FOR SALE.

Valuable Freehold Timber and Farm Land.

At the office of the undersigned, on Thursday next, 24th inst., at 12 o'clock noon, that large piece of land situate at Maher's Sliding, on the Reid Newfoundland Railway, and being only 3 miles from Brigus Junction, belonging to the Estate of the late Sir W. V. Whiteway.

This splendid tract of land comprises 8 square miles—4 of which being on each side of the track—and as the railway runs through the centre, is easy of access, and has some splendid stretches of birches and spruce thereon—the birches on one side, and the spruce and fir on the other.

It is also an ideal spot for farming, and there would be no trouble experienced in loading produce, as there is a siding where cars can be loaded at ease.

Another desirable feature in connection with the property is that the party buying same would be the SOLE owner of all waters on the land, thereby excluding all fishing and shooting over same without license. There is good fishing in the ponds and runs which abound on same.

Above property will be sold in two lots if so desired.

CHAPTER XXXI.
A STOLEN KISS.

"And sitting best a sick man in a solitary but neither," said Laury, nodding. "I'm a bad hand at speech making, lad, or I'd tell you something of my gratitude."

"A good thing you are," retorted Cecil; "for I hate talkative men. Now I'm going to water the horses, and you had best get a nap."

But Laurence shook his head and, as soon as Cecil had gone, proceeded to pack the skins, including the antelope's which the youth had shot, and prepared for the return trip.

When Cecil came back he found Laurence waiting at the door with saddles ready for slipping on and the 'las tied up.

"What now?" he asked.

"Home," said Laurence, resolutely. "Not a word, Cecil! I am quite recovered and determined."

Cecil, seeing that remonstrance would be useless, helped saddle the horses, and the two stood at the door while Laurence fastened them.

Before he closed it he looked in with a strange smile.

"The little den looks cheery, lad. I shall always like it after this." And he sighed.

Cecil turned rather pale and sighed, too.

"Yes, we have not been altogether unhappy, Laury—you and I—and I am rather sorry to say good-bye to the den," as you call it.

And they mounted and, with the horses fresh and eager for a scamper after their long rest, set off for the big gallop toward home.

A change came over them both as they came near the farm.

The old cloud loomed and settled on Laurence's brow; the old, stern, reserved expression grew about his eyes.

Cecil, glancing at his face, grew silent and almost sad, and thus speech-

BILIOUS headache spoils many an expected enjoyment.

When the condition of the liver is neglected, biliousness seems to become chronic and recurs every two or three weeks, with severe sick headaches.

Why not get right after this trouble and end it by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to restore the health and activity of the liver.

Constipation, indigestion, back-ache, headache, biliousness and kidney derangements soon disappear with the use of this well-known medicine.

lessly they rode up to the door of the station.

"Hello!" said Mr. Stewart, staring with a relieved smile. "Where have you been to? And"—with a look of astonishment as he saw the scar upon Laurence's forehead—"and what in the name of thunder have you been up to?"

Laurence frowned.

He disliked demonstrativeness, especially when displayed upon his account.

"We have had a tussle," he said; "a mere nothing, in which I alone, I am glad to say, was scratched."

"Oh, that's all, is it?" said Mr. Stewart. "Well, I'm glad it's no worse. You look all the better for the trip, Cecy," he added, as the lad dismounted.

"I'm glad of it," said Cecil. "I feel all the better, and so will the books, I hope."

"Ain't you coming in, Laurence?" asked Mr. Stewart, seeing that Laurence did not offer to dismount, and had thrown the skins to one of the negroes.

Laurence shook his head.

"No, thanks," he said. "I will go and see who has next run and join in."

Cecil turned back when he saw Laurence was not following, and caught the last words.

He turned crimson and caught the settler's arm.

"Don't let him—oh, don't let him!" he whispered, eagerly. "He's been ill, very ill; down with fever; and—pray don't let him go!"

Mr. Stewart looked down at his anxious and troubled face with a sharp laugh.

"Don't let him, by George! I should like to know whose to prevent him if he's taken it into his head to go. Here, you go and try." And he jerked his head toward the door.

Cecil ran down the stairs, but turned again with a cry of vexation.

Laurence had already reached the stables.

We have said Laurence was a favorite with the runners, but popularity is the veriest straw, as every one knows, and the wind that lifts it, dancing joyously to the heavens, may swove round and drive it, broken and crushed, into the roadside dust-heap.

Laurence's popularity was on the wane.

The runners, who had been at first rather pleased with his grim taciturnity and reserve, were growing tired or dissatisfied at it.

Several of them, led on by Tim—who had never forgiven him the affair of the race—still growled in their beards at his coldness and stand-offishness and, with a curse at his pride, asked each other who he was to show such airs.

A small flame is easily fanned into a blaze.

From grumbling and growling at his pride, as they called it, they persuaded themselves into the belief that they were much wounded and hurt at the evident favoritism Mr. Stewart displayed for the suddenly obnoxious Laury.

"Who was he that he should be thought such a tarnation deal of? He was no better than the rest of them. He was paid like the others to do his work, and he ought to do it. Suppose any of them," growled Tim, with malignant indignation—"suppose any of them took to galavantin' across the runs for a week at a time what 'd the gov'nor say to 't? Why, they'd hear of it, sharp, and get it hot into the bargain. But here was this chap allus doin' what he pleased, shootin' and trappin' fur, and reg'lar galavantin' about as if he was master. We ain't agoin' to stand it—leastways, I ain't," said Tim, viciously.

And thus challenged, the others, like a flock of sheep, declared that they would not either, and they went about the farm or on the runs with black looks, their hands fidgeting at their knives, airing their imaginary grievances after their own choice and amiable manner.

A group of them, Tim among the number, was in the stables as Laurence entered.

He was accustomed to a hearty greeting, and rather feared and expected a volley of questions, but to his surprise they fell into a dead silence as he entered, and—beyond dark and anything but friendly glances—took no notice.

He hid them good-even.

One of them growled out something in reply, the rest remained silent.

He sent a sharp, scrutinizing look at the calcontents, and then, without the slightest change of countenance, led the black into his stall and get to grooming and feeding him as usual.

The men, after a few minutes, walked out and, growling among themselves, disappeared behind the trees.

When he had finished with the black, Laurence made his way to the house, and found Mr. Stewart in the long room with a cigar in his mouth, as usual.

"Ah, so you haven't started!" he said. "Sensible for once in a way. Supper's over, but they're getting a bit for you and Cecil."

Laurence thanked him.

"I'll get a crust of bread from Martha as I pass through, sir," he said. "I may as well be off."

"What in the world are you in such a hurry for?" asked Mr. Stewart, testily.

"I am in no hurry," said Laurence, quietly. "You forget I have had four days' holiday."

"Which you are welcome to," said the settler, "and you know it."

"I know it, and am grateful," said Laurence. "Can you tell me the next run?" I meant to ask at the stables, but the men seem to have caught a tongue fever. I got no good-night from them."

"Ah!" said the settler, looking troubled. "What's the matter with them, Larry, do you know?"

Laurence shook his head indifferently.

"They have been like a set of bears with sore heads for the last few days. That Tim's been slouching and growling about. I don't know what ail's 'em."

"Nor I," said Laurence. "Has anything happened here since I have been away?"

"No, nothing," said the settler. "Nothing whatever—at least, that I know of. To tell you the truth, Larry," he continued, hesitatingly, and eyeing Laurence askance, "I fancy they have a grudge or grievance against you."

Laurence frowned and drew himself up.

"I think you must be mistaken," he said. "I know of no cause for either. Against me? I see little of any of them and avoid all."

"That's it," muttered the old man, inaudibly, but added aloud: "Well, I can't make it out, and I suppose it wouldn't be much use if I could. You'll take care of yourself, I know."

Laurence smiled grimly.

"Yes," he said, simply.

"And so shall I," said the old man, touching his revolver, with a sharp laugh. "Not that they've quarrelled with me," he added, quickly; "but it's as well to be prepared. These boys are not sucking doves or spring lambs."

Laurence made no reply, save to ask the route, and receiving it bid his master good-night.

Half an hour afterward he rode away, passing a group at the trees, which cast a volley of black looks after him.

Republican Party Approves Referendum.

Presidential Candidate Harding Makes Statement -- British Navy Watching Turks--"Irish Republic" Funds Gone Astray--The Record of Samuel Gompers--Villa's Soldiers Butchers Women.

HARDING'S FIRST PRONOUNCEMENT.

WASHINGTON, June 18. President Wilson's challenge to present the Peace Treaty to a referendum of the American people was accepted to-day by Senator Harding, Republican Presidential candidate. "I am sure," said Senator Harding, "The Republican Party will gladly welcome a referendum on the question of foreign relationship of this Republic, and the Republican attitude of preserved nationality will be overwhelmingly endorsed." Senator Harding's statement was in reply to an interview with President Wilson, published to-day, in which the President discussed the League of Nations issue with the Republican platform.

McADOO NOT A CANDIDATE.

WASHINGTON, June 18. William McAdoo, son-in-law of President Wilson, who has been considered by Party leaders as one of the principal candidates for the Democratic Presidential nomination, announced to-night that he could not permit his name to go before the San Francisco convention.

THE WATCHFUL FLEET.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 18. British troops which are confronted by Turkish Nationalist forces on the Imdid Peninsula in Asia Minor, southeast of Constantinople, are well instructed and well supported by a British fleet in the Gulf of Imdid and Bosphorus. For this reason no apprehension is felt that the Nationalists will attack the city. Nationalist aeroplanes are dropping bombs on British trenches for the evident purpose of goading the British to an engagement, but while the British are sending reinforcements to Imdid, there is apparently another disposition on their part to avoid fighting if possible.

GOMPERS RE-ELECTED.

MONTREAL, June 18. Samuel Gompers, veteran President of the American Federation of Labor was unanimously re-elected for the thirty-ninth time here to-day by the fourth annual convention of the federation.

KNOCKING DE VALERA.

NEW YORK, June 18. Charges were made and published yesterday by John Devoey, editor of the Gaelic American, that fifty thousand dollars of money subscribed for "Irish Republic" bonds, had been used to send to Chicago a nondescript aggregation of individuals. Eamon De Valera, self-styled "President of the Irish Republic," is held accountable by Devoey for this upset of plans. The New York World says the publication of the charges marks an open break between De Valera and of Irish freedom and the friends of Irish freedom.

ANOTHER WILSON VETO.

WASHINGTON, June 18. The Underwood resolution, providing for negotiations with the Canadian Government or Provincial Governments of Quebec and New Brunswick relative to the embargo on shipment of wood pulp to the United States, failed to receive the President's approval, it was announced to-day.

LOOKS BAD FOR SALT.

CADIZ, June 18. The strike of longshoremen, which began yesterday, threatens food famine here. Cargoes of wheat from the Argentine are held up in port by the strike.

BANDIT AND DEVEL.

MEXICO CITY, June 18. Three hundred women camp followers, attached to government forces, have been killed by orders of Francisco Villa, the bandit, according to El Democrita, to-day, quoting Jacinto Trueba, a wealthy merchant of Jimenez, State of Chihuahua. The Excelsior prints a similar story, but does not give the source of its information. According to Trueba, Villa captured the women during an encounter with a regiment of de facto cavalry between Parral and Jimenez. He ordered the women lined up for review to see whether any were soldiers masquerading. One woman shot twice at Villa but missed. Unable to learn which one attacked him, Villa ordered all women herded together and shot down.

A SUGAR ROBBER.

PITTSBURG, June 18. J. J. Ghehrst, an official of the Standard Sugar Co., was to-day sentenced to pay a fine of one thousand dollars for profiteering in sugar.

WHISKEY AND MURDER.

HANOVER, N.S., June 18. The killing of Henry Maroney, a Dartmouth College senior, by Robert Meads, a fellow student, in a quarrel over whiskey, which Meads kept for sale, according to the college authorities, has led to the disclosure that a group of undergraduates have been systematically smuggling whiskey from Montreal for the past two months. Meads' father, A. H. Meads, a corporation lawyer of Chicago, went to Woodville to-day to visit his son at college and to discuss with him the preparation of defense against the charge of murder, on which he is awaiting action by the September Grand Jury. The story of the whiskey smuggling, according to college authorities, runs back about three months. At that time Meads, according to the story, started week-end trips to Montreal, returning with whiskey hidden in suit cases strapped to the brake rods of trains or carried in disguised containers.

SINN FEIN COURTS.

LONDON, June 18. Forty-one Sinn Fein courts were operating in twenty-four Irish counties during the first thirteen days of June, and during that period 84 persons were placed under arrest, according to a Dublin despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company, which says Sinn Fein headquarters has issued a report on the workings of these tribunals.

RUSSIAN TRADE.

LONDON, June 18. Gregory Krassin, Russian Bolshevik Minister of Trade and Commerce, who has been in London for three weeks, met a permanent committee of the Supreme Economic Council for a first time yesterday. The conference, according to an official communique, issued at its termination lasted forty minutes and "certain preliminary questions regarding the opening of trade negotiations were discussed."

FEHRENBACH CALLED.

BERLIN, June 18. Constantine Fehrenbach, President of the German National Assembly, has agreed to attempt to form a ministry, following a conference attended by Karl Trimborn, centrist leader and President Ebert.

ALBANIANS KILL ITALIANS.

GENEVA, June 18. Three hundred and thirty Italian prisoners have been killed by infuriated Albanians at Tirana, according to a telegram from Belgrade, quoting reports reaching that city.

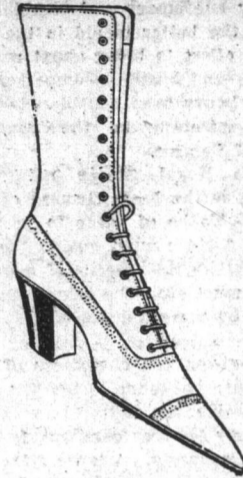

A False Alarm.

A telephone message from Virginia, Logy Bay Road, yesterday afternoon saying that a forest fire had started there, brought a number of policemen under Sergeant Long to the scene. The message was received by the Agriculture Department, which got in touch with the police. On arriving at Virginia there was no fire in the neighborhood, but about a mile and a half distant a farmer was burning some rubbish in his field.

The Boy Scout Movement

Now that the war is over the question of organizing the Boy Scout Movement in Newfoundland is being taken in hand. The Organizing Section of the Boy Scouts' Association in this colony has been Mr. James Murdoch, but so many of those who were supporting him went away to the war that the movement was practically in abeyance until the Rev. E. W. Forbes, on arrival here, put new life into it and formed the Gower St. Troop. It may be remembered that these boys were very prominent out at Mount Pearl and elsewhere a year ago in making themselves generally useful to the aviators who were then contemplating the flight to Europe. Having been pressed by the Headquarters Association to accept the post of Chief Scout, the Governor had a meeting of all those who were interested, at Government House on the 17th inst. and discussed thoroughly the whole question of organization. It will be necessary to begin practically de novo and in the first place to clear up and get into order the remnants of the past and define properly the districts over which various Commissioners should have jurisdiction. The question of Grand Falls will be important in this respect and it will be essential in due course to form a local Association for St. John's with a proper President and Council. Meanwhile the first step is to have a Chief Commissioner and Assistant Commissioner, and it is understood that, as a result of the Conference His Excellency the Governor is making proposals to Headquarters in England which will utilize all those who are at present really interested in the work of the Association and link up those who are interested in other parts of the Island.

Returned Soldier Roast Government.

The Callousness of the Prime Minister --- His Insult to the Gallant Men Who Died.

At a meeting of the Great War Veterans' Association held last night to consider arrangements for Commemoration Day, Lt.-Col. Carty occupied the chair. The main business of the meeting was sidetracked by questions being asked as to what the Squires Government were doing in regard to pensions for the maimed and sick soldiers and the dependents of those who had made the Supreme Sacrifice. A communication from the Colonial Secretary was read, but received with dissatisfaction, it being considered discourteous, unsatisfactory and in reality mere camouflage. Many speakers condemned the action of the government for increasing other votes in the estimates, whilst the vote allotted for pensions to the Soldiers and Sailors and their dependants were reduced. One speaker, ex-Private Bernard Murphy, told the meeting it was time for the Soldiers and Sailors to act and demand their rights by force. He proposed that either a committee or a parade in full strength should proceed to the Government House and demand that His Excellency the Governor take action. Mr. Harold Mitchell, ex-president of the G. W. V. A., strongly condemned the action of the government and the Prime Minister for their treatment of the Veterans. He had hoped for a great deal from the present government, but so far the treatment handed out to the Veterans was to say the least discourteous. Mr. Mitchell recited a story of where a widow of a gallant captain of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment, who laid down his life on July 1st, 1916, had had an interview with Mr. Squires on certain matters some little time ago and how she was called to fight. The story fell like a bomb among the gallant men present.

Major Wes March spoke strongly against the treatment meted out to the Soldiers and Sailors and their dependants, and said it was not good enough that taxes should be collected to make increases, while the men who went "over there" were absolutely forgotten. The retrenchment part of the government's policy was being carried out at the expense of the maimed and sick and also of the widows and orphans and parents of those who slept in France, Gallipoli, and the waters of the North Sea.

There was a surplus of several millions of dollars when the late Government went out of office. Some of this should be devoted to the increase of pensions. He was prepared to lead the soldiers in their parade.

R. Matthews, R.N.R., spoke more on behalf of the sailors, regretting that the government had done nothing for them. Politics should be swept aside and immediate action taken.

Mr. Batten, a veteran from Bay Roberts, and a full supporter of the Squires' Party, complained bitterly of the treatment accorded veterans in this section. Mr. Batten had, in a reply to a letter sent by Mr. Batten, stated that although he would like to give returned soldiers the preference in Government positions, he feared he was unable to do so.

Capt. Hugh Anderson, also, considered that the soldiers and sailors were not receiving the best treatment. Homes should be provided for maimed soldiers and sailors and the Government should furnish loans at 5 p.c. interest, payable within a certain time. This suggestion was spoken favorably to by several members.

Capt. Leo C. Murphy urged that a too hasty move be not undertaken. The Government should be given a chance and in the end things would probably work out satisfactorily.

Several other speakers supported the motion that the veterans should force and insist on receiving their rights.

Mr. Jack Higgins considered that it would be better policy for them to wait until Tuesday night and then definitely decide upon a programme. This was agreed to.

Getting back to Commemoration Sunday's programme a lengthy discussion followed, as to why the proposed ceremony was not to be held on July 1st. It was pointed out by Capt. Byrne that the executive of the G. W. V. A. thought the first Sunday in July more suitable, as on that day there would be a church parade, special services in the Churches and a Shrine decoration. The explanation was satisfactory, and the full programme will be drafted later. After some questions as to correspondence to the publishing of soldiers records in the Star, etc., the meeting adjourned until 9 o'clock Tuesday night next.

I. O. O. F.

What is perhaps the most looked for annual event in the annals of Oddfellowship in this city, is the annual visit of Past Grand Master John Craig, who arrived here by the Dieby, and met the members of Colonial Lodge at their meeting last evening. Atlantic Lodge, No. 1, took the opportunity of paying Colonial Lodge an official visit and also turned out in full force to welcome the Past Grand Master. Atlantic Lodge First Degree Team put in some real good work under the leadership of Past Grand E. D. Spurrell, adding new laurels to their already acknowledged ability.

The speech of the evening was made by Bro. Craig, who was ably supported by Bro. J. C. Phillips, D.D.G.M. Bro. Craig's remarks were ably replied to by the Noble Grand of Colonial Lodge, C. Noonan, who on behalf of the Lodge extended a warm welcome to the visiting Past Grand Master and assured him of the pleasure his annual visit gave to the Order in the city.

Bro. Craig took the opportunity of presenting a Past Grand's Jewel to Past Grand H. Carey, who replied in suitable terms. He also presented Colonial Lodge—through the Noble Grand—with a number of N.M. Victory Bonds, the interest of which is to be utilized for Lodge purposes. This presentation came as a complete surprise to the brethren, and was received most enthusiastically. This evening Bro. Craig will visit Wabana Lodge, at Bell Island. On Monday he will be officially received by Atlantic Lodge, whilst on Wednesday next, the city brothers will hold a Craig Day celebration at Forest POND.

C. C. C. Sports Will Be Big Event.

The C.C.C. Sports, to be held on Wednesday afternoon, July 7th, in St. George's Field, will probably be the biggest affair in athletics seen here for some years. Perhaps the star item will be the Inter-School Relay Race, in which teams from Bishop Field, St. Bon's and Presbyterian Colleges, as well as other city schools, will compete. Then there will be the football five, baseball relay race, a drill exhibition under the direction of Capt. O'Grady, the usual short dashes, a half mile and other flat races. Music will be supplied by the Brigade Band. The Governor and the Archbishop will be present. The Committee consists of Lieut.-Col. C. O'N. Conroy, O.B.E., Capt. Leo Murphy, Lieut. W. Clare, Sgt.-Major Clance, Dr. M. S. Power, and a deputation from the Old Commodore. The Auxiliary Committee follows:—Hon. H. J. Brownrigg, J. R. Bennett, A. H. Salter, A. Hiscock, J. T. Martin, H. D. Reid, Hon. F. J. Morris, as Judges; A. MacNamara, P. E. Outerbridge and J. I. Vinnicombe as Timekeepers, and C. E. Hunt, W. J. Higgins, T. Curran, P. Pippy, J. O. Hawermeale, Chas. J. Ellis, M. J. O. Vinnicombe, and Lieut.-Col. Geo. T. Carty, as a Field Committee.

The lady friends of the Corps will assist at the refreshment table. The Bell Island Company, under Capt. Greene, will participate in most of the events. Given good weather, there is no doubting that the Sports will make for a very enjoyable and successful day.

Official Reporters Use Strike Weapon.

The reporters of the House of Assembly, having made several applications for a bonus on account of the lengthy session, asked the Premier what salary was to be given them for their extra services and time. In reply the Premier asked Mr. Leslie Curtis, superintendent of debates in the Upper House, if he would bring along his staff to replace the reporters. This Mr. Curtis agreed to do, and his staff, with one exception, and the addition of a lady stenographer from an outside office, were at the House yesterday ready to take the official reporters places. Eventually the Premier promising to make the reporters salaries compatible with the work done, considering the length of the session, the threatened strike was averted.

SERVICE.

Of all the great teachings of the last few years, not one has been more forcibly brought home than the lesson of service.

Men who were previously regarded as more or less selfish, suddenly displayed traits that were thoroughly self-sacrificing, thoroughly humanitarian, and the instinct of self-preservation was broadened until it became the spirit of national defence.

Institutions, too, had similar awakenings, clubs and other associations that had been content to cater to the wants of their members, discovered a greater function in bringing comfort to those who were bereaved and assistance neglected their own struggles for supremacy and combined together, the better to aid in the great general effort to bring about national victory,—and business—impersonal as it has always been considered—found new inspiration in the awakened spirit of Service.

At the Royal Stores painstaking courtesy is the basic element of good service. To be of value to a community, a store must enable the people to satisfy their needs of merchandise, it must offer the things that are desired by the residents of that community.

If, however, the customers of such a store are not made to feel that they are welcome, no matter how fine its goods may be, that concern falls in function properly. A large store is in various respects a public utility. The people therefore are entitled to feel a certain proprietary interest in it.

This firm wishes every one to understand that this is especially the case as regards the Royal Stores. Here is a service that is purely mercantile, and here, in addition is service that is not for sale, but is freely, whole-heartedly given.

Every man or woman who enters this establishment is looked on as a guest, and to him or her is due the same courteous treatment that makes one happy in the home of a friend. This firm is fully imbued with the desire to give the best possible service. The salespeople are all impressed with this spirit.

If, therefore, there ever is a lack of courtesy shown, it is the result of someone's inability to reflect the wishes of the Royal Stores, Ltd.

Bank Will Build New Headquarters.

The Royal Bank of Canada aims to construct a new headquarters on the property adjoining the Bank of Montreal building and plans are expected to arrive in a day or two. Construction will begin then in very short time. The building, which will not be quite so high as that of the Bank of Montreal, will be probably the most elaborate one in the city. The Royal Bank of Canada has grown very considerably since coming to this country and in its new headquarters will undoubtedly exceed former achievements. It is pleasing to note, also, that other vacant plots along Water Street are being filled in. The Canadian Bank of Commerce is filling that space between S. Milley's and Ellis & Co., while a new building is being erected in the space just west of the Court House, adjoining the European Cafe. If that big, unlighty space next the Telegram Office were ornamented with buildings, those citizens who are interested in and zealous for the good appearance of the city would have something over which to rejoice.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

IS IT NECESSARY?

Why do women wear stupid clothes? Some do it, I suppose, because they haven't had an opportunity to know any better. A few because they don't care (or more likely because they think they don't care).

And a few others because they have had the opportunity and haven't grasped it. And in that case I call the stupid clothes unforgivable clothes.

I believe I have told you before what I mean by stupid clothes—not expensive clothes, not unfashionable clothes, of course not; but clothes that show that the woman who wears them hasn't used her brains in picking them out.

I was present at a gathering composed wholly of college graduates the other day.

The Best Class in the World.

Few of the women were expensively dressed. The most belonged to that splendid middle class who have more money to create pleasant homes and to educate their children and give them every chance in the world than they have for expensive pleasure or costly clothes. But they were, for the majority, dressed tastefully. It is, however, of the minority that I want to speak—the minority who wore stupid clothes, clothes which on a college graduate were more than stupid—namely, unforgivable.

Here was one example: A woman who has a small, sallow face had on a large red velvet hat, heavily weighted with four or five black feathers and a large buckle. Underneath the hat her small plain face looked at least three sizes smaller and three times plainer than it needed to be.

Made Me Lose Track of the Speech.

Another woman had on a velvet dress which would have been good looking if it had not been for the neck arrangement. Truly that neck arrangement has more than one spin answer for, for it not only spoiled the dress, but it also fascinated me when my eyes lit upon it, by its inapplicability and its needlessness, to such an extent that I completely lost track of what the speaker was saying. The neck of this gown was square; that square was filled in with white net, up to a V, and above that V was another layer of fancy lace, cut in a curve (honest injun!), which ended at just the exact spot which is most unbecoming, just on top of the Adams apple. Now for a woman who has had the advantage of an education and of being with people of taste and refinement, wasn't that an inexcusable hodge-podge of lines.

Don't say "perhaps she couldn't afford anything different." It wouldn't have cost any more to have the thing done with one kind of lace on harmonious lines.

So Have You.

Don't tell me she may have had something more important to think about than clothes.

So has every woman—so have you and I, but that doesn't keep us from employing taste and intelligence in our selection of the clothes we do buy.

If beauty is truth, as some of the poets have assured us, I think it failing to be true to our best selves not to clothe ourselves in all the beauty and harmony of color and line that we can afford.

Will Use Tobacco.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., June 10.—The use of tobacco will not be sacrificed for the church by the clergymen of the General Synod Reformed Churches of America the ministers declared at the closing session of the synod here yesterday.

A resolution proposing that the clergymen give up the weed in order to make their church contributions more liberal, was defeated.

A Benighted Heathen.

(From the Jewell, Kansas, Republican.)

An American teacher undertook the task of convincing an indigent native son of the Philippines that it was his duty to get out and hustle.

"But why should I work?" inquired the guileless Filipino.

"In order to make money," declared the thrifty teacher.

"But what do I want with money?" persisted the brown brother.

"Why, when you get plenty of money you will be independent and will not have to work any more," replied the teacher.

"I don't have to work now," said the native—and the teacher gave it up in disgust.

Many skirts have the draw-in effect around the bottom.

Fads and Fashions.

The Gibson sailor is coming back. The popular tunic is never out of style.

Motor wraps feature small roll collars.

Blouses are rather elaborately trimmed.

Beige is a favoured color for afternoon wear.

Lilles-of-the-valley are used on black hats.

A revival of the Watteau hat is prophesied.

Colored hat linings have returned in full glory.

Some of the hand-made blouses have high necks.

Sashes are furnished with silk tassels or fringe.

Swinging panels are a "Fifth Avenue" favorite.

The fashionable parasol is edged with silky fringe.

Colorful raffia flowers trim hats of Japanese straw.

The straight tunic overskirt continues in popularity.

Two shades of brown linen form a happy combination.

Among foulard frocks we have navy and tan combined.

Taffeta frocks have charming little puffed sleeves of net.

Clusters of curls over the ears are displacing ear puffs.

Jackets are barely hip length.

Dress wraps are embroidered in chenille and steel beads.

Large black taffeta flowers trim a hat of white organdie.

FAVORS.

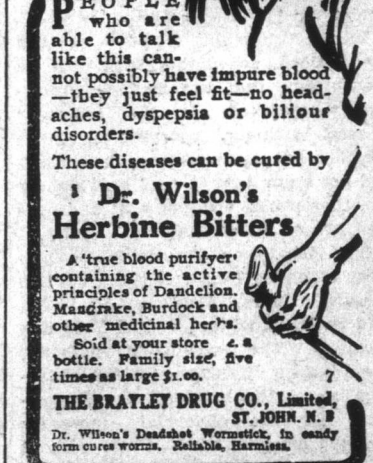

WILEY MARCO

When I was sick, with chills and fever, Jones did my chores, day after day; he whacked up kindling with a cleaver, and fed the cow and hens their hay. I told him he was sure a treasure, a model neighbor, nothing less; he said it always gave him pleasure to help a comrade in distress. Recovered from my ills and sorrows, I changed my mind concerning Jones; for every day he comes and borrows, a gun, an egg, or seven bones. He borrows till he makes me dizzy, and I am drooping o'er my lyre; he borrows gas for his tin Lizzie, and wood to feed his kitchen fire. He borrows rugs, he borrows bedding, and my basson, on which to toot, and if he would attend a wedding, he asks me for my Sunday suit. "When you were sick," he keeps reminding, "how cheerfully I did your chores! Your eight-day clock you saw me winding, you saw me chase the cat outdoors. And so I feel quite free to borrow your aunt, your hucksaw and your cow; I'll bring the blamed things back tomorrow, together with your sulky plow." It's doubtless due to moral blindness, but I detest the pilgrim bland who is resolved to do me kindness, who's bound to lend a helping hand.

Dance frocks feature long pointed aprons, ruffles trimmed. Fancy buttons and loops of cord are featured on wraps. Basque bodices are long.

Just Folks

NO OTHER WAY.

I don't like work. I'd rather loaf and never do a thing. And watch the white clouds drifting by and hear the robins sing; I rather live a life of ease than one of toil, I say; But no one wants to pay me well for loafing round all day.

I don't like digging stubborn soil, and grubbing with the hoe, I'd rather sit beneath a tree and watch the garden grow; I'd rather rest most any time than spade up yellow clay, But corn and beets and things I need aren't ever raised that way.

I don't like spending all my strength for silver and for gold, I don't like saving money for the days that I'll be old; I'd rather be a spendthrift now and squander all my pay, But soon the poorhouse gets the man who tries to live that way.

I don't like work. I'd rather loaf and live a life of ease, If I could have my way on earth, I'd do just what I please; But I can't sit around and shirk and feed my children, too, And so for them I gladly face the work I have to do.

'Twould be a wonder world, I vow, if no one had to toil, If everything that mortals need just sprouted from the soil; But change this life the way we will, Improve it how we may, For fame and fortune men must work—there is no other way.

Beloved by Britons.

The announcement that Alexandra, the Queen-Mother, had recovered from her recent illness and was again able to enjoy outdoor life, was welcome news to Britons the world over, because she is held in deep affection by the whole British people. Since she came to Great Britain from Denmark in the spring of 1863 to be the bride of Edward Prince of Wales, she has been one of us. Her adopted land has been home to her since her own country whose fortunes she has followed with undivided interest. For thirty-eight years she was Princess of Wales, for nine Queen Consort, and for ten, since the death of her husband, King Edward VII, she has been Queen-Mother. During all these years she has done much to further the philanthropic work of her country, giving special attention to the work of caring for the wounded soldiers who served in the South African War and in the recent world conflict.

Of all the high personages who witnessed the victory parade in London none received from the assembled thousands a warmer greeting than that which resounded through the streets when the Queen-Mother appeared. Field Marshal Earl Haig stopped in his march to salute her and received from her hands a bouquet, which was presented not only as a tribute to the Commander-in-Chief, but to all the brave men who had served under him in the war. A domestic matter no doubt added to the interest of the Queen-Mother in Earl Haig. His wife, Countess Haig, was once a Lady-in-Waiting in the Queen-Mother's household and a close personal friend.

SELECTING A CANDIDATE.

The President and Vice-President of the United States are chosen by officials termed "Electors" in each State, who are, under existing State laws in turn chosen by the qualified voters thereof by ballot on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November in every fourth year preceding the year in which the Presidential term expires. The Constitution of the United States prescribes that each State shall "appoint" in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors equal to the whole number of Senators and Representatives to which the State may be entitled in Congress; but no Senator or Representative or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States shall be an elector. The Constitution requires that the day when electors are chosen shall be the same throughout the United States. But before any votes of the electors can be cast for a President, it is necessary that a nomination take place, and as there are always several parties in the field, each party some months prior to the election proper holds a series of conventions for the purpose of making a selection agreeable to the wishes of the balance of sentiment in the States which they represent. The two principal political parties in the United States are the Republicans and Democrats, and each have been holding their pre-election conventions with the object stated, as has been reported in the foreign news service.

The Republican National Convention held its deliberations this year at Chicago, and the expected happened in the sense that those who were expected to be nominated were not considered, and those who were not thought of as being in the running received the nominatory votes. The "dark horses" came out on top, and the choice fell upon Warren G. Harding, Senator from Ohio, for President, and upon Governor Calvin Coolidge, of Massachusetts, for Vice-President. Neither of these men are greatly known to fame throughout the United States though both, of them are believed to be strong, individually, and good. That Senator Hiram Johnson of California, did not win the nomination, will be something of which many will be proud, and outside of his chance of success not an inconsiderable number of people beyond the boundaries of the United States, will concern themselves greatly as to the final selection. Anyone so long as it was not Johnson, though the success of General Leonard Wood would have been more warmly welcomed outside the Republic than the selection of Harding. Herbert Hoover had not a chance from the beginning as a Republican favorite. The Peace Treaty Plank in the Republican platform was very nearly the means of causing a split from the start, and the convention was only saved from immediate disruption by a compromise at the last moment, which, however, gave no satisfaction to anybody and leaves in existence all the main points of discord. The adopted platform, to quote a contemporary, "is colorless in the extreme. So far as can be seen it takes no definite stand on any great national question. It offends Labor, ignores Prohibition, and leaves utterly obscure what the party, if returned to power, really intends to do with regard to the League of Nations Covenant and the Peace Treaty. A more vague and unconvincing platform has never before, in all probability, been submitted to the American people by any party."

The Democratic National Convention has not made its choice, and much will depend upon their platform and selection of Presidential and Vice-Presidential candidates. President Wilson is not able to serve as a third term candidate, and his health is not good enough to enable him to become an active guide and counsellor of his party. Could he engage in either situation his party would have an excellent chance of winning, under existing circumstances, and according to fair-minded opinion. Nothing so far has developed, concretely, as to what the contents of the Democratic platform will be, but it is common knowledge that if the President were permitted to have his way the party would stand uncompromisingly for the ratification of the League of Nations and the Peace Treaty as brought back from Paris by Mr. Wilson. W. J. Bryan, the perpetual Democratic candidate has, however, declared against such a course, and with the President absent from the Convention, his "silver tongue" may stampede the delegates, though there is a possibility that even the eloquence of the man from Nebraska may fail to move them. One fact may be noted and that is because of Mr. Wilson's judicious, conciliatory and persistent policy toward the claims of Labor, the Democrats have much better chance with that party than have the Republicans. Speculation at the moment is vain. When the candidates and platforms of both parties are announced an opportunity will be given of forming a definite opinion of the next four years of American policy. Exciting days are ahead for the neighboring Republic, and the Presidential election promises to be plethoric with surprises.

Agencies in Newfoundland.

(From the Imperial Trade Correspondent at St. John's, Nfld.)
With reference to local agents in Newfoundland of United Kingdom manufacturers, the attention of the Department of Overseas Trade has been drawn to an apparent wrong that is done to United Kingdom manufacturers and to the people of Newfoundland. Newfoundland is considered as being part of the Dominion of Canada, and many people do not understand the vast distances that lie between points in the Dominion and points in Newfoundland. In many cases it is found that firms resident in Toronto and Montreal, represent United Kingdom manufacturers with whom the people of Newfoundland are willing to do, and are, to some extent, doing business, because those firms in Toronto and Montreal hold agencies from manufacturers or others in the United Kingdom covering Newfoundland territory. As Toronto is further from St. John's than Liverpool is very considerable delay is caused by first having to write to Toronto ordering goods from England, which might be ordered direct from Newfoundland, and save fully a month in obtaining them. Much business is lost to firms because of delay, and because often goods are sent past Newfoundland into Canada, namely, into Montreal, to be forwarded to Newfoundland. Thus the goods have to travel 1300 miles farther than they ought, and in doing so very often there is much damage done to them. If British Trade is to be exploited in Newfoundland, then opportunities should be given Newfoundland to deal with Britain direct, and not through other countries.—British Press.

Sugar.

In regard to the interviews (published June 17) which a reporter of this paper had with a number of sugar dealers, it may be said that instead of stating that sugar prices here would not have advanced beyond 28 cents up to the middle of August, the figure should really have been 22 cents. From Mr. Mews' letter in yesterday's issue, it may be seen that an agreement was reached whereby the price was being kept at 22 cents per pound. The gentleman who knows and who gave the Telegram the information, said that this price would last up to the middle of August at least by a half dozen firms. The dealers who were short of supplies were being offered sugar for August delivery at 35 cents, and as Mr. Mews avers, a dealer refusing to buy at this price, the Board met the situation by relieving the importer of the 35 cent sugar of his holding at a very heavy loss to himself (loss not stated), and by pooling it with the cheaper priced sugar, made the holder of the latter suffer for the former's injudicious buying, as it is stated that the "Board bought at a much more favorable price than had been quoted to sugar dealers." As regards the inaccuracy of the statement that the Board bought heavily without consulting experienced dealers, it may be said that presumably the parties who held the high priced sugar were experienced dealers, and with others, may have been consulted, but as far as the reporter could learn the trade was not consulted as a body. (Experienced dealers, singly, sometimes express different opinions on the same subject.) In fairness to the Board of Control, however, it may be said that it is generally admitted that at some period before October, sugar would be higher than 30 cents, but for how long the high price would last, it is only guess work to state. Whether the 35 cent man is now responsible for consumers having to pay, till the end of the year, 30 cents for sugar, is not clear to the writer; nor is it suggested what will happen if the market drops by October month. Will the Government then bear the loss as in the salt deal?

House of Assembly.

Friday, June 18.
The sitting commenced at 3.30 p.m. Mr. Higgins (St. John's East), presented a petition from the City Council asking for the same guarantees and privileges as were accorded the Dominion Co-Operative Building Association.
Sir M. P. Cashin (Leader of the Opposition), asked the Premier if he was aware that the medical practitioner appointed for the Labrador coastal steamer, carrying a large number of passengers to that coast, did not know how to read or write, or in other words was not a fit and proper person to assume such duties.
The debate on the Estimates was next taken up by Sir Michael Cashin, Messrs. Moore, MacDonnell, Walsh and Sullivan, ad lasted until 12.30 this morning. The Government, including the Finance Minister, received a castigation at the hands of the Opposition, for the abnormal increases granted officials, whilst those without adequate support, including the dependents of soldiers and sailors who gave their lives for the cause of Empire were totally forgotten. A more complete report of yesterday's Assembly proceedings will be published on Monday.

DIAMOND DUST

Nothing But the Truth—Without Fear or Favour.

The sap is flowing in the trees; the birds are on the wing; and everywhere I turn and see the signs of glorious spring. The hurdy-gurdy's on the street with discords that appeal; my overcoat's in "uncle's" place, where it will stay till Fall. These signs are never-failing ones, but one thing's surer yet; as evidence that Spring is here it is the one best bet.

When out upon the diamond fair Fred Chesman starts the game, I know that—speaking a la mode—We say "Summer has come."

The record attendances at the football games are ushering in 1920 as the most successful sports' season for many years. The return of so many of the boys from "Over There" after playing manfully and well "the bigger game" has given just the impetus needed to make the series start off with a rush and a roar. And just as it is with football so it will be with baseball. Many of these gallant lads will make their initial appearance on the diamond this year, and the injection of many lean, sinewy, fast-footed greyhounds into the different clubs is sure to brisk up the whole collection. Men who have taken off weight and kept hiking through their army life are sure to be fast on their feet, far livelier than they ever were during their baseball days. Watch these men go—watch them slide around the bases! The wise manager will keep the soldier-players swooning and stealing all the time, and it will bring him rich rewards.

If you would earn great baseball riches, just soak the pill right on the stitches.

On next Wednesday afternoon the Baseball League will open the championship series in the regular fashion at St. George's Field with His Worship Mayor Gosling tossing the first one over. This is the custom wherever baseball is played. The C.E.I. will make their initial bow to the fans, and will face the doughty Wanderers in what is sure to be a most interesting and exciting game.

The Lions, the Irish, the Wanderers, the Cubs and the young C.E.I.—the newest of clubs—art off in a clatter to settle the matter of who'll win the races and who'll be the dubs. And the game's so uncertain each club may be beat, and any old ball club may grab off the meet; But, one thing is sure in the old game; the poor old fan hasta pay the same price for his seat.

Last year the Cubs in their wonderful wisdom tied the can to Harvey Thomas. But was Harvey downhearted? Not much! He sat on the grandstand all last Summer sayin' nuthin' but sawin' wood. At the end of the season he was a free agent. Then all winter he stuck around the Club till he had all the C.E.I. boys pumped chockfull of the old game, and even little Harry Mitchell thought himself a veritable Babe Ruth. Why, he had then jazzed to the extent that when he called for funds each and every one of the boys dived down in their jeans and swamped him with a pool of five hundred iron men. Now he has a very fully equipped team—full of pep and enthusiasm—and like Fee-Fo-Pum, just thirsting for Wanderers blood.

And the valiant A. Harvey is the most highly titled man in the whole League, we'll tell the world. The C.E.I. boys, to show their confidence in him, made him Manager, Assistant to Ditto, Playing Captain, Instructor, Bat Boy, Mascot, Trainer, Chief Mucky-Muck, Main Gazaboo, et al; and he himself quite modestly and unblushingly appointed himself Short Stop without opposition. He's a game kid, and here's wishing him and his plucky little team lots of luck and a big red-and-white pennant.

How nimble is the young recruit? How quick the ball to spear? How agile he goes round the sacks as speedy as a deer? He grabs the grounders from the sand, and throws them with a will, but when he faces big league curves he cannot hit the pill.

The baseball world was shocked yesterday to learn that Dr. M. S. Power—one of the game's greatest exponents, a former B.I.S. player, and under promise this season to the Red Lions—had agreed to play third for the Cubs at the age of 30 years, the very prime of his life. Doc, is the fifth prominent baseballist to succumb to the disease in a space of three years. It is the opinion of prominent physicians that "Doc," as he was fondly known, hastened his own end by taking up golf, which undermines the intellect and, thereby, the general health. Those who are closest to him, like Liney Munn, say he has never been the same since he first sliced off the tee. There is no argument for prohibition in the case of the deceased. He was always abstemious. He took the best possible care of himself. Before being bitten by the golf bacillus, his favorite amusements were chess, checkers, poker, auction bridge, and the Stove League—at all of which athletic sports he excelled. He smoked, but never to excess. He usually retired before midnight the day after he got up, and was careful as to his victuals. The Doctor had been flivvering a great deal this Spring and the climate may have got to his head.

My heart is very logy as I pen these lines to Mogie; O, my heart is full of heaviness to-day. May your wing ne'er wither, Mogie, for the Cubs are all the vogue, no matter what the other teams may say.

Last winter a group of big leaguers living in and around San Francisco, organised to play a game with the convicts at Poison Prison. Pitching for the convict team was a big, long-armed colored chap, who declared he was just about the "bestest pitchah that ever was." The big leaguers went to bat first. The big "smoke" wound up with a flourish and shot up the first one. The batter hit it for two sacks. The ball was returned to the "smoke" who jumped on the rubber and shot in the ball, not waiting for a sign from his catcher. This pitch was also slapped for two bases, the first man scoring. The pitcher could hardly wait for the ball to get back to him. He grabbed it, jumped on the rubber and was about to let it go, when a little colored man in the bleacher section piped up:—

"Take yo' time, niggah, take yo' time. Yo's in heah fo' TWENTY YEARS!"

Stars Won.

Last night's football game between the Star and C.E.I. teams was very well contested, and though the weather was not all that could be desired, a large gathering of spectators assembled both inside and outside the playing field. The first half did not result in any goal getting, but in the second the Stars found the C.E.I. net, but did not afterwards improve their score. The game was a fast one at times and was very much enjoyed, the applause testifying to the skill shown by the players on both sides.

Impressive Ceremonial.

INSTALLATION OF KNIGHTS OF THE BATH.

Those who were privileged to witness the installation of the 17 Knights of the Order of the Bath at Westminster Abbey must have been struck with the traditional continuity in perfect detail of our old English pageantry (writes a Daily Chronicle representative), who goes on to say: One may question its relative value in the social scheme of things, but its beauty and sentiment are undoubted.

The beginning of the ceremonial was in silence, and then through the aisles came the high, sweet voices of the childish chorists. Outside were great crowds, and all along the railings of Dean's Yard were the college boys in high hats, some standing periously upon the iron bars, watching rank and fashion pass by.

A Stately Procession.

The Knights entered the Abbey by the West Cloister door, and passed up the centre of the nave into the choir. Four magnificent Guardsmen, with white plumed headdresses and long staves, stood at the bottom of the steps, and between them the procession passed. Rows of military functionaries in all the trappings of their office, members of the Order, and foreigners of note, occupied the seats, filling the main hall, and making an audience almost as brilliant in coloring as the procession.

First came the Abbey beadle, who led the way for the trumpeters and the Abbey Cross, the ecclesiastics (dignified in gold cloth and white), then the choir, the tiny lads in front habited in rich scarlet and gold, the others in white, and after these the canons of Westminster in their gowns of white and gold.

Then, with the fine music rising in crescendo, came, solemn and stately, the Knights Grand Cross, gorgeous in the panoply of their Order.

Some still walked with sprightly air, holding their heads upright; but many, the truth must be recorded, found themselves already battling with old Time, the persistent antagonist of all knights both on land and sea. Crimson robed, carrying black hats, each tufted with snowy white plumes, the Knights advanced ascending the steps before the altar past the wonderful picture of Edward the Confessor, graced for the occasion with the great gold plate of the Abbey set beneath it. Two by two they went into their own chapel.

The organ sent forth its triumphant note as the Sovereign, his train borne by the Pages of Honor, and the Grand Master (the Duke of Connaught), with the groom of the Robes and the Yeoman of the Guard, made their way to the installation chamber.

The New Knights.

The King stood under the banner, the Knights of Grand Cross on either side, Bath King of Arms in the center. He bowed to the Knights Grand Cross, who were to be installed, and they came forward to the middle of the Chapel, made reverence to the Sovereign and Grand Master, and ascended to their stalls and stood within. They were:

Lord Reading, General Sir Arthur Wynne, General Sir Herbert Miles, Admiral Sir Francis Bridgeman, Lord Mul-Mackenzie, General Sir Henry Leslie Rundle, Admiral Sir William Murray, Lord Kilbracken, Sir Evan McGregor, Sir Reginald Wingate, Sir Arthur Paget, Admiral Sir Hedworth Meux, the Earl of Dudley, Sir Inigo Thomas, Sir Archibald Hunter, Lord Haringde of Penhurst and Sir George Murray.

Viscount French, Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien, Sir George Buchanan, Viscount Escher and Sir West Ridgeway were to have been included, but could not be present, and their installation had to be deferred.

Kneel With Drawn Swords.

The oath was taken and the Sovereign, kneeling at the altar, then made his offering of gold and silver, the senior of the new knights making offering in similar manner.

Drawing their swords, the knights held them forward by the blade, the hilt towards the altar, and sheathed them again in unison.

Thus were new knights added to the honorable list, and the procession reforming, the music burst forth anew in a Te Deum Laudamus.

Some Everyday Expressions.

"Turn-Of" is a term which dates back to one of the first Dukes of Savoy. As his dominions were open to the incursions of the two contending houses of Spain and France, he was obliged to fall in with the power whose arms were most successful. On occasion perhaps one side would succeed temporarily, and vice versa on another occasion, so, being obliged to change sides, the Duke of Savoy had a coat made which was blue on one side and white on the other, these two colours representing the two powers concerned.

Thus, while on Spanish interest, he wore the blue side out, and when it suited his purpose to fall in with the French, he simply turned his coat inside out, displaying white, which was the French colour. He was, therefore, called Emmanuel, surmised the "turncoat" to distinguish him from other princes of the same name and line.

"Union Jack" is so called because it represents the union of England and Scotland by King "Jack." Perhaps this is not commonly known, but when I ordered that a new flag should be adopted to prevent differences and remind people that England and Scotland formed one nation. Thus, the white flag with the red cross of St. George was interlaced with that of St. Andrew on the blue background of the flag of Scotland, and His Majesty having ordained it, it was consequently called the "Union Jack." On April 12th, 1606, the Union Jack was first hoisted at sea, but it was not till the parliament tary union of both countries, in 1707, that it became the military flag of Great Britain. St. Patrick's Cross was added later.

Dating From the Days of Chivalry. "A Pitched Battle" originated in the days of knight-errantry, and was so called then because boiling pitch was used by the defenders of a feudal castle to repel the attacking force. The battles, which usually took place outside the castle walls, would soon end when the boiling pitch began to flow from a tank on top of the walls. This originated the term "a pitched battle."

"Ancient Lights" signifies that a person has had access to the light of day from a certain window for at least twenty years. Thereafter, no building must be put up in front of such window which would deprive him or her of that light.

"Esquire" originally meant a shield-bearer in attendance on a knight. To be absolutely correct, "esquire" now means that one ranks above "gentleman," and less than a "knight," but in addressing letters, "Esq." is used in a complimentary sense.

"The drawing-room" is a contraction of withdrawing-room. It was originally known by the latter name.

And Reminiscences of a Pleasant Tour

L. C. MORRIS.
CHAPTER XVIII.
AT BUTTE—MONTANA.

It is claimed by the people of Montana that their state is the richest of all the states of the union. Whether this is so or not, I do not know, but from what we saw of Butte, the capital city of the state, and of the other towns which we visited, I am inclined to think that the claim is a safe one. Some of the stores of Butte are immense, and the general independence of the state, is reflected in the enterprise of the city, and in the well dressed people which throng its streets. In passing one of the main streets our attention was particularly attracted by a monument, or statue, which the people erected some ten or fifteen years ago. The figure is very commanding, and all the more so because it is simply the figure of a citizen, a plain man, and not of an officer of a naval or military man—not even a politician. This monument was erected in memory of Marcus Daley; and if one is to judge the man by the monument, then Marcus Daley was a manly man, and nature endowed him with more than all the titles of all the arts, or all the degrees of all the colleges—nature made him a gentleman. Titles do not make gentlemen. This is very evident among some of our own titled people; that is, if we are to judge them by what they say about each other.

The profile of the statue tells its own tale; but if there be any doubt in the mind of the spectator, as to the character of Marcus Daley, then the inscription at the base of the monument at once settles the question. The monument is the gift of the people, and they erected it, as the inscription states, in honour of a man, who, by his industry and perseverance, climbed to the highest pinnacle of financial success; and who always did his best, and to whose industry Butte owes much of its present prosperity. Having seen this monument, and more especially the inscription, we enquired somewhat of the history of Marcus Daley, and were told a story something like the following. Marcus Daley was born in Ireland and emigrated to San Francisco at the time of the gold rush in 1849. He was a mere lad when he arrived, and, like thousands of his fellow emigrants, he was eager for the fray in the hunt for gold. Until about forty he fought the reverses of fortune, and paid the price of sweat and toil for daily bread. His wanderings led him eastward, and finally northward into the state of Montana, at which place the tide of fortune turned in his favour, and he found in copper, what he missed in gold. With diligence and characteristic perseverance, he devoted his energies to the development of the country, and he lived to see the prosperity which is now in evidence. His name is still highly spoken of, and if the inscription at the base of his monument is a correct interpretation of his qualities, then he was a splendid type of man.

Had Marcus Daley been a man of small soul, or of mean purposes his name would not be honoured, nor would the city of Butte be what it is to-day, nor would it have standing in one of its great highways such a fine piece of sculpture as that of which we write. In physique Marcus Daley must have been grand, but in soul he must have been grander. The poise of the statue is such as conveys the idea of liberality and off-handedness; and there is a carelessness about the deportment which banishes all foppery or vanity. Such a man as Marcus Daley could not be vain, because he experienced too many reverses in the morning of life to admit of vanity, and when he became the possessor of vast wealth, he had learned the lesson, that he himself was greater than it all. Some of us forget this, and we act as if the dollar were greater than the man. How often do we see people quarrel and dispute about the secondary things of life, while they seem to lose sight of the great truth, that they themselves are greater than these things, and greater than all the money of all the banks.

We have very pleasant memories of our visit to the city of Butte, and of the people whom we met. Among the latter were the Mayor of the city, and also the celebrated Senator, Hiram Johnson. We do not know whether Senator Johnson has any relations living in St. John's, but he is so much like our esteemed prince of merchants, the Hon. W. B. Grieve, that we almost thought him to be the same person. The Senator is an able platform speaker, and in his address on "The League of Nations," which it was our privilege to hear, he displayed all the qualities of an orator, a statesman, and a gentleman. We made an allowance for his possible partisan feeling, as he is an aspirant for the Presidency; but we felt, that his ability and his grasp of the question, demanded our respect.

Of course he admits that this action was brought about by the F.C.B., to try and protect the public from paying 40c. per lb. for this article, later in the season. good enough and the consumer is not able or willing to swallow it. Mr. Mews says, "The situation was such that one sugar dealer, at least, came to me and said he would not buy any 35c. sugar if he were not permitted to advance his price which was 22c. That being the case, the Board felt that it was time to meet the situation by further action, and fortunately was able to buy 1,000 tons sugar at a much more favorable price than had been quoted to sugar dealers. And the sequel was that the Food Control Board was able to take over the 35c. sugar at a price which entailed very heavy losses to the importer and was able to pool all the sugar."

Now, Mr. Editor, the public want to know why did the Food Control Board take over this 35c. sugar in view of their statement that they had bought 1,000 tons on much more favorable terms than the sugar dealers? Where was the necessity for this action? And why was the F.C.B. influenced by one dealer stating that he would not buy any 35c. sugar if he were not allowed to advance his price which was 22c., and why were the large lots of sugar that were bought at low prices taken from the different importers and pooled with this high priced sugar?

It looks to me that it was not done to benefit the public, but to protect the two or three large dealers who plundered into buying this sugar at too high a price.
Yours truly,
GROCER.

All the many people who desire to write plays should read the story of William Margrie, of London. He is ostensibly a decorator and house agent, but his hobby is writing plays, and when the mood grips him strongly he can turn out about one a month. He began his play writing in 1908. Up till now none has been produced. But Mr. Margrie is not dashed, keeps pegging away, and is a lesson to all of us in perseverance. He claims that he has been rejected by publishers, editors, theatrical managers, girls and army medical officers over 250 times!

Some one has said that King George only smokes cigarettes. He does not smoke a pipe in public, but in private he is fond of a good briar, and when shooting at Sandringham invariably uses the pipe. The Triumphs of the Dunces.

Wordsworth, one of the greatest poets of the last century, was an extremely dull scholar, and by his own experience went a long way towards disproving one of his famous lines, "The child is father to the man."

Thomas Chatterton, the wonderful boy-poet, returned from school one day with the message, "Your son is a fool of whom nothing can be made."

Robert Burns, Scotland's greatest poet, was a dunce at school, yet in his career he poured forth song after song of emotional tenderness which made him immortal.

Goldsmith, the celebrated author of the "Vicar of Wakefield," "The Deserted Village," "She Stoops to Conquer," was an awful dunce at school. He found his way to London in 1756, subsequently devoting himself entirely to literature. Dean Swift failed at his examination in Dublin University. He became secretary to Sir William Temple, and looked for political preferment which, however, did not come.

Westclox

EVERY Westclox alarm is a double duty clock. Like all other clocks it keeps time all day long. Its big job is to call time on sleep.

During the day you must look at the clock to get the time. The alarm clock tells you the time to get up. To do this it must run on time and ring on time.

Westclox are built to do both. They are handy, dependable household clocks. Put them wherever a time piece is needed. Extra clocks save steps.

We are doing our best to meet the big demand for Westclox. But we must keep a close eye on quality. For the demand is due to quality.

Strawberries Scarce.

Rather noticeable is the absence of strawberries from the wares of local fruiters. Towards the close of April imported berries were present in fairly large quantities, and were to be found on the menus of the principal restaurants. For the past three weeks, however, probably because of their costliness, the berries have been among the fruits not present. There seems to be a fairly consistent stock of California cherries, but the price still hovers around the eighty cent level, keeping them very much in the luxury class.—Morning Chronicle.

Entering the Church, he was made Dean of St. Patrick in 1713. Getting entangled in political controversy, he lost favour with the popular party, but consoled himself with a devotion to literature, which he greatly enriched by some powerful satires, poems and discourses.

Thomas Chambers, the noted missionary and preacher, was the despair of his dominion. Another famous preacher, Isaac Barrow, was so slow and quarrelsome that he was counted a disgrace to the school.

Dr. Butler, the headmaster at Shrewsbury School, had often to call Charles Darwin (the most famous naturalist of the nineteenth century) to task for inattention and laziness during his studies. The only thing that seemed to interest him was the collecting of caterpillars, worms, and all sorts of creeping things, and the risk of his own and his brother's life by dangerous chemical experiments.

Napoleon was spoken of at school as the "dull scholar," and Wellington's schoolmaster said that he was only fit to be food for powder.

Lord Robert Clive was sent out to India as a clerk because everyone at home was tired of his bad temper and his hopeless dullness. During the diplomatic difficulties that arose between England and France he attracted the attention of his superiors by some able suggestions for the curbing of the French influence. In the war that followed he was given a command and displayed such remarkable military genius that he virtually became Commander-in-Chief. In the troubles that followed with the native chiefs, he was equally resourceful, and succeeded in laying the foundation of the British Empire in India on a secure basis.

Duel With Princess.

DID EX-KAISER WOUND AUSTRIAN ARCHDUCHESS!

(Liverpool Weekly Post.)

An incredible story of the "suicide by hanging" of the late Austrian Emperor Francis Joseph in 1916 comes to the Rome Socialist daily "Giornale del Popolo" from the Trieste correspondent. The Archduchess Zita (who became Empress when her husband succeeded Francis Joseph) deeply embittered the last phase of the aged monarch's life by reproaching him to his face, in the presence of others, with having, in a moment of folly, espoused the ill-fated German cause and thereby undermined the house of Hapsburg and predestined the ruin of the Empire. A crisis was reached during the last visit of the German Kaiser to Vienna, when, in the midst of the Court dinner, the exasperated Crown Princess (as Zita was then called) drew a revolver and fired straight at the German Emperor. The shot missed its mark, but the Kaiser fired back and slightly wounded his assailant.

Immediately afterwards an announcement was posted stating that the Archduchess is indisposed, and will be obliged to keep to her apartments for some days.

That incident—so the story continues—became the starting point in the Pan-German Press of a campaign against the family of Bourbon-Parma (to which the Princess Zita belonged). From that time Francis Joseph, who had shown rapid signs of senile decay, began to be unbinged in mind.

A few weeks later, on November 21st, 1916, the veteran Emperor Francis Joseph was discovered to have hanged himself in his bedroom in a short interval during which he had been left unattended. Consultations were held in an adjoining apartment, and there were some angry scenes between the distinguished ladies of the Imperial Court as to whether the terrible secret should be divulged. Finally it was determined that the scandal must be prevented at all costs from leaking out, and so the time of the Emperor's death was officially falsified to nine o'clock in the morning.

The violent discussion had, however been overheard by various members of the Imperial household. It was quickly reported not only in the capital but also among the army in the trenches, till the supreme command was constrained to issue a proclamation ordering that any soldier found propagating the rumour would be shot forthwith.

There will be a Special Meeting of St. Joseph's Society Sunday morning, June 20th, at 11.30. All members are requested to attend. P. J. SMITH, Rec. Sec. June 19, 11

NEWFOUNDLAND SHOULD BE REPRESENTED.

LONDON, June 18. Considerable importance is attached to the appointment, by the Prime Minister, of an Imperial Shipping Committee to enquire into complaints regarding ocean freights and similar matters, and also to survey facilities for inter-empire trade. Sir George Perley, Canadian High Commissioner, will represent Canada, and the other Dominions will also be represented.

DEATH TO THE RATS.

GALVESTON, Texas, June 18. Federal, State, County and city officials were at war with rats to-day, following the death yesterday of a seventeen year old boy from what doctors Boyd, Levy and Bartman diagnosed as, probably, bubonic plague.

A DOUGHTY SECRETARY.

TORONTO, June 18. On a charge of conspiring, with others, to kidnap Ambrose Small, missing theatrical magnate, a warrant was issued to-day for the arrest of John Doughty, former Private Secretary to Small. Doughty has also been missing for several months.

POLES COLLAPSING.

BERLIN, June 18. A Breslau despatch to the Tagliche Rundschau reports a Polish communique, signed by General Pilsudski, as announcing the collapse of the Polish offensive and the envelopment of the Polish army by Bolsheviki.

BANDITS MAKE BIG HAUL.

TORONTO, June 18. Three armed automobile bandits got away with fifty thousand dollars worth of jewelry, chiefly diamonds, and about five thousand dollars worth of Victory Bonds, in Abraham Rosenthal's jewelry store here in broad daylight last evening, and left proprietor Rosenthal wounded in the head, and tied and gagged in his cellar. The robbery occurred between six and seven and the robbers made their departure from the vicinity of the store in a seven passenger motor car.

CAUGHT IN THE ICE.

SEATTLE, June 18. The steamers Victoria, Cordova and Elihu Thompson, pioneers of this season's attempts to reach Behring Sea ports, are fast in the ice sixty miles northwest of St. Michael's, Alaska, according to wireless reports received here to-day.

NEW YORK, June 19.

The break between Eamon De Valera, self-styled "President of the Irish Republic," and Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan, head of the Friends of Irish Freedom, reached a formal status last night at an executive session of the National Council of the Friends. No conclusion was reached, but it was said that deplacates were laid for a final test of strength. The charges made by John Devoy, that De Valera and his present advisers had used at Chicago fifty thousand dollars of the money subscribed for Irish loan bonds, and intended for use in Ireland only, were counter-balanced yesterday by accusations that Justice Cohalan had attempted to drive De Valera from the United States. These accusations were made in the Monitor, the official organ of the Roman Catholic Church in New Jersey, by the Rev. W. P. Cantwell, of Newark, its editor, in a leading editorial captioned "Despicable Treachery in a Holy Cause."

DUNLOP CORD TIRES

If YOU had the time to note the tire equipment on automobiles these days, you would believe, as we do, that

1920 IS A DUNLOP YEAR

- ☐ The ascendancy that shows on our sales record, naturally tallies with the "road" record.
- ☐ You may not know where rubber comes from, but after a purchase you'll soon know that it goes into Dunlop Tires.
- ☐ Try "Traction" or "Ribbed." The verdict on these two exceedingly popular tires is
 1. That the Quality Never Varies.
 2. That the Mileage Keeps Adding Up.
 3. That the General Serviceability is Matchless.

British Calm and U. S. Naval Criticism.

The imperturbable calm with which the British public have taken rude flbes against the conduct of British naval operations in the war by U. S. Admiral Benson, Secretary Josephus Daniels, and others anxious to discredit Rear-Admiral Sims, is quite characteristic. The British public has become so used to this sort of thing since its own admiral commenced to publish books, that a controversy at Washington on the same subject has few elements of novelty. Even the publication of President Wilson's three-year-old speech to American naval officers, which was seemingly intended to emphasize the fact that to be a great naval strategist, a man should be a landman and an amateur, went unreported in some British paper and unmentioned on by most of them. The tersest reference was that of the London "Evening Standard," to the effect that the President, in deprecating professional conversation, and extolling amateur initiative, was merely saying what the "man on the street" was saying in England throughout the war. The President, in 1917, was urgent that the Allies "throw prudence to the winds," and demanded that "something unusual" be done; but he was wise enough to see to it that the speech was not published broadcast. As the "Evening Standard" says: "If the Admiralty had simply aimed at 'something unusual,' something unusual would no doubt have happened, perhaps something as unusual as the defeat of Great Britain."

When the text of President Wilson's speech was published a fortnight or so ago, it had a strangely familiar ring to some Canadian editors. Soon the source of resemblance became evident. In thought, if not in diction, it was precisely like dozens of letters that were thrown into the waste basket of this office during the war. Invariably such letters deplored the lack of initiative of British generals and admirals, and suggested that a "business man," or some other non-professional person, would make short work of the Germans. Some of our correspondents in Saskatchewan, Temiskaming, and even in Toronto, likewise claimed to have made representations to the British Government which had been unheeded. But these were obscure individuals. To most of them it should be some consolation to feel that the President of the United States thought just as they did, or at any rate pretended to think so, when he addressed the officers of the American navy as their Commander-in-Chief. Perhaps, however, it was just his way of bucking them up against timidity born of a sense of inexperience. The ready letter-writers, however, were quite sincere, and many of them are perhaps still puzzled to understand how British arms on land and sea chanced to obtain victory.

Under the circumstances, it is not to be wondered at that British politicians and editors who heard the theory of amateurism expounded on every curb and in every club during the war, are not disturbed over the Washington controversy. Their general attitude should commend itself to Secretary Daniels, as the wearer of the smirk that won't come off.—Saturday Night.

Published by Authority.

Upon the recommendation of the Food Control Board, and under the provisions of the Food Control Act, 1917, and the War Measures Act, 1914-1916, His Excellency the Governor in Council has been pleased to approve the following Regulations regarding the sale of Sugar:—

1. The wholesale price of sugar when sold by the importer shall not exceed Twenty-seven and one-quarter cents per pound, when it is a cash transaction.
2. When sugar is sold by Jobbers, the price shall not be in excess of Twenty-eight and one-quarter cents per pound, when it is a cash transaction.
3. For the purpose of this Regulation, Twenty-five barrels or over shall constitute and be deemed a wholesale transaction, and must be taken delivery of at one time. Any less quantity than the above, sold in original package, shall constitute a jobbing transaction. A barrel shall be held to contain not less than three hundred pounds.
4. From and after this date the retail price of white granulated sugar within the Municipal limits of the Town of St. John's shall not exceed thirty cents per pound, and in the out-ports thirty cents per pound, plus transportation, insurance and other regular charges.
5. Any person who shall offer for sale, or shall sell any sugar at a greater price than that fixed in above Regulations, shall be guilty of a breach thereof.
6. All foregoing prices are for cash sales.
7. No dealer shall refuse a tender of cash when a purchase is made.
8. Any person violating any of the provisions of these Regulations shall be guilty of an offence and liable upon summary conviction before a Magistrate or Justice of the Peace to a penalty not exceeding one thousand dollars, or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding three months, or to both fine and imprisonment. (One half of the fine shall be paid to the informer and the balance to the Food Control Board, for the benefit of the Dominion.)
9. No Sugar shall be imported into Newfoundland unless a permit to do so shall have been obtained beforehand from the Food Control Board.
10. These Regulations shall be, and come into effect on the First day of June, 1920.
11. The Regulations respecting Sugar, Flour and Molasses, published in the Royal Gazette on the eight of October, 1918, are hereby cancelled.
