WHEN LOVE Came Too Late.

CHAPTER V.

The Key to the Riddle.
Olivia ran upstairs on tiptoes, and entered Bessie's room.

"The girl turned her large, innocent eyes upon the lovely face of her young mistress with eager gratitude. "Not gone yet, miss?" she said in a low voice.

"Not yet, Bessie. Are you better?" "I am all right now, Miss Olivia; only weak and trembling like. Has—the gentleman gone?"

"Mr. Faradeane? Yes?" said Olivia, and she leaned down and smoothed the white coverlid.

Bessie drew a long breath.

"And I scarcely thanked him," she said.

"Oh, but I think you did, Bessie," said Olivia.

The girl shook her head, and the color came into her pale, childlike face.

"I couldn't thank him long enough, miss. He did save my life, though he made light of it, and put it off as nothing at all. Toby had bolted, and was racing like the wind, and the gentleman—tell me his name again, miss; it is a hard one to remember, and yet it sounds nice—"

"Faradeane," said Olivia.

"Ah, yes, Faradeane! I shan't forget it. Well, miss, he came out of the cottage, straight like a lion, and he leaped onto Toby. I could just see him before I fainted, and Toby knocked him down, and I thought he was killed, and then—I don't recollect any more till he carried me in here. He said he wasn't hurt, miss; but I saw the blood running from his forehead." She shuddered. "Ah, miss, if I were a lady like you I could thank him as he deserves; but I'm only a poor girl that doesn't know how to speak what she feels."

"I think you thanked him very prettily, Bessie," said Olivia. "But I don't think he wanted or liked being thanked. He would not stop to speak to papa outside just now."

A swift look of apprehension rose to Bessie's face.

"Ah, miss, he was hurt, and was trying to hide it; he didn't want the squire to see. Oh, Miss Olivia, what shall I do? There is no one there to see after him."

Olivia soothed her and returned to the squire.

"Bessie thinks Mr. Faradeane was hurt, badly perhaps—and that was the reason he did not stay, papa," she said, with a little catch in her voice.

"Eh?" said the squire. "Well, that may be so." And, instead of turning up the drive, he went down the lane toward The Dell. Olivia walked in silence by his side, and the squire stopped at the gate, and put his hand upon it. It was fastened securely, "The gate is locked," he said, looking puzzled and baffled.

Olivia touched his arm, and pointed to the window, upon the white blind of which was the shadow of a tall figure pacing up and down.

"Look, papa," she whispered.

The squire stared at the shadow with a thoughtful frown.

"That is an unhappy man," he remarked to her, also in a whisper. "At any rate, he is not so much hurt as Bessie imagined."

"No," said Olivia, with a little sigh of relief. Then she touched her father's hand. "Come away, papa," she said, almost inaudibly. "I—I feel as if we were watching him."

"Well, so we are," retorted the squire, with a suppressed laugh. Then he looked at her uneasily. "Yes, let us go home," he said. "You look tired and upset. This has been too much for you. I will walk down in the morning and inquire how he is. I suppose he will not refuse me admittance. I am not a woman."

And he laughed.

But Olivia did not echo the laugh as he had expected; and she remained silent all the way along the drive.

Meanwhile Mr. Bartley Bradstone had ridden back to his splendid and gorgeous house in anything but a good humor. Your parvenu, while he would give half his newly gotten wealth to be a gentleman, invariably hates every gentleman he meets. Bartley Bradstone had taken a dislike to Lord Bertie, first because he was a gentleman, and secondly because he was, evidently, an old friend of Olivia's, and possibly a lover. As he contrasted her manner to Bertie with the cold reserve with which she treated him, he clinched his teeth and jerked at the reins, making the horse start and shy.

He rode up to the long, newly planted avenue to The Maples, and a couple of grooms came out to take his horse; but, as they had kept him waiting half a minute, he snarled at them as he flung himself from the saddle and mounted the stone steps—painfully white and new—which led to the front entrance. A footman was waiting to take his hat and stick, and his valet stood at the top of the stairs.

The squire and Lord Carfield were capable of hanging up their hats for themselves; but that would not have been "good enough" for Mr. Bartley Bradstone, who liked to see his gorgeous footmen whenever he could, and insisted upon being waited upon, literally, hand and foot.

He passed through the hall—which, notwithstanding its painted windows, and men in armor, and brown oak, looked as new as the rest of the place—and, going into the dining-room, rang for a glass of sherry; the squire would have got it for himself from the sideboard, but Mr. Bradstone flung himself into a chair while the butler and footman "served" the glass of wine on a heavy silver salver. The master of The Maples drank it, and looked round with a restless sigh.

"I was a fool not to stay, after all," he muttered. "It was cutting off my nose to spite my face. It's deuced dreary here by one's self, but it shan't be for long. Before long she'll be begging me to stay at the Orange—yes, begging me."

Then he got up, and, with his hands

PAINS IN SIDE AND BACK

How Mrs. Kelly Suffered and How She was Cured.

Burlington, Wis.—"I was very irregular, and had pains in my side and back, but after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets and using two bottles of the Sensitive Wash I am fully convinced that I am entirely cured of these troubles, and feel better all over. I know your remedies have done me worlds of good and I hope every suffering woman will give them a trial."—Mrs. ANNA KELLY, 710 Chestnut Street, Burlington, Wis.

The many convincing testimonials constantly published in the newspapers ought to be proof enough to women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the medicine they need.

If there is any peculiarity in your case requiring special advice, write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for free advice.

thrust in his pockets, wandered about the room. Presently he cast a glance at the many pictures, all in heavy gilt frames, and stood before one representing a girl reading a book. It was a recent purchase, and he had bought it because he fancied that it somewhat resembled Olivia; and twenty times a day he would stand before it and gaze at it.

"I'll have her own portrait here presently," he murmured, moodily. "I'll give Millais the commission to paint it the day we're engaged."

This resolution seemed to afford some satisfaction, for with something less of his recent sullenness, he rang the bell for his valet to dress him for dinner.

As he did so the footman entered with a note on the salver.

Bartley Bradstone opened and eyed it with an expression of displeased surprise.

"Where is he?" he asked.

"The person is in the hall, sir," replied the footman.

"Show him into the library," said Bradstone; then he stood looking at the sheet of paper, which contained only two words—"Ezekiel Mowle"—with a thoughtful frown, and a few minutes afterward went into the library.

In the brand-new room with its brand-new furniture and rows of newly bound books sat, on the edge of one of the morocco chairs, a thin, hatchet-faced man, dressed like a clerk. He would have served very but as a model for Uriah Heep; but instead of that "umble" personage's round hair he wore a palpable wig, whose hyacinthine curls, clustering in pious falsehood upon the cadaverous forehead, made the face look like a skull; indeed, being close shaven and without a single eyebrow or eyelash, it would have closely resembled one under any conditions.

Bartley Bradstone shut the door close.

"Well, Mowle," he said, with marked coldness, "this is an unexpected pleasure. What has brought you down here?"

Mr. Mowle stretched his thin, colorless lips by way of a smile, and "I thought it best to run down, sir," he said, and his voice matched his person, being hollow and strained, as if his throat were totally devoid of moisture. "I considered the question most anxiously, Mr. Bartley, and I thought it best to run down," and he glanced upward with a peculiar expression of servile obsequiousness.

"What's wrong?" demanded Bartley Bradstone, eyeing him with suppressed irritation. "Why didn't you telegraph, whatever it is?"

Mr. Mowle fingered his chin and blinked his lachrymose lids.

"The wire's useful, but not always to be trusted, especially in country places like this. The young lady at the office is generally so curious, having so little to do, Mr. Bartley, I might have written, but I thought from what you said that time was important; so I ran down."

"Yes, yes, I see you have," said Bartley Bradstone, with ill-concealed impatience; "and now you're here you had better stop to dinner."

Mr. Mowle shook his head.

"No, no, thank you, sir. There is a train in an hour and half's time, and I've kept the fly—"

Bartley Bradstone frowned.

"There is no occasion for that," he said, with bombastic pride. "I dare say I can find something to take you back to the station." He rang the bell. "Pay the fyman and discharge 'im," he said to the footman, "and order the dog-cart."

Mr. Mowle, pawing at his lank chain watched the pompously attired footman with a vapid air, and then allowed his eyes to roam round the extravagant decorations and furniture of the room.

"You'll have some wine?" said Bartley Bradstone.

"Thank you, sir; thank you, Mr. Bartley; but I'm a teetotaler, if you remember."

Bartley Bradstone nodded.

THE BIG LEAGUE SERIES.

By Bert L. Standish, 75c. ea.

Here they are! Just what you've been looking for. Baseball and Romance combined, the most interesting stories ever written.

The author managed a league team a number of years ago and is thoroughly familiar with the doings of baseball players on and off the field. Father and son will find equal delight in reading these magnificent stories.

"Any Boy with Plenty of Grit," "Baseball at its Finest," and "The Girl in the Case"—these are the elements which compose the most successful juvenile fiction ever written. You don't have to be a fan to enjoy these books; all you need to be is really human and alive, with plenty of red blood.

During the hot days a little child must be kept cool. Don't forget that barefoot sandals—the little heelless foot coverings that children wear without stockings are cheap and sensible and that children like them. Supply the younger generation of your household with this species of footwear and let them don the sandals every hot day and go where they please in them. They are the next thing to going barefoot.

Sponge the little boy very gently with tepid water if the child seems too tired for a tub bath, and repeat the operation several times during the hottest days. A teaspoonful of ammoniated toilet water will make this sponging doubly refreshing, but if this is used be careful not to have the water get into the youngster's eyes.

When the little head feels burning hot and the hair is wet with perspiration and is sour as well, a shampoo would not be amiss and it would doubtless be relished. The massage the small one gets at this time would be an added comfort.

When it is time to dress for the afternoon pay more attention to finding the garments that will keep it cool than to putting on those for mere looks.

High neck and long sleeves are a crime in hot weather.

FRENCH ORGANIZE POSITION.
PARIS, Aug. 3. North of the River Somme several German attempts last night against French positions on Moncau Farm were repulsed. It is officially announced, this afternoon that French troops have organized their positions between Moncau Farm and Heulwood.

RUSSIANS ADVANCING ON KOVNO.
LONDON, Aug. 3. According to despatches received from Petrograd, the Russian advance against Kovno continues. General Kalotkin's troops have pushed forward ten miles since they crossed the banks of the Stokhod River, which would place them only ten miles from Kovno.

AUSTRIAN DESTROYERS SHELL ITALIAN SEAPORT.
ROME, Aug. 3. An official statement says that two Austrian destroyers shelled Bisceglie, an Italian seaport on the Adriatic near Bari.

A REMARKABLE LETTER.
LONDON, Aug. 3. A Frankfurter Zeitung despatch from Rotterdam, reproduced from the Rheinisch Westfaelischen Zeitung of Essen, a remarkable letter, arguing that the Germans had the right to treat as common murderers any subjects of neutral states caught fighting on the side of Germany's enemies. The letter in part says: "We are waging no war with the United States, but North Americans, whom we encounter with arms in their hands ought to be treated as the Frankfurter Zeitung says." It adds: "If the Rheinisch Journal would consider it legal for England to have shot German who fought against Britain in the Transvaal."

ROGER CASEMENT HANGED.
LONDON, Aug. 3. Roger Casement was hanged at Pentonville jail for high treason at 10 o'clock this morning. He was pronounced dead nine minutes after nine. A small crowd gathered in front of the building at seven o'clock this morning. There was some excitement when a telegraph messenger arrived at the prison gate, and an eleven-hour reprieve was speculated upon. The death bell tolled eight minutes before nine; this was greeted with an outburst of cheering, which was repeated at intervals. When the clang of the bell announced that the hanging was over, many cheered, while others groaned. Father McCarrell, who attended Casement during the hanging, told the Associated Press that the condemned man met his death courageously. "Casement went to his death like a brave and bold man," said Father McCarrell. "Just before the black cap was adjusted he said in a clear, distinct, slow voice: 'Into Thy hands I commend my spirit.' Then, still standing at his full height, he added: 'Jesus, receive my soul.' The trap was sprung at one minute after nine o'clock. According to one of those present, Casement

Roger Casement was hanged in Pentonville jail for high treason at 5 o'clock this morning. He was pronounced dead nine minutes after nine. A small crowd gathered in front of the building at seven o'clock this morning. There was keen excitement when a telegraph messenger arrived at the prison gate, and an eleventh hour reprieve was speculated upon. The death bell tolled eight minutes before nine; this was greeted with an outburst of cheering, which was repeated at intervals. ## Every Woman's Ambition For Rosy Cheeks Now Easily Satisfied

Hollow cheeks with dark lines under the eyes, how a woman hates them! But rosy cheeks, clear skin, and bright eyes, give them to a woman and she is happy!

The woman who attracts, whose fresh, dainty complexion, complements her health, particularly of her blood condition. Bad complexion always means bad blood.

Girls, don't let your blood grow thin or watery. To do so brings on haggard looks and declining strength.

Many a woman who has allowed herself to run-down, to destroy that tired, worried look has built up again in this simple way. Why don't you try it!

At the close of every meal, just take two small chocolate-coated Ferrozone Tablets—any person can do this in a minute. The action of Ferrozone is apparent at once. It sets you up, makes you feel good, starts up your appetite, aids digestion, brings that old-time feeling of youth into the system again.

Ferrozone puts you on the right road—the one leading to health.

Not a man, woman or child needing blood, vigor, endurance—not a person who is weak, nervous or sickly, not a person in ill-health who won't receive immediate help from Ferrozone.

As a tonic and restorative, as a health-bringer and body-builder, Ferrozone is unrivalled. It cures because it feeds and nourishes, because it contains the elements that build up and strengthen. For better looks and better health try Ferrozone yourself.

ZEPPELINS' WARM RECEPTION.
LONDON, Aug. 3.

Zeppelin airships, which raided the eastern and southern coasts of England this morning, had a very warm reception from anti-airship guns. According to observers in a coast town near Hawick, where the airships passed, one of them apparently was hit, she being seen in a badly damaged condition and flying low over the water. One of the Zeppelins, which crossed Dutch territory, also was fired on by Dutch gunners, but was not hit.

Several hostile airships attacked the eastern and southeastern coasts last night. The first reports were received at midnight. From these it seems that not less than six airships attacked the counties of Norfolk, Suffolk and Essex, more or less simultaneously. The raid lasted about an hour and a half. Except at one point, the raiders did not penetrate very far inland, but contented themselves with dropping a few bombs at a time on widely distant locations, mainly near the sea. Several bombs are reported to have fallen into the sea. Anti-aircraft guns came into action in one locality, but the raider there attacked made good his escape. In conjunction with this attack one airship was seen making for the coast of Kent. Many observers report that a second airship followed the first. From the number of bombs dropped in these attacks, it makes the statement appear quite possible that anti-aircraft guns came into action. "One" or "two" hits were claimed against the first raider. A total number of eighty bombs has been accounted for up to date, including those seen falling into the sea. The total damages are astonishingly small. Nine horses were killed and three others injured. The military object of the raid is not apparent.

WHAT BERLIN SAYS.
BERLIN, Aug. 3.

A raid last night by German Zeppelins, resulted in dropping a great number of explosive and fire bombs on London, the fleet base at Harwich, and on industrial establishments in the county of Norfolk, says an official statement given out here to-day. The Zeppelins were attacked by light British forces, but all returned undamaged, says the statement.

OFFICIAL DENIAL.
LONDON, Aug. 3.

In regard to the official statement from Berlin, on the air raid last night the British Press Bureau says that it is informed officially that the German statement is untrue virtually from beginning to end.

Investigations made here fail to bear out the German statements that the last two Zeppelin raids reached London. Many people from all parts of London and suburbs report that they have not seen or heard of any Zeppelins or any guns whatever. Whenever the Zeppelins reached London or the suburbs in the past, the news spread rapidly. There was no difficulty in finding plenty of witnesses to testify their presence.

VIENNA, Aug. 3.

The Italian submarine Giacinto Pullino has been captured by the Austrians in the North Adriatic and brought to Pola, according to an official announcement.

NEUTRAL STEAMERS SUNK.
LONDON, Aug. 3.

The Swedish steamer Hudiksvall was torpedoed by a German submarine last night in the Baltic Sea, according to a Reuter despatch. She was on a voyage from Sweden to Finland. The captain, 12 men, of the crew, and 5 women, took to the boats and reached the Swedish coast. She carried a valuable cargo. It was reported also in the despatch that two other Swedish steamers and two Finnish steamers were sunk last night in the same vicinity. Two Swedish steamers named the "Hudiksvall" are listed, one of 1,190 tons and the other of 473 tons gross.

PENSIONS.
LONDON, Aug. 3.

Parliament will next week be asked to vote £3,000,000 including £1,000,000 already voted, to provide the full estimated cost of supplementary pensions for widows and bereaved dependents of non-commissioned officers and men, and for partially disabled non-commissioned officers and men. This sum, William Hayes Fisher, Parliamentary Secretary of the Local Government Board, explained to the House to-day, estimates the number of deaths at not exceeding 220,000, but if the number exceeded this, the amount would be increased proportionately. An additional grant would be made for officers and men whose general circumstances warranted assistance.

Fishery News From Various Centres.

The latest reports received by the Board of Trade are:—

July 29th. From A. J. Pearce, (Twillingate to Trump Island)—The catch is 1201 quintals with 237 for last week. From 35 to 40 traps and 40 skiffs are fishing. The trap fishing on the whole is quite improved. Some few in the prime berths did well for 2 or 3 days and one had a haul of 40 bris. Three or four others had from 4 to 7 bris, and the remainder from 1 to 2 bris. Hook and line prospects have not improved this week, the average catch being from 1/4 to 1/2 brl. Herring is fairly plentiful for bait.

July 29th. From J. A. Tuck, (Hant's Harbor to Lead Cove)—The traps to-day did very well but for the last two weeks they have nothing to report. The hook and line fishery is practically a failure. Sixty-five traps and 25 boats are fishing and the catch to date is 3700 qtls. with 200 for last week. Prospects are not very good and caplin is getting scarce but a little squid is now seen.

July 29th. From T. McCarthy (Reynolds to Seal Cove)—Prospects are very poor but there is plenty of bait, squid, caplin and herring. The total catch is 2050 qtls. Nine traps, 16 dories, 26 skiffs and 7 boats are fishing.

July 29th. From J. Cunningham (Connore Bay to Red Island)—The trap fishing is ended, but there is good prospect for hook and liners if squid continues plentiful. Five Nova Scotia boats have baited here, and there is squid sufficient for the local boats and to spare. The outlook is good. Sixty dories, skiffs and boats are fishing, and the catch to date is 12,109 qtls. with 350 for last week.

July 29th. From J. F. Williams (Bay Bulls to Long Pt.)—Prospects are poor, and nothing is being done with trawls, though there is plenty squid for bait. Twenty-eight traps, 25 dories and skiffs and 22 motor boats are fishing. The total catch is 7,410 qtls. with 365 for last week.

July 29th.—From J. Britt (Blanc Sablon to Forteau)—This has been a very good week, and traps and hook and liners have done well. There is plenty cod in deep water, and sufficient caplin for bait. The catch is 13,000 qtls. and for the last week 1,000. Twenty traps, 80 dories and skiffs and 10 boats are fishing. Prospects are very good.

The traveling man is one of Nature's handiworks who works mostly with his feet. A thoughtful and far-seeing Providence has supplied the traveling man with a pair of pointed, rubberized feet which never give out until Saturday night, when they are taken apart and allowed to breathe in a free, natural tone of voice until Monday morning.
Traveling men are not hired because of their personal beauty, but in order to prevent the hotels, restaurants and railroad eating houses of our country from going broke with a few trifling reports. If it were not for the vast hordes of Luropein traveling men who drop off the train every day in crash suits and scatter money all the way from the ticket window to the sample room, the business of running a hotel would be about as profitable as selling porcupine underwear in Iceland.
Every hotel man who ever made a success of the business greets the traveling man with a seductive smile and an outside room and sees that he is followed to his room by ice water, fresh towels and the evening paper. Whenever you read of a hotel being closed in order to allow the sheriff to pursue the proprietor into an adjoining state, you will find that all of the traveling men who had to stay over night in the town, on account of the train service, preferred to sleep in somebody's hay mow and tackle the frugal but hardy short-order menu. The traveling man has made the hotels of our land what they are, which impels us to remark that in some instances his work could be improved upon without setting back the dial of progress more than a notch or two.
Some traveling men are married and yet retain a cheery, hopeful disposition, even being able to greet with a smile the customer who wants to adjust a bunch of bananas with a 40 per cent discount, owing to one banana being found to be made of defective material. There are a great many unmarried traveling men, most of whom wear sport shirts and a look of settled melancholy. While en route to the chief business of the traveling man is to entertain two or three kiddies, even to the extent of supacating them with stick candy, and thus allow some tired mother to catch a wind of sleep. The average traveling man has a heart in him as big as a double corn crib, and on that account he should be treated as a human being and not as a meat ticket.

OUR UNITED EMPIRE

Newfoundland Joins Great Britain and Her World-wide Dominions in Commemorating the Glorious Fourth.

Enthusiastic Meeting of St. John's Citizens—"Our Inflexible Determination!"

Long before the appointed hour of noon Water Street and the spaces adjoining the Court House Building were thronged this morning by a multitude of people. When the Mayor addressed the meeting from the flag-bedecked platform that had been erected upon the steps of the Colonial Office, the sight was a striking one in the brilliant August sunshine. Shops had been closed and all traffic ceased. The crowd, numbering several thousands, extended across Water Street and filled the windows and even the roofs of nearby buildings. A guard of honor from the Regiment was drawn up and lent an appropriate and military air to the scene.

At the head of the broad steps of the building the Mayor and Councillors received their guests. These were His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson, the Lord Bishop of Newfoundland, the Judges of the Supreme Court, members of the Legislature, several of the clergy and many other prominent citizens.

Address of the Mayor.

Your Excellency, Your Grace, My Lord Bishop, Citizens of St. John's. This is the second anniversary of that fateful day when the British Nation found itself forced to take up arms, and to join its Allies—France and Russia—in the great struggle which now convulses the World. The question has been continually asked—Why was this so? Why should we have taken part? and many answers have been given.

It has been said that we did so because of the violation by Germany of treaties to which we were party—that it was in order to give assistance to our Allies—and again because of the necessity of self-preservation—but when all these reasons are examined, it will be found that they have a common origin, and that the cause of our participation in the struggle lies far deeper.

It is now realized that two great and diametrically opposed systems of government and of life had arisen in the World. On the one side there were British Freedom and Fresh Liberty and Equality, and on the other there was German Kultur. The former reverence, respects, and encourages individualism while the essence of the latter is the submergence of the individual in the State.

On the one hand there is the great-hearted, generous, perhaps too easy-going self-Government which prevails in the British Empire, on the other there is State Despotism, under a ruler who has been, for a generation, fashioning a weapon, with which he calculated to subordinate the whole of Europe.

It was obvious, perhaps it was fore-ordained, that a clash between two such different systems of Government should take place, and that in the quest of truth it was necessary to pass through the fiery furnace of War. Citizens of Great Britain, seeing how the Empire has spread over the World without premeditation or settled intent, how successful on the whole has been the British system of self-government, how blessed has been the Pax Britannica, which prevails within its borders—can have no hesitation in deciding upon which method of life they prefer.

Throughout the Empire to-day meetings such as this are being held. We are called upon again to state our unshaken faith in the justice of our cause, and to pledge ourselves to support our faith by every means in our power. In this great Empire the citizens of St. John's have a peculiar and proud position, and it behoves us to play our part in a manner befitting that position.

For here the British Empire over-seas had its beginning. By an extraordinary coincidence it was exactly 233 years ago to-day that in this Harbor, near this spot, the Flag of England was first unfurled over a Colonial possession, and I greatly misunderstand the temper and sentiment of my fellow-citizens if we do not inter-act with all our might to defend and uphold that Empire, and the principles of Liberty and Justice which are the very foundation of its being.

I therefore beg to submit to you the following resolution in the firm conviction that it will receive your deepest and most heartfelt approval:— RESOLUTION:—"That on this the second Anniversary of the Declaration of a 'righteous War,' this Meeting of the 'Citizens of St. John's,' records its 'inflexible determination to continue to a victorious end the struggle in maintenance of those ideals of Liberty and Justice which are the common and sacred cause of the Allies.'"

The address was punctuated by bursts of applause and followed by loud cheering. Mr. Gosling then introduced His Excellency, whose oration held and electrified his large audience. The touching reference to our fallen heroes and words of consolation to their sorrowing parents concluded an address such as we have rarely the privilege to listen to. Following is the text:—

His Excellency's Address.

Two years ago this day the German Emperor perpetrated the most infamous crime in the history of Mankind. He plunged the world into the peaceful world bent on the Arts of Peace—in to the horrors of War, a War for which he had secretly prepared and of which the main certainly the ultimate-object was the disruption of the British Empire and the subjugation of the British Races under the heel of Germany. Britons never will be Slaves. Everywhere, they sprang to arms in defence of their sacred rights, their traditions of freedom and of liberty and of self-government, to strike a blow on behalf of their hearts and homes.

Over the whole surface of the Globe the response was immediate and spontaneous. We were not trained to arms. We had relied upon the protection our Fleet which policed the Oceans and maintained the equal rights of all who journey in the Seas. We had to learn the trade of Arms; our little trained Army was thrown into France to save that gallant race from the extinction which was to be the first step towards the conquest of the British Empire and of civilization as we had made it. A short breathing space was obtained at the cost of the gallant men who fell in the "contemptible" Little Army. Meanwhile, men of our Race poured in, to join the Forces who were to resist and throw back the foul invader. The time gained has enabled us, under the protection of our Mighty Fleet, to assemble our chosen men, to train them to arms, to give aid to our Allies and to lay the foundation of our ultimate Victory.

In our little sea-girt Isle of Newfoundland, were we backward in this glorious response? Ten thousand times 'No!' Your leaders, of all classes, had but to realize the awful imminence of our danger, of the destruction of our independence, of the peril of our subjugation by a Foreign People, to prove that the old spirit of your sturdy ancestors was not dead. On that never to be forgotten evening in the Armoury, close on two years ago, the views of all views rose before that crowded assembly and declared that in the defence of Great Britain lay the safety of our British Empire and of this World. Your elected Representatives gauged your will aright. They gave a pledge to help by Land and Sea; and you Citizens of St. John's, in the name of your forefathers, deemed that pledge forthwith, and sent the flower of your gallant youth to share in the chances and dangers of the War.

As the grave significance of the danger spread throughout our Bays and Harbours, the manhood of our youth rose to see these gallant lads. Strong men they were and serious men of simple and sincere faith, who came to discharge what they deemed their duty and their danger. Men of the old stock from distant hamlets and from flourishing settlements, reared in a rigorous and unrelenting spirit of self-reliance and possessing a skill and dexterity in many trades, the like of whom it would be hard to match elsewhere. They were men of the sea, and the thunder of the mighty ocean; men fit to fend for themselves under all the changes and chances of life.

I therefore beg to submit to you the following resolution in the firm conviction that it will receive your deepest and most heartfelt approval:— RESOLUTION:—"That on this the second Anniversary of the Declaration of a 'righteous War,' this Meeting of the 'Citizens of St. John's,' records its 'inflexible determination to continue to a victorious end the struggle in maintenance of those ideals of Liberty and Justice which are the common and sacred cause of the Allies.'"

The date which will outline all in our history is the glorious First of July. Picture the gallant scene, when our brave lads, with all the consciousness of their disciplined courage, rose as one man over the parapets and faced death in a charge as glorious in the history of brave men as the famed charge of the Light Brigade at Balaklava. Was there a man dismayed? All marched forward to carry on their part in the scheme of the general advance. They met the veterans of the French Army who had been chosen to face the British attack. Every product of devilish and perverted ingenuity was arrayed against them. They needed no proof, but if proof were needed, then I say that they incurred losses which exceeded the losses of any of the famed Canadian Regiments which held the broken line outside Ypres or of any of the gallant Anzacs who stormed the defence of Gallipoli. But we at home knew, all the time, that the men who at home had braved the perils and dangers of the sea and of the sea and who had endured the hardships of the dreadful blizzard at Gallipoli, silently and uncomplainingly, these men would never surrender before any enemy and under any conditions.

Do you realize truly from what these lads have saved you? You may not have followed the insensate footsteps of the German leaders who have descended in their policy of frighthfulness. There are people who have to bear it; it should not be too hard for you to bear it. In Prussian Poland, a Polish child may not kiss his prayers at his mother's knee in the language of his race, in Belgium to-day, the workmen who refuse to make munitions for the invaders are driven to work at the point of the bayonet. Their daughters are carried away as hostages, with brutal threats as to how they will be used if the fathers persist in refusal. The most stubborn of the men are taken away in gangs to starve slowly to death in Germany. In Lithuania—an occupied province of Russia—a household is officially paid for every child of a Lettish mother, whose father is a German soldier, $5 for a boy, $3 for a girl. The Bishop of London, who caused a case at Lille—a prosperous commercial city of France still in the hands of the enemy (I hope not for long now), where the wife and daughter of a prominent merchant have borne children whose fathers are German soldiers. The citizens of Brussels were fined for not having caused some of their dard to show the Belgian colors on the National Fete Day to celebrate their independence.

Sam. Blandford A Total Wreck

As we go to press we learn from the Colonial Secretary that he has received a message stating that the S. S. Sam Blandford is a total wreck at Trepassey. On asking "What are we fighting for?" is it for the further extension of our Empire, or merely for the purpose of conquering our foes and bringing them under subjection? No! We are fighting for higher principles—the principles of Truth, Righteousness, Liberty and Justice. Germany's action two years ago, in tearing a solemn and sacred treaty that she held with Great Britain, France and Belgium, was the cause of England's entry into this War. The invasion of Belgium by the German forces, where in the mighty army of Germany endeavoured to ride roughshod over the territory of the Belgians, thereby adopting the principle that "might is right," staggered the whole World, and brought forth from Great Britain such a strong and mighty protest that started the flame that, for the last two years, has been devastating the greater portion of Europe. Great Britain recognizes the principles that the right of smaller states and nations may be graciously pleased to respect, and treaties made with them must be kept sacred. Germany's action in tearing up the "Scrap of Paper" as she termed it, was the means of bringing Great Britain into a War that she was in no wise prepared for, but she was ready, as ever, to risk everything to humble the people of Germany, but we are fighting to overthrow Prussian Militarism and for the establishment of the principles set forth, for all time to come.

The principles of Liberty and Justice must remain as the heritage of the people, and unborn generations will bless them who have kept their heritage so sacred for them. Take the case of South Africa, a country that has been in the front of the fighting since the beginning of the war. It is to be associated with a nation and a people who are struggling to sacrifice their all in support of those higher ideals. Great Britain and her noble allies are to-day pouring out their blood and treasure for the sake of the principles. Is not this a worthy cause? Can we not pray for our last drop of blood, rather than deny Britain's Watchword, "Death before Dishonor." Newfoundland's part in this great struggle is as honorable and creditable one. Her noble sons, in the Army and in the Navy, in the North Sea, on the coasts of England, in the Mediterranean, in the Dardanelles, in Gallipoli and France, have died in the defence of these great principles. Those that have made the fatal mistake of deserting their posts and remain free under the protection of the British Flag have passed beyond the Bar and wear the Victor's Crown of Glory for life, who said, "Greater love hath no man than he who lays down his life for his friends." Will surely reward those who fall in defence of Truth, Righteousness and Justice. Victory is ours! We can see the dawn appearing. A continued mighty effort will triumph that we all so confidently look forward to.

I have the honor, therefore, Mr. Mayor, to move the following resolution:—"That on this, the Second Anniversary of the declaration of a 'righteous war,' this meeting of the 'Citizens of St. John's,' records its 'inflexible determination to continue to a victorious end the struggle in maintenance of those ideals of Liberty and Justice, which are the common and sacred cause of the Allies.'"

After the applause following His Excellency's last words had died away, the most solemnly impressive part of the proceedings followed, when, the soldiers standing at attention, with bayonets fixed to their rifles, and the strains of the Dead March in Saul swelled forth. In the bright summer light and the animation of the scene, the deep sadness of the opening notes seemed almost to be mocked, until they merged and rose into the noble triumphant close which told of the passing from darkness to light, from death to the life immortal. The few short moments were alone a memorial service to the lads whose graves are in France.

The Hon. J. R. Bennett, Acting Premier, then moved the adoption of the Resolution in the following stirring speech. Both in the virility and aptness of its language and in the forceful and mastery manner of its delivery, it was calculated, as it did, to arouse his hearers to the highest pitch of enthusiasm.

Mr. Mayor, Your Excellency, My Lord, Ladies and Gentlemen: In submitting the resolution, whereby the residents of St. John's pledge themselves on this, the second anniversary of the Declaration of War between Great Britain and Germany, I might say that similar meetings are being held to-day all over Great Britain and the Dominions beyond the Seas. Likewise in all parts of Newfoundland, Britons are met together to decide with one voice their determination to carry this War through to a victorious and honourable termination.

"God Bless My Native Land."

A true man cries: "this land is mine."
"Land by the Northern sea,
Around this land my heart doth twine,
My soul's wrapped up in thee.

"This land where my forefathers toiled
Here is my heart and hand,
I loved thee since I was a child,
God bless my native land.

"This land is mine, I know no creed;
They're all the same to me;
Her sons to-day they bravely bled
In France for liberty.

"And he who'd try to separate
Man from his brother now
Deserves the coward, dastards fate
Stamped plainly on his brow.

"I love this land, her hills and dales,
Her rivers and her bays,
Her waterfalls, her scented vales,
Her woodlands and her braes.

"And when my soul is called on High,
When e'er it pleases God,
I hope they'll lay me when I die
Beneath my native sod.

"This land is mine, may Heaven smile
Upon her sex-girt strain,
And prosper her brave sons of toil,
God bless my native land."
JAMES MURPHY.

At the City Hall.

At last night's meeting of the City Council Mayor Gosling presided. W. R. Warren, K.C., on behalf of E. A. Hayward, agent for the Warren estate objected to the increase of apportionment which amounted to 50 per cent. It is too late for the Council to act, as objection should have been made when the Court of Revision was in session.

W. R. Howley, K.C., wrote suggesting that a monument be erected to perpetuate the memory of the Newfoundlanders who had fallen in defence of the Empire's cause. Mr. Howley's letter was appreciated, but already His Excellency the Governor and the Mayor have discussed the subject and something definite is about to be done.

John Bradbury, sanitary man, claimed two days' pay which was held over accidentally, he being absent owing to the death of his child. The amount will be paid.

T. J. Kennedy was given permission to repair fence on Cochrane St., subject to the Engineer's approval.

R. T. McGrath, for Jas. J. Collins, asked permission to put a fence around property on Pennywell Road. Referred to Engineer.

Jas. King's application for position as watchman at the Sanitary Stables, was filed for further consideration.

At the request of the Colonial Secretary and Minister of Fisheries, the Medical Health Officer will be given offices in the City Hall providing they are suitable.

The Sanitary Supervisor will attend to the complaint of Mr. A. Snegrove in relation to the ash cart not calling regularly.

The plans of D. Monroe for an out-house off Gower Street were referred to the Engineer.

Judge Hutchings wrote on behalf of himself and Judge Morris, that they be paid $50 each and Sergt. Oliphant $10 for work done in the revision of the list of voters for the Municipal Election. Ordered to be paid.

No action will be taken in the matter of the protest of Capt. Ell Dawe, against the extension of Patrick St.

A telegram was received from Engineer Longley in reply to a message asking for certain technical information regarding the laying of pipe at the intake of George's Pond.

The meeting adjourned at 10.30 p.m.

To Attend S.O.E. Convention.

Messrs. Theodore F. Thompson and James R. McCoubrey leave by the S. S. Stephano to-morrow afternoon to attend the annual convention of the Sons of England Benevolent Society which takes place next week at Halifax. The Society which has done excellent work recruiting throughout the Great Dominion, will, we understand, discuss various problems of a patriotic nature. After the Convention closes Mr. Thompson will go to New York on business.

"They Think It's Funny."

By RUTH CAMERON.

One of my housemates was preparing to go to a reception the other evening. As she gave her hair a final pat and drew on her gloves she scolded, "I don't want to go at all. I'm tired out, and I've got a splendid read, and I hate receptions, anyway."

"Why do you do that?"

"Oh, I told Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Winthrop I would go with them."

"They can go with each other."

"Yes, but they'll think it funny if I don't," she said. And so she went.

She went just because she was afraid.

Not because she wanted to; not because she was under any obligation to it—was a public reception and it didn't matter whether she went or not; not because anyone would be inconvenienced; but just because two women would think it funny if she didn't.

And she had a miserable time and got so completely tired out that she had a sick headache the next day.

But at least she had the satisfaction of knowing that those two women didn't think her funny.

The amount of unhappiness we cause ourselves and the amount of happiness we lose because we defer unnecessarily to other people's feelings is really appalling.

And The Child Caught More Cold.

Another woman I know of had made an engagement to attend a club tea with a group of her women friends. Two or three days beforehand her little boy came down with a light case of measles and she telephoned to break the engagement. Whereupon she scolded her for being over-conscientious and said they should be terribly upset if she didn't go. Finally she yielded, leaving the child with a nurse girl. He caught more cold, and has been sick ever since.

She has been worried over the child and she has been tied down to the house for over a month. But at least she has the satisfaction of knowing that her friends weren't hurt.

Foolish To Let Other People Live Your Life.

It is foolish to be so pig-headed, so sure of one's self, that one is never influenced by what other people think, but it is equally foolish to let other people live one's life for one.

You really know better than they what is wise and what would bring you happiness. You owe some consideration to the happiness of others, but you are not called upon to sacrifice your happiness or your best interests to the whims of others.

I bought a horse with a supposedly incurable ringbone for $30.00. Cared him with $1.00 worth of MINARD'S LINIMENT and sold him for $85. Profit on Liniment, $54.

Everyday Etiquette.

"Recently I called on a neighbour and she was not at home. Should I call on her again before she comes to see me?" asked John.

"It is not necessary for you to call again because your neighbor was not at home; you have fulfilled your obligation and it is her turn to call on you," answered his uncle.

Speaking of Beverages!

Here's to the friend of the thirsty! The best and most refreshing drink you can obtain is a good, honest, always-the-same Tea like HOMESTEAD.

James Withcomb Riley

Oh, the children's choir is singin' an' the stars are swingin' bright, An' the heavenly bells are ringin' through the crystal caves o' night, An' the little cherub faces are aglow with happy love.

'Case the angels came from Heaven an' they're takin' him above. They are mountin' with him gladly to the very feet o' God, While on earth we're cryin' sadly o'er a little mound o' sod; For our Little Orphan Annie is a true 'nough orphan now.

An' the birds what sung for Riley are a weepin' on the bough. There's a lot o' young hearts thrillin' to a little song I know, An' a lot o' old eyes fillin' with that tender backward glow, An' the song is one o' happiness an' tender thoughts an' fine— Oh, you've choked a bit, I reckon, o'er "An Old Sweetheart of Mine."

The years have long been hangin' in the cupboard o' the past, Yet the old days come a-twangin' on my memory thick an' fast, An' they're happiest at bedtime, when I'm turnin' down the light— For I find myself a boy, again—an' "Seem' Things at Night."

They are mountin' with him gladly to the very feet o' God, While on earth we're cryin' sadly o'er a little mound o' sod; For our Little Orphan Annie is a true 'nough orphan now. An' the birds what sung for Riley are a weepin' on the bough.

LOUIS WEITZENKORN AT THE CRESCENT.

The programme presented at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day is a very fine one of the best week-end shows in a long while. Maurice Costello and Leah Baird are presented in "The Goda Redem" a story of reformed crooks produced by the Vitagraph Company in two reels. "The Desert Calls Its Own" is a strong western feature. "Locked In" is a thrilling melodrama by the Selig Company, and "Count Em" is a lively Vitagraph Comedy featuring Hughie Mack and Anita Stewart. The musical programme played by Professor McCarthy for this big show is all new and classy.

Hr. Grace Notes.

The sad news reached here to-day that Pte. Stephen Fallon, son of Mr. John Fallon, of Hr. Grace, had been killed in action. His brother Private Luke Fallon is also in France with the Regiment. The family have the sympathy of the whole community in their great loss.

Rev. Mr. Higgit received a message this afternoon conveying the sad news that Private Leonard Shoppard, also of Hr. Grace, was seriously ill from wounds received while in action.

A down pour of rain came on yesterday afternoon and made it very uncomfortable for the many who had gathered at St. Paul's Rectory grounds to the Garden Party. But the party repaired to St. Paul's Hall where a very pleasant evening was spent.

Mr. M. Kennedy, son of Mr. C. L. Kennedy, sr., is here from the United States on a visit to his father, who we regret to say, is in poor health.

The s.s. Mary arrived from Bell Island this afternoon and is now on dock for repairs.

Mrs. John Heater left for St. John's a few days ago to enter hospital for treatment.

Mrs. Hedley Parsons and two children and Miss B. Wood are leaving to-day for Grand Bank, after a pleasant visit spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Selby Parsons, here.

The Herald, a few days ago referred to some "snaps" appearing in the London Daily Mail of July 14th, and recognizes some of them. In that same paper we recognize one of our Harbor Grace boys, who can smile with the rest after his terrible experience in France on the memorable July 1st—Private Thomas B. McGrath, son of the late Thomas McGrath, railway engineer. Tom is well known in St. John's, and to the Messrs. Reid with whom he worked before enlisting. We are glad to say Tom is only slightly wounded. The bullet entered his left shoulder, and touching the bone glanced down and came out two inches down his back. He is now in the 3rd London General Hospital, and doing well, according to a letter received from him by his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Thomey (H.M.C.), a few days ago.

Capt. J. J. O'Grady, accompanied by Mrs. O'Grady and their little daughter Mary, arrived by train yesterday on a few days' visit to friends here. They return to St. John's to-morrow.

Mrs. (Sergt.) James Kent, of Placentia, is in town visiting her sister, Mrs. E. Scanlan, who has been sick for some time, and another sister, Mrs. John Griffin. All their friends are pleased to see Mrs. Kent in town again.

The excursion train from St. John's to Carbonear, passed through this town at 10.40 this forenoon.

The s.s. Bloodhound, having finished discharging her coal, left this forenoon for Sydney.

LONDON, July 17th, 1916.

PRINCE JOHN.

The King's youngest son was eleven on July 12th. Many are the stories told about his escapades. He seems to be something of a pickle, as a boy should be. Not very long since, so it is said, Prince John happened to be at Buckingham Palace without his Royal parents, and a desire to visit a theatre "on his own" took possession of him. He went to the telephone and rang up a certain management, and inquired whether "His Royal Highness Prince John can have a box." Needless to say the box was promised, but great was the amazement of the manager and staff, waiting in the lobby to receive, as they thought, the youthful prince and his suite, when a taxi drew up at the door and a small boy, entirely alone, entered the theatre and asked for Prince John's box. Meanwhile there was consternation at the Palace at the Prince's disappearance.

A JELICOE STORY.

Jellicoe stories are rare. Here is one—though the Admiral, as usual, plays a silent part in it. On a visit ashore, Sir John, in mufti, attended a luncheon party. Another guest was a young Midddy, wounded at the Danellis, and just out of hospital. To save the boy embarrassment, Sir John asked his hostess not to say whom he was lunching with. "What will you do now?" asked the hostess of the midddy. "I don't know," he replied; "I suppose I'll have to mooch about the North Sea with that slacker Jellicoe."

JUTLAND BATTLE FILM.

The cinematograph has played an important part already in bringing home to the general public some of the outstanding spectacular incidents of the war, but its all has seldom been enlisted to better purpose than in the production of a film representation of the story of the naval battle of Jutland, a private view of which is to be given shortly. The basis of the film will be the account of the battle as given in Sir John Jellicoe's despatch, arranged under the direction of Edgar Wallace. The difficulty of obtaining a realistic setting has been ingeniously overcome, the Admiralty having given their permission for the construction of exact models of the principal ships, British and German, which took part in the engagement. Eighty of these models, executed by the most skillful model-makers, have been made, and no effort has been spared to convey as far as possible an approximately accurate picture of the movements of the fleets in the great battle.

THE THEATRICAL GARDEN PARTY.

The theatrical garden party at the Royal Botanic Gardens was more crowded this year than ever. The side-shows were overflowing. Laurel de Frece, in a superb suit of pearls, was in charge of the "Salvoes"—a polite form of cocoanut shies—in the Vale of Happiness, with two pretty girls as attendant "donahs." In the sports enclosure Sir George Alexander criticised the play of the skittles competitors and Sir Frank Benson made a lively affair of the exasperating scent-guessing competition. The season's chief girl favorites worked hard as saleswomen. The crowd was conspicuously less feminine than those one usually sees nowadays, and though there were hosts of pretty girls and much notable millinery one noticed that the frocks, though smart, were war-time frocks. Everywhere there were soldiers—large parties of wounded had been brought from the hospitals—and outside the theatre where Gerald Du Maurier, with Mrs. Patrick Campbell, H. B. Irving, and Henry Ainley, was presenting "Grand Giggle," or the entertainments given by all the stars of the Halls, newspaper sellers were displaying posters with "British Retake" Contaimaison. Several of the wounded had been in the fight near Albert. One of them was a gunner who had spent the first two days of the engagement at his gun reading the story of its progress in the orders of shifting range that came to him.

THE QUEEN AND PAINTED FURNITURE.

The Queen is much interested in the new painted furniture—an eighteenth century revival which we owe to Lady Kinloch, who has found this very practical method of helping artists badly hit by the war. As a result of her visit on July 12th to Lady Kinloch's studio, where the Queen greatly admired several pieces of furniture painted with floral scrolls, pastoral scenes, etc. Her Majesty has decided to have one of the rooms at Windsor Castle decorated in the new-old way. A sitting-room used by the Maids of Honor has been selected by the Queen for this purpose and the existing furniture is being sent up to Lady Kinloch in order that artists may decorate it after the fashion of the eighteenth century. Another well-known admirer of the new painted furniture is Lord Shackleton, of Canadian Pacific Railway fame, and a bedroom suite painted to his order is now on its way to Canada. Although quite in its infancy, the new art industry appears to have a very promising future. Apart from its artistic beauty—the painting of course reflects the style of the particular artist entrusted with the decoration—it is a thoroughly practical method of helping these members of the art world whose orders for pictures have fallen off in these economizing times.

GUNFIRE AND RAINFALL.

If those who suggest that the rains which have fallen practically all over the United Kingdom have been caused by the thunder of the big guns at the front in France and Flanders desire definite evidence to the contrary it would be found in the fact that the latest telegrams from Canada and the United States show that the weather over a large area of North America is quite as adverse as in Europe. More serious questions are likely to arise, however, than mere speculations on what causes the heavy rainfall, as the world's harvests for the coming season are gravely affected. Owing to the weather harvests prospects are very poor in this country. If the forthcoming crops of Canada and the United States were to furnish a good yield the inhabitants of the United Kingdom would not greatly suffer, but these crops do not show any likelihood of furnishing nearly as large a yield as usual.

THE SUPREME CALL TO LABOR.

British Labor Members of Parliament think that no real trouble will arise over the suspension of the August Bank Holiday, though they and everyone else recognise that the request for continuous work is a heavy one to tired men. It cannot be popular, but at the same time no large body of men are likely to resist it while they see the offensive continuing, as the Premier indicated that it must continue, and with our munitions output—as Lloyd George reveals it to be—still only one-third of what we hope to achieve. French and British messages from the front warn us that the Western offensive now approaches its second stage—a critical one—and the munition workers of the country have to see to it that our resources are kept up till the Allies get through the German permanent works. Once through these, we may be sure that our men will never give "Frits" time to dig another line, 20-foot deep dugouts with hoists for machine guns. Indeed, our wounded

Incandescent Gas Lighting.

Possibly, the feature of incandescent gas lighting most frequently noted by casual observers is the great ease with which tasks, ordinarily arduous under artificial light may be performed under the Welsbach gas mantle. The light has a peculiarly "soft" quality, difficult to describe, but which is readily recognized by those who have had experience with the gas mantle lamp.

In its general effect upon bodily health and comfort, the use of incandescent gas lighting is decidedly favorable. The currents of air set up by the burning gas improves ventilation, tending to expel the air vitiated by respiration and draw in fresh air to replace it. Harmful or dangerous disease germs are instantly destroyed in the flame. The extent to which this effect takes place may be verified by placing a gas lamp close to a ceiling without any provision for interfering with the up-rushing air currents. The charred particles which collect immediately above the lamp are the remains of dust particles which before passing through the flames were laden with germs and microbes. Actual experiments have shown that the burning of gas lamps in rooms previously containing bacteria, resulted in absolute sterilization of the air. Contrary to the popular notion the temperature of rooms lighted by incandescent gas lamps is seldom markedly greater than under incandescent electric light, even under unfavorable conditions of ventilation, while in rooms provided with ventilating facilities required by the demands of hygiene, the temperature in gas-lighted rooms is frequently lower.

men in hospital here are convinced that the Germans have no line comparable in strength with the trench system we now have demolished and carried.

LADIES OF CULTURE AND REFINEMENT USE SALVIA HAIR TONIC. IT MAKES HAIR BEAUTIFUL.

At last a remedy has been discovered that will positively destroy the Pest Dandruff. That Dandruff is caused by germs is accepted by every sensible person. Dandruff is the root of all hair evils. SALVIA will kill the dandruff germs and remove dandruff in ten days, or money back. The manufacturer guarantees it. It will grow hair, stop itching scalp, falling hair, and make the hair thick and abundant. It prevents hair from turning grey, and adds life and lustre. SALVIA is a hair dressing that has become the favorite with women of taste and culture, who know the social value of beautiful hair. A large, generous bottle costs only 50c. leading druggists everywhere. The word "SALVIA" is on every bottle.

LOYALTY.

Johnson says that Jones is wrong, and swears that he can prove it; but my belief in Jones is strong, and my tales can't move it. I have much confidence in Jones, who is a goodly fellow, and I would lend him seven bones without a kick or bellow. My neighbors come to me and say, "Jones is a low down sinner; he carried off a sack of hay," that we had bought for dinner." But I believe that Jones is right, as honest as the dickens, and I would trust him any night, around my coop of chickens. I fill my beaker to the brim with butter-milk, and toast him, for I will not go back on him because the neighbors roast him. My friends and comrades I select, without the town's assistance; and if some gent don't seem correct, I keep them at a distance. And if I find a friend O.K., I will not shake or flout him for anything the neighbors say, for yarns they tell about him.

A Chivalrous Enemy.

New York Telegram:—Warm praise is given by the British troops and press to the Third Prussian Guard for its heroic defence of Ovillers. The men had long been in a hopeless position. They were living in a charnel house, strewn with dead comrades and wounded, delirious for lack of drink. Human nature could no longer make resistance, and at last the officers raised the signal of surrender, and came over with 140 men. The fighting had been savage. But now, when all was ended, the last of the German garrison received the honors of war, and, says the London Daily Telegraph correspondent, "none of our soldiers deny them the respect due to great courage." Prussian militarists can go on chanting their hymn of hate and "natural" spoken cretaries at headquarters here can insult others present by insisting there is no such thing as an Anglo-Saxon race, but there is, and when these brave men stood face to face it was proven. "Kaiser and Junker, Lord and Lout, what is bred in the bone must surely come out." And it does. From the one race Chivalry, from the other the appalling thing called Kultur.

FRIDAY, August 4th, 1916.

The Third Year.

On Tuesday the war entered upon its third year: to-day we celebrate the anniversary of England's declaration of war upon Germany. That is the superficial aspect of it. What we really celebrate is the salvation of Empire—many will say of the whole civilized world. For the Allied cause was won and Germany's fate the moment Great Britain entered the war on the side of Russia, France and Belgium. There is no need to imagine what would have happened had she stayed aloof: we can guess, and the picture is not a nice one to look upon. We can see now, far more clearly than we could see then, what Britain's participation really meant and we can faintly foresee what it will yet mean. After the violation of Belgium, that participation was as natural and inevitable to us as to Germany it was unexpected and inexplicable. Least of all her antagonists in a military sense, and not counted primarily by her among her antagonists at all, England opposed her will to Germany's in a quarrel which concerned less her interests than her honour. By so doing she saved Europe from a peril of which only the bitter experiences of these two years of bloodshed have suggested the magnitude. Let us remember that fact to-day, and at all times when criticism of the great mother country rises to our lips. All will remember that August day two years ago. Many will recall the stirring words which His Excellency spoke to the multitude that thronged the shores of Quilid Yild Lake on our last regatta day. "They have been asking for it, and now they are going to get it!" The words sum up the situation in a sentence. It was Great Britain that Germany aimed at. The way to her was to lie over the prostrate body of France with Russia crushed into harmless submission. But Great Britain did not wait for Germany: she went to meet her. That was Great Britain's way. And that was her policy in Germany's eyes. She broke faith, not with her own word and honour, but with the expectations that Germany had built upon her peaceful spirit and unpreparedness. The famous hate is not without its reason. Last year, the Empire celebrated the day to record its unyielding determination to fight on, but little more. It was, in fact, our darkest hour. We were supreme, it is true, on sea. But on land France and Britain were held and seemed powerless. Neve Chapelle was a great failure and disclosed the terrible weakness of our state. Champagne was destined in another month to be an equal failure. The Dardanelles adventure had before then, to those that knew, failed also. Russia was being hurled back headlong and it seemed that nothing could save her armies from the jaws of our eyes that we could await, but could not see, the dawn. This year we celebrate the same determination, but there is not merely hope but exultation mingled with it. Our leaders, military and civilian, tell us that perseverance and time are alone necessary to consummate complete victory. Britain and France are bearing back step by step the erstwhile invincible enemy, overwhelming her with an avalanche of artillery more huge and more continuous than we could have thought possible. Russia has come back, with a vengeance. Italy is repelling a dispirited invader who seems unable to offer resistance, and has wrested from him his last Italian conquest of three months ago. Turkey has been stripped of Armenia, and Serbia has just begun her revenge upon Bulgaria. Germany is not yet defeated, far from it, but her defeat is foreshadowed and made inevitable in the passing of the initiative from her to her enemies on every side. She is in the state of a besieged city, and a besieged city is doomed from the moment it is apparent that no relief can come from without.

While we may thus maintain our determination with higher hope in our hearts and higher prospects before our eyes than we could feel or see last year, it has for us here at home an added meaning, or one that we had not yet known the bitter experiences of war which more than anything else has steeled the hearts and fixed the resolve of the rest of the Empire. We have had it now. The glorious 1st of July united all Newfoundland in pride and sorrow; the memory of it will unite us in the steadfast resolutions which we have to-day recorded. We record them with reverence for the ideals which are our cause, with loyalty to the mother country, with affectionate comradeship with the other dominions of the Empire and with a proud and grateful remembrance of those who were chosen to play our part and gave their lives that they might play it.

BALFOUR REVIEWS NAVAL SITUATION. LONDON, To-Day. First Lord of the Admiralty, Balfour has issued a statement for publication, in the course of which he says: "The second anniversary of the British Declaration of War provides a fitting opportunity for a brief survey of the present naval situation. Consequences of the material and moral effect of the Jutland battle cannot be easily overlooked. An Allied diplomatist assured me that he considered the turning point of the war, which had long ceased to help our enemies, began from that moment and flows strongly in our favor. This much, at least, is true, that every week which has passed since the German fleet was driven damaged into port has seen new successes for the Allies in one part or another of the field operations. It would be an error, however, to suppose that the violation of Belgium, that participation was as natural and inevitable to us as to Germany it was unexpected and inexplicable. Least of all her antagonists in a military sense, and not counted primarily by her among her antagonists at all, England opposed her will to Germany's in a quarrel which concerned less her interests than her honour. By so doing she saved Europe from a peril of which only the bitter experiences of these two years of bloodshed have suggested the magnitude. TREATY TERMINATED BETWEEN ITALY AND GERMANY. AMSTERDAM, To-Day. A despatch from Berlin says Italy has given notice to Germany of the termination of the German-Italian commercial treaty of 1911, which would have expired at the end of 1917. A despatch from Paris says the existence of the treaty was the only reason which had prevented Germany from declaring war on Italy.

BULGARIANS ATTEMPT TO SEIZE ROMANIAN ISLAND. LONDON, To-Day. An attempt by Bulgarian soldiers to seize an island in Roumanian waters on the Danube River, close to the town of Clujewo, has caused a sensation here, according to reports received by the Bucharest newspapers. Roumanian frontier guards discovered the Bulgarians and gave the alarm. After a lively exchange of shots the Bulgarians fled.

1.30 P.M.

BRITISH OFFICIAL. LONDON, To-Day. A British official at midnight reads: North of Zaganin Le Pete we gained some ground by a bombing attack. During the night the enemy sent four strong detachments towards the Delville Wood, which we allowed to approach at close range before we opened fire; all were repulsed with heavy losses. At one place 50 of the enemy were caught in massed formation by our machine gun fire, and our artillery bombarded the enemy at a strong point between Pozieres and Thiepval, and the garrison fleeing across the open came under our field gun fire. Yesterday we caused an explosion at Courcellette. Throughout the day the enemy's artillery maintained a barrage fire west and southwest of Longueval, Mametz and Caterpillar Wood intermittently. Further north we shelled the villages near Arras and Armentieres, dropped bombs on the outskirts of some villages with some damage. In Ghiverny district we bombarded the enemy lines near Hohenzollern in Loos salient, and there was considerable trench mortar activity on both sides. Two enemy aeroplanes were brought down on the northern section of our line, one of which seems to be of a new pattern. Three of our machines were brought down by gun fire.

SUBMARINE WORK. LONDON, To-Day. Lloyd's report the following vessels sunk: Steamers Baron Oscar, Swedish, 280 tons, fate of crew unknown; steamer Vermine, Swedish, 360 tons, the fate of crew unknown; steamer John Wilson, Norwegian, 777 tons, the crew saved; brigantine Margaret Sutton, British, 197 tons, the crew saved, and several trawlers also sunk.

COOPENHAGEN, To-Day. Politiken reports the Danish steamer Katholin, 1201 tons, sunk by German submarine in the Mediterranean, the crew were saved.

Meigle Back From Labrador.

The S. S. Meigle, Capt. Tavernor, reached port at 8 o'clock this morning from the Labrador mail service, having gone as far north as Hopedale, the run being made under favorable conditions with the exception of last Sunday and Wednesday, when on the former day strong E. N. E. winds with rain and fog prevented the ship from making much headway, and on Wednesday the ship was prevented from calling at Twillingate owing to the rough running sea. The captain reports no improvement in the Labrador fishery and that most of the floaters have gone north of Hopedale. The Meigle passed several schooners coming south well fished, mostly those that reached the coast early in the season. Mr. Nelson Sparks, of Alexander Bay, has his schooner filled to the hatches with 50 quintals on deck but was forced to return home for salt. The schooner Gem and Mack, owned by Mr. Baxter Barry, of the same place, reports for 1,800 qts. Mr. Wm. Sampson, of Flat Islands, needs about 70 qts. to complete his cargo. The Meigle will leave to-day for Sydney where she will load coal for Placentia before leaving for the next trip to the Labrador.

CRUISERS STILL PATROL HAMPTON ROADS. NORFOLK, To-Day. The Allied cruisers patrolling the entrance to Hampton Roads still were in a position within sight of the shore during to-day. There was nothing to report from the German side of the passage of the Deutschland out through the Capes last night.

LONDON, To-Day. An official statement issued from the Press Bureau to-night on the Casement execution says the Government carefully and repeatedly considered all the circumstances of the Casement case before reaching a decision not to interfere with the sentence. It said he was convicted and punished for treachery of the worst kind against the Empire. He had served as a willing agent of Germany. After declaring that Casement organized German assistance for a fresh rebellion, the statement continues, conclusive evidence has come into the hands of the Government since the trial that he had entered into an agreement with the German Government which explicitly provided a brigade which he was trying to raise among the Irish soldiers held as prisoners, might be employed in Egypt against the British Crown. Those among the Irish soldiers who resisted Casement's solicitations of disloyalty were subjected to a treatment of exceptional cruelty by the Germans. Some of them had since been exchanged as invalids and have died in this country, regarding Casement as their murderer. In conclusion the statement points out that the plea of insanity was not raised at the trial.

Naval Reservists on Furlough.

Reservist Henry Dearing Invalided.
By the express which reached town at 4 p.m. yesterday five Royal Naval Reservists returned to the city after an absence of close on two years, and are as follows:—Richard Rodgers and Michael Emberly, City; Z. Fowlow, Trinity East; Henry Dearing, Shearstown, Bay Roberts; and John C. Butt (2) Bay of Islands.
The Reservists were accompanied by two regular service men, a Petty Officer and a Marine, who have been transferred to H. M. S. Briton.
Reservist Richard Rodgers was the first to enlist after war had been declared and joined H. M. S. Calypso the day previous to Commander MacDermott's proclamation calling the Reservists to the colors. Leaving here with the first contingent he has had some trying experiences and is now home again on a brief furlough.
Reservist Michael Emberly, brother of Constable Patrick Emberly, was himself a member of the police force when war began, and prior to that was an ex-Navy man. Leaving here at the same time as Reservist Rodgers he has also had some trying experiences.
Reservist Z. Fowlow comes from the old fighting stock of Trinity, and after two years battling with the enemy and the storm-tossed seas he is home on a brief furlough.
Reservist Henry Dearing, another of the boys in blue to leave here at the beginning of the war, is now invalided home, suffering from the effects of three hours in the icy waters of the North Sea. It happened that on the morning of April 10th the H. M. S. Hilary captured a Danish boat which was attempting to run the blockade. She was about to be taken to the Orkney Islands when on the evening of the next day she was sunk by a German submarine, resulting in the loss of several British sailors and a large number of Danes. Dearing has received from the Admiralty his honourable discharge after spending a couple of months in hospital at Devonport. We hope and trust the gallant sailor will soon be restored to health.
Reservist J. C. Butt (2) is a time expired man and has returned home with the intention of joining the Regiment.
At the station the men were met by the Women's Patriotic Association and were driven in motor to Government House where His Excellency the Governor extended to them a hearty welcome home.

McMurdo's Store News
FRIDAY, Aug. 4, 1916.
Woodbury's Facial Cream has long made its name in Canada and the United States, as one of the quickest and most potent remedies for sunburn, tan, and the effects of sun and wind on face, neck, hands and lips. It is making its reputation in St. John's for the same purpose. Price 35c a bottle.
Dr. Chaso's goods—Nerve Food, Ointment, Kidney Liver Pills, and Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine—have lately arrived to us, and are on sale at the usual prices.

Returning Veterans.
By the cross-country train due tomorrow afternoon, some twenty-odd officers and soldiers of the Nfd. Regiment will arrive home invalided and on sick furlough. Some are battle scarred heroes. Amongst them is Private W. J. Gladney, D.C.M., of Galtopoli fame and who is medically unfit for further active service. No doubt the returning veterans will be accorded a whole-hearted reception by the citizens of St. John's.

Personal.
Miss Ruby Tessier, nurse at Western Hospital, Montreal, arrived here by yesterday's express on a visit to her mother, Mrs. C. Tessier.
Miss Lena Wilson, who had been studying medicine at Edinburgh University, returned home by last evening's express on a visit.
Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Carter were passengers by the Stephano yesterday.
Mr. J. M. Devine, who had been visiting the United States markets purchasing goods for a new concern to be opened up here shortly, arrived back by the Stephano yesterday.

SPECIAL TO FORD CAR OWNERS—Just received a shipment of Nathan Detachable Seat Covers and Genuine Mohair One-man Tops for Ford Cars. GENERAL MOTOR SUPPLY CO., Geo. M. Barr.—July 24th

A fish that is to be boiled will be improved if it is placed in a dish containing melted butter, and allowed to stand for an hour before boiling.
After boiling salt beef leave two or three carrots in the liquor until cold. The carrots will absorb the salt and the liquor can be used for soup.
