NOMINATED BY PROGRESSIVES FOR PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS

Last Day of the Bull Moose Convention Proves a Glorious One for the Rough-Riding Colonel.

OVATION FORTY-FIVE MINUTES LONG FOLLOWS SELECTION OF CANDIDATE

All Precedent of Party Conventions Broken, Nominees Being Notified at Once, and Making Speeches of Acceptance-Little Excitement Outside the Coliseum.

[Special Correspondence of The Advertiser by H. F. Gadsby.] Chicago, Aug. 7 .- It is the last day of the convention. If this is the Bull Moose's funeral it is a glorious one. Flags, music, cheers and several thousand moo-oo-ing and pawing up the dirt. T. R. has just been nominated, and has fallen heir to a demonstration of 45 minutes. No need to describe that scene of madness again, you have heard it before. Of course it was a foregone conclusion that T. R. would be picked for first place. The party is his, for he made it. The platform is his, for he edited it. However, the faithful are overjoyed, and go crazy once more.

THE NOMINATION. Prendergast, of New York, has made the nomination speech. He had this speech in his system six weeks ago when he was a Roosevelt delegate to the Taft convention, but he could not get it out. It may be said of it that, being six weeks riper, it could not possibly have kept much longer. Judge Ben Lindsey, a giant-killing little David, who has himself flayed the beast, makes the first seconding speech. He says that great leaders must have great causes and vice versa, and that Theodore Roosevelt is as unselfish as the cosmos, or words to that effect. Also that he is the real thing in the way of candidates, and not a by-product of the Taft steam-roller.

CHEERS FOR MISS ADDAMS. Miss Jane Addams, of Hull-house settlement work fame, makes the second seconding speech, and gets a tremendous reception. Miss Addams carries a banner which advertises votes for women. Woman suffrage has a prominent position in the platform. The progressive party is very cordial to these fair guests. There are a million suffragist voters in the Middle West alone. After Jane Addams' speech there are eight more seconding speeches. It was planned originally to have three, but a convention that has no roll calls and no excuses and no bloodshed has time to burn, which might as well be burned in goodnatured noise and uplift speeches.

THE FEAST OF REASON.

So let the feast of reason go on. Every Roosevelt delegate is a sleeping Establishes Fake Dive in Tenvolcano of oratory. If he does not get his speech off here, he will print it in the home paper. So give eight more of them five minutes each and put that many out of pain. All these nominating speeches are alike. They hold the name back to the last minute, a trick which is known as suspense, and is supposed to be a literary act. They plaster the candidate with praise, recite his good deeds, and trace his invincible and incalculable greatness from the time he were short pants down to the present day.

ORATORICAL EXHIBITS.

Of course, the speakers are chosen with a view to the votes they will influence. Exhibit "A" is General Horatio King, of New York, soldier of the union, Grand Army veteran. He fought for his country once in a great crisis. He calls Theodore Roosevelt comrade. Well, that fixes that. Exhibit "B" consists of three colonels from the south. The Progressive party is to be the divine healer, as it were, of the breach between the north and the south. The Republicans can't get the south, and the Democrats keep it for themselves,

JOHNSON FOR VICE-PRESIDENT.

Governor Hiram Johnson, of California, is nominated as Vice-President. Judge Lindsey would have liked the honor, but he is only five feet six, and particularly as to the so-called white dergoing. might rattle around in a big ornamental job. As a practical altruist, T. R. prefers a fatter man with more weight, and so Governor Johnson gets the plum. More demonstration. More nominating speeches. More uproar. The convention now has a Galahad and a vice-Galahad to rejoice over. Against erally credited that through the estaball precedent, the candidates are notified of the convention choice at once. They do not even hesitate. Against all precedent they make five-minute acceptance speeches in which they press their crowns of thorns on their shining brows right out in open meeting. The thing has never been done so quickly before. It is against all precedent to cut out the official tommyrot of waiting a month to be waited on. Truly, this is a progressive party.

FIGHTING PRECEDENT.

Come to think of it, precedent is the monster it is fighting all along the line. Early in the day the Progressive party platform saw the light. In good time, which party is in office and has forgotten, it will take its place with those hardwed charters of freedom which are so greatly revered and so seldom consulted. It ought to be a good platform because it is based on the speech the Bull Moose made yesterday, and that speech has been in the resolutions committee's hands for a week. It has been quizzed by college professors and suffragettes and strong-arm bosses, but it stays put. The colonel does not alter a word of it. When he breaks with his old party he is going to make a thorough job of it. There's no use stacking half in and half out. You don't get any forward that way.

PLATFORM NOT NEW.

So the platform is Col. Roosevelt's speech boiled down to about three thousand words. Every word counts, it has to, because the colonel wants to lected by Clifford Doe, a detective who levels his meaning quite plain on every subject of human thought except was prominent in the Chicago vice make his meaning quite plain on every subject of human thought except trusts and the tariff. The platform reads just that way because if it reads any other way Col. Roosevelt would not be the candidate, and for the Bull Moose not to be the candidate of the party which he made with the breath of his nostrils is, as Mr. Euclid justly observes, absurd. The platform is not new, and it is not original, although the colonel thinks it is both. What he mistakes for noises that come from his own head are really mutterings of the people which he heard when he had his ear to the ground. That's leadershipfinding out what the people are saying, and then getting out in front and

GRABBED IDEAS.

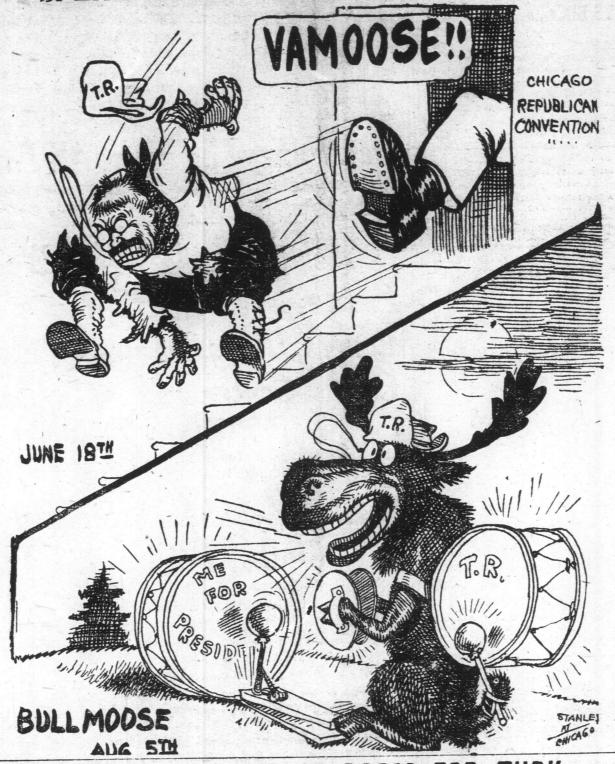

At any rate, the platform is an anthology of the best ideas Col. Roosevelt could select as a contributing editor of the Outbreak-I mean, Outlook-and wherever he saw them he took them, and was not particular about copyright. Some of the ideas are very good, and some are like a dollar umbrella, not worth stealing. On the whole, it is a pleasing mixture of Henry George, Lloyd George and George III., the George III. part of it being the coloner's stand-pat notions on trusts, currency and the tariff. It is a restatement in detail of humanitarian principles. You can't get rid of detail in these matters. If you could, the Bull Moose might say, simply: "What we need is, not riches. but contentment," and be elected on it.

ROOSEVELT'S PROSPECTS.

Now that Woodrow Wilson has entered the field does T. R. find himself as annecessary as a fifth wheel or a vermiform appendix? Does he feel that the tandscape has shifted and there isn't enough ground left to bury himself in?

That is hardly a fair question. The answer to it might be, yes or no. Theodore Roosevelt is not as naked as truth yet. He still has a few millions of Continued on Page Two.

New York Gambler Says Inspectors Took Tribute From Big Ones.

SAYS BECKER IS SQUARE

Police Graft "System" in New York Found To Have Many Ramifications.

New York, Aug. 7 .- District Attorney Whitman has learned that one of the gamblers on Lieut. Becker's graft list was Willie Shea, formerly a partner of Arnold Rothstein. Shea will be called before the grand jury to testify as to whether he paid Lieut. Becker $4,500 as protection money.

In Jack Rose's 38-page statement to the district attorney Shea was named as one of the contributors to the purse of the little ring of police offilals for whom Lieut. Becker labored. Investigation by Mr. Whitman brought out that Shea has been telling his friends that he did pay Becker blackmail, as Rose says, and that Becker "was the only square cop he ever had done business with."

According to Shea's story, a raid was made on his place after he had handed Becker $4,500 in cash. Rose and Shea both say that Shea was in-He did not dignant and aggrieved. expect ever to see his money again. But to his surprise, Becker himself alled on Shea a few days later, handed back the money and said: "Willie, here's your cash. You did not get a run for your money." Rose's Story Confirmed.

On information supplied by Rose Mr. Whitman will ask Shea whether or not he dealt with other police offi-cials than Becker. There is some ground for the district attorney's belief that at times Shea, in common with other gamblers on Becker's list, was forced to deal with uptown in-

Other corroboration of Jack Rose's statement as to the details of Becker's graft collection was obtained today by the district attorney. Two wit-nesses with whom Mr. Whitman talk-ed said that they had paid $1,000 a month apiece to an inspector whose name is already on Mr. Whitman's They told the district attorney that word had come to many of them that if they inform on certain police officials they will get what Rosenthal

Acting immediately upon the information contained in Rose's statement, the district attorney had before him half a dozen gamblers that Rose had named. They surprised the district attorney by their accurate cor-roboration of the details Rose himself gave. Their statements tallied almost exactly with Rose's statements. They said that Rose had come to them saying that he represented Becker, and that they had paid over to Rose sums ranging from $200 to $700 a month.
They bore out Rose also in saying that Lieut. Becker had other collectors. It ppears now that Becker did not put all of his trust in Rose. Asked to give an estimate as to about how much graft money went to the police in Manhattan, the witnesses generally agreed that Rose's figure of $2.500,000 was under the mark.

In addition to the word of mouth corroboration of Rose's story, the district attorney is securing hundreds of written statements implicating not nly Becker, out four or five other po-

A Good Time Now to Have Your Draperies and Furniture Slip Coverings Made

Judging from the number of orders we are receiving, slip covers for furniture are becoming more popular than ever. The advantages of such are being better understood. As well as protecting good covers, these serve to hide worn places, too, as they may be had in colors to harmonize with almost any surrounding. We make a specialty of Slip Covers for drawing-rooms, livingrooms and bedrooms, and will be pleased to submit materials and estimates, and strongly advise having these made now while our workrooms are not overtaxed with work and avoid disappointment later in the busy season.

The material popular for slip covers comes in white, cream and tan grounds, and prices range from 35c to $2.75 per yard. Pretty bedroom effects are obtained by using some of our charming designs in cretonnes for all bedroom decorations, valances, over-draperies, slip covers and dresser scarfs.

ROGERS IN CONTEMPT

Canadian Press.

Los Angeles, Aug. 7 .- When Counsel Earl Rogers, of the defence in the trial of Clarence S. Darrow, appeared in court today it was after a night in the county jail, to which he had been sentenced yesterday by Judge Hutton for contempt of court. With a half hour remaining of the judicial day after the imposition of the sentence, the associates of Rogers hurriedly made out application for his release on a temporary writ of habeas corpus, which was presented before Judge Sewell, of San Fran-cisco, temperarily sitting in the court of Presiding Judge Willis, of the su-

LOVE CURE FAILS

Boston Girl Engaged After Six Months at Grenfell Mission.

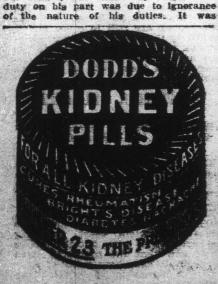

Boston, Aug. 7 .- Miss Amelia Forbes Vincent Club girl, daughter of the wealthy Malcolm Forbes, of Milton, gave up society life, love, romance and marriage to go to lonely Labrador to work as a nurse in the Grenfell Mis-to her home. She did not forget. The test failed.

The lure of Labrador was weake than the lure of love. Today Miss Forbes' engagement to young Raymond Emerson, grandson of the poet-philosopher, and a Harvard graduate, is announced. PERILOUS PLAYGROUNDS.

DEFENCE OF FRONTIER

Report That Canada and the United States May Conclude Agreement.

London, Aug. 7.-The Birmingham Post says that a letter received here from a responsible authority in Ottawa expresses the confident belief that negotiations between Canada and the United States will take place after Premier Borden's return for an agree-ment governing frontier defence. Such would require the assent of the Im-perial Government, but would in the end benefit the whole empire, while avoiding the opposition of foreign

LONDON, THURSDAY, AUG. 8.

A NATIONAL NUISANCE.

The Hon. Col. Sam. Hughes is gasconading again. A while ago he rattled his sabre at the Americans. Before a Vancouver audience he indulges in a heap of wild talk about the peril of a German invasion of Canada.

It is about time Col. Hughes were called to account by his keepers, if he has any, for such irresponsible ravings. Posing as a cabinet minister, he has not yet risen to the dignity of the office. His tongue is as unruly as ever No member of the British cabinet would venture to talk in this fashion. This habit of reckless insult to other countries ought to be dropped by the parvenu minister. It is scarcely less reprehensible that he goes on insulting the Liberal half of the Canadian people as unpatriotic, and now puts a similar stigma upon those of the Conservative remainder who may be unwilling or unpersuaded to submit to military conscription.

What is the test of loyalty in this country? Last fall those who wanted to sell in the American market were called disloyal. Now we are told that only those volunteering to bear arms against a bugaboo German invasion are the simon-pure patriots.

It is insulting to the intelligence of the people of Canada that such a man should address us as a cabinet minisassemblance of a man, more leathery lungs, more swollen assurance, and some gray hairs. His monstrous asserknown that Germany made a tentative seized. offer to stop the ship-building race in return for concessions of British colones," Who ever heard of such a thing except from Col. Hughes?

There is a danger just now of the whole British Empire being swept by colonial swashbucklers and statesmen of the type of Mr. Bonar Law and Sir Edward Carson into an orgy of militarism. Shall we allow these madcaps to stampeed us into conscription and If selfish interests pull keep our heads and turn a deaf ear to unreason

THE PANAMA CANAL.

The United States Senate has voted to exempt American vessels from Panama Canal tolls if engaged exclusively in the coastwise trade-i. e., trade between United States ports only. Some of the most distinguished members of the Senate, including Messrs, Root and Burton, asserted that treaty stipulating that the canal should be open to all nations on equal terms.

Against this view it was contended that as United States coastwise trade is confined to United States ships.

There would be no discrimination against other retions. But it is the condition of progress. British Liberalism was really strengthened when such measures as home rule and the Lloyd George budget drove out many aristocratic of the window.

The playbills which now adorn (?) disability on Canadian and on British walls and fences disappear, but in these ships would be much greater if the ex- days when practically everybody reads emption were extended to United of money. States vessels engaged in the deepsea trade between United States and foreign ports. The American merchant marine has been almost banished from the ocean, except in the coastwise trade, where it has a monopoly, but it would receive an impetus if American deep-sea vessels could go through the Panama Canal free of charge, while all other vessels were taxed.

So glaring a violation of national obligations finds few advocates. but it is proposed to circumvent the treaty by giving American deep-sea vessels a subsidy equal to the amount of the tolls; in other words, taking the tolls from them with one hand and returning them with the other. There is still a prospect that this dishonorable subterfuge will be rejected by the Senate. It would strike chiefly at the British mercantile marine, the world's carrier. The British Government could. of course, also refund the Panama tolls paid by British ships, but the burden would be heavy, and would involve discrimination against the Suez Canal, Britain's own property:

In extenuation of the Senate's action in exempting coastwise vessels was the cry that the great American easily do so by extending the exemption to the coastwise vessels of Canada. Mexico, and the Central and South American republics.

THE ALTERNATIVE TO RECI.

The denunciation of the Canadian reciprocity agreement by the new Progressive party will be acclaimed by some short-sighted Canadian partisans, who imagine that if the agreement is wiped off the slate in the United States the Liberals of this country will he dished.

The Liberals have tried to secure wider markets for the Canadian farmers as compensation for the tariff burdens they are asked to bear in the supposed interest of the mechanical industries of the country.

If, as a consequence of the rejection Liberal party will find other means of redressing the grievances of the farming community.

The first step will be a substantial increase of the British preference. The reciprocity agreement left the duties on manufactured products practically untouched. An extension of the British preference would involve reductions over a wide range, but something has to be done for the farmers.

LYRICS FROM THE WESTLAND

[By Special Arrangement With the Winnipeg Telegram.]

When I opened a new volume of Canadian verse, entitled "Lyrics from the Westland," by Miss Margaret A. Cawthorpe, of the Province of Saskatchewan, I naturally expected to find a great deal of western color. I knew that there would be something in praise of wheat and, sure enough, the first poem begins:

Oh, the fields and fields of ripening wheat, Rolling on to the far away; Those wide fields lie as seas of gold, Becalmed on a summer's day.

Then I fancied there would be something about the thousands of foreign-ers thronging into the West. Once more I was not desappointed, for the third poem, "The Immigrants," tells

Through the open gates of the West An endless host from distant shores; A murmur of tongues, a low-toned ceaseless, ceaseless moving throng. The poetess has been sitting on the station platform of her town in Sas-katchewan, and she has watched the faces pressed against the panes of the car windows,

The Frank and German pass along, The Jap and Russian join the throng; The Greeks and Latins, Chinese, too, And "Douks" and "Gals" pass in re;

There's swarthy brows, with raven And flaxen locks with faces fair.

There's fez and turban, scarf and And garments strange from every land.

Another expectation was gratified when I opened this collection of westtern lyrics. I found a poem entitled, 'Our Country." That is the orthodox thing for every Canadian poet to do, to sing lustily concerning the glories old man keeps on preaching, while of the Fatherland, Sometimes the poets begin with Jacques Cartier, by rank sometimes with the U. E. Loyalists, but Miss Cawthorpe goes away back to the beginning and tells how the Norseman told in his sagas the wonders of this verdant land; ong ere the dim eyes of our fathers These distant shores had yet scanned. Continuing the story, she says-

For long as it slept in the primitive, The Redman roamed through its wide vales: The coyote, the bear and the panther Crept by on their deep, lonely trails.

There are some benighted Ontario 'ole districts of London where you people who imagine that the coyote, couldn't find a 'ansom if you wanted the bear, and the panther are still creeping by on their deep, lonely trails, and are still waving their long (or short) bushy tails as they spring upon the defenceless wanderer through Saskatchewan; but the western land is now a part of civilized Canada. The Human Iceberg

[Copyright: 1912.]

"I am going with a gentleman for eight months," writes a nice little girl, "He calls to see me twice a week and claims he goes with no one else. "We will be sitting alone for a few hours at a time, but he never shows me any affection at all, nor has he ever told me he loved me, although he often speaks of marrying and what he intends to do when we get married.

"Don't you truly think if he loves me he would have to show it? I hear other girls talking about how their friends act, and it makes me feel very blue. Do you think it would be right for me to show him some affection? He gave me a very pretty diamond bracelet for Christmas, but he is as cold as an icicle in his actions."

One of the greatest tragedies that can befall a loving or lovable woman is to marry a human iceberg. She knows she would find no comfort, no return of emotion, if she went out and hugged a snow man.

She realizes that there would be no warmth in throwing her arms around a marble tombstone and pressing her cheek against it. Yet that is the kind of companionship she is choosing for life in marrying a cold-blooded man. If the future holds any joys for her she receives no kindred smiles from a man like this nice little girl describes.

THE BABY AND TROUBLE TIME By Winnifred Black.

[Copyright: 1912]

Dear Miss Black: Can a man love a baby when he gets angry because his wife objects to his playing with it and getting it excited (as it is baby's bedtime) when he gets home?

Also, does he love his wife when he would rather the baby would go to anyone but her?

He could get home earlier, if he wanted to, play with the baby before she got so tired, and it makes the mother cross, as it takes her all the evening to get the baby asleep and she has no chance to do anything else.

THE MOTHER.

Well, well, well—what a tempest in a teapot! So Daddie wants to play with the baby, and Mother thinks he ought not to think of such a thing—except at certain times—and nobody loves nobody, and nothnothing is right in the little homey flat.

Poor, little, worried, conscientious, tired out mother. I'd like to get hold of that big, stupid, bothersome hus-

I'd like to get hold of that big, stupid, bothersome husband of yours and box his ears. And after I had boxed them well I'd sit down and have a real heart-to-heart talk with him.

I'd say, "Look here, brother, you love that baby of yours. Don't you love him so hard that you simply can't let him alone, no matter what time of night it is when you see him; and you don't see why the baby's mother is such a crank about your playing with your own child.

"Well, you run down the block and stop in at the very first doctor's office the rest ladies of our land.

and ask him about it. "He'll tell you, and he'll tell you very quickly, too.

"If he's the right sort of doctor he'll give you a few facts about babies and what not to do with them that will make you dizzy. And the first thing he'll tell you is that a baby isn't a toy to amuse you; it is a human being with a set of nerves and a brain, and that baby will need that set of nerves and that brain when he grows up; and he won't have much of any left if you're going to play peek-a-boo and ketchy-ketchy with him whenever you want to amuse yourself

Laugh! Of course, the baby laughs. It would bough if you should start in Laugh: Of course, the baby laughs. It would fough it you should start in and tickle it to death—die laughing at that—but what of it? Can't you tell the difference between a real laugh of real fun and a poor, frightened, nervous, hysterical giggle? Well, it's time you learned.

Stop making a plaything of him and help make a man of him—a man you'll be proud of some glorious day.

And, another thing, that little wife you like to tease when you toss the bear in the six and laugh to see him gagen if you had the beadeche she's baby in the air and laugh to see him gasp, if you had the headache she's had ever since he was born you'd be in bed right now with a doctor on one side and a trained nurse on the other, thinking you were going to die before sundown

Stand it? Of course, she stands it. She's a woman. She has to stand it; but how are you helping her?

Love you! Of course, she does, just as much as you love her.

You are passing through the breakers now, both of you.

The first five years of marriage ought to be called "Trouble Time." The baby is a lot of trouble to her. You just have the fun of it and you don't If I were that little mother I think I'd have a bad headache the next time you waked that child up to play with it, and I'd run to the neighbor's to lie dewn, and then you'd have to get him to sleep yourself.

"Bye-bye, shut your little eyes"—not half so much fun as you thought an hour ago. "Bye-bye"—what, no signs of the sandman?—"Bye-bye, crying now: poor little tired nervous fellow"

Mean business, wasn't it-small business. Hardly worth while for a man and the father of someone that's going to be a man some day. Suppose you drop it right now, the foolish teasing, the boyish play. It's a man's world.

Be a man and live in it. And as for you, little mother, what foolish talk about whom e loves and

What was it you wore—blue, with a silver band in your hair? And the music—what was it you wore—olde, with a silver band in your nair? And the music—what was that waltz? How he could two-step, too. "Oh, You Great Big Beautiful Doll"; you sang the foolish song together as you danced, and how happy you were. How the world sang with you, the whole glorious, beautiful, light-hearted world.

And he walked home on air that night because you smiled when he asked you for the rose you wore; and you gave it to him. Why, it wasn't two years ago. He's the same man he was then, and you are the same woman, only things have happened. You've been very ill, and he's been worried about you, and things haven't run as smoothly at home as they might since baby

Kiddies' Interest Never Flags-The Play Festival.

The boys of the city had practically the run of the playgrounds yesterday merning, while their sisters splashed joyously at the swimming baths. There is apparently no waning in the attendance of the girls at the baths, for each Wednesday morning sees a crowd of eager little maldens awalting the opening of the doors at 9 o'clock.

The Play-Festival.

Preparations are going steadily for-ward for the big play-festival to be held here, it is expected, the latter part of this month. The instructors at the local recreation grounds are training the older boys in several athletic feats, and a contest for prizes will form part of the festival sports. Some exceedingly pretty folk-games are also being practiced by the kiddies, Another feature of the festival will be the awarding of a medal for the winning team in the series of ball games scheduled to be played between the various city schools.

Jim Delahanty Is Given Unconditional Release

Detroit, Aug. 8.—Jim Delahanty has ten days more life as a Tiger. Last night he was given notice of unconditional release by President Frank Navin. He is a free agent. He can play where he pleases.

Injuries have spoiled his usefulness in the major leagues. He was first hurt in 1910, when he had been a Tiger about a season. In 1911 he was again bothered with his knee, slowed up to an appreciable extent, often in pain when he made a quick move, and always liable to put himself out of the game by a sudden turn.

Detroit was fighting for a pennant, crippled by the loss of Gainer and the subsequent spiking of Moriarty. "Del' stuck it out and gave an exhibition of gameness that will long be remembered. He played at first and gave a more than creditable account of himself in a position to which he was unused.

The cinematograph competition is "Diable!" muttered the Prefect as he rose and began to pace nervously up and down the room. Certainly the affair of the evening did not reflect much credit upon either him or his men. In placing the capture of Girard in the hands of Duyell, he had felt that the man's escape was out of the question, yet the fellow had walked into the room, picked up the money and walked away, right under their very eyes, without anyone in the party, having been able so much as to buyell, his face very grave. "What have you to say, Monsieur?" he asked slowly. "It's too much for me," said the detective. "Most mysterious case I have ever known in my life. Absolutely incomplicable."

The cinematograph competition is worrying the Paris theatrical managers. Many playwrights, including Henri Lavedan, are finding it profitable to prepare moving picture scenarios. Vincent Capus, the dramatic author, says that if the cinematograph ever had any influence on the stage, it has destroyed this influence by sinking to the level of a Punch and Judy show and that there is no more relation between the cinematograph and the theatre than there is between the theatre and aviation. It is possible that the moving picture business has had an effect on the theatre attendance, but the regular theatres are tendance, but the regular theatres are tendance. worrying the Paris theatrical mantendance, but the regular theatres are notes, 3% per cent.

Of the numerous temporary loans made during the past six months, the following have tabulated by the Monetary Times:

Victoria — £320,000; 3 15-16 to 4%. Alberta Blamed.

When the Province of Alberta placed its six months' treasury bills through London bank at 4½ per cent, it was predicted that such a remarkable fig-ure would penalize every province, and city borrowing in London on similar security for temporary accommodation. That has proved correct. At the same time, six months bills of two Canadian cities and one western suburban city, whose identity is un-known, were simultaneously placed at 3% per cent. The city of Victoria piaced £322,000 treasury notes in London at this time. Notes aggregating £500,000 were offered and probably would have been able to sell the entire amount had it not been for the action of the province of Alberta. The city's fiscal agents refused to pay such a high rate of interest as that agreed to by Alberta. The Victoria loan was raised at a rate of interest ranging from 315-16 to 4½ per cent. It was necessary for the city to take some action in disposing of either notes or debentures, as they were cartheir bank.

Our governments have done little financing this year. Ontario in April placed provincial loans of $2,000,000 and $210,000 4 per cent bonds on the Canadian market. These are gradually being absorbed in Canada and the United States.

TWO SECTIONS TO COMPENSATION ACT

Intervening Period in Which to Draw Up Rates May Be Recommended.

RELIEF FOR EMPLOYEES

Sir William Meredith Would Alter the Present Law Until Scheme Becomes Operative.

Toronto, Aug. 8. — When Sir William Meredith makes his report to the Government on workmen's compensa-tion in presenting a draft bill, it is probable that he will recommend that such legislation as the House decides to pass come into force in two sections—one providing for the appointment of a commission to administer the act with power to draw up rate and plans for making collections for the state fund, and defining the different classes for compensation, and the other, to be proclaimed perhaps a year later, bring-ing the system itself into operation. This was made evident at the session held by the commissioner yesterday during the closing discussion upon a number of points connected with the legislative end of the question. While this means that at least a year will elapse after the next session of the Legislature before the workmen will begin to enjoy the benefits of statecontrolled compensation, another sug-gestion thrown out by the commissioner indicated a prospect that in the an act is passed and its provisions become operative, the workman who suffers injury will receive some help through the modification of the present law.

Sir William expressed the opinion that the Legislature could for that intervening period wipe out the defence of "common employment" and of "assumption of risk." He favored legislative action with regard to tributory negligence" as well.

Alter the Present Act.

"While I would not at present favor doing away with it entirely in the preperiod-whatever may be done when the act comes into force— it ought to be cut down," said Sir William. "Whether the doctrine of comparative negligence should be dopted or not is a question. where the accident has been caused entirely by the negligence of both parties then in assessing the damages he tribunal should have regard the extent to which each contributed.' Mr. F. W. Wegenast, counsel for the anadian Manufacturers' Association, was not quite prepared to admit that the present law was defective, a re-mark that the commissioner smilingly derided.

only thing I am quite clear about is that the present law is defective. I have already said that. "Well, we admit that—with certain ualifications," replied Mr. Wegenast. Defects of the Ohio Sstem.

Yesterday's session produced a few more suggestions from the Manufac-turers' Association, and incidentally a final set-to regarding contributions from employees towards the state funds. Mr. Wegenast, in continuing the presentation of the case for the employers, pointed out some of the disadvents case of the Objective Control of the Control Montreal, Aug. 7. — The Monetary disadvantages of the Ohio voluntary system, which had resulted in competition between the state system and the insurance companies, the latter this year has been far from smooth. cutting rates to a dangerous level to The congestion of the London market get business. To the commissioner's question if he would put all railway employees, trainmen, telegraph operators, etc., gether, Mr. Wegenast replied that this could be left to the administering commission to determine. The C. M. A. counsel recommended the creation of a "first aid" fund to provide for the injured workman for the 'waiting period" should one provided for in the act. It was his thought that this would cover not only expenses, etc., due to accidents, but sickness as well. The labor representatives became wary at once. They read into the proposal a scheme of the employers to secure contribution from the men Mr. W. H. Bancroft declared that the compensation law should go on the statute books without such "frills" as sickness insurance. With the compensation act assured the workmen would be ready to talk of joining the employers in sickness insurance. Mr. Wegenast replied with emphasis that he was not advocating sick insurance. that the Manufacturers' Association proposal was merely intended to cover the first weeks before an injured employee could claim compensation out of the general fund.

"Contibution" Back Again.

In further arguing for a contribu-tion from the employees, Mr. Wegen-ast stated that the employers would rather agree to compensation at the rate of from 60 to 65 per cent, with contributions from the workmen than to 50 per cent, without contributions. His claim, of course, was that the workmen having to contribute would go about their work more carefully, notes or debentures, as they were carbut the commissioner could not see their hank not paying into the state fund.

In winding up, Mr. Wegenast explained what the C. M. A. was preparent. ing to do toward accident prevention. Associations were being formed for this purpose in the various classes and he expressed the hope that these associations would be recognized in the new act and that provision would be made out of the state fund for the payment of inspectors.

May Help With the Act.

Before adjournment, Sir William ssured Mr. Wegenast and the labor representatives that after his return from studying the operation of the English and German acts, they would [Special to The Advertiser.] St. Thomas, Aug. 7.—A strike of Macedonian workmen at the C. P. R. of this Wabash crossing, just east city, made things interesting for C. P. R. Foreman Benner and some of the non-strikers Monday night and Tuesday. Some 20 of the strikers took possession of the construction cars, and the non-strikers were forced to take refuge in the woods for Monday night. As the strikers were armed and fired several shots, and threatened to kill the faithful ones, a call was sent to the St. Thomas police.

County Constable Young, of Fingal, and a couple of St. Thomas officers made a hurried trip to the construc-tion cars, but found the strikers had pital. vacated them, and had also taken to the woods. Attorney Job Harriman Said To Harriman, Cantrell was his ardent supporter and warm friend, until a recent splft among the California Socialists, when he became a bitter enemy.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 8.—The con-nection between the men who blew up the Times building in Los Angeles and Job Harriman, Socialist leader and labor attorney, overshadowed the main issue involved when the bribery trial of Clarence E. S. Darrow was resumed today.

Judge Hutton was expected to rule when court convened, on the admissibility of testimony by Edward Adams Cantrell, another Socialist leader, which the prosecution declared would serve the double purpose of impeaching Harriman and showing him as having had guilty knowledge of the per-petrators of the Times outrage. Cantrell and Harriman broke up their friendship some months ago. The impeachment question which had been denied by Harriman, and which was expected to be answered in the affirmative by Cantrell, should he court permit it, contained in substance the following allegations: That Harriman had said to Cantrell on the morning of Oct. 1 at San Luis Obispo, Cal.: "By God, Cantrell, the Times building has been dynamited. and something like twenty people kill-

THAN ARCTIC CIRCLE

Unprecedented Weather Conditions Upset Recreations of Royalty.

[Canadian Press.]
London, Aug. 8.—A striking fact about the extraordinary weather conditions which are ruining the harvests in England, is that places in the Arctic circle enjoyed a warmer temperature yesterday than London. The minimum in this city was 54 degrees, and at Bodo in Northern Norway it was 62 degrees. Inland heavy rains have fallen in all parts of the country. life. Everything will be of the old Japan of many centuries ago. Even the laborers who carry the evergreen trees and clerks who perform the minor duties will wear the old control of the country, causing the abandonment of cricket and also an important polo thurnament in Rugby. Unless conditions improve the King and Queen will curtail their visit to Counce and will curtail their visit to Cowes and return to Buckingham Palace. King

[Special to The Advertiser.] St. Thomas, Aug. 8.—Charles Lees, arrested by Constable Young, of Fingal, a few days ago at Shedden on a charge of vagrancy and remanded by Pelice Magistrate Hunt for inquiry was allowed to go by the magistrate yesterday on the understanding that he went to some friends of his near London. A ticket for his ride to Loncon was given him and a constable was sent to see him on the train. The magistrate, in the course of his investigation, found that Lees came from Derbyshire England, and that he ag been home twice. He has a brother in the British admiralty, and another in Saskatchewan.

The prisoner is able to write an excellent hand, but is the butt of young fellows with whom he comes into contact, the usual game being to ask for his hand and tell him that the lines showed that a certain girl loved him. The result was that Lees would pester the young woman named with his at-tentions till forced to desist.

HUGHES PREDICTS WAR WITH GERMANS

Militia Minister Also Declares There Is Danger From Invasion.

ALL TRAINED WANTS

Says Kaiser Must Be Shown That All Colonies Are With Mother Country.

Vancouver, Aug. 7.-At a well-attended public meeting held under the auspices of the Vancouver Conservative Club, Hon. Sam Hughes, minister of militia, declared his views on the defence of Canada and the Empire. He put the position in international politics as viewed from the standpoint of a Canain line with New Zealand, South Africa and Australia in combining with the Mother Country in a general scheme of defence, and Germany, from whom danger is to be expected, must be taught that the dominions were as one with Great Britain in defence, in the view of the colonel, who declared that it was the duty of every Canadian to learn to bear arms in the defence of his native land and the Empire. He had scathing remarks to make of the Loyalist who re-fused to be trained, and he declared that untrained Loyalists were a menace to

Earlier in the evening, Col. Hughes and met the Fenian Raid veterans, and numbers of the old soldiers were present, as well as members of the various militia corps of the city. It was to-wards the conclusion of his address that the colonel touched on the German peril. He had been dealing with militia training and had commented on the untrained Loyalist who preferred to show his patriotism by merely shouting for the Mever Underestimate Foe.

"They pooh-pooh the idea that this country will never be invaded," said the colonel.

"Gentlemen, never underestimate your foe. More unlikely things have happened. Remember that the British Empire is the mother of civil and religious liberty the world over. It stands for law and order and decent living; it is a trite saving that the British beyonet. is a trite saying that the British bayonet and the British missionary have reform-ed the world, but our great curse at pres-ent is apathy and laziness. Look at our crowded jalis—and we call ourselves civilized. Gentlemen, we are not more than half civilized today, and war is closer than you dream; the great perlis from Germany. Why? Because Germany. many must have colonies within a generation or she will begin to go down.
"She is building ships on borrowed money, and must seek new territory. She has large numbers of citizens in the South American countries, and there are only two fields where she can find needed outlet for her surplus population. One is along the South American seaboard, the other is in British colonies. It is well known that Germany made a tentative offer to stop shipbuilding in return for the concession of British colonies. But this will never happen so long as the old flag floats. There was grave danger last year. The world awoke one morning to find Germany established at Agadir, a port in Morocco. She meant to establish a naval base there, but Britain has large numbers of citizens in the South dir, a port in Morocco. She meant to establish a naval base there, but Britain told her to get out. For two days war was very near.

Lesson To Be Taught. "Germany has to be taught a lesson, and the lesson to be taught her is that Canada, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand are behind the mother country. We know that Germany was behind Kruger, and that there was a definite scheme to oust Great Britain from South Africa, but the fact that the colonles sprang to arms and salled from all quarters of the globe to the assistance of Britain caused the scheme to be frus-

Country."

Later Col. Hughes declared that there would be no liquor sold in canteens in the Dominion. "So long as our men are wearing his majesty's uniforms we are not going to act as bartenders," delared the minister.

HICKS---WOOD

A Quiet Wedding Ceremony in East

A quiet wedding took place at the home of Mr. Wm. Wood, 385 Glebe street, yesterday afternoon, when his daughter, Miss Mary Jane, became the bride of Mr. Fred O. Hicks, of Edmonton, Alberta. Rev. Dr. Manning was the officiating clergyman. The couple were assisted by Miss Diana Woods, sister of the bride, and Mr. J. Lazerte, of Medicine Hat, a friend of the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Hicks left for Edmonton last evening, where Mr. Hicks is science master in the Collegiate Institute.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Sarnia, Aug. 7.—Two young men currence illustrates the curious atti-gere deported by the immigration au-tude regarding certain phases of thorities today. Early this morning Grand Trunk Policeman Marshall noticed three men hanging around the tunnel yards. Later in the forenoon Mr. Marshall came down town on business, and meeting Provincial Detective Acton, mentioned the matter to him.
Shortly afterward the trio were seen walking down the street and were taken in charge by Mr. Acton, who turned them over to the immigra-tion inspector. Two of the three turned out to be college boys from the States hoboing their way from place to place during the summer vacation. The youths had already travelled over a considerable portion of New England and crossed into the Dominion somewhere near Maine. As they had no money in their pos-session it was necessary to send them back across the river to Port Huron The third member of the party was a young Englishman and a resident of Canada.
