners, jumped from a moving train last night and was killed. Schmelzer was on his way to Silverton for a short visit, prior to going to Boise to testify in the Haywood trial. In the suburbs of the city he discovered he was on the wrong train, and jumped off, calling to the conductor to throw his grip after him.

Endeavouring to Reach an Agreement With the Dominion Coal Co.

Montreal, July 4.—It was stated here today that the only director of the Dominion Iron and Steel Company who was opposed to the action of the president and board in securing an indefinite adjournment of the annual meeting of the shareholders of the company was Sir Henry Pellatt, of Toronto. Sir Henry has made no secret of his associations with the company, and in the peace party which is seeking to settle the dispute with the Dominion Coal Company out of the courts and was actively negotiating with the president, Jas. Ross, and the coal party along these lines. It was expected in steel circles that Sir Henry's resignation from the board would be forthcoming as a result of latest terms of events, but so far today nothing has been heard in that connection. lenced to death. This was afterwards commuted to life imprisonment. Yesterday he was released by the penitentiary authorities on parole. From 1885 to 1894, he was in the Dorchester, N.B., penitentiary. In 1894 he was transferred to Kingston. His conduct showed that he was not a criminal at heart. He proved a model prisoner.

Frequently he sought for release, but found his plans balked. Finally, Hon. Mr. Alesworth looked up the facts and decided to release him, and on Monday Gillies left for the United States. His family live at Charlotte town.

CLEVER MARSHAL CATCHES JOHN D. The Elusive Millionaire Served With Subpoena as Result of a Ruse.

Pittsfield, Mass., July 3.—John D. Rockefeller accepted service in person of the subpoena issued by Judge Landis, of the federal court of Chicago, at the summer home of his son-in-law, E. Parmelee Prentice, in this city, today.

The subpoena directs Mr. Rockefeller to appear before the federal court of Chicago July 6.

Service was effected, according to Deputy Marshal Frink, by a ruse on his part. The deputy marshal explained later that he was not satisfied with the conditions of affairs at Mr. Prentice's estate as he found them on an earlier visit today, and after apparently leaving Pittsburg for his home in North Adams, he returned unexpectedly to Taconic farm, the Prentice estate. He saw Mr. Rockefeller sitting on the front piazza. Mr. Rockefeller greeted his visitor with a smile and accepted service in person. He said that he had not been trying to evade service, but he did not exactly understand what was wanted of him.

After accepting service Deputy Frink said Mr. Rockefeller shook hands with the deputy, and expressed pleasure at meeting him.

THE LAND WAR IN IRELAND
Object Is To Force Cutting Up of the Land for Cultivation.

Dublin, July 3.—The new land war in Ireland is carried on with unabated vigor, and up to date the agitators have been the winners. The blaze was started on a single grazing farm, and since then it has spread into five or six counties, and every day shows that the revolt is increasing in seriousness.

One result of the activity has been a considerable strengthening of the United Irish League, which had nearly died out through having nothing to do. Since the anti-grazing war began organizers have been around in the country districts and recruits are pouring into the organization.

I have just returned from a tour in the west and have witnessed several of the grazing ranches and the move the cattle from them, driving them to the houses of their owners, however far they may be away, and surrendering them.

No Violence Used.
No violence is used beyond the urging necessary to keep a herd of cattle in motion, and there have been few collisions with the police, since the officers of the law are not numerous enough to stop the proceedings and content themselves with warning the people that they are committing an illegal act, and taking down the names of the leaders, whom they mark for prosecution.

In a few instances the cattle have been placed again upon the ranches, where they graze, surrounded by armed constables; but in the majority of cases the farms have been left derelict, and the grass upon them has grown almost leg high. When the graziers surrender, the people's representatives write to the land commission in Dublin urging the Government authorities to have the farms surveyed and parceled out among the peasants, and the land department has promised to look into the matter.

In the disturbed districts it is impossible to drive a team without having a number of policemen after one. I spent several days driving through the counties of Roscommon and Galway, and when I came into the neighborhood of grazing ranches Royal Irish constabulary men mounted on bicycles seemed to spring out of the ground.

They did not challenge. They simply rode after my car, remaining at a distance of about a dozen yards. When I stopped they stopped, and when I moved on they followed. It was impossible to escape from their surveillance.

Constabulary Is Stationed.
Bodies of constabulary were here and there stationed around the boundaries of the ranches and scouts and outposts were placed in commanding positions ready to signal to the main body the approach of the people. The police posts are like so many military camps in an enemy's country. The main body take turns at remaining under canvas and all around are eyes and ears of the army watching and listening for the coming of the enemy.

The government people in Dublin Castle recognize that they are in a bad corner. The agitation is at the moment extremely serious and it is certain that it will spread enormously. The authorities admit that it must be put down at all costs; yet they cannot combat it without resorting to measures that will cause the Irish people to break with them.

DIVISION OF VANDERBILT GOLD

Youngest Daughter Gets $12,500,000 Upon Attaining Her Majority.

New York, July 3.—It was made known yesterday that the extensive festivities now being arranged at The Breakers, the Newport home of Mrs. Alice G. Vanderbilt, next month, will be in conjunction with the distribution of one of America's greatest fortunes.

On the date of the fete Miss Gladys Moore Vanderbilt attains her legal age, and under her father's will comes into absolute possession of the millions left in trust for her.

Miss Vanderbilt is the youngest of the five direct heirs to the vast fortune accumulated by the third head of the house of Vanderbilt.

The Cornelius Vanderbilt fortune was estimated in value seven years ago, when the will was filed, variously at from $80,000,000 to $120,000,000. Experts who have kept track of the fluctuations in securities, such as make up the bulk of the wealth, say that aside from the real estate holdings the estate is worth at least ten per cent more than it represented at the time of Mr. Vanderbilt's death.

Will Be a $12,500,000 Heiress.

Incidentally Miss Gladys Vanderbilt will probably be in her own right a richly eligible woman in America. The direct inheritance of $12,500,000 received under the will, with accrued income, has been so skillfully manipulated by the executors that it is said to represent now approximately $10,000,000. Added to this is a one-fourth interest in the estate of her mother, for her mother, Mrs. Alice G. Vanderbilt, died before her natural life. This will conservatively bring the fortune of Miss Vanderbilt to $12,500,000.

A large force of clerks and accountants have been busy for many weeks at the offices of the Vanderbilt estate, Forty-second street and Madison avenue, making preparations for the distribution of the stupendous fortune. Mr. E. V. W. Rossiter, vice-president of the New York Central, the executor under whose direction the work is being done, admitted yesterday that the task was not nearly completed.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, jun., the eldest of the five heirs, whose inheritance of $1,500,000 under the will was considered a mere pittance compared with the fortunes received by his children, will not benefit by his settlement. The $1,000,000 given to him shortly after the death of the senior Vanderbilt by his brother, Alfred Gwynne, who got the lion's share, was understood at that time to be all that he was to expect.

Brother's and Sister's Share.

Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, who was Gertrude Vanderbilt, and Reginald C. Vanderbilt, like Cornelius, Jr., have but little coming to them at this time save surplus accumulations from legacies to beneficiaries which were never paid by the executors on account of the death of the legatees of for other cause.

Reginald will get, it is officially said, approximately $2,500,000. His sister, Mrs. Whitney, will receive much less than a million. Under the will the inheritance of these two children, which amounted to the same as that now to be received by Gladys, was paid when they became of legal age.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt, the present recognized head of the family, who as the favored son has already received far more of the fortune left by his father than the other children, will at the forthcoming distribution get even more than his sister Gladys.

The penalty that Cornelius, jun., paid for marrying Miss Grace Wilson is again brought to public attention by this final division of the Vanderbilt fortune. Alfred, his youngest brother, was named in his stead as heir to the residuary estate, which is valued now at more than $25,000,000. The will provides that at the death of the testator Alfred should receive, in addition to the Oakland Farm at South Portland, R. I., with all buildings, furniture, live stock, etc., $7,500,000. The residuary estate was to be held in trust for him until he became thirty, at which time he was to be paid half of it outright. When he reaches thirty-five he is to receive the remainder.
