AN UNHAPPY CABINET.

The Ottawa correspondent of the Hamilton Times says:—"Rumor says there are very serious difficulties in the Cabinet, chiefly of a personal character—that the real difficulty between Mr. Galt and the other members of the Cabinet were, that the Finance Minister was anxious to advance money to assist the Commercial Bank, while the other members of the Cabinet, including Sir John, insisted that such a course would be illegal."

FRIDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 15.

NORAH CUSHALEEN

HAUNTED CASTLE.

By this time Amelia was wrapped up for the mountain journey, and the Captain taking her by the hand, led her through to the other chamber, whose occupants were now in readiness to depart. Hargrave received her with cordial kindness, and the fair girl murmured some words of heart-felt thanks for the generous offer he had made to conduct her to a place of safety, and see her ultimately provided with a residence, where she would be unmolested by the heartless old man who had left her to such a horrible fate.

All things being prepared, Terry, who was dancing with delight at the idea of approaching freedom, lighted at the lamp above his head a torch which the captain had procured for them, and held the flaming flame forward into the dark mouth of the passage they were about to explore.

'Och, murder, Captain Jack, sur, but this is a queer looking avenue to yer castle,' he remarked, as his eye fell on the jagged corners of the damp and slimy wall. 'It's meself that's uv opinion that a coach and six couldn't drive up to yer hall door.'

'Well, lead the way my fine fellow, and see and take us right,' said the Captain. 'Above all don't let your torch go out, or we may be placed in an awkward predicament.'

'Here goes then,' cried Terry, 'axin' pardon for walkin' before yer honours and a lady.'

So saying, he stooped down and passed through the aperture. The Captain and Amelia followed, Hargrave went next, and Andrew brought up the rear.

For twenty or thirty yards the roof of the passage was so low that they had to stoop, as they stumbled over the uneven floor; but it gradually became more lofty and then they had liberty to walk erect. Terry held the torch high above his head so that its light might do most service to those behind; but as the passage was very narrow they had to walk in single file, and Andrew, who was last, had to stumble on in total darkness. This was no easy matter in such a place, particularly as he carried a bundle of provisions, and had but one hand to grope with. The passage was long and had many windings but as they advanced the current of cold air grew stronger, and had not such a damp earthy smell. The rocky walls, however, grew wet, and here and there water trickled down, and also fell from the roof, making the torch hiss and flicker in Terry's hand.

'Faix and it's meself that thinks we are getting below the bottom of the say,' said Terry.

'It certainly looks like it,' rejoined the Captain. 'Keep a careful look-out in front. There may be a deep pool before us.'

'Och murder, and we may be all killed in it afore ever we know,' said Terry, as with scrupulous anxiety he complied with the Captain's recommendation to look well in front.

'They did not find any pool in the path but the passage became wetter at every step, and a noise, at first faint and distant, increased at a sudden turn of the path to a rushing, roaring sound, which instantly brought Terry to a stand-still.

'Thunder and turf! he ejaculated, looking in consternation over the wall and roof of the gloomy passage. The others were likewise startled, and did not know what to make of it, but the Captain resigning Amelia to the charge of Hargrave, took the torch himself, and went forward.

They advanced a little distance further in the most cautious manner, the roaring noise increasing every moment, till it was as loud as thunder, when all at once the light fell upon a flashing splendour and spray floated in their faces like chill mist.

A broad waterfall was before them, descending from the heights above, and falling they could not see whither; but the broad watery sheet, sparkling as it fell with diamond brightness, seemed to quite block up the passage, and prevent further progress.

It was a magnificent spectacle they gazed on, and in less critical circumstances would have called forth their undoubted admiration; but inasmuch as it threatened to debar them from liberty, they could regard it only with dismay.

'Kiver the light, and we'll maybe mak out what sort of a thing it is,' suggested Andrew from the rear.

The captain, recognising at once the sensibleness of Andrew's idea, passed the torch back, and Andrew placed it behind a ledge of rock, which completely intercepted its rays. The captain and the others rubbed their eyes and looked up. There was the broad water all still before them, but there were also stars twinkling in a clear sky, and the dark slopes of a ravine stretching far down in front, in the depths of which a stream turbulently flowed.

Captain Jack, signaling to Hargrave and the others to remain where they were, advanced a few steps, and after peering closely on both sides, crept away on his hands and knees and disappeared. He was absent for some minutes, then returned, and taking Amelia in his arms, directed the others to follow.

They had to scramble down a very difficult and slippery path among the rocks the spray wetting them all the while like a shower of rain. At length they reached a platform close behind the waterfall, and by careful steps skirted the boiling, seething pool into which it descended with such a reverberating noise, till it emerged from the rock altogether, and stood at the bottom of the slope.

To ascend to the top of the glen was the next task, which they at length accomplished, and stood there panting with exhaustion, but now beyond the deafening roar of the water.

'It was some time before I could recognise the place,' remarked the Captain.—'Certainly no one dreams of a passage being behind the waterfall. We are now on the other side of the mountain—the side which faces the sea.'

'The very side for us,' remarked Andrew; 'that is, if the boat be still lying where we left her.'

'A boat!—have you a boat?' asked the Captain.

'Faix be shure we hae. Terry an' me cam' roop' in Maister Hargrave's frae Dundarra Bay, and left her at the fit of the glen.'

you to his with all speed. In a few hours your flight will be discovered, and the passage you have taken. I must, for form sake, send men in pursuit, and the further you are off the safer you will be from capture.'

'You go not with us then?' said Hargrave.

'I cannot,' returned the Captain. 'If possible I shall effect the quiet disorganization of the gang; but in any case I will quit the cave in two days.'

'When we shall expect you to join us at the ruined castle I told you of,' said Hargrave.

THIS ORIGINAL DOCUMENT IS IN VERY POOR CONDITION

WHICH IS WORSE?—We are all apt to sneer at the excruciating female hair-removal process. But a modern, scientific change, in many offices against good taste, and sacrifices of comfort and health, deserve more than sneers. But there is no cause of complaint against men in this matter. For the present style of pants and trousers can be made more ugly, uncomfortable and absurd. What a pretty figure on the field at a game of LaCrosse would one of these "shank-shank" make, and what a valuable acquisition he would make in a match game. As for comfort, enclosed in these candle-moulds one's ears do not stoop, nor laugh for fear of compound fracture—being restricted, like ladies with "enamel" faces. Tight boots are bad enough but tight pants are worse. While man let him first take the most out of his own.

PARIS EXPOSITION—The greater part of the Canadian objects have been sold and Mr. Tache expects all will be disposed of soon. Many are sold very cheap. Mr. Sherry Hunt has bought a part of the mineralogical collection to present to L'Hotel des Minnes, of Paris. Canadian furs are in great demand; but in Paris, they are so accustomed to imitations that our genuine furs, appear to them fabulous dear. Norway has made a sale-room of her section for furs, and has sold for many thousand francs.

NOVEMBER.
If a man is warned of danger and does not heed, and suffers, for instance, a broken limb, that is no reason why he should be held still and not have the healing process. Nor because a man is headless, and from exposure suffer disease of the throat, lungs, liver, kidneys, or digestive organs, &c. is that a reason why he should not seek help. And for the real cure of any of those diseases, were we asked for an opinion, we would say by all means use the Great Shoshonees Remedy.

ERRORS OF YOUTH—A Gentleman who suffered for years from Nervous Debility, Premature Decay, and all the effects of youthful indiscretion, will, for the sake of suffering humanity, send free to all who need it, the recipe and the directions for making the simple remedy by which he was cured. Sufferers wishing to profit by the advertiser's experience, can do so by addressing, in perfect confidence, JAMES H. GORDON, 42 Cedar St., New York.

Permanent and Wide-spread Success is the Best Evidence of the goodness of Brandreth's Pills.

They should be in every family, ready for use on the first symptoms of disease occurring. This method will often save life. Nervous debility must be treated as a poison, and your safety demands that you get rid of it without delay. Colds, rheumatism, skin eruptions, diarrhoea, colic, in fact, all ailments the consequence of active impurities in the blood. These being removed, the health is restored at once. Observe my name in the Government stamp in white letters. Sold by Druggists.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

THE REV. EDWARD A. WILSON will send (free of charge) to all who desire it, the prescription with the directions for making and using the simple remedy by which he was cured of a lung affection and that dread disease Consumption. His only object is to benefit the afflicted, and he hopes every sufferer will try this prescription, as it will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing. Please address
REV. EDWARD A. WILSON, No. 165 South Second Street, Williamsburgh, N. Y.

COUGHS AND COLDS.

Sudden changes of climate are sources of Pulmonary, Bronchial and Asthmatic affections. Experience having proved that simple remedies often act speedily and certainly when taken in the early stages of the disease, recourse should be at once had to "Brown's Bronchial Troches," or Lozenges. Few are aware of the importance of checking a cough, or "common cold," in its first stage. That which in the beginning would yield to a mild remedy, if neglected, soon attacks the lungs. "Brown's Bronchial Troches," or Cough Lozenges, allay irritation which induces coughing, having a direct influence on the affected parts. As there are imitations, be sure you mark the genuine. Sold by all dealers in medicine at 25 cents a box.

A large Frame Barn 60x30, with 18 feet posts and underground stabling, and a never-failing spring in the barn yard for the supply of water to cattle. This is a very eligible property, and will worthy the attention of those who wish to obtain a good farm.

Also—Lot 2, in the 3rd Concession of Bentick, West of the Durham Road, 100 acres, about 12 acres cleared, with a Frame House on the Lot.—The Rocky Saugen River crosses one corner of this Lot, and has a valuable water power on it, capable of driving any machinery.

Also—Lot 25, in the 1st Concession, South of the Durham Road, three miles from the Village of Preville, in the Township of Arden, containing about 25 acres cleared and fenced on this lot with a good new Log House. The above lands are well situated and timbered with the best kind of hard wood timber, with indisputable titles—the last two being direct grants from the Crown. For further particulars, &c., apply to the proprietor.

INDIA & CHINA TEA CO'Y.

Home Depot at London and Liverpool. Canada Depot, 23 Hospital Street, Montreal.

THE India and China Tea Company beg to call the attention of the Canadian community to their directly imported Teas, which for purity and excellence will be found unequalled.

The Company have made arrangements whereby they have secured the entire production of the best plantations in Assam and on the slopes of the Himalayas, and by a judicious blending of these magnificent Teas with the best varieties of China produce, they are enabled to offer to the public Tea of quality and favour hitherto unknown to the general consumer. These Teas are in high favour in England and France, and a single trial will prove their superiority.

The Company supply two qualities only, either Black, Green or Mixed. Their Black Teas will be found to possess great brilliancy and flavour, combined with colour and strength, and to be entirely different to the flat and rapid article usually sold as Black Tea, while their Green Teas are altogether free from the deleterious mineral powder so commonly used for coloring the leaf.

PRICES: Rich, full-flavored Tea, for family use, at real genuine and fine article 75 cents per lb. Finest quality procurable, one dollar per lb.

The above can be had either Black, Green or Mixed.

To be had in packets of Quarter Pound Half Pound, One Pound, and upwards, or in tin canisters of 5 lbs. and upwards, from the Company's Agents in all the chief towns of Canada—N. B. All the packages are lined with tin foil paper, and the Tea will consequently retain its flavour any length of time.

OSSEVA.—All packages have the Company's trade-mark, with the name of the tea and genuine.

THIS ORIGINAL DOCUMENT IS IN VERY POOR CONDITION

WHICH IS WORSE?—We are all apt to sneer at the eccentricities of female fashion—and goodness knows its frequent changes, its many offences against good taste, and sacrifices of comfort and health, deserve more than sneers. But is there no cause of complaint against men in this matter? Let the present style of pants answer. Can anything be more ugly, uncomfortable and absurd? What a pretty figure on the feet of a game of LaCrosse would one of these "hunk-shank" make, and what a valuable acquisition he would make in a match game. As for comfort, encased in these candle-moulds one dare not stoop, nor laugh, for fear of compound fracture—being restricted, like ladies with enamelled faces. Tight boots are bad enough but tight pants are worse. While man beholds the beam in the eye of woman let him first take the most out of his own.

PARIS EXPOSITION.—The greater part of the Canadian objects have been sold and Mr. Tache expects all will be disposed of soon. Many are sold very cheap. Mr. Steery Hunt has bought a present to L'Escole des mines, of Paris. Canadian furs are in great demand; but in Paris, they are so accustomed to imitations that our genuine furs, appear to them fabulous dear. Norway has made a sale-room of her section for furs, and has sold for many thousand francs.

NOVEMBER.

If a man is warned of danger and does not heed, and suffers, for instance, a broken limb, that is no reason why he should be heedless still, and not favor the healing process. Nor because a man is heedless, and from exposure suffers disease the throat, lungs, liver, kidneys, or digestive organs, &c., is that a reason why he should not seek help. And for the real cure of any of these diseases, we are asked for an opinion, we would say by all means use the Great Shoshonees Remedy.

ERRORS OF YOUTH.—A Gentleman who suffered for years from Nervous Debility, Premature Decay, and all the effects of youthful indiscretion, will, for the sake of suffering humanity, send free to all who need it, the remedy he discovered for making the simple remedy by which he was cured. Sufferers wishing to profit by the advertiser's experience, can do so by addressing, in perfect confidence, JOHN B. OGDEN, 707-1/2 Cedar St., New York.

Permanent and Wide-spread Success is the Best Evidence of the goodness of Brandreth's Pills.

They should be in every family, ready for use on the first symptoms of disease occurring. This method will often save life. Remember, Cholera must be treated as a poison, and your safety demands it should be got off without delay. Cholera, rheumatism, asthma, pleurisy, diarrhoea, colic, &c., in fact, all sickness is the consequence of impurities in the blood. These being removed, the health is restored at once. Observe my name in the Government stamp in white letters. Sold by Druggists. Lm B. BRANDRETH, Nov. 7.

COUGHS AND COLDS.

Sudden changes of climate are sources of Pulmonary, Bronchial and Asthmatic affections. Experience having proved that simple remedies of effect speedily and certainly when taken in the early stages of the disease, recourse should be had to "Brown's Bronchial Troches," or Lozenges. Few are aware of the importance of checking a cough, or "common cold," in its first stage. That which in the beginning would yield to a mild remedy, if neglected, soon attacks the lungs.

"Brown's Bronchial Troches," or Cough Lozenges, having a direct influence on the affected parts. As there are indications, be sure to obtain the genuine. Sold by all dealers in medicine at 25 cents a box.

FRIDAY EVEN'G, NOVEMBER 15.

NORAH CUSHALEEN

HAUNTED CASTLE.

By this time Amelia was wrapped up for the mountain journey, and the Captain taking her by the hand, led her through to the other chamber, whose occupants were now in readiness to depart. Hargreave received her with cordial kindness, and the fair girl murmured some words of heart-felt thanks for the generous offer he had made to conduct her to a place of safety, and see her ultimately provided with a residence, where she would be unmolested by the heartless old man who had left her to such a horrible fate.

All things being prepared, Terry, who was dancing with delight at the idea of approaching freedom, lighted at the lamp above his head a torch which the captain had procured for them, and held the flaming flame forward into the dark mouth of the passage they were about to explore.

'Och, murder, Captain Jack, sur, but this is a queer looking avenue to yer castle,' he remarked, as his eye fell on the jagged corners of the damp and slimy wall. 'It's meself that's uv opinion that a coach and six couldn't drive up to yer hall door.'

'Well, lead the way my fine fellow, and see and take us right,' said the Captain. 'Above all don't let yer torch go out, or we may be placed in an awkward predicament.'

'Here goes then,' cried Terry, 'axin' pardon for walkin' before yer honours and a lady.'

So saying, he stooped down and passed through the aperture. The Captain and Amelia followed, Hargreave went next, and Andrew brought up the rear.

For twenty or thirty yards the roof of the passage was so low that they had to stoop, as they stumbled over the uneven floor; but it gradually became more lofty and then they had liberty to walk erect. Terry held the torch high above his head so that its light might do most service to those behind; but as the passage was very narrow they had to walk in single file, and Andrew, who was last, had to stumble on in total darkness. This was no easy matter in such a place, particularly as he carried a bundle of provisions, and had but one hand to grope with.

The passage was long and had many windings but as they advanced the current of cold air grew stronger, and had not such a damp earthy smell. The rocky walls, however, grew wet, and here and there water trickled down, and also fell from the roof, making the torch hiss and flicker in Terry's hand.

'Faix and it's meself that thinks we are getting below the bottom of the say,' said Terry.

'It certainly looks like it,' rejoined the Captain. 'Keep a careful look-out in front. There may be a deep pool before us.'

'Och murder, and we may be all killed in it afore ever we know,' said Terry, as with scrupulous anxiety he complied with the Captain's recommendation to look well in front.

They did not find any pool in the path but the passage became wetter at every step, and a noise, at first faint and distant, increased at a sudden turn of the path to a rushing, roaring sound, which instantly brought Terry to a stand-still.

'Thunder and turf!' he ejaculated, looking in consternation over the wall and roof of the gloomy passage. The others were likewise startled, and did not know what to make of it, but the Captain resigning Amelia to the charge of Hargreave, took the torch himself, and went forward.

They advanced a little distance further in the most cautious manner, the roaring noise increasing every moment, till it was as loud as thunder, when all at once the light fell upon a flashing splendour and spray floated in their faces like chill mist.

A broad waterfall was before them, descending from the heights above, and falling they could not see whither; but the broad watery sheet, sparkling as it fell with diamond brightness, seemed to quite block up the passage, and prevent further progress.

It was a magnificent spectacle they gazed on, and in less critical circumstances would have called forth their undoubted admiration; but inasmuch as it threatened to debar them from liberty, they could regard it only with dismay.

'Kiver the light, and we'll maybe mak out what sort of a thing it is,' suggested Andrew from the rear.

The captain, recognising at once the sensibleness of Andrew's idea, passed the torch back, and Andrew placed it behind a ledge of rock, which completely intercepted its rays. The captain and the others rubbed their eyes and looked up. There was the broad water all still before them, but there were also stars twinkling in a clear sky, and the dark slopes of a ravine stretching far down in front, in the depths of which a stream turbulently flowed.

Captain Jack, signaling to Hargreave and the others to remain where they were, advanced a few steps, and after peering closely on both sides, crept away on his hands and knees and disappeared. He was absent for some minutes, then returned, and taking Amelia in his arms, directed the others to follow.

They had to scramble down a very difficult and slippery path among the rocks the spray wetting them all the while like a shower of rain. At length they reached a platform close behind the waterfall, and by careful steps skirted the boiling seething pool into which it descended with such a reverberating noise, till it emerged from the rocks altogether, and stood at the bottom of the slope.

To ascend to the top of the glen was the next task, which they at length accomplished, and stood there panting with exhaustion, but now beyond the deafening roar of the water.

'It was some time before I could recognise the place,' remarked the Captain. 'Certainly no one dreams of a passage being behind the waterfall. We are now on the other side of the mountain—the side which faces the sea.'

'The very side for us,' remarked Andrew; 'that is, if the boat be still lying whaur we left her.'

'A boat—have you a boat?' asked the Captain.

'Tae be shure we hae. Terry an' me cam' roop' in Maister Hargreave's frae Dundarra Bay, and left her at the fit o' the glen.'

you to hie with all speed. In a few hours your flight will be discovered, and the passage you have taken. I must, for form sake, send men in pursuit, and the further you are off the safer you will be from capture.'

'You go not with us then?' said Hargreave.

'I cannot,' returned the Captain. 'If possible I shall effect the quiet disorganization of the gang; but in any case I will quit the cave in two days.'

'When we shall expect you to join us at the ruined castle I told you of,' said Hargreave.
