

GRAND TRUNK IS NOT IN IT.

Apparently Not a Party to Union Station Scheme.

Superintendent Gillen Says City May Enlarge Asphalt Plant.

Requests For Vaccination at the Health Office.

A pretty good indication that the Grand Trunk has had nothing to do so far with the union station scheme, was the curiosity shown by General Superintendent Gillen, about the proposed new building, when here yesterday, on other matters in which the city and his company are interested.

Chairman Gardner of the Markets Committee, Magistrate Jeffs and Chief Smith, gathered a lot of valuable pointers about police stations in Toronto yesterday. These ideas will be incorporated in the plans for the new station to be built here next year, if the ratepayers vote the money.

The Cemetery Board's financial statement for October shows receipts of $1,092, less $431 set aside for the perpetual care fund, and an expenditure of $661.

Although there is no smallpox in the city at present the Board of Health has had requests to vaccinate a number of children.

The health report for the week shows eight cases of scarlet fever, four of diphtheria, two of typhoid fever and one each of measles and chickenpox.

The following building permits were issued to-day: Stewart Bros., brick house on Aberdeen avenue, between Cottage and Renah avenues, $2,000.

F. A. Depey, two frame houses on Windsor street, between Caroline and Barton streets, $2,600.

R. Blair, brick house, rear 113 King street west, for R. Bowering, $300.

THE SODALES.

Central Young Men Gave Successful Musical Melange.

A brilliant and enjoyable affair took place last evening in Central Presbyterian Church Sunday school room, when the Sodales Club, assisted by the young ladies of the church, held a musical melange in aid of the funds of the club.

The following programme was given, with C. Percival Garratt as accompanist: Opening musical fantasia, "On the Campus"; James, tenor solo, "Then and Now"; James Maguire, jokes; song and chorus, "Yip-I-Adly-I-y"; Frank Wright, jokes; soprano solo, "Dolly's Revenge"; Miss Ethel Whitehead; jokes; baritone solo, with ladies' chorus, "Just a Fly" (new operetta, "Love Cure"); Roy Fenwick; jokes; contralto solo, "Dreaming" (Shelley); Miss Escher Horns; musical monologue, "The Critic's Dream"; Messrs. Sedgewick, Garratt, jokes; soprano solo and chorus, "The Glow-worm"; Miss Helen Lowe; grand finale.

LAST DAY.

Evangelists McCoombe Will Close Their Services To-morrow.

McCombe brothers, evangelists, who have been holding a series of special evangelistic meetings in the Barton Street Methodist Church for the past three weeks, will conclude their work in this city to-morrow. A special service at 3.45 p. m. will be in charge of Rev. Jeff McCoombe. A great work has been done here during these meetings, and a large number have signified their desire to lead a Christian life.

WORK, NOT TALK.

Sensible Address by the Duchess of Marlborough at Chrysanthemum Show.

DUCHESS OF MARLBOROUGH.

London, Nov. 6.—At the opening of the Workingmen's Chrysanthemum Show in the East End yesterday the Duchess of Marlborough delivered an interesting little sermon, contending that the elevation of mankind could only be attained by hard work, not flowery oratory. "There are a lot of people nowadays," said the Duchess, "who go around talking and indulging in beautiful words pictures of what the world might be like and what they would make it if they had the power. They talk so much, sometimes, too, so well, that people begin to think they are really heralds of some wonderful millennium, when men will no longer be men, when government will be perfect, and when all that is impossible will suddenly become possible."

NOT FINISHED.

Street Lighting Arbitration Adjourned Until Tuesday Next.

When the adjourned session of the Street Lighting Arbitration was resumed yesterday afternoon, the only witness examined was Lorne E. Imlay, the electrical engineer, who was giving evidence when the session was adjourned in the morning. Last week when the session was adjourned it was thought that yesterday's session would have completed all the evidence with the exception of that of an eminent electrical authority, which Mr. Staunton, K. C., and Mr. Osborne, counsel for the Cataract Company, are desirous of obtaining.

TOOK POISON.

Brantford Man Kisses His Wife Good-Bye and Suicides.

(Special Wire to the Times) Brantford, Ont., Nov. 6.—Suffering from chronic indigestion, Wm. Collins, aged 50 years, took his life at his home in this city last night by the carbolic acid route. In the afternoon he called on his wife, who works at the Imperial Hotel, and after kissing her goodbye, went home and took the dose. He had stated some time ago that if he did not get better soon he would end all. There will be no inquest.

The New Double Stem Pipe.

This makes an absolutely clean pipe as the nicotine cannot get into the mouth, and the saliva cannot get into the bowl. They are sold for 35 cents at peace's pipe store, 17 King street east.

WOULD LOVE THE TIGERS.

Florence Rockwell, the Charming Actress, a Football Fan.

Gave the Times a Bright Interview Yesterday.

On the Stage Since She Was 14 and Is Happy.

Dainty Florence Rockwell, leading lady in "The Barrier," Klaw & Erlanger's big production, playing at the Grand to-day, is a fair football enthusiast who would thoroughly enjoy joining the waving sea of yellow and black that will cheer the Tigers to victory at the Cricket grounds this afternoon, did not a matinee demand her presence at the theatre. Miss Rockwell is wildly enthusiastic about the gridiron. She made this confession to a Times reporter who interviewed her at the Royal Hotel yesterday afternoon. "It is too bad you have a matinee. We have the biggest football game of the season here to-morrow," suggested the newspaper man, taking it for granted that everyone in Hamilton, theatrical stars and other visitors included, are stirred with enthusiasm over the outcome of to-day's great battle.

Miss Rockwell gave a little cry of disappointment and clasped her hands beseechingly. "Oh, don't tell me that," she pleaded. "Are you quite sure there is a matinee? How I should love to see the game! I am the most enthusiastic kind of a football fan, and yet I seldom get an opportunity to see a match. When I watch the crowds flocking to the big Harvard, Yale and Princeton games I feel so disappointed to think that I cannot go. I am so sorry I can't see the Tigers play."

Then a happy thought struck her. "If ever I get to be a manager," she mused, "matinees will not interfere with football games. I will pay the actors their salaries just the same and tell them to go to the football game. On second thought, though, I suppose if I really were a manager I would be like them and look at the money side of it first."

Miss Rockwell is just as pretty, graceful and clever to meet personally as she appears behind the footlights. Her magnetic personality and charming manners strike one as pleasingly during a conversation as they do when she is acting on the stage.

Do you know, I think it is much easier to give an interview than to get one," she said, smilingly, before the reporter had an opportunity of asking a question. "I believe that if I were asked to interview anyone I should faint."

"I am much more interested in the present and the future than in the past," she remarked, thoughtfully, when asked about her stage career. "I would not mistake when I was fourteen years old. It was an opportunity, and I am glad I seized it. It has been everything to me. Of course I am principally interested now in 'The Barrier.' It is such a delightful play, one that I take an intense interest in some times you play parts you have to make sympathy with. I wish I could live the part. There is no forcing of sympathy. She seems to be and to do just as I should if I were her. And we have a delightful cast."

"The Barrier" was put on the road last week in September, opening in Rochester, N. Y. here from London, going to Toronto to open on Monday and will shortly make its initial appearance in New York, so that Hamilton theatre-goers have an opportunity of seeing the original company and all the scenic requisites of a production that is expected to take New York by storm.

Discussing the future of "The Barrier" and its probable impressions on New York, Miss Rockwell smilingly suggested that if one could tell in advance just how New York would accept a play the artist and management would be saved a lot of trouble. "Often," she explained, "productions that impress those presenting them most favorably do not succeed in the eyes of the public when they reach New York. Frequently those productions that the actors are not hopeful of are the biggest hits."

"This was the case," said the star, "with 'The Round Up.' Those appearing in the cast thought it would go, but they never expected it would be the enormous success it was."

Miss Rockwell was leading lady in that play and had been prominently identified with many other notable productions. The last time she appeared in Canada was when she played in Toronto with Mansfield. She retains pleasant memories of her appearance in repertoire.

"That is the ideal way to play," she said. "You do not have to play the same part twice in succession. The role I have in 'The Barrier,' though, seems like a new part all the time. I appeared in the 'Round Up' for two years and played the same part over 700 times."

Miss Rockwell chatted entertainingly of the profession and some people's views of it. "A lot of people," she said, "seem to imagine that the most difficult part is memorizing the lines. They ask me, 'How do you do it?' That is the easiest. It is the last that a thought is given to. The greatest thing is the acting, the emotion, the excitement."

Miss Rockwell spoke appreciatively of the way Canadians applaud. "It is much better than in New York and many of the American cities," she said. "And it makes the difference in the Toronto enthusiastic audience gets a much better performance. When an audience is cold the chill reaches over the footlights to the players."

"I do love to know and see the cities that I visit," she said, "but I have so little time. And then she hurried away to the stage to attend to some details for the evening performance."

HE WOULD SHOOT HIS SWEETHEART.

William C. Macklim Had Revolver and Poison—Is Believed to be Insane.

Hamilton P. O., and Mrs. Thomas Macklim, his mother. The letter to his mother was opened by the Magistrate in court, and he read the following message: "Do not blame me for this; it was all my own fault; try and forget it."

A packet of love letters was produced tied round with the customary ribbon. The letters were from young Macklim to Miss O'Connor. The revolver was a .32-calibre, five-chamber weapon; four chambers were loaded. There was enough strychnine in the bottle produced to kill a company of soldiers. Miss Minnie O'Connor, a pale, slim girl, intelligent looking, was called. She seemed on the verge of hysteria, and her eyes were a look of dread of the publicity of the affair. She said she was a native of Dundas, and had kept company with the prisoner for some time. Last night they were out for a walk, and he asked her to go to the Mountain View Hotel. She refused, whereat he drew a revolver and threatened to do away with her. She said she was terribly frightened, and tried to hold his hand down. A man who was passing caught hold of the prisoner, and she ran to Aberdeen avenue. Soon after he followed and entered the house, and went upstairs after her. She screamed and members of the household came and took away the revolver.

After she had given her evidence, Miss O'Connor was in a highly nervous condition, and said she was afraid to pass the dock where her former lover was. Chief Smith had her conducted out of the court room by a side door. Mr. Macklim, father of the prisoner, said preparations had been going on for some time for his son's commitment to the asylum.

ARE THREATENING SOME ALDERMEN.

Hydro Healers Said to be Following Course That Might Land Them Behind Bars.

Will the power question be settled on Monday night, after all? No less than three aldermen prophesied that it would and that the contract with the Hydro would be carried by a unanimous vote in the Council. The inference is that the commission has come off its high horse and is prepared to give Hamilton the square deal which Mayor McLaren and ten of the aldermen have demanded it shall get. A report reached the City Hall to-day in a round-about way that the commission at its session on Thursday was prepared to grant the terms the city demanded. Nothing official has been received, however.

A contract of any kind made with the commission now will likely settle the question of a Majority fight in January. The Hydro supporters admit that it would take the edge off their campaign, and it is doubtful if they could induce a man to run against Mayor McLaren. Ex-Mayor Stewart has announced that the only condition on which he would run is that the power question is the issue.

The bulldozing tactics of the Hydro clique become more obnoxious as they realize the hopelessness of carrying their point. Aldermen Ryan, Forth and Applegath seem to have been made the targets for the attack. Threats have been made against these three aldermen to ruin their business if they do not line up with the Hydro crowd. "I wish you would say nothing about it. I do not desire any publicity," said Ald. Ryan, to-day, when asked to make a statement. "I have been constantly persecuted by a crowd over this matter," he said. "I am looking for nothing. I want nothing. I am going to do my duty to the citizens. Why do these people make me the target if they are not after something. I can stand their persecutions, though, they do not bother me. I am not in love with the job for anything. I am here in the best interests of the city. I will protect those interests while I can. The people had enough confidence in me to elect me, and if they are not satisfied they can turn me out."

Some of the aldermen would like to know what is the matter with Colonel Hendrie on this power question. Colonel Hendrie was not at the meeting of the commission held in Toronto on Thursday to discuss Hamilton's case. It is not the first session he is charged with dodging. It seems peculiar that Colonel Hendrie, as a representative of the people of Hamilton, should not be on hand to look after Hamilton's interest. As Alice Lloyd would say, "What are ye getting at, eh?"

TWO WRITS.

Men Who Were Injured Want to Recover Damages.

A writ was issued this morning for Walter Venator against the Hamilton Incubator Company for unstated damages for personal injuries, sustained by him while in the employ of the defendants. The plaintiff had two fingers of his right hand cut off while working at the machinery. He claims that the accident was due to the negligence of the defendants in not having it properly protected.

William Harris this morning issued a writ through his solicitors against the Hamilton Brewing Association for damages for injuries sustained by him while working for the company. The plaintiff was a driver of one of the defendant's wagons, and a beer barrel fell off the wagon and dropped on his chest. He was badly injured.

MANY YEARS POSTMASTER.

The death occurred this morning at Brantford, Ont., of an old and respected resident in the person of Michael Laing, in his 80th year. For 30 years he was postmaster and general storekeeper there. He leaves six sons, W. J. C. W. Harry and Albert, of this city, Arthur, of Rockwood, and Norman, of Brantford, and one daughter, Mrs. J. Montgomery, 132 Market street, this city, from where the funeral will take place on Monday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock at Hamilton Cemetery.

KESWICK SERVICES.

The members of the Keswick convention who are visiting Hamilton will preach in several churches to-morrow. Rev. Geo. Setchfield will preach at St. George's Church at 11 a. m., and at the Church of the Ascension at 7 p. m., and Mr. Walter Secord at St. John's Presbyterian Church at 11 a. m., and at Centenary Church at 7 p. m.

BURNED TO DEATH.

(Special Wire to the Times) London, Ont., Nov. 6.—Earl Deadman, aged two, was burned to death this morning at his father's home, in Delaware. The first his mother, who was out at the barn, knew of the accident was when she saw him running from the house with his clothes ablaze. She was badly burned in beating the flames out. It is thought a spark from the kitchen stove ignited his clothing in some way.

GRIFFIN STILL HERE.

Martin J. Griffin, the alleged deserter from the United States army, is still in custody. He will be held here until officers from Fort Howard, Md., come for him. When taken back, besides being accused of desertion, he will be further charged with robbing the United States army post. Preparations for his deportation, etc., are proceeding very slowly indeed.

Carpet Cleaning.

Mr. F. Harvey wishes to notify the public that he has taken over the carpet cleaning business recently conducted by Cornell Bros., and has appointed Mr. John Cornell as his manager. Satisfaction guaranteed. Phone 209.

IS SENT UP FOR TRIAL.

Mrs. Taglerino to Go Before a Higher Court.

Trial of Gordon Rigg Stands Until Next Thursday.

Oliver East Is Free, and Will be Looked After.

Gordon Rigg, 149 James street south, will come up on the 11th, accused of obtaining money from Frederick J. Hill, 104 King street west, by false pretence. Through his counsel, Mr. J. Ogilvie, he pleaded not guilty this morning. Bail was fixed at $200.

Mr. Hill said that last Thursday defendant entered his store and asked him to cash a cheque for $5, saying he had the money in the Dominion Bank, where the cheque was made payable. When the cheque was presented at the bank next morning there were no funds to Rigg's credit, and any knowledge of the youth was denied there.

Detectives Campbell and Sayers told of arresting Rigg yesterday morning about 11.30. Witnesses for the defence will be called next Thursday.

Mrs. Taglerino, 396 Sherman avenue north, goes up for trial, accused of assaulting and threatening Joseph Leslie and William Pickard. A. M. Lewis is not guilty and declined to elect. Meanwhile she will be allowed out on bail.

Leslie and Pickard told how they went to the Taglerino house last Tuesday evening to seize the goods and chattels for non-payment of a chattel mortgage of $125, whereat they were assaulted and threatened. Both witnesses swore they each received a blow from a hammer, and when the threats became menacing they fled.

William Proctor, an aged man, was behind the bulwarks for vagrancy. Last night, P. C. Gravelle said, he caught him soliciting alms. He was fined $3 or 14 days.

William Tucker, John street north, and Daniel Allan, MacNab street north, each paid $5 for being drunk and disorderly. Last night on MacNab street north there was a great crowd round the two men watching them engage in a pugilistic battle. P. C. Tuck arrested them, and this morning they pleaded guilty.

Charlie Young, a slant-eyed celestial, had to pay $2 this morning for keeping a restaurant on James street north without a license. The fine will be used for purchasing a license.

Oliver East is free. For some time he has been in the Barton Street Jail as an insane candidate. He is not considered sufficiently mentally deficient to be sent to the asylum. Truancy Officer Hunter will get him a boarding house and employment.

RITE REUNION.

Annual Event Set For Last Week In January.

Announcements are out for the thirteenth annual reunion of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry in the Valley of Hamilton. This greatest of all annual Masonic gatherings in Canada will be held in the rooms of the rite, Masonic Hall building, on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Jan. 25, 26, 27 and 28. It is certain that the event will attract the most prominent members of the rite from all parts of Canada and many from the United States; also that a large number of candidates will be here for the various degrees. George Moore, the latest Hamilton member to be honored with the 33rd degree, is chairman of the general committee, and W. M. Logan, 32nd, is general secretary. W. H. Davis, 32nd, is chairman of the candidate committee.

CAMPAIGN IN WARD 3.

Fine Organization Meeting Held by Citizens' Committee.

Temperance Candidates For Controllershops the Speakers.

Good Hotels and Fewer Saloons Is the Battle Cry.

That the temperance workers of ward 3 will make a determined effort to elect aldermen favorable to license reduction was evinced last night when a large and enthusiastic gathering of the workers was held in the Sunday school room of Chariton Avenue Methodist Church for the purpose of organizing for the coming municipal campaign.

Ald. Peregrine expressed the opinion that the question of the reduction of licenses was a live one, and one in which all citizens were interested, directly or indirectly. He stated that good hotels were necessary, but there was no good reason for a lot of saloons to be in existence. The evil in connection with the liquor traffic was being manifested by the revelations in the Police Court every day.

That the temperance workers of ward 3 will make a determined effort to elect aldermen favorable to license reduction was evinced last night when a large and enthusiastic gathering of the workers was held in the Sunday school room of Chariton Avenue Methodist Church for the purpose of organizing for the coming municipal campaign.

He had been chosen to represent Ward 3, and if he was elected again he would work for the best interest of Hamilton. He would also investigate the state of accommodation offered by the so-called hotels on the market.

Ald. Lees, also a Citizens' Campaign Committee candidate for a Controllershops, said that the temperance cause had been making progress for the last three years, and the indications for the coming campaign were brighter than ever. The only way to reduce the number of licenses was to elect men to the Council who all had one specific object in view.

Ald. Cooper was the next speaker, and in referring to the scarcity of candidates said that one reason why a lot of men refused to enter the field was the unkind words and criticisms. The city of Hamilton needed broad-minded business men, not men tied up by the power of temperance question, but men who can carry on the business of the city in a business-like way.

Will leave Toronto at 10.15 p. m. daily via Grand Trunk Railway System on and after Sunday, November 7th. Secure tickets and reservations from Grand Trunk agents.

A Spanish Beauty

"The question of the Covenanters' widow," Gerald Desmond responded, airily. "Well, I say as Claverhouse said: 'I can answer it to a man well enough, and I will take the Delly in my own hands! Ah! I always wanted Claverhouse! But you in the character of a censor—my out-throat friend! Who's have thought of it? As to my friend, my benefactor, my kinsman, etc., I hate him simply because he is all these things. Why was I not born to the purple, instead of he? In the cleverer man, far and away, of the two. And he is all that stands between me and the coronet of Clontarf. Is that not enough? When I was a wretched little hanger-on—a fatherless and well-born pauper—he was riding about the country like a prince, adored by high and low even then, while I held his stirrup-leathers, and picked out of the mud the guineas he threw to me. Is that not enough? And to-day I love the woman he loves, and she flouts me, by Jove! almost as dead-and-gone Kathleen flouted you. Is that not enough?"

His thoughts drifted away to Kathleen. The mystery that shrouded her fate had been the great trouble of his life during those dreary months gone by. "Who was Kathleen's murderer?" "She never committed suicide," he thought. "My brave, good little girl! She has been foully murdered, and lies in her grave unavenged! Oh, that I were free to seek her murderer over the world!"

His hand clinched, and his eyes flashed with all their old fire. The bitterest remorse he had ever felt in his life he had felt for lost Kathleen. She had loved him so dearly—he had given him the cigar from her pocket, and he had sacrificed her so nobly for her ruined father's sake. And this was the reward of her womanly martyrdom!

"Better this, poor child," Rory thought, bitterly, "than the living death to store for her as the wife of that brute, Morgan! She has gone back to her father, and she is as good as dead. He has been hell on earth!"

He threw himself on his bed presently—not to sleep—to watch the rays of silvery light stream through the iron bars. What tales it whispered—cruel tales—of the bold Wicklow Mountains, all flooded with its crystal gleam of the evening heather—of the fetterless eagle soaring up to meet the rising sun—of the purple midnight sea, sleeping under the purple, starry sky of his darling "Nora and softly it swung outward—slowly and softly a man glided into the moon-crenna, dancing like a thing of life on the boundless waves—or hoary old Clontarf, where the "Daisy" reigned supreme, out of mind, and where every moss-grown stone and ivied turret were dear to him as living things.

"And Gerald will reign there now," he thought drearily. "Gerald will be Earl of Clontarf when they lay my poor father beneath the old channel. And he will retrieve the ruined fortunes of the Desmonds by a wealthy marriage with some English tradesman's daughter. I dare say. Ah, well, the world is a sea of change, and it's only in the nature of things that one should go up as the other comes down."

Slumber stole gradually over his eyes. He laid his handsome golden head on his arm, and slept as calmly as a child on his mother's breast. So deep was that quiet sleep, that the stealthy step without never reached him—the stealthy turning of a key in the huge lock of his door never disturbed him. Slowly lit cell. One glance, and he saw the quiet leaper on the track bed.

"And they would murder him!" the man said, between his clinched teeth; "they call him a murderer! They would hang this fair-haired boy for the murder of the girl who loved him! Blind fools! They'll never harm a hair of his yellow head. Lord Roderick, awake!"

He bent over the sleeper and whispered the name in his ear. At the first sound the sleeping eyes opened and looked up—wide awake. "What is it? Who is it? What do you want?"

"Hush—hush! for the love of God! I have come to save you, Lord Roderick Desmond!" "To save me?"

"Yes, to save you. I only reached Wicklow yesterday, or you would not have been in prison all these months. May Old Nick fly away with the coward who called themselves your friends and left you to die here!"

"But who are you? Rory cried in breathless wonder and bewilderment. "Oh, then, sure you haven't forgotten me entirely, Lord Rory? Mike Muldoon, that ran away four years ago, and went to sea. Sure you saved my life at the risk of your own, many a year ago, up in the mountains bevant. I've a good memory, my lord, and I haven't forgot it, though I am a n'er-do-well, and I've here to-night to pay off my debt. Get up, my lord—get up; throw this big coat about you, pull this old caubon over your face, and come along."

"Come along! Where? how? in Heaven's name, Mike, what do you mean? There is no chance of escape."

"There is every chance!" Mike Muldoon cried in a breathless whisper. "The jailer is my uncle, as you know; he hasn't seen me for four years until to-day. And he wouldn't have seen me to-day, only they told me over in the town—oh, werra!—that they had you here hard and fast. Lord Rory, I swore by all that's good and great that minute that I'd free you, or know the reason why. I came to my uncle, and sure he was as glad to see me as if it was his prodigal son. Father Lafferty preaches about it, and didn't I ask him to make a little fast in honor of the occasion, and invite the whole ship's crew? And faith, he did it like a lady, and I just quietly dragged the punch, and every man-jack of them is asleep like the devil! I hunk the keys from my uncle's belt and—Oh, Lord Rory! don't keep me standin' here palavin', but come at once!"

He flung the coat around him, slapped the hat over his eyes and fairly dragged the prisoner out of the cell. "But where, Mike—where are we going?"

"I've a boat in waitin' down off my Peggy's Point, and my ship, the Dancin' Dervish, sails in three hours. She's layin' at anchor in the harbor now; and as three of our men deserted last night they'll take you, and no questions asked. And, sure, when you're safe in foreign parts, you can write home and—Will ye hurry, Lord Rory, or do ye mane to stand here till the dirty pack of braggles wake and give chase? Come on!"

Then he awoke. He turned to the brave fellow beside him and held out his hand. "Mike, my glorious fellow, how can I thank you?"

"By runnin' as if the devil was after ye. Maybe they're wakin' this minute and raisin' the alarm. Never mind thanks, Lord Rory, till we're out of sight of the coast of Ireland."

"Mike, they must know at home. My father—Lady Inez—I must find means of letting them know. The suspense, the mystery of my fate will kill them. Oh, Mike, my man, my brain feels half-dazed with the suddenness of all this. I think for me, act for me; tell me how I am to let them know."

"They were speeding rapidly along toward the coast. That hour no living thing was abroad. Mike took off his cap and scratched his head in dense perplexity. (To be Continued.)

BLACK FLAG

Planted on Pike's Peak by Some Suffragettes.

Colorado Springs, Col., Nov. 6.—Accompanied by six suffragettes from Denver, Mrs. Helen Rein Baker, of Spokane, Wash., an ardent suffragette, yesterday planted a black flag on the summit of Pike's Peak. The banner was made by Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, of New York, and bears the inscription, "Votes for Women." It was sent to Mrs. Baker by the leaders of the suffragette movement in New York. Mrs. Baker, who was one of the American delegates to the International Conference of Women in London last year, chartered a special train to the top of the peak.

RAILROAD SHOPS BURNED. Newburn, N. C., Nov. 6.—Fire that swept the shops of the Norfolk & Southern Railroad Company, here, at 2 o'clock this morning, resulted in a half million dollars' property loss. All of the buildings except the paint department were burned to the ground. A number of locomotives were also destroyed. The origin of the fire is not known.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations.

ANY person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may purchase a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or sub-Agency of the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency on certain conditions. Duties—Six months' residence upon cultivation of the land for each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader. In certain conditions a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section outside his homestead. Price $20.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra. A homesteader who has exhausted the homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emptive may take purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $30.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $200.00.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS. Notice is hereby given pursuant to the Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1887, chapter 123, section 38, and Amending Act, that all persons having claims against the estate of Alexander Small, of the City of Hamilton, Ontario, who died on or about the 6th day of March, A. D., 1908, are required to send by post prepaid or to deliver to Lee & Farmer, solicitors for the administratrix of the estate of the said Alexander Small on or before the 1st day of December, 1909, their names, addresses and descriptions and a full statement of particulars of their claims and the nature of the security (if any) held by them, duly certified as to the correctness of the same, and that after the said day the said administratrix will proceed to distribute the assets of the deceased, but their names, addresses and descriptions and a full statement of particulars of their claims and the nature of the security (if any) held by them, duly certified as to the correctness of the same, and that after the said day the said administratrix will proceed to distribute the assets of the deceased, but their names, addresses and descriptions and a full statement of particulars of their claims and the nature of the security (if any) held by them, duly certified as to the correctness of the same, and that after the said day the said administratrix will proceed to distribute the assets of the deceased, but their names, addresses and descriptions and a full statement of particulars of their claims and the nature of the security (if any) held by them, duly certified as to the correctness of the same.

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE TO CREDITORS. Notice is hereby given pursuant to the Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1887, chapter 123, section 38, and Amending Act, that all persons having claims against the estate of Thomas Decker, of the City of Hamilton, Ontario, who died on or about the 20th day of May, 1909, are required to send by post prepaid or to deliver to the undersigned solicitors for the administrator of the estate of the said deceased, on or before the 22nd November, 1909, their names, addresses and descriptions, and a full statement of particulars of their claims and the nature of the security (if any) held by them, duly certified as to the correctness of the same, and that after the 22nd day of November, 1909, the administrator will proceed to distribute the assets of the said deceased, but their names, addresses and descriptions and a full statement of particulars of their claims and the nature of the security (if any) held by them, duly certified as to the correctness of the same, and that after the 22nd day of November, 1909, the administrator will proceed to distribute the assets of the said deceased, but their names, addresses and descriptions and a full statement of particulars of their claims and the nature of the security (if any) held by them, duly certified as to the correctness of the same.

HOW HE DID IT. Quill Lake, Sask., Nov. 5.—Calmy, and apparently with little realization of the enormity of his offence, John Melch, the Galician, told the magistrate how he killed George Thoburn, Mrs. Thoburn, and her mother, Mrs. McNeven, formerly of Sarnia and Orillia, Ont., on their lonely homestead near Quill Lake last Monday.

WAS ANGERED AT EMPLOYER—After killing him and throwing him into Cellar, He Lay in Wait for the Woman.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 6.—With an admission that he had committed a crime and was willing to take his medicine, but imploring the court to release him from prison before he became an old man, J. W. Hatfield, one of the last survivors of the Hatfield-McCoy feudists in Kentucky, and a Rough Rider who fought at San Juan, was sentenced to five years in San Quentin, the minimum under the law.

ASKS MERCY. "If I have done wrong," the prisoner said, "I want to be sentenced, Judge, and to serve a prison term; but I don't want to come out from prison a white-haired man. I want a chance to be a good citizen and to help my mother when I come out."

HILL BUYS ROAD. Buffalo, Nov. 6.—While no official announcement or admission of the deal has been given, there seems to be no doubt that James J. Hill has forestalled the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound and obtained control of the Spokane & Inland Empire Electric.

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT. Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and guaranteed cure for such ailments as itching, bleeding and protruding piles. See testimonials in the press and ask your neighbors about it. You can use it and get your money back if not satisfied, 6c. at all dealers or EDWARDS, BATES & CO., Toronto.

SMYE-MANARY.

Pretty Wedding at Vinemount on Wednesday Last.

The home of Mrs. Margaret Manary, of Vinemount, was the scene of a very pleasing event on Wednesday, Nov. 3, it being the marriage of her eldest daughter, Annie Laura, to Mr. Clarence Snye, of Grimsby. Shortly after 3 o'clock Mrs. C. De Quittville, of Fruitland, took her place at the organ, and played the beautiful march, "Heaven's Artillery." The bridal party took their stand under a pretty arch of ferns, decorated with white crape. The bride was given away by her great uncle, Mr. Isaac Jarvis, of Beamsville. She looked most charming, being attired in cream colored silk, with chiffon trimmings, and carrying a large bouquet of cream roses. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. Brand, of Tapscott, in the presence of about fifty guests. The bride was assisted by her sister, Nellie, while the groom was ably supported by his brother, George Snye, of Grimsby.

After the ceremony all retired to the dining room, where a sumptuous wedding dinner was served. The presents, which were numerous, costly and useful, attested to the popularity of the young couple.

The bride's travelling suit was navy blue, with hat to match. After a short honeymoon at Dundas, St. Thomas and points west, Mr. and Mrs. Snye will reside near Grimsby. Their host of friends join in wishing them a long, prosperous and happy life.

THE HOUSEKEEPER. VIRGINIA FRUIT CAKE. One pound of butter, two eggs beaten separately, two pounds dark brown sugar, two pounds flour, sifted, two pounds cream, one pound currants, two cups molasses, one cup of curant, strong coffee, one cup of brandy, two tablespoonfuls of cloves, two tablespoonfuls of allspice, two tablespoonfuls of cinnamon, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one cup of cream, sugar and butter; mix all together; white of eggs last. Sift flour in gradually. Bake in a slow oven for two hours. This will make two large cakes. DEBBYANT'S CAKE. One cupful of granulated sugar and yolks of two eggs beaten together to a white cream. Work in slowly one-half cupful of melted butter. Add very slowly one scant cupful of milk. Sift together three times one and one-half cupfuls of flour and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and add slowly to the mixture one cupful of finely chopped walnuts, lightly floured, one teaspoonful of vanilla, and lastly add the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Bake in a loaf tin, in a moderate oven, for one-half hour. When cool enough ice the top thickly, either with boiled icing or any other kind desired.

BROWN CAKE. For a delicious and inexpensive cake, especially when eggs and butter are most acceptable, the following recipe will be found. Cream together one cupful brown sugar and one-half cupful butter, add one cupful thick sour milk, one teaspoonful soda, one teaspoonful cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful cloves, one cupful or more of seeded raisins or any other fruit desired. Two cupfuls of flour.

APPLE CAKE. One cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of butter or lard, one cupful apple sauce, with one teaspoonful of soda steered in it, one cupful of raisins, one teaspoonful cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of cloves, pinch of salt, 1 1/2 cupfuls of flour.

ECONOMY CAKE. When a cake has been a failure on account of being too rich, do not throw out, but take one-half cupful of sugar, one small tablespoonful of butter, one egg, and two cupfuls of milk. Break cake up in small pieces and stir all thoroughly until smooth. To one cup of flour add one heaping teaspoonful of baking powder and flavor to taste. This is especially good as nut cake.

A WANT AD IN THE TIMES IS A WANT AD IN THE HOME

THE HAMILTON TIMES

SATURDAY, NOV. 6, 1909.

WOMEN AT MEN'S WORK.

We have been accustomed to hear a great deal about the degradation of women in free-trade England, and protectionist orators have been accustomed to ring the changes on the employment of female labor there in lines usually reserved to men.

You may see them drilling holes in plates and cutting bars of iron where the sparks fall in showers of fire all around them.

They stand at the machines with collars turned down and sleeves rolled up like their hardened brothers. During the day their hands are literally saturated with machine oil and covered with iron filings, but after work you can hardly tell them from the stenographer or filing clerk of the office.

As yet the native United States women seek to avoid the dirtier and heavier jobs. The wages, too, are exceedingly low. Many of these women workers among oil and soot and noise receive for their hard week's work from $3 to $4.20 while piece workers sometimes make from $1.25 to $1.50 a day.

They like the work," said a foreman of a department of fifty girls in a factory on the south side making hardware specialties. You can't drive them away with a stick after they get in here and they break their necks to get a job with us.

Of course we keep them at the light work as far as we can. Some of them work at the punching machines, but most of them are on the saws, the bending machines and things of that sort.

If you want a good piece of work to come out of those big machines, though, you put women at it. There is something in her hands that makes those things lumber of ironwork almost talk like humans.

It is not to be doubted that women can be trained to do much of the lighter work in machine shops; but it is a pity to find them entering such industries while thousands of able-bodied men are, willingly or unwillingly, walking the streets in idleness.

THE QUESTION OF ATHLETICS.

We have recently heard so much discussion about athletic contests that the recent tabulated statement of football casualties of the year in the United States becomes of special interest at this time.

Much is said for and against athletics, a good deal of it beside the real question at issue. We take our sports far too seriously.

There is a laudable and healthy love of athletics; there is also an immoderate devotion to such exercises that is to be condemned. Gentlemen's contests lead to little harm; but the athletic "rough" is to be discouraged.

An illustration of the usefulness of the Dominion Railway Commission in protecting the rights of the people is afforded by a recent Ottawa case dealt with. The city's legal representative was ready to consent to a railway entering by a level crossing.

The case of John Stewart Kennedy, multi-millionaire, of New York, who died on Sunday last, presents two strange features. He died of whooping cough at the age of 80 years, and he left by his will $25,000,000 in gifts to churches and charities.

While the U. M. W. members are still conducting a strike at Glace Bay, the P. W. A. members have renewed their working agreement with the Dominion

That sort of remedy would have a good influence on athletic sports. The man who coolly plans such assaults should be sent to penitentiary; the player who cannot keep his temper in control in the heat of a game should never play.

As to the effect of strenuous athletic contests on the health of the young, it is to be feared that it is sometimes injurious, as excesses always are. Long distance racing probably ruins for life many youths. The strain imposed on vital organs is unnatural.

The evils of athleticism may or may not have been exaggerated; but on one point all are agreed: excesses are to be condemned. Excesses are evil from the physical point of view; they are doubly so from the moral point of view.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

And does Doc. Hopkins think his dear old plug hat would improve by making it a mayoralty beehive?

The metering of the larger water services will be a distinct gain. In course of time the metering of all services will doubtless be brought about.

It is a terrible commentary upon the people of New York that is contained in the returns showing that 153,843 votes were cast for W. R. Hearst for mayor.

They have fitted a gyroscope to the aeroplane. Wonder if some such device could be fitted to certain Hamilton aldermen? It is said to have a steady-ing effect.

The Hamilton Herald announces that "there is a strong feeling against Mayor McLaren." There doubtless is—under the Herald's hat. He is not a man to be bulldozed by its ravings, and that does not make its "feeling" less.

But it is very inconsistent of the Hamilton Herald to attack the School Board for paying more for a contract to a Hamilton man than to an outsider, while it is doing its best to get the city to pay more to an outside concern for power!

The British House of Commons, by a vote of 319 to 54, refuses to accept the Lords' amendments to the Irish Land bill. Unless their lordships climb down their attitude on that measure will not help them in the struggle over the budget.

A Berlin despatch hints at a movement toward an Anglo-German understanding which is believed to have the favor of the German Chancellor. How sad it would be if the enthronement of common sense should blight the hopes of the naval expansion enthusiasts!

Canada's trade commissioner in Japan notes that there is to be extensive railway building in that country next year, and suggests that Canadian steel manufacturers should have a representative on the ground.

Having failed to terrify Mayor McLaren by its threats, the Herald is now exercising its bulldozing tactics upon Ald. Porth, Applegath and Ryan. We very much mistake these gentlemen if they can be driven into sacrificing the interests of the city by terror of the Hydro dog whip wielded by the Herald.

The Hydro-Electric municipalities will be very foolish if they offer objections to Hamilton joining the scheme for even 1,000 horse-power, with the protective clause asked. Hamilton is to be stuck for $115,000 as a beginning for the transmission line. They are not likely to want to throw away that assistance.

The delectable Herald affects to be very much exercised about the "insinuations" made by the Times about certain touters for the Hydro-Electric scheme, to which it has so diligently sought to betray the city. Let it make its mind easy. The worst the ratepayers could know of some of these men are the plain facts of their course in regard to the matter.

The man who is always ready to act never stops to think.—Dallas News.

More Than You Expect in Soap

You who are used to ordinary soaps will be surprised when you first try Taylor's Infants' Delight Soap.

No other soap compares with it for every toilet purpose—the bath, massage, shampoo, or for washing baby's rose-leaf skin.

For we make this soap of pure coconut oil from the isle of Ceylon, and vegetable oils from France.

We clarify and blend these oils and mill them by our own special process. Nothing is left undone to make this soap supreme.

Infants' Delight Soap

is the product of forty-four years of conscientious effort and costly experiment. Over a million Canadian families find it superior.

Its use prevents chapping, roughness and other skin complaints.

Containing a small amount of boracic acid, it combines the healing qualities of this much used antiseptic and cleanser with the stimulating and nourishing action of pure vegetable oils and essences.

It makes a rich, creamy lather, cooling and delightfully refreshing.

LABOR MEN INVITED HERE

LABOR MEN INVITED HERE

To Address a Public Meeting at Early Date.

The Trades and Labor Council had a short meeting last night, everything being arranged without any delay.

Arrangements were made for a meeting to be held within the course of the next two weeks. The meeting will be open to the public. It is the intention to have a number of good speakers to address the gathering.

Among them Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor; John Mitchell, Vice-President of the American Federation; Frank Morrison, Secretary of that body, and John B. Lennan, Treasurer. Other speakers will be W. Glockling, President of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress, and P. M. Draper, Secretary of the same.

A communication was read from the American Federation of Labor stating that all international unions which were not affiliated with the Council and should be have been ordered to do so.

A committee of three was appointed to wait upon the aldermen who, early in the year, expressed their intention of fighting for the Hydro-electric scheme and who did not do so at the meeting last Monday. The committee will ask their reasons for not supporting the scheme.

Credentials were received from the painters.

A donation of $10 was made to the Moulders' Union.

The Council made note that a plumbing inspector was likely to be appointed and thought that the position should be occupied by a competent plumber.

TO NORMAL STUDENTS.

All Saints' Chapter of the Daughters of the King held a very delightful reception for the Anglican Normal students at the school house of All Saints' Church last evening.

Church last evening, Misses Olive Cairns and Bessie Leckie played a piano duet in a splendid manner; Miss Duncuoy played a violin solo; Miss G. Kirby sang "The Glow Worm," and Miss Victoria Stares charmed the audience with a song, "When We're Together."

Miss Stares was a guest and her hostesses were much indebted to her for so mysteriously helping with the entertainment on such short notice. The Venerable Archdeacon Forrester addressed the guests in a short, but pointed speech.

Halloween games were indulged in, and light refreshments served, after which, with the singing of the National Anthem, the happy evening was brought to a close.

MAN DROWNED.

Richmond, Que., Nov. 6.—Wm. Moore met death by drowning in what is called the Mad Brook, yesterday. Just how the accident happened is not known. Mr. Moore had not been well for some time.

"And now, my boy, who was Adam?" asked the Sunday school teacher. "He was the guy who shut out the Tigers in the last game for the world's championship," replied the pupil.—Detroit Free Press.

Stanley Mills & Co., Limited Saturday, Nov. 6th, 1909

The test of any store's usefulness in a community is the service it gives to its patrons. Past records or future promises count for mighty little when you have hurried shopping to do. What you want most is a good service right at the moment—a service that will attend to your wants without any fuss or delay—a service that will enable you to accomplish the most in a limited space of time, and the store that can give you that service is the store you are most likely to deal at.

Now, service giving is a hobby with this store, we might almost say it is one of the fundamental principals upon which this business is built—a satisfactory store service, a quick courteous store service, every move filled with enthusiasm and a constant studying of how every action will be received by you.

Every detail of the Stanley Mills & Co. store service is being continually weighed in the balance and when found wanting depend upon it, the remedy is applied without delay.—STANLEY MILLS & CO., LIMITED.

$15 Coats and Suits

When the designers and "tailors" got busy on these very special and moderately-priced garments they evidently set themselves about to see just how much style and how much "exclusiveness" and how much money's worth they could crowd into a fifteen dollar garment and it's even surprising to ourselves, who are eternally demanding more and more from the makers for our money.

New "Ulster" Suits

The ladies know what's what, and that's why through the whole day we are continually showing and "trying on" one or more of these Swagger Long Coats—the Ulster Coats in beautiful winter cloths and colors with new trimmings. ORANGEMEN MAKE MERRY.

Celebration of Gunpowder Plot Anniversary Last Evening.

Feasting and merriment galore were the features in the Orange Hall last night when the local orangemen held their annual Gunpowder Plot banquet.

The ladies of the order supplied the good things for the banquet, and when the banqueters sat down at 8.30 it was to tables literally groaning under the weight of palate ticklers. The attack made on the delicacies was a steady one for about 45 minutes, and the result was conclusive evidence of the ladies' abilities as connoisseurs in the culinary department.

When the feasting had satisfied the inner man, songsters and edifying speakers held sway, after which the mythological Terpsichore presided, while the lads and lassies indulged in his pleasant art.

There were fully 150 present, and grim care and joyful trouble were sent scurrying away to other quarters quite early in the evening.

Charles H. Pilgrim, District Master, who was in the chair, acted as toastmaster, and proposed the following toasts:

"The King," responded to by all singing the National Anthem.

"Grand Orange Lodge," responded to by R. W. William Nicholson, district treasurer, and P. G. M.

"Grand Black Chapter," to which Bro. R. Graham suitably replied.

"District and Primary Orange Lodges," responded to by Bros. T. J. Stewart, M. P., T. Wilson and W. A. Kerr.

"Canada, Our Home," to which Bro. J. H. Robinson most suitably responded.

"Our Guests," replied to by Rev. Bro. Allen and Dr. Lannin.

"The Ladies," by Bro. W. Hutton. Songs were sung by Bros. A. T. Mackie, A. P. Whiting and A. Roat, and Bro. N. Nichol gave a reading, entitled "An Irishman's Love Letter."

The songs were all of the hilarious variety and the applause was plentiful. Bro. W. M. Clark, district secretary, was the man behind the fun gun, and kept things moving along the happy rut.

It was the early hours when the party broke up. They were happy to meet, sorry to part, and will be happy to meet again. Mr. Lorne Lee was the able accompanist of the evening.

ON ANGELO.

Fine Address Before the Hamilton Association.

A large number of the members of the Hamilton Association attended the third general meeting last evening, in the museum in the Public Library building. A number of new members were proposed, and accepted.

The main part of the programme was the lecture by Prof. A. H. Young, M. A., of Trinity College, Toronto, entitled "Michael Angelo and the Sistine Chapel."

The lecturer illustrated the various things about which he spoke by 50 lime-light slides, which included Michael Angelo's statuary and pictures of the Sistine Chapel, with an explanation of the decoration of the chapel. He gave a description of the life of the artist, and his contemporaries. He was born in 1474, in Florentine territory, and died in 1564. He did most of his work in Rome and gained fame as a result of his masterpieces. Some of the greatest of his works were to be found in Florence, among them being, David and Night. He pointed out how throughout the great sculptor's life his course had been marked with success. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the lecturer.

The members received, were, Messrs. D. T. J. Baxter, M. P. Malone, Thomas E. Hillman, Walter B. Champ, C. J. McCoy and Dr. J. H. Bell.

SHOT BY DETECTIVE.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 6.—John Kinward, alias John W. Wier, was probably fatally shot on a crowded downtown street last evening while attempting to escape from detectives who had placed him under arrest on the charge of bigamy. Kinward married his first wife at Iroquois, Ont., and the woman still lives in a small place in Dundas county.

COULD NOT WALK FOR FOUR MONTHS

Mass of Itching, Burning Humor on Ankles—Feet Fearfully Swollen—Opiates Alone Brought Sleep—Many Treatments Failed but

TORTURES OF ECZEMA YIELDED TO CUTICURA

"Cuticura Remedies are all you claim them to be. I had eczema for over two years. I had two physicians, but they only gave me relief for a few days and I cannot enumerate the ointments and lotions I used to no purpose. My ankles were one mass of sores. The itching and burning were so intense that I could not sleep. I could not walk for nearly four months. One day my husband said I had better try the Cuticura Remedies. After using them three weeks, I had the best night's rest in months unless I took an opiate. I used one ointment of Cuticura, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolva Pills, and my ankles healed in a short time. It is now a year since I used Cuticura, and there has been no return of the eczema."

"I had a small lump in the corner of my eye for over a year which was very painful and got larger all the time. I thought I would try Cuticura Soap and Ointment on it, and now it is gone. I am seventy-three years old and have lost faith in all. To such I would recommend Cuticura, and Pills appeal with irresistible force. They are absolutely pure, sweet, gentle, and wholesome. They afford immediate relief in the most distressing cases, and point to a speedy cure when all else fails."

FACE FOR THE LADIES

LATEST PARIS FASHIONS VELVET AND CLOTH STREET COSTUMES

A Wonderful Restaurant Dress in Marten-Cloth Velvet Made Over Satin--Amber Aurora Silk.

Cut Jet Trellis Work is Among the Fascinations for Fine Evening Dresses.

Most important of all the gowns in the autumn outfit is the smart coat and skirt street costume.

So rapidly do the changes of fashion come nowadays and so inviolable are the dictates of Dame Fashion to-day that it is impossible to wear during the autumn months a costume of the preceding spring as to be seen in a felt hat after Easter Sunday.

Marked Changes in Skirts This year the most marked changes have all to do with the skirts more than with the coats and waists of the various costumes.

Dark Silk Bodices. Necessarily these rough materials are warmer than the smooth finished cloths, so that it is obligatory for the waist to be light in weight.

Coats of Different Length. There is a great difference of opinion apparent just now in regard to the correct length of a walking coat.

A MOTHER'S CHIEF CARE IS HER BABY'S WELFARE The great desire of every mother is that her little ones shall be bright, good-natured and healthy.

One distinctive feature of the new street costumes is the bodice of different shade. It is practically impossible to wear a waist of the same fabric as one of the heavy serges or chevots of which the coat and skirt are formed.

For this style of costume the coat may be either quite short and considerably braided and trimmed or very long indeed, with perhaps a cape effect at the collar and a fanciful waistcoat of brocade or embroidered silk or cloth.

Your Gloves. Yellow dies hard. Some stick to chemisettes. There are handsome wash gloves. For $2 one has a very good short pair.

Various Shapes in Millinery. In the matter of millinery almost any kind of shape seems to be permissible provided only that it may prove becoming to the wearer.

Moire. Moire antique is being used also for the making of large turban toques, swathed to follow the shape of the head, and trimmed only with a large oblong buckle in bright jet, placed on one side.

Beaver. Long-haired beaver felt hats, both in black and in colors, seem likely to be very much worn during the next few months, and they have much to recommend them since they are light in weight and eminently becoming.

EXQUISITE FUR COAT. This is a Paletot made of dyed pony skins and trimmed with skunk. The broad collar, cuffs and band around the bottom of coat is a most popular trimming this season.

FAST COLORS.

Those Known as Hydrosulphite Said to be Best on the Market.

The fastest colors on the market today are what are known among dyers as hydrosulphite, colors that are dyed in a caustic bath with hydrosulphite.

Feathers. How they flourish! Ostrich feathers lead. The willow is the loveliest.

Touch of Black Has Great Vogue. A particularly elegant woman was dining out at a restaurant the other evening in a swathed gown of marten-colored soft velvet.

Black, the Magician. Almost every toilet intended for such wear has a touch of black, and of very definite black.

Seen in the Shops. Brocaded ribbons have come into vogue once more--both satin and velvet--and are made into little slipper and opera bags and sometimes knotted about fur-trimmed haversacks for juvenile wearers.

Men's Styles. New Dress Coat in Which There is No Resemblance to That of a Waiter. A new dress-coat model on view at the Tailor and Cutter exhibition of tailor-made garments seems likely to remove the complaint that a man's evening dress is identical with that of the waiter.

He Asked His Question of the Wrong Person. "Once upon a time a man went into the shop of a man who sold hats to buy a new hat for himself.

Now, the hat was certainly an old and shabby one, as it had been worn for years. So the man, when he had finished looking at it, gave it back to the other man, and said, "No, I haven't got a hat like that! And I am sure that if I had I wouldn't wear it!"

HOW MANY POINTS WILL TIGERS WIN BY ?

Is the Question the Tiger Fans Are Asking Each Other—Nearly Six Thousand People Will See This Afternoon's Game.

The question that is agitating the local Rugby bugs to-day is not "Will Tigers win to-day?" but "By how many points will the Tigers win to-day?" The possibility of a defeat does not seem to be entertained by any of them, and reports from the Capital be true, the Rough Riders' supporters are just as confident. One thing, however, is certain, and that is that one of the greatest football battles in years will be fought at the Cricket Grounds this afternoon. The captains of both teams seem confident of victory, and both say they are putting their strongest teams on the field. Bert Stronach and Charlie Disney, two of the Ottawa players who were reported disabled, left Parliament Hill with the team last night, and it is most likely that both will be in the game to-day. Without Stronach Ottawa's chance of pulling off a victory to-day would be very slight indeed, and even with the big Scot in the game on the season's hope it looks like all the way. Little money has been wagered, as the Ottawa bunch are easy and refused to show their long green unless they got ten to one for their money. Some few bets have been made at ten to four and three, but the total of all the money put up would not run over three or four hundred dollars.

Of the extra eight hundred seats that were put on sale yesterday not one was left by the middle of the afternoon. It is estimated that a crowd of nearly six thousand will be out to see the game, and many will likely be turned away from the grounds. A squad of a dozen policemen will be on hand to handle the crowd. The club is determined to keep the crowd off the field at half time, and only the newspaper men and the officers of the club will be allowed on the touchlines.

The Duke street gate will be open and those having tickets for the north stand must enter by this gate. Automobiles and rigs will not be allowed on the grounds for this game.

Don Lyon is somewhat disappointed that he is not going to play to-day, but realizes that it would be more prudent to break into the senior game. Although the wrist bone is now well knit, the muscles of his arm are flabby from being held up in a sling, and would afford but poor support to the bone.

Gubby Harvey will be on the side lines, and should the Hamilton back be getting the worst of it he will be put in the game. He is not very anxious to play, as another game in senior company would disqualify him from playing in intermediate company.

After numerous requests by his football friends, Dutch Burton has at last consented to have the rent in the sleeve of his football jacket sewed up.

According to King Clancy's dope, the Rough Riders are going to defeat the Tigers by a score of about 20 to 0. King always was a poor deopeter, that is leaving drugs out of the question.

The fact should not be overlooked that while Ottawa and Tigers are whooping it up in Hamilton for the Big Four title, Argonauts and Chaucer Elliott's misbeg pardon-outfit will worry away for the coal bin laurels of the league. The situation is somewhat the same as Ottawa and Tigers. If Argonauts win they will be tied with Montreal for last place. It is not probable the league will order the tie played off.

Ottawa, Nov. 6.—With the best drilled and best conditioned team Ottawa has been able to whip in line for a number of years, final practice in preparation for the struggle at Hamilton tomorrow ceased yesterday afternoon, suits, boots, pads and other paraphernalia incident to the Rugby player's outfit being packed ready to accompany the team, which leaves at 9:30 to-night over the Grand Trunk for Tigertown. Every member of the team to represent Ottawa on the field to-morrow is physically fit, brim full of confidence and sincere in his declaration he will bring home the Inter-Provincial championship. No changes will be made on the line-up announced earlier in the week. The team is without doubt a large percentage stronger than at any time this season, and for that matter last year. Young Stewart Christie who is playing the wing left vacant by the famous Jack Ryan, has developed into a star and is cited by many critics as being quite the equal of any red-haired flyer. He is a wonderful all round boy with the greatest ball getting propensities of any man that ever wore an Ottawa uniform. Comparing the Ottawa back line of last year with the present squad, there is a very wide margin in favor of this season's men. Williams is playing better than at any time since he joined the Ottawa team, while Hal Kennedy is not in the same class with Eddie Gerard. Gordon Johnstone at full is playing the position quite as well as Williams did last season. On the right half, McCann is the best ground getter in the league. Kilt's quarter-back work this year has

JOHNSON'S LATEST

CHAMPION JACK JOHNSON.

When Jack Johnson reached the Grand Central station, New York, where he went to meet Jim Jeffries, he was held up by a battery of newspaper photographers, who treated the champion about as respectfully as they did Alex. Dowie when that prophet invaded the metropolis. Subsequent remarks by the prophet did not seem to give the snapshots a good opinion of themselves.

been greatly improved by the experience he gained playing the game on the outside wing. As a result when playing on the defensive Kilt makes an extra wing. Big Bert Stronach played in the saw-off at Kingston last year with his knees in terrible condition. This year he has had the members bruised slightly, but at the present moment is little short of perfect. This being Stronach's second year in Canadian Rugby, he is much better acquainted with the game than in 1908. And his work is more spectacular than ever. Take the Ottawa wings and scrimmage, all experienced men, place them side by side with the backs, and make a comparison with the Tiger fourteen. Where outside critics give the Hamilton outfit the edge, is as perplexing to Ottawa fans as the identity of the man who wore the iron mask.

LECTURE ON NELSON.

On Thursday a splendid lecture on "Nelson and Trafalgar" was given to the boys of Highfield School by Mr. James Gadsby. To give emphasis to his remarks, he had the assistance of a valuable set of lantern slides. The main points of the hero's career were admirably brought out, and the great lessons to be derived from his noble character clearly indicated. Mr. Gadsby's closing sentiments, according to Tom Nelson's glorious conception of duty. He trusted that his young hearers would be guided by the same sense of obligation to the empire, and do all in their power to uphold the best traditions of past generations.

GRIDIRON GOSSIP

The Rugby programme for to-day is as follows: Interprovincial—Senior. Argonauts at Montreal. Dundas at Argonauts.

O. R. F. U.—Senior. T. A. A. C. at Peterboro'. Intercollegiate—Senior. Queen's at Toronto. McGill at Ottawa. Intercollegiate. R. M. C. at Varsity II. Junior. Queen's III. at Varsity III.

Most of the Toronto fans are agreed that Hamilton and Varsity will be matched for the Dominion championship, but they differ as to which of these teams is the stronger. Some say that the Tigers will win in a walk, while others claim that Varsity will be the champions. The Varsity players themselves are confident that they can defeat the Hamilton team, but the Argos and Parkdale Canoe Club adherents nearly all favor the Tigers. The Argos say that Varsity has a weak wing line. Their men are heavy enough and big enough to make good, but so far they have showed very poor form. Perhaps there is some truth in the statement. In the game with McGill a couple of weeks ago, although the Easterners were outplayed in every other department of the game, still, when it came to bucking the line they gained yards on every down. The Varsity men couldn't stop them, and the McGill line was, if anything, the lighter of the two. On the other hand, the University men claim that they have the strongest back division in Canada and that their strength in this department will offset any weakness at any other point in the team. They say that the Tigers, with their heavy line and back division, will be expecting the game to be one of mass plays and successive bucks, while instead the lighter men on the Varsity team, being able to follow down faster and will make the play of an open nature. Then, too, they say that their tackling is greatly superior to anything that the Tigers can show and expect it to help them materially to win out.

The Parkdale and Argos men claim that the Toronto team can't keep the game from being one of mass plays, and state that it is weight and not speed that will prove the winning factor. Truly the battle will be worth going a long way to see if the two teams meet.

The teams will line up as follows: Hamilton. Fullback. G. Smith (152) . . . . . (150) Johnstone Halves. Burton (150) . . . . . (150) Gerrard Simpson (160) . . . . . (155) Williams Moore (161) . . . . . (152) McCann Quarter. Awrey (142) . . . . . (178) Kilt Scrimmage. Bramer (196) . . . . . (196) Kennedy Pfeiffer (174) . . . . . (195) Ferguson Craig (190) . . . . . (178) McCuaig Wings. Merriott (168) . . . . . (180) Stronach Barron (207) . . . . . (175) Vaughan Cives (200) . . . . . (170) Phillips Wagle (200) . . . . . (167) Church Isbister (190) . . . . . (175) Disney Turner (162) . . . . . (160) Christie

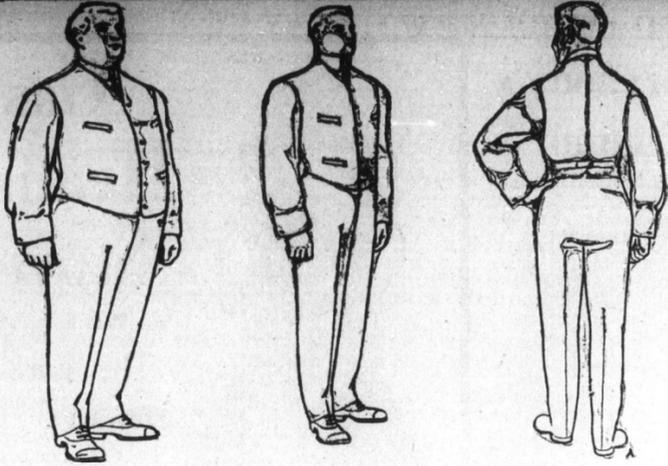

Hamilton substitutes—Harvey, Tope, W. Smith, Bethune, Loftus and Lyon. Ottawa substitutes—Sheriff, Wilkinson, McGee and Pope.

Ottawa, Nov. 6.—The Ottawa football team, accompanied by six officers and half a hundred rooters, left last night for Hamilton, where they give battle to-day to the Tigers. The Ottawa left on a special train over the Grand Trunk Railway. They were given a rousing send-off at 9:30, a large crowd assembling at the depot. The team expressed the fullest confidence before its departure. Bert Stronach and Charlie Disney both going along. According to Tom Clancy, Bert Stronach will certainly take part in the big match. Stronach was around as usual yesterday. He showed a few traces of his injury, but declared he was going to make an attempt to play, at any rate. Stronach's knee is undoubtedly in bad shape, but he will certainly be in uniform when the going rings. Stronach's departure with them left the rest of the team in good humor. Charley Disney will also play. Disney was under a doctor's care all day, but Dr. Nagle said that his injury will not keep him out of the play. Disney is determined to play. Wilkinson, Dick McGee, Sheriff and Pope went to Hamilton as spares.

Ottawa on the eve of the most important game of the year, is football mad. Everyone is talking football, and thousands will watch the progress of the big battle fought out over the bulletin boards. Everyone believes the Ottawas will make a great fight for it, and although there has been little betting, it would not be at all surprising to see the Red, White and Black men come home with the championship. There is now a feeling that things are not as blue in the Ottawa camp as they have been painted, and that the capital will put its strongest team of the season on the field. Reports from Hamilton that the Tigers would run up a "serket score" do not seem to have annoyed the Ottawa officials or players to any extent. "We're better than the Tigers in every department," said Coach Clancy last evening. "They will find themselves up against the toughest proposition that they have ever met. We are going to make our fight for the championship right in Hamilton. Tigers will need to play their best, for we are going up to try them."

Clancy figures out, as usual, that the Ottawa backs will outplay those of the Tigers, and that the wing men and scrimmagers will more than hold their own. Argonauts took eighteen men with them to Montreal last night, leaving by C. E. R. at 10 o'clock. Who will be on the team will not be known until the players reach Montreal. One change will be made on the line that will put "Bud" Kent at middle wing and W. Brown will be given a chance in the scrimmage. Art Kent and Norcross, the disabled members of the team, are yet unable to get into a suit, but they will be ready for the game in Toronto with Tigers next Saturday.

The Argos are hoping that they can capture a couple of Varsity half-backs for their team next season. It is do or die with the Tigers to-day.

The Indian Behind the Mask; or, The Strategy of Butch

BUTCH MAOGINITY got three bills, a shoe circular and one real letter in his mail Tuesday morning. He read the real letter first. Then he turned on Doggy Coot and Smiler Wright, who were playing pitch at the table. "Here's a fine piece of brain work," growled Butch. "It's a letter from a member of the Alpha To Omaha fraternity."

"Read it," said Smiler, slipping the jack off the bottom. Butch read as follows: "Dear Mr. Maoginity: 'Why not use this idea for one of your football yarns? Have the Mugwumps play the decisive game with the Lowbrows. Smith, of the Lowbrows, is the best full-back in the State, and the Mugwumps can't win with him in the game.'"

"So the Mugwumps put up a game. When the teams line up Jones, a poor player, is at right half for the Mugwumps in place of Johnson, the star. Just before the game starts Jones walks over to Smith and says something saucy. Smith answers, and Jones swings at him. Smith hits back, and both are sent to the side lines. Johnson goes in for Mugwumps, and the Lowbrows, without Smith, are licked.

"Why, that's all right," said Doggy, slipping the deuce out of the discard. "All right!" yelled Butch. "It's the cheapest bunk I ever saw. It sounds just like one of those Alpha To Omahas or a Pie Gramma Deal."

"On the first down after the kick-off I jumped on the full-back like a load of bricks. He went down and the rest of the Lalapalooza team fell on top of me. I slapped the mask on the Indian's face and when the pile crawled off I yelled 'Man hurt!'"

"That was the signal for the ambulance men. They grabbed the man in the mask, chucked him into the ambulance, and the driver whipped up like man for the nearest hospital. "Squedunk thought one of our men was hurt. They knew it could not be the Indian, because his face was dark. In the excitement our left end slipped away and we put in a sub. Then we lined up again and Squedunk learned their half-back was missing. There was a big to do, but he couldn't be found. "He's a quitter!" yelled Squedunk, as we turned in and beat 'em 42 to 0. The next day they found him in the hospital, full of drug store whiskey and as happy as a freshman with the pledge button of the Sigh Hoopalong in his buttonhole."

COMMENT AND GOSSIP

Baseball magnates seem to think it absolutely necessary to deny all deals until they can do so no longer. A fine, husky Ananias club could be formed from the National and American Leagues.

Jeffries wants to train with Gotch, which probably means he's going to try to land a toe blow on Johnson.

Well-founded rumors are afloat that Lunghi will turn professional. This recalls to mind the rumors to the effect when Lunghi first came to this country. Can it be that Lunghi fears Sheppard and Gissing?

Just think of the number of pork chops 75 per cent. of $100,000 will buy! Lil' Arthur has it figured down to pounds.

Il a gagne bien facilement."

President Navin of Detroit, will naturally oppose the abolition of spikes now that he has tied up so much money in Ty Cobb.

Neither Jeffries nor Johnson has handed himself a decision over the other fellow during the past 24 hours. Can it be that they have stopped their voice training for a time? Forget it.

Sam Langford seems to be experiencing some trouble in gathering together those ten thousand shekels which Jack Johnson demands as a forfeit before making a match with his fellow Senegambian. Sam isn't rated quite as high in financial circles.

It was predicted that the touring Pilgrims would keep their record of victories complete until they reached home, but the collapse came Thursday at Philadelphia, as stated in the despatch yesterday, by 1 goal to 0. The Hibernians were the winners, and thus had the honor of being the first team to defeat the Englishmen during their present tour of the United States. Without in the least detracting from the merit of the Irishmen's win, it is allowed in extension of the Pilgrims that the majority of the men were in a crippled condition, and that the ground was so narrow that it was impossible for them to play anything like their proper game.

The Hibernians played a hard, aggressive game, and the form they displayed was quite a surprise to the spectators. When the Pilgrims at the very outset played a tired, listless game the Irishmen quickly sized up the situation and throughout the game plugged in the most persistent fashion. When half-time arrived without either side having scored it was thought that the Pilgrims with a strong wind in their favor in the second half, would wake up and make things lively. Andy Brown, a Scotchman, scored the only goal for the Hibernians near the close.

The great running stallion, Salvador, whose record of 1:35 1/2 for a mile still stands as a record in America, and who died recently in Kentucky, came from a strong line of trotters on his dam side. His granddam, Lighthouse, is the fourth dam of Caid, 2:07 1-4, and the second dam of Bonny Castle, that sired the dam of Clariza W., 2:09 3-4.

Here's a good one from a Philadelphia paper: Mike Murphy, the University of Pennsylvania's trainer, said of a Pennsylvania football player: "He has the self-sacrifice and the inventiveness, minus the deceit, of a man at a Philadelphia game last year. "When the crowd was entering ticketst at Franklin Field one afternoon, this man shouted to the tickettaker from down the line: "It's all right. I've got the tickets. There's twelve of us. Count 'em as they go in." "Eleven men were counted. They entered the field and mingled at once with the crowd. "Then the ticket-taker turned to the twelfth man—but he had disappeared."

Wants None of Langford. New York Sheriff Is Surprised at Jeffries' Condition.

New York, Nov. 6.—Jack Johnson is not anxious to try conclusions with Sam Langford. He says he does not believe Langford means business and also declares that he will not take part in a bout with anybody before he meets Jas. J. Jeffries in the ring.

In short, Johnson does not want to take chances with such a dangerous pugilist as Langford, at whose hands a defeat would nullify the coming battle with Jeffries.

Police Make Arrests But Clue Is Not Strong.

Report That Important Information Has Been Acquired.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 5.—An Italian, whose name the police refuse to divulge, was arrested yesterday at Niagara Falls Centre by Detective Pay, of the Ontario police.

The Italian says he drew the money from the post office savings bank here three weeks ago, and while this fact has been verified, the police do not think they have exhausted the probabilities of the arrest, and the matter will be probed deeper.

There is a strong feeling that the robbery was committed by a gang of men who knew intimately the details of the shipment of money from local banks, and this theory carries with it the inference that local men are concerned in the affair.

The police place confidence in the report of Mrs. Turner, of Bridge street, who states that about 5 o'clock a man answering the description given of the thief, and who carried a package wrapped in a dark cloth, rushed up Bridge street. Outside her house he collided with three ladies, who were walking in the opposite direction and ran on her lawn to pass them.

Mrs. Brookfield, who was in the express office a few minutes before Dobson was wounded, saw two men in the office, but does not remember their appearance.

This afternoon a swoop was made on Niagara Falls, N. Y., and information, which is said to be important, was acquired.

Mr. Bryce, assistant to the vice-president of the Canadian Express Company, has authorized Inspector Mains, of the Provincial police, to offer a reward of $400 for information leading to the arrest of the criminals.

Gilmore, the Toronto man, was released yesterday.

THE TRAGEDY AT UXBRIDGE.

Strange Stories Told About Fatal Fire There.

Husband Contradicts Evidence of His Own Daughter.

Flirtations With Other Women—Poison in the House.

Uxbridge, Ont., Nov. 5.—Some sensational testimony was given at the inquest to-day into the cause of the death of Mrs. McLaughlin and her two children, who were supposed to have been burned to death in their home.

Reuben Harman and Stewart Annis both testified that McLaughlin (who escaped from the burning house with one of the children), had told them of his intimacy with a young woman in this town, and stated that he would gladly elope with her if she would consent. He also said that his family relations were not pleasant, that he feared his wife might commit suicide or might poison him at any time, and, further, that his two little boys, who were victims of the tragedy, were not his children. Annis stated that McLaughlin had intimated to him that he would not be surprised to find himself a free man before the end of the year.

Sept. Hartwell swore that he had heard McLaughlin make the remark on Sunday night last in his room at the hotel that he did not know whether he would be behind the bars or in his grave in a week.

J. H. Chinn had asked McLaughlin if he could suggest any cause for the fire. The latter replied that possibly the lamp in his room, which she often set on the floor, might have been knocked over by the little boy, who sometimes walked about in his sleep. The lamp in question, however, was found in good condition with oil still in it. Witness stated that he had walked home with McLaughlin at noon on the day of the fire. He denied the story that he had talked about the rumors that were going the rounds of the town regarding his flirtations. He stated that the whole story was a lie.

The coroner called McLaughlin to the stand and questioned him regarding the statements made by the witnesses during the afternoon. He denied the story, but said that she had been carried downstairs by her father, though he had affirmed that he had not been out of the kitchen after he came home.

Her testimony he denied in every particular. He positively affirmed that he never saw his wife after she left the kitchen. When questioned as to whether she was in the habit of using opiates, he said she was not, and said there was nothing of the kind in the house, except a small box of rat poison. Subsequently, however, he remembered buying a small quantity of strychnine, and also that there was a small bottle of morphia in the house, though he could not tell definitely where they were kept, as his wife had them in charge. His wife was ill with cramps when he last saw her, but he did not see her take any medicine.

When asked to explain his intimacies with the young woman, he claimed that if anything had been said it was in a joke. McLaughlin swore that his wife was a very strange woman, subject to fits of melancholy, at all times she would not speak to him. All the other members of her family were similarly constituted. With the exception of those little jarring circumstances, they lived happily together.

The coroner adjourned the inquest until Monday, the 22nd inst., to await the result of Prof. Ellis' analysis of the stomach.

HAD BANQUET.

Westinghouse Firemen Made Merry Last Evening.

Thursday night the Canadian Westinghouse Co. gave a banquet to the members of their fire brigade at the Commercial Hotel, when a very enjoyable evening was spent. The affair was largely attended by the fire fighters, who to a man voted it to be one of the most pleasing events they had ever participated in, and they were very much pleased with the well-arranged, appetizing supper, and the finely decorated tables supplied by Host Goldberg. Besides the talent supplied by the firemen there were also present about half a dozen professional entertainers, who did their utmost to make the affair an entire success, which they succeeded in doing to everyone's satisfaction. The programme was as follows: Selection, piano, M. P. Tye; opening address, chairman, Mr. D. P. Brown; toast, "King and Country," Mr. P. Donville; song, "Rule Britannia," Mr. Pringle; sketch, scene from "The Man of the World," and "The Groom's Story," Mr. M. Cleworth; song, "Annie Laurie," Mr. S. Robertson; solo, mandolin, Mr. C. Russell; toast, "Canadian Westinghouse Co.," Mr. M. E. Wallace; humor, Mr. F. Mitchell; song, "An Irishman in France," Mr. W. Donaldson; song, "Mr. W. Pringle," sketch, "Story of the North and South," Mr. M. Cleworth; sketch, "The Merchant of Venice," Mr. M. Cleworth; toast, "Brigade," Mr. S. Holland; song, Mr. W. Harper; comic song, "They're After Me," Mr. W. Donaldson; sketch, Mr. F. Mitchell; toast, "Host and Hostess," Mr. G. Goldberg.

The committee in charge was S. Holland, chairman, A. Vallick, J. C. Dinmick, W. Harper, E. C. Waldeck, secretary-treasurer.

An order in Council has been passed appointing Mr. George J. Desbarats Deputy Minister of Marine and Fisheries. The lack of farm labor was a reason given this week by a miller of over forty years' experience for the small deliveries of Ontario wheat at country points. The farmer, this man thinks, is not deliberately holding back his wheat, but is striving with a limited amount of help to complete the fall work before the snow comes. The extent of the work, too, this season is greater than in many previous years, and as the number of laboring hands has diminished the task has become more arduous.

For running his automobile at an moderate rate of speed Dr. Fred Winnett, Toronto, was fined $15 without costs yesterday in the afternoon police court.

This Well Known Gentleman Strongly Recommends "Fruit-a-tives" to all Sufferers.

JAMES DINGWALL, ESQ.: "I have much pleasure in testifying to the almost marvellous benefit I have derived from taking 'Fruit-a-tives.' I was a lifelong sufferer from Chronic Constipation, and the only medicine I ever secured to do me any real good was 'Fruit-a-tives.' This medicine cured me when everything else failed. Also, last spring I had a severe ATTACK OF BLADDER TROUBLE WITH KIDNEY TROUBLE, and 'Fruit-a-tives' cured these complaints for me, when the physician attending me had practically given me up. I am now over eighty years of age and I can strongly recommend 'Fruit-a-tives' for chronic constipation and bladder and kidney trouble. This medicine is very mild like fruit, is easy to take, but most effective in action." (Signed) JAMES DINGWALL. # MEDICAL BOARD

Proposal to Curtail Council's Powers at Next Legislature.

Not Pleased With Its Attitude in Certain Cases.

(Special Wire to the Times.) Toronto, Nov. 5.—If a story which is current at the Parliament buildings to-day be true, it is more than likely that the Ontario Medical Council will receive a shaking up in the course of the next session of the council. Details are very meagre, but from what can be learned certain members intend to ask some questions about the powers which the council has. It is stated that these members are prepared to conduct a more or less searching investigation into the whole matter, and are anxious to follow up this action by the introduction of a measure designed to curtail considerably the power which the council now has. It is understood that the contemplated action of these men has been undertaken quite independently of the Government and that what the Government is prepared to do is not yet known. It is freely conceded that the members who are likely to move in the matter have been actuated by opinions formed of the council's attitude towards cases of alleged malpractice, notably that of Dr. Stephen B. Pollard, who recently got five years in Kingston Penitentiary for an illegal operation on a woman.

ATE CHEESE.

Doctors Had Busy Time With Merriton Patients.

(Special Wire to the Times.) St. Catharines, Nov. 5.—Physicians had a busy time responding to emergency calls to Merriton last night, where a number of residents were found suffering evidently from poison. It was impossible for some time to ascertain what they had been eating that had produced this effect, but eventually the cause was traced to poisoned cheese, which had been sold in good faith by a local grocer.

Stuart Nelson, proprietor of the Union Hotel, and Walter and Mrs. Webb, who were most seriously affected, were the first to remember that their illness followed shortly after they had eaten cheese. The merchant will send the cheese to Toronto to-day for analysis.

J. Williams, of Virden, Man., whose child died under Christian Science treatment for pneumonia, and who has been on trial for manslaughter as a result, was released on suspended sentence on Friday afternoon, after a jury had found him guilty with a strong recommendation for mercy, owing to his ignorance and extenuating circumstances.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The Anglican churches of Toronto will raise $10,000 for church extension work. Robert Henry Price was arrested in connection with incendiary fires in Simcoe county. The Attorney-General's Department may send an officer to Orangeville to capture "Bob" Cook. Prof. G. E. Leith, the geologist, who, it was thought, had been lost in the wilds, has reached Halesbury. The appointment of Mr. James Baird, K. C., as Crown Attorney for York county, is officially announced. A large party of women and children in charge of the Salvation Army sailed from England for Canada on the Corsican on Friday. According to reports received from New York, about $10,000 worth of goods, chiefly furs and dry goods, bought in Kingston and smuggled across the line, have been captured near there. Frederick E. Kane, whose wholesale and retail drug shop decorates the corner of East Queen and Victoria streets, Toronto, was yesterday convicted on one of five charges of immorality with young girls. The papers in the suit for divorce, which Mrs. John Jacob Astor is reported, have been brought against her husband, Colonel Astor, have been turned over by Referee Young to counsel for both parties in the suit. Rev. Calvin Goodspeed, D. D., for many years professor in McMaster University, but of late professor in Baylor University, Waco, Texas, has been stricken with tuberculosis, and is obliged to retire from his work. Burglars have raided Bernstorff Castle, Copenhagen, the residence of Prince Waldemar, the King's brother, and stolen nearly $1,500 from the secretary's office. The jewelry and bric-a-brac in the Prince's room escaped. For the purpose of asking the Government to assist in the work of reclaiming 20,000 acres of flooded land in Frontenac and Addington Counties, an influential deputation representing a thousand farmers, interviewed Sir James Whitney yesterday. A man, believed to have been either an American or an Englishman, dramatically committed suicide in a Montmartre, Paris, cafe. He asked the orchestra to play a waltz, "When Love Dies," and as the last strains died away he placed a pistol to his head and shot himself dead. Plans for a Queen Victoria Memorial Hall at Toronto, to fill the want of a building for the use of the various women's associations in Toronto were thoroughly discussed yesterday afternoon at a meeting called by the Women's Historical Society in the Canadian Institute. The London Financial News points out that, while the Canadian Northern bond issue was oversubscribed, the underwriters of the Turkish loan were left with $112 per cent. of the paper on their hands, and remarks that the popularity of good colonial issues was never more strikingly demonstrated. In the Palmerston avenue school, Toronto, the Rev. Alfred Hall, representative of the British and Foreign Sailors' Society, presented Miss Jennie Paddon, the winner of the Nelson Shield, with a beautiful brooch made from the copper of Lord Nelson's flagship, Victory. This was an immediate recognition of her success in the recent literary competition. Despatches received at Vienna from Belgrade, Serbia, say that Bishop Nikodjor, of Nish, Serbia, is to be tried for high treason on an unfortunate dream, in which he saw a revolution in Belgrade, the deposition of King Peter and the proclamation of former Crown Prince George as King. The Bishop told some friends of his vision, and finally the story reached the ears of the Government. Mr. Justice Teetzel caused three cases brought before him at the recent Kent Assizes to be settled on the basis of compromise. This may not have been satisfactory action to those who like litigation. But it was good for the litigants, and it saved the time of the court. Law is expensive, and the judges act wisely in advising litigants to settle rather than to incur heavy bills of cost. Sir William Mulock has done a good deal in this line, and all the judges seem to be favorable to it. The Ontario Medical Council will not meet until next July to deal with the case of Dr. Stephen B. Pollard, recently sentenced to five years' imprisonment for performing an illegal operation. OFFERING OF $400,000

7% Cumulative Preferred and Profit-Sharing Stock, in Shares of $100 Each, in the

SIEMON COMPANY LIMITED

TORONTO Authorized Capital $1,000,000

DIVIDED AS FOLLOWS: 5,000 Shares of $100 each Cumulative Preferred and Profit-Sharing Stock $500,000

DIRECTORS: J. C. SIEMON, Toronto, President. W. R. TUDHOPE, Toronto, Vice-President.

J. L. SIEMON, Warton, President The Siemon Bros., Limited. E. R. TATE, Lakefield, Secretary.

Head Office: Toronto. Plants: Warton, Lakefield and Parry Sound.

The Preference Stock is preferred both as to Assets and Dividends, and will share equally with the Common in any Dividend in excess of 7%; thus, if the Common Draws 7%, the Preferred will be paid 7% and 7%, equal to 14%.

THE SIEMON COMPANY, LIMITED, has agreed to take over as going concerns the business of three well known successful lumber manufacturers, and to acquire very valuable timber limits. The businesses and plants referred to are those of:

1. The Lillierap-Tate Lumber Co. Mills at Lakefield. 2. George E. Niebergall Mills at Warton.

3. George Niebergall & Son Mill and Veneer Plant at Parry Sound. An option has also been taken on the timber limits in connection with the plant. Limits are in the District of Parry Sound, near the Town of Parry Sound, and convenient to the plant.

4. The timber limit known as No. 48 in the Province of British Columbia, having an area of 3,538 acres and estimated to contain 197,500,000 feet of good merchantable timber.

5. A block of $100,000 preference shares of Siemon Bros., Limited, Manufacturers of Hardwood Flooring at Warton. Such preference shares have the right of participation in all further dividends equally with the common shares.

The agreements may be inspected at the office of the National Securities Corporation, Limited. The businesses which are being taken over are all old established and on a profitable basis, and have been and still are in every way successful.

The earnings are large, and with the improvements projected are calculated to reach a sum sufficient to pay over 15 per cent. on the entire paid up capital of the Company.

The net earnings at present on these businesses would be sufficient to pay 7 per cent. on the entire issue of preferred stock and leave a handsome margin for further dividends, and the improvements projected will quadruple the earning power of the plants.

The management will be in the hands of the same experienced men who have brought these businesses to their present successful state.

There will be no bonded indebtedness whatever. A conservative valuation of the timber to be cut on the limits is over $1,000,000, so that this source alone, at present values, covers the entire capital stock of the Company.

Besides the established trade of the three businesses and Siemon Bros., Limited, extending over all Canada, the result of over twenty years' operations, agents of the Company in Great Britain and elsewhere are in a position to offer favorable terms for the entire output of the factories for a year ahead. The great demand is the principal reason of the consolidation, which will supply means for the extension of plants, etc.

Controlling the timber limits, which assure a supply of material for years to come, and at the same time being assured of a market for all its products at an exceptional price, this Company offers investors quite exceptional guarantees as to permanency with the prospect of constantly increasing dividends.

Applications will be received for one or more shares, and may be made on regular forms, or when these are not available, shares may be reserved by letter or wire.

Dividends will be payable on Preferred Stock half-yearly, on the 1st of June and 1st of December of each year. Subscriptions will be received by SINGLE WOMAN Suspected of Making Away With Her Children.

Belleville, Nov. 5.—Hastings County may be in the limelight for a murder case, judging from the result of W. A. Gunton's visit here. He is a representative of the Children's Aid Society and has been in this vicinity for the past few days. In company with the local representative, Mr. Herbert Wrightmeyer, he today investigated a case in Tyendinaga, five miles north of Marysville, and arrested an unmarried woman named Frances Beaverstock, daughter of James Beaverstock, who was charged with murder. She is the mother of four illegitimate children, three of whom have not been accounted for, neither the registration of birth nor record of death or burial having been made. One of her near relatives admitted to Mr. Gunton and Mr. Wrightmeyer that two at least were murdered, while the girl admits herself that the last child born was buried by her in the bush shortly after its birth, unknown to her parents.

The woman will have a preliminary trial before Magistrate Masson to-morrow morning. Two of the dead children are alleged to be sons of a man who has served a term in prison. The remaining child is a boy, seven years old.

25 MILLIONS Given to the Public by John Stewart Kennedy.

New York, Nov. 5.—John Stewart Kennedy, one of America's little known rich men, who died of whooping cough in his New York residence on Sunday last, left bequests of more than $25,000,000 to religious, charitable and educational institutions in his will, filed for probate here to-day. The gift is the largest single contribution of its kind ever made, and the beneficiaries include educational and church institutions, north, south, east and west in the country, and abroad, sixty in all.

The charitable, religious and educational institutions which receive the largest bequests are to share the residue of the estate left after definite gifts of approximately $12,000,000 have been paid, their shares estimated by counsel for the executors as follows: Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, $2,250,000; Presbyterian Board of Home Missions, $2,250,000; Presbyterian Church extension fund, $2,250,000; Presbyterian Hospital, New York, $2,250,000; Robert College, Constantinople, $1,500,000; Presbyterian Board of Aid for Colleges, $750,000; Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, $2,250,000; New York

Public Library, $2,250,000; Columbia University, $2,250,000; United Charities, New York, $1,500,000; American Bible Society, $750,000; Charity Organization Society, New York, $750,000; Glasgow University, $100,000.

It is claimed that 50,000 Englishmen would be glad to come to Canada to do this work, and that therefore there is no need of Orientals.

SUICIDE IN COURT. Forger Bites the End of a Poisoned Cigar.

Paris, Nov. 5.—A dramatic suicide, similar to that of Whittaker Wright, occurred in the room of the examining Magistrate at the court of Algiers. A man under examination was one of the largest and best known shipbuilders in Algiers, and his examination resulted in the Magistrate's decision to send him for trial on a charge of forgery.

"Then this is the end," said the forger, as the Magistrate sat down to sign his committal. Before he could be prevented he bit off the end of a tiny tube of poison contained in a cigar which he held in his hand, swallowed the contents, and fell dead in court.

POOR POLLY. Talkative Bird Responsible For Reconciliation of Couple.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 5.—The screeching of a parrot in the La Salle station last night frustrated the plans of a runaway wife and later the bird was the means of effecting a reconciliation between the woman and her husband, Edward Zarnid.

The couple were married a year ago at South Bend, Ind. Among the wedding gifts they received was the parrot. When the husband returned home from work last evening, he discovered that his wife had gone, taking a satchel filled with clothes and the talkative bird. Surmising that she had left him to go back to her old home, Zarnid hurried to the railroad station. His wife was not there, but just as he was leaving the building he heard a parrot screeching. The bird was in the parlor room, and Zarnid immediately recognized it as his.

Zarnid waited and in a short time his wife entered. At her side was a man who carried her satchel. The parrot was handed out to her by the clerk of the parcel-room, and as she turned, her husband ran up and grabbed her by the arm.

"My wife's gone to the country!" screamed the bird.

The husband and wife, her companion and the parrot were taken to the police station, where a reconciliation was effected. Mrs. Zarnid denied that she was eloping, but said she was leaving her husband.

Glass Walls. Some French fruit culturists have recently essayed the use of fruit walls of glass instead of masonry, with interesting results. With a glass wall the same kinds of fruit can be grown on both the north and south sides. The Count de Choiseul, a distinguished amateur horticulturist, finds the results for pear trees most excellent, the fruit grown on the north side of the wall being equal to that grown on the south side, and even smoother. Other well-known nursery gardeners have made the experiment with good results for pears, peaches and apples. The principal objection made to the glass wall is that it does not store up heat like a masonry wall, to keep the plants warm at night; during the daytime the heat is nearly equal on both sides of the wall.

TENDERS FOR SUBSTRUCTURE NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Bridge Substructure," will be received at this office until 10 o'clock on Tuesday, the 30th of November, 1909, for the building of the Substructure of the Quebec Bridge.

The General Specification and form of tender will be ready about November 20th; but in the meantime, contractors are invited to visit the office of the Quebec Bridge Board of Engineers, Canadian Express Building, Montreal, for the purpose of securing preliminary information in connection with the tender for this work.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labor, which schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation, and the place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $10,000.00 made payable to the order of the Minister of Railways and Canals, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines to enter into contract for the work at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order, L. K. JONES, Secretary, Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, 26th October, 1909.

Newspapers inserting this advertisement without authority from the Department will not be paid for it.

AS TO GERMANY.

KAISER'S PEOPLE WANT TO BE FRIENDS WITH BRITAIN.

Berlin, Nov. 5.—The possibility of an Anglo-German understanding appears to be under consideration in high German Government circles. The failure to reach such an understanding heretofore is attributed to the method adopted by Great Britain. After Sir Charles Hardinge, permanent Under Secretary of the British Foreign Office, failed to obtain a satisfactory reply to his suggestion made at the meeting between King Edward and Emperor William at Kronberg, King Edward is understood to have tried to persuade the Emperor of Austria, whom he met at Echl, to make friendly representations to Germany.

The author of an anonymous communication which appeared in The Kreuz Zeitung to-day discuss this subject, and asks what can be done to restore among the British a feeling of security against German invasion, and so silence the mischievous agitation concerning the naval preparations being made in the two countries.

"Rather obscure hints to Vienna," says the correspondent, "would seem to indicate that it is now Germany's turn to make a counter-proposal, having considered the British suggestion unseemingly. The writer adds that the mutual assurances might be made in writing."

The Quiet Hour

For Thoughtful People

FAREWELL.
(By Rev. T. H. Miller.)
My frequent speech with God dispersed my care,
I knelt so close to Him, with reverent awe;
The inward glowing glorified the hour,
O dwelling place of hidden spirit-power.

I press the hand of death and pass right on,
Just as I press the hand of passing friend;
Over the doorstep and under portals frown,
Welcome the greetings which will never end.

The height of nobleness within my reach,
The stir of grand procession urge me on;
Expanding powers outstrip my feeble speech,
Profoundest music drowns my infant song.

Beamsville, Ont.

PRAYER.
Our Father in heaven, as we set out upon the great trackless ocean on the voyage of life which so many have crossed in safety and upon which so many have made shipwreck, we are often in perplexity and doubt. In the days of sweet sunshine we sometimes forget Thee, and when the storm comes we grow afraid, for we think God has forsaken us. But we rejoice to remember that Thou art the God of the storm as of the sunshine, and that nothing can separate from Thy love or thwart Thy holy purpose. In that confidence we have perfect peace whose mind is stayed in Thee. Amid sunshine and storm we would assure ourselves of Thy presence, and when at length the voyage is ended and the harbor is reached we shall review the past and see that Thou hast been guiding us all the way. Amen.

THE COMMANDMENTS IN METEOR.
Thou no God shalt have but me;
Before no idol bend the knee;
Take not the name of God in vain;
Dare not the Sabbath day profane;
Give both thy parents honor due;
Thee keep that thou no murder do;
Abstain from words and deeds unclean;
Steal not though thou be poor and mean;

Make not a willful lie or love it;
What is thy neighbor's dare not covet.
—Selected.

HOW JOY IS WON.
How little parallel Christ's "blesseds" run with those on which the average man congratulates himself! No one can read the Sermon on the Mount and not know himself on a different road and journeying toward a different goal from that of his own untaught desire and ambition. And yet that road has sunny stretches and the end in view is an unfailing joy. The leaders of the way keep telling us that joy is our inheritance. We know that it is a large part of our power. Why is it that we attain to it with so much difficulty and fall so often into the pit of doubt and grief?

The commonest answer to this question of discomforting experience is that we have slipped back from the position of the disciple to that of the unbeliever. With what do unbelievers solace their hearts in the way? Is it not with pleasure deliberately sought, power which makes them masters of the lives and fate of others? Do they not seek release from responsibility and surcease of pain? Would they not each plan for himself a guarded palace from which care should be shut out but pleasurable excitement made a constant visitor? The attainments of the Christian, which Christ calls blessed, joy is not for sale in this market or at those rates. To follow this path is but to turn out of the highway of the King into that bypath which led Christian in the allegory into the power of Giant Despair and the dungeons of Doubting Castle.

Our path takes us into trodden ways. It is the path of self-denial for the sake of others. It passes by turns of hard experience and through the valley of humiliation where pride must have a fall. If joy goes with us, it must be a joy that is independent of many things, our hearts cease, it must have a quietude of evening in it—how else shall it be our good comrade in the hour of disappointment? If there be no such joy in the world, the follower of Christ is poor indeed. But this is just the quality of the blessed with which Christ congratulates the companion of His own experience. They are sufferers and nevertheless are joyful. Life with them is not a pattern of pleasures struck upon a substance of discontent. It is a varied experience shot through and through with an ever-present delight. To be a companion of Christ and a son of God—that is the real and enduring joy. The troubles and perplexities of the way are not without their sting and weariness. But they never penetrate to the real life of the soul.

WHO?
I come with diffidence, modesty and charm. I carry, I bring, I hint, I belong to the vocabulary of Mount Zion. I swell in the bosom of the Eternal Father. I tremble in the saint. I flutter in the sinner. I promise, I prophesy, I propose. There is verve in my inspiration. I sail without a name, through channels not on the chart. My slips are laden with treasure, my yacht is filled with perfume. My voice in the market place says, "buy." My voice at the fountain says "drink." I say to the lowly, "lift up." I say to the despising, "cheer up." I say to the alcoholic, "give up." I say to the pur-blind, "look up." I come to the man in a trap, with hand-pick help. I come to the lonely, with sympathetic help. I come to the hungry, with bread and butter help. I come to the sinking, with lifeboat help. My breath is better than food, my silent attitude is more eloquent than words. I command, and lo, a great army. I open gates and lo, a flood. I touch a spring. There is seraphic joy. I engulf. There is weeping for ever. My voice is as soft as a maiden's prayer. I am a picture to cording as it may be published within a district, in a regimental station or a depot for several regiments.

Its editor is the colonel or commanding officer; the sub-editor (the man who actually does all the work) is the adjutant; the printers and publishers are the orderly room staff, and its readers the soldiers within the district, regiment or depot where it may be published. And its style is terse and laconic in the extreme. There is no opportunity for flowery and rhetorical language. Padding would not be tolerated for a moment. A week's work on its staff would convert the most rabid yellow journalist that ever spouted jingoism.—London Tid-Bits.

TONIC TREATMENT FOR INDIGESTION.
Remedies That Digest the Food Will Not Cure the Trouble—The Stomach Must be Fitted to do Nature's Work.

The tonic treatment for indigestion, dyspepsia, catarrh of the stomach and gastritis is having remarkable success in curing obstinate cases and deserves attention from every sufferer.

Its principal is that remedies for indigestion, although more than fifty miles distant, and therefore far below the horizon, are elevated and brought into view, magnified as though by a powerful telescope. As an instance of this remarkable phenomenon, the coast of France was some time ago distinctly visible from Hastings, although more than fifty miles distant, and therefore far below the horizon; houses, windmills, fishing boats at anchor, and other objects being clearly discernible, while with a telescope men and animals walking about could be plainly seen.

Another similar atmospheric effect which has so frequently been described is the mirage of the desert, when the weary traveller, or the footsore soldier on the march, is refreshed with the sight of a beautiful oasis, with a palm-bordered lake rippling with sparkling wavelets, but which, as with the torment of Tan-tan, as he advances towards it, continues to recede.

An aerial phantasm not infrequently observed in the Straits of Messina is the fata morgana; on one occasion the domed city of Reggio, as viewed from its equally unfortunate opposite neighbor Messina, being apparently moved into the centre of the straits, but every house, every church tower, every vessel lying in the dock, distorted or duplicated in fantastic form; here, the one tower of a church transformed into two slanting steeples; here, a vessel at anchor, with two counterpart inverted apparently resting in twin, each section resting unsupported upon air; while ships, houses, churches, cemeteries, gardens and streets are all intermingled in a hopeless confusion.

TOMMY ATKINS.
A Newspaper Organ Which Nobody Buys and Nobody Sells.

Tommy Atkins newspaper has many points which make it unique and lift it out of the common groove of journalism. It has its editor and sub-editor, its printers, publishers and deliverers, but all these could be dismissed or changed at a moment's notice, or daily, and its business would not suffer, nor would its tone be altered for better or worse!

It does not seek notoriety or endeavor to increase its circulation. In fact, a demand for more copies than usual is a source of annoyance to its printers and publishers! It does not canvass for advertisements, and would not accept them if offered. It has never even been guilty of a competition, either amusing or lucrative to its readers. There is no fear of it being used as a party organ, for the blandishments of a whole cabinet would not influence it one whit, and the combined wealth of Pierpont Morgan and John D. Rockefeller could not purchase it! And, most wonderful of all, nobody buys a single copy!

This unique newspaper is called District, Regimental or Depot Orders, according as it may be published within a district, in a regimental station or a depot for several regiments.

Mother-Love Endures Forever
Here is a sermon in a picture for every young man and every boy who has forgotten his mother. You don't need to be told that the sad-faced little woman with her arm about the younger man is his mother; the picture does that for you. You can see the story of mother-love in every line of her sad, withered face. Love, anxiety, fear, all are blazoned there.

The son is Dr. Haldane Cleminson, of Chicago, and this picture was photographed in a court room where he faces trial for murdering his wife.

He used to have friends, many of them. He has none now—none but his mother, and she will stand with him even on a day when a jury would bring in a verdict of guilty and decree the death penalty.

Mother-love endures.

Paul a Prisoner—The Shipwreck.—Acts 27: 39-28: 10.

Commentary.—I. The ship's company in great danger (vs. 27-38). On the fourteenth night of the storm they discovered that they were drawing near some land. They had been driven about 400 miles westward to the little island of Malta. Some of the sailors were trying to escape and leave the others to their fate, but Paul said, "Except these abide in the ship we cannot be saved," whereupon the soldiers cut the ropes that held the small boat to the ship and allowed it to drift away, and the sailors were curing obstinate cases and deserves attention from every sufferer.

II. The wreck and the escape (vs. 39-44). I. The landing. "And so it came to pass" (v. 44) "in accordance with the divine purpose and plan." In providence, "He doeth according to his will," said Nebuchadnezzar (Dan. 4: 35). "He worketh all things after the counsel of his own will," says Paul (Eph. 1: 11). "My counsel shall stand, and I will do all my pleasure," adds Jehovah (Isa. 46: 10). The divine purpose may be opposed by mighty forces. Take, for instance, the determination to settle Abraham's descendants in Canaan. Notwithstanding their descent into Egypt and enslavement there, the turning away from them of the royal favor, the inhuman edict that their children should be cast into the Nile, the failure of Moses' first attempt at their liberation, the general breaking down of their national spirit, their occupation of Canaan became, in God's time, a fact.

2. In grace, the salvation of believers occurs in accordance with the same divine purpose and plan. They are called, justified and sanctified by sovereign grace (2. Thes. 2: 13). "It is not supposed that God sees not know beforehand what the issues will be of his own scheme of redeeming grace. Nothing can prevent the ultimate salvation of Christ's people—neither the ill nor calamities of time, nor the falling away of professed disciples, nor the breaking up of ecclesiastical institutions."

II. Paul an evangelist. "It was Paul who approached him," for days he reviled, tormented and injured the Christian who occupied his cell, but received only kind words, gentleness, patience and prayers. One day the monster stood a moment silently regarding the man whom he had never seen other than gentle and patient. Then he fell at his feet, and with tears begged him to forgive him.

DETROIT MORALS.
(Detroit Exchange.)
A committee of the National Y. M. C. A. has investigated the morals of the youth of Detroit—not because Detroit was regarded as particularly moral or especially immoral, but because it was classed as "a typical American city."

The committee has reported and here is a summary of conclusions. I had more than 80 per cent of those entering respectable houses are under 21 years of age.

Boys of wealthy parents are no better morally than those from poor homes. Middle class boys are better off than either.

Girls are in many cases as lacking in morality as boys.

Newsboys and boys of the industrial districts patronize saloons and cheap theatres freely.

Girls at amusement parks lure boys to evil.

Suggestive and immoral pictures are displayed for the temptation of the young.

Poolrooms are a stepping stone to evil.

Fifty to 75 per cent of high school boys are habitual smokers.

Indecent literature and pictures are circulated freely, especially among high school boys.

A day or two after Bleriot's successful flight across the Channel a man named Westlake announced his intention of crossing on a plank two feet wide, 18 feet long and two inches thick, fitted with a mast and sail and two empty oil drums to give it buoyancy. Westlake, however, was picked up more dead than alive off the Belgian coast, but still hopes to accomplish the feat.

A few days later Thos. Wakerell set out to row across the Channel in a boat of his own construction, consisting of two planks, with sides a few inches high. He was ultimately picked up in the North Sea and landed at Rotterdam.

Some two or three years ago four old Etonians attempted to row from Dover to Calais in a four oar sailing boat, but before they got half way across the Channel the boat was swamped and the crew nearly drowned. That it is not impossible, however, to cross the Channel in a small boat was proved some time ago by a young Frenchman named Felix Chauschois, who, alone and unaided, crossed from Dover to Calais in a canoe in 27 hours and seemed little the worse for his adventurous voyage.—Tit-Bits.

The DAY of the DUEL

A BURNT MATCH
(A TRUE STORY)

(Copyright, 1906, by the New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.)

HERE was some talk and more laughter from a group about one of the tables in the Union Hotel. Those who passed through the bar glanced with smiling tolerance at the convives who emphasized their enjoyment so noisily. It was the early youth of San Francisco, a time of big hopes, wild tales and feverish energy, when men took their pleasures and their affairs with high spirits and flushed cheeks.

The leader of the little ring was Numa Hubert, member of an old French family of New Orleans and one of the most brilliant young lawyers of the new Golden State. He was relating some political adventure with point and ease, and as he had the reputation with point and ease, and as he had the reputation and the air of a wit few of his periods passed without its tribute of applause.

At an adjoining table sat two young men who conversed quietly over their glasses. One of them was imparting something which was apparently of great interest to his companion, and both were leaning upon the board. In the midst of his confidence the speaker was interrupted by a deafening shout from the group about Hubert. He turned with an exasperated frown and waited with every sign of impatience until the uproar had subsided.

"There should be some limit to this sort of thing in a public place," he remarked, with a strong English accent.

The other warned him with a gesture. "They are in no mood to be told that they are annoying," he said "and niceties of behavior are not topics to appeal to them particularly. What were you about to say?" But the first had turned and was inspecting their neighbors curiously and rather scornfully.

"Who is the fellow sitting just back of me? He seems to be something of a favorite."

"That's Numa Hubert."

"Ah. So it is. He seems to get on remarkably well with that rough crowd."

His companion nodded noncommittally and finally succeeded in drawing his friend back to the subject of their discussion. The Englishman's cigar had gone out while his attention was drawn aside and he looked about for a match. There were no lighters on the table and he could find none in his pocket. His glance sought the floor. In the sawdust, close to his chair, he saw a match. Stooping he picked it up, only to find that it had been used. He searched his pocket again. The other, seeing his want, offered the glowing end of his own cigar and the two were soon puffing again. After another drink they rose and left the place without paying any attention to the boisterous group.

Hubert, meanwhile, was in his element. The men about him were pioneers of the West, lawyers, brokers, politicians, a responsive audience, young and red-blooded. He held them by ready speech and a lively flow of the humor they could appreciate, rude and direct, as befitted the lives they led. Among those who watched events it was understood that Hubert had a large personal following and would surely go to the next Legislature. He was proving again that he was equipped for a career that would depend upon the good will and admiration of men.

The Lost Pocketbook.

But Hubert was not the one to overplay a situation. He had amused the circle, had impressed it with his own cleverness and eloquence, and he rose to withdraw. At that moment he smoothed his coat over his left hip pocket. Suddenly anxious, he searched that, then all his pockets in succession. A silence had fallen upon the group as they watched him.

"Lose anything?" inquired Williams, a real estate operator, who sat at his right.

"Why, yes," answered Hubert, with an embarrassed laugh. "I believe I must have dropped my pocketbook."

Several of the others got up and began to move the chairs about, kicking among the sawdust and searching the floor under the table. Nothing rewarded their efforts. Hubert had lost his piece of easy and cynical good nature. He moved hurriedly and a frown had gathered on his face. His friends awkwardly offered suggestions, oppressed by the sudden change in the atmosphere of the gathering.

"Are you sure you had it with you?" asked Marsh, his benchman and confidant.

"No doubt about that," answered Hubert, with a trace of irritation. All of the group were on their feet and the place was thoroughly covered.

"Not here," said some one. "You must have been mistaken, Hubert."

It was evident that nothing more was to be gained from the search, and Hubert recognized this fact at last. "I am sorry to have given you this trouble, gentlemen," he said. "I have no doubt that I made a mistake and that I shall find the pocketbook at home." He took his leave with an assumption of his former cheerfulness. A significant gesture brought Marsh with him.

"Is it a serious thing, Hubert?" asked his companion as they reached the street.

"More serious than I cared to show," said the lawyer in a low voice. "The pocketbook held a large sum of money, several thousand dollars. But that is not what worries me. I was carrying some papers which are of the utmost importance to me, documents that should never have been outside a bank vault for a moment. I am properly punished."

Hubert's voice was almost despairing and Marsh studied his face as they walked on together. The two were good friends and the little assayer's clerk knew the lawyer as well as any one in the city knew him. He knew now from the tone that his friend had suffered a heavy blow. They continued in silence to Hubert's office, and the lawyer made certain that he had not left his pocketbook there. Marsh was doing some thinking of his own.

"I AM INNOCENT OF THE CRIME THAT LED TO THIS."

"Did you notice the man who sat at the table just behind you?" he asked, suddenly.

"No," was the indifferent answer.

"Well, I did," said Marsh, "and there was something queer in the way they acted. Now I come to think of it," he added, with more conviction, "there was something damned queer about it."

"What do you mean?" asked Hubert, interested now.

"Why, while you were talking they were whispering together over the table. There were two of them. One of them was just at your back. His chair almost touched yours. He turned around and gave us a nasty look. Just then I saw him glance under your chair and a second later he reached down quick and grabbed something up. I didn't see what it was."

Hubert was excited. "Are you sure of this? Why didn't you tell me before?"

"I am sure of it and I did not recall it at first. Your pocketbook must have fallen and this chap must have picked it up."

"Do you know him?"

"No, I don't know either of them, though I would recognize them, I think. No use going back, Hubert. They went out a few seconds after I noticed them."

The Accusation.

But Hubert hurriedly retraced his steps and took prompt measures to trace the two strangers who had sat near him in the Union bar. His efforts proved ineffectual. From the hotel he went with Marsh to the jail and lodged such information as they possessed with the Sheriff. Then the two men returned to Hubert's office.

"What were the papers, Hubert?" asked Marsh, after unsuccessful attempts to relieve the depression that had fallen upon his friend.

"Documents in the Freeman case," said Hubert. "There is no reason why you should not know."

Marsh whistled. Anything connected with the Freeman case could not fail to be of the greatest importance to Hubert. It was an involved land suit covering thousands of valuable acres back of the city and had been in the courts for two years. Hubert had regarded his entrance into the litigation as the best step he had yet taken in his profession.

"They were vital," Hubert went on. "For two months I've been on the trail of a series of affidavits testifying to fraudulent grants that would seriously affect the titles held by the defendants. In the pocketbook were three of the most valuable of the affidavits."

"They could be replaced."

"Possibly; but the danger lies in their falling into the hands of the other side. Burke would pay a good deal to get hold of them, or even to see them. The whole basis of my case is there." Hubert, whose Latin temperament was never far from the surface, wrung his hands at the thought.

"I should advise you to advertise for them," said Marsh. "What could you offer?"

"The finder or the thief should be content with money in the pocketbook, Marsh. That was almost every cent I had in the world."

His loss seemed to crush the young lawyer and for the next week he did little but pester the authorities and engage in fruitless efforts to trace the men who had sat at the adjoining table in the Union. He was able to replace the affidavits, as Marsh had suggested, but he could not banish the fear that his plan of attack would be revealed to his opponents in the "lawsuit. There was enough material contained in the missing documents to furnish a very grave handicap to his chances of success if they should reach Burke, the counsel for the defendants.

Worn and haggard through anxiety and sleeplessness, he made his way one night to the home of Peter Freeman. As he paced up the street he reflected with some bitterness that there had been a time when he had made that journey with a lighter step and a brighter face. For his client was the excuse, not the attraction, in his visits to the Freeman house. Elise, the handsome daughter of the litigant, had woven a bond about him that was stronger than those of legal tape and wax.

While no understanding could be said to exist, there was that between them which, to him, held all promise for the future. Hubert, in his ambition, had taken as his own position that when he had carried her father's claim to a successful conclusion he would advance a claim in his own behalf, and in the young woman's clear, gray eyes he had read his corroborative evidence.

George T. Hunt Appears.

But matters had changed. His small savings were gone, and he knew not whether he should be able to cover the weakness offered by the affidavits. As he approached the door, absorbed in gloomy thoughts, he was somewhat surprised to see emerge from the house a man with whom he had a slight acquaintance but whom he had never before associated with the Freemans—George T. Hunt, a lawyer and an Englishman. The two bowed slightly in recognition at passing.

Hubert seemed to find more than the usual response in Elise that evening as he waited for the appearance of her father. Ordinarily he would have answered it as his nature and his love dictated, but now the shadow of an unwelcome duty hung heavily upon him. For he had decided that she must know of his criminal carelessness and all that it threatened for him.

Throughout their acquaintance, based as it was on his business relations with Freeman, he had kept her informed as to each move, and had found in her an intelligent and valuable adviser. It would have seemed nothing short of a betrayal to him had he kept the facts from her. He approached the subject with difficulty, making conversation until an opening should offer.

"I passed George Hunt as I came in," he ventured at random. "I did not know he was an acquaintance."

"Oh, yes," she answered, and in his sensitive accord with her he was dimly conscious of a troubled note and a slight confusion of manner. "I have known him for some time. We met him last winter, father and I. He has been away recently. He could not wait for father."

"He's a good lawyer," was his vague comment. In his uneasiness of mind he did not seek to analyze the effect of his remark. For some time he continued in a rambling, uncertain way, and as he went on he became aware of a growing surprise in her face. She was watching him curiously when he brought himself at last to the revelation.

"Elise, there's nothing to be gained by keeping it from you," he began, desperately. "You may as well have it all at once. A week ago I lost, among other things, some documents that are exceedingly important to your father's case. I can offer no excuse. It was my fault, my oversight, and I fear it may prove very serious for us."

"What documents?" she asked with awakened interest.

He told her. Then he went over the incident elaborately, explaining each detail of his own actions and of what he feared. He ended miserably, knowing how imperfect and inadequate it must seem to her.

"Is that all?" The question deepened in her eyes. He told it over again, seeking to make it clear, seeking and failing—for his account rang false in his own ears. When he reached the end once more there was the same hollow suspense.

"It all sounds very strange," she said. "It sounds like a plot, a plot against your father. He must have awakened black suspicions in the girl's mind. He recalled that Freeman had twice been betrayed by his advisers and that the interests he was fighting had proved themselves capable of anything. We remembered that the girl must have learned to look for treachery everywhere. He had not told her of his own monetary loss, but mingled with his distress was a touch of resentment that she had not given him the sympathy he craved. A wave of unreasoning self pity swept upon him.

His Rage Terrific.

"It may be strange, but it is the truth," he said, doggedly. After a few minutes of uncomfortable silence, as if she still waited further explanation, Elise left him with a brief word. He left the house completely discouraged, nursing a sense of wrong and with a blind, animal rage against the man who, by a common theft, had robbed him of all that made life worth the living.

He threw himself with fury into his work, for if he was subject to emotional crises he was none the less a plucky fighter and he did not display more energy when defeat threatened. His plan for defence was far reaching and much more carefully worked out than those attempted by previous lawyers for Freeman. It grew from day to day, even while he was continually in expectation of receiving his dismissal from Elise Freeman. It did not come, but during his short visits, confined only to business, he was conscious of a cold watchfulness on her part. It exasperated him and confirmed his hopelessness.

And now a new trouble came to him, for he began to notice that the lawyer, Hunt, was more frequently a visitor at the Freeman home than ordinary courtesy or friendship would seem to justify. Twice he encountered Hunt just as the other was taking his leave, and old Freeman was away at these times. Alas, any untoward event into a personal injury he fell an easy prey to jealousy. Hunt seemed to have gained all he had lost.

Such was the state of affairs on a pleasant May afternoon when he walked up Montgomery street in company with Marsh. Near Clay street they passed Hunt. Hubert exchanged the slightest of salutations with him. At the same instant he was conscious of a sharp pressure on his arm.

"Do you know that man?" whispered Marsh. "Surely," said Hubert, shortly. "It's George Hunt. I thought he seemed to know you."

"Not that I am aware of, personally," said Marsh, shortly. "But if you are still interested, that is the fellow who sat back of you in the Union that day."

"What? The one who stole my pocketbook?"

"As to that I can't say. But he is the man I have been looking for ever since."

Hubert's face was convulsed with passion, and he would have rushed after the other if Marsh had not held him. "So it is Hunt!" cried the young lawyer. "Hunt always, Hunt at every turn. The scoundrel, the thief, the blackguard! Marsh rushed him aside into a saloon and would not let him go."

"Another time, Hubert. He won't get away. Keep a grip of yourself, man."

Hubert's paroxysm passed, but left him purposeful. Early that evening he hurried to Hunt's house, hoping to find him there. He was informed that the Englishman had gone to the Metropolitan Theatre. Following hotfoot he obtained a seat just before the opening of the performance and pushed his way into the house. He used no concealment in pursuing his object and, after rushing down the central aisle he turned and surveyed the house rapidly. He saw Hunt not five rows from him, well off the aisle.

The Attack.

There was no means of reaching his enemy and he controlled himself to the point of signalling politely until Hunt caught his eye. The Englishman understood that he was wanted, and, moving past his neighbors, walked after Hubert into the lobby. There Hubert, white faced and strung to high nervous pitch, whirled upon him suddenly and struck him across the face with his open palm. Hunt staggered back.

"That is for a pickpocket, a dastardly, low lived thief and a coward!" gasped Hubert.

Hunt, completely surprised by the attack, recovered quickly enough under the sting of the blow and hurled himself toward his assailant. They had clinched before attendants and belated theatergoers could reach them. Panting and struggling for a renewal of the combat, they were restrained with difficulty. Hunt finally recovered sufficiently to enable him to speak.

"I shall expect immediate satisfaction to the fullest degree for this outrage, sir," he cried.

"You shall have it, make no mistake," answered Hubert in the same tone of defiance, and he left the theatre.

Charles Fairfax, one of Hubert's many political friends, consented to act for him and they received Hunt's second early the following morning. No objection was made by Hubert to any of the conditions, his only suggestion being that the terms could not be remembered in the circumstances. It was quickly settled that the lawyers should meet at sunrise the next day, at ten paces, with duelling pistols.

While this conference was in progress Hunt paid a visit to the Freeman home. Hubert had not been altogether wrong in suspecting the Englishman's advance in the favor of Elise. When he could not have known what Hunt had undertaken a confidential investigation of the land suit at the girl's request. Hunt said nothing of the approaching duel. He had puzzled long over Hubert's ferocious, unprovoked attack upon him and it had occurred to him that an explanation possibly lay in something Elise had told him about Hubert's loss of the documents. She greeted him warmly.

"Well, have you discovered anything of interest?" she asked.

"Nothing beyond what I have told you," he answered. "So far as I can find Hubert has been absolutely straight in handling your affairs. I can find no confirmation of your fears that he had sold out to Burke. By the way, where did he say he had lost the papers?"

"In the Union Hotel."

"Will you kindly repeat the incident as he told it?"

"I'll do it," Hubert replied, and told how the lawyer believed that a drinker at an adjoining table had robbed him. When she finished he understood Hubert's violent speech and the deliberate insult. He took leave of Elise and spent the rest of the day working on a new angle of the affair that the information suggested to him.

The morning of May 21, 1854, found the opponents and their seconds on a level strip of turf near the Pioneer race course. Never did duellists face each other with more deadly resolve or with bitterer hatred. A cold rage of killing held them tense. Hunt numbered nothing but the wanton blow and the vile accusation levelled at him. Hubert saw in his adversary the one who had wronged him and wrecked his hopes.

There was nothing to choose between them as they stood ready for the encounter. Both were well built, like limbed men, and as they advanced to their marks, eye flashing to eye, with firm, deliberate steps and heads erect, they were like two figures of ancient legend met upon the field for primitive struggle. It was well understood that the affair should not end until one or both could no longer keep to the combat. Fairfax stood a few feet to one side of the line of fire to give the word. After verifying each man's position he spoke in a low, clear voice:

"Ready, gentlemen?"

"Ready," they answered.

"One—two"—began Fairfax.

At the second count the pistols spoke simultaneously. The clearing smoke showed each that he had missed and without comment the seconds took the weapons and reloaded. Once more the principals stood to their posts. Once more the question was asked and the word given.

"One—two"—Hubert jerked up his arm and fired. Hunt's pistol rang out the fraction of a second later. He had scarcely pulled the trigger when he was seen to stagger. He turned on his enemy a face from which all ill will had fled and sank to the ground. Even as he fell he called out twice, "Hubert, Hubert," as one might summon a friend in dire need.

Hubert, who was unharmed, threw away his weapon and advanced at the call. "I forgive you, Hubert," said Hunt, faintly.

Stricken by the vile words and already overwhelmed with remorse at the result of the quarrel, Hubert sank to his knees and took one of Hunt's hands between his own. The bullet had passed through the Englishman's side, but he was able to speak clearly.

"I should tell you now, Hubert, as my last word, that I am innocent of the crime that led to this. I am no thief, nor have I ever seen your pocketbook. But I found out yesterday that Burke has those affidavits in his possession. The man who got them was Williams, who sat next to you that day in the Union. He is a hireling of Burke and the interests that are fighting Freeman. He took them from your pocket. That's all, I think, except that you'll never catch Williams. He has left the country. And, Hubert—The other, oppressed by a burden of grief and regret that was never to leave him through life, bent closer to hear the whisper. Hunt was smiling wistfully. "What I picked up from the floor when your informant saw the action was a burnt match."

General Gossip

Playgoers of nine or ten years ago will remember the great sensation the actress, Hope Booth, who appeared at the Savoy two years ago, caused in social and police circles by appearing at the Academy, Montreal, in an extremely magnificent costume in her play, "The Pawn Shop."

"A girl of wonderful beauty and great personal magnetism, she had an interesting career so far. Many are the men whom she has ruined by her irresistible beauty and many the homes she broke up."

Running away at 16 to go on the stage, married at 17 to a millionaire who died soon after, then running through the immense fortune he left her in a year or so, and last marrying Renold Wolff, the New York dramatic critic, her present husband, are a few striking incidents of her career.

For the last five months she has been travelling around in Europe and in spite of the efforts of her husband and her to lapse. Mr. Wolff, any way, has acted like a gentleman. When his wife left the country he gave her $1,000. This she ran through in no time. Since then he has been deluged with requests for money. In twenty weeks Mrs. Wolff has gone through $4,225. She has stopped at all the best hotels and travelled in the best style, and how the report ever started that she was destitute in Europe I can't see. We have made repeated efforts to get her to return home. Mr. Wolff has offered to send her sister over to bring her home, but Miss Booth will not hear of it.

"On three different occasions has Mr. Wolff cabled sums of money to pay her passage home, and she has spent them otherwise. She cannot be destitute or in want. She has been stopping at the Hotel Metropole, Hamburg; the Elysee Palace, Paris, and is now at the Grand Hotel de Mediterranee in Genoa. She couldn't stay there long if she had no money. In my opinion, Miss Booth is suffering from some nervous affliction which takes away responsibility for her actions."

Pollock relates a story concerning that strip—it's set up almost edge-wise," objected Luckstone, "and if you did, you'd have to reach it by airship. However, if you can possibly mention a single practical advantage that the lot possesses, I'll buy it."

Luckstone thought he had given the agent a poser, but the man quickly responded to the challenge.

"Advantage, good heavens, sir—look at the grand drainage the place has."

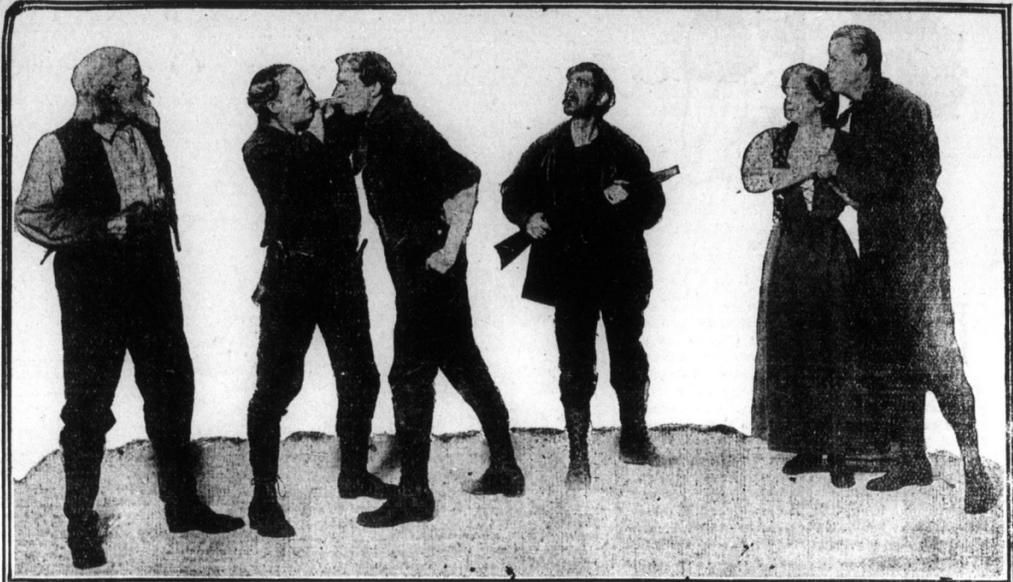

"My opinion is that the playing of any part, or line of parts, is likely to influence the character and disposition of an actor in about the same ratio as the wearing of a red wig will influence the color of his hair," said George Arliss the other night to an anxious inquirer as to whether the playing of villains was beginning to affect his morals, and whether "Septimus," his new comedy, did not come as a necessary moral tonic to his soul. "I did not ask to be a villain. I drifted into villainy. Mr. Belasco is, perhaps, mainly responsible for my depraved condition, because he started me on the downward path when he placed me hand in hand with 'The Darling of the Gods.' My experience is that an actor never chooses his line of business. Some men are very obviously suited for straight juvenile parts and nothing else; others are equally marked down by nature for the kind of character popularly known as the 'silly ass.' These actors are likely to settle down into their line of business early in their careers, but the character actor becomes a villain by force of circumstances. He may remain a villain for years, then suddenly he will blossom forth into a perfectly sweet old gentleman with white hair, and a granddaughter of whom he is equally proud. For years the character will play all kinds of parts and sooner or later, assuming that he is a good actor, he will be intrusted with a good part. By chance the part is a villain. By the time the character actor has attained a position that enables him to more or less choose his parts he, as a rule, is a fairly good judge of the kind of thing he can do best. Then he seldom chooses villains, because they are villains, but because they give him a better scope for acting than any other part. The villain, after all, is often the most interesting person in the play. He is always bent on getting something that every right-minded individual thinks he has no business to have, and it is interesting to see how near he comes to getting it; and it's getting more interesting as time goes on, because you can never tell with authors nowadays—he may actually get it after all."

The programme to be given in Knox Church school room on Tuesday next at 8:15 by Harry J. Allen and F. H. J. Moore, baritone, will consist of six vocal numbers, including "The Vulcan Song," Gounod; "She Alone Charmeth My Sadness," Gounod; and "I Am a Roamer," Mendelssohn; and six piano numbers, including "Polka de la Keine," Raff; "Malika de Concert," Bartlett; and "Gems of Scotland," Rive King. Mr. Owen A. Smiley, elocutionist, who will assist, will give a number of selections entirely new to Hamilton audiences.

In these days, when colleges are turning out platform artists of divers kinds and descriptions, it is refreshing to a church concert audience to hear one in originality. Especially is this so in repertoire. Miss Laura A. Webb has all these qualities, with the addition of modestly-tinted expression, that is making her just now one of the favorite readers on southwestern Ontario concert platforms. At two entertainments during the past week, one at Ingersoll and the other in Toronto, her selections were heard by delighted gatherings. Miss Webb's future is undoubtedly assured in this particular field.

Leopold Stokowski, the new conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, has arrived to assume charge of the preliminary for the opening of the orchestral season in Cincinnati. Mr. Stokowski will make his debut as a conductor in America at the first concert of the series, to be given on November 26.

Tugo Heermann, the concert master of the new orchestra, has also arrived. The list of soloists for the Cincinnati concerts includes Maude Powell, Tilly Koenen, Rachmaninoff, Dr. Wullner, Fritz Kreisler, Hugo Heermann, Busoni,

At the Grand

Patrons of the theatre in Hamilton have seen a good many plays of great merit, but it is doubtful that any dramatic production gripped an audience and held it so consistently and persistently to the end as did "The Barrier" at the Grand last evening. It is a four-act dramatization by the experienced Eugene W. Presbrey of Rex Beach's novel story, and its all-round qualities should guarantee for it a long and successful run. The producers, Klaw & Erlanger, have engaged for it as strong a company as ever appeared on the local stage, and with the splendid settings and appointments there could be nothing but success to chronicle. "The Barrier" tells the story of Alaskan mining district life, tells it in a homely, yet most powerful and thrilling way, with real men and women, so that the audience follows with increasing interest the unfolding of the events that entangle the fortunes of the rugged old trader and his family. The play illustrates once again that love is the biggest thing in the world. John Gale, the Flambeau trader, loves a woman who is taken from him and married by Dan Stark, gambler and bad man. The woman is shot dead, and suspicion is fastened by the husband on Gale, who takes her young daughter and hides himself under another name in Alaska. Stark, hunting for gold, comes across Gale, and the battle between them is on. The daughter, grown up, passes as the child of Gale, and the Indian woman with whom he lives, and is loved by Captain Burnett, in charge of a post at Flambeau. He, however, faces what he thinks the barrier, his love being a half-breed, and many are the tribulations of the lovers before the end is reached. A big-hearted French-Canadian, a rough and ready prospector, and a shady companion of Stark's figure in the story. There is gun play, many heart wrenching and exciting situations, but all's well at last, when Stark, slow to his death by the man he wronged, confesses that it was he who killed his wife, and the soldier has the happiness of knowing his sweetheart is not a half-breed.

Theodore Roberts appears as John Gale, and he carries the character of the sorrow-laden trader through with ever-increasing power. Quiet, in the opening scenes, he portrays the workings of Gale's mind and his desire to rid himself of the incubus of his life with thrilling intensity and rises to a great height in the last act when he tells the captain of the black spot in his life and afterwards battles with Stark—to end or mend things. It was a splendid character study and the audience gave Mr. Roberts many curtain calls. The character of Nevia, the daughter, was taken by Miss Florence Rockwell, a charming and accomplished actress, who has in it a part that must appeal most strongly to any audience. Miss Rockwell has a delightful personality, and infused into the part a buoyancy of spirits and charm of manner that vivified the role and brought repeated applause. In the opening scene she was the free-hearted, tantalizing, guileless girl to the life, and later, as she began to realize how she would be ostracized as a supposed half-breed, and her determination to beat down all opposition, Miss Rockwell showed much dramatic force and shared the honors with Mr. Roberts.

The other characters were strongly presented. W. S. Hart was a decidedly great and villainous Dan Stark; Guisio Socca, a cunning No Creek Lee; James Durkin was a manly captain; Alphonse Ethier was a lovable Poleon Doret, and the other parts were admirably filled.

"The Barrier" will be repeated this evening, and as one of the strongest plays ever given here, should have a large audience to enjoy it.

The musical comedy, "The Cash Girl," with May Ward, the comedienne, will be the attraction at the Grand next Thursday evening. This new musical comedy is said to be something of an innovation in the amusement world, embracing, as it does, a musical comedy with a real plot, musical numbers of original composition, and a musical element that amuses. Naturally, a large company is necessary to properly produce this success, and the management have engaged a thoroughly talented company of players, and in conjunction a heavy of spirited and pretty girls, who give color to the ensembles and tuneful musical numbers. "The Cash Girl" is decidedly new; it offers a thoroughly good and interesting play, with original music and catchy songs. "The Cash Girl" is filled with dashing girls, who are good dancers. Seats go on sale Tuesday morning.

George Arliss, the greatest of English character actors, will be seen at the Grand next Wednesday evening in "Septimus," a comedy by Philip Littell from W. J. Locke's novel. Mr. Arliss, whose fascinating work in "The Devil" is a vivid memory of the past season, has won a still greater triumph as the quaint, whimsical, lovable hero of Locke's story. The production is Harrison Grey Fiske's latest contribution to the stage. In beauty and harmony of detail and in artistic purpose, it is said, Mr. Fiske has accomplished nothing more remarkable in stagecraft. The play is a comedy in the best use of the term, full of gentle, whimsical humor, with an underlying powerful, emotional appeal. The leading feminine role is played by Emily Stevens, a cousin of Mrs. Fiske, and for several seasons a member of that distinguished actress' company. Others in the cast are Dorothy Ross, Cyril Young, J. Latham and Francis Westhead. The production is under the personal direction of Mr. Fiske. George Arliss first came to this country in 1901 with Mrs. Patrick Campbell. He later joined Mrs. Fiske's company, and was prominently identified with many of that great artist's triumphs. Mr. Arliss has the faculty of making a character live in your memory, and "Septimus" is said to be his greatest achievement. Seats go on sale Monday morning.

"The Wolf," from the pen of Eugene Walter, who also wrote "Paid in Full," will be offered at the Grand next Friday and Saturday. While the company that presented "The Wolf" here last season was a fairly good one and gave general satisfaction, the one the Shuberts will offer to Hamilton theatregoers next week is said to be much superior, and is one that is playing all the large cities. Mr. Walter was one of the first of the discerning playwrights who have exploited the wild regions of northern Canada as a new and picturesque background for the age-old story of the man, the maid and the other man. He has in this play again proven that multiplicity of roles is not essential for the building of an absorbing play, for the whole thrilling story is told by six characters, and one of these could be discarded without destroying the symmetry of the drama, being introduced for comedy purposes only. "The Wolf" is as simple and elemental and strong as one of the great fables among which its scenes are laid. There is no artful and artificial intricacy of plot and counterplot. The dramatist has taken a plain theme and worked it out unhesitatingly and unerringly to its inevitable end. The same powers of quick and keen observation which his friends have marked in Mr. Walter distinguish his work as a playwright, and his characters are drawn with firm, sure strokes, which make of each one a vital and sentient figure, standing out in bold relief.

Countess Maria Venturini, a youthful tragedienne, is to appear at the Grand shortly in a play called "Jenny," a story of a discontented wife. This talented young French actress has been making a hit in Paris and Brussels, so much so that an American tour has been arranged. She is the wife of Mario Venturini family from the fourteenth diplomatic corps, and has only in the last few years taken up the stage. The Venturini family from the fourteenth century traces its history prominently through the pages of Tussaud. Born to a social position, admitted to the exclusive court of Brussels, the countess has not won theatrical recognition in the scandal marts. For the last twelve months she has been the pet of Paris and the rage of Brussels, where she created the European role of the wife in "The Thief." She is said to be both youthful and beautiful, and her dramatic talent is said to be undoubtedly an intellectual legacy from her father, Baron Stern, and her mother, a highly-educated and brilliant Frenchwoman.

The management of the Grand announce the engagement of Miss May Robson in "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," the play in which Miss Robson made such a decided hit in New York at the Garden Theatre. Miss Robson and her company have been on the road two seasons and are now returning from a summer tour to the Pacific coast, and on their way east are playing return engagements in all the principal cities, including Chicago and Philadelphia. The entire cast and production will be seen here as played in New York, Chicago and the other large cities, where it pleased crowded houses nightly for months. The New York and Chicago critics endorse it as the best comedy ever played in these cities.

A transformation scene in a musical comedy is somewhat of an oddity, but in "The Prince of To-night," which will be seen at the Grand shortly borders on the spectacular. The stage is filled with pretty girls, dancing girls and fairies, who pay homage to the mythical prince. To put this one scene on properly, the management carry a score of carpenters, electricians, etc. Mr. Henry Woodruff, who plays the Prince, will be remembered for his excellent work in "Brown of Harvard."

Grace Van Studdiford is coming to the Grand again in "The Golden Butterfly," a romantic comic opera especially written for her by Smith and De Koven. "The Golden Butterfly" is a dignified work, with a well-connected story of love and romance, and with music which is of sound operatic construction. It is a work on the order of "Robin Hood." Miss Van Studdiford is the possessor of one of the sweetest and most sympathetic voices on the American stage.

At Bennett's

It takes a mighty good acrobatic act to arouse anybody these days, but Hassan Ben Ali's Arabs, who will be seen heading the Bennett bill next week, are said to succeed. They put an amount of life into their dash that is nothing short of amazing. Half the turn is devoted to some remarkable pyramid work and then follows the finish with every member of the troupe in action in a thrilling routine which is said to keep the audience sitting on the edge of their seats. There are nine real sons of the desert in the organization. Each member has a style of his own and three or four big laughing success. "A Corner in Whirling."

A more pleasing act than that presented by Peter Donald and Meta Carson, was never seen at Bennett's last season. This clever pair return in their well-arranged singing and dancing sketch entitled, "Alice, McLean's Dream." They dress in kilts. Donald is a comedian of (Continued on Page 15.)

relatives she cannot be induced to return home.

In May last, although she had instituted proceedings for divorce against her husband, Renold Wolff, he, seeing in what condition of health she was, agreed to fall in with the advice of the actress' physician and send her to Europe to recover from her severe nervous affection. There she has been ever since.

A report has been circulating in New York dramatic circles that the lady has reopened the divorce proceedings which were allowed to lapse on account of the condition of her health, on the grounds of non-support.

This Maurice Meyer, Miss Booth's attorney for the last twelve years, denies.

"What would be the use of starting other proceedings?" said Mr. Meyer in a recent interview. "They have a really been inaugurated, but have been allowed

Harry Luckstone, whose name is known to many a real estate dealer along the line of theatrical travel, the comedian's particular fond being the acquisition of country property. Land boomers, passing the word along the line, are always on the watch for his arrival at various towns where he may be playing, and he is never unwilling to go and look over any proposition that they may offer.

At one place Luckstone was met by appointment at the depot by a typical boomer, driving a "pony" attached to a buckboard. He was taken to a "best site in town," the town having arrived only at the point of being laid out on a map—not a building in sight. The lot proved to be situated on the side of a steep hill, an advantage claimed by the boomer to be a great one, inasmuch as an exceptional view was thereby afforded.

Beginning a week from next Wednesday night, the directors of the Winona Institute Hall have made arrangements for a series of vaudeville entertainments that will comprise only high-class entertainers. There are to be five of these evenings running throughout the winter.

The first of these for next week will be the Bull-Fairbrother wedding in St. Andrew's Church.

On Saturday last at Lake Lodge Mrs. W. J. Drope, Mrs. H. Fleming and Mrs. J. Unwin were hostesses at a kitchen shower for Miss Fairbrother. Mrs. Pottinger, Mrs. H. Baker, Mrs. A. Burland, Miss Metcalfe and Miss Woolverton were very attentive assistants in the tea.

It will certainly be with feelings akin to pain that Mr. and Mrs. James Smith of Mapleton Lodge, leave this good town. Another presentation took place in the Presbyterian Church on Monday night, when two chairs were given them by the congregation, with an appropriate address.

W. Bro. F. J. McEellan, District Deputy, Royal Arch Masons, Niagara-on-the-Lake, paid a fraternal visit to the local chapter on Monday night. He was treated to a banquet by the craft at Maddox's restaurant.

The postoffice here turned in $4,573 as receipts to the department during the past year.

There will be a hockey club in Grimsby this winter, so Beamsville had better get warmed up early. There will be a grand tale to tell this season from that of last year.

A postponed meeting of the W. C. T. U. takes place on Tuesday afternoon, George Pearson, North Grimsby town, is on the Bank of Hamilton staff.

Dr. Barrett's vacant home, situated on his fruit farm, near Grimsby Park, was found to be burning inside on Saturday morning last. Smoke was coming out from underneath the shingles when first noticed. By good hard work neighbors had the door and found the place dense with smoke, although no flames could be seen. The origin of the fire seems of a freakish nature, as the house had not been occupied for nearly a month. A half-filled oil can was found in the place near a bunch of hay and other combustible material. There was insurance on the residence. Detective Bleakley has investigated at the instigation of the insurance companies. This property was sold some time ago by Dr. Gesner to Dr. Barrett, and the sale was aired in the courts a little over two weeks ago. Mr. Justice Meredith, however, found the sale was made in good faith and without misrepresentation. The farm is mostly red clay, and it is reported sold for $1,000 an acre, for eleven acres.

Mr. Jas. Ferguson, Parker, Pa., was the guest of Mrs. J. Scott, Winona, during the past week.

At the present time it looks like unanimous for the present Reeve and Council for another term, if they are at all anxious for the honors. Grimsby has had the boom can ticked on pretty securely this year, thanks to able administration in her municipal affairs.

The following is the public school report for the past month. The first six pupils in each class and division are given:

tion on the staff of the Listowel branch.

GRIMSBY AND DISTRICT.

Major H. L. Roberts is again a director of the Niagara District Fruit Growers' Association.

A report of Mr. Harry Griffith's condition is giving a good deal of pleasure to his friends.

An once popular Grimsby young lady, Miss Beulah Nelles, now of New York, was lately married in the Church of St. Bartholomew, that city, by Rev. Sydney Usher, to Mr. Mahon Armstrong, Mrs. Armstrong was the youngest daughter of the late postmaster, H. E. Nelles, and had a host of acquaintances in this town who will wish her well.

The Methodist Church Deaconesses opened their new home, King street east, to the ladies yesterday afternoon, and a great number took advantage of the opportunity to see their cosy dwelling. A great work is being done by these ministers' helpers, and a great deal of pleasure was expressed at the lovely home which they have and truly and one emergency deaconess, Miss Scott, superintendent; Miss Tredfar, emergency; Miss Shaw, Centenary; Miss Jones, First Methodist; Miss Hurd, Charlton Avenue, and Miss Newton, Barton street. They made very fine hostesses, and were very kind in showing the callers the rooms assigned to each, which are all large and bright. Light refreshments were served, and a large and much needed number of donations were left, with which these workers will be able to cheer many comfortable homes in the coming winter.

Mrs. Dumbrell, 79 Charlton avenue west, will receive next Thursday afternoon on the first and third Thursdays of each month.

COLLEGIATE LYCEUM.

The fourth regular meeting of the H. C. I. Lyceum was held last evening in the Lyceum. It took the form of Canadian night and was fittingly opened by the singing of "The Maple Leaf Forever." A most enjoyable and instructive debate marked the opening of the debating contest, which this year will be an important feature of the lyceum's work. The subject, "That Canada Should Have a Navy," was ably discussed alternately by Miss Evans and Mr. D. Stephenson and Mr. H. Campbell. The decision was given in favor of the negative. Mr. Edwards gave an interesting talk on his trip west, while the musical programme consisted of a violin solo by Mr. K. Walsh and a quartette. The usual criticism was given in a very able manner by Mr. W. Howard. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

AMUSEMENTS

ability, and his impersonation of a Scotchman with a "souze" is exceptionally funny. Miss Carson has a charming stage presence and displays considerable ability as a dancer. Donald sings his own songs and some of his latest hits include, "I'm Getting Sea Sick About Mary," and "My Heart Warm as the Tartan."

Howard Truesdale, a clever comedian, who surrounded himself with a capable company, will be seen in his big laughing success, "A Corner in Hair." It is farce of the broadest kind, but it succeeds in what it is intended as, a laugh provoker of the first rank. The sketch goes with a whirl from start to finish. Mr. Truesdale is the star at all times, and he gets right into the farcical spirit of the piece, treating the rule just as it should be. Gordon Burbury, Rose Tiffany and Jane Townsend are other members of the cast.

Horton and La Triqui will present "The Mysterious Doll." This is a mechanical doll act, a pleasing novelty, with wealth of amusing comedy.

Wheeler Earle and Vera Curtis, who have long been one of vaudeville's standard acts presenting clever sketches, will be seen in a new offering, entitled, "Much Ado About Nothing." It is a pleasing, singing, dancing and talking skit.

Derenzo and Laude will present a comedy revolving ladder and acrobatic act. Another interesting attraction and the moving pictures will complete the bill.
