

City of Brantford Welcomes His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught

GLORIOUS WEATHER FOR THE VISIT OF T.R.H. THE DUKE AND PRINCESS

Brantford in Holiday Attire For Occasion.

Address to be Presented at Grand Trunk Depot.

With glorious weather to-day Brantford officialdom is all ready to hobnob with royalty...

The city today has put on holiday attire. There is a profusion of union jacks all along the route...

Of necessity the visit of the Royal party will be of all too brief duration, and it must be remembered that the Duke is the prisoner of an itinerary schedule...

MAYOR SPENCE

Who extends the City's welcome to the royal party.

Telephone City. A time limit has been set on each stopping place...

After the visit the Duke and party will spend Sunday at Niagara Falls quietly.

Civic Address.

The following is the address which will be read by Mayor Spence: Field Marshall, His Royal Highness The Duke of Connaught and Strathearn, K.G., K.T., K.P., G.C.M.G., G.C.I.E., G.G.V.O., P.C.

As Mayor of the City of Brantford and on behalf of the citizens, I extend a most hearty welcome...

We are a most progressive, industrial centre and all our industries are actively engaged in carrying out their individual callings...

Greetings to Connaught

By CHAS. E. EDMONDS In the name of our King we greet you, And the Empire for which our boys fought, With hearts true and loyal we greet you, Your Royal Highness, Connaught.

'Twas the wish of your dear brother— The Peacemaker—England's King, That in Canada you represent him, Or his successor—our King.

In many lands you have sojourned, In the great metropolis, Africa, India, and the tropics, And we welcome you now to this.

To this city—Brantford, Canada, Our Canada, the brightest gem— The fairest far of the fairest, In Great Britain's diadem.

The love we had for Victoria, Victoria the Good, our own, The Queen we all loved—she passed, Then her son ascended the throne.

Our love then went to King Edward— The Peacemaker, England's King; For eight short years dry were our tears, Then they gushed forth with sorrowing.

"The King died at midnight," 'Twas flashed all over the earth, And England's King, with all his might, Now has but six feet of earth.

The whole world in sackcloth and ashes Lamented Great Britain's plight, King George, his son, with reign begun, Succeeded to Britain's might.

Our allegiance now we offer To you in King George's stead; Both on you and Patricia forever May Heaven's best blessing be shed.

May your sojourn among us be fruitful, Bearing fruit an hundred-fold; When we've voiced our hearts' fullest greeting, The half then has only been told.

May all nations on earth be brothers, Let war to the four winds be hurled; Place PEACE upon every banner, And Christianize the whole world.

And hasten the welcome millennium, When war with its horrors shall cease; In His name, the name of Immanuel, May we all greet the great Prince of Peace.

QUEEN MARY IS RESPONSIBLE FOR APPOINTMENT

Coming of Prince Alexander of Teck as Governor-General of Canada.

[By Special Wire to The Courier] MONTREAL, May 9.—A New York despatch to the Daily Mail quotes a London cable as follows:

The astuteness and shrewdness of Queen Mary has been again exhibited lately in the most practical fashion. It was entirely due to her influence that her brother, Prince Alexander of Teck, was appointed to the Governor-Generalship of Canada...

The Tecks have long been on Queen Mary's hands. Formerly she provided them with a suite at Windsor Castle, and in later years, when the Prince's children were growing up, the Queen gave the Prince the use of some rooms in a house near the castle...

HUERTA'S MEN DEPART TODAY FOR CANADA

But Uncle Sam Still Hustles Along With War Preparations.

[By Special Wire to The Courier] WASHINGTON, May 9.—With the departure of Huerta's mediation mission from Mexico City to-day, the South American envoys and government officials here were assured there would be no hitch in the Niagara Falls negotiations...

The town itself is built on a bed of lava and most of its streets are paved with the same material. The town which has a population of 140,000 lies to the south of Messina on the east coast of Sicily. Ever since its foundation in B.C. 729 it has been visited frequently by earthquakes...

Liberal Front Bencher Does Not Want Canada Governed By Royalty

[By Special Wire to The Courier] OTTAWA, May 9.—The House of Commons was somewhat startled yesterday afternoon when Hon. H. R. Emmerson, Liberal front bencher, and onetime Minister of Railways in the Laurier Government, expressed the hope that Prince Alexander of Teck would not come to Canada as Governor-General.

What Mr. Emmerson said in his own words, was this: "I would like to ask if the government have any official information in respect to the appointment of a Governor-General to succeed the present incumbent in the office. I see rumors in the press, and I presume that the people of Canada would like to know what foundation there is for them. I hope that the rumors are not true. Still I speak individually."

Premier Borden—"There has been a telegram received by H. R. H. the Governor-General announcing that His Majesty has been pleased to approve the appointment of Prince Alexander of Teck to succeed H. R. H. as Governor-General."

Following the incident in the House Mr. Emmerson gave further expression of his attitude in an interview. "I am not in favor of continuing the practice of having Canada governed by royalty" he said: "I do not think that such a practice is conducive to the social and material interests of the people. The idea of a superior society in a democratic country is encouraged, and this is not good for a young nation like Canada. Personally I have nothing to say against H. R. R. the Duke of Connaught, who is a splendid man in every respect, but I am against the appointment of Royalty as a practice, in raising social barriers and framing social distinctions that ought not to exist. I have no objection to a business man sent from the Old Country for the purpose of acting as titular head. That is a practice which I do not condemn, but we do not want foreign German Princes to rule over Canada. The sooner it is discontinued the better."

TERRIFIC EARTHQUAKE TAKES MANY LIVES

A Dozen Villages in Sicily Are Wiped Out—Quake Resembled That at Messina in 1908.

[By Special Wire to The Courier] CATANIA, Sicily, May 9.—A violent earthquake greatly resembling that at Messina in 1908 late last night destroyed about a dozen villages in this vicinity. No estimate of the number of casualties has yet been made, but it is known that the damage was enormous.

The great gravity of the disaster was not realized until this morning when reports came in from the surrounding country. The villages of Linera and Consentini were transformed into heaps of ruins. At Zifferana every house was destroyed.

Enormous damage was caused at Zanta Venerina. Roofs fell in and walls collapsed in the hamlets of Santa Maria Ammalati, Carico, Guadaria, Mangano, Santa Tecla and Bongiarico. The village of Santa Maria Vergene Calena was razed to the ground.

Fifty Killed. Fifty persons are known to have been killed in the destruction of the village of Linera, while among the ruins of Passopomo, Bongiarico and Malati, 30 bodies have been found up to the present.

Catania, the scene of last night's earthquake, has suffered probably more than any other city in the world from volcanic eruptions and earthquakes owing to its immediate vicinity to the Volcano Etna at whose foot it lies.

The town itself is built on a bed of lava and most of its streets are paved with the same material. The town which has a population of 140,000 lies to the south of Messina on the east coast of Sicily. Ever since its foundation in B.C. 729 it has been visited frequently by earthquakes...

In the earthquake and tidal wave at Catania and Catania in December 18, 1908 official figures gave the number of deaths as 77,283, but it was variously estimated that from 150,000 to 200,000 people lost their lives...

STORY OF THE CASE IS TOLD BY THE ATTORNEY

Royal Visitors Here Today

THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT

PRINCESS PATRICIA

Splendid Receptions Accorded the Royal Visitors This Morning.

[By Special Wire to The Courier] BERLIN, Ont., May 9.—Ideal weather conditions prevailed this morning for the reception tendered by the city of Berlin to Their Royal Highnesses, the Duke of Connaught and Princess Patricia, who arrived at the G.T.R. station from New Hamburg, where they spent the night. The city is wearing its holiday attire, and between 20,000 and 25,000 citizens of the twin cities greeted the royal party as they paraded through the streets to the city hall.

The guard of honor was composed of two companies of the 29th regiment of Galt, the Waterloo cadets and the Boy Scouts, who were inspected by the Duke immediately after his arrival. At the Grand Trunk depot Mayor W. D. Euler, presented the Duke with an illuminated address which tendered a sincere and loyal welcome to the governor-general and expressed the city's pleasure at having the opportunity to show His Royal Highness the uniformly well-kept homes of our people, an indication of thrift of character. "We should also like to give Your Royal Highness some conception of the importance and variety of the many large manufacturing industries, which have made the city of Berlin the chief industrial centre of the province."

Heartsrending Scenes. CATANIA, May 9.—Prefect Minervini of Catania and all the officials under his superintendence were called together at an early hour this morning and given orders to do all in their power to aid the afflicted inhabitants. They have since been working indefatigably together with all the soldiers in the district in an endeavor to rescue those still alive beneath the ruins and in extricating dead from the debris.

Increasing Interest in Becker Trial in New York.

Average Age of the Jurors is 45—Case Today.

[By Special Wire to The Courier] NEW YORK, May 9.—For a second time, Charles Becker, former lieutenant of police, charged with the murder of Herman Rosenthal, for which four men already have paid the death penalty, to-day heard the state's story of the plot to have Rosenthal, gambler, assassinated and listened to his own name hurled at the jury as the instigator of that plot.

General District Attorney Charles S. Whitman deviated but little from the opening statement of the people's case in the first trial of Becker. He told of the breaking of the alleged gambling combination between Rosenthal and Becker, who as head of the strong arm squad of the police department, had charge of the gambling raids. He charged that Becker suddenly desired to be rid of his former associate and to that end retained through others gunmen to murder the gambler on the eve of his expected visit to the district attorney when it was reported he planned to expose the head of the strong arm squad.

The jury that is to decide on the fate of Becker was filed late yesterday afternoon, but Justice Seabury ordered that the twenty on the panel of talesmen at adjournment should return today. The order was to provide for a vacancy in the jury should one occur before the presentation of evidence begin.

As constituted when court opened to-day the jury met with the approval of both Becker and his wife, both of whom passed upon each man as he was being examined. At the first trial Becker preferred men with families as jurors, but of the twelve men in the jury box to-day, six are unmarried. The average age of the present jury is under 45 years, which is younger than the previous jury.

The actual presentation of testimony by the prosecution will not begin before Monday, at which time it is expected that the District Attorney will call Jack Rose to the stand to tell the story of the alleged plot for the murder of Rosenthal.

Interest in the case increased to-day and large crowds stood in the corridors and in the streets outside the criminal court building.

TYRUS COBB MAKES JUMP DURING WEEK

Figures Wired Today Show Georgian Peach Climbing In Race.

[By Special Wire to The Courier] CHICAGO, May 9.—Ty Cobb jumped from thirty-eighth place to thirteenth place among the American League batters this week, according to averages published here to-day. Including last Wednesday's game, the Detroit star has a percentage of .307 as against .240 which the records showed for him last week. His rival, Joe Jackson, of Cleveland, has taken the lead, batting at a rate of .414. Then in the next dozen come: Wood, Cleveland, .412; Crawford, Detroit, .408; E. Foster, Washington, .397; Lelivelt, Cleveland, .346; Williams, St. Louis, .345; C. Walker, St. Louis, .333; Barry, Philadelphia, .325; Demmitt, Chicago, .324; Shotton, St. Louis, .320; Burns, Detroit, .316; McInnis, Philadelphia, .310; Philadelphia leads in cub batting with .259 and Cleveland is leading base stealer with Cleveland leading base stealer with 11 to his credit.

Art Phelan of Chicago and Reals Becker of Philadelphia are tied for first in the National League with .50 each.

High tension again marked the relations between the United States and Mexico.

If You Don't Happen to Go to Church Don't Scoff at Those Who Do

If you don't care to join the ever increasing GO TO CHURCH throng DON'T BE A SCOFFER. Words are inadequate to describe the man who seeks to ridicule or make a jest of the uplift GO TO CHURCH movement. He who finds in it a target for his cheap wit should stop and think what the world today would be without churches. If you don't care to help along the movement don't decry it.

THIS GO TO CHURCH MOVEMENT IS A WINNER. IT IS SPREADING LIKE A PRAIRIE FIRE. IN THIS THE MOST MATERIAL AGE IT IS GRIPPING THE BIG MEN OF THE COUNTRY. THEY SEE THAT IT IS A FORCE FOR GOOD NOT ONLY TO THE INDIVIDUAL, BUT TO THE NATION.

If the man who scoffs at the GO TO CHURCH movement could see himself as others do he would realize what a mistake he is making. The GO TO CHURCH movement is a serious, broad minded proposition. It will not be denied. In every city, town and hamlet in the United States there is a genuine religious awakening. It is not confined to any class or sect.

IT IS PLAIN THAT THERE NEVER WAS A TIME WHEN RELIGION WAS REALLY DEAD EVEN AMONG THE WORST. IT WAS SIMPLY SLUMBERING. IT REQUIRED AN AWAKENING. AS IT GRADUALLY DAWNED THAT THE CHURCHES WERE BEING EMPTIED AND THAT FACT WAS BROUGHT TO THE MINDS OF THE PEOPLE, THEY WERE AROUSED.

The GO TO CHURCH call found a quick and powerful response. As the call became generally disseminated there was a magnificent advance on the house of God. If you haven't joined the throng do it at once. If you have a social engagement for next Sunday break it for an engagement with God. If you have arranged for an auto drive, a game of golf or some other form of recreation remember that you ought to serve God. Will you serve him? You will.

ST. ANDREW'S CHOIR AT HOME

Very Jolly Affair Was Held Last Evening in the School Room.

One of the most pleasant affairs that has ever taken place at St. Andrew's church, occurred last night when the choir gave their annual 'At Home.' That it was a success goes without saying. The tone of the whole gathering was cheery and a great note of decorous mirth was evident. Amid artistic and exquisitely decorated surroundings a banquet, right royal, was dispensed. It was one of the best. The advice of the programme 'Let us be comfortable' was taken and an excellent program of speeches, toasts and musical numbers was given.

In a brief opening speech Rev. J.W. Gordon said the annual supper of the choir of St. Andrew's was one of the features of their church life. It was a significant feature and he appreciated the services of a good choir. There was a great source of support. There was a very harmonious note running through St. Andrew's choir owing to the tactfulness of Mr. Davies, the conductor and to the thoughtfulness of the members. The evening was one for pleasure and he would not occupy them with a long speech and he gracefully concluded a charming oration. Mr. J. J. Hurley, speaking upon what membership in St. Andrew's stood for, said it meant faithfulness in attendance not once but all the year round. It meant loyalty to the church and genuineness in contribution. It stood for a high ideal of church life. The Ladies' of St. Andrew's were the subject of complimentary comment by Mr. F. Fraser. Speaking recently, he recalled his early memories of the church and said that in all the years the ladies had ever increased the respect he had always had for them.

For the entertainment of the happy throng, Messrs K. Tennant, J. Anderson, A. Graham, A. McWhitney, contributed splendid individual piano, violin and song solos and the duet by Miss Johnson and J. Anderson was up to their usual good standard. Messrs. Banner, Wallace, Johnson and Rowan form an admirable quartette and were greatly appreciated, while the Messrs. Chamberlain, Davies and Anderson was on less applauded. Prayer by the Rev. Mr. Gordon and the National Anthem brought to a close an evening of good cheer.

The Universal Badge of Safety

(From the Cleveland Press)

At the height of the crisis in the City of Mexico before the warships sent ashore at Vera Cruz, an American, travelling on business, stopped at his country's embassy on the way from the railway station to a hotel.

"Don't let the natives know you're an American," an attendant warned him. "Better register as from London. And here, wear this"—and the attendant pinned on his coat lapel a miniature of the Union Jack.

The ruse worked. The man passed to and fro among the excited natives without being molested, and having completed his errand, left in perfect safety.

"You've got to hand it to John Bull for at least one thing—he has made his flag feared everywhere, if not everywhere respected."

MISS CORA GOULD LEAVING Y.W.C.A.

The Monthly Meeting of Directorate Was Held Friday Afternoon.

The monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y. W. C. A. took place yesterday afternoon when many matters were discussed and disposed of. Final arrangements were made for the holding of the annual meeting to be held on Friday, May 15 to which all members of the association will be invited.

The report of the nominating committee was very satisfactory and the whole of last year's officers were re-elected, which includes Mrs. John Ott as president.

The resignation of Miss Cora Gould was accepted, with great regret by the entire directorate. Miss Gould, who was educational secretary, may open a private studio in the city next season for her lessons in expression, which has proved so popular at the Y. M. C. A.

Further arrangements were reported by the committee that has in hand the matter of a summer cottage for Brantford girls. Also included in the report of Miss Best, general secretary was the visit of Dr. Margaret Patterson of Toronto, who to-night will address the 'I Will Trust Club' and at the same time open the ten day allotted to the club for the raising of a sum to send to the Foreign Missionary Society. The girls of the club have promised every year to give a donation to this good work and they are now on the eve of another endeavor. On the 21st the effort will close with a grand Foreign Missionary Pageant which will be taken part in by some fifty girls.

This concluded the business of the sitting and the gathering was formally adjourned.

Military Notes

25th Brant Dragoons

Much dissatisfaction was evident among the men of the 25th Dragoons last night and it is to be feared that some wholesale resignations are impending.

After drilling for their part as an escort, and in many cases going to the expense of having equipment nickled so that it would be in first class shape to-day, the men have found their part in the reception curtailed, and a lack of officers and N. C.'s to explain these somewhat disheartening occurrences.

Some explanations are surely forthcoming.

MOOSEHEART SAD IN FIRST FUNERAL

Impressive Services Mark Burial of Little Ruby Lerstrem and Dedication of Cemetery.

BATAVIA, Ill., May 9.—The cemetery at Mooseheart was dedicated yesterday afternoon when Ruby Lerstrem, the little girl who died at the big Moose school Thursday night, was laid in her final resting place with impressive exercises. This cemetery is about a mile from the main entrance to Mooseheart and is in a picturesque spot, with many large shade trees standing guard about the little grave.

The funeral was largely attended. The members of Mooseheart Lodge, No. O. and the Junior Moose and L. O. O. M. No. 682, from Batavia, attended in a body. The Rev. Philip Thelander officiated. The services at the grave were under the auspices of Mooseheart Lodge No. O. This was an unusually sad day at Mooseheart. Like a big family officers and children mourned, as Ruby was one of the many bright little children that have revelled in this happy place. She had been ill with heart trouble that developed into dropsy for some months following her arrival from Beloit, Wis.

A militant suffragette was sentenced to a year in prison for arson.

DARKEN GRAY HAIR, LOOK YOUNG, PRETTY

Grandma's Recipe of Sage Tea and Sol-jhur Darkens so Naturally That Nobody Can Tell.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray is all gone and after a few applications or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy. PRICES ON THE LOCAL MARKET

There was a big attendance at the weekly market today, and business was brisk. There were few changes in the prices, but a lot of goods changed hands. Eggs were down in price again, and sold at 20 and 22 cents a dozen.

There was an abundance of garden stuff offered. Rhubarb sold at 5 cents a bunch, as did green onions. Lettuce sold from 8c to 15c a bunch. There were few changes in the meat prices. Beef roasts sold at 14c and 16c a pound, a slight drop from last week. Pork dropped one cent in price and sold at 14c and 16c a pound.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Land Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

Pre-emption—A homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section along side his homestead. Price $200 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent), and cultivate 50 acres extra.

Homesteader who has exhausted his homestead rights and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts, price $200 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 30 acres and erect a house worth $2000.

PLAY BALL

The fact is self-evident that baseball is to be the national game of Canada. It is that already in Ontario, and will undoubtedly spread to other provinces in a like manner. A game of lacrosse between first-class teams is, to many, a much more spectacular and exciting spectacle, but rough-house tactics between professional players became too general. The average individual doesn't pay money to see that kind of thing. That the pastime should last, and will last, is certain, but not in any sense to its former extent.
 Baseball is run to a system. It does not begin to take the time of a cricket match, grand game though that is, and it has the advantage over lacrosse that it is continuous, and that there is not the inevitable result of mix-ups which are bound to occur in any diversion wherein players with any form of stick engage in close personal checking. Moreover, there are very many fine points to be observed on the diamond, and the participants are kept in constant training the season through, with the result of quick-witted action, unsurpassed fielding and general and swift excellence.
 Some people think that the game had its origin in English rounds, but if so, our neighbors have so changed and improved matters as to make it practically their own invention, so to speak.
 It was not until 1857, even in the States, that a general code of rules was established. Prior to that year it was played in different ways in different localities. Since then it represents an investment across the border of many millions, with salaries in the big leagues running anywhere from $3,000 to—as in the case of Ty Cobb and Speaker, respectively—$20,000 and $18,000. In fact, the infield developed by Connie Mack in connection with the famous Philadelphia team is commonly spoken of as "the hundred thousand dollar infield," not in the matter of salaries, of course, but as an indication of their value. That the sport should have become so popular that even in a place the size of Brantford a salary and expense account of some $20,000 can be faced, is to say the least of it, remarkable. It is to be hoped that Mr. T. J. Nelson and those associated with him, who have had the pluck to take hold here, will have a most successful season. They are providing a clean diversion, hitherto at a financial loss, and they should receive the hearty support of citizens.

CALGARY'S GOOD EXAMPLE

Calgary some time ago very wisely appointed a town-planning commission. They decided to engage an English expert in the person of Mr. Thomas Mawson, and after months of work he has submitted a voluminous report, replete with plates, drawings and diagrams. Among other things, he says:
 "City planning is not the attempt to pull down your city and rebuild it at ruinous expense. It is merely deciding what you would like to have done when you get the chance, so that when the chance does come, little by little, you may make the city plan conform to your ideals.
 "I would say we have shown nothing on our plans, and we have not before you no tasks which are not eminently practicable. Other towns and cities have attacked and conquered greater problems than any of those which face you at the present time. Where we propose the demolition of a few Chinese shacks to make way for your civic centre, Cardiff and Exeter are clearing away old and valuable buildings, including several churches, to make such a centre possible.
 "Where we have shown diagonal routes carved through a collection of shacks and other property which cannot have a life of more than twenty years, London has driven Kingsway through half a mile of the most densely-populated area in the world, and even provincial towns like Hull and Sheffield have undertaken street widenings which involve much more work than would have been necessary had we proposed to you that you should widen Eighth avenue to double its present breadth from end to end.
 "If you bear in mind what I have so often pointed out, viz., that the scheme can only mature very gradually, all appearance of financial impracticability will disappear."
 A Calgary paper states that the plans had not been in the City Hall 48 hours before they proved of practical use.
 With regard to the above matter, it is satisfactory to know that the Brantford Park Commissioners, who have already done such excellent work, some time ago engaged another expert, Mr. Dunnington-Grubb, to also prepare illustrated plans with regard to this city. In the average centre a great proportion of the people spend all their lives, and it is an excellent thing to have the surroundings as pleasing as human device can make them.

A TENSE PERIOD.
 The situation between the United States and Mexico is becoming more and more acute. President Wilson and his colleagues naturally do not want war, and it maybe few regret that an apology was not deemed sufficient for the arrest of some marines on the part of irresponsibles. The Mexicans, for the most part, have a mixture of Indian and Spanish blood in their veins, and the combination makes for vicious fighters of the guerilla sort. The New York Globe, during the course of a well-thought-out article, reaches these sensible conclusions:
 "It is sufficiently clear that an advance on Mexico will not result in the elimination of Huerta or the pacification of Mexico. It will strengthen Huerta's hold on Mexico, and even though Mexico City should be occupied by our troops, Mexico would not be pacified. The war, the more destructive because of its guerilla character, might go on for years.
 "It is thus clear that the only rational hope of an early pacification of Mexico is in the success of the Constitutionalists. Huerta has not been able to restore peace to Mexico. We can't, because of the antipathy of all Mexicans to us. The Constitutionalists may also fail, but there is a chance that they will succeed. Order has been re-established in the territory they control.
 "Thus, unless Huerta is willing to quit, it is not to the interest of the country, or of Mexico, or of the world to have the Constitutionalists suspend their campaign against Huerta. By refusing to join in the armistice they have shown that their eye is still fastened on the proper objective. Their acceptance of the principle of mediation was merely that it might open the way to securing the recognition of their belligerency.
 "If the belligerency of the Constitutionalists were recognized by this country it would not be necessary to worry about the results of the mediation. The Mexicans themselves would attend to Huerta."

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Royal weather.
 Eligibles should take notice that President Wilson still has one daughter left.
 New Jersey doctors are making a new chin for a woman. In other cases there is no doubt they might, to advantage, take some off.
 It having been shown that the alleged unknown river reported to be discovered by Roosevelt in Brazil is already on the map, it will now be up to Teddy to say that he put it there.
 It is just fifty-four years since Brantford first welcomed royalty in the person of the late King Edward, then Prince of Wales. And by the same token there are quite a few left here yet who remember that function.
 A British ethnological expert during an address to the London society showed that certain styles of 3500 B.C. are still in vogue. This will account for some of the toppers on view in our good burgh this afternoon.
 There was a move at the National Council of women now in session at Rome to have the Countess of Aberdeen, who has been president for twenty years, replaced by someone else. By a large majority she was elected for another five years, and afterwards told the meeting that she would have preferred to retire. There must be quite a wily streak in her make up.

THE HANDICAP.
 Oh, youthful guys, if you would rise, your breath you'll never tarnish with pint or quart of any sort of good old coffin varnish. When you are dry you'll shun old rye, and round the hydrant frolic; there's naught in town will keep you down like flagons alcoholic. When trade is stale and merchants quail, the grocers and the drapers, the clerks who drink the old red ink first get their walking papers. When Railways fire the men they hire, and tell them they must travel, the ones who slug the old brown jug are first to hit the gravel. When merchants say "To raise the pay of clerks we have a notion" the ones who use the dark red booze are last to get promotion. When there's demand throughout the land for husky men and handy, employers say, "Oh, fade away," to those who smell of brandy. Where'er he goes a million woes surround the chronic boozer; the men who pay for work all say, "We want no pickled snoozer." The lovely maid says: "I'm afraid," when drinkers come to court her; so, youthful jays, improve your ways, and dodge the ale and porter.

 is sufficient to warrant their superiority and good workmanship, made and assembled by a superior class of artisans, all true and loyal subjects of His Majesty.
 We possess fine public schools many parks and play grounds, some monuments of note have been placed in our public parks. A most magnificent one stands in Victoria Park erected to the memory of Captain Joseph Brant (Theyendanequa) who was a loyal and true subject to the British Crown many long years ago, who with his allies, the Six Nations Indians, took up lands on the Grand River, then called the Ouse, and settled at the Mohawk Village, close to the new City of Brantford. At this Indian Settlement is the oldest Protestant church in Ontario, "His Majesty's chapel to the Mohawks," built in 1784, Brantford gets its name from the fact that the place was first known as Brant's Ford, hence Brantford.
 "This community is also known as 'The Telephone City' for the fact that in the near vicinity that great invention was thought out, and that between this city and the village of Mt. Pleasant, near which Professor Graham Bell lived for many years, the first experimental line was installed, over which the human voice was carried for any distance in connection with an instrument which has now become a world factor. The Bell Homestead is now a public park, and is erected in this city to commemorate what is one of the most important discoveries of the age, and in reserving honor of Dr. Graham Bell.
 A monument stands in Jubilee Terrace to the memory of the brave ones from Brantford who lost their lives in defence of the Empire in South Africa.
 We are a railroad centre having both steam and electric roads with the prospect of more in the very near future and financially and progressively, think we hold first place among the smaller cities of our Dominion.
 Surrounding us we have the very rich County of Brant with the important town of Paris only a few miles away, and numerous small villages together with most prosperous farms, all peopled by happy, loyal and contented residents.
 When you were pleased to pay a passing visit in 1913 it was with regret that we referred to the indisposition of Her Royal Highness, Duchess of Connaught. We trust and hope Her restoration to health will be permanent, and that she may be long spared to continue the gracious and kindly help to you in the high position which you both jointly, and so efficiently maintain.
 The guard of honor from the Dufferin Rifles is one of the smartest bodies of light infantry that has been seen on parade since the inception of militia.
 Under command of Capt. M. Colquhoun, and Lieuts. Seccord and Fraser, it looks very fine and has a soldierly deportment that owes something to the twinkling of medal men throughout the ranks. Few can see such a body and not feel that criticized as the militia may be, the training and morale imparted even under its short service regime, can count for something.
 There is a dapper and quite a K. R. R. touch in the black uniforms, fitting very closely and white Wolsey helmets.
 Commentary to all concerned, and reflecting the esprit de corps which permeates the regiment from Colonel downward, in every sense a distinction the Canadian militia gains much by the turn out on parade to-day.
 Their appearance and keenness recalls the days of 1900 when Ontario sent a contingent to South Africa, that must be recalled to memory when one sees the 38th parade their picked men as it does to-day.
 There is in the movement a splendid enthusiasm, a growing esprit de corps, and officers and men have shown to-day that the 38th is holding its own and taking a part if not in the lead, at least second to none in Canadian military records.

Birthdays of Note

SATURDAY, MAY NINTH

This is the natal day of President George C. Creelman, head of the Ontario Agriculture College, Guelph, and one of the foremost agricultural educationalists in America. He was born in Collingwood forty-five years ago and was among the first students of the institution over which he now presides. On graduation he went to the United States, where he became a professor in the Mississippi Agricultural College. Returning to Canada in 1897 he was made superintendent of farmers' institutes, a position which he filled most acceptably owing to the gentleness of his character. He was appointed to his present position just ten years ago. Big, jovial, wholesome, he is the life of any party in which he is included, and through his abundant energy he is doing much for the improvement of Canadian agriculture.
 Also born to-day:—
 Hon. W. A. Charlton, Toronto, born New York State, 1841.
 W. S. Dingman, Stratford, born Lambton County, 1859.
 J. J. McArthur, Ottawa, born Aylmer, P.Q., 1856.
 D. W. Robb, Amherst, N. S., born Amherst, 1856.

Western Ontario. Following the presentation of bouquets from the city, the Sons of England, and the Daughters of the Empire, to Princess Patricia, the members of the various civic bodies were introduced to the Duke, after which the ducal party proceeded to Victoria Park, where a tree was planted near the Victoria monument. The party was then taken for an automobile drive through Berlin and Waterloo previous to departing for Galt at 11.45 a.m.
H. R. H. at Galt.
 GALT, Ont., May 9.—With the principal streets gaily decorated and flags flying from every important building, Galt to-day welcomed the Duke of Connaught and Princess Patricia. Promptly at 2.30 the royal train drew into the Grand Trunk station and the ducal party was greeted by Mayor Buchanan and members of the town council. After the Duke had inspected the guard of honor of the 29th Regiment, the party proceeded in automobiles to Victoria Park where a thousand school children sang the National Anthem on their arrival. A guard of honor from the Collegiate Institute Cadet corps was on duty here.
 In the address of welcome presented by Mayor Buchanan, the Duke was assured that his visit would strengthen, if that were possible, the loyalty of the people of this community to his majesty, the King, and the British Empire.

Had Rheumatism For Twelve Years

FOUND A QUICK CURE FOR DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.
 Mrs. George Grasser After Long Years of Suffering Tells How She Found Health and Comfort.
 SOUTHAMPTON, Ont., May 8.—After suffering from Rheumatism for twelve years, Mrs. Geo. Grasser, a well-known resident of this place, is once more able to walk around and do her work without pain, and to sleep with comfort. She gives Dodd's Kidney Pills the credit for her cure. "I suffered with rheumatism in my knee for twelve years," Mrs. Grasser states. "I was attended by three doctors, but did not get any permanent relief. I was also troubled with neuralgia and dropsy. My appetite was fitful and at times I had sharp pain and pressure on the top of my head. "I just took one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and they cured me."
 Mrs. Grasser is 65 years of age, and her quick cure after suffering has caused somewhat of a sensation among her friends. They have been trying Dodd's Kidney Pills themselves and such of them as are troubled with rheumatism, pain in the back, dropsy, that tired feeling and similar ailments, are delighted with the results obtained. They know now why Dodd's Kidney Pills are the most popular of all family medicines.

 One of the prominent citizens who journeyed to Brantford tried hard to become familiar with baseball terms, but he fell down badly. He referred to sacks as acub, but understood the meaning of club and diamond.—The Spectator.
 Baseball is going to flourish behind the dyke this year. The Brantford fans are sweet on Denean and the old Rubcan can be depended upon to produce. He was very much in evidence yesterday with thirteen put outs, one run, a base on balls and a hit in four trips to the plate. All this in spite of the fact that he was out working on the diamond at 6 a. m. in an effort to work out some of the water that covered the infield.—The Spectator.
 Brantford did itself proud. The attendance was the largest in years, the opening ceremonies were carried out without a hitch, and the Deneanites topped off the celebration with a hard-fought-for victory.—The Herald Says a Hamilton exchange:

KIDNEYS CURED AND VITALITY REGAINED

Prominent Ontario Merchant Says He is Enjoying "The Best Health I Ever Had" Thanks To "Fruit-a-tives".

B. A. KELLY, ESQ.
 HAGERSVILLE, ONT., Aug. 29th, 1913
 "About two years ago, I found my health in a very bad state. My kidneys were not doing their work, and I was all run down in condition. I felt the need of some good remedy, and having seen "Fruit-a-tives" advertised, I decided to try them. Their effect I found more than satisfactory. Their action was mild and the result all that could be expected.
 My kidneys resumed their normal action after I had taken upwards of a dozen boxes and I regained my old time vitality. Today I am as well as ever, the best health I ever had, and I unhesitatingly give you this letter and my photo for publication if you wish."
 B. A. KELLY.
 "The greatest kidney remedy in the world," is what thousands of people say about "Fruit-a-tives". And it is true. "Fruit-a-tives" cleans the kidneys, strengthens the kidneys, cures the kidneys, as nothing else will. All over Canada today, hundreds of people who were sick and suffering, are curing themselves of kidney and bladder troubles, Rheumatism, and Lumbago by taking "Fruit-a-tives", the famous medicine made from fruit juices.
 "Fruit-a-tives" is sold by dealers everywhere at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c.—or will be sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

VICTORIA SCHOOL GIRLS AT DRILL

Very Clever Work Was Pre- sented at Victoria Hall Last Evening.

A splendid exhibition of the good old national dances was given last night at the Victoria Hall, by girls of the Victoria School. They showed no mean ability, and many of their feats were quite original and great praise is due to the Odd League under whose auspices the event was held and also to Miss Whitney who has with great pains and patience trained the young dancers. Her work is all the more meritorious when it is considered that she has only been able to give instruction half an hour each week. This fact also says a great deal for the adaptability of her clever little pupils. Victoria schools holds about 500 scholars, half of whom are boys, and of the remaining girls nearly two hundred, from nine classes, took part, showing the enthusiasm with which the little girls took to their dancing lessons.
The hall was packed when the opening number was called, and many parental eyes could be discovered looking for the advent of their own little kith and kin. A pretty scene was the first item staged, Blue Eyed Stranger, performed by Miss Me-Diarmid's class. Junior Swedish exercises followed by Miss Cleator's and Miss Carlyle's combined classes.
It was equally well performed, as the first scene had been, and it was equally well applauded. This applied to every number on the program, not a hitch occurring to mar the excellence of the whole. The Indian dance by the girls of Miss Heatley's class was both amusing and educational, the effect was really true to life. The mannerisms were superb. Every dance on the program was pretty,
the girls all being dressed in neat white and blue tricot, and were perfectly symmetrical. Included among the items were Tangle March, Miss Fallis' class; Folk dances (a) German; (b) English, Miss Scott's class
two dances (a) Highland schottische,
(b) sparkles, Miss Hollinrake's class; Highland fling, by selected girls; (a) marching Swedish, Miss Sherritt's class; (b) clan dance Miss Carlyle's class; senior Swedish, Miss Cies, Miss Colter's and Miss Hallinrake's classes; sailors dance, Miss Perley's class; military march, selected class girls; intermediate Swedish exercises, class of girls; Irish Jig, Miss Hollinrake's class.

The fine performance says much for the Odd League, which is to Victoria school what a ladies aid is to a church. The officers of the league are Mrs. Buck, honorary president; Mrs.
Marquis, president; Mrs. W. Watt, 1st vice-pres.; Mrs. W. Turnbull, vice-pres.; Mrs. Hart, treasurer, and Miss Colter secretary.

BEWARE OF OINTMENTS FOR CATARRH THAT CONTAIN MERCURY

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians. The damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system.
Over at Agricultural Park the grandstand is one mass of flags. All along the route of the procession flags and bunting may be seen.

Y.M.C.A. ANNUAL WAS ADJOURNED

Merely Preliminary Business Conducted For Big Meeting at Later Date.

The annual meeting of the directorate of the Y.M.C.A. took place in that institution last night, and it was perhaps the briefest on record.
The only business done was the changing of the date of the meeting from May to the second Friday in September. Mr. T. L. Wood presided and opening the meeting, said it was peculiar that these meetings were not generally well attended by members of the association. Whether it was due to a lack of interest or to their confidence in their board he did not know, but the fact remained. The minutes of the last meeting were then read by Mr. C. Thompson, and a resolution was adopted whereby the constitution of the body slightly altered. This was merely technical however.

Two members of the board sent in their resignations. They were T.
H. Preston and T. W. Clark, and in their places Fred Grob and W. H.
Whittaker were appointed.

Mr. Whittwell then moved the changed date of the annual meeting it having been pointed out that the annual meeting should take place at the end of the business year, which was September 31st. This view was held by all and the motion was carried unanimously. This concluded the business, the majority of which will be held over for the new date, and the Rev. C. W. Rose closed the meeting suitably in prayer.

The quorum present consisted of
Mr. T. L. Wood, chairman; C.
Thompson, secretary; G. L. Goodwin, Rev. C. W. Rose, C. Cook, J.
G. Cole, J. Lockington, T. Hutton,
H. Yeigh, J. Whitwell, J. McFarland, W. V. Patterson, S.M. Thompson and W. Natfel.

COLLEGIATE BOARD

A New Master Appointed to Succeed Mr. Dunlop— Other Business

The Collegiate Institute Board held their regular meeting in the board room at the Collegiate last night.
There were present, Chairman W.
Lahey and Messrs. G. Pickles, E.
Sweet, W. B. Scace, R. E. Ryerson,
Principal Bart and Dr. Frank.

A resolution of thanks was read from the Brant Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire for the use of the Collegiate during the rehearsals of "The Night in Dreamland."

An old account from Turnbull and Cutcliffe was presented. This account has been outstanding since 1910, and the Board commented on the length of time in which it has been left over.
The account was referred to the buildings and grounds committee, who will look up the items.

The School management committee reported that they had appointed Mr.
Ed. T. Bell of Toronto, to take the place of C. G. Dunlop at a salary of $1200. Mr. Bell comes here from Toronto highly recommended, being a science specialist.

THE RETURN OF TARZAN

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Copyright 1913 by W. G. Chapman.

CHAPTER III.

What Happened in the Rue Maule. "ELL," laughed Tarzan, "we shall not quarrel over the money. I must live, and so I must have it, but I shall be more contented with something to do. You cannot show me your friendship in a more convincing manner than to find employment for me. I shall die of inactivity in a short while. As for your birthright, it is in good hands. Clayton is not guilty of robbing me of it. He truly believes that he is the real Lord Greystoke, and the chances are that he will make a better English lord than man who was born and raised in an African jungle. You know that I am but half civilized even now. Let me see red in anger but for a moment, and all the instincts of the savage beast that I really am submerge what little I possess of the milder ways of culture and refinement."

"And then again had I declared myself I should have robbed the woman I love of the wealth and position that her marriage to Clayton will now insure to her. I could not have done that—could I, Paul?"

"Nor is the matter of birth of great importance to me," he went on without waiting for a reply. "Raised as I have been, I see no worth in man or beast that is not theirs by virtue of their own mental or physical prowess, and so I am as happy to think of Kala as my mother as I would be to try and picture the poor, unhappy little English girl who passed away a year after she bore me. Kala was always kind to me in her fierce and savage way. I must have nursed at her hairy breast from the time that my own mother died. She fought for me against the wild denizens of the forest and against the savage members of our tribe with the ferocity of real mother love."

"And I on my part loved her, Paul. I did not realize how much until after the cruel spear and the poisoned arrow of Mbonga's black warrior had stolen her away from me. I was still a child when that occurred, and I threw myself upon her dead body and wept out my anguish as a child might for his own mother. To you, my friend, she would have appeared a hideous and ugly creature, but to me she was beautiful, so gloriously does love transfigure its object. And so I am perfectly content to remain forever the son of Kala, the she ape, who reared me after my own mother died."

"I do not admire you the less for your loyalty," said Clayton, "but the time will come when you will be glad to claim your own. You must bear in mind that Professor Porter and Mr. Philander are the only people in the world who can swear that the little skeleton found in the cabin with those of your father and mother was that of an infant anthropoid ape and not the offspring of Lord and Lady Greystoke. That evidence is most important. They are both old men. They may not live many years longer. And then did it not occur to you that once Miss Porter knew the truth she would break her engagement with Clayton? You might easily have your title, your estates and the woman you love, Tarzan. Had you not thought of that?"

Tarzan shook his head. "You do not know her," he said. "Nothing could blind her closer to her bargain than some misfortune to Clayton. She is from an old southern family in America, and southerners pride themselves upon their loyalty."

Tarzan spent the two following weeks renewing his former brief acquaintance with Paris. In the daytime he haunted the libraries and picture galleries. He learned what he could by day and threw himself into a search for relaxation and amusement at night. Nor did he find Paris a whit less fertile field for his nocturnal avocation.

He was sitting in a music hall one evening sipping his absinth and admiring the art of a certain famous Russian dancer when he caught a passing glimpse of a pair of evil black eyes upon him. He had had the uncanny feeling for some time that he was being watched, and it was in response to this animal instinct that was strong within him that he had turned suddenly and surprised the eyes in the very act of watching him.

Before he left the music hall the matter had been forgotten, nor did he notice the swartly individual who stepped deeper into the shadows of an opposite doorway as Tarzan emerged from the brilliantly lighted amusement hall.

As he turned in the direction he was accustomed to taking from this part of Paris to his apartments the watcher across the street ran from his hiding place and hurried on ahead at a rapid pace.

Tarzan had been wont to traverse the Rue Maule on his way home at night. Because it was very quiet and very dark it reminded him more of his beloved African jungle than did the noisy and garish streets surrounding it. If you are familiar with your Paris you will recall the narrow, forbidding precincts of the Rue Maule. If you are not you need not ask the police about it to learn that in all Paris there is no street to which you should give a wider berth after dark.

On this night Tarzan had gone two squares through the dense shadows of the squalid old tenements which line this dismal way when he was attracted by screams and cries for help from the third floor of an opposite building. The voice was a woman's. Before the echoes of her first cries had died Tarzan was bounding up the stairs and through the dark corridors to her rescue.

At the end of the corridor on the third landing a door stood slightly ajar, and from within Tarzan heard again the same appeal that had lured him from the street. Another instant found him in the center of a dimly lighted room. An oil lamp burned upon a high, old fashioned mantel, casting its dim rays over a dozen repulsive figures. All but one were men. The other was a woman of about thirty. Her face, marked by low passions and dissipation, might once have been lovely. She stood with one hand at her throat, crouching against the farther wall. "Help, monsieur," she cried in a low voice as Tarzan entered the room; "they were killing me."

As Tarzan turned toward the men about him he saw the crafty, evil faces of habitual criminals. He wondered that they had made no effort to escape.

A movement behind caused him to turn. Two things his eyes saw, and one of them caused him considerable wonderment. A man was sneaking stealthily from the room, and in the brief glance that Tarzan had of him he saw that it was Rokoff. But the other thing that he saw was of more immediate interest. It was a great brute of a fellow tiptoeing upon him from behind with a huge bludgeon in his hand, and then as the man and his confederates saw that he was discovered there was a concerted rush upon Tarzan from all sides. Some of the men drew knives, others picked up chairs, while the fellow with the bludgeon raised it high above his head in a mighty swing that would have crushed Tarzan's head had it ever descended upon it.

But the brain and the agility and the muscles that had coped with the mighty strength and cruel craftiness of Sabot and Numa in the fastnesses of their savage jungle were not to be so easily subdued as these apaches of Paris had believed.

Selecting his most formidable antagonist, the fellow with the bludgeon, Tarzan charged full upon him, dodging the falling weapon and catching the man a terrific blow on the point of the chin that felled him in his tracks. Then he turned upon the others. This was sport. He was reveling in the joy of battle and the lust of blood.

At the end of the corridor without stood Rokoff, waiting the outcome of the affair. He wished to be sure that Tarzan was dead before he left, but it was not a part of his plan to be one of those within the room when the deed occurred.

The woman still stood where she had when Tarzan entered, but her face had undergone a number of changes with the few minutes which had elapsed. From the semblance of distress which it had worn when Tarzan first saw it it had changed to one of craftiness as he had wheeled to meet the attack from behind; but the change Tarzan had not seen.

Later an expression of surprise and then one of horror superseded the other. And who may wonder. For the immaculate gentleman her cries had lured to what was to have been his death had been suddenly metamorphosed into a demon of revenge. Instead of soft muscles and a weak resistance she was looking upon a veritable Hercules gone mad.

"Mon Dieu!" she cried. "He is a beast!" for the strong, white teeth of the ape-man had found the throat of one of his assailants, and Tarzan fought as he had learned to fight with the great bull apes of the tribe of Kerchak.

He Was in a Dozen Places at Once.

He was in a dozen places at once, leaping hither and thither about the room in sinuous bounds that reminded the woman of a panther she had seen at the zoo. Now a wrist bone snapped in his iron grip, now a shoulder was wrenched from its socket as he forced a victim's arm backward and upward. With shrieks of pain the men occupied into the hallway as quickly as they could, but even before the first one staggered, bleeding and broken, from the room Rokoff had seen enough to convince him that Tarzan would not be the one to lie dead in that house this night, and so the Russian had hastened to a nearby den and telephoned the police that a man was committing murder on the third floor of Rue Maule, 27.

When the officers arrived they found three men groaning on the floor, a frightened woman lying upon a filthy bed, her face buried in her arms, and what appeared to be a well dressed young gentleman standing in the center of the room waiting the reinforcements which he had thought the footsteps of the officers hurrying up the stairway had announced, but they were mistaken in the last. It was a wild beast that looked upon them through those narrowed lids and steel gray eyes. With the smell of blood the last vestige of civilization had deserted Tarzan, and now he stood at bay, like a lion surrounded by hunters, awaiting the next overt act and crouching to charge its author.

"What has happened here?" asked one of the policemen. Tarzan explained briefly, but when he turned to the woman for confirmation of his statement he was appalled by her reply.

"He lies!" she screamed shrilly, addressing the policemen. "He came to my room while I was alone, and for no good purpose. When I repulsed him he would have killed me had not my screams attracted these gentlemen, who were passing the house at the time. He is a devil, monsieur. Alone he has all but killed ten men with his bare hands and his teeth."

So shocked was Tarzan by her ingratitude that for a moment he was struck dumb. The police were inclined to be a little skeptical, for they had had other dealings with this same lady and her lovely coterie of gentleman friends. However, they were policemen, not judges, so they decided to place all the inmates of the room under arrest and let another, whose business it was, separate the innocent from the guilty.

But they found that it was one thing to tell this well dressed young man that he was under arrest, but quite another to enforce it. One of them advanced to lay his hand upon Tarzan's shoulder. An instant later he lay crumpled in a corner of the room, and then, as his comrades rushed in upon the ape-man, they experienced a taste of what the apaches had but recently gone through. So quickly and so roughly did he handle them that they had not even an opportunity to draw their revolvers.

During the brief fight Tarzan had noted the open window and beyond the stem of a tree or a telegraph pole, he could not tell which. As the last officer went down one of his fellows succeeded in drawing his revolver and from where he lay on the floor fired at Tarzan. The shot missed, and before the man could fire again Tarzan had swept the lamp from the mantel and plunged the room in darkness.

The next they saw was a little form spring to the sill of the open window and leap panther-like on to the pole across the walk. When the police gathered themselves together and reached the street their prisoner was nowhere to be seen.

They did not handle the woman and the men who had not escaped any too gently when they took them to the station. They were a very sore and humiliated detail of police.

The officer who had remained in the street swore that no one had leaped from the window or left the building from the time they entered until they had come out. His comrades thought that he lied, but they could not prove it.

When Tarzan found himself clinging to the pole outside the window he followed his jungle instinct and looked below for enemies before he ventured down. It was well he did, for just beneath him stood a policeman. Above Tarzan saw no one, so he went up instead of down.

The top of the pole was opposite the roof of the building. So it was but the work of an instant for the muscles that had for years sent him hurtling through the treetops of his primeval forest to carry him across the little space between the pole and the roof. From one building he went to another, and so on, with much climbing, until at a cross street he discovered another pole, down which he ran to the ground.

For a square or two he ran swiftly. Then he turned into a little all night cafe and in the lavatory removed the evidences of his overroof promenade from hands and clothes. When he emerged a few moments later it was to saunter slowly toward his apartments.

Not far from them he came to a well lighted boulevard which it was necessary to cross. As he stood directly beneath a brilliant arc light, waiting for a limousine that was approaching to pass him, he heard his name called in a sweet feminine voice. Looking up, he met the smiling eyes of Olga de Coude as she leaned forward upon the back seat of the machine. He bowed very low in response to her friendly greeting. When he straightened up the machine had borne her away.

"Rokoff and the Countess de Coude both in the same evening," he soliloquized; "Paris is not so large, after all."

DIRECTIONS FOR TRANSFERRING

Lay a piece of impression paper, face down, upon the material. Place the newspaper pattern in position over this, and with a hard, sharp pencil firmly trace each line. If the material is sheer, this may be laid over the pattern, and the design drawn direct on the goods, as it will show through. When handled in this way, impression paper, of course, will not be required.

HALF OF COLLAR FOR CHILD'S COAT.

Only half of this pattern is given, so it must be duplicated to make the whole article. The scallops are padded and closely buttonholed. The flowers and leaves are worked solid, with the dots as eyelets and the stems in the outline stitch. The ribbon is closely buttonholed along the edge, with the purling brought to the inside. The cross-bars are formed of strands of the cotton stretched from side to side and buttonholed across without catching the material, which is cut away underneath. The neck may be buttonholed or sewed into a band. Use mercerized cotton No. 20.

BASKET FOR SCARF END.

This motif makes a dainty decoration for a scarf end. The ribbon and leaves are worked solid. The small dots are done as eyelets and the basket, flowers and stems are done in the outline stitch. Use colored mercerized cotton No. 20 for ribbon, leaves, eyelets and stems, and No. 12 for basket and roses.

The Inauguration Of Real Social Legislation

History of the Workers' Fight for Accident Compensation

Late in 1909 the Ontario Executive of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada asked Sir James Whitney to appoint a Royal Commission to investigate the whole question of workmen's compensation.

June 23rd, 1910, Sir William Meredith, Chief Justice of Ontario, was appointed by the Ontario Government as a Commission to investigate the whole question.

First session of the Commission. October 23rd, 1911. Labor presented the first brief on December 27th, 1911. Sir William Meredith presented an interim report to the Ontario Legislature at the 1912 session. Labor presented a further brief on January 16th, 1913.

Final report of Sir William Meredith in the form of a draft act presented to the Ontario Legislature in April, 1913.

Ontario Government introduced Compensation Act on March 17th, 1914, when it received its first reading.

The measure received its second reading on March 24th, 1914.

The bill received its third reading on Tuesday, April 28th, after being considered in committee of the whole House many times.

The Act is to come into operation not later than January 1st, 1915.

Features of the Legislation Compensation for injuries arising out of or in the course of employment.

Compensation without litigation, to be paid automatically by a Crown Commission.

Employers in Schedule 2 to carry their own insurance, but entirely under the jurisdiction of the Board.

Prohibition of employers deducting anything from workers' wages by any means to help to pay for compensation.

No contribution from workers to Accident Compensation Fund.

Contributory negligence, etc wiped out. Part I, the real part of the legislation.

Industrial diseases included. Compensation to be paid for industrial diseases, as if they were accidents arising out of employment.

In Part II, which applies to workers who do not come under Part I, the common law defences are almost completely removed, an immeasurable improvement upon present conditions.

Domestic servants and farmers not included in the legislation. In case of death, compensation paid to the dependents in the form of a pension for life, except in the case of the children left. Their compensation stops when they reach the age of 16.

Success Of Labor Educational Convention Assured

The Gathering in St. Thomas on Monday, May 25th, will be the Greatest in the History of the Association.

There is no longer any doubt of the fact that the annual convention of the Labor Educational Association of Ontario, which convenes in St. Thomas on Monday, May 25th, will clearly outdistance all its predecessors as far as the number of delegates in attendance is concerned.

The first convention calls were received in Berlin on Monday last and in the evening the Trades and Labor Council elected three delegates and the brewery workers two, and advised are to effect that a big delegation will go over from the Twin City. The London Trades and Labor Council have also elected three candidates and the Federal Labor Union two, and the Forest City will send a record number to St. Thomas. Charity Lodge of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firman and Engineers, St. Thomas, have sent in credentials for three delegates, and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners have done likewise. Brantford Trades and Labor Council will also be represented, and it is understood some of the local unions are contemplating being represented.

At the time of writing twenty-six credentials have been received from organizations that were not represented last year, and the same news comes from all quarters. We are out to make this the biggest of them all. These returns were all received during the past three days. None of the Toronto calls have gone out yet, but each organization as it meets will have one, and it is certain that the Queen City will have at least twice as many representatives as there were present at Ottawa last year.

It is generally recognized that the Labor Educational Association has done splendid service during the year in connection with the publicity campaign in favor of workmen's compensation, and, what is more, there is probably no one who will come forward and say otherwise for the truth of the assertion has been only too well attested, and many of the organizations in forwarding their credentials plainly state that they are more than satisfied at the splendid record that the association has made.

It is also evident that the trades unions throughout the province are of the opinion that the proposition to put a live forward movement should be taken up heartily, and that the association can be used just as effectively to engineer it as to prosecute such a successful and far-reaching campaign as that recently put up in favor of workmen's compensation.

Workmen's Compensation

There is not the slightest doubt but what the public sentiment of the province will be overwhelmingly behind the local legislature in its passage of workmen's compensation along the lines advocated in the draft act of Sir William Meredith.

In fact, it is the most far reaching legislation that has ever been enacted by any government in Canada in the interests of the workers, and it is certainly a matter for congratulation that for once the representatives of both parties in the legislature refused to be swayed by the threats or arguments of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

That such a measure should be passed by a unanimous vote of the legislature amid scenes of enthusiasm on the part of the adherents of both the old parties contains a significant lesson. We believe that when the work was finally completed and the decisive vote taken, that the knowledge that

Facts to Bear in Mind

Now that the workmen's compensation bill has been passed by the Ontario legislature it must be generally recognized that it was the persistent agitation of the trades unions that forced it to the front and made it a live political question, and it was furthermore the equally persistent watchfulness of the organized labor that made it possible to have the measure placed on the statute books of the province.

To organized labor and organized labor alone is due the credit of the fight that has been so determinedly waged in the interests of every workman and non-union alike, within the boundaries of Ontario. Unorganized labor never takes the initiative. It was the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada that induced Sir James Whitney and his colleagues to appoint Sir William Meredith as Commissioner to take evidence and secure information of such a nature as to enable him to draft a suitable act for the guidance of the government. It was organized labor that blocked the game of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in its attempts to mutilate the draft act as submitted by the Commissioner. It was the hundreds of petitions sent in by the central labor bodies and the local trades unions from every section of the province that impressed the politicians with the solidity of working class sentiment that was behind the demand for justice to the artisans and laborers.

It was the funds of the trades unions contributed by their members in the shape of dues that furnished the finances wherewith to carry on the agitation, to hold public meetings, to issue literature and papers and give the question the publicity that made success financially certain.

Had there been no trades unions or had they been weak and indolent, the politicians or the non-union element would never have taken the initiative and harmony, and one of the most beneficial pieces of legislation that has ever been enacted in the premier province of Ontario.

It was an evidence of the fact also that even in the realm of politics the will of the people, the known sentiment of the great public, will eventually prevail, and behind this question of workmen's compensation all the moral forces of the province had arrayed themselves.

But, above all else, it was a demonstration of the growing power and solidity of the great labor movement which has persistently forced the question to the point where it could no longer be ignored, but required that no uncertain action should be taken by the people's representatives in the Ontario House.

And the province will be the better for the enactment of the measure. It was humanitarian legislation in the broadest sense of the word, and in the years to come it will bring happiness and comfort into thousands of humble homes and habitations that would otherwise be hopeless and destitute.

It is a measure of justice to the workers and the wealth winners of the province that has already been too long delayed, and it is not unreasonable to suppose that, even the better nature of those who opposed the measure for financial reasons will, after due consideration, also be pleased that the step taken will indeed be in the interests of a common humanity and secure the greatest good to the greatest number.

That the enactment of the measure will be far-reaching in its effects will be hardly open to question. The employers will find it to their own pecuniary advantage to install safety devices for the safeguarding of dangerous machinery, thus preventing a large percentage of accidents and casualties that now only too frequently occur.

The action of the trades unions in their advocacy of the measure has not been dictated by any feeling of hostility to the interests of the employers, but rather with the desire to protect their homes and their wives and dependent little ones from the fear of future want and suffering, for back of all the agitation has been the one prevailing overruling sentiment in favor of provision for the maintenance of the home and loved ones when the bread winner has been incapacitated by injury or death upon the industrial battlefield.

In the very near future there is hardly a doubt but what both employer and employee will be mutually agreed that the passage of the act was in the interests of industrial peace

Ontario Conference of Typographical Unions

Advices to hand all tend to show that the third annual convention of the Ontario Conference of Typographical Unions, which will convene in St. Thomas on Tuesday, May 26th, is going to set a new high water mark. During the past year the energetic secretary, Phil Obermeyer, has been in close touch with the various I. T. U. locals in the province, and as a result of his good work there have been new accessions to the ranks. It can be safely asserted that more local unions will be represented and a larger number of delegates be present in St. Thomas, than at either of the other two conventions previously held.

Naturally, it takes some little time for a new organization like the Ontario conference to get down to rock bottom, but under the painstaking care of the present secretary, the conference is in fine shape and it now only rests with the local unions in the province to get behind it and make it a power for good in the interests of the craft.

THE PAINTERS' STRIKE.

To the Labor Editor of the Courier: Sir—It has come before our notice that the people of this city do not quite understand the reasons for the dispute between the masters and the men, the matter now being on strike. The master painters, we believe, are informing the general public that the only trouble is that we want them to pay the poor man as much as the good man, and, therefore, they want to grade the men. Now, we ask the people do they grade the prices when they send in the bill? We do not think so. Some of the members of this union were taking a stroll around the city yesterday and met some people who informed them that the strike was finished. Now, if the masters are supplying this information, we deny it, and inform the public that not until it is published in the paper to the effect that the strike is ended, must the public take any notice of rumor that is going around.

Announcement

Having had our store thoroughly remodelled and newly decorated, equipped with the latest and most handsome designs of store fittings and fixtures, we have no hesitation in informing the public that Brantford now boasts a confectionery store unsurpassed by any in Canada.

We cordially invite you to be present at our

Grand Opening Saturday May 9th

There will be an orchestra in attendance throughout the evening. We intend to maintain the enviable reputation we have always enjoyed for the excellence of our Ice Creams, Fountain Drinks and Confectionery, and have installed every modern device for the proper making and serving of all those delightful drinks and frozen delicacies that have made this store famous.

Special attention will be given to the manufacture of our unrivalled chocolates, which we will sell at prices from 30 cents to $1.00 per pound—every one of the countless varieties deliciously dainty.

Our cake department will sell over 83 different kinds of rich cakes of exquisite flavor, many of them specialties of our own. We will make a specialty of wedding cakes, as in the past, supplying always the finest procurable at the usual prices.

Don't forget the day—Saturday

Sport Comment

Well, the club got its first licking and fans asked last night "What was the matter?" There was nothing particularly the matter except that it was a ball game and the team that made the most hits and the most errors lost.

On the other hand Doherty was lucky and he was also good. He whiffed ten men, which was a fairly good portion of the work to be borne by him.

Taylor's ability as a pitcher should not be reckoned on yesterday's score. Undoubtedly he will win a lot of games for the Red Sox.

Neither game played so far has produced anything wonderful in a heading way. Honeck's work at short-stop yesterday was of the kind to make the fans forget about Lou Courtney and he undoubtedly carried off fielding honors.

The game was quite out of the ordinary for the number of fly balls dropped. Three of them were healthy wall-pops, but should have been handled.

Wagner replaced Beltz on second in the eighth and looked pretty good. In his only chance at bat he surprised everybody by bunting along the third base line and beat the throw.

Hamilton started right in to pound Taylor around. After Gilhooly had been retired at first Dudley slammed a scorcher over second for a single.

The Red Sox went out in order. Hamilton started right after Taylor again in the third and another run was scored.

LE CROIX

Whose catching delights the fans.

he caught the third baseman flat footed in the ninth was well executed. Had Sandusky not been caught off third base in the ninth the bases would have been filled with two gone and a hit or an error might have put a different complexion on the result.

It is understood that Deneau is dickering for a couple more players, who, if he gets them, will practically put Brantford in the first division for the summer.

Empire Dudley had a lot of close ones to call yesterday, but he was generally right. Doc Yates displayed unusual proclivities for beefing and if he keeps on will get into the same class as Shag.

Bobby Robinson of the Spectator, with his pink socks, watched the game yesterday.

The game was quite out of the ordinary for the number of fly balls dropped. Three of them were healthy wall-pops, but should have been handled.

Doc Yates is scheduled to pitch to-day for Hamilton. He was warming up yesterday in order to replace Doherty.

It was chilly behind the dyke yesterday.

ERRORS LOST FOR THE RED SOX IN SECOND CONTEST WITH HAMILTON

Sox Had Two Bad Innings in Which Opponents Put Over Five Runs.

Before only a small crowd of fans who sat shivering from the cold east wind and which swept the ball diamond at Agricultural Park yesterday afternoon, the Red Sox lost the second game of the season to Hamilton by the score of 5 to 1. Errors and inability to hit when hits meant runs was the cause of the Red Sox downfall.

Manager Deneau started Eddie Taylor to do the work and for the first few innings things broke bad for him but after the third he held the visitors to one hit and no runs.

Honeck, the local shortstop, starred in the field. True he had one error, that being a high fly which he went after and dropped.

Sandusky and Gabby Ivers starred at the bat each getting two hits out of four trips to the plate.

Wagner replaced Beltz on second in the eighth and looked pretty good. In his only chance at bat he surprised everybody by bunting along the third base line and beat the throw.

Hamilton started right in to pound Taylor around. After Gilhooly had been retired at first Dudley slammed a scorcher over second for a single.

The first of the damage came in the second. Taylor walked Fisher and Dolan sacrificed him along, but Taylor threw wild to first and both men advanced a peg, from where they scored on Barrow's beautiful hit to centre.

The Red Sox went out in order. Hamilton started right after Taylor again in the third and another run was scored.

After two were gone in the last part of the third, Taylor got a life on out.

Honeck made a grand pick up of Sheppard's hard grounder to start the fifth and got his man at first.

were passed to first and both advanced on Gabby Ivers' hit through third. Then with three on and none out, Sandusky slammed a hit to left and Rickart scored. Rube also tried to score but was out a mile on a perfect throw from White. Doherty tightened up and the next two were out.

CHASE

The big six-footer has lots of speed.

Just Dope

They'll tell you that a good manager can't make a poor ball club win. He'll come closer to it than a bad manager handling a good ball club—for without a carload of luck the last shot hasn't got a chance.

It has taken Col. Stallings and his Braves some time to get under headway, but we haven't lost faith in the showing of his club. Stallings came from last to fifth place last season and he has improved his 1913 club. And, under a leader like Stallings, a slow start doesn't mean disaster. The Brave mandarin is chuck full of the old pep and the fighting spirit, and we will be badly fooled if he doesn't land his club among the first four at the finish.

Watching The Score Board

Tim Jordan doubled with the bases full in the eighth and Toronto managed, with Gaw pitching, to beat Providence 5-4.

Cincinnati beat St. Louis 3 to 0. Herzog having a homer in the fourth.

Detroit continues to play bang up ball. They played up hill yesterday and beat the White Sox 10 to 8. Cobb got one hit while Crawford got four.

Washington and Philadelphia played to a darkness in the 9-10 ten innings. The Senators saved their bacon by pulling off a triple play in the ninth.

Plank was knocked out of the box by Washington.

Leonard pitching for the Red Sox shut out Frank Chance's men 3-0.

Griffith's and Mack injected seven pitchers into the fray.

The Red Sox have far better material than the Braves, but Carrigan has yet to show that he is the equal of Stallings at the helm. And somehow we look more to the manager than we do the make-up of the team.

McGraw has been winning pennants with only good average material—material that poorly handled as a number of other clubs have been, would not have beaten fourth place.

Canadian League Notes

Erie Herald: Blount and his team have been doing their spring training at Youngstown, Ohio.

Almost on the eve of beginning the championship battle, Manager Curly Blount of the Peterboro club of the Canadian league, is congratulating himself, his employers and the club in having such a dependable twirling staff, says the Youngstown Telegram. It is one of the best hurling corps Curly has ever had, and as he is expecting no setbacks in this department with such talent as Schettler, Cresswell, Tracey, Sterling and a few others upon whom he has not yet passed final judgment.

Manager Blount is indeed fortunate in having such a pitcher as Louis Schettler with him. The former Youngstown, Lancaster, Philadelphia National and Erie moundman is just now enjoying about the best form he has ever shown. His salary whip has been freed of the kinks that bothered him a little in the early practice and he does not expect any more difficulty this season.

Schettler had his first real work out of the season on Sunday, when he pitched his first full nine innings for a year. While he did not care to cut loose at top speed throughout, Louis did put on some steam in the tight places and never felt a strain.

"I'm satisfied that the old whip is right at last," said Schettler after the game, "and believe me, this old arm is going to make some history in the Canadian League this season."

You can dope this out to your own satisfaction by lamping the names of those who have led all National league races since 1909—McGraw, Clark and Chance. A widely variegated list of players has come and gone but one of these names have been at the top for fourteen years—with the other two close around as active contenders.

Movies Get Baseball

Motion pictures will play an important part in big league baseball this year, as far as the New York Giants are concerned anyway, by a working agreement just entered upon between President Hempstead and Manager McGraw of the Giants and Harry E. Aitken, president of the Mutual Film Corporation.

Mr. Aitken, who is an ardent Giant supporter, conceived the idea of applying the lessons of the movies to big league baseball. He felt that a baseball player could be coached and his work aided by motion pictures. When he took his scheme to McGraw the Giants' leader was impressed by the plan. A large staff of Mutual movie photographers was sent to the Polo grounds and took pictures for a week during the morning practice and also photographed the opening games between the Giants and the Philadelphia Nationals.

When McGraw saw the pictures on the screen at the private exhibition room of the Mutual Film Corporation he was so much impressed that he installed a projection machine in the Giants' clubhouse at the Polo grounds. Here he will lecture the recruits and regulars and also show them the pictures of the opening games between the Giants and the Philadelphia Nationals.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—Earl Grey, former governor-general of Canada before leaving last night for Los Angeles, announced the purchase of a syndicate which will spend millions of British money for the purchase of two of the largest oil companies in California.

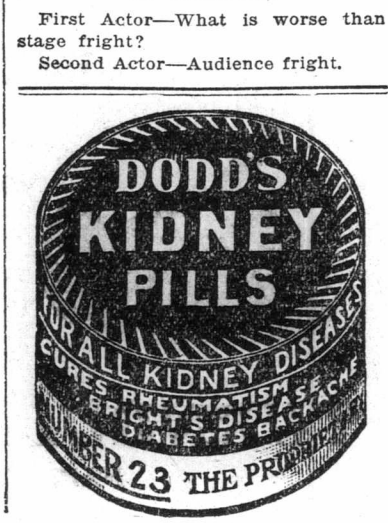

He Must Die

[By Special Wire to the Courier] HALIFAX, N. S., May 8.—Judge Drysdale refused again to-day to interfere in the case of Haynes, the Syd ney, murderer, who has been sentenced to be hanged to-day. As a result of the confession made by Haynes, implicating two others, the department of justice at Ottawa was communicated with, with a view to obtaining a stay of execution. The department referred the matter to Justice Drysdale, the trial judge, who advised last night that the application be not granted.

To-day D. A. Cameron, counsel for the prisoner came to the city in a last endeavor to save the life of the condemned man, but his mission was unsuccessful. Haynes is to be hanged between noon and midnight.

OF TERRORS. First Actor—What is worse than stage fright? Second Actor—Audience fright.

Spectacular Life of The Famous "Rube" Waddell

The end of the spectacular life of George Edward Waddell calls the attention of the vast army of baseball fans to one of those characters, at once the most enviable, and the saddest and most pitiful in the world, who are too giant-hearted for the civilization in which they live.

They are affectionate, good-hearted giants, too big to see how little they serve their own interests, too impatient and too full of animal energy to stop and work out all the little tricks and artifices that would bring them gain; giving all ways open-heartedly and with both hands; relying absolutely in an abundant energy, even finding pleasure and exhilaration in wasting and destroying that energy; angered only as a child is angered, by the sting of little annoyances, and sobered only in the presence of the genuine distress of others. Most of these giants die young. In the open they might have the chance to pour out their energy prodigally and still draw deeper energy from nature herself; but in the city they are foredoomed. The carelessness of their too-generous natures renders them unwilling to resist the clutch of the pitiless tentacles; and once they are caught, they are done for. Many of the articles that have honored "Rube" Waddell's memory in the last few days have spoken of the moral to be drawn from this pitcher's career. There is a moral to be sure, and it is "Big-heartedness is a dangerous thing in a civilized community."

But big-heartedness—that sort of "giant" joy in giving and spending—is something upon which a moral, or morals, have little effect. Rube was Rube for thirty-seven short years; he could not have been anyone else even for a day. His rather meteoric career beginning with the Oil City, Pa., and later the Columbus team, reaching its height in his work with the Athletics, and ending with his few games with the Minneapolis club last fall, is fairly well known. We quote only from the different accounts of his eccentricities and "antics." A writer in the Baltimore Sun describes him:

Waddell As Comedian. Rube Waddell visited Baltimore when he was with the Newark (Eastern League) team in 1910. Whenever he was sent to the mound a mighty bleacher chorus of "Yea Rube!" greeted him, and he invariably turned and bowed a graceful acknowledgment. A knowing smile was on the face of all who watched him pitch, for no one could tell what piece of comedy he would pull off next.

His walk, a typical country "long gait", with an accompanying swaying of the shoulders, won for him the appellation which was popularly substituted for his right name, George Edward. He was stoop-shouldered, hyperbolic with every step. He had more the build of a stage comedian than a baseball player. N. Hanlon the manager of the old Orioles met Rube on the first day he applied for a position with the old Louisville Nationals. Waddell came to Oriole Park to see the manager of the Louisville team, which we were then playing. He wore a "dinky" little cap, country-cut clothes and carried a suitcase hardly larger than the ordinary yellow collar-box. He said he was prepared to become a member of the team for the remainder of the season. I believe his eccentricities were talked of more than those of any other man who has ever played on the diamond. There was, and still is, an unlimited supply of curious stories and experiences the old fellow figured in.

Enormously Popular. On the editorial page of the Chicago Inter-Ocean we read an account of Rube's enormous popularity: Only one player—Kelly, the $1,000 beauty—ever vied with Rube in the popular furor he created wherever he went. The crowds flocked to the hotels where he stopped as they did to grandstands where he played. He lived for this adulation. He performed his best for the biggest ball crowds. He posed in the lobbies that the "fans" might worship. Rube was many kinds of man—angler, trap-shot, football-player, actor, fire find, amateur barkeeper, as drum-major of a band marching up the main street.

He posed in a show window as an automaton. The astonished manager nearly suffocated. But there was a gentler side to Rube. When player or speaker he was being in and out of jail for non-support, and occasionally varying the monotony by shying a flat-iron or other missile at one of his parents-in-law.

He went angling and fished large strings of fish, usually of a kind never before known to the waters he worked. He was a great hunter and dead shot. He stunned the world of sport and dramatics by bursting into the stage game, appearing as a star in the melodrama "The Stain of Guilt." In this show he saved the girl and thumped the villain with such dazzling realism that they used to work the villain in relays, no one man being able to stand more than two or three consecutive mailings by the furious star.

Unexpectedly he deserted "The Stain" to return to his favorite tender role in Camden, which city seemed always mysteriously to attract him. He dived into the Delaware River and made repeated but futile efforts to recover the body of a drowned man being cheered by a thousand spectators. Once he leaped into a stand and beat up a gambler who had been baiting him with insulting words, returned to the field and struck out a batter, and then made the two-base hit that beat St. Louis.

Wrapping a handkerchief around his face, Rube plunged into a fire in Washington and assisted in the rescue of numerous persons in the burning building. Another time when a little lit up after a convivial session with some fellow Eagles he went with Shreck to the room of manager Mark at midnight, and throwing on the bed a putrescent-smelling sandwich of onion and limburger, suggested that the manager had not been looking well for a couple of days and that such a sandwich might help him. The astonished manager nearly suffocated. But there was a gentler side to Rube. Our London Correspondent Is Reminded of Punch's Remark That the Best Time to Go to Burlington House Is on Days When the Place Is Crowded.

"IT IS IMPOSSIBLE THEN TO SEE THE PICTURES"

(Special Dispatch.) LONDON, May 9. RATHER an ironical circumstance is found in the fact that while April, almost since its beginning, was as bright and sunny as June, May has come in as cold, dismal and sunless as April. The last three weeks practically were a drought, agriculturists and gardeners crying for rain, but it has been ideal weather for outdoor pleasures for society. The ideal spring has put the spirit of youth into everything. Rotten Row is full of riders every morning before the rest of London begins breakfast. These riders are busy men, whose minutes are more valuable than the hours of ordinary persons. The King is one of those busy men, and when he is able to enjoy a ride in the Row it is about eight in the morning. Generally he is attended by a single equestrian and is mounted on a handsome brown horse. Among the very few leading politicians patronizing the Row is Mr. Winston Spencer Churchill, who usually appears in one of those weird riding suits which he affects. Mr. F. E. Smith is as smart as Mr. Churchill is the reverse. Mr. John Redmond is a constant rider, wearing a bowler hat and a blue lounge suit and riding a big white faced chestnut. It is remarkable how many ungainly figures one sees in the Row, both men and women. They look like persons hard pressed most of their lives making money and now are passing what is left of their existence in taking a perpetual cure. Mr. Cunningham-Graham is a regular attendant. With his long tailed, flowing mane pelted he is picturesque as well as graceful, with a long lashed hunting crop, brown top boots, his easy seat and his Don Quixote countenance. Never since King George came to the throne has a season passed without some untoward event. This season is practically now just beginning, for the opening of the Royal Academy is to London what the first call of the cuckoo is to the country. Once the doors of this temple of art are thrown open, life in Piccadilly is at high noon. It is the starting signal for the round of festivities and functions which is called the London season. The critics look the way, are the only persons who go to the pictures in comfort, as on ordinary days the rooms are much too crowded for anything but small talk with one's friends. As Punch once said—"It is really advisable to go on crowded days, because it is then impossible to see the pictures." Women who pre-

ROBBERS' CAVERN IN VIENNA.

(Special Dispatch.) VIENNA, May 9. A COUNTERPART of the famous cavern of All Baba has been discovered in the fashionable St. Leopold quarter at Budapest within a stone's throw of the new Palace of Justice. Following the direction of three pickpockets whom they had arrested, a force of secret police agents came upon a vacant site, formerly occupied by a windmill which was demolished to make room for the new law courts. Behind a great heap of old bricks a secret entrance was discovered giving access to the extensive cellars which had formed part of the former building. As in the story, it required an "open sesame" to obtain admittance. The magic formula in the present instance consisted of the password in use among the robbers. No sooner had it been pronounced by the police than the brickwork in a wall became displaced and entrance was at once gained to the cave. Here the police found not gold nor jewels, but merchandise of every description, from bags of sugar and coffee to articles of furniture, even including pianos. Along both sides of the vault were rows of small cells to the number of thirty-five, each of which served as a dormitory for a member of the band. The brigands, it was learned, lived a gay life in their underground retreat, a large steel room, hidden behind a false party wall, which served them as banquetting chamber, being found littered with the debris of a feast. Empty champagne bottles lay about in picturesque abundance. When the police arrived on the scene most of the thieves were absent, each member of the band being occupied in his own particular task. Toward dusk one after the other of them made his appearance, every man laden with his share of the spoils of the day. The last to arrive was the chief, a gypsy who was known among the band as "Charlemagne." He, as well as several of his followers, made a violent attack on the police, one of whom was shot and seriously wounded. The thieves were, however, hopelessly outnumbered and soon gave up the struggle. The pickpockets who had supplied the authorities with the information which led to the police raid assert that the value of the plunder taken by "Charlemagne's" band during the last twelve months exceeds $200,000. The operations of the band extended, it is declared, throughout Austria-Hungary, and even Italy and Switzerland were visited from time to time at the orders of the leader. "Charlemagne" is said to be married to a divorced woman belonging to an ancient Polish family, who presented him on her marriage eighteen months ago with a dowry of more than $50,000.

ORGANIST WHO HAS PLAYED AT OVER 2,000 WEDDINGS

Proud Record of Professor Vernham, Choirmaster of St. Paul's Church in England, Who Can Remember Many Notable Ceremonies.

(Special Dispatch.) LONDON, May 9. NEVER to have been late for a service for thirty-five years is the proud record of Professor J. E. Vernham, the organist and choirmaster of St. Paul's, Knightsbridge. "Not only have I never been late," he said to your correspondent recently, "but I have only once been absent through illness since the third week in April, 1879, when I took up my duties here. During that time I have played, I suppose, at seven thousand services, including more than two thousand fashionable weddings, which I think is a record. "There have been very few fluctuations in the popularity of the church for weddings, and I cannot count the number of ladies who have become brides while I have sat at my organ. Among the weddings I can remember are those of the late Duke of Sutherland, the Duke of Westminster, at which King Edward was present and signed the register; the Earl of Dalkeith, the Earl of Drogheda, Earl Brassey and Sir James Reid, Queen Victoria's physician. "There has been very little change in the fashions of weddings, except that, of course, the motor car has entirely displaced the wedding carriage and pair, driving away the bride and bridegroom. The remarkable thing is the monotonous smoothness and sameness with which weddings take place. I can remember only one in which there was any excitement. Owing to some little social unpleasantness caused by jealousy, some one had threatened to shoot the bridegroom on his wedding day, and the church was surrounded by police, and plain clothes men were scattered among the congregation. Having no ticket I myself was for a time refused admittance. Nothing untoward happened at the ceremony. "The most appropriate anthem I ever played was when a certain peer was being married. He had kept the bride waiting for more than ten minutes, and the anthem, previously chosen by her, was 'I Waited for the Lord.' "The Duke of Connaught, when he is in London, is a frequent attendant at the service on Sunday. He likes to come in quietly, and sits in a seat in the Lady Chapel, behind the altar, just opposite the organ. I can see him in the mirror. Princess Marie Louise of Schleswig-Holstein has also been a frequent member of the congregation. I do not think we have so many titles among our seatholders nowadays. The country week-end habit seems to have taken many away, and the season during which they are in town at all is shorter, but they still come here to be married."

CHINESE CUISINE FOR JADED ENGLISH APPETITES

Kai Chop Suey, Chao Fu Yung Hai and Many Other Oriental Dishes, Eaten with Chopsticks, Strikes Londoners Very Favorably.

(Special Dispatch.) LONDON, May 9. THE ring of restaurants that surrounds Piccadilly-circuit now that Chinese cuisine has established a Chinese restaurant in Glasshouse street, is equal to catering for any known taste and to satisfy any appetite. A special luncheon was given at this new Chinese Restaurant with the object of showing that Chinese cookery can be appreciated by English people, and by slight alteration in the sequence of the dishes can accord with Western ideas. Accordingly, soup was served first, although the usual Chinese custom is to serve it last, the idea being that it washes down a meal and at the same time, makes for any shortage in the preceding dishes. The menu was printed in Chinese characters. The dishes start in the top right hand corner and read downward. Translated into English characters, the menu would read as follows:— Lung Lye Kai Chong Chi Chao Fu Yung Hai Yue Suet Min. This meal, therefore, started with yut ko min, which is chicken noodle soup; chao fu yung hai was a fried crab omelette; kai chop suey rather like an Irish stew, comprising rice, pork, chicken and all sorts of sliced vegetables; lye chi is a wonderful plum served in syrup, which looks like a white oyster and tastes like singer, and lung cheng is just a cup of rice. The Chinese students in London find the Chinese Restaurant a great boon. The meals they eat show that the cooking is appreciated. They study no sequence, but order all the dishes together, spread them around a big bowl of rice, and eat a piece of this and a piece of that as the fit takes them. It is as though an Englishman took a mouthful of Yorkshire pudding, a cut of roast beef, a spoonful of apple tart, a piece of fried sole and then a spoonful of tomato soup, repeating the process until all the dishes ended simultaneously. The luncheon, however, approximated more to Western ideas. There is no reason why the ordinary Englishman should not order such a menu as that given above and enjoy every dish besides having the pleasure of the novelty.

DEATH OF WOMEN WITH GOOD FIGURES IN PARIS

(Special Dispatch.) PARIS, May 9. THERE is a dearth of mannequins in the Paris. The fact is that the queens of beauty who parade so magnificently in the show rooms of the great couturiers are as much in demand for wives as chorus girls are among the peacocks in England. One by one the most attractive mannequins succumb to wealthy suitors, and live happily ever afterward. Mme. Paquin deplores the scarcity of mannequins. "It is true," she said, "a mannequin's life is such that it shows a girl off—she does not miss her chances of getting settled in life." Doucet is less alarmed. "There are occasional crises," said the manager, "but that is because mannequins must comply with fastidious conditions of beauty—figure, height and shoulders. Many, however, work to become saleswomen, and in their spare moments can be seen studying English grammar."

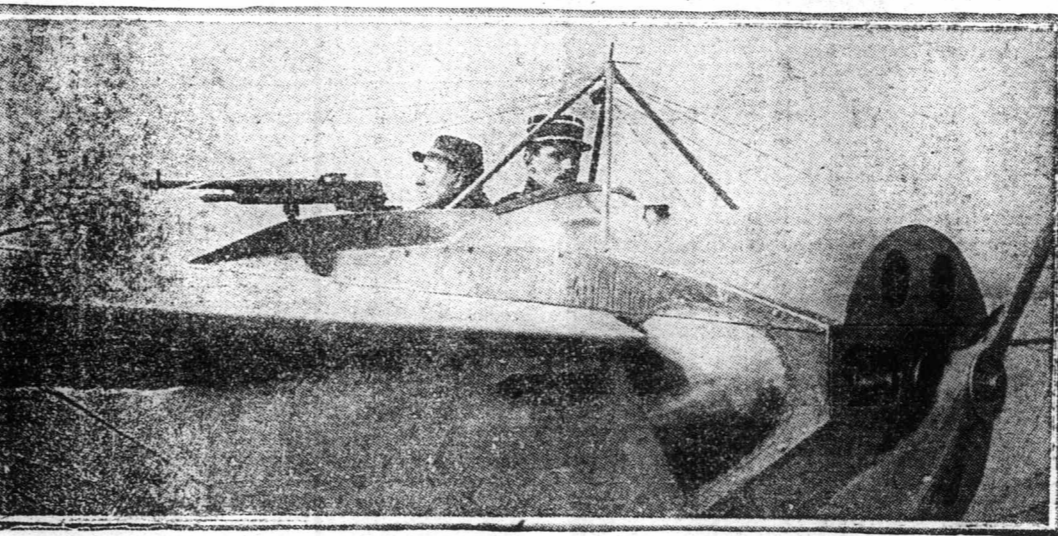

BURGLARS IN A BOX.

(Special Dispatch.) St. Petersburg, May 9. SOME days ago a girl named Yakovleva entered the service of M. Roboff, a wealthy merchant at Lbovo, on the Moscow-Windau-Rybinsk railway. Soon after Yakovleva had brought to the house a large trunk containing, so she said, her belongings. No sooner was it taken into the kitchen than a dog of M. Roboff's made a rush at it, barking and growling. The animal was driven off several times, but persisted in returning. M. Roboff was informed of its strange behavior, and, his suspicions being excited, he ordered Yakovleva to open the trunk. When she refused he had the box opened by some male servants, and two youths armed with revolvers were found crouching inside. They obviously intended to commit burglary and attempted to use their revolvers, but were immediately overpowered and arrested with Yakovleva.

WITCHES IN SARDINIA.

(Special Dispatch.) Rome, May 9. THE belief in witches which still exists in one of the way parts of Italy is illustrated by a case now going on in Sardinia, in which six old women have been brought before the judge for having obtained larger or smaller sums of money not only from other women but from workmen and from country gentlemen. The sums they have received, varying from a few francs to £200, were in return for various services, from the care of the souls of the departed and interviews with the dead to the cure of inflammation of the lungs and lunacy, the lengthening of life, and protection from the

The Channel Tunnel Discussed

(Special Dispatch.) LONDON, May 9. LORD SYDENHAM, formerly secretary of the Committee of Imperial Defence, in an article contributed to a pamphlet issued by the Channel Tunnel Company, Limited, declares that in the event of the tunnel being constructed there would be no necessity for any precaution involving its permanent destruction. He puts forward, however, a number of other precautions which "might be taken to satisfy the alarmists." Two forts, he suggests, should be brought into connection with the defence arrangements of the tunnel, their object being to contain and control certain safeguards and to bring fire to bear on certain points. A portcullis arrangement, controlled from one of the forts and combined with the lifting of a section of rails, might be adopted as a temporary obstruction, and arrangements would be made to flood a portion of the tunnel in the event of its being

TRIAL OF A RELIGIOUS IMPOSTOR IN ST. PETERSBURG

(Special Dispatch.) St. Petersburg, May 9. BEFORE the St. Petersburg District Court of Assizes the trial of a peasant woman, Daria Smirnova, and her two accomplices, likewise peasants, one Denis Shemetoff, and another Peter Smirnov, Daria's son, on a charge of blasphemy and swindle, is now going on. The proceedings are behind closed doors, but the indictment has been published in full, and presents certain features which are nothing short of extraordinary. It appears that the said Daria Smirnova had since 1901, when she settled in a village close to Okhta, one of St. Petersburg's suburbs, been giving herself out as God's mother sent down to earth by God to reveal to sinning mankind new truth and bring them new salvation. In spite of the proximity to the capital, she succeeded in imposing upon a vast multitude of common people, and so great became the fame of the "Okhta God's Mother," as she was blasphemously called, that disciples would flock to her even from distant provinces. At first her husband was in alliance with her, but as she liked the company of other men jealousy gradually drove him away, and it was he who really informed the police of her escapades. When he was gone she made Shemetoff her most important lieutenant by proclaiming him to be St. Peter, the Apostle, and next to him her own son, who she declared was none other than King Solomon.

DORSET AS IT IS SPOKEN

(Special Dispatch.) LONDON, May 9. THE notice to the members of the Society of Dorset Men in London of the annual dinner on May 4 is issued in the Dorset dialect by Mr. William Watkins, the secretary. He says:—"I be martel pleased to tell 'ee that our gilt yearly veast 'ull be held again this year, an' ver 'th' tenth time ov axen, in 'th' King's Hall' o' the Holborn Restaurant, on 'th' fourth day o' 'th' merry month o' May." There is much more in the same pleasing style.

BATTERIES DEPLETED.

(Special Dispatch.) LONDON, May 9. THE mysterious disappearance of a number of shells and cartridge cases from the Point Batteries, Portsmouth, is engaging the attention of the military authorities and police. It appears that during the last two months the stores have been depleted by about a dozen twelve pounder shells filled with blank charges, as well as a number of empty shells of the same size, and forty empty cartridge cases. There are no barracks attached to the batteries, but sentries are always on guard.

LONDON'S OMNIBUSES.

(Special Dispatch.) LONDON, May 9. THE whole population of London is carried one hundred times a year in motor omnibuses," said Mr. C. J. Cater Scott, who presided at the sixtieth annual staff dinner of the Omnibus Company at the Hotel Cecil the other night. "Last year the company's omnibuses carried 678,000,000 passengers," he said, "over 500 miles of route in about 3,000 omnibuses, and during the course of the year the omnibuses ran over 105,000,000 miles. "Fares paid amounted to £2,250,000, and out of that the company paid £120,000 to 10,000 are drivers or conductors." Mr. John O'Connor, M.P., mentioned that in the four days of the Easter holidays the company's omnibuses carried 5,000,000 people, and on one day alone of the 1914 Easter managing the manager had not been looking well for a couple of days and that such a sandwich might help revive him. The astonished manager was nearly suffocated. But there was a gentler side to the Rubic. When player or spectator was hurt he was the first to rescue. Danny Hoffman, hit on the head by one of Tommichill's fast shoots at Boston, gave Waddell the credit for saving his life. Hoffman fell to the ground unconscious. An ambulance was sent for. A group of frightened players stood around and waited. A kneeling doctor said that Hoffman might not survive the wait until the hospital could be reached. Then while people of brains stood helpless Waddell, the supposed clown and mental lightweight acted. He gently raised the form of the unconscious Hoffman over his shoulders, and despite the burden actually ran across the field, brushing everybody out of the way until he found a carriage at the entrance of the grounds. He pushed it into service and had Hoffman rushed to the hospital. Waddell went along and sat in his uniform the greater part of the night, holding to the face of his injured teammate the ice that mitigated his sufferings. It was an act that in all its details of devotion and quick thought a mental giant might have envied.

GYPSYING.

Gypsying, gypsying thro' the world to, together.

Never mind the way we go, never mind what port; Follow trails, or fashion sails—start in any weather, While we journey hand in hand, everything is sport.

Gypsying, gypsying leaving care and worry;

Never mind the "if" andy "but," (words for coward's lips). Put them out with "fear" and "doubt" in the pack with "hurry," While we stroll like vagabonds, forth to trails or ships.

Gypsying, gypsying, just where fancy calls us;

Never mind what others say, or what others do, Everywhere, or foul or fair, liking what befalls us; While you have me at your side, and while I have you,

Gypsying, gypsying thro' the world we wander,

Never mind the rushing years that that have come and gone, There must be for you and me, lying over yonder, Other lands where side by side, we can gypsy on.

BUILD UP YOUR HOME MARKET

Farmers Should Patronize Local Trade Centers.

There are two ways of looking at the subjects of home markets, and the subjects should be studied from both viewpoints if a reasonably correct understanding is to be arrived at.

It should be understood in advance that each community, inclusive of all the people who live in the market town and the farmers who surround it, is an industrial unit and that the prosperity of the individuals living in the community rises and falls, ebbs and flows, with the prosperity of the community as a whole.

One important aspect of the situation is that the farmer has a right to look for a good market for what he raises and has to dispose of. He is a producer, first of all, and must produce before he can consume.

The trading center, where he would naturally expect to dispose of his surplus products, is not performing its functions as a part of the community if it does not make preparation for buying everything the farmer wishes to sell, and the market should always be a cash market.

This much the farmer has a right to demand in return for the support he is able to give the town.

Could Get Better Prices.

If the farmers have in their local town a market for their products or a great part of them they would obtain a much better price for everything they raise, and the consumer would pay considerably less than the people living in large congested centers.

To supply the needs and demands of the people living in the large cities great quantities of country produce are daily shipped to the commission merchants operating there.

The city consumer pays the price for living in the center of excitement, as he joins with the producer in sharing the cost of moving the farm products to the large cities; also the expense entailed in handling, storing and disposing of them.

Town is Entitled to Support. On the other hand, having provided for a good, adequate market, the town is entitled to the support of the farmers.

Furthermore, the only manner in which the market can be maintained is for the farmers to give all their trade to their local merchants—keep their money at home.

The cow must be fed if she is to continue giving milk. You cannot draw more out of a cask than has been put into that cask.

If the farmers of a community persist in sending the money they receive for their products away from home to buy goods the time surely will come when there will be no money at home with which the town's tradesmen can buy the farmers' products.

This is the philosophy of the situation in a nutshell.

The resident of a town who does not exert his every effort in its interest, to build it up and make it strong and prosperous, is indeed retarding his own advancement. That's the logical reply.

Your taste for good tea will prove to you

Red Rose Tea "is good tea"

Capable President of the Daughters of the Empire—Mrs. Albert E. Gooderham.

"She is just splendid." "Yes, isn't she? And it is the way she keeps at a thing until it is accomplished, as well as her ability which makes her so successful." "And she's blessed with such good common sense, too—she is really a wonder."

Such were a few remarks overheard recently when the name of the President of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, Mrs. Albert E. Gooderham, was incidentally brought into the conversation by some of the members of that Order.

"She is more than all that," said a quiet voice at our side, the voice of one who knows more intimately of Mrs. Gooderham, both in private and public life, "for no one could have any idea of all the good she does."

Could you ask higher, better praise for any woman, than that other women should be staunch in their loyalty to her and sincere in their admiration?

For three years now, Mrs. Gooderham has been president of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire which is holding its 14th annual meeting in Toronto this week, and in that time she has been untiring in her devotion to the interests of the Order.

Many even of the members do not realize that their president devotes practically her whole time outside the demands of her home, to furthering the influence of the organization.

To meet Mrs. Gooderham is to be at once convinced of a quiet force of character. In her quiet yet smiling blue eyes you can read many things. You feel that she is broad-minded, tolerant of others' views, one who has an abiding faith in goodness, a woman with a love of home deep-rooted in her heart, and one who gets a great deal of happiness out of life, to which in turn she gives so generously of her ability and energy.

Colonel and Mrs. Gooderham's home "Deanerof" in Rosedale, where Tuesday, the visiting members of the Order are being entertained, is one of the most beautiful homes in Toronto, and no where could one find a more charming hostess.

Mrs. Gooderham was formerly Miss Duncanson, her father being a Highland Scotchman—a fact of which his daughter is very proud—who had made his home in Amherstburg. Her girlhood was spent there and in Windsor, and it was while on a visit to Toronto that she met Mr. Gooderham, and shortly after was married.

Seven sons and daughters have come to round out their happiness, of whom five, three daughters and two sons are living.

One would like to give some comprehensive idea of the work of the Daughters of the Empire. In the first place it is practically the only organization for the promotion of patriotism that we have. This it does along educational lines, realizing that the ideas inculcated in the minds of the children depends to a large extent the future of Canada.

Not only do they seek to inspire loyalty in Canadian born children, but special efforts are made to interest the foreign born who have yet to learn loyalty to the British Empire. Patriotic programmes for school children are part of the routine work of the Order.

A SUNDAY SERMON BY PASTOR RUSSELL

CREATION DRAMA'S

AUTHOR AT TEMPLE

Discourse on Special Call of Christ's Church.

ANNOINED TO BE KINGS

Jesus the Head—The Church the Body—Special Training For Officers—Who May Qualify For Election—Terms and Conditions to Be Met—Patient Continuance in Well-doing—Character-Intensity to Christ the Necessary Qualification—Suffering With Christ—Three Classes That Enter Race For Prize—Only One Will Be Successful.

New York City, May 8.—Pastor Russell was at home today, and in the forenoon had with the rapid increase of production of the story of the Bible in films, panoramas, etc., as exhibited in his Creation Drama, it being produced now in the principal cities of the country.

The Temple is the headquarters of Pastor Russell's increasing famous Photo-Drama of Creation. It was here that his charmingly instructive Story of the Bible in Moving Pictures was launched last January, and it is still being exhibited to large audiences, every afternoon and evening, Sundays included.

When the Pastor is absent from the city on Sundays, The Temple pulpit is occupied in the forenoon by one of his able assistants.

Readers of Pastor Russell's worldwide, syndicated sermons are familiar with the rapid increase of production of the story of the Bible in films, panoramas, etc., as exhibited in his Creation Drama, it being produced now in the principal cities of the country.

Pastor Russell's theme this forenoon was based upon the text: "If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow Me."—Matthew 16:24.

God purposed from before the foundation of the world, said the Pastor, to establish a Kingdom, the blessing of all mankind. In His infinite Wisdom the Almighty had foreseen the entrance of sin and His penalty of death. He sent His Son, His own great Plan whereby He would set aside this curse of death and bring in a blessing to the whole human family.

This Kingdom, the Pastor explained, is to be different from any other in that its Monarch will be not only a King, but also a Priest. For this reason, he declared, Christ is said to be a Priest after the Order of Melchizedek, who was a priest upon His throne, Christ is to be a King and a Priest at the same time. His anointing with the Holy Spirit at Jordan was to represent His induction into the place of favor with the Father. He would be the Son of the living God, the Son of the Father, the Son of the Father, recognized as such by the Almighty.

The Pastor then showed that the condition upon which God would appoint any one to the office of King and Priest was this: "The one accounted worthy of this high honor must first demonstrate his obedience to the Father even unto death—an obedience that would respond to any requirement that the Father might impose. When Jesus made a covenant of Himself at Jordan, He offered Himself to meet the conditions. As He said of Himself later, "I come not to do Mine own will, but the will of My Father who sent Me."

The work to be done was first to prove Himself worthy to be the great King, the great Priest, and thus He would be given authority to bless the world. Secondly, this very sacrifice of Himself, by which He would demonstrate His worthiness to be the great Priest, upon His throne would be a sin-offering on behalf of humanity, to pay the ransom-price for the world, and thus to set aside legally and justly the penalty which God had pronounced against Adam and which affected all his posterity.

The Pastor next pointed out Jesus' steps in fulfillment of God's Plan. At the age of thirty years our Lord consecrated Himself to do the Father's will, saying, as foretold by the Psalmist, "Lo, I come; in the volume of the Book it is written of Me, I delight to do Thy will, O My God!" (Psalm 40:7, 8.) Then for three and a half years the Master was thoroughly tested to demonstrate that He had really meant all that He said when He made that consecration. Yet when He was in the Calvary He cried, "It is finished." He referred to His demonstration of loyalty and obedience to the Father's will. Hisfulness of laying down His life in the Father's service, His work as Purchaser of the world, was finished.

Continuing his argument, the Pastor declared that God raised Jesus from the dead on the third day in order that He might be a Prince and a Saviour. (Acts 5:30, 31.) But although more than eighteen centuries have passed since the world was still unsaved. The speaker then showed that during this time God has been calling a class out of the world for a special purpose. This special call of the Gospel Age is to the effect that as many as hear this Message are privileged to become, upon certain conditions, members of this special class which God is selecting—this "Body of Christ, which the Pastor then stated the terms and conditions upon which any one is eligible for membership in the Body of Christ: The Father gives the invitation while the High Calling of this Age is open. He nominates, and who accept the call, but each must elect himself by compliance with the terms and conditions. The speaker explained that the call is a drawing toward God, a desire to come near to Him. Some have it from birth, others get it at their mother's knee, others through a hymn, a book, through hearing the Scriptures, etc. The invitation thus points to Christ as the Way to God constitutes a call, an invitation.

Those who have heard the call, however, must learn that the first step is to turn away from sin. Next they must learn that God has made provision through the cross whereby they may be forgiven. To those who take these two steps the Saviour says, "If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow Me." The speaker explained that to deny one's self is to give over one's self-sufficiency, one's dependence on self, one's self-will, and accept instead the Divine will. It is just as if the person had died; he is no longer his own. He has died to the world, to the flesh, to all his desires, and receives in their stead new ambitions, hopes, aims and desires.

When the next showed what it is to take up the cross. One just starting in the narrow way to life will not know what his cross is to be. But gradually, as he goes forward, he will find that his cross is the will of God. This will be manifest in various ways, which may not be fully understood at first; but if the cross is the will of God, every trial will sooner or later prove to be a blessing, and the child of God will learn to rejoice in what once seemed a burden.

Then the Pastor explained what is meant by following Christ. This signifies patient continuance in bearing the cross. It is not the Lord's narrow way must demonstrate to Divine satisfaction that the character is fixed for truth, loyalty to God, and regard to the principles of righteousness.

This does not mean that the flesh is to be perfected, the Pastor claimed, but the New Creature, the new man, the man who will follow the human nature there dwells no perfection. Whatever is done in spite of one's endeavors to do right, will God we know that will fall human nature there dwells no perfection. Whatever is done in spite of one's endeavors to do right, will God we know that will fall human nature there dwells no perfection. Whatever is done in spite of one's endeavors to do right, will God we know that will fall human nature there dwells no perfection.

Lesson VI.—Second Quarter, For May 10, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Luke xvi, 1-13. Memory Verses, 8, 9—Golden Text, Luke xvi, 10—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Our last lesson was concerning a young man who wasted his father's substance in riotous living (Luke xv, 13). Now we read of a steward who wasted his master's goods.

We are all stewards of Him who gives us life and breath and all things; in whom we live and move and have our being; in whose hand our breath is and whose are all our ways; who gives richly all things to enjoy. (Acts xvii, 25, 28; Dan. v, 23; 1 Tim. vi, 17). We are either good stewards, using His gifts for others as well as ourselves, or we are selfish, using all things for ourselves only. The rich man of next week's lesson, we will find, was unbelieving and selfish. The rich man of chapter xv, 19-20, was thoroughly selfish and foolish. The rich young ruler of chapter xviii, 23, was also more interested in his riches than in a proper use of them, and in that connection our Lord said that riches sometimes hindered a man from entering the kingdom. It is not always so, for Zachaeus was rich and Joseph of Arimathea (Luke xii, 2, 9; Matt. xxvii, 57), as also were Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, David and others.

Money is not necessarily evil, but it is written, "The love of money is the root of all evil" and it is better to follow after righteousness, godliness, faith, love, patience, meekness (1 Tim. vi, 10, 11). This present world or age is evil, it lieth in the wicked one, the devil is its god, its friendship is enmity with God, we are not to be conformed to it, for we are not of it (Gal. i, 4; 1 John v, 19; 1 Cor. iv, 4; Jas. i, 4; Rom. xii, 2; John xvii, 14, 16). Therefore we cannot serve God and Mammon, or riches, but we can make good use of Mammon and use this world without abusing it (verses 9, 13).

As to this unjust steward whom our Lord uses as an illustration, he was found guilty of defrauding his employer and was told that he must lose his situation. He at once set about providing for himself when he would be no longer steward by cutting down the indebtedness of all his lord's debtors, thus laying them under obligation to him to befriended him when he would have no employment. He was such a dishonest fellow that he did not care how much he robbed his master if he could only provide for himself. His master commended his shrewdness in thus providing for his future, even though it was at further cost to himself. Our Lord did not speak well of him, for He would not justify a wrong transaction, but He did say that this bad man was wiser in his way than those who made no provision for their future in the world to come.

I have often been asked how our Lord could commend this unjust man and his sin. Our Lord did not commend him; it was his own lord, or master, who told him, virtually, that it was a clever rascal in providing for his future in this fraudulent way. Our Lord said to His disciples that it would be well to use all present opportunities in their reach with reference to the future that many might welcome them in the kingdom. All believers are put in trust with the gospel and with the talents and pounds, and all are stewards of the manifold grace of God, and some are stewards of the mysteries of God, all have received the spirit to profit withal (1 Thess. ii, 4; Matt. xxv; Luke xix; 1 Pet. iv, 10; 1 Cor. iv, 1; xii, 7, 11). We are debtors to every creature to give the gospel to all, and by going, or helping others to go, and thus win souls, we are gathering up to Him those who will welcome us in His kingdom, even though we may never have seen them face to face on earth. Thus we cause joy in the presence of the angels now and great increase of joy to ourselves in His kingdom.

We cannot remind you too often that there are no degrees in salvation, no one can be more saved than another after Jesus Christ is truly received. All who are in Christ are equally safe, and safe forever. But all saved ones are expected to serve the living and true God as He may direct, and every one shall receive his own reward according to his own labor (1 Cor. iii, 8; Rev. xxii, 12; Luke xiv, 14). The Pharisees who were covetous or money lovers derided Him and His teachings, desiring the approval of men rather than the approval of God, and they violently opposed the King and the kingdom until they finally killed Him, saying, "We have no king but Caesar." Those who prefer the friendship of this world are called adulterers (Jas. iv, 4). The true disciple is married to the Lord to bring forth fruit unto God (Rom. vi, 4), but Israel was an empty vine bringing forth fruit unto himself, a degenerate graft of a strange vine bearing wild grapes (Hos. x, 1; Jer. ii, 21; Isa. v, 2).

That which men esteem and which God esteems are as far separate as hell and heaven, and yet the great crowd, many professing Christians included, prefer the ways of man and the praise of men because the goal of this world blinds their minds. Let us consider well if we are faithful to the trust committed to us, desiring in all things the approval of our Lord, whose stewards we are, and remembering that we must give an account to Him of our stewardship.

BLACK HAND SECRETS REVEALED BY CHIEF OF SECRET SERVICE

IN THE GRIP OF THE BLACK HAND

By WILLIAM J. FLYNN,
Chief of the United States Secret Service

"Comito the Sheep" Gives Graphic Account of His Experiences with Cruel Counterfeitng Band.

ALTHOUGH I was not allowed to go back to New York," Comito says in his confession, "I still believed that I was near Philadelphia, and I was happy in anticipation of getting to work with the printing presses."

"About three o'clock in the morning of December 8, 1908, Cina awakened Caterina and me and told us to get onto a truck which he had harnessed his horses. With us went Giglio, who was one of Cecala's godfathers, and a man named Bernardo, who had the biggest mouth I have ever seen. We drove through the village, and after about two and a half hours came to an old stone house in a lonesome part of the country."

"Here it is, the printing shop," said Bernardo, laughing. "Don't you like it?" "No," I replied. I was very angry, but I feared to show it, for Bernardo's laugh had an ugly ring.

"Tell it to Cecala when he comes," said Cina, and he sneered. "Cecala, you will remember, was the man who offered Comito the position of printer and who told him that the shop was near Philadelphia. It was he who engineered the kidnapping scheme and managed to get Comito and Caterina to Highland, N. Y., more than one hundred and fifty miles away from Philadelphia. Comito in his confession says:—

"But this is no place for a printing shop," I argued. "Come," ordered Cina very gruffly. "Don't lose time. Unload the stuff and go inside."

"I will go back with Caterina," I said. "Where to?" asked Cina. "To the house where we were, and then to New York."

"Caterina all this time was glaring at me as though it would have given her happiness to plunge a knife between my ribs."

"You can't stay in my house any longer," said Cina. "There are too many children. When Cecala returns you can talk to him."

"By this time all our furniture was in the house. I heard Cina tell Giglio that he was going away."

"I will go with you," I said. "You're crazy," replied Cina. "Have you any money to pay me for returning your goods? Cecala may return to-morrow. You can tell him about it."

"Cina and Giglio began whispering together, and I went over to Caterina, who stood in the doorway with tears in her eyes."

"Do not let yourself feel troubled," I said to her. "As soon as we are alone we will go away."

"Where will we get the money?" demanded Caterina, with a look of scorn. Then she stamped away from me. This was unreasonable, for it was she who had given to Cecala the $5 which we had between us."

"In the morning another man, Cina's brother Peppino, brought provisions to the house. I had still nothing to do, for though the press had been set up in one of the rooms above, there was no type, and I did not know what it was I should print. I was very much depressed."

"I thought of running away with Caterina. Where should we go? Snow was on the ground and it was bitter cold. We might perish. My heart bled to see Caterina mistreated. I would have liked to see the death of Giglio and Bernardo, yet I was afraid of them. Their evil faces haunted my mind. And those filthy men whom I had met at Cina's house. I knew that they would have vengeance."

"Caterina fell into a fever and I worried that she might die. This was the happy life which had been promised to me. One morning I sat in the room downstairs smoking my pipe. There came a knock at the door. I opened it and Cina and Cecala entered. At sight of me they both burst out laughing. My anger flared up."

"I am no child," I cried, "and I will not be treated in this way." "Do not speak so loudly when you address us," said Cecala. "We are gentlemen."

"I know you are," I said, "but these actions do not become gentlemen." "Come, Don Antonio," he said, "I will talk with you upstairs."

"I had promised myself a dozen times that I would demand an accounting from Cecala, but now that the man's eyes were upon me all thought of crossing him fled. Remembering his record and the deeds of his companions I followed him upstairs with heavy feet and heavier heart. As the door closed behind us in the room with the press I wondered whether I should ever see Caterina again."

"Cecala spoke no word. With quick fingers he unwrapped a large parcel, and as I watched it dawned on me what I should be called upon to do. I saw at last why I had been trapped and my heart sank."

"You are to print counterfeit money," said Cecala with brutal bluntness. "Those words were my sentence. Had I refused, after Cecala would not have been worth the five dollars he owed to Caterina. Nor would he here."

"Here are the plates," said Cecala as he handed them to me. "Compare them with the originals. Do they not show clever work? It is this Canadian five dollar note which we will make at first. It is much easier to imitate than American money, for it has no silk threads in the paper. One hundred thousand sheets of paper I have brought, and before we are done we will print a million notes. Already I have had requests for some of the money. We will all be wealthy and you and your Caterina can then go where you will."

"But I do not know how to prepare the press for this work," I said. "I did not want to break the law. My feelings revolted at the thought of crime, yet dreams of such wealth almost overcame me. How happy I could make Caterina to repay her for all the hardships she had suffered. Was not this better than risking my life by trying to escape these men of the Black Hand? Still I knew that it was wrong."

"It is very difficult work to execute for one not accustomed to it," I said. "Cecala shot me an angry glance. 'Do not begin to make excuses,' he said. 'And see that your Caterina remains here with you. We need her. If she attempts to go away—'

"I was decided. They would have killed me had I not done as they wished. Caterina might have met worse than a sudden death."

"This is an example of the capacity for detail of these clever criminals. Cecala knew that three men living alone in the lonesome stone house would have excited suspicion among rural folks, but if Caterina were seen by passersby they would think that a family occupied the building. To resume Comito's confession:—

"I examined the plates which Cecala handed me. They were wonderful imitations. There were five pieces of zinc, one of which was engraved a part of the matter appearing on the notes. There were two large plates for the green, one for the black, one for the seal in a violet color, and one for the serial numbers which were to be in red."

"There was still some little doubt in my mind as to whether I could evade joining these counterfeiters. Cecala must have guessed my thoughts for he said very quietly to me, looking all the time into my eyes without blinking:—

"Don Antonio, you are the person who under my direction and that of one other whom you must not now know will print the notes. You know our secret. So much as whisper it to the trees and you are lost; Caterina as well."

"We are twenty that have organized this business, and we will respect you as one of us—UNTIL YOU BETRAY US. As for Caterina, we will respect her, too, and when we are all rich we will give her money to go to Italy. But you must be one of us for all time. Not even your parents shall know what you are doing, but we will better their condition as we better yours. But if you wish ever to see them again you must be true. No one will come here whom we do not know. The property is ours, and if detectives should be led here they will never go away. Do you understand what I mean?"

"So black was Cecala's frown as he spoke, and so surely did I know that he would slay me if I so much as made excuses, that my tongue clogged between my teeth and I could make no reply. Cecala laughed, and at last I said:—

"It is only my wish that you may be satisfied with my work, for I have never seen counterfeit money before, nor printed it, and I will have much to learn."

"Then Caterina called us to dinner, but I ate little, for the food stuck in my throat and fear stifled my appetite. After the meal Cecala, who had eaten and drunk heartily, showed me the plates for a two-dollar bill of United States currency. He said that we would first print $20,000 in Canadian money and then $50,000 in American two dollar notes. The plates for the American bills were of check letter A, plate number 1111. There were three plates, one to print the green, one for the face or black, and one for the seal and counter of dark blue."

"Cecala and Cina remained in the stone house that day, and we were busy setting up the plates. Next day they returned with a man they called Uncle Vincent, and we all worked over the press. The plates were mounted on caja prepared the inks. All that day we worked at pulling proofs, trying to get the proper shade of green. At last Cecala added just enough yellow to the dark green ink and we lit upon the light tint we had been trying for. When the proofs dried we decided they were right for the Canadian five dollar notes."

"By the end of January we had printed $17,540 in the Canadian notes and packed them in an empty macaroni box, which was nailed up and made ready for Cecala to take away with him. We then began to work on the two dollar American bills, but we could not produce the exact shade of green. At last Cecala became discouraged and told me that we would have to consult with a man in New York who was experienced in such matters. He went away, giving me $5, and telling me to go to New York, on February 4 to meet him at his house. I was not to leave the stone house, however, until Cina called for me with a carriage."

"All things occurred as Cecala had said they would, and immediately on my arrival in New York I went to his house in Fourth street. There I met his wife, who first asked me:—

"Are you Don Antonio?" "Yes," I replied. "Do you come from Highland?" she asked. "Yes," I replied. "The other hand, when you see in dis-Suppose you are arrested. You must never tell that you know us. If you do, you will die, but if you do not, even at the cost of all our property, we will save you."

"I returned to the little house near Highland and soon afterward a man whom they called Don Peppe came to mix the inks. While we worked, Giglio or Uncle Vincent remained always on guard with a rifle and revolver prepared to kill any one who trespassed on the farm and would not go away."

"One night there came a great rapping on the door of the stone house. It was two o'clock in the morning. It is the detectives, I thought. Uncle Vincent sprang from his bed, and I heard his rifle click as he cocked it. He was very white, Bernardo and Giglio stood in the middle of the room, revolvers in their hands. Their faces pale, lines changing together from fear. It was the first time I had

"$20,000 in the two dollar notes, and they were sent away."

"One day Peppino arrived at the stone house and told me that I was to accompany him to Cina's house, where certain men from New York wished to see me. I was dismayed at this message, for I felt sure that my last hour had come. There was no doubt in my mind that I was to be murdered. Caterina and I had been alone for a week in the stone house, so unknown to any one I signed one of Uncle Vincent's receipts into my pocket."

"At Cina's house I met Morollo, Lupo and many others. They found fault with the way I had worked and insulted me, but though they turned much of the counterfeit money, some of it was kept, and I went back to the stone house to print more of the counterfeit bills."
