Burned Brether's Lafe.

Toronto, Oct. 11.—Charile, the 8-yearold son of Mr. Hugh Smith of the Custorus House, was nearly burnt to death.
His left side, back and arm were so badly burned that the physicians in attendance almost gave up hope for his life.
A consultation was held, at which it was concluded that the only way to heal the burns and save the use of the muscles to the boy was to graft skin upon them.
The doctors looked in, vain for someone that would permit the skin to be out

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 11.—Marion Brown, alias Themas Allen, the one-legged mulatto accused of killing P. C. Michael Twobey at London on June 24. fell into the hands of the Canadian pelice on Sunday. Brown was arrested at Yakima, Wash., after a long and difficult search. He was taken to Seattle to await the tedious process of extradition. Liquor and drugs were smuggled into his cell there, and he was taken out of Seattle jail, believing that his liberators were his friends. From Seattle he was brought to Port Angeles, and thence to Victoria. As soon as he stepped on to Canadian soil Constables Redgrove and Andorson arrested him, and he knew he had been tricked. He fought furiously, although he has only one leg, but was overpowered. If he is convicted, United States Marshal A. L. Dilley of Yakima will receive the $500 roward. ly While Being Captured. South Perth Again.

Toronto, Oct. 11. — Two additional papers were filed in the South Perth election case yesterday, both having relation to additional particulars, and both for the benefit of the respondent, Mr. Moscrip. The first consists of eight additions to the charges alleged by Mr. Moscrip in the straight petition, from which it would appear that Mr. J. W. Graham, barrister of St. Mary's, has been distributing the good things with no unsparing hand. Three charges of furnishing "mest, drink and refreshment" at the expense of the Conservative candidate, Mr. Nelson Monteith, comprise the second, and they are added to the cross-petition.

A GREAT BOAT RACE.

THE BENNINGTON'S CRACK CREW GOT A COSTLY SURPRISE.

The Story of a Fourth of July Rowing test at Henelulu Which Emptied the Pockets and Lacerated the Feelings of "About as dismal a Fourth of July as ever I experienced on board a mano'-war," said an ex-sailor of the navy now living in Washington to a report-er, "was Independence day not many years ago down in the harbor of Honolulu. The Bennington had an all star racing boat's crew. The eight had just happened to be assigned to the Bennington in a bunch before she left for her Pacific cruise, and several of the ningson in a button the parties of the coarsmen had been members of the Columbia's crack boat's crew that walloped the coarsment and boat's crew that walloped the coars of th lumbia's crack boat's crew that wantped all of the British navy's boats' crews in English waters a few years before. The Bennington's cutter was one of the best in the navy, and she had been built for a racer. Before we left the Marc Island navy yard for south Pacific waters the ship's racing crew had easily beaten all of the other crews of the ships lying at the yard, including the tiptop orew of the Olympia and the Boston's fine crew. We thought that we were about as warm as they make 'em after our crew put it on so many other man-o'. war crews, giving them a couple of minutes the start of us, too, on namerous cocasions and still beating their disgracefully. in the navy, and she had been a rager. "We thought this race was at our mercy. It was to be a four sided affair one crew of Kanaka sugar field workers, a crew of Kanaka policemen and the racing crew of the yacht Eleanor, belonging to Mr. Slater of Providence, that had pulled into Honolulu harbor from Japan a few days before. Our crew didn't pay much attention to the yacht's racing crew and were only figuring on the distance they could beat the crew of Kanaka policemen, which seemed the most formidable.

"The race was over the four mile course carefully blocked out in the harbor—which was very smooth—by the one crew of Kanaka sugar field workers, bor—which was very smooth—by the Honolulu aquatic sportsmen, and the start was first rate. There wasn't a man, start was first rate. There wasn't a man, fore or aft, on the Bennington that didn't stand to go broke to the extent of at least a month's pay on the success of the Bennington's crew, and we had to give 3 to 1, too, for it was generally conceded that we shad the second of the secon

"The start, as I and, was good, and the Bennington's crew showed in front first and started out apparently to make a runaway race of it. The Kanaka po-licemen's crew trailed after them, pulling steadily, then the Kanaka sugar workers and, a good ten lengths to the workers and, a good ten lengths to the rear, the Eleanor's crew. This was the way it looked for the finish when the Bennington's crew rounded the stake-

"Some of the Honolulu men who had their money up on the two Kanaks stakeboat was rounded, it was noticed that the 'Energy's' boat was sort of getthat the Eleanor's boat was sort of getting a move on itself, and the men were working like machines at a long, were working like inachines as a long, steady stroke that certainly looked as if it was cutting down the Bennington's lead and the lead of the two Kanaka lead and the least of the stakeboat boats.

"Two minutes after the stakeboat was rounded the Eleanor's gang were right abreast of the Kanaka cutters and gaining on them with every stroke, and the cox'an of the Bennington's cutter, hearing the yells of warning from the Bennington bluejackets ashore, looked Bennington bluejackets ashore, looked behind him and saw the Eleanor cutter only two lengths behind him and com-ing like an electric launch. Our crew was tired, and that's all there was about it.

"The Eleanor's crew had held themin for the finish, and they cer selves in for the finish, and they certainly did make a Garrison finish of it. The yacht's outter shot ahead of our outter a good mile from home, and then, to make the thing more galling, the crew actually stopped rowing until the Bennington's crew was alongside again. Then they took to the cars again, and from then on it was a howling farce. Then they took to the anal significant from then on it was a howling farce.

kickshaws which figure regularly upon the German table are reputed to be most sustaining. They certainly are intensely and ostentationely wonder inspiring. One preparation is everywhere met with under the name (more or less phonetically spelled) of beefsteak a la tartare. Its basis is raw chopped beef; this, spread out into a pat of elliptical shape, is crowned with the raw yolk of an egg, raw finely chopped onion is sprinkled over it, a garniture of gherkins is added, and the whole is eaten with much gusto and no worse consequences than a durable thirst.

For stodginess nothing beats the favorte dish, panache. It consists of vorite dish, panache. It consists or plokled pork, sour cabbage and a pureo of split peas boiled down to the consistency of stiff dough. Experiments on this mass produce deplorable capers and cause one to grunt mournfully. A variety of this diet is found in Berlin. You substitute boiled balls of dough and indifferent prunes for the peas and cabbage, and you have the dish popularly termed "the Silesian kingdom of heaven." Cold cels, imbedded in a translucid, glutinous substance, figure in all workmen's thverns, while roast goose is de rigueur for all solemnities. A dainty which we have recently met with in Berlin recalled Darwin's temmark that "hardly any experiment is semark that "hardly any experiment is remark that "hardly any experiment is so absurd as not to be worth trying." The other day I had a chat with an English gentleman who ought to know considerable about the social life in the United Kingd.m. From him I learned that one of the best knewn American names in the British metropolis is that of Leiter—but whether the public mind dwells on Levi Z., the founder of the house, or his hopeful son Joseph, who has just spent seven millions er more in a tuitle effort to corner the wheat market, my informant could not specify.

Old Levi Z. Leiter is a wonderful man—a typical Chicagoan, although he now resides at Washington. He came to the busy trade center at the foct of Lake Michigan before organized labor had made Dinner takes place toward 1 o'clock and consists of soup (generally nourishing), a plate of meat, with potatoes and fruit (cranberries, prunes or apricots), occasionally cheese, seldom sweets, rarely a green vegetable.

Three hours later coffee is taken, served with a piece of cake or thick bread and butter. This is the hour precious to the gossip and the busybody, the time for spreading scandal. Toward 8 o'clock the appetite again asserts itself. The hour of the ubiquitous sausages has arrived. Their name is legion, and they share the honors with slices of ham, smoked goose breast, pieces of raw pickled herring, and in summer hard bolled eggs and potato salad.

Such is the German method of spreading the meals over the day. Of course there are exceptions. Many families have two ample meals a day, but the bulk of the population eats mostly buttered bread and snacks. In justice to Germany one must say that the fare in many a home will compare favorably with that of many an American family, with that of many and the food singularly insipid. All reads seems to have the same heavy, viscous shaces, and invariably escotred with the same soughlike potatoes. Stodginess and heaving the family of the family o

A loss of $7,000,000 would cripple most of us financially, but the Leiter pessessions still rank among the most valuable in Chicago, and yield such a large income that a few years hence they will again be free from all incumbraness. Leiter never was a popular man, but his promptness in settling up Joseph's wheat deal made him thousands of friends among those who had formerly looked upon him with cold suspicion.

Mr. and Mrs. Leiter's pet child is their daughter Mary Victoria, who, in 1895, married Rt. Hon. George N. Curzon, a member of one of the oldess and noblest families of Europe. Mr. Curzon was a smart fellow, of prepossessing appearance and every inch a gentleman. But he was poor as Lazarus. The prisoner had not been convicted and both he and his attorney strongly resented any attempts to get his picture. Many had tried it and failed, and while the authorities wanted a picture to use in identifying him, it could not be done.

Then Van Ness apparently gave up the picture with the prisoner, during which he offered to take down Maxwell's story and print it verbatim; effering to let him see the shorthand notes after the interview, that he might be sure thorewan no picture. To the aurprise of the prison officials Maxwell consented to this and gave Van Ness the first interview anyone had been able to obtain from him. Van Ness wrote out the interview and sent it to New York, together with a portrait of the murderer, which was printed and led to his identification promptly through recognition by a former pal in London, England.

The authorities were greatly surprised at the picture, supposing it to be done from memory only, until long afterward Van Ness explained that during the pauses in the conversation he had mingled the characteristic lines of the pritoner's face with his shorthand notes, and from these lines, scattered through six or seven pages of shorthand notes and looking like them to the ordinary observer, he had been able te reconstruct the portrait that led to the conviction and death of the murderer. How it was done is shown in the accompanying sketches, from which it will be readily seen that

A GREAT BOAT RACE.

Centest at Henelulu Which Emptied the Pockets and Lacerated the Feelings of Vincle Sam's Jackies.

"About as dismal a Fourth of July as ever I experienced on board a manb'-war," said an ex-sailor of the navy now living in Washington to a report-"was Independence day not many years ago down in the harbor of Hono-lulu. The Bennington had an all star gaeing boat's crew. The eight had just racing boat's orew. The eight had luss happened to be assigned to the Ben-nington in a bunch before she left for her Pacific cruise, and several of the paramen had been members of the Co-lumbia's crack boat's crew that walloped all of the British navy's boats' crews in English waters a few years before.

The Bennington's outer was one of the best in the navy, and she had been allt for a racer. Before we left the the best in the navy, and she had been built for-a racer. Before we left the Mare Island navy yard for south Pacific waters the ship's racing crew had easily beaten all of the other crews of the ships lying at the yard, including the ships lying at the yard, including the tiptop crew of the Olympia and the Boston's fine crew. We thought that we were about as warm as they make 'em after our crew put it on so many ceher man-o'-war crews, giving them a couple of minutes the start of us, too, on namerous occasions and still beating ther disgracefully.

The people of Honolulu arranged an aquatic festival for the Fourth of an aquatic reserval to the formula and aquatic reserval to the Fourth just as enthusiastically as we do up here—and the Bennington's crew figured in it largely. Our ship's colors were at the fore in the two races that were run with picked Kanaka crews, and the third and last Kanaka crews, and the third and last sace of the day was one in which our crackajack eight was to figure, the other races having been won by subcrews practically picked at random from among the strongest seamen.

thought this race was at our mercy. It was to be a four sided affair— one orew of Kanaka sugar field workers, a crew of Kanaka policemen and the racing crew of the yacht Eleanor, be-longing to Mr. Slater of Providence, that had pulled into Honolulu harbor that had pulled into Honoliui harror from Japan a few days before. Our crew didn't pay much attention to the yacht's racing crew and were only fig-uring 6st the distance they could beat uring 62 the distance they could beat the crew of Kanaka policemen, which seemed the most formidable.

"The race was over the four mile course carefully blocked out in the harbor—which was very smooth—by the bor—which was very smooth—by the Honolulu aquatic sportsmen, and the start was first rate. There wasn't a man, fore or aft, on the Bennington that fore or aft, on the Bennington that didn't stand to go broke to the extent of at least a month's pay on the success of the Bennington's crew, and we had to give 8 to 1, too, for it was generally aded that we had the race at our mercy.

"The start, as I said, was good, and the Bennington's crew showed in front first and started out apparently to make a runeway race of it. The Kanaka po-licemen's crew trailed after them, pulllicemen's crew trailed after them, pull-ing steadily, then the Kanaka sugar workers and, a good ten lengths to the rear, the Eleanor's crew. This was the way it looked for the finish when the Bennington's crew rounded the stake-boat and started for the return trip.

"Some of the Monoiuti men who had their money up on the two Kanaka crews actually began to square accounts, and the cry, 'It's all over—Bennington!' was heard all ever the bay. When the stakeboat was rounded, it was noticed that the Eleanor's boat was sort of get-Mng a move on itself, and the men were working like machines at a long. were working into markets as it is was cutting down the Bennington's lead and the lead of the two Kanaka

"Two minutes after the stakeboat was rounded the Eleanor's gang were right abreast of the Kanaka cutters and gaining on them with every stroke, and the cox'an of the Bennington's cutter, hearing the yells of warning from the Resulviron bluestokets ashore. looked hearing the yells of warning from the Bennington bluejackets ashore, looked behind him and saw the Eleanor cutter only two lengths behind him and com-ing like an electric launch. Our crew was tired, and that's all there was

"The Eleanor's crew had held themtainly did make a Garrison finish of it.

The yacht's cutter shot ahead of our cutter a good mile from home, and then, curver a good mile from home, and then, to make the thing more galling, the crew actually stopped rowing until the Bennington's crew was alongside again. Then they took to the cars again, and from the row twee a bowling form The Eleanor's crew just romped their autter in ten lengths ahead of our cutter and the Kanakas a quarter of a

"You never saw such a disgusted los of men in your life as the men and officers on the Bennington. The Eleanor's ship company had taken all of the 8 to 1 money they could get on board our ship, for they knew they had a good thing up their sleeve. The Eleanor's crew on the whole trip around the world that was wound up at San Fran-cisco had not been beaten once in a cutter race, and the yacht's sailors had ter race, and the yacut's saints and made all kinds of money in betting on their crew. It was a minor sort of con-solation for us when we found out that five of the Eleanor's racing crew were ex-American man-o'-war's men.''-

EATING IN GERMANY. THE LEITER FAMILY.

Kicks All the Way Down the Bill of Fare and Is Particularly Irritated Over a Dish of Powdered Horse Radish Served

When you have examined the con of the German cuisine, you the psychology of a nation cannot be constructed upon a mere analysis of its made dishes. Your estimate of Brillat-Savarin sinks. He could not tell you what you are, even from all the menus of your lifetime. Freiligrath's philo-sophic conclusion that "man is what he eats" you straightway qualify as true only when referring to cannibalism. And you will aver that only in the case of paleolithic man can you construct a man from the crumbs that fall from his dinner table. And this you will want to prove, and consequently will grow talkative with presenting of much evidence.

And yet, in your sane moments, you will have a sneaking affection for the statement that a German is a German because he cats what he eats. As a gen-eral rule he may be said to eat five times a day. But his hunger is con-considered superfluous.

In the concrete the subject is almost too painful to face, the difficulty being to steer clear of exclamations denoting positive offensiveness. Some of the kickshaws which figure regularly upon the German table are reputed to be most sustaining. They certainly are intensely and ostentationsly wonder inspiring. One preparation is everywhere met with under the name (more or less phonetically spelled) of beefsteak a la tartare. Its basis is raw chopped beef; this, spread out into a pat of elliptical shape, is crowned with the raw yolk of an egg, raw finely chopped onion is sprinkled over it, a garniture of gherkins is added, and the whole is eaten with much gusto and no worse consewith much gusto and no worse consequences than a durable thirst.

In many of the dishes you discover all the humor, feeling and imagination of a Wagnerian composition. You find the resolute desire to build up harmony upon discord. Of this nature may be considered the traditional menu of New Yearls or the property of th considered the traditional menu of New Year's eve, carp, pancake and punch. These three, brought into immediate juxtaposition and consumed in plethoric quantities, generally have the desired effect—that of inducing a hysterical

For stodginess nothing beats the favorite dish, panache. It consists of vorte dish, panache. It consists of pickled pork, sour cabbage and a puree of split peas boiled down to the consistency of stiff dough. Experiments on this mass produce deplorable capers and cause one to grunt mournfully. A variety of this diet is found in Berlin. You substitute boiled balls of dough and indifferent prunes for the peas and cabbage, and you have the dish popularly termed "the Silesian kingdom of heaven." Cold eels, imbedded in a translucid, glutinous substance, figure in all workmen's taverus, while roast goose is de rigueur for all solemnities. A dainty which we have recently met with in Berlin recalled Darwin's remark that "hardly any experiment is

One may sum up one's judgment by saying of German cooking what the art critic said of nature, "It has infinite potentialities." (Special Correspondence.)

The other day I had a chat with an English gentleman who ought to know considerable about the social life in the United Kingdam. From him I samed that one of the best knewn American names in the British metropolis is that of Leiter—but whether the public mind dwells on Levi Z., the founder of the house, or his hopeful son Joseph, who has just spent seven millions er mere in a futile effort to corner the wheat market, my informant could not specify.

Old Levi Z. Leiter is a wonderful man—a typical Chicagoan, although he now resides at Washington. He came te the busy trade center at the foot of Lake, Michigan before organized labor had made because he cats what he cata. As a general rule he may be said to confirm of ady. But his hunger is constantly being stilled.

He starts early in the day with a cup of cafe au lait and a small buttered roll. This keeps him going till 11 o'clock, when he-demolishes a slice of buttered rye bread spread with a glass of ale, thus stilling his inner man till dinner time. Dinner takes place to ward 1 o'clock and consists of song (generally nourthing), a plate of meas, with potatoes and fruit (cranberries, prunes or apricots), cocasionally cheeken, served with a piece of cake or thick bread and butter. This is the hour precious to the goessip and the busybody, the time for spreading scandal. Toward 8 o'clock the appetite again asserts itself. The hour of the ubiquitous sansanges has arrived. Their name is legion, and they share the honors with alloes of ham, smoked goose breast, pieces of raw pickled herring, and in summer hard boiled eggs and potato salad.

Such is the German method of spreading the meals over the day. Of course there are exceptions. Many families have two ample meals a day, but the bulk of the population eats mostly buttered bread and snacks. In justice to Germany one muse say that the fare is many a home will compare favorably with that of many an American family. In the German restaurant the cuisine is on the whole monotonous and fare. The element of variety, too, seems considered superfinous.

The old man Leiter, so all Chicage calls him, showed that he had the true stuff in him. Instead of discowning his hopeful and enterprising descendant, he came to his Waterloo and began the settling-up process. He sold the most valuable parcel of real estate he had, at the southeast corner of State and Madison streets, to his former partner and later enemy, Marshal Field, for something over $2,000,000, and mortgaged other holdings for $3,500,000 to a Milwaukes life insurance ce way. He may have thought a great deet and the most fife for publication, but the he had, and the public never heard him grumble or complain. He knew his duty and did it. The Leiters had been equeezed, and, as their head, he paid the penalty.

A loss of $7,000,000 would cripple most of us financially, but the Leiter pessessions still rank among the most valuable in Chicago, and yield such a large income that a few years hence they will again be free from all incumbrances. Leiter never was a popular man, but his promptness in settling up Joseph's wheat deal made him theusands of friends among those who had formerly looked upon him with cold suspicion.

Mr. and Mrs. Leiter's pet child is their daughter Mary Victoria, who, in 1896, married Rt. Hon. George N. Curzon, a member of one of the oldest and noblest families of Europe. Mr. Curzon was a smart fellow, of prepossessing appearance and every inch a gentleman. But he was poor as Lazarus. POT-HOOK PORTRAIT. Remarkable Foat of Artist Van Nest When Prevented From Sketching by a State Law.

by a State Law.

The curious story of how the picture of the chief criminal in one of the most famous murder cases was obtained is now told for the first time. The manner of gesting it was novel, and it was the picture that ultimately and finally led to the punishment of the murderer. It was during the exottement that followed the Maxwell-Preller murder in St. Louis, while the murderer was in jall, and the authorities were valuly trying to identify him, that Portrait Artist Van Ness of Chicago received erders from the New York World to go to St. Louis, interview the murderer and get his picture. York World to go to St. Louis, interview the murderer and get his picture. When he got there he was informed by the authorities that it was a hopeless task; the prisoner was protected by the laws of the State, which forbade the photographing or sketching of persons arrested on suspicion until after they had been convicted, when they could be photographed for the rogues' gallery. The prisoner had not been convicted and both he and his attorney strongly resented any attempts to get his picture. Many had tried it and falled, and while the authorities wanted a picture to use in identifying him, it could not be done.

Then Van Ness apparently gave up the picture as hopeless, but demanded an interview with the prisoner, during which he effect to take down Maxwell's story and print it verbatin, efforing to let him soo the shorthand notes after the interview, that he might be sure there was no efficials Maxwell consented to this and gave Van Ness the first interview anyone had been able to obtain from him. He carefully examined the notes at the end of the interview and sont it to New York. To gether with a portrait of the murderer, which was printed and led to his identification promptly through recognition by a former pal in London, England.

The authorities were greatly surprised at the picture, supposing it to be done from memory only, until long afterward Van Ness explained thas during the pauses in the conversation he had mingled the characteristic lines of the prisoner's face with his shorthand notes, and from these lines, scattered through six or seven pages of shorthand notes and looking like them to the ordinary observer, he had been able to reconstruct the portrait that led to the conviction and death of the murderer. How it was adone is shown in the accompanying sketches, how which it will be readily seen that Israel Zangwill, who is now 85 years old, was born in one of the poorest hovels of a Ghesto. All of his chidhood was passed in the stubblefields. He obtained his education as a boy at the Jews' fres school in the cast end of London and spent three years of his life as a teacher in that locality. He had a hard struggle to get through school, but he did it, and took prizes on the way. He says he rarely saw the sun in those days, and the dream of his life was to get away from garrots and long back stairs and to live where daybreak came with some sort of regularity. This is pretty much all that is known of his early life, as it is all he has ever cared to tell.

There is a gratifying note of encourage-ment and advance in most of those nere is a grantying note of encourage-ment and advance in most of those reports. Noticeable among the reports was that given by an aged delegate, Mrs. Lett of Eganville; at the close of the report; the convention rose and sang, heartily, this verse of one of the Methodist church hymns;

E'en down to old age all my people shall prove My sovereign, eternal, unchangeable love, And when hoary hairs shall their temples adorn, Like lambe, they shall still on my bosom be borne.

The reports were gratifying. Not from one, did we bear of faltering trust or abated zeal; rather a determined effort to accomplish better things during the year to come. After sing-ing the meeting adjourned until 2 p.m. AFTERNOON SESSION.

Devotional exercises were conducted by several ladies, who offered earnest by several ladies, who offered earnest prayers for the work and workers in foreign lands. After the reading and adoption of the minutes, the auxiliary reports were again taken up and finish-ed. Mrs. (Dr.) Sparks of Kingston, treasurer, gave a very satisfactory report, as follows: Amount of members port, as 101.6ws: Amount of interest, fees, $2,068.29; life members, fees, $200; mission bands, $393.65; mite boxes, $316.55; public meetings, $407.32; reports, $4.60; leaflets, $5.31; donations, $295.19; Easter

Mrs. Williams, cor. sec., reported one hundred auxiliaries in the eastern branch with a membership of 2.068.
Miss Percival gave an interesting report on systematic giving and a lively discussion followed. A memorial service was held in memory of sisters of this society who had died during the past year. A beautifully worded memorial poem, "He Giveth His Loved Ones Rest," was read by Mrs. Williams. A testimony meeting followed, led by Mrs. Conley of Elgin, after which the convention adjourned, ween sent at home, but when informed as to his mission the lady freely consented to tell the reporter of the pastor. He grouped absence of the pastor.

His work, however, is not confined to bookmaking, as he is also an indefatigable writer of short stories and of magazine articles.

Zangwill's ready wit and odd appearance have caused almost as much to be written about his personality as about his witings. In figure he is tail and thin with stooping shoulders. He affects baggy and ill-fitting trousers, and the pookets of the long frock coat he habitually wears are usually stuffed with manuscripts. His face is distinctly Jewish in outline. She emphasized the fact that the Easter thank-offering was considerable in advance of previous years. The report of the supply committee, read by Mrs. McKossie, was listened to with great interest This committee, whose head-quarters are in Toronto, receives and distributes through the year bales of clothing and bedding to the most needy of the far away misthe most needy of the far away missions and to the Indians. The report told of the relief and comfort brought into many destitute homes, speaking to lonely and desolate hearts of the loving care of those more highly favored than they, and gave evidence of

The organizers for the different districts organizers for the different districts were reappointed, except Brockville district, which was placed under charge of Mrs. (Rev.) S. Conley, Elgin, and Mrs. White, Brockville.

Notices of motion and resolutions were then taken up. Two beautifully worded letters were submitted to the convention, the first written by Mrs. Hughes for Mrs. Ross, mother of the late W. E. Ross of Montreal, who has always brightened past conventions always brightened past conventions with messages of cheer and good will, but now in her declining years, she site in the shadow of this cloud. The last in the shadow of this cloud. A TRANSPOSITION.

Mangled the Salutation, but the King Controlled His Face.

An American who years ago served as our minister to Spain was fond of telling the following joke upon himself: Shortly after he had become settled in his new home he was bidden to a state ceremonial, where he was to be presented to the king. His knowledge of languages was limited to English and French, and being desirons of addressing the soversign in his own tongus he took pains to "coach" for the coasion. Several phrases were rehearsed until he felt that he had mastered them. When the critical moment arrived, he saluted the king with great dignity, spoke a few words in Spanish and passed on. ed on.

"I spoke in Spanish," was the rejoinder. "I said, 'I cast myself at your feet, 'which I am told is the most respectful form of salutation."
"Ah, no," corrected a Spaniard, whe had been observed to smile at the embassador's greeting. "You are mistaken. You transposed your words, and quite altered the meaning."

No Fixation In Space. The common idea as to the path of the earth being "fixed in space" is taken exception to by astronomers on the ground that there are few if any things in the domain of astronomy that can really be called fixed space, that fact better that wroagefur observes are going really be called fixed space, that fact being that unceasing changes are going on, though these changes are generally so slow as to escape the notice of a superficial observer, but are fortunately periodic, so that they fall within the possibility of computation. Thus the earth's path is not fixed, since the colliptic undergoes a very slow change, so that, while at present is is a few seconds more than 28 degrees 27 minutes, in about 15,000 years, astronomers calculate, it will be reduced to 22 degrees 18-minutes, after which it will begin to increase again, a change so slow and increase again, a change so slow and within such narrow limits that it can

THE BISCUIT DIDN'T RISE.

Sew a Young Cook Thought to Bemedy They had been visiting and while away had been given such delicious homemade biscuit that the memory of them still lingered in the mind. Why shouldn't they have such things themselves? The mistress of the house decided that they should, if she had to make them herself. What good wife this virtuous frame of mind she repaired to the kitchen, and there she stirred up her biscuit in the most approved fashion, shaped them daintily and put them in the pan. But she was not accustomed to this work, and it was not strange that she should forget some of the ingredients. It was the baking powder, a small but somewhat important item in the construction of light biscuit. She did not once think of it until

THE SECRET OF BEAUTY.

One Can Never Be Pleasant to Look Upon Unless In Good Health. One Can Never Be Pleasant to Lock Upon Unless in Good Health.

"The most helpful and agreeable bath is that of tepid water," writes Ruth Ashmore in The Ladies' Home Journal.

"Few people can stand absolutely cold baths, and, no matter how strong one may be, such a bath should not be indulged in unless a thorough rubbing be taken afterward. To speak plainly, it must be remembered that while a cold bath may be more or less invigorating it is not cleansing. I can easily understand the desire of every woman to have a clear, beautiful skin, but I confess to being provoked when I think of the amount of money spent on lotions, creams and powders to be applied externally and which have nothing like as good an effect upon the skin as a tepid bath with good soap taken at least once a week.

MAN EATERS AS PETS.

Str Henry Rawlinson Possessed Wonderful Taming Power Over Wild Beasts.

Sir Henry Rawlinson, the great authority on Persian inscriptions, wrote his "Memoir" in a summer house overhanging the Tigris, where the outside heat of 120 degrees was reduced to 90 degrees by the action of a water wheel which poured a continuous stream of water over the roof of the house.

a continuous stream of water over the roof of the house.

For recreation while writing this book Rawlinson indulged in petting wild animals. He had a tame leopard named Fahad, which he brought to England and presented to the zoological gardens at Clifton, near Bristol. Whenever Rawlinson was in England he would visit Fahad. As soon as the beast heard his ory, "Fahad, Fahad!" it would rise from the floor of its cage, approach the bars and then, rolling on the floor, extend its head.

Once the keeper, who am not know Sir Henry, on seeing him patting the leopard, exclaimed:

He alone fed it, and the lion when grown would follow him about like a dog. One hot day she lion moped and rejected its food. It pased about the master's room, and he, being every busy, called two servants to take the lion away.

The lion would not go with them, but drew nearer its master and at last use down under his chair, with its head between his knees.

"Oh," said he, "if he won't go, let him bide."
The servants went out, and Sir Henry wrote on. The lion sank from a sitting position into that of a "lion couchant."
All was quiet for several hours save the scratching of a pen. When his work was over, the master put down his hand to pat the pet. The lion was dead.—Xouth's Companion.

A Blow That Enceked Fire and Smeke From a Negro's Head.

Negroes in the south have a habit of sticking matches, toothploks and eignrettes behind their ears, and it is a common thing to see one of tham, when saked for a match, pull one of them out of the closely kinked wool just over his ear. Frequently they have a dozen or more stowed away there. Not long ago an Atlanta policeman, whose beat includes "Rusty row," a favorite resort for idle negroes, had coeasion to arrest a notorious vagrant, whose main coompation was fighting and draining the beer kegs left in front of barrooms.

This man, as usual, resisted arrest and attacked the officer flercely. The officer saw that extreme measures were necessary and, drawing his club, aimed a blow at the negro's head. The result was as alarming as itswas unexpected. As the club came in contact with the man's head, just over the left ear, there

He was about to leave the and smoke. He was about to leave the place hurriedly, not knowing what he had done, when his victim sat up and said reproachfully: "Go way, man! You done splode all my matches and swinge my ha'r offen my haid." The officer was so much relieved that he broke his record by letting the man go his way in peace.—Washington Star,

"In all questions of manners a young man should always remember that, while politeness is a good trait to acquire, courtesy is infinitely better," writes Edward Bok in The Ladies' Home Journal. "Politeness is manners, but courtesy is heart. Mingling in good society can give us that veneer which the world calls a polish of manners, and true politeness is not to be made little of nor scoffed at. Politeness is a fine art, but is an art pure and simple even at its best. Infinitely better is the outi-vation of that courtesy of refinements. at its best. Infinitely better is the oultivation of that courtesy of refinement which enters into the feelings of others and holds them sacred. It is idle to say that courtesy is a relio of old fashioned days and is no longer looked for. It is as much the current coin of good society as it ever was. More than any other element or grace in our lives it is jastantly felt and recognized and has an unfailing influence. It calls for respect as nothing else does. Courtesy of manner and courtesy of speech are the gifts ner and courtesy of speech are the gifts a young man should oultivate.

Sir,—Within the past twenty-four hours it has been reported to me that rumors and incinuations have been circulated here implicating me in the matter of the recent case of smuggling silverware, referred to several times by the Brockville Recorder and the Reporter.

Now, Sir, permit me to say that such rumors and insinuations are also annoying to me, and not only annoying but are calculated to injure me in my business.

Of the silverware in question, I know no hing whatever, and, of course, and nothing whatever, and, of course, and nothing whatever to do with it. If the persons who have busied them attended with the same post, and nothing whatever and the same post, and not only annoying to me, and not only annoying but are calculated to injure me in my business.

Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder

SOLD BY J. P. LAMB & SON, ATHENS,

Later and Later Man

Before it is too late, stop that succession of colds that means nothing more nor less than catarrh. Stop the suffering. Stop the disagreeable catarrhal disharges that are so humiliating to you and offensive to your friends. Don't let trun on until your condition causes you to be ostracized as if you were a leper. Don't neglect yourself until consumption makes its fatal appearance. You can be cured—not merely relieved, but absolutely and perfectly cured.

will restore you to complete, perfect health. It gives relief at once. It cures in an incredibly short time. Hundreds of cases of from 5 to 20 years' standing have been cured—cases that physicians had pronounced incurable. The catarrhat powder acts like magic, not only in catarrh, but in colds, sore throat, tonsilitis, hay fever, loss of smell, deafness and all similar diseases.

Mr. C. G. Archer, of Brower, Maine, writes as follows:—"I have had catarrh for several years. Water would run from my eyes and nose for days at a time. About four months ago lwas induced to try Dr. Agnew's Catarrha! Powder, and since using the wonderful remedy I have not had an attack. I would not be without it." At drugitsts. Dr. Agnew's Cure or the Heart cures all cases of organic or sympathetic disease of the heart—relieves in 30 minutes. Dr. Agnew's Liver Pills are at once amild cathartio, turigorator and system renovator. 200, for 40 doses. Dr. Agnew's Oliment relieves in a day and cures eczema, salt rheum and all diseases of the skin. Cures piles in 2 to 2 nights. 250. 2 nights. 250.
