Love in a Flour Mill,

OR,

The Romance of Two Loyal Hearts!

CHAPTER IV.

"What is it, Ronnie?" she whispered tremulously. "Is it money again?" "Partly," he replied, with a little laugh. "It's always money when you haven't got it. But it's not only that time. Look here, I've half a mind not to tell you, but if I don't, you'll worry all the more and think it's worse even than it is. I've got into a scrape; but that's no news, is it?" He laughed again, and lit another cigarette. "Let's go inside and sit down."

He drew her into the summer-house and they sat, with his arm round her, her head resting on his shoulder. They loved each other, this brother and sister; the girl with a whole-soul devotion, ever ready to sacrifice herself, the man with an admiring, protective affection, which, alas! had no power to protect; they had been all in all to each other through childhood and youthful days, until Ronald's wild courses had carried him from her side and separated them.

Dexter Reece could not only hear every word they said, but could see them plainly through an opening in the sun-dried planks against which he crouched.

"Now tell me," said Evelyn, with anxious impatience. "All right," he returned; "but don't get scared. I'm in a hole as regards money—always am; but I've got into another trouble. You know Lydstone? No; you don't know him, of course, but you've heard me speak of him. I've had a row with him. He's the kind of beast it is difficult not to have a row with. You can have a tit-up with most fellows, and neither you nor they bear malice or are the worse for it, but it's different with Lydstone; he's an ill-conditioned cur, and cuts up nastily when he gets the worst of it."

"Why do you know such a man?" asked Evelyn. "Why should you have him for one of your friends?" He shrugged his shoulders and laughed.

"Oh, as to that, a fellow can't always pick his acquaintances. Lydstone is no friend of mine, never was, even before we quarrelled; but he's in our set, and one has to know him."

"What did you quarrel about?" He hesitated, and she pressed his arm and added earnestly, "Why do you hesitate? You must tell me everything, Ronnie. Isn't that why you came?"

"That's all right," he said. "Well, it's about a woman; I suppose you've guessed that?"

She made a gesture of assent and apprehension.

"Who is she, Ronnie?" she asked in a low voice. "Do I know her?" "No," he said promptly, curtly. "She's a Princess; a foreigner, of course."

"Oh, Ronnie!" murmured Evelyn, with a sigh.

"No, no!" he said quickly. "Don't make a mistake. I know little and have seen little of her. She got mixed up in some way or other with Lydstone, and he married her; I've met him with her now and again lately. She seems a decent sort of little woman—but there! we don't want to talk about her. This is how the trouble came about. There was a little party—cards and all that sort of thing—quite a small party, at one of the clubs. Lydstone and the Princess were there; he lost his temper over the play, and, like the mean hound he is, rounded on the Princess. I dare say he always bullies her in private, but he did it openly that night, and she felt it—before all of us, you know!—in fact, she cried. When I saw the tears roll down her cheeks I wanted to get up there and then and chuck Lydstone out of the window; never could stand a bully; and a woman in tears knocks me silly. However, I kept myself in hand, and prettily hard work it was the rest of the fellows followed my example, and there wouldn't have been any row, but, as I was going out, I happened to knock against Lydstone—

"Oh, Ronnie!" "Give you my word it was an accident, Evie," he declared, with a laugh; "and I apologized quite nicely; but the ill-tempered hound turned on me and declared I'd done it for the purpose. We jawed a bit, and even then things would have passed off, but the stupid idiot—he has the devil's own temper—up with his fist and struck me."

He laughed grimly, but Evelyn shuddered and gazed up at him with wide, terrified eyes.

"Of course I hit him back, and for a moment or two there was a sharp bit of sparring. I lost my head, I suppose, and I got in one before the fellows clung on to me and separated us. It must have been a nasty kind of blow—caught him on the 'point' perhaps—for Lydstone went down as if he'd been pole-axed. And he stopped there."

"Ronnie, Ronnie!" gasped Evelyn, rigid with terror. "You—you didn't kill him?"

"No, no!" he hastened to assure her. "He wasn't dead—anyhow he wasn't when I left; but he was unconscious. Don't be in such a funk, Evie. You made me tell you; you always do make me tell you. I give you my word, he wasn't dead; and I daresay he's all right by this time—and taking it out of the poor Princess, poor little woman!"

"No, no, I hate her!" said Evelyn, clenching her little hands. "She was the cause of all the trouble. I can see that. But, Ronnie dear, what will happen? What will you do?"

"In the ordinary way," he replied, "nothing would happen. It was a fair and square fight, and if Lydstone were a decent chap he would, when he had pulled himself together, have come round and apologized, and all would have been serene. But, as I say, he's an ill-conditioned dog, and he'll bear malice. What all the fellows say he'll do will be to drag me before a beak in a common police-court and charge me with an assault, just as if we were a couple of costermongers! That wouldn't matter so much in ordinary circumstances, if the governor and I were pals; but, as it is, it would make him furious, drive him half mad. Besides, it would drag our name—your name, Kiddie—in the gutter. The newspapers would be full of it."

"Oh, yes, yes! I see it all!" she breathed, with a shudder.

"All the same, I suppose I ought to face the music," he said. "I don't like the idea of downing a man and

Acids in Stomach Sour the Food and Cause Indigestion

"Pape's Diapepsin" fixes sour, gassy, upset stomachs in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach, headache, you can surely get relief in five minutes. Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why it relieves sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. "Pape's Diapepsin" is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but what will please you most is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many "Pape's Diapepsin" cranks as some people will call them, but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gases, heartburn, sourness, dyspepsia, or any stomach misery. Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach misery and indigestion in five minutes.

boiling, shirking the consequences; but, of course, my creditors would know of the row, would guess that there would be a final break-up between the governor and me, and they'd drop down on me like a pack of wolves. Then there's another thing," he went on gravely; "that little woman's name would be dragged into it, and she'd be in a worse plight than she is now. No; there's no help for it. I can't face the music. I must make a bolt of it."

Evelyn's eyes were wet, but she tried to hide the fact, for she knew that her tears would harrow this brother of hers, who, with all his manifold follies, loved her deeply, and could not bear to see her crying.

"Yes, you must go," she said. "If father heard the story, if you were to appear at a police-court, he would never forgive you. But where will you go? Isn't it difficult to find any place where—where they cannot reach you and—bring you back?"

He laughed at her dread of an extradition warrant.

"Oh, come, it's not so bad as that, Evie," he said. "I'm not exactly a criminal, and they won't take the trouble to run me down as if I'd committed forgery or arson. It's only an ordinary summons for assault, you know, and when they find I've bolted they won't take any more trouble—at least, I should think not—don't know much about it. Where shall I go? Haven't quite made up my mind. Abroad, of course, I should like to go to some place where there's some big game. But don't you worry about me; I'm all right."

"You will write to me, Ronnie?" she said earnestly.

"I will if I can." Like most men of his temperament, Ronald never used pen and ink unless he was driven to them. "And now I must be off. If you want to write to me, address Grayley's, the army agent, you know."

"How did you come? how will you go?" Evelyn asked anxiously.

"I walked across the moor from Shelford, and I shall walk back again and catch the night train there; there are always a lot of people going by that train, and I shan't be noticed. But there! we're making more fuss about the business than there is any need for; though I shouldn't like the governor to know that I had been down here; it would only make matters worse between us than they are now."

"And—money, Ronnie?" she asked. "You will want some. I have got a little." She slid her hand into her pocket. "Oh, I wish it were more but I've spent nearly all this quarter's allowance—"

"No, no!" he broke in quickly, holding her wrist. "I've got enough to carry on with; I've been lucky lately; and, anyway, I wouldn't take yours. No, no! keep your money in your pocket, Evie. I didn't come for that, but just because I couldn't go away, for goodness knows how long, without saying good-bye. And now I really must be off. Give me a kiss, Kiddie, and for heaven's sake don't cry! I'll be back again as soon as this trouble has blown over." He took her in his strong arms and kissed her, and patted her back encouragingly and reassuringly. "Now you run off, and I'll wait here till you've got across the lawn; I should like to see you safe before I start."

She clung to him for a moment or two, then she started. He went with her to the bend of the narrow path, and watched her slight figure till it was lost in the shrubbery, at which point she paused for an instant to look back and wave her hand swiftly. Ronald returned to the summer-house and sat down for a minute or two to finish his cigarette; then he rose lightly, and, humming again, made his way through the wood in the direction which led him to the moor.

Dexter Reece waited until the footsteps had died away before he rose and stealthily made his way back to the house. He had lowered himself in his own esteem, had played the ignominious part of a spy to little purpose, he had discovered nothing of importance, had simply heard Ronald Desborough's confession of an ordinary, commonplace, and somewhat vulgar scrape. He could not at the moment see of what value his knowledge of the affair could be to him; but every word he had heard was impressed upon his memory, which was a marvellous one, and he stored it up for future use, if any there should be. At any rate, he, and probably he alone, knew that Ronald Desborough had come down to Thorden secretly, that Evelyn Desborough had stolen out of the house to meet her brother, and the knowledge might not prove altogether valueless.

Ronald Desborough left the wood and climbed the hill, which led to the moor. The night was fine; the air of early summer was fragrant with the multitudinous scents of the countryside; he was young and in perfect health, and in such conditions trouble weighs very lightly upon the mind or heart—indeed, Ronald had almost forgotten all about his, at any rate for the time, and he climbed the hill with the ease of a man who is untroubled by nerves; and almost incapable of fatigue.

The Am. Novel of 1915.

MICHAEL O'HALLORHAN by Gene Stratton Porter.

This is the story of Mickey the newsboy and his ward-peacher, whom he found with a crippled back and cried for until she was cured. It tells of Mickey's part in the romance of Douglas Bruce and Leslie Winton; and of the kindness of Peter Harding and his wife to peacher, and finally of Mickey's own love story with the wife he found years before.

The book possesses, like all of the author's works, a deep feeling for nature, the charm of the woods, the flowers and all growing things. Paper 65c.; cloth 90c. Not a dull page in all the 500 pages.

Kickers.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Sishash."

There are three kinds of kickers: mules, shot-guns and men.

The mule kicks, because he was born that way; the shot-gun because it was built that way, and the human being because it is a right thoughtlessly granted to him by the constitution.

The human kicker is divided into two kinds—acute and chronic. The acute kicker kicks because he has something to kick at. He kicks until he removes the object and then subsides. His ailment is more violent, but he usually recovers. For the chronic kicker, however, there is no hope. He must kick to live. Nature has shamelessly connected his lungs with his hind legs, and the only way to stop his kicking is to shut off his breath. This was often done in the good old days when human life was so cheap that a patriot could go out with an axe, and get enough culls and seconds for a mess any day without objection. But nowadays, we have to let the kicker live. The most we can do to him is to elect him to office or encourage him to buy a racing automobile.

The chronic kicker stands forever in the road with his heels pointed toward progress. He kicks on taxes, on street paving, on improvement societies on congress, on the price of salt, on the Supreme Court, on the minister of his church, on the plan to take up a collection for the families of squashed firemen, on the speed and slowness and heat and chilliness and bigness and smallness of street cars, on the design of the hotel table cloth, on the size of Sunday newspapers, on the weather, on the sun, on the public, on the university, on the neglect of Nature in not providing children with muffled ex-hausts, and on the virulent color of the nice green grass.

The kicker is usually born on Friday, because that is the world's unlucky day. He begins criticising his food on the day of his birth. When he grows up, he has to approach his fellow-men from the rear in order to say "Good morning" to them, except at long range, and when he dies the undertaker issues orders to the hearse driver to drive slowly, and avoid all joints. The Egyptians invented embalming at a time when the nation was infested with kickers, in the hope of making death permanent.

Heaven is full of kickers whom the other place has seen coming. Besides a kicker is usually too busy objecting to do anything bad. But it has been so arranged in Heaven that when a kicker begins to kick, he has to stop flying. This gives the other angels a chance to escape, for thus far no kicker has ever been able to aviate beyond the ground floor.

BACK FROM TRAVEL TRIP.—The S. S. Adventure returned from her trial trip last evening. Her speed was behind that made by the Bellaventure and Bonaventure. The purchase of the Adventure is now looked upon as an indefinite matter. Negotiations are pending.

Gas and Hospitality.

The sound of motor wheels heralding the arrival of unexpected guests has no terrors for the housewife whose menage is run on up-to-date lines. While the visitors are removing the traces of travel with the hot water which a gas/water-heater keeps always "on-tap," a match to the gas fire makes the drawing room a place of warmth and pleasantness for their reception; and the children love to "help mother" by toasting the crumpets before the clear and smokeless glow.

The gas cooker (or the modern gas trivet by the drawing rooms gas fire) boils a kettle of water in no time, and within a quarter of an hour after their arrival the guests are enjoying a cosy chat over the cup that cheers. Should they be persuaded to stay, the invaluable cooker makes it possible, even at such short notice, for the experienced housewife, after a raid upon her emergency store cupboard, to set before them a dainty dinner of which no hostess need be ashamed. Gas means ever-ready hospitality.

From One of the Boys.

Newton Park School, Afr. Scotland.

Dear Mother,—Just a few lines to let you know I am well and expecting to leave for the front in three weeks time. I received the post cards all right and was very sorry about the old man. I expect to receive your parcel. I suppose you heard about Dave Carew being killed in action; also Frank Hardy. I was very sorry about them when the names were read out to us.

Mother, you told me Tom was coming over, I am proud he has the pluck to come. I think you did your share by sending the three of us to fight. I am sure Aunt Carry must be broken hearted over Dave being killed. Frank has gone home. I suppose Mame is all right now. Answer this letter as soon as you get, as I expect to leave for the front in three weeks. Mother, tell Sadie to write me a letter, as she may never see me again; tell Mame and Maggie also. Mother, send me some tobacco and socks, you know I will need them this winter in the firing line. I am going to send you all some photos before I leave. Tell Sadie I dream of her every night and tell her to send me her photo. Mother, you will all have to send your pictures. Well, that is all just now. Remember me to Hector and Gordon and to all the boys. Good bye, I remain your loving son, PTE. SYLVESTER FITZGERALD.

"LOOKED THE PART."

Men must look right and be right to command success. Clear eyes, clear skin and clear brain mean money to the man who possesses them. Dull eyes, sluggish brain and a pimply, blotchy skin are a serious handicap. O'Mara's Hypophosphites will remove pimples and blotches, brighten the eye and increase vital power by giving you pure blood and good circulation. Price $1.00. We recommend it because we know what it contains.

Fads and Fashions.

Rose and white chiffon made into cascaded skirts and fluffy corsets. The splendid brocades are used chiefly as trims on evening dresses. Some of the newest frocks have skirts made entirely of ribbon ruffles. They are making chestnut burrs of soft fur and putting them on hats. Muffs may be diamond shaped with a tassel hanging from one corner.

Some of the newest velvet dresses have deep V shaped insets of moire ribbon. Many a coat is the more effective because the fur on it is in very narrow bands.

Little garlands of flowers loop up tuile-puffed skirts or cascaded draped effects.

Ball muffs are most appropriately worn with very small choker collars.

Drowning Fatality At Birchy Lake.

On Wednesday last Frank Lusa and Elside Lusa, two young lads of Stephenville Crossing, met their deaths by drowning at Upper Birchy Lake. They had been up country with Abraham Lusa and others of the Crossing and Mattis Point, and were in quest of caribou and other game. These two young men, who were cousins, had been hunting over the barrens between Sheffield Brook and the portage to Sheffield Lake. Upon returning to camp they missed some cartridges, and thought they may have left them on a bank a short distance up the lake. Taking their canoe they started back in search of the missing articles; but unfortunately they never returned. It was blowing strongly from the south-east, and it surmised that the canoe upset and they met a watery grave. The canoe and paddles were later picked up around the lake shore, but the bodies of the unfortunate lads were not recovered.—Western Star.

Herring Fishery.

There is not much to report concerning the herring fishery in Bay of Islands the past week. Nets have been set in the Arms, and fishermen state there was a great scarcity of herring. So blue were the prospects in North Arm, practically all the vessels came around from there to other parts of the bay. From three to six tubs of herring per boat were taken in Middle Arm on Friday. Several boats fishing between Woods Island and Blomidon had fair catches, getting up to twenty tubs; but the majority of the boats had very few fish. A large body of herring was reported in the mouth of the bay, and the nets that were set well out of Crabs succeeded in getting good hauls. The season is advancing, and it is questionable if to date four thousand barrels of herring have been taken in all of Bay of Islands. The prospects for a successful voyage are none too bright at present, and only about forty more days can be figured on for the season's work. However, should the fish strike good and plentiful, there is ample time yet to secure a hundred thousand barrels at Bonne Bay the prospects are brightening. Although the fish struck off after first coming to land, yet they have again come back on Saturday something like a thousand barrels were landed there. The fishermen are very hopeful of securing a good voyage.—Western Star.

FREIGHT PILING UP.

As fast as the Reid steamer Kyle, under the Government contract, Sheeba, carry cargoes from the terminus wharf for Newfoundland, just as fast, in fact faster, does the freight pile up. Says the North Sydney Herald of Wednesday, "It is said that never before in the history of the place has traffic in the freight line been so extensive as has prevailed during the past season, and there is no sign of abatement. The Sheeba, which has been loading a cargo of over one hundred cars of general freight, sailed for St. John's yesterday, but, despite this, and the fact that the Kyle takes full cargoes every trip, there are still upwards of one hundred and fifty cars awaiting shipment here for the Ancient Capital.—Western Star.

ST. ANDREW'S CHOIR will meet for practice at 9 o'clock to-night. A full attendance is requested.—nov19,t FOGOTA.—The s.s. Fogota left Westville at 12:30 p.m. yesterday going north. She had to put back to that port for shelter last evening, as the Postal Telegraph informs us to-day that she was at Westville all night and had not been further reported up to press hour.

KILLED ON NOV. 5TH.—An exclusively reported in the Telegram yesterday. Private James Mallard, of Quidi Vidi, was killed in action in France. He was in the front line since last February, with the exception of the periods he was in hospital suffering from wounds. It was on Nov. 5th that he received the fatal blow.

Good Stories From the Magazines.

The household were economising by doing without a servant, and Hubbie, who was engaged on overtime work, had come home to supper slightly peevish. He vented his feelings—not for the first time—on his wife and on the food. "I want you to understand once and for all, John," the lady exclaimed firmly, "that you did not marry a cook." He looked at her sadly. "I know it," was his reply.—Pearson's Magazine.

In preparation for a reading lesson the teacher had written a number of the difficult words upon the black-board. The pupils were expected to consult the dictionary and to be ready later with the meaning of each. One of the words was agility. When teacher called for its meaning, the reply came promptly: "Quickness." Then teacher asked what people would need agility in their occupations. The pupils answered, "Firemen, sailors, policemen," and one small but extremely lively boy said, "A lawyer." "Why should a lawyer need agility, John?" teacher asked. "He'd need it in his tongue in talking."—Cassell's Magazine.

A man who was very vain of his persona appearance went to the doctor one day and asked him to explain a singular circumstance. "Doctor," he said, "my hair is perfectly black, but my whiskers are turning white rapidly. Now, how do you account for that?" "Well," replied the physician, "I don't know, unless it is because your jaws have worked, a great deal harder than your brains."—The Windsor Magazine.

An old lady was on her first ocean voyage. "What's that down there?" she asked the captain. "That's the steerage, madam," he replied. "Really?" she exclaimed in surprise. "And does it take all those people to make the boat go straight?"—Chart and Compass.

"The gentleman behind will pay," said a lady sitting with her children in the park when the attendant came for the money. "Mother," said one of the tiny mites in a shocked voice, "Daddy's not a gentleman—he's an architect."—The Educational Times.

He was the slowest boy on earth, and had been sacked at three places in two weeks, so his parents had apprenticed him to a naturalist. But even he found him slow. It took him two hours to give the canaries their seed, three to stick a pin through a dead butterfly, and four to pick a convolvulus. The only point about him was that he was willing. "And what," he asked, having spent a whole afternoon changing the goldfishes' water, shall I do now, sir?" The naturalist ran his fingers through his locks. "Well, Robert," he replied at length, "I think you might now take the tortoise out for a run."—Christian Register.

A concert in aid of the fund for something or other had been arranged in the village, and all the local "stars" were booked to appear. Miss "Elsie Hands," the favorite soprano was announced to sing, and, before she began, apologized for her cold. Then she started: "I'll hang my harp on a willow-tree-e-ahem! On a willow-tree-e-ahem!" Her voice broke on the high note each time. She tried twice more, then a voice came from the back of the hall: "Try hanging it on a lower branch, miss!"—Boy's Own Paper.

The sergeant looked at the new recruits for the transport service. "Any of you used to Rolls-Royce cars?" he asked pleasantly. Three or four recruits stepped forward, a little conscious of their superiority over men who had driven cheaper cars. "Ah," said the sergeant, "you get scrubbing brushes and scrub down that staircase. Now don't none of you say you come here to drive. You come here to obey orders, and if you don't you goes to clink."—The Treasury.

Miss Curley kept a private school, and one morning was interviewing a new pupil. "What does your father do to earn his living?" the teacher asked the little girl. "Please, ma'am," was the prompt reply, "he doesn't live with us. My mamma supports me." "Well, then," asked the teacher, "how does your mother earn her living?" "Why," replied the little girl, in an artless manner, "she gets paid for staying away from father."—Argonaut.

Can't Both Sides Win?

By RUTH CAMERON.

"No man with a man's heart in him gets far on his way without some bitter, soul-searching disappointment. Happy he who is brave enough to push on to another stage of the journey and rest where there are living springs of water and three-score and ten p a l m s."

"I know what campaigning is. I'm sorry both sides can't win, for both have made a valiant fight."

"In a state in which the suffrage amendment was defeated, an anti-suffrage worker made that sportsmanlike statement.

"Don't you honor her for the fine forbearance that kept her from crowing over the vanquished (a forbearance some of the leaders did not show), and don't you join with her in the regret that both sides couldn't win—then and always?"

She Won't Give Prizes.

She made me think of a friend of mine who refuses to give prizes at her bridge parties. Instead she gives dainty favors to each player. "You see," she says, "someone has to win and someone else—perhaps two or three people—have to be bitterly disappointed. I hate that, so I can't bear to have a prize."

A college professor whom I used to know discontinued the contests which had been a part of his course because he couldn't bear to have the defeated suffer disappointment when they had worked so hard.

I Can't Bear to See a Child or Old Person Disappointed.

Disappointment is indeed a cruel thing. I hate to see anyone suffer it, and I simply can't bear to see a child or an old person disappointed.

But, after all, what is the use of eliminating and shunning contests when life itself is made of up contests.

Walk down the street: you see a successful shop. You admire its tasteful window display, its air of prosperity; you like to avail yourself of its attractive stock. You are admiring the winner in a contest for trade—the inevitable, eternal contest that goes on day by day and hour by hour.

Even suppose that Socialism, with its blessed promise of the elimination of industrial competition, should some day come true. Would there not always be other competitors of one sort or another? Two men for instance, love the same woman. Both can't win her.

Don't Forget the Contest With Yourself.

Contests and competitions are part of the warp and woof of life. Nevertheless it is possible to give them too great a power over one. We need to remember that the competition with ourselves is just as important as the competition with others.

In other words, if we thought more of the game and less of the prize, life would hold fewer disappointments for us. Both sides could not win the prize, but both could have the supreme satisfaction of having played the game squarely and to the best of their ability. And isn't that satisfaction one of the few real realities of life?

Germany's Punishment

Last month we reprinted Dr. Dillon's suggestions that the Allies should form a Customs Union designed to suppress German commerce and in the current issue of The English Review Mr. Hyndman submits the proposed "Financial Boycotts and Policies" to a general criticism. It is pointed out that the success of such a scheme depends upon "the power of the Allies to dominate ocean traffic," and this implies a threat to neutral countries. The critic continues:—

"The object of the Union is to prevent the Germanic Powers from using their wonderful powers of organization and scientific efficiency to check the development and override the interests of the combined nations during the years which they devote to the improvement of their own industries. But to turn this temporary expedient into a policy of permanent exclusion of the productions of a most important portion of the human race—itsself, as we may hope, developing in the direction of complete democracy and social progress—would be a most foolish and injurious form of reaction. Bitter as we must all feel towards the enemy of to-day, who is preparing, even in war, for a furious trade conflict in peace, the time will assuredly come when the memory of the crimes committed by the Teutonic Empires will fade, and commercial relations will be renewed with the new generation of Germans, as they were with the French after the great Napoleonic wars which extended over twenty years. International comity cannot be permanently suppressed, whatever national feeling, as well as national interest, may reasonably counsel for the time being."

Mr. Hyndman concludes, that the wiser course would be to learn the lesson of German efficiency:—

Unless we at once set to work so to re-order our national life that huge slum areas with the physical deterioration they engender are finally swept away; to establish a system of training, feeding, and clothing which shall ensure health and strength to all from childhood onwards; to put an end to the furious profiteering of competition which renders all social reform under capitalism illusory and futile in the long run; to regard all measures as beneficial only in so far as they increase the well-being of the whole community, and thus secure the fullest development, physical, mental, and moral of each individual; to bring our political forms into direct democratic harmony with our economic collectivism—unless we do all these things, and do them quickly and thoroughly, all the tariff regulations and Customs Unions in the world will not save our nation from anarchical revolution or possible final ruin.

"There is a Power Before Which the Might of Empires Shrivels."

The Rev. Norman Maclean Visits the Fleet and Shows How the Power of the Living God is Garrisoning Its Heart.

Rev. Norman Maclean, of St. Giles', Edinburgh, whose moving stories of the changes which came to our parish when the War began will be remembered by our readers, has just visited the British Fleet, and in the Scotsman recently, gives a very striking and touching account of what he saw and of our splendid men who man the fleet.

Cast Out Your Fear.

How inspiring and fine is his impression of that great Armada which neither slumbers nor sleeps in the great North Sea, and to which, under God, we owe our safety! Let the feeble hearts read these glowing words and cast out fear.

"From every funnel of Dreadnought, cruiser, and destroyer there rises into the warm, still autumn air the smoke lazily curling. For in every ship the fires are burning ceaselessly, and at a moment's notice the fleet can sweep out to sea. And that the smoke may swirl up constantly mingles toil in the bowels of the earth. If one follows this issue to the last, in the miner's hands the fate of the Empire lies. As here there is the ceaseless watch and service, may God grant that far away the service may be as faithful and as sure, at that smoke rising up incessantly is the security of the Empire.

"It is the power to smite instantly, and that power has saved us. When we read of thousands of square miles in the East overwhelmed by the enemy, and of the rush of the torrent of devastation over plains and villages and cities, the heart is apt to be discouraged. But there can be no discouragement for him who sees this. For this power has captured the ends of all the world; through it the seas of the earth pour their riches into the midst of our streets; by the might of it a whole continent has been delivered from the withering blight of Germanic culture, and saved for a force shut in and imprisoned by the sea in East Africa the might of Germany is crushed in Africa. From the great North-West to the long wash of Australasian seas not an inch of territory is left to that culture which tread the cross underfoot that it might dominate the world with the mailed fist. And the heart of that power which has wrought the deliverance of the world is here.

The Sense of Irresistible Might.

"As the mist slowly melts in the heat of the up-climbing sun, and as ship after ship, hitherto unseen, shows their grim sides, there comes to the heart the sense of irresistible might. And with the sense of that overwhelming power standing guard over our homes, the awful fear of the fate that overwhelmed Belgium falling on our women and children is lifted forever.

No Chalk Lines Here.

"In the centre of the ground assigned to them five presbyters of the Scottish Church stood, and beside them the caretaker of the burying-ground, with bare and bowed head. A long string of laden carts came rumbling along the road, but when the drivers saw a service of prayer there at the road side the horses were stopped and the men stood with bared head.

Verse by Verse the Great Psalm was read alternately—Lord, Thou hast been our dwelling-place in all generations.

"Verse by verse the great Psalm was read alternately—Lord, Thou hast been our dwelling-place in all generations. make us glad according to the days wherein Thou hast afflicted us. The words wherewith faith has confronted the last shadow unflinchingly for nineteen hundred years rang out its triumphant challenge, 'O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?'"

And the Dean of the Thistle in A Sermon by the Sea.

"On the shore of a green isle on the Sunday morning a representative congregation of sailors assembled to worship God. The sunshine played in the wavelets under their feet. Above them the scanty fields of corn on the slopes were yellowing for the harvest. And there they sang as their fathers have ever sung in days of stress—

To the hills will lift mine eyes, From whence doth come mine aid, My safety cometh from the Lord, Who heaven and earth hath made, The lapping of the wavelets and the breeze from the hills mingled with the song of eternal faith. And to them Dr. Wallace Williamson declared the gospel of the soul's peace.

The Nailed Hand and the Mailed Fist

"He talked to them of that God Whose Power casts down the mighty from the seats of their iniquity, and Who ever exalteth the righteous and the meek. There was but the one choice for the world to make—the choice between the nailed hand and the mailed fist. It was because of the overwhelming passion in their hearts urging them to make the ideal of the nailed hand of the Crucified operative throughout the world that they were there facing perils and death. And he told them of the soldiers in Flanders going forth to fight with illumined eyes, having sung, 'Yet though I walk in death's dark vale, Yet will I fear no ill.'"

Behind The Fleet.

"Those who took part in that mission will never forget the kindness and courtesy which they received from the sailors and soldiers. Officers and men did everything possible to make their work easy. And the eagerness with which the men received the message brought to them in the name of the Church is the assurance that behind the Fleet and Army there is a power before which the might of empires shrivels—even the power of the living God garrisoning the heart."

Congratulations.

We extend congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. William J. Martin, of Gower Street, who to-day celebrate the Silver Anniversary of their wedding day, and trust that the celebration of their golden jubilee will find them hale and hearty. Mrs. Martin, formerly Miss Ellen Rowe, is a daughter of Mr. Geo. J. Rowe, Mus. Bac. for many years Organist and Choirmaster of the Church of England Cathedral.

solemn prayer set apart the ground as a place of Christian burial. It was a prayer of thankfulness for the self-sacrifice and heroism that defy death on sea and land for country and kindred, for God and the King; a prayer vibrant with the consciousness of the great Communion of Saints that transcends all churches but includes all churches, knitting the living and the dead for ever together in one.

"And down below us lay the mighty fleet on the sun-lit sea, and above the heather-flecked slopes. And there came the thought of all the men who would be borne hither, their warfare accomplished, to sleep in peace. The long procession for generations to come, until the war shall cease, passed before the closed eye, and there came the sense of thankfulness that here, in this portion of the graveyard, catholicity would reign in death. Inside the line, not yet obliterated, that marked the consecrated ground of the Anglican Church, only Anglicans would come. But here Presbyter and Baptist, Wesleyan and Quaker would lie down together in death's great conciliation. In Scotland, Heaven be praised, we have never allowed the chalk lines inside the churchyards.

In Kirkwall Cathedral.

"On the Sunday night Kirkwall Cathedral could only accommodate a portion of the great congregation that assembled. There the centuries looked down on us—and the generations who knew how to build to the glory of God. And there, for the first time in its history, a message was given in Gaelic to the men from the Hebrides who man drifters and mine-sweepers. And the message was this:—Ma tha Dia leinn, co' dh' fheulais a bh' n' n-aghaidh.' And the assurance was given that far away at home unceasing prayer ascends for them.

"There were many other services along the coastline from Darnoch to Aberdeen—services at which many thousands of soldiers and sailors sat hushed and thrilled as Dr. Wallace Williamson spoke of God and eternity. Until at last the pilgrimage ended at a service in the quadrangle of Marischal College, Aberdeen. There, while the light was fading, and the sky was glowing purple overhead, and pinnacles and tower stood silhouetted against the radiance, Dr. Williamson made his last appeal to a hushed throng that they should not only dedicate their lives to their country, but to their God.

Behind The Fleet.

"Those who took part in that mission will never forget the kindness and courtesy which they received from the sailors and soldiers. Officers and men did everything possible to make their work easy. And the eagerness with which the men received the message brought to them in the name of the Church is the assurance that behind the Fleet and Army there is a power before which the might of empires shrivels—even the power of the living God garrisoning the heart."

"NORMAN MACLEAN."

Congratulations.

We extend congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. William J. Martin, of Gower Street, who to-day celebrate the Silver Anniversary of their wedding day, and trust that the celebration of their golden jubilee will find them hale and hearty. Mrs. Martin, formerly Miss Ellen Rowe, is a daughter of Mr. Geo. J. Rowe, Mus. Bac. for many years Organist and Choirmaster of the Church of England Cathedral.

OXO In the Kitchen OXO CUBES are a most efficient aid to the cook. They are handy and uniform in size, flavour and food-value so that the right quantity to use can be judged to a nicety. It is surprising how quickly a cook can prepare her soups and savouries with OXO CUBES. The OXO CUBE way of cooking is as great an advance on old-fashioned methods as the electric cooker is on the coal-fire.

Meeting of Patriotic Association

The adjourned meeting of the Patriotic Association for the reception and discussion of the Report of the Reserve Force Committee, was held in the Board of Trade Rooms last night. His Excellency the Governor presiding.

At the opening of the meeting His Excellency made some interesting announcements concerning the Regiment. He said that he had received a letter from the Officer Commanding the Australians in Gallipoli who referred to our boys as "the coolest bunch under fire that he had ever seen."

After referring to the recent casualties, details of which have already been published, His Excellency informed the meeting that he had received a cable announcing that Dr. A. C. Tait had obtained a Lieutenantcy in the R. A. M. C. and that Dr. Bass, late of Hant's Harbour, had also received a commission in the same branch of the service, and was attached to the Durham Light Infantry. Mr. Wisdom, late of the Bank of Montreal staff, has obtained a commission in the Royal Field Artillery. Lieut. Wighton has been recommended for a Captain's commission, and Capt. Montgomery who took over G Company will remain in charge of that Company until December 15th, at the request of Major Whitaker now in command of our troops in Scotland. G Company is stationed about 12 miles from Ayr. The four officers in charge of the draft of 100 men sent to the Dardanelles to fill the places made vacant by the casualties are Second Lieutenants Bartlett, Paterson, Strong, and Taylor.

His Excellency then announced that "Polesdon Launce" the beautiful residence of Mrs. Ronald Grenville, has been placed at the disposal of the wounded of the Newfoundland Regiment and that Capt. Walter Rendell had been sent there. His Excellency also stated that he had received a cable from the Secretary of State for the Colonies that the question of the entry of Newfoundland fish into Greece was receiving the most careful consideration and that the decision would be cable as soon as possible.

The report of the Reserve Force Committee, as amended, and published elsewhere in this issue, was then read by the Acting-Secretary, Mr. W. J. Higgins, and its adoption moved by Mr. John Penelon and seconded by Mr. T. L. Edens. A discussion of over an hour followed, those who took part being Messrs. J. J. McKay, J. W. N. Johnstone, J. A. Clift, Hon. J. T. McGrath, A. McDonnell, J. M. Kent, W. H. Rennie, R. G. Rendell, Hon. J. R. Bennett and F. J. Morris. The result of the debate was the repudiation of the idea that there had been any discrimination against Roman Catholics in the matter of Commissions in the Regiment. The appointments had been made on the other side by the Officer Commanding who in his selections could not be influenced by other than reasons of fitness and ability. The debate further developed the fact that the Reserve Force Committee had not requested Capt. Montgomery to make enquiries, during his trip, into the reasons governing the appointments, nor were they aware of any such instructions having been given him.

In view of the facts submitted Mr. McGrath unreservedly agreed to withdraw his statements.

Mr. J. M. Kent suggested that enquiries regarding the appointment of officers might be made on the other side but the suggestion did not meet with approval. Finally withdrawals were made on all sides and the report was unanimously adopted, and with an expression of hope that there will be no further reference in the press to such dangerous questions.

His Excellency announced the early departure of Sir Joseph Outerbridge and his resignation as Chairman of the Reserve Force Committee and took occasion to express appreciation of the excellent services rendered by Sir Joseph, who replied in fitting terms. The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

1st Nfld. REGIMENT. Casualty List.

1227—PRIVATE JOHN LAWRENCE MURPHY, 103 Signal Hill. Wounded Oct. 16.

122—PRIVATE CHARLES PATRICK MARTIN, 52 1/2 Barter's Hill. Wounded Nov. 1.

273—PRIVATE ALBERT ERNEST SLADE, Loon Bay. Wounded Nov. 1.

Private John Murphy, well known in St. John's East, left here with D Company. His parents reside on Signal Hill Road. He has a brother Robert Murphy, formerly of the Evening Herald staff, but now on the Montreal Herald.

Private William Wallace Kearney, 9 Livingstone Street, previously reported dangerously ill, is now reported wounded, and in addition dangerously ill.

Lance Corporal David Manuel Hackett, son of Mrs. David Hackett of Pleasant Street, was reported on Oct. 18th wounded. Yesterday, Widow Hackett received information by mail that the wounded was by straps in the left shoulder, and that he was under treatment at Alexandria hospital on Oct. 16.

Private S. R. Hackett—Widow Hackett also received a communication from the C. O. at Ayr, saying that her son, Samuel E., was in hospital at Ayr improving, but would probably be discharged as invalid.

OUR VOLUNTEERS.—Recruiting has been very slack of late and within the past three days not a single enlistment was recorded. Yesterday the members of H Company were engaged at Swedish, section and extension order drill at the armoury. To-day skirmishing is being engaged in on the Parade Grounds. A section commanders class has now been formed and several are preparing for the coming examinations and are now receiving instructions.

OPERATIONS SUSPENDED.—Herring fishing operations at Bonne Bay have been suspended the past few days on account of bad weather.

Beside the Nile.

Bright rides the moon, and up the bay
A lone sail scuds before the breeze;
I fold the socks I've knit to-day,
My heart untolds sweet memories
Of scenes I loved, of paths I strolled,
Dreaming of future years the while,
With one who lies war-wounded now
Beside the Nile.

I mind at school when you and I
With childish wonderment spelled
The tale that to our youthful minds
Conveyed some hint of Egypt's lore,
Of fearsome, mystic cults, of fables
That mark the wondrous builders
Of tribes that slaved, of queens who ruled
Beside the Nile.

How strange and oh, how far, how far
Across the world it seemed to be—
The land of Pharaoh now has grown
Familiar and near to me!
To-day a Christian I send
With greetings from thy sea-girt
Isle
To cheer a soldier's heart that's mine
Beside the Nile.

Schooners Out in the Storm

Minister of Marine and Fisheries Piccott received the following message last night from Mr. J. R. Goodison of Carbonear:—

"Great anxiety prevails here in regard to the following vessels, which left Seldom Come By 7 o'clock Monday evening: Silver Cloud, Ambrose Cole, master; Morella, John Burke, master; and the L. and S. Rd. Taylor. Have you any tidings? All vessels had many passengers."

"One of the vessels, the Silver Cloud, is reported safe at Kipler's Cove. Enquiries are also being made about the schr. Swallow, of Bay Roberts, bound here from Seldom, and the schooner Blanche M. Rose, master, which has 15 lives on board. The Blanche M. was bound to St. John's from Catalina. It is feared that both crafts were caught out in Tuesday night's storm. It is said that the schooner owned by Mr. Clements, of York Street, this city, left Catalina on Monday last and was caught out in the storm. This schooner had 19 lives on board, including men, women and children.

There is anxiety also felt for the schr. H. W. Wentzel, which left here for King's Cove Monday night, but had not reached her home port up to this morning. Aubrey Brown, brother of James Brown, is master of her. She may have harbored somewhere.

The schr. Annie, McCarthy, master, of Fermeuse, about which there was grave concern expressed, was sighted last evening by Lighthouse Keeper Costello, of Fermeuse. The Annie was about ten miles off there making for the land.

The steamer Sealac, which fared badly in the storm and returned to port yesterday, had the schr. Annie in tow, but the idea of towing had to be abandoned owing to the hawser parting three different times.

Storm-Tossed Craft Reaches Port.

The schooner H. W. Wentzel, Aubrey Brown, master, which left here on Monday night, had a very rough passage for King's Cove, and was caught out in the terrific storm of the following night, was towed into this port this morning by the tug John Grant, having failed to reach her destination. The Wentzel made a good run after leaving St. John's and everything went smoothly until the afternoon of yesterday when a heavy westerly gale came on with huge seas constantly sweeping over the craft. She reached within nine miles of the home port and then was forced to retreat by wind and sea. On Tuesday night a regular hurricane raged and almost every stitch of canvas that the craft had was blown away. Besides everything movable on deck was damaged or destroyed. The forecastle was flooded by the waves and to make matters worse the schooner's rudder was carried away. Those on board spent an anxious time of it and thought their craft would never survive the storm. Skipper Brown, however, believed the staunch old packet would live it out and he was not disappointed, as after drifting about disabled and helpless for over two days the schooner was picked up this morning off Cape Spear and brought to port. The crew will not soon forget their hard experience. The H. W. Wentzel is a 30 year old schooner and the wonder is that she ever survived.

Serious Assault.

A man named Wall, who was arrested at Hr. Main where he lives, was brought to the city last night, under escort of Constable Devine. He is charged with a serious assault on a young woman who was engaged with Wall on the Labrador the past summer. The accused is 48 years old and married, while the complainant is a 20 year old maid. A preliminary enquiry into the case was held before Judge Morris to-day. The accused was remanded for 8 days, bail being refused. In the meantime other Crown witnesses will be examined.

Reids' Boats.

The Argyle sailed from Placentia for westward at 4.15 p.m. yesterday. The Clyde left Herring Neck at 4 p.m. Wednesday, outward. The Dundee left Port Blandford at 4.40 a.m. to-day. The Ethie left Carbonear early yesterday morning. The Glencoe left Port aux Basques at 8.45 a.m. to-day. The Home left Bonne Bay at 5 a.m. to-day, coming south, due at Humbermouth this evening. The Kyle arrived at Port aux Basques at 8.25 a.m. to-day. The Meigle is at Port aux Basques. The Sagona is north of Twillingate.

NAVAL RECRUITS.—Since Tuesday last the following recruits have enlisted in the navy and have taken up training on board H.M.S. Calypso: Thomas Tucker, Griguet; Reginald Keen, St. John's; Charles McDonald, Gravels, Port au Port; William C. Barry, Little River, Codroy; Josiah Porter, Port de Grave; Robert C. Shawner. There are now upwards of 90 men on board the training ship not including a squad of 16 men who are doing special service.

RESUMED VOYAGE.—The s.s. Sealac, which left here Monday night for Charlottetown and was caught out in the gale of the following night, with the result that she sustained damage and ran short of coal, coming back here to be adjusted, resumed her voyage again this forenoon.

CONCERN OVER FLOUR BOAT.—The steamer W. H. Dwyer is now 8 days out from Montreal to this port with a load of flour and fears are being expressed for her. The Dwyer is a river boat and so peculiarly constructed to suggest having fared badly if caught out in Tuesday's storm.

ALLEGED VIOLATION.—An alleged violation of the Weights and Measures Act is said to have occurred at St. Lawrence and Inspector O'Mara has gone there to investigate.

Quality Not Quantity

It's not so much the quantity as the quality of food that counts. Digestibility and nutritive value are the prime considerations.

Grape-Nuts

is a splendidly balanced food that affords rich nourishment and, being partially pre-digested in making, exacts but small tax on the digestive organs.

Grape-Nuts retains all the nutriment of whole wheat and barley, including the mineral salts, phosphate of potash, etc., so necessary to proper nourishment, though notably lacking in white bread and many other foods.

A vast army of regular Grape-Nuts users can say from experience

War News.

Messages Received Previous to 9 A.M.

OFFICIAL.

LONDON, Nov. 18. The Governor, Newfoundland, Grey, Balfour, and Lloyd George are attending a War Council in Paris.

The officer commanding in the Dardanelles reports a successful attack on Turkish trenches on the 15th. Nearly three hundred yards of trenches, near Krithia Nullah, have been captured, and the position consolidated. Our casualties are under fifty.

In Serbia, Monastir and Mitrovitza are threatened by the enemy.

Nothing special on other fronts.

BONAR LAW.

RESUMED THE OFFENSIVE.

LONDON, Nov. 18.

The British army in the Dardanelles has resumed the offensive and captured 280 yards of Turkish trenches. It is officially announced that the 52nd division successfully attacked the Turks at Krithia Nullah, near the tip of the Peninsula and captured 160 yards of trenches east of the defile, and 120 yards to the west.

EXECUTION OF HINDUS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.

Mail advices reaching Washington to-day from India told of the execution of twenty-four Hindus and the sentence of twenty-seven others to the gallows for life by the governmental commission at Lahore. Activities against the British Government among certain elements of the Indian population were described as more extensive than had been officially admitted. According to reports from Lahore the affair was only one of several others that have been recently brought to issue in India with similar results, all the prosecutions being based on charges of anarchy, mutiny, and insubordination. The native press, while speaking of the loyalty with which India responded to the call by the British Government upon the natives military service, also referred in terms of condemnation to the activities of disaffected elements in the population, which in some quarters are ascribed to German machinations. The general tendency is to credit the munitions agitation to the work of a band of conspirators, alleged to have been located on the Pacific slope of America for several years, and actively engaged in a secret propaganda. Those conspirators are declared to have despatched emissaries to India, who have been stirring up antagonism to British rule there. The most disquieting feature of the situation, according to reports, is the uncertainty of the extent to

"Still Getting Worse."

"No one can measure your 'Nerve Force' as it leaves you."

"Prescription A" will increase your "Nerve Force" wonderful.

Nerve Force is the very motive power of the body as petrol is of the engine.

If you are using up too much Nerve Force through overwork, worry or other causes—you are like a motor car with a leaky petrol tank, however good the mechanism it must break sooner or later.

New Prescription "A" not only restores lost Nerve Force but actually increases it to a remarkable degree. Try it. You will really be astonished at the result.

QUESTION OF WITHDRAWAL.

LONDON, Nov. 18.

Baron Ribblesdale said in the Lords to-day, when addressing a question to Lord Lansdowne that he understood Lieutenant-General Monro, Commander of the British expedition at the Dardanelles had reported in favor of withdrawal of the British army at the Dardanelles. Marquis Lansdowne announced that the Government had asked Earl Kitchener to visit the eastern Mediterranean, because, in his opinion the report of Sir Charles Monro and the evidence accompanying it did not seem sufficient to enable the Government to come to a conclusion upon the great questions of policy involved. Speaking of the visit of the British cabinet members to Paris, Lord Lansdowne said that it was the most important step yet taken in connection with the scheme of closer working contact between the Entente Allies. There had been other comings and goings, but they were not to be compared in importance with the present visit. Lord Lansdowne added that the independence of Serbia was one of the most essential objects the Allies had in view in the near east, which already had become a very important theatre of war. This was not the time to talk of peace. They had entered upon a great struggle; and intended to carry it to a successful issue.

THIRTY PER CENT. INSTALLMENT.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.

The Anglo-French Financial Commission which negotiated the five hundred million credit with Banks, Trust Companies and Banking houses in this country has made a call for a 30 per cent. installment of $150,000,000, which is to be deposited to the order of the Commission with the National City Bank on or before Nov. 29.

SITUATION IN GREECE.

LONDON, Nov. 18.

The situation in Greece, said Lord Lansdowne is extremely perplexing, and he might add disquieting. This was a reply to a request for information as to progress of negotiations.

WAR CASE IN COURT.

LONDON, Nov. 18.

A case having to do with alleged illegal traffic in war material, involving the name of the Duke of Manchester, was heard at Bow Street Court to-day. Victor Sly was the defendant in the case, charged with dealing in war materials, without a license. The prosecutor said that Sly's office had been searched, and that a secret code with the Duke of Manchester, who is now in Paris, was found. The code covered various war materials. Many cablegrams had passed between Sly and persons in New York, whose names were given as Barnes and Barter, regarding contracts with Russia. Sly had applied to the Government for a permit to deal with munitions, which the prosecutor said, was promptly refused. Sly's application stated that he represented various States and Canadian concerns. It seems, said the prosecutor, that after Sly had been warned, that he was rendering himself liable to prosecution, he and the Duke of Manchester put their heads together to hoodwink the authorities by communicating with each other with regard to these matters in a secret code. One of Sly's cablegrams, which was produced in court, was addressed to "Pretty Maid," which was declared to be the cable address of Barnes, Exchange Place, New York. It reads: "I retired by Saturday, names factories with two million maulers." Sly was remanded in custody, as he was unable to find bail which was fixed at $10,000. His attorney said that Major General Sir Francis Lloyd, commanding the London district, regarded it as a minor offense, and wanted the case dealt with summarily.

SERBIAN SITUATION BECOMING WORSE.

PARIS, Nov. 18.

Telegraphing from Athens under date of Nov. 17, a correspondent of the Havas News Agency says: "The situation for the Serbians is becoming worse. The fall of Prilep is imminent and the Serbs have begun a retreat towards Ochrida. The danger of the Serbians, defending Babuna Pass, being enveloped by Bulgarians from the west, has caused the abandonment of the Pass. Desperate fighting is expected around Prilep, and south of that city. Bulgarians are advancing towards Krushovo with the object of cutting off the Serbian retreat towards Albania. The Serbians are fighting with the utmost tenacity along the northern front, disputing the advance of the invaders foot by foot."

BOMBS DROPPED ON VERONA.

PARIS, Nov. 18.

A hostile aircraft flew over Verona, Italy, this morning, several bombs being thrown from the machine. One child was slightly injured, but there were no other casualties, nor was there any material damage done, a Havas despatch from Rome states.

ITALIAN SAILINGS CANCELLED.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.

Representatives of Italian steamship lines here said to-day, that while they had received no advices that steamship service between Italy and the States had been entirely suspended, because of the submarine menace, at least five sailings from here during early December had been cancelled.

GERMANY'S COPPER.

LONDON, Nov. 18.

A Copenhagen despatch to Reuter's Telegram Company says that the copper trade in Germany is so acute that requests, equivalent to demands, are now reaching the authorities of the churches to hand over all the copper in their possession, as a good example to others. Huge copper roofs of the great cathedral of Bremen are being dismantled, and "everything made of copper belonging to the cathedral has been placed at the disposal of the military."

UNITED STATES WILL WAIT FOR AUSTRIAN REPLY.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.

While the United States will wait for the Austrian reply to Ambassador Penfield's inquiry, the circumstances under which the Italian liner was sunk, it was stated officially to-day that placing American citizens in small boats was "a heinous crime not regarded as according to them a place of safety within the meaning of the term as used in the international law. In its correspondence with Germany over the Frye case, the American government expressed the view that open boats did not constitute a place of safety. This high seas was to-day by official interpretation to apply to American citizens, whether travelling on belligerent or neutral ships. Officials qualified the assertion somewhat by stating that if the vessel was destroyed within a few miles of the shore, lifeboats would be regarded as safe, but under conditions and opportunity given for passengers to be transferred, even then were pertinent circumstances. From those intimations it is generally believed that the American government would develop the entire question of submarine warfare, further by correspondence with Austria, even though as the Austrian Admiralty declared, forty-five minutes were given to the passengers and crew of the Ancona to be transferred. This was not regarded as affording American citizens sufficient opportunity to be saved. The first official report alleging that the submarine continued shelling the Ancona after she had halted, reached the State Department to-day in a consular despatch, outlining an affidavit made by Doctor Grell of New York, the only known native American survivor of the tragedy.

STEAMER SUNK; FOUR OF CREW MISSING.

LONDON, Nov. 18.

Twenty members of the crew of the Ulriken have landed on the east coast.

They said their vessel was sunk in the North Sea and four of the crew were missing. The survivors assert that a Greek steamer also met with disaster.

Mamma! Don't You See Your Child is Sick, Constipated

Look at tongue! Move poisons from liver and bowels at once.

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowels cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again.

All children love this harmless, delicious "fruit laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look and see that it is made by the California Fig Syrup Co."

THE DOOMED BIRD.

The day'll be with us in a trice — Thanksgiving day, of grateful glee. Still stands the ancient sacrifice, a turkey roosting in a tree. I wonder why we always eat a turkey and a pumpkin pie, to show we're grateful for the wheat that in the bin is piled up high. We see our fardlers amply full, the bald-faced hens are laying eggs, the sheep have grown so plump-much wool that they are spavined in the legs; the cupboard's full of shredded oats, the pantry shelves have jars of jams, the clogs are thrifty and the shotes give pledge of bacon and of hams. All mundane things have come our way, we grin each prize for which we try, and, filled with gratitude, we say, "We'll eat a gobbler and a pie."

The turkey roosts in yonder tree, and hopes to dodge the butcher's gaze; but such a boon is not to be, alas, for numbered are his days. So many blessings crown our lives, so many gifts without alloy, that we, and all our ants and bees, must find some way to show our joy. We find existence full and sweet, each day's the best that e'er went by; and so we fondly say, "We'll eat a turkey and a pumpkin pie."

Reserve Force Committee.

REPORT TO THE NEWFOUNDLAND PATRIOTIC ASSOCIATION, NOV. 8, 1915.

Since the last meeting of the Patriotic Association, the Reserve Force Committee have held four meetings, mainly in connection with the arrangements for the transport of G. Company to England.

Time-Expired Men.
According to information received from the Pay Officer in England, 21 men requested their discharge from the Regiment on the completion of their first year of service. Of these, 4 were discharged on the other side, and 13 had their passage paid back to Newfoundland. Three out of the 13 are medically unfit for service at the front.

Official Information.
On the recommendation of the Committee, Captain Montgomerie has been authorized while at the Depot to try and arrange for the sending out from time to time fuller official information as to the movements of the Regiment, and its association with other units of the forces, and generally as to occurrences which may be of interest to the relatives and friends of the men.

The proposal of His Majesty's Government that the Colonial authorities should assent to promotions and temporary commissions in the field being granted, on the recommendation of the General Officer Commanding, without reference to the Newfoundland Government, has received the entire approval of the Committee.

Seniority of Officers.
So far as is consistent with the Army Regulations, necessary promotions and appointments at the Depot at Ayr will be so made as not to interfere with the seniority of officers now on service at the front.

Enrollment and Training.
The total number of men enrolled to date is 2,527.
The Musketry and Equipment Committees have continued to render their usual excellent service.

Transport.
Through the kind co-operation of the Canadian Government, it became possible to secure passage for G. Company on a Canadian Transport, and the Company accordingly departed, en route to Canada on the 27th October, under the command of Captain A. Montgomerie, with 2nd Lieutenants Norris, Keegan, Rowsell and Gane as platoon commanders. Dr. J. St. Pierre, who has joined the Royal Army Medical Corps, accompanied the contingent as medical officer in transit.

Your Committee are pleased to be able to report that they were successful in inducing Captain Montgomerie to place his services at the disposal of the authorities as senior officer in charge of this contingent in transit to the Depot at Ayr. This action of the Committee is strictly in accordance with the policy which they have uniformly adopted with regard to the forwarding of contingents, namely, that these should always be under the command of an officer senior in rank to the others attached to the unit, so as to prevent any possibility of conflict of authority in an emergency, such as an accident to the ship during transit. The fact that G. Company was despatched in time by the Calgarian, under Lieut. Morris, is only an apparent exception, as the Calgarian was then a warship, and no other troops on board, and was commanded by senior naval officers, upon whom the Committee could safely rely for the support of Lieut. Morris in any difficulty.

Your Committee have to report that their action in recommending Captain Montgomerie for duty on this occasion has given rise to a severe criticism of that officer and of the action of the Committee in the Evening Herald newspaper. As an officer is forbidden by the King's regulations to answer newspaper attacks upon him, it becomes necessary for the Committee, in Captain Montgomerie's and their own defence, to state the facts. The criticism distinctly suggests that the appointment was intruded for by Captain Montgomerie. On the contrary, the idea of securing his services originated with the Committee, without application, intimation or suggestion of any kind by Captain Montgomerie, directly or indirectly, to the Committee or any member of it. The opinion is also expressed that the appointment was unnecessary, and involved a waste of public money. The Committee is of a different opinion, and considers that economy, while always desirable in reason, may be carried too far when it is likely to endanger the lives of our men in transit to England. The Committee authorized the payment of Captain Montgomerie's expenses does not, however, lie with the Reserve Force Committee, but with the Finance Committee of this Association, which Committee paid the former bill of Captain Montgomerie's, to which extent reference is made in the criticism in question.

At the first meeting of the Reserve Force Committee held after the appearance of the criticism on Captain Montgomerie, the following resolution was adopted: "That the Reserve Force Committee desires to place on record its appreciation of Captain Montgomerie's valuable services in connection with the Newfoundland Regiment, and the regret of the Committee that he should have been subjected to personal attack in a section of the public press because of the request of the Committee he allowed his name to be submitted to His Excellency the Governor with a recommendation that he be given command of G. Company on the passage to England."

At the special request of Captain Montgomerie (who was not present at the meeting referred to), and in the interests of the discipline of G. Company, publication of this Resolution was deferred until after the departure of the contingent, and it was then judged expedient, in view of the early meeting of this Association, to lay the whole matter before the Association in the first instance. The suggestion contained in the Herald article of October 23rd, that this Committee recommended the employment of Captain Montgomerie because the latter is a Catholic, your Committee prefers to lay before this Association without comment.

Commissioned and Non-Commissioned Officers.
Whether designedly or otherwise, the effect of a series of articles in the same newspaper, which followed the criticism on Captain Montgomerie's appointment, was to create an impression among casual readers of them that this Committee is in some way responsible for what the writer terms "discrimination against Catholics" in the matter of regimental appointments. The records of this Association so completely exonerate your Committee from this absurd charge, that your Committee would not refer to it at all, but for the damaging effect upon recruiting and upon contributions to the Patriotic Fund, which a newspaper campaign of this kind must necessarily have among those of our Catholic fellow-citizens who are out of touch with the sources of unprejudiced information on the subject of our Regiment. We, therefore, feel it necessary to review, as briefly as possible, for the sake of our Regiment, the history of appointments in commissioned and non-commissioned rank in the Regiment.

Technically, this Committee has no official connection with the First Contingent, the Companies trained at Pleasantville Camp in 1914, but for reasons we include reference to those as well as to the Reserve Force strictly so called. For further clearness we separate the question of the grant of commissions to officers from that of the appointment of non-commissioned officers.

(a) Commissioned Officers Appointed by the Governor.

(1) As to the First Contingent, trained at Pleasantville, and now composing Companies A and B of the Regiment, including Captain Alexander and Lieut. Wighton (the latter a Catholic), who were already officers in the British Army, there were two classes of applicants for commissions with the first contingent, namely (a) officers then holding commissions in the Boys' Brigades, and (b) applicants not so commissioned. The immediate training of the recruits in camp required the appointment of the most experienced officers available at the moment, and accordingly the brigade officers, after a test of their competency by a Committee appointed by this Association, were given commissions. Apart from the immediate need for capable officers at the time, we feel sure that those who appreciate the splendid contributions made by all the brigades in the efficiency of the Regiment would in any case approve of brigade officers being given the first consideration.

Four officers of the Catholic Cadet Corps enlisted. All four were given commissions. The remaining nine applicants for commissions, who were given to understand that they would in due course receive special training to qualify them, were Messrs. W. S. Anderson, L. Bain, Rupert Bartlett, Cecil B. Cliff, John Cliff, William H. Grant, G. T. Gordon, H. Herder and Bruce Reid. All enlisted as privates. None of them were Catholics. Six of these, Messrs. Bain, Bartlett, Cecil Cliff, Herder, Grant and Reid, have since received commissions in the Newfoundland Regiment, on the recommendation of the Officer Commanding at the Depot; two, Messrs. John Cliff and Gilbert Gordon, in other Regiments; and one, Mr. Anderson, has not been commissioned.

(2) When C. Company, the first unit of the Reserve Force, was recruited, six more brigade officers were listed and applied for commissions. They were examined by a sub-committee of this Association, consisting of Lt.-Col. Conroy, Captains Montgomerie and McKay, found qualified, recommended by this Committee for appointment, and given commissions. One of them was a Catholic—Lieut. James Donnelly—who, in the examination results, received seniority over the others.

(3) After the despatch of C Company your Committee, for the reasons set forth in their report to this Association, dated February 18th, 1915, decided that all recommendations for commissions in the future ought to be obtained, not from this Committee, but from the Officer Commanding at the Depot. The part of the Report which deals with the matter is as follows:—

Officers' Commissions. By reason of the Reserve Force being formed in accordance with the platoon system, the matter of Officers was in a somewhat different position from that of the First Contingent. In the Reserve Force, no Officer was appointed to a higher rank than that of Lieutenant, and one Officer to each platoon went forward from here. The remaining officers will be granted commissions upon recommendation of the Officer Commanding our Regiment at Port George. On account of the lack of suitable applicants your Committee has recommended that the vacancies in the Second and Third Companies of the Reserve Force will be filled by Officers secured from men of the First Contingent, on the recommendation of their Commanding Officer."

This report was adopted by the Association on February 18th, 1915. The course adopted and reported by this Committee was the only one which could, in fairness to those who first flocked to the colours and in justice to their Commanding Officer, be adopted. The men who were first to enlist, many of whom had considerable experience in the city brigades, and all of whom had undergone training in England and Scotland under a British Officer, were by long odds the most likely source of material for commissions. The Officer in command of the Depot, who was charged with the training of these men, placed by the War Office in command of them, and who had unlimited opportunities for observing their ability and fitness in the course of training, was obviously the proper person to recommend them for advancement, particularly as it was he who would have to depend on their efficiency in actual warfare. Since the adoption of this policy by the Committee, it has only been departed from even in appearance, in three instances. The first is that of Mr. Howard Reid, who applied for a commission in the Newfoundland Regiment as a formal step to procure his admission to the Flying Corps, which application was endorsed by the Reserve Force Committee. The other two cases are those of Lieutenant O'Grady and 2nd Lieutenant Norris, both Catholics, and both recommended by the Committee for commissions. Of these cases, the recommendation of Lieut. Norris is the only real interference by the Committee with the rightful prerogative of Lieut.-Colonel Burton, the appointment of Lieut. O'Grady being a Headquarters appointment for instruction purposes only.

The Committee may here remark that the promotion of Mr. O'Grady from 2nd Lieut. to full rank was recommended by the Committee on October 9th, and made on October 22nd, before the appearance of the Herald articles on this subject. To sum up the situation as regards commissioned officers appointed on the recommendation of the Committee every Catholic who has ever applied to the Committee for recommendation for commissioned rank as a combatant officer has received its recommendation and his commission.

While the Committee has no responsibility with regard to it, the case of Lieut. M. P. Summers, Quartermaster of the Regiment on active service, may be here referred to. It has been alleged that the fact of this officer's failure to receive promotion to Captaincy, while others, alleged to be junior to him, have received such advancement, indicates a discrimination against Catholics on the part of somebody. In the light of the above statement of the facts, it is clear that if such discrimination existed in this particular case, the blame for it could not be laid at the door of the Reserve Force Committee. But the facts are that the alleged discrimination was exercised against Catholics in a regiment which includes among its senior officers Captains Garty and O'Brien and Lieuts. Summers and Donnelly, who are not at all the kind of men to remain inactive if any injustice were being done to their co-religionists in the ranks.

The extremely high encomiums which have been passed by General officers on the efficiency of the Regiment, are the best possible justification of the policy adopted by the Committee here and by the authorities at the Depot.

(b) Warrant and Non-Commissioned Officers: appointed by the Lieut.-Colonel commanding the Regiment.

At Pleasantville Camp the appointment of Warrant and Non-Commissioned Officers was made upon the recommendation of Captain Alexander, after a trial of the men, who were made up of the brigades. As to the Reserve Force, the recommendation of the Committee with the appointment of warrant and non-commissioned officers is for the most part extremely indirect. The stripes granted here are given upon the recommendation of the regimental officers, and after an examination conducted as to the written work by the local authorities, and as to the practical work by a sub-committee appointed by the Reserve Force Committee. This latter examining body reports its marks to the regimental authorities. Any private who wishes to secure non-commissioned rank is at liberty to put down his name for consideration in the class of candidates, which is prepared for examination by Lieut. O'Grady. So far as the practical examination is concerned, the work done alone this Committee is connected, the custom always is to consult Lieut. O'Grady as to the promise shown by a candidate in the written work, and training, if from nervousness or other cause he appears not to be doing himself full justice in the examination. Under such a plan it is plain that no "discrimination against Catholics" can occur; and as a matter of fact very few candidates have failed to receive stripes, as their number has not been much greater than the vacancies.

As to appointments to Non-Commissioned rank made in Scotland, we learn from the officers who have come out from the Depot that the method adopted is as follows: The Company Officer picks out a likely looking private, gives him an acting appointment as Lance Corporal, tries him for a while, and, if he finds him competent, gets his rank confirmed. If the man does not turn out satisfactorily he reverts to the ranks, and another is given a trial. After the man's rank as Lance Corporal is confirmed, his promotion depends on the regulations and on his own conduct and efficiency.

To sum up, it will be clear from the above that so active a policy of "discrimination against Catholics" being made by the Reserve Force Committee, the contrary might, with much greater probability than is usually supposed, be suggested. As to officers, the only case in which the Committee has really departed from its policy is that of Lieut.-Colonel Burton's discretion, was that of the appointment of Lieut. Norris. As to N.C.O.'s, their training has been entrusted to them in any manner and to Lieut. O'Grady, and the Committee's examiners simply test the practical knowledge of the candidates he sends to them.

Your Committee desire to state most emphatically that they have never permitted denominational considerations to affect in any manner any recommendations which they have made for appointments in the Regiment. With regard to promotions and appointments made by Lieut.-Colonel Burton while at the Depot, now by Major Whittaker, who assumes command at the Depot since the battalion went to the front, the Committee have no responsibility whatever. Their responsibility ceases when the men are delivered at the Depot, though we are always glad to advise when consulted by the regimental authorities here on any point on which we have any information. Before we could dream of assuming responsibility for the acts or omissions of the regimental authorities on the other side, we should have to insist for our own protection upon our being clothed with statutory powers to enforce our decisions, instead of being merely an advisory body, devoting our time and our best advancement of the interests of the Regiment.

Although, however, we assume no responsibility for their conduct, we must place on record our unanimous opinion that the notion of the authorities of a British Regiment exercising discrimination against any section of their command on sectarian grounds, is too fantastic for imagination, and it is particularly inconceivable that such discrimination should be exercised against Catholics in a regiment which includes among its senior officers Captains Garty and O'Brien and Lieuts. Summers and Donnelly, who are not at all the kind of men to remain inactive if any injustice were being done to their co-religionists in the ranks.

The extremely high encomiums which have been passed by General officers on the efficiency of the Regiment, are the best possible justification of the policy adopted by the Committee here and by the authorities at the Depot.

The week end show at the Crescent Picture Palace is a great one. The famous Selig Company presents: "The Strange Case of Princess Khan," an Oriental mystic drama, in two reels. The Biograph presents "The Beautiful Lady," a fine melo-drama with a strong cast including Isabella Ross and Malatesta. "The Westerner" is a strong western drama with G. M. Anderson as "Broncho Billy." A great Edison comedy is: "Rooney the Bride." See this comedy and have a good laugh. Mr. Dan Delmar sings a comic number: "Where can I meet you to-night?" The big bumper makes for ladies and children is on tomorrow in addition to the regular programme there will be extra pictures. The children always have a good time at the popular Crescent.

A GREAT CONTEST TO-NIGHT AT ROSSLEY'S.

For those who want to have one of the best nights' entertainment they have ever had, don't miss Rossley's to-night, for the contest will be great. Miss Lily Thorn will again appear, and several others who have great names in Carroll and Ellor, the Irish sketch, singing and dancing artists, have a great offering. Miss Ellor last night gave us a great piece of acting which shows she is a splendid dramatic lady as well as singer and dancer. Mr. Carroll sang several beautiful songs here, and his costumes were much commented on. "The Tear that Burned" is a high class drama with the talented Miss Gish in the leading role. It is a two part picture. The Keystone comedy had the house in roars; there is also a delightful Italian story, "Mabel Gets a Steady" another big comedy. All are great pictures. The contest and vaudeville will not take place till the stores close to give all a chance to see the show.

PAWNS OF MARS AT THE NICKEL.

The week end bill at the Nickel Theatre to-day is in keeping with the other attractive shows at this house of high class amusement. Patrons all know that they will see and hear the best at the Nickel and the theatre is endeavoring to keep up to its reputation. Foremost on to-day's bill is "Pawns of Mars," Star feature film "Pawns of Mars," in which Dorothy Kelly, James Morrison, Charles Kent, and Roger Lytton appear. "The Wooden Leg" is a two-part detective story. There will be a full reel of "The Hazards of Helen" and a Pathé News. To-morrow afternoon will be the big "over-the-hill" for children. Send the little ones early.

BRITISH THEATRE.

That Mrs. Ayre is "taking on" with the patrons of the British, was clearly evidenced by the vociferous applause tendered her last night. She was encored both long and loud by a large and appreciative audience, who would not be satisfied until she sang the third song. The show last night was second to none, and with a singer of such undoubted ability, patrons will fully realize the advantage of attending at the British. A very excellent programme is promised for to-night. The three-reel subject by an all-star Universal cast, entitled "A Photo-play without a Name" is a treat in itself. Come and see it and see if you can suggest the correct name for it. The popular King Baggot will be seen in a comedy drama "Pressing his Suit." King Baggot is always good, and his many admirers will not fail to see him in this cast. Other pictures and the "Trey O' Hearts" make up the bill to-night. Mrs. Ayre sings "There's a Land of Roses."

TO-DAY'S Messages.

NOON.

LONDON BULLETIN.

LONDON, To-day. The British Dardanelles next follows: In the Dardanelles the 52nd Division carried out a very successful attack on the Turkish trenches on the 15th instant, for which careful preparations had been in progress for a considerable time. Three mines exploded successfully under the enemy's trenches in the neighborhood of Kithia Lullah, three platoons of infantry pushing forward immediately afterwards and captured one hundred and sixty yards of trenches east of Lullah, one hundred and twenty yards west. The captured trenches were at once consolidated and bombing parties pushed up to communication trenches and erected barricades, simultaneously with the assault our artillery opened on the enemy's reserve support trenches. Fourteen inch monitors and the H.M.S. Edgar, cruiser, co-operating, maintained the fire until the position was reported consolidated; about 6 p.m. the enemy's batteries replied heavily, but very erratically, did little damage. The Turks in the neighboring trenches who fired heavily were caught by machine gun, rifle fire and bombs, and suffered considerably, their fire becoming very wild. No attempt at counter attack was made until the night of Nov. 16th and 17th, when it was easily repulsed, our casualties were under fifty killed and wounded, over seventy dead were seen in the captured position; wounded prisoner reports over thirty were buried by explosion in one mine, the units employed were portions of the fourth and seventh Royal Scots, seventh and eighth Scottish Rifles and Ayrshire.

PANAMA CANAL CLOSED PROBABLY FOR SIX MONTHS.

PANAMA, To-day. Owing to the tying up of the Panama Canal by recent land slide, many employees mainly operating divisions have been furloughed or given vacations which is taken here to indicate the Canal will remain closed for much longer time than first expected. In some cases the employees have been dismissed. It has been learned that it is the intention of Major-General George W. Goethals, Governor-General of the Canal zone to force a temporary channel through the slide as quickly as possible to pass through the waterway the few ships which have been waiting since the canal closed and then again to shut off the traffic through the canal until all danger of slides has been definitely ended, this probably will be not less than six months according to best available estimates. The condition of the slide remains virtually unchanged though slight gains are now being made by dredges against the mass blocking the channel.

SPANISH SMUGGLING.

MADRID, To-day. The El Imparcial says the Spanish Government in consequence of representations by Britain has increased its watchfulness against the German submarines being supplied from the Morocco or Spanish coasts. straband in small sailing craft. Residents of adjacent coasts protect smugglers, hence the Government, it is believed, will have great difficulty in preventing illicit outfitting of German and Austrian submarines.

THE SITUATION IN INDIA.

LONDON, To-day. In Northern India, where the concerted attempts have been made by members of an anti-British association, having its headquarters in the United States, to disturb the peace of the country and to tamper with troops and upset the Government is active. The loyalty of the people of the Province was shown by the resistance they voluntarily offered and by the aid they gave the civil power, was in part the answer of J. Austen Chamberlain, Secretary for India, to a request made in the Commons to-day by Sir Edwin Cornwall, for information concerning unfavourable reports respecting India, whether these reports were enemy country origin. As regards the general condition in India, Chamberlain added: My information is that it is substantially satisfactory and such difficulties have their origin in movements outside of India or in the effort of a small group of extremists who do not reflect the sentiment of the great mass of the people, and of whom many are fugitives from justice. The Government of India has the situation well in hand.

THE CONFERENCE IN PARIS.

PARIS, To-day. According to the Journal des Debats, on the question being asked why neither Russia nor Italy were represented on the conference here yesterday. The British minister's answer to that, the paper says, is simple. British and French operations were closely related, consequently must be combined in the greatest detail by the two governments responsible for them. Neither Russia nor Italy could have a deliberative part in the matter. Russia and Italy, says the paper, will of course play a part in the deliberations concerning the movements of the forces of the four powers.

BONAR LAW HOPEFUL.

LONDON, To-day. Two topics have been raised which are not pleasant to think or talk about, namely the position in Serbia and the Dardanelles, said Andrew Bonar Law Colonial Secretary, speaking on the third reading of the financial bill in the Commons this afternoon. Bonar Law did not agree

SERBIAN SITUATION SERIOUS.

LONDON, To-day. A Reuter despatch from Athens filed Thursday evening, says that according to newspaper advices the situation of the Serbians continues extremely dangerous. It is feared the defence of Monastir is doomed to failure if the prompt arrival of strong reinforcements, which will make possible a general attack, may save the situation and compel Bulgaria to withdraw troops from other fronts.

BRITISH CRUISERS THERE TOO.

LONDON, To-day. As a sequel to the report that a flotilla of German torpedo boats and a cruiser had passed Helisburgh, Sweden, proceeding into Cattgat, a despatch from Copenhagen says that a British squadron of cruisers and destroyers has been seen entering Cattgat.

BONAR LAW ON FINANCE.

LONDON, To-day. Bonar Law, passing to a question of finances in the Commons, said that the country had to risk bankruptcy to bring the war to a successful conclusion. Some means would have to be found whereby persons who wished to sell to the Government and trust its credit, would be able to do so. He was not afraid of exchange taken by itself, the real thing was the country's financial stability as a whole, and he declared that the situation would have to be worked out so long as money was borrowed freely for expenditure required, there was no reason to suppose that the country was making sacrifices, people were spending more than ever. With regard to the time came when the country would not raise indefinite loans, and if war lasted long enough it would come, the country would have to find other means for carrying on the war. He had been looking into the cost of munitions which were costing three or four times more than they would have cost under old conditions, and that would not go on indefinitely. If the financial position was to be kept straight, the Government must set their faces against any increase in payment for anything needed for the conduct of the war. The financial bill was passed.

ITALIANS TO MAKE BIG ATTACK.

GENEVA, To-day. The Italians are preparing for a formidable attack on Gorizia, according to the Milan correspondent of the Zurich Gazette, and that 50,000 men are to be employed.

POSITION IN NEAR EAST WILL BE MADE CLEAR THIS WEEK.

LONDON, To-day. The attitude of the Entente Allies towards Greece, from which country they are endeavoring to get a definite guarantee for the safety of French, British and Serbian troops, and the whole military policy in the Near East, including the Dardanelles, which will be expected, be made clear before the end of the present week, the Council at Paris, at which British and French Cabinet Ministers took part, came to important decisions. Earl Kitchener is looking over the ground both at Gallipoli and the Balkans and is to report on the best means of dealing with the situation arising out of the Austro-German and Bulgarian successes in Serbia and Greece's leaning towards the Central Powers. It transpired 6th day, during the course of the debate in the Lords, that General Sir Charles Monro, recently appointed Commander-in-Chief in the Dardanelles, already had given his opinion as to what should be the Gallipoli campaign. Lord Ribblesdale, who introduced the subject, was understood that the report of the General favored withdrawal. The Marquis of Lansdowne replied that the report and evidence accompanying it was not considered sufficient to enable the Government to come to a conclusion. The statement had hardly been made when the War Office received an account of the successful British attack on the Turkish trenches on either side of Kithia-Nullah, which led to the belief that Lord Kitchener, who is on the Peninsula, and who went out after General Monro's report had been received, had decided to persist in the operations.

AIR ATTACK ON VENICE.

VIENNA, To-day. Venice has again been bombarded by Austrian aeroplanes, the official announcement follows: The navy headquarters announce that, on Nov. 18th, one of our seaplane squadrons successfully dropped bombs on forts at San Nicola and at Borni, and the Albania and the arsenal aviation station, gas works, railway station and several barracks at Venice. Notwithstanding the fire of anti-aircraft guns and attacks of three hostile aeroplanes, our squadron returned with complete safety.

A Grottesque Bird.

The Tufted Puffin is the Joke of the Arctic Seas—To Look at Him is to Laugh—This Curious Creature is Silent, Tranquil and Droll, With an Air of Profound Gravity and Spends His Winters Reaming Over the Ocean.

It is a curious fact that the far north and the far south each has a sea bird peculiar to itself, and in both cases these birds, although unlike one another in general appearance, are among the oddest looking members of the bird family that the world contains.

The characteristic bird of the antarctic regions is the penguin, whose strutting companies, gathered on an icy shore, look like assemblages of little men, in long tailed black coats and spotted white waistcoats waiting to sit down at ceremonious dinner.

The characteristic bird of the arctic regions is the auk, a thick set, awkward creature, fond of fishing, like the penguin. The largest member of the family, the "great auk," or "gare fowl" has been driven into extinction within historic times. Another member, which the Audubon societies are trying to protect, is the queer looking, laughter exciting, and yet very grave and earnest native citizen of the north Pacific shores and islands, called the tufted puffin.

When the tufted puffin is looking his best (which is, of course, during the courting season) he wears a big red beak and a white mask, through which his green, red rimmed eyes gleam strangely, and shows a pair of bright vermilion legs and feet. From the top of his mask, on one side over the ear, curls a long golden white "feather horn." It seems that no description is able to convey the ludicrous impression which these birds make upon the beholder. Sailors seeing them for the first time break into guffaws of laughter. They call them "sea parrots" and on account of their droll grave manners they have also been nicknamed "Quakers."

Says William Leon Dawson: "It is difficult to exaggerate the gravity of these tranquil birds, always absolutely silent save that when caught and harassed, they may emit a low, hoarse groan. They spend much time standing demurely at the entrances of their burrows, their little plumes nodding like tassels on so many caps."

Like all the auks, the puffins are especially remarkable for the great size of their beaks and the changes which their heads undergo at the breeding season. Some of the horny plates of the big beak fall away at the end of the season, the white mask on the face together with its nodding plumes, disappears, the red crellids fade and the whole head becomes blackish.

Naturalists are a little puzzled to account for the size and stoutness of the puffin's beak. If the bird were fond of clams its beak might be of use as a shell breaker, but it seems not to be employed in that way. Neither is it used to dig the tunnels or burrows that the bird forms for its nest in the hard soil of sea fronting cliffs. These are excavated to a depth of three or four feet and apparently the only tools used are the sharp nailed claws.

In some places it is estimated that several thousand burrows exist on a single acre of sloping shore. The rabbits and puffins engage in a lively competition for the possession of burrows on the Farallones islands, but the big pyramid pointed beak gives easy victory in these contests. Mr. Dawson says a frightened rabbit will some times plunge hastily into a burrow without stopping to consider to whom it belongs, and when he comes out again with more haste than ever, he is a subject for laughter.

The natives of the north Pacific islands depend largely upon puffins for both food and clothing. The Aleutian "parkas," or feather coats, are made of the skins of puffins, with the feather side turned inward. Forty-five or fifty skins sewed firmly together make a garment which is said to be nearly impervious to cold. The birds are often caught in flight by means of nets at the ends of poles handled like butterfly nets. Unlike birds that are more skillful and agile on the wing, the puffins fly straight ahead and are unable to dodge quickly.

Strange as the statement may appear the puffins, like the auks generally spend the winter at sea. At that season they are to be seen on land only when driven ashore by some resistless tempest, which strews the beaches with their battered forms, many dead and many hopelessly lamed. With the advance of spring and summer they approach the shores where they are accustomed to breed, and then the remarkable changes of their colors, form and plumage that have been already described begin to take place.—Garrett P. Serviss in Spokane Spokesman Review.

Ladies' Costumes
Fall---1915---Styles.

Was there ever a more fickle lady than Dame Fashion? She is always making changes, and this season has surely surpassed herself.

There is a more decided change in this Fall's styles than has been known for many seasons. While materials are similar, Serges, Gabardines, Tweeds, Cord, etc., the designs are absolutely unlike any of their predecessors. Coats are of many styles, chiefly a la militaire, with high collars, snug-fitting sleeves, and the entire coat in some instances is beautifully braided. Skirts are much fuller, both pleated and gored, and are worn very short.

As descriptions are quite impossible, we can only say that we carry the largest and smartest line of Ladies' Costumes in the city.
