The Heir of Bayneham

—AND—
Lady Hutton's Ward.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

The pretty childish voice prevailed, and the earl said, with a smile, "I will. At what hour do you dine?"

"At seven," replied Captain Massey. "Call for me at my chambers," he continued, giving Lord Bayneham a card, "and we will drive down together."

"At your chambers!" said Lord Bayneham. "Why, are you not living at home?"

"No," said the captain, and again a dull flush burned his face. "My mother has visitors in the house, and I have business in London. Call for me about five."

Then they parted, and Lord Bayneham returned home.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Lord Bayneham told the countess and Barbara Earle of his meeting with Captain Massey, and of the beautiful little child who was with them; the finest, sweetest child he had ever seen. Lady Bayneham thought him in better spirits. He smiled as he described the boy clinging to him, and his face had not looked so bright for years. Lady Bayneham's eyes filled with tears as she listened to him.

"I am thankful for anything that arouses his interest," she said to Barbara Earle, "but my heart aches when I think that he will never smile upon a child of his own."

"We will hope for the best," said Barbara, "sorrow endures for a time. Joy generally comes after it, and if not joy, peace."

Lord Bayneham was haunted by the little face; it shone before him all day, he saw it in his dreams by night—the sweet trusting eyes, the bright clustering curls—and he smiled at his own folly.

"I must be in love with the child," he said. "I long to see him again."

On the following morning the reserved, melancholy Lord Bayneham spent more than an hour in one of the finest toy shops in London and selected a parcel of toys that would gladden the heart of any child. He was punctual to his appointment and found Captain Massey ready for him.

"The weather is fine; we shall have a glorious drive," said the captain; "but what is this enormous parcel? It came some hours since, to be left here for you?"

"It contains nothing but toys for Lionel," said Lord Bayneham, blushing like a school-girl as he spoke. "It was a glorious drive; the sweet moving, as one whose senses are wrapped in a dream. He saw a small, pretty room, where fragrant flowers were blooming, and golden sunbeams came in through clouds of white lace. He saw—was this a dream? a golden head raised as he entered, a beautiful face, sweet and pure and tender; he saw violet eyes full of tears, quivering lips that tried in vain to utter his name; he saw two little white hands clasped as he had seen them clasped years ago, and a thick mist swam before him, a noise as of rushing waters filled his ears. A little voice aroused him; the child ran from him to the lady.

"This is mamma," he said, proudly turning to Lord Bayneham.

It was no dream—it was his own wife clinging to him, her tender arms clasped round him, her beautiful face wet with tears so near his own, the golden head drooping on his breast. It was no fancy, no dream, but a real, glorious truth: Once before he had wept like a child—it was when he lost her.

It was a sad face upon which Mrs. Massey gazed when she welcomed her old favorite to the house.

"My son told me how altered you were," she said, holding out both hands to Lord Bayneham.

"Life has not been a path of roses for me," he replied.

"Nor for any of us," interrupted the lady. "I have gathered more thorns than flowers."

Mrs. Massey was a stately gentleman, one of the old school, kind and charitable, yet dignified and reserved, and a firm believer in etiquette. If she had a fault, her son declared it was in being too frigidly correct and proper.

She was dressed as Lord Bayneham remembered always to have seen her, in the stiffest of brocades and the most costly of lace caps. She made many inquiries about Lady Bayneham and Miss Earle, yet her visitor thought there was something unusual in her manner. She talked more than he had ever heard her, and seemed afraid of a moment's silence. It was a relief when the child came in and ran straight up to Lord Bayneham.

Ab, what was it? Why did his eyes fill with tears as the tender arms clung to him? Why did the sweet, childish voice seem to reach the depths of his heart, and stir fountains that had long been sealed and dry?

"My son tells me you have taken a wonderful fancy to this little boy," said Mrs. Massey. "He is a noble little fellow, and we are all fond of him."

"I have never loved a child before," said Lord Bayneham, and his lips trembled as he spoke; "and, in my solitary life, I do not think I shall ever care so much for one again."

"Would you like to like with this gentleman, Lionel?" asked Mrs. Massey.

"Yes," said the child; "but I cannot, because I cannot leave mamma."

"I am to be introduced in proper form to-day," said Lord Bayneham; "What is my little friend's name? I shall ask permission to take him down to Bayneham with me."

"Would you like to see Lionel's mamma, and ask her permission?" said Mrs. Massey.

"Yes," replied Lord Bayneham, "if it would not be an intrusion."

"I can answer that it would not," said the lady. Her face was strangely pale, and Lord Bayneham wondered at the emotion he read there.

"She is in the boudoir here," said Mrs. Massey; "go and make your request, my lord."

"Will you not accompany me? The lady is a stranger; I shall need an introduction," said Lord Bayneham.

"Go alone," said Captain Massey; and even as he spoke Lord Bayneham noted the change in his voice—the nervous, agitated expression of his face. "Go alone," continued the captain; "Lionel will introduce you."

A strange tremor seized Lord Bayneham; a strange, vague hope came to him as he looked in those pale, agitated faces. He tried to speak and ask another question, but his lips seemed numb and dumb.

"Lionel," said Captain Massey, "go with that gentleman, and take him to your mamma."

The child gently laid his little hand on Lord Bayneham's and led him through the long drawing-room. A door at the other end of the apartment led to the boudoir. He turned the handle and opened it, slowly moving, as one whose senses are wrapped in a dream. He saw a small, pretty room, where fragrant flowers were blooming, and golden sunbeams came in through clouds of white lace. He saw—was this a dream? a golden head raised as he entered, a beautiful face, sweet and pure and tender; he saw violet eyes full of tears, quivering lips that tried in vain to utter his name; he saw two little white hands clasped as he had seen them clasped years ago, and a thick mist swam before him, a noise as of rushing waters filled his ears. A little voice aroused him; the child ran from him to the lady.

"This is mamma," he said, proudly turning to Lord Bayneham.

It was no dream—it was his own wife clinging to him, her tender arms clasped round him, her beautiful face wet with tears so near his own, the golden head drooping on his breast. It was no fancy, no dream, but a real, glorious truth: Once before he had wept like a child—it was when he lost her.

"The fault was my own," he replied; "I was jealous, and impatient."

"No body speaks to me," said a pitiful voice, and a little face looked up in wonder; then Lord Bayneham remembered the boy—he had called Hilda mamma. He looked once into her face.

"Who is it?" he whispered—"this little one who calls you mother?"

For all answer she placed the child in his arms.

"It is your son," she said; "your son and mine."

"Do not scold me," she said when that trance of happiness was broken, "do not scold me, Claude. When I left you, I did not know that Heaven would give me this priceless gift. My baby was born here, six months after I left your house. I meant to send him to you when he was old enough to leave me."

"Hush!" said Lord Bayneham; "do not say such words as those, Hilda, darling. This is a golden hour—we will not spoil it."

THRIFT WEEK.

For a week we practice thrift, we're the cut-throat, frugal ladies who daily drift with a roll of hard-earned cash; we've made resolutions chaste, we will cut out wanton waste, to the bank we'll go in haste with the dollars of our dads. If we'll only stick to this, to this policy sublime, we will stave up heaps of bills for our distant winter time; when old age has made us bent, we'll repose in sweet content, not afraid to blow a cent or a nickel or a dime. If we save our chickens while we're strong and full of vim, age, which comes with ghastly speed, will not seem so bleak and grim; with a bundle on the ice age will seem serene and nice, and we'll chorale once or twice and send up "Have the fun or the colic or the hives; and the village door will do all they can to save our lives! if we're bustled when we're sick all the docs will file a kick; we'll be outwiped pretty quick, with our children and our wives. For the world has little use for the delegates who's broke, though he's able to produce, in his line, a trail of smoke; he may boast of noble birth, or of talent or of worth, but he's staid up, on this earth, as a feeble sort of joke. Let us salt the kopeck down, let us put it in the bank; let's preserve the minted crown and the guinea and the franc; let us walk in prudent ways, practice thrift because it pays; then when come the rainy days we shall never draw a blank.

Fads and Fashions.

With the dark skirt and jacket is worn the brilliantly colored over-bow of crepe, kasha or leather. A spry hat of almond green hemp braid is thrust through with two wide gray and green curls.

One fashion report designates solid colors as favorites for fall, for sports as well as the dressy fabrics. Caramel colored ribbon fashions a soft little hat for Southern wear. Self-color ribbons are used at the side.

A square jacket of cherry red suited for sports wear. With it is worn a white homespun, beige, or plaid crepe.

To balance the recent effect of the sleeveless bodice, sleeves which fall over the hand are being introduced. A charming frock for the young fille is one of tan crepe printed in a darker shade and with a chic little shoulder cape.

The evening gown of velvet is generally of a vivid color with its side drapes caught up with a single effective ornament.

Allies And Turks Drift Further Apart.

Lausanne Conference May be Barren of Results -- Russia Offers Armenians A Home -- Thrilling Rescue of Crew of Clontonia.

RUSSIA SCORES.

LAUSANNE, Jan. 28. The Allies and the Turks have drifted further apart here tonight with the possibilities of reaching an agreement, as viewed practically by all. The British are clinging to the hope that the Turks will sign. French Premier has acted in no definite manner in the new crisis. He telegraphed Mustafa Kemal at Ankara, earnestly counselling moderation. Efforts will be made to induce Turkey on Wednesday. The Allied Treaty will be offered to accept certain essential parts in principle. The crisis will be temporarily adjourned. The experts of each delegation left in Lausanne, thus never an official touch with each other. Near East Conference can be held at the Associated Press late in the afternoon. The Allies are willing to recognize the principles of the sovereignty of Turkey with abolition of capitalisation and the distribution of the Ottoman Empire. Late Saturday Bolshevik Russia took the role of good Samaritan. It is reported that the conference has stands ready to provide a home for the Armenians. A note to the three powers of the Conference, in which the indignation through Armenia at the manner in which the Armenians were being treated by the representatives desired to see of Russia's intentions to consider considerable number of Armenian emigrants in its territory. It is reported that Russia has played a diplomatic stroke. Moscow has conceded to the Russian subject the solution of a grave question. The Armenian delegation accepted the offer. The Associated Press learns the Russian plan is to transfer the Armenians in rich agricultural regions in the vicinity of the Kuban Rivers in Southwest Russia. There is no question of giving them a national government with autonomous Government. Russian delegates said they will not hand without expense on them they become Russian subjects but that as all land belongs to the State they will be only the use of such land. It stands ready to welcome hundreds of thousands of Armenians grant them every facility for comfortable, even prosperous, existence. A Russian delegate, who said "I already have a Republic in the South and we cannot expect to set up another Armenian Republic within our border."

THRILLING RESCUE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28. A heroic rescue at sea and a battle to keep a sinking vessel afloat was told today when the crew of the Clontonia arrived with Captain Aaron Kearley and crew of five of the schooner Clontonia, of Belleoram, on board. The rescue was effected on Friday. Totally helpless in a terrific storm the Clontonia for Halifax, from Fortune Bay, was in a sinking condition when sighted. Captain James Gillis, the liner's commander, was compelled to abandon the boat in which the schooner's crew were rescued because of the heavy seas, said Captain Kearley. "For three days and three nights we manned the pumps and were completely exhausted. After being sighted we did not believe we could be saved before the Clontonia sank. We cannot say too much of the bravery of Chief Officer McMurray and his men, when they took a desperate chance in affecting our rescue. A volunteer crew manned the lifeboat and several oars were broken by the waves." McMurray told that the schooner was sinking rapidly when the rescue boat rowed toward it. "The crew were clinging to ropes and every wave broke over the craft. The sea was so heavy we could not go alongside and the men were compelled to jump into the swirling waters. We had some trouble in picking them up and all were utterly exhausted and half dead from cold when we got them into the lifeboat. It was a ticklish job getting back to the Empress, but the lifeboat was badly crushed before we could all get on board and was in splinters a few minutes later." The Clontonia meanwhile had sunk. The Captain fired the ship before leaving. The crew lost everything except the clothes they wore, but suffered no ill effects.

A.O.U.W. OF MASS. IN TROUBLE.

BOSTON, Jan. 28. A bill of equity alleging that the American Order of United Workmen of Massachusetts was insolvent and asking it to be placed in receivership was filed in the Supreme Court by five members of long standing. Instead of a reserve fund of ten million dollars, as it was understood to be, in the Secretary's Treasury, plaintiffs contended the amount on hand does not exceed six hundred thousand dollars.

COL. MARTIN IMPRESSES CONGREGATION WITH MASTERLY SERMON.

Colonel Martin, commander of the Salvation Army forces in Newfoundland, conducted the meetings at the No. 111 Corps all day yesterday and his presence and counsel was greatly appreciated by the congregations. At the night meeting he gave a very eloquent address speaking from the text, "Good Master what must I do to inherit eternal life," he said in part: "There is usually great difficulty experienced by religious teachers everywhere in getting people interested in spiritual things, especially in this case of men of position and affluence, but here is the record of one who had position and wealth who became anxious about eternal matters. Wealth and power are apt to be put in the wrong place in our lives. They were never meant to do for us what God alone can do and they certainly never can provide the highest form of happiness; that comes alone from the consciousness of sins forgiven and the knowledge of service for God and humanity faithfully and conscientiously performed. It is a terrible thing when people know the will of God concerning them and refuse to obey. Some commentators say that Jesus knowing that Judas would fall him wished the rich young ruler to be the one to take his place and the possibilities of future usefulness had he obeyed were very great, but he went away disobedient and as a natural consequence sorrowful. In conclusion the Colonel made a very moving appeal to those who had a vision of what God required of them to obey at all costs. The congregation was greatly impressed and seven persons came to the penitence form and found pardon for their sins.

Captain Shute the lady evangelist was in charge at No. 1 and conducted the services in her usual earnest and impressive manner. She is bearing the strain of the Campaign well and was in splendid form last night, when seven persons sought and found forgiveness from sin. Staff Captain Tilly, General Secretary was in charge at No. 11 and had a very successful day with large audiences at all the meetings and seven penitents at night.—R.

PATRIOTIC ASSOCIATION.

The work performed and without any cessation whatever by this Association of patriotic gentlemen in alleviating distress in the cases of ex-Servicemen and dependents, who are not in receipt of pensions or any allowance whatsoever, and whose physical condition is such that it will not permit them engaging in a livelihood is deserving of every commendation. The G.W.V.A. expresses to them its sincere appreciation of the work so nobly done. It is regrettable to note that, due to the many hardships and deserving calls made, the funds are rapidly becoming depleted notwithstanding the great caution observed in making awards.

PRIZE MONEY.

The second and final installment of Prize Money is now being paid. The work performed by the Association in having the Admiralty expedite this money to Naval Ratings is so well known that further comment would be unnecessary. It would, however, be well to note that the amounts so paid are determined by the Admiralty and in cases where a claim is made same will have to be sent to the Admiralty direct who have the records of the period of sea-going service of each man on which the amount payable is based.

WAR MEMORIAL.

A proportion of your Executive served on the National War Memorial Committee since its inception. This Committee has now appointed a finalizing committee of four of which your President and Secretary are each members. Plans, designs, specifications, costs, etc., are now being completed by Lieut-Col. T. Nangle, D.G.R. & E. London, and it is hoped to have the undertaking started some time during the year. The completion of the National War Memorial will in some way redeem the promise given our Noble Dead "in that we see to it that they be not forgotten."

SERGEANTS' MEMORIAL.

Through the courtesy of the Daughters of the Empire the sum of $300.00 was donated by them towards the completion of this Memorial, which will be started as soon as climatic conditions permit. The Municipal Council has kindly offered to defray a third of the entire cost of completion and have plans already prepared.

VETERAN MAGAZINE.

The success attained by the "Veteran" Magazine which has now completed its second volume (with an entire sold Christmas issue) is very gratifying, notwithstanding the business conditions. The production and make up of the Magazine have greatly improved during the past year, and it cannot be gainsaid that it is a production of which every ex-Serviceman should feel proud. It is not too much to say that this would not have been possible but for the splendid and loyal co-operation and friendship extended and manifested at every stage by the publishers—The Union Publishing Co., Ltd. No effort is being spared by the Editorial Committee to boost this, our Magazine in subscription operation of all members in subscribing is solicited. From letters received and appreciation shown by correspondents it is evident that the "Veteran" is becoming firmly established with the reading public as well as fulfilling its ambition, viz:—

1. As a means of completing a permanent record of the work performed by the men and women from this Dominion who served in the Forces.
2. As a means of disseminating items of information to members of the G.W.V.A. and all ex-Servicemen.

It is regrettable that few contributions from Naval eye-witnesses have been received. This is perhaps explained by the fact that our Naval Ratings were in different ships in many theatres of war. If, however, any of our naval men have an incident they are asked to forward the same to the Editorial Committee. It is suggested that condensed news from Branches be also forwarded, and the Editorial Committee will be pleased to cooperate in this feature to the fullest. I would like to place on record the Association's appreciation of the devoted and brilliant work of Comrade John G. Higgins, as Editor of the "Veteran" Magazine, during the past two years, as well as the excellent services rendered so gratuitously in the capacity of Solicitor. No recog-

MEMORIALS OUTSIDE OF ST. JOHN'S.

Special reference might be made to the splendid Memorial erected by the citizens of Grand Falls. The Dominion Command was represented by your Dominion Secretary. The Association has been very pleased to assist in every way at the unveiling of all Memorials.

RECREATION HUT.

The great need for a Recreation Hut for the ex-Servicemen and other patients at the Sanatorium has impressed itself upon your Executive and other citizens for many months past. Some time last year members of the outgoing Executive met the Trustees of the Women's Patriotic Trust Fund and laid the matter before them. Their action in the matter was to allocate a sum of $7000.00 for the erection of such a Hut. We are now glad to report that this Hut is practically completed and will be ready for occupancy within a few weeks. The action of the W.P.A. Trust Fund in making possible the erection of such a Hut has earned for them the sincere gratitude of the patients of the Sanatorium as it will be the means, particularly during the winter months, of adding a little more happiness to their otherwise monotonous existence.

INSURANCE SCHEME.

It is regrettable that the Government could not find its way clear to inaugurate the scheme of insurance for ex-Servicemen as was proposed by the Association. Such a scheme would be of inestimable benefit to many men as well as a protection to their families, which under the present circumstances, is denied many, as in the case of men suffering from tuberculosis. If such men were to die it goes without saying that their families are left dependent upon friends or charity. Cases similar to these quoted are happening frequently, and although the W.P.A. Trust

HAD SHE THE RIGHT?

"I'm proud of that chair. I bought all her chairs for looks alone and that not one of them was thoroughly comfortable. She learned from that mistake what she wanted from a chair and she got it this time."

A hostess said to me one day when I spoke of the luxurious qualities of one of the easy chairs in her living room. "I wanted the kind of a chair that you hated to get up out of, the kind of a chair you could sit in with a book the whole evening and not feel cramped, and I think I got it."

She did. It was a wonderful chair. And yet for a moment I wondered over her use of the word "pride." Why should she be proud? She didn't design it, she didn't make it. All she did was to pick it out? Was that anything to be proud of?

So I asked myself, and finally answered, yes.

Spending money wisely is an accomplishment. To achieve it is to have reason for pride.

Spending Not Flinging.

There is a general idea that it takes brains to earn money but anyone can spend it.

Everyone can fling money away, but not every one can spend money in such a way as to get the most and the best it will buy.

In the first place you have to know what you want. In the second place you have to know how much it ought to cost. In the third place you have to know where to look for it, if you are to get the most out of money.

And if you are to get the best out of it, you must have the taste and sense to want the best.

This same woman who was proud of her luxurious chair went on to tell me that when she was married she Cod Oil—There is no material change, but the market is held very firm at full price. Stocks in Newfoundland are small and there is very little held by importers in the New York market. These circumstances should make for still higher values for cod oil before the new Norwegian product can come on the market. The old stocks are now very limited and the market will be quite bare before the Norwegian product is ready. Meantime Newfoundland will be filling requirements and should get a good price for her 1923.

Cod Liver Oil—There are certainly indications of higher prices for Cod Liver Oil this week, but whether they will maintain it is hard to determine. Some small lots of five to ten barrels have been sold recently at an advance, but it would be difficult to sell any quantity at the same figure. The outlook will be governed by the results of the Norwegian fishery. They had a big production last year, and have still considerable stocks of this to dispose of. They are not, therefore, likely to jump prices just now, when their own new fishery is just starting. It is rarely that we ever see two years alike in results in the fishing industries, and there may be some surprises in store for us before long.

Flour—The wheat market is about the same as last week. The disturbed conditions of European countries did not affect the wheat situation as many expected. Manitoba wheat still keeps about five points under Chicago, and exports to Europe continue to go forward in fair volume. The local quotations for leading brands of flour is 50 cents under that of last week and more than what it was last year, so that the quotation for Fancy molasses is not excessive in comparison with sugar. The schooner Clutha arrived this week with 562 punchons, 54 Hercules and 54 barrels of molasses for Messrs. Harvey & Co. and Job Bros. & Co., Ltd. This with what is already in stores, will keep the market supplied till April.

Potatoes—There is nothing new to port of this market. Owing to the frosty weather very little were handled in a wholesale way this week. The imported stock are now generally supplying the local market at $3.50 per sack of P.E.I. reds. A general effort will, we understand, be made by the Agricultural Department to encourage the raising of home grown potatoes this spring, which is quite in order when we find that for the year ending June 30th, 1922, Newfoundland imported 87,076 bushels at a cost of $41,822, most of which money was sent out of the country.

Oats—There is no change in the market. The local quotations are still $5.90 per sack for Black and $3.70 for White. Excepting some few shipments out over the railway to the outports and to the lumber camps this week, there was very little doing in oats. The importers hold a good supply, which is estimated to fill all the local requirements till April. Meantime there will be occasional small shipments via St. John, Halifax and Sydney. The prices quoted above are expected to obtain all the winter.

Hay—The market is dull and there are locally very few transactions in baled hay. The home-grown hay is now being drawn on by cabmen and other owners of horses and cattle, as the farmers are selling a little under the price of the imported in order to get ready cash to buy other requirements, especially in the food line. There will be no more large importations till the latter part of April. Meantime there are sufficient stocks of imported and local to supply requirements till then. The city quotation is $29 to $40 per ton for baled hay. The price is expected to hold around these figures all the winter.

Would Revive Billiard Tournament.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—In view of the keen interest shown in the Inter-club and Championship Billiard Tournament of last winter, I feel that I am voicing the desire of cue-handlers and lovers of the game of Billiards in suggesting that some effort should be made to have these games played annually, and thereby help to keep up interest in the best of all indoor games. Time was (in the last century) when public billiards was looked upon as being more or less of a questionable character, this impression being caused by the fact that unprincipled crooks, gamblers and loafers laid in wait for the unwary and in many cases deliberately fished their unsuspecting opponents; but as the merits of the game, both from the standpoint of beneficial mental relaxation, and as a help towards physical fitness; became more fully appreciated, efforts were made to eliminate the unruly element, with the result that to-day Billiards is looked upon as the premier of all indoor games, and in many well-to-do families the private billiard room is regarded as an absolute necessity. In the city of St. John's we have quite a number of fair amateurs, and it is to be regretted that owing to our isolation few of our players get an opportunity of coming in touch with high-grade billiards such as can be seen in the Old Country. Yet I feel safe in saying that despite our limitations, we have quite a large number of billiard players who are equal to the average amateur of most English clubs.

And now to return to the matter of establishing the game on the Inter-Club and Championship basis. Surely something could be done in the way of creating a local Billiards Control Association, having representatives from each club, who could inaugurate a series of games that would tend to not only improve the standard of our players, but also provide a lot of interest for lovers of the game in general. As for a trophy for Inter-Club competition, I understand (although I am open to correction) that there is already a cup in existence, donated by Lord Morris, which had to be won three years before becoming the property of any one particular club. This cup was only competed for during one season, and was won by the B.I.S. players. The coming together of the various clubs last winter, under the supervision of Lt. Col. Nangle helped in no small measure to smooth out former unpleasantness and there should be no difficulty in continuing the contest for the ownership of Lord Morris' trophy.

As the season is somewhat advanced I would suggest (provided it meets with his approbation) that Mr. Ryan, our present champion, take this matter up with his own club committee and have them officially approach the other city clubs, with a view to forming such a league as I have suggested.

Thanking you for space, I remain, Yours sincerely,

Article V.
(By Mrs. David Johnson.)

Leaving the Committee Room, one is introduced to the lady reporter of the Christian Science Monitor, which, in passing, is said to be one of the most reliable papers published in America; questioned regarding the Temperance situation in Newfoundland the size, business and general conditions, etc., these are answered according to the knowledge of one who loves the dear old island. Now we join some friends and hasten to the other end of the city in order to prepare for the larger gatherings later on; a merry party are the Canadian and Scottish ladies, as we get back in good time to attend the banquet in the spacious ballroom of the Bellevue-Stratford; it is sometimes wise to hasten slowly, and so we find it, for in the entrance hall there are many new arrivals who must be registered, get their various tickets, greet their friends, old and new, so that excitement reaches quite a high pitch.

At last the gathering is called in order by Miss Gordon, who in clear and pleasing tones bids one and all welcome to the Eleventh World's Convention of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance Union. The difficulty of introducing two thousand people to each other is overcome by the request that we introduce ourselves as opportunity offers, and between the speeches folks are pretty lively. The Governor, W. C. Sproul, in happy manner also extends welcome, and tells of the benefits derived since Enforcement. Speaker follows speaker and all are equally enthusiastic in their courtesies; but when dear Mrs. Ella M. George, the lady who organized the work of entertaining the numerous delegates, who superintended the decoration of the Academy of Music, steps to the front of the platform, excitement is intense, for she is not loved by everybody who is fortunate enough to meet her, and really I believe she did greet singly each and all of the convention during its duration. Never shall I forget her kindness shown again and again through these happy days.

The first response is somewhat novel, to us at least; five Japanese ladies in picturesque native costume are presented, and in the Japanese language, Miss Uta Hayashi, briefly replies to the various welcomes. Her speech is then interpreted by Mrs. Kubushiro, who speaks English perfectly, and when started is not easy to stop, as was found afterwards to the general enjoyment of many gatherings. Mrs. Carrossa of Australia follows; her speech is clear and simple and it breathes culture as one would expect from a speaker of sixteen languages—the impressions made then are, as the days fly all too swiftly, deepened, as somehow two from the extremes of the globe are drawn together and a tender friendship is formed which will thrill us as we remember—by think of the devotion to a cause shown by these wonderful women who have to spend many days in continuous travel, makes one pause, and ponder deeply—Mrs. Carrossa left Philadelphia on November 27th, and told the writer she would only reach her home in distant Australia by January 7th.

Now comes Miss Archibald of India, smiling and gracious, full of delight at being in the city of Brotherly Love and now proving it to be the city of Sisterly Love. Without doubt Miss Archibald loves India and its work; her graphic speech tells us the fact—none the less does Miss Marville, the last speaker of the evening, love South America; her personality is striking; tall and well proportioned, a lady from Alabama, she breathes intensely in every speech and in the many appeals she makes and hopes, she speaks for Latin America.

Now the formal part of the evening is over and sociability has away. As a friend introduces the Newfoundlanders to a lady, the explanation comes, "There was a clergyman at the station to-day asking for Newfoundland delegates." Off we go to find Mrs. Benedict, and enquire, but nobody has she seen from home, nor has she heard of any clergyman desirous of meeting us. A gentleman then introduces himself as the Editor of the Philadelphia Record, and suggests that it may be the Minister of Bethany, Wanamaker's Church; later the same gentleman gives the name of Dr. McLellan as the minister

When Mary Joined The Guides.

AN ANSWER TO TRIUNFOLO.
Once our Mary was a maiden,
Who would ever walk the street,
Go to movies, but learn nothing,
That would make her smart and neat;
She'd make no beds, she'd wash no clothes,
A basket was beyond her art,
To powder up her trackled nose,
Was the high aim of her young heart;
On useless tasks her heart was set,
She often smoked a cigarette,
Although but yet sixteen.
Now all is changed, she smokes no
tobacco,
She sits erect and she is stronger;
She is not near so mean,
No powder makes her natural nose,
To movies not so often goes,
She has a higher aim;
No foolish things hold her in fetter;
The Girl Guides, bright, has made her better.
Her life is now more sane,
You see Girl Guides are sure no fake,
Their purpose is, to give to make,

in charge, and the following morning the telephone is the medium of introduction to that gentleman, who regrets his loss in not having visited Newfoundland, and invites one to be a member of his congregation at the morning service. Thither you wand your way in the pleasant autumn sunshine, and are made at home in that well organized church. The service is somewhat unique, for added to the usual form of worship, is a chorus sung by "The Elder Brotherhood" seated on the right hand gallery. Further along the "Younger Brotherhood" in the left gallery sing a touching selection, and just before the close, the little girls forming a choir in the central gallery lead the sweetness of their voices in simple strains to the praise and worship of the King of Kings. Striking were these features which emphasized the fact of work for all in that church. At the close we are greeted by the minister, and, with other delegates, introduced to various workers in the church. One gentleman, the Assistant Superintendent of the Sunday School, ever on the alert, acquires if you are interested in that branch of Christian work, and receiving an affirmative answer at once proposes for a three minute address as "This is Armistice Day." Not realizing the fact that the Sunday School is particularly large you agree to do your bit, and at 2.30 find yourself the central figure on a platform holding a big orchestra, a full choir and several gentlemen of weighty appearance!

However, the spirit inherent in a Newfoundlandian is that branch of the stirring hymns and solemn invocation have been rendered you are ready for the call. We all know somewhat of the glorious part which our dear lads took in the Great War, and that day, as well as we could, we told it to the five thousand who attend Wanamaker's Sunday School, urging the youth gathered there to stand for all the good and noble things for which our Allies fought and died. Not forgetful of the vastness of the U.S.A., we briefly told of size and scanty population of our land and the wonderful response she made to the call of the dear old Motherland. We have learned since returning home that the clergyman referred to as looking for home faces was Dr. Jones, late of St. Thomas'. Needless to say how much we regret having missed seeing him. We did meet a lady of his present congregation during the convention, and please have we been of the good work he still continues to perform.

But we have digressed and must take up the thread of the narrative. To supply creature comfort to a banquet of two thousand persons is an undertaking, and so did those in charge of the buffet table find it that night. When the chance came one found their way to the table, obtained a plate and passed it to those serving the delicious creamed oysters. Receiving it, you helped yourself to other delicacies, and with great caution got back to a place of safety to enjoy what you had won! Supper over, a happy, though tired crowd, stood whilst "The Star Spangled Banner" was sung. Goodnights were exchanged and we dispersed.

Bell Island Mines Should be Re-Opened.

SERIOUS SITUATION IN CONCEPTION BAY.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—It is now about two weeks since 2,000 were laid off at Bell Island and apparently no effort has been made to reopen the mines. As you are aware Bell Island is the very pulse of Conception Bay, and if something is not done to reopen the mines the district which I have the honour to represent then Conception Bay generally will be up against a very serious situation. I contend, Mr. Editor, that the Government made a very serious blunder when they allowed 2,000 working men to be paid off. Of course it is more than we can expect for the Company to keep the men on when their orders were cancelled, but it was up to the Government—the people's guardian, to instruct the Company to keep the men on by guaranteeing the wages, and holding the ore as security. I am sure this would be backed up by every Newfoundland because when the ore would be disposed of the country would get back the money again. By doing this they would have helped the poor men in this district and Bay to feed their families through the hard winter without further taxation which everybody knows is almost to the breaking point. Some time ago, a similar occurrence took place, the time the striking miners held Bell Island going instead of wasting money up at Badger constructing roads which are absolutely useless. Now, Mr. Editor, the same thing has happened again, and the country must stand aghast at possessing a Government who are apparently not capable of solving this problem, because the principle is sound and the only conclusion one can come to is inability or indifference. The Government should bear in mind that they are the people's guardians and they should not let a golden opportunity like this slip through their fingers; if they do they will have to provide some other means to help the poor man provide for his family, who can not be allowed to go hungry. It is bad enough to be poorly clad but hunger the Conception Bay men will not stand for.

Mr. Editor I would like here to call the attention of Conception Bay men to their power in this country. You have the control of nine members, and if you are united you can control out to you, fellow Baymen because I am disgusted that 2,000 of our men were allowed to be dismissed without a moment's notice while the Government are able to find a way to keep eight or nine hundred men employed constantly breaking stone in the city of St. John's at $3.25 per day. We hear a lot of talk of guaranteeing the Humber, which is away in the future, but here is a case where 2,000 men were allowed to be dismissed from actual work, but the Government could not see its way clear to guarantee only the wages of the poor men (not interest on construction). I wonder if there is a reason? Now, Mr. Editor, it is up to you Conception men to demand that the mines be opened immediately at St. John's. The Outport man can feel the pinch of hunger

Don't Like Puncheons.

The Canadian Freight Association has passed a resolution signed by all the steamship companies refusing to handle molasses in puncheons after 1923. This ruling affects Barbados in particular and the Chamber of Commerce of that Island has sent a strong protest to the Freight Association deprecating their action. In as well as the men in the city. We have the power to actually make or break governments. A long pull and a strong pull, and a pull altogether, with Conception Bay as the pass word, we will then come into our own. F. C. ARCHIBALD, Harbor Grace, Jan. 25th, 1923.

the Barbados memorandum it was pointed out that puncheons have been always used in the molasses trade and that their abandonment would increase the cost to the consumer. All arrangements on the part of plantations are made to deal only with puncheons and heavy expense would be involved in any such changes as those demanded. It was further claimed that smaller packages would involve much incidental waste and necessitate greater storage facilities and expense of handling at the docks. Newfoundland is not, so far as affected in this dispute, but if the Barbados planters should be compelled to do away altogether with the puncheons in deference to the ruling of the Canadian Freight Association, and to use only trolleys and barrels, it will, no doubt, make molasses dearer for us. Even to-day molasses that comes to us in the smaller packages costs from two to five cents per gallon extra. Our importers seem to be quite satisfied with the puncheon package and our freight handlers have no complaint to make about the system. The fact that nearly all the molasses we get comes direct to us in sailing vessels may account for the circumstance that we have no complaint to make about puncheons. It is where there is so much transfer handling from steamship to railway trains, as in Canada, that the excuse comes for a protest against the puncheon. Trade Review. S.S. Sachem Brings Disabled Ship to Port.

A Tow of 750 Miles Under Most Trying Marine Conditions.

The finish of a long and eventful tow came at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, when S.S. Sachem with the ore laden Norwegian steamer Capto arrived in port. Both ships anchored in the Narrows by 4 tug boats, two at either bow and two astern. Shortly after the ships dropped anchor the captains and officers, wearied after their long vigil, retired to their cabins and dropped into well earned slumber, leaving the ships in charge of the pilots. For ten days, or since the morning of the 18th inst., the Sachem has been battling with wind, sea and ice to bring the Capto to port. As previously reported by wireless the disabled ship was picked up about 750 miles east of this port. Six days after leaving Liverpool on the 16th inst. at 7 p.m. Capt. Furneaux received an S.O.S. from the Capto. The ship reported her rudder lost. On the previous day the Sachem received a drubbing in a storm, which broke away a number of boat chocks and shifted one of her lifeboats. The gale continued on the 17th, and although the Sachem's course had been altered no sign of the Capto could be seen. The Sachem was judged to be about 100 miles distant from the disabled ore boat when the S.O.S. calls were received. At 4.30 a.m. on the 18th inst. the Sachem located the Capto through the means of a message from S.S. Montclare, she being fitted with a direction finding apparatus.

PREPARATIONS FOR TOWING.
Shortly after daylight on the 18th preparations for towing were begun. A lifeboat in charge of the 2nd officer of the Sachem was launched, and after much strenuous work a five and a half inch wire cable and some forty fathoms of Manila cable were put on board the Capto.

HAWSER PARTED.
By noon hour towing began, but at 8 p.m. due to a heavy swell the hawser parted and until next morning the Capto drifted helplessly about. At 8 a.m. a boat from the Sachem, in charge of 3rd Officer Thompson was launched, and after considerable difficulty the broken lines were again connected. A fresh breeze with a bit of a tumble made towing difficult, and the ships did not average more than four miles per hour. On the night of the 20th inst. a change of conditions set in. The wind freshened and every minute the hawsers threatened to give way. In the morning an extra fifteen fathoms of cable was added to the towline from the Sachem and everything went fairly well until Monday the 22nd, when the ships ran into ice.

HAWSEES AGAIN PART.
Great difficulty was experienced in keeping the Capto on her course, owing to ice getting between her and the towing ship. The strain became greater and at 5.15 a.m. the hawsers parted for the second time. On this occasion a boat was launched from the Capto, and after five hours a wire hawser from the freighter was put on board the Sachem, and towing was resumed shortly after 10 a.m. The ship's course was then altered to the South in order to get clear of the floes.

SHIPS IN BLIZZARD.
On Tuesday towing progressed fairly well in spite of a heavy S.W. swell with increasing wind. At night fall it was blowing a gale, and another anxious time was experienced by the crews of both ships. On Wednesday, the following morning, at 2 o'clock the hawsers again parted. The gale increased to a blizzard and with blinding snow squalls it became intensely cold, and nothing could be done to connect the ships, which were rolling in the trough of the seas quickly became coated with ice. Both drifted south during the night, and at daylight their position was a few miles east of the Virgin Rocks, on the western edge of the Grand Banks. On Thursday morning the storm moderated, but the sea, running high, a boat could not be launched. Another plan was adopted and two lifeboats were fastened to a plank with a light line attached, was set adrift from the Capto. By skillful manoeuvring his ship Capt. Furneaux managed to secure the line and in a short while towing cables were again connected. The Sachem's course was altered to the north-west and all day good progress was made. On Friday morning thick snow again made navigation difficult. At 5.30 p.m. field ice was again encountered and the ship's course had to be altered to skirt it. During the night towing ceased, but was resumed Saturday morning, when the weather cleared. The ships expected to make port during the day, but a dense fog and rough sea made it advisable not to make the attempt. The position of the ships at noon on Saturday was about 30 miles S.E. of Cape Spear. During the night the fog lifted and at 10 o'clock the Sachem was again headed towards port. At 6 o'clock yesterday morning Capt. Spear was sighted and a few minutes after the tug boats Mouton, Cabot, John Green and Hugo appeared alongside. Pilots Malone (2), Walsh and Burke were placed on board, and after shortening the hawsers both ships were brought safely to anchor.

STORY OF THE "CAPTO."

S. S. Capto, Capt. Graun, left Navik, Norway, on Jan. 5th, laden with 6,000 tons iron ore for the British Empire Steel Co., Sydney, C.B. It was in the storm which the Sachem encountered on the 15th inst., that the ore boat became disabled. Early that morning a sea, striking the ship aft, carried away the rudder and caused other damages. For two days the steamer was continually swept by seas. Great difficulty was encountered in keeping the ship head on, and to add to the trouble the after peak filled with water. The leak is supposed to have been caused at the time the rudder was carried away. The damage to the steamer and the prevailing state of the weather made it impossible to rig a jury rudder, so the captain sent out S. O. S. calls to one of which the Sachem responded. A preliminary survey of the "Capto" was held this morning. The stern plating was found to be considerably damaged, and besides the loss of the rudder, the "Capto's" stern frame is also broken. It has not yet been decided as to what will be done with the ship.

To-Night's Game.

ST. BON'S vs. TERRA NOVAS
The final game of the first round in the League Hockey Series will be played to-night when St. Bon's and Terra Novas will be seen in action. Both teams have suffered two losses in the series to date, and the game to-night will be a battle for the much wanted 2 points. The lineup will probably be as follows:

Goal	St. Bon's
Left Defence	Halley
Right Defence	E. Phelan
Left Wing	G. Halley
Centre	W. Callahan
Right Wing	G. Muir
Reserves	Terra Novas, Parker, G. Gillie, W. Peters.
St. Bon's	J. G. Higgins, A. Collis, Dr. Fox.

PLAYER INJURED.
"Billie" Clouston, the Guards centre, who sustained a painful injury to his left arm during the Guards-Feldian game, may be out of the game for the rest of the season. An X-ray shows that the wrist bone is bruised, and the arm badly sprained; however it is hoped that massage treatment will do the needful and that Billie will be seen in action before the end of the series. Clouston's loss to the Guards will be a great handicap as he was their chief goal getter.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

AN OFFENSIVE ALLIANCE.
BELGRADE, Jan. 29.—The Government newspaper, Tribuna, says that to-day, Foreign Minister Tchitcherin of Russia, and Ismet Pasha have made a secret agreement at Lausanne, by which Russia and Turkey will give each other military support in the Near East in case hostilities are resumed. The agreement, which is said to have been accepted by both Soviet and Turkish Governments, stipulates that Russia will send several divisions into Mesopotamia, should British and Turks take up arms.

A LENGTHY DOCUMENT.
LAUSANNE, Jan. 29.—A draft of the proposed treaty of peace to be submitted to the Turks on Wednesday has been distributed semi-officially to all delegates. The document contains one hundred and sixty articles, with eight conventions annexed. There were no developments this morning, to show that Turks are more favorably disposed towards the signing.

RUSSIA AND JAPAN.
MOSCOW, Jan. 29.—The foreign office has sent a note to Japan protesting that Japanese pirates, with the assistance of employees of the Japanese Customs Service, sank the Russian ships Viga and Anna, after seizing their cargoes and killing the crews. The note places the responsibility with the Japanese Government.

V.C. VETERAN DEAD.
LONDON, Ont., Jan. 29.—Sergeant George Richardson, a Veteran of the Indian mutiny and Fenian raids and the oldest wearer of the Victoria Cross in the British Empire, died yesterday at Westminster Military Hospital, and will be buried in Toronto with full military honours. He received the V.C. in 1859 for service during the Indian mutiny, and was chosen to represent Canada at the burial of the unknown soldier at Washington.

BLOODLESS DISORDERS.
DUSSELDORF, Jan. 29.—Sporadic disorders of a minor nature occurred Saturday evening in Ruhr Valley, when French sentries, in Duisberg and Ratingen, were fired upon. In Dusseldorf French cavalry broke up a demonstration staged by a few hundred men, but none of the incidents resulted in casualties.

THE DISTRESSFUL ISLE.
LONDON, Jan. 29.—A Daily Express despatch from Dublin says rebels have destroyed the water works at Toghial, in reprisal for the execution of two men found possessing arms. Six thousand inhabitants are in a critical condition, with only one day's supply of water left. The despatch adds that every post office in West Ireland has been destroyed, and it is almost impossible to buy stamps or send or receive letters. The plight of Killarney, with six thousand inhabitants, is such, that all food and fuel supplies must be conveyed seventeen miles under military escort.

Smuggler Caught by Odor of His Wares.
MEXICO CITY.—Highly scented toilet soap is a dangerous product for smugglers to handle. Proof of this is the sudden demise several weeks ago of Martin Villareal, veteran Mexican smuggler, who ran afloat of customs guards at Nuevo Laredo and was killed. The guards were aroused to activity one day when breezes blowing off the Rio Grande wafted a strong scent of perfume. Investigation showed Villareal was attempting a crossing from the United States with 18 burros, each of which was carrying as many boxes of toilet soap as his back could hold. In the ensuing skirmish Villareal was killed and his soap confiscated. Custom guards along the Rio Grande say that toilet soaps and shampoos are the smugglers' favorite, next to liquor-running.

Minister O'Higgins Explain Irish Situation.
DUBLIN.—Writing regarding peace, Kevin O'Higgins, Minister for Home Affairs in the Irish Free State says: "The actual position is that a body of the people of the country, though numerically insignificant, refuse to accept the majority's will as a deciding factor in our political affairs, and declare there can be no peace on the basis of the treaty signed by five plenipotentiaries, endorsed by the Dail and accepted by the people. This minority is straining every nerve to restore British power in Ireland and to rob Irish people of the fruits of their struggle and sacrifices of the last six years. We members of the Government elected to the Dail Eireann to carry out the treaty would be false to our trust if we acquiesced in any way to such a programme."

Had Him There.
Jack Pickford, brother of Mary, who was recently married at Los Angeles, is fond of relating how he scored off a barber who wished to make a sale. The man had just shaved him, and wanted to sell him a lotion to use on his face when he shaved himself. "Is that what you use on your customers?" asked Jack. "No," replied the barber, "it's so expensive I cannot afford it." "If you can't afford it when you get twenty-five cents for shaving a man," returned Jack, "how do you expect me to afford it when I shave myself for nothing?"

U. F. Movement.

MEETINGS OF ENDORSATION HELD.
Chairman Capt. Jesse Winsor, received, on Saturday, the following reports of progress from the Delegates of the United Fishermen, who are now campaigning in the northern outposts:
Eastport, via Salvage, Jan. 27.—The United Fishermen delegates have visited all settlements from Glovertown to Salvage. The resolutions have been unanimously passed, and the cry of the people is for retrenchment.

King's Cove, Jan. 27.—A big public meeting was held last night at King's Cove, addressed by the United Fishermen delegates Winsor and White. The people strongly supported the movement.

ERNEST DEVINE, Chairman.
ELLI CURTIS, Secretary.
SAMUEL BROWN, of William.
WILSON BROWN.

King's Cove, Jan. 27.—Messrs. Winsor and White, United Fishermen delegates have held meetings at Stock Cove, Knight's Cove and at this place. The people are solid for the movement.

Broad Cove, B.D.V., Jan. 27.—The United Fishermen delegates, Roberts and Bragg, held a meeting here last night, which was a splendid success. The petitions were largely signed.

London Attempt to Solve The Servant Problem.
LONDON.—Graduating from offices, laundries, fashion salons and victuaries, 150 women, after 13 weeks training, are shortly to enter domestic service. This is being made possible by a course of intensive tuition under the auspices of the Central Committee on Women's Training in an attempt to solve the servant problem. The training is undertaken at a few centers, and the women will start out on the new venture with smart uniforms made under the guidance of their instructors at the various centers.

British Liberals.
MAY UNITE TO SAFEGUARD FUNDS.
LONDON.—The Asquith-Grey Liberals are casting a covetous eye upon the Lloyd George party funds, which are said to amount to more than two million pounds sterling. Their argument is that the subscribers to the Lloyd George fund gave their money to be used as Liberal propaganda, and not for the use of any one section of the party. This is said to be one of the compelling motives for a reunion of the two branches of the party. The Asquith-Grey Liberals have turned down the suggestion made by some of the subscribers to have the matter taken into court.

King Edward's Tailor Dies in Europe.
MARIENBAD, Czechoslovakia.—Wenzel Wilfert, for more than ten years court tailor to King Edward VII of England, died here recently at an advanced age. Because King Edward's clothes served as models of fashion, Wilfert's workmanship became widely known throughout Europe. Of late years the veteran tailor was proprietor of a local hotel. He not only served the English sovereign during the annual royal visit here, but sent the King's clothes from Marienbad to London during the winter months.

George! Oh, George!
"George! Oh, George! Come! Come!"
"What was that?" George brightly sprang up at the sound of his wife's voice raised in an earnest entreaty. She was in peril.
"George! Oh! Oh! Quickly!"
Oh, how he scrambled into his coat! Not a second must be lost. He must save her. She was in peril.
"George! George! George!"
He is on his way down, three steps at a time, to arrive, breathless, in the dining-room. "Oh! Oh! George, you are too late! Too late!"
"Too late!" gasped George, sinking into a chair.
"Yes, the baby had his toe in his mouth, and he looked so funny! I did want you to see him! Why didn't you come when I called!"

Chimes of Potsdam.
NOT RUNG IN VAIN.
POTSDAM.—"Always be honest and upright." So runs a familiar old German song, the music of which chimes regularly from the lofty tower of the famous garrison church of Potsdam. Away down below, in the results of the edifice, rest the bodies of Frederick the Great and his father, Frederick William I. The organist who plays these chimes was forced recently by hard times to apply for an increase in wages. When his application came before the City Council it met with opposition from the Communist aldermen because of their political objections to the selections played on the bells. Not only, they maintained, was "Always be honest and upright" being chimered forth, but the organist even went so far as to play "Deutschland Über Alles" on national holidays. The bourgeois representatives overruled these objections in favor of the organist, expressing themselves ready to live up to the "honest and upright" sentiment in their dealings with their employees. The Garrison church was built by Frederick William I, the first king of Prussia, and silencing of its chimes would mean almost as great a hardship in the lives of Potsdam's natives as would the closing of the gates to "Sans Souci."

Beavers Reappear.
ALONG THE ST. LAWRENCE.
BROOKVILLE, Ont.—Beavers have become so destructive along the St. Lawrence river that owners of islands in Canada and United States waters have been given permission by the Dominion Government to exterminate them on the Canadian side of the boundary. An experienced trapper has been engaged for the season and will make his headquarters on Dillingham's Island. The presence of the beaver was revealed last spring by the number of fallen trees that had been gnawed through at the base. Beavers have not been seen along the St. Lawrence before in a quarter of a century. They are protected by the game laws on the New York side of the river.

Men And Things at Greenspond.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—Having got settled away for a month or two after a very trying season in which we had to rough it to save our families from destitution, I thought I'd write a few lines to let the country know how things in general are shaping themselves. Since the Prospector's bill stop the authorities have been kept busy—so they say—and fail to find a place for a question mark. Anyway, there are no search warrants issued, yet, in spite of all that's being said. The salvors are anxious to have the matter settled as quickly as possible as some of them are in need. Some of the people who boarded the passengers have questioned the writer as to when they would be paid. The proper authorities will please take notice and govern themselves accordingly. (This matter of payment, has, we understand, been settled by the Coastal Dept.—Editor). The political situation seems to be more acute in Union circles as the agents and heeler have made strong appeals to have the ranks strengthened by giving little more for fish than our merchants, and promising passes for the Humber. A few nights ago another public meeting was held in Glover Hall to help the United Fishermen's delegates report. The speakers were accorded the highest appreciation by a packed hall and superb conduct, with an occasional outburst of enthusiasm giving them spurs to their harness. Democracy with a Big D is the aim of the people of this place, and a Government "of the people, by the people, for the people" the consummation of their activities. Messrs. Bragg, Carter, and White, representing the United Fishermen's Movement left by S.S. Fortia en route to St. John's, with others from Westville, to take their departure from the city to various places, proclaiming the messages of Liberation from Bondage by reduction of Expenditure. Recently a strike was made among the people by the prosecution of one of the many around here who was implicated in the pit prop business. A public meeting was convened by the prosecuted victim to get public sentiment on the action of the authorities in taking up one of the last to bring pitprops here, and moreover starting here when they knew of other places implicated in the scramble long before Greenspond. It is understood a resolution requesting the action of the authorities passed unanimously at that meeting, copies of same to be forwarded to the Minister of Justice, the Public Press and Magistrate James. The people say if punishment is to be meted out, then all must suffer and not one for all. It is commonly reported that some of our fearless and active citizens are determined to hold public meetings fortnightly or monthly, so that the people will have a chance of bringing everything of a public nature in the limelight for public scrutiny. Before concluding I wish to refer to another matter which has been reported, over which the public are indignant. It is understood that the Big Nine met in the Magistrate's office a day or two ago at the call of the magistrate, and the people are anxious to know for what. Rumor says they had to put the finishing strokes on Greenspond's attitude re reduction of taxation. Any way, we'll know shortly for it's hard to keep the cat in the bag regarding public matters these days. Our slogan is reduction of expenditure and taxation. Hoping you will find space for this letter and thanking you in anticipation of same.

FATHER DISCUSSES MODERNITY.
Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—In your issue of the 27th inst. you reprint an article from the Toronto "Sentinel" about the question of education in Newfoundland. The writer uses the following words: "Of all the systems of education that have come under the observation of the Sentinel, that which prevails in Newfoundland is the least calculated to secure efficiency and national unity." It is strange indeed that foreigners of every class and creed will persist in butting into our business in this way. George England would hand us over to Uncle Sam's tender mercies. Willy to a Canadian paper is disappointed with our system of education, and would revise it so that it would measure up to their modern ideas, but we, who would pay for both education and revising, are not to be allowed to please ourselves. Apparently the Sentinel does not think we are competent to educate ourselves. What do the Principals of Spencer, Field, St. Bon's and Methodist Colleges think of it? What about the S. A. College, Holy Cross, St. Patrick's, Presbyterian, Centenary, and all the rest of our schools? Do they teach inefficiency and national strife, rather than efficiency and national unity? Is it not time for the Sentinel to realize that the whole trouble with the world to-day is that we are too modern—we have run ahead of our depth. The clergy of the world, of all denominations, are daily telling us both in press and pulpit, that it is time we cried halt in our mad rush to destruction via "Modernism." If you can shimmy and jazz (the mere names are sufficient) talk flippantly on divorce, birth control, socialism and the rest of it, you are the lion of society to-day. All these are modern, up to date, advanced, and so also is the form of education which our friend the Sentinel would introduce into our midst. "Godless schools, God forbid." To exclude the very fountainhead of all wisdom from our children—to stand on the Church steps and say to Christianity "Thus far and no farther," to confine it to the Church alone, and forbid by legislation and the policeman's baton the entry of Christ into our schools, is this what we have to listen to from outsiders? A pretty pass indeed. "Suffer the little children to come unto Me, and forbid them not." We may not forbid the children, but by Sentinel methods we would surely forbid Christ. In other countries we see Godless schools, but they do not seem to have enlightened anyone very much. Kit Kixim, which is another name for hooded hoodlumism, is no credit to any country, modern or ancient. Bolshevism, socialism, creed, hate, envy and sloth are our principal ailments to-day, as an universe. Divorce and unchristian schools are not going to help us out of the rut into which we have dragged ourselves by our refusal to practice Christianity. When we go to war we get our clergy to bless and pray over our weapons. When we convene our peace conferences we tell the clergy to go to the devil. Another name is added to the long list of confessions which have failed that of Lausanne. The agent of the British Government has returned home after an unsuccessful endeavour to arrange payment of Britain's debt to the U.S.A. France is faced with the possibility of open war at any moment. Is this Christianity? What we need is Christ in the Church, the school, the home, the office and factory. And there are some who would say "the Church is the place for that" and try to forbid His coming among our children. God help us, for we certainly do need somebody's help to realize just where we are and whither tending. Why not try to amalgamate the different Churches; there is about the same possibility of success.
