

TERRIBLE YOUTHFUL DEPRAVITY.
Little Girls in Toronto Who are Leading an Abandoned Life on the Street.

It is not the wish or purpose of The World to pandering to the vicious or rake up social scenes and ulcers that had better be left untold in the public prints; but a case came under the notice of one of our reporters yesterday that should receive consideration from the police of the well-wishers of society at large. It is no great secret to many people in Toronto who are on the streets every day and have an opportunity of learning such things that there are in this city not a few, probably 20 or 30, girls of very tender years who are actually leading an abandoned life. As a case in point a World reporter can furnish this one. Yesterday afternoon two girls, certainly not over 12 years of age, were standing near St. James cathedral. A middle aged man, who afterwards said his name from Elora on an excursion, was passing along the street, when he was accosted by one of the girls. The latter entered into a rather "free" conversation with him, and after ten minutes talked to him as if he would not treat them to beer. The man said that no one would sell them liquor. The girl then assured him that they could get all he wanted to pay for and indicated a place on York. The next proposition they made was for the stranger to rent a room in a place they represented to be a house of assignation on the same street, and they assured him that they would have a good time. This is but one of the painful cases that have happened lately, and is positively correct in every particular.

THE CHICORA BOY.

O'Neill and Hurst Convicted in the Police Court Yesterday.
Yesterday afternoon the adjourned case against James O'Neill and John Hurst for creating a row on the steamer Chicora on July 29 was resumed before Justice Baxter and Love. Mr. Bigelow appeared for the captain of the Chicora, and Messrs. Murphy & Murdoch defended. The trial lasted four hours. A large amount of evidence was taken, which was a very contradictory nature. The presiding magistrate retired at 4 o'clock and passed sentence at 4.15. Mr. Baxter sentenced at length and referred to the evidence in British street and around the captain of a vessel in maintaining order. There was no doubt in his mind that there was a riot on board. He was there himself and witnessed part of it. He said that the boat was filled by over 700 citizens, over half of whom were ladies and children. The lives of the passengers were jeopardized in the event of a general row starting and the safety of the vessel was at stake. People who went onto a holiday were not to be afflicted with rowdyism and danger. He and his brother magistrate had weighed the evidence carefully and both were of the same opinion. Conviction was the only course open to them. O'Neill was fined $50 without costs or 30 days in jail, and Hurst $40 without costs or 20 days in jail. Mr. Murphy gave notice of appeal. A center charge was also entered. Against the mate of the boat by John Morrison, which will be tried before the magistrate when he returns.

THE MISSING MIDSHIPMAN.

Capt. De Chair in Toronto—How His Son was Captured by Arabi—Where He Now is.
A visit was made last night at the World office to Dr. Mulvaney by Captain De Chair of London, England. Capt. De Chair is father of Midshipman De Chair, now in the hands of Arabi, and of whose capture and antecedents the most widely understood accounts have been given. Midshipman De Chair is a Canadian, born not at Halifax as stated in the papers, but at Lennoxville, Quebec, where his father lived for four years, having married the daughter of Mr. Rawson, an English gentleman who was on a visit to the Midshipman De Chair on a private reconnaissance, as also stated by the reliable newspapers in this city, but in a letter as bearer of despatches from Admiral Seymour to the Khedive. He lost his way having no escort, and was captured by the Arabi on the ground before. The Arab troops captured him, and brought him before their chief, who said, "Well, so you are in the presence of the man who captured your father. I am speaking further to the youth admired his dauntless bearing and turning to his captor said, "This boy gives an example of courage to all of you. There shall not a hair of his head be harmed." He then enquired if his parents were living, and being told they were, he said, how alarmed they will be to hear you are in our hands! I will then send you to live in a palace at Cairo, with two of his own English speaking officers as companions. He was last seen in the street smoking a cigarette. His parents have heard from him since his capture, and his "it" has been sent him under a flag of truce.

THE CITY IN BRIEF.

Mr. P. Purcell was in the city yesterday. The Beauséjour avenue sewer was commenced yesterday.
A false fire alarm was sounded between 1 and 2 this morning.
Dr. Will will preach to-day at the Grimsby camp ground.
Reeve Wickson of Yorkville is now in favor of annexation with Toronto.
Chas. M. Parker of Detroit Every Saturday was in the city yesterday.
Ex-Ald. Piper returned from his trip to the leading American cities yesterday.
Over 500 people from Elora were in the city yesterday. It was the civic holiday there.
Grip of this week has two good cartoons, one on the Blain-Blake episode the other on the Grand Trunk monopoly.
Frank Macdonald arrived in the city yesterday on route for Winnipeg, where he goes on a ten-day's visit. He left last night.
"As the swallows homeward fly," says the song. Torontonians who have been abroad during the summer are returning to the city.
Jacob Thornton, a compositor on the Globe, died suddenly yesterday morning at his residence in Parkdale from enlargement of the heart.
The property owners of Alexander street are petitioning for a cedar-block pavement. There is a difference of opinion, however, as to its probable cost.
At the police court yesterday John Shields elected to be tried by a jury on a charge of stealing a quantity of tools from the shop of Jas. H. Miller.
Pinafore was presented at Horticultural gardens last night to a very good house. To-night Pinafore will be given for the last time, when the engagement closes.
There will be a general meeting of short-

Handwritten at Thos. Bengough's office at 4 o'clock this morning.

by Detective Brown at 5 o'clock last night at Yonge and Toronto streets on a charge of receiving money under false pretences. The complainant is James Livingston, bookkeeper at the Walker. Hepler in duce Livingston to cash a check for $25 and when it was presented at the bank the teller said he knew nothing of the writer of the check. The same party absconded Mr. Gamble, the shoe dealer of the Roostia house block, to accept a worthless check. When Hepler heard that Mr. Gamble was a warrant out for him he sent a man around with the money fraudulently obtained.

The Temperance Question.

Mr. Hoopes of Philadelphia employs 600 men in his iron works, and he has solved the temperance question to his own satisfaction. He says the Germans, who drink beer, give no trouble; they do not go upon the spree and neglect their work. The first time a healthy drinker returns to his shop after a debauch he is told that he cannot come in unless he brings a certificate from his priest, or clergyman, or a form, duly signed, showing that he has taken the pledge to abstain for six months, or a year, or two years, or some other term, the proprietor of the works. Thus Mr. Hoopes is now compelling his men to abstain from liquor.

DOINGS OVER THE DON.

The city corporation have made up their mind not to water the Kingston road, Messrs. Leslie & Son have secured an old water cart, and it can now be seen doing duty on the Kingston road, laying the clouds of dust on the streets.
The reform committee have decided to hold a grand picnic in honor of the return of Hon. A. Mackenzie to the commons for East York. It will be at Victoria park on Aug. 30.
Yesterday men were engaged in putting up toll bars on the side line leading of the Kingston road, twenty miles, much to the indignation of county ratepayers. Owing to Eastern avenue being blocked on account of a main sewer being laid, the road is now compelled to travel the Kingston road and pay toll and county taxes to reach the city. The culminating point was reached yesterday at the junction of the line, thus preventing an outlet to Gerrard street unless paying tribute to the mercenary toll grabber.
On 10th: That two fashionable weddings will take place to-morrow night. The brides being the only daughter of a prominent gentleman of Riverside, the other a young lady of the name of Rogers, who has been guest of the other for some weeks past, and has promised her heart and hand to a well-to-do young merchant of Winnipeg, whose met at the residence of her host.

THE SPORTING WORLD.

Sleepy Tom, the famous pacer, is for sale at Chicago.
Tom Allen up for a benefit at Spitalfield on Monday.
A day's racing may be expected on the Plains of Abraham, Quebec, about Aug. 30.
Billy Jordan, the veteran pugilist, one of the best in his day, has arrived in New York from London.
It is understood that James Elliott's backers have decided to find him $2500 stakes to fight Tom Wilson.
The trotting stallion Admiral, valued at $6000 now laid last week and was killed. He was owned by W. D. Hill of Greenwich.
The Halifax rowing association proposes to hold a regatta in Halifax early next month. Prizes are to be offered sufficient to attract the best crews in the country.
A despatch from Union Springs says that Courtney said: "It will be a hard struggle, but I am going to row for all I am worth."
Black Cloud and Scott's Thomas, two of the most prominent stallions entered in the race between the American and the Canadian, were defeated by the former having the spring half and the latter being stone blind. Either can trot 2:18 or better.
At Nantasket beach, Mass., twenty-seven started in a match against the late Captain Webb, but he easily won the first prize, $500, being the only one to cover the distance, which was about five miles.
Captain Riley of New York, who was allowed one minute and forty seconds, only covered the distance in half in 1b. 44m. The attendance was large.
The RIFLE MATCH FINISHED.
HAMILTON, Aug. 17.—The international rifle match between the army and the militia of New York, and the Victoria rifle club of this city, was concluded this morning. The Canadians scored 362 at the 1000 yards range and the Americans 379 at the same range. The Canadian won by ten points. Total at the three ranges, Canadians 1079, Americans 1179.
BARRAGE RACE YESTERDAY.
At Boston—Buffalo 6, Boston 1. At Troy—Troy 4, Chicago 7.
At St. Louis—Athletic 5, St. Louis 5. At Louisville—Ellipse 8, Allegheny 2. At Cincinnati—Cincinnati 11, Baltimore 1. At Providence, R. I.—In the game between the Providence and Detroit the Providence made one run. This extraordinary game closed with Providence 1, Detroit 0. At New York—Metropolitans 12, Trentons 4.
SANTA CLAUDE WINS THE STALLION RACE.
ROOSTER, N. Y., Aug. 17.—There was a small attendance at the race to-day owing to the great interest manifested in the proceedings of the firemen's convention. The track was between the heavy from the heavy rain in the morning, but the sport nevertheless was good and considerable money changed hands on the stallion race. Special poing race, purse $1000, divided, the Lumber Jack 1:41, Fuller 2:12, Bessie M 3:48, Warrior 4:34, time 2:23, 2:21, 2:21, 2:22. Special stallion race, purse $4000, divided, Santa Clara 3:11, Black Cloud 1:22, Jerome Eddy 2:38, Von Armin dunn; time 2:21, 2:25, 2:19, 2:01.

Ontario the West Country Yet.

Mr. Henry Brubacher of Berlin will have above 36000 bushels of what this year off his two farms. What he has sown so far has yielded over 40 bushels per acre. The lot on Water street, near the station, which is one and fifth acre in dimensions and 65 bushels, or over 50 bushels per acre.
Mr. Mowat and the Mail.
There is no man in public life more respected on both sides than the Hon. Oliver Mowat, M.P. He is a man who is so honored and respected, deservedly so, all parties admit, is the person whom the Mail, the leading organ of the conservative party demands itself by calling "the Hon. donkey." It might be interesting to see the fellow who writes such backguardianism mentally and morally bestial, and a splendid specimen of manhood he transduce.

NOTES FROM OTTAWA.

The Pontiac and Pacific—The Charges Against Clergymen.
OTTAWA, Aug. 17.—The location of the line of the Pontiac and Pacific Junction railway will be completed this week. Over 200 men are employed on the road. An engine will be put on in a few days.
The committee appointed to investigate into the charges made against the Rev. W. A. Allen of Metairie, by some of the members of his congregation, find that the charges were malicious, without foundation, and made in a spirit of vindictiveness, and, therefore, connote the reversed gentleman from all the accusations brought against him.
The Ottawa four-oared crew left this morning for Lachine, to participate in the regatta on the 18th and 19th. Their backers feel very confident of success.
Hon. Jas. Sturges continues to improve in health and will shortly be able to be out.
John Haggart, Mr. Methot, and Dr. Benin, M.P.s, are in the city. Major Henry Stewart, M.P., is in the city. Major Stewart, M.P., has returned to the house of commons, has returned to the city. In the absence of Major Hoggart, he ordered to rejoin his regiment, he will act as A. D. C. to Major-General J. F. M. Horner, the inventor of a new mail bag, is in the city for the purpose of receiving the authorities of the P. C. department with a view to induce them to use his invention in Canada. It has been adopted by the U. S. postal authorities.
Arabi Pasha a Spaniard.
A leading organ of Madrid states that the father of Arabi Pasha was a maker of wooden cases in which dried rations were kept at Barcelona. Arabi was brought up to his father's trade, according to this account, but, manifesting a love of reading, was sent to the University of Valencia, where for four years he studied law. But he abandoned his legal studies and became a chorus singer. After this escapade he was next sent to Morocco in a regiment of lancers, in which he had enlisted in 1859 and received for his bravery three decorations and a commission as Lieutenant. Falling in love after the evacuation of Tetuan with the daughter of a rich Jewish merchant, he deserted from the Spanish army and fled to Algiers, where he became a merchant vessel, which was shipwrecked in the Straits of Bab-el-Mandeb. Arabi escaped, and after some wandering in Abyssinia and Yubah, he returned to his native land, and, as an East Indian Adventure.

An East Indian Adventure.

I retired to my tent one evening greatly fatigued, and during the night I had an adventure, which might have terminated with more loss to myself had I slept sounder.
My bed, a low charpoy, or "four feet," was in one corner of the tent, close to a door, and I awoke several times from a feverish doze, fancying I heard something moving steadily in my tent. But I could not get up, as I was under my head, and Indian law, forbidding the table. I therefore again waded the balmy power and slept.
At length, just as the "iron tongue of midnight" had toll twelve—I had looked at my watch but five minutes before, and replaced under my pillow—I was awakened by a sudden knock under my head, and half opening my eyes, without changing the position of my body, I saw a hideous black man standing at my feet, and the owner of this index of a cat's paw, or at least a cat's paw disposition, kneeling on the carpet, with one hand under my pillow, and the other grasping, not a dagger, but the doorpost.
Still, without moving my body and with half-closed eyes, I gently stole my hand to my head, and, as I was already placed between my bed and the wall; and as soon as I had clutched it I made a rapid and violent movement, in order to wrench it from its place, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the robber, my hands, in placing the weapon in its usual recess, had forced the points into the top of the tent and the but into the ground so firmly that I failed to extract it. I then, in a moment, raised my hand, and, as I was already placed upon the intruder's body, but I wrenched in vain. Fortunately for the