Rev. T. Decourcy Rayner, who has for the past six and half years been pastor of Watford Congregational church (now Pilgrim United), this week accepted a call to the continuing Presbyterian churches in Wallacetown and West Lorne, one of the strong charges in London Presbytery. In addition to being an unusually strong circuit, it is equipped with a fully modern, commodious manse, recently rebuilt, and the call carries with it a substantial increase in salary. The manse is situated in Wallacetown, about two miles south of Dutton, and the West Lorne church is about ten miles distant.

Married Women May Vote

$2.00 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE In United States $2.50

Considerable misunderstanding has apparently arisen over the question of wives of property holders and tenants having a vote at municipal elections. Perhaps the fact that Watford citizens have not been privileged to exercise their franchise at municipal elections for three years, is in some measure responsible for this perplexity on the part of some.

measure responsione for this perplexity on the part of some.

The law, as it stand, for municipal purposes extends the franchise to all married women as well as female property owners in their own right, and their names appear as such on the local voters' list.

Watford to Have Election for Reeve and Council After Three Years or Acclamation

By far the best nomination meeting in years was held in the Music Hall on Monday evening, Clerk W. S. Fuller, presiding. The hall was practically filled, for the first time in many years, and the meeting on a whole was the most satisfactory municipal meeting held in Watford in recent years. Ratepayers had no axes to grind with the retiring Council and Reeve Connolly gave an exhaustive resume of the year's work as Reeve in the Municipal Council, as representative in the County Council and as chairman of the Public Utilities Commission. Ratepayers received a volume of information concerning matters in each of these three divisions of his work and most of the questions put to him were courteously seeking intelligent information. By far the best nomination meetformation.

Two or three sharp encounters ensued between the Reeve, J. D. Brown and R. H. Stapleford, resulting from criticisms to his stand on various municipal matters, such as waterworks mains, street lighting service and soldiers' memorial inactivity, but resulted in nothing spectacular, and all parties retained their composure.

The Parliamentary Situation

The Parliamentary Situation
Although about twenty constituencies remain to be heard from definitely, it is not anticipated that any unforeseen obstacle will arise to prevent the assembling of Parliament on December 10th. Some officials of the House claim that a quorum is sufficient to constitute a meeting of Parliament, but that no vote could be taken till all the writs are returned and every member elected on October 29th gazetted Colonel O. M. Biggar, Chief Electoral Officer, expects to have the situation finally cleared up in time for the opening.

DOHERTY RESIGNS SEAT

Some speculation exists as to the reasons underlying the action of Hon. Manning Doherty, former Minister of Agriculture in the Drury Cabinet, in resigning his seat as member of the Ontario Legislation for East Kent. The reasons set forth by Mr. Doherty in a letter to his constituents, are that his sympathies are now with Conservation. All the Lamonton and Calgary, to Vancouver. Hon. of the soil. Now, with the best of feeling between the two men, he sacceeds to the Premiership.

FUNERAL

In bitterly cold weather and in the midst of a swiring snowstorm, London paid final tribute to Queen Alexandra las. Friday when with impressive funeral pomp the public service at Westminster Abbcy was conducted after 100,000 persons had filed past the bier of the much loved Queen Mother. In striking contrast was the simple service conducted in the Albert Memorial Chappe on Saturday in the presence of a little group of about twenty of her immediate relatives, headed by King George, and including the Kings of Denmark and Norway. The casket, hidden by a mass of flowers, was left in the chapel to be removed a few days hence to the crypt where it will be placed beside that of King Edward and their eldest son, the Duke of Clarence.

Three tragic deaths occurred in connection with the passing of the Queen Mother. Lady Pryke, wife of the newly-installed Lord Mayor of London, died suddenly of heart failure after attending a morial service at St. Paul's Cathedral; Canon Westlake, an official of Westminster Abbey, upon whom had fallen much of the labor of arranging for the services in that ancient pile, died at his home after returning from the public service; and at Sunderland, the warden of a church was accidentally killed while muffling the bells for tolling.

without portfolio, just before the election, but was unsuccessful in his efforts to secure a seat in Durham.

PENINSULAR WINTER FAIR CHATHAM

The large local support given the Winter Fair by the general public during the past two shows has enabled the Directors to stage a Third Fair which promises, according to entries, to be the most successful of the three. Local exhibitors are increasing very fast and in corn, particularly, there should be 100 junior farmers who have not previously exhibited at the Winter Fair. Quite a large number are bringing horses, cattle, sheep or swine. The result in the future of such effort is difficult to calculate.

The largest tent will again be erected on the market square. The horses and cattle will be housed in the Harrington, Merchants' Delivery and Wildgen barns; the poultry will have the entire top floor of the Harrington. The sheep and pigs will be in the building opposite to the C.P.R. station.

Ladies and Gentlemen:

I am again seeking re-election as one of your Councillors for the coming year. I have endeavored to serve you faithfully during the past four years in the municipal council, and if you feel my work has been for the best interests of the town, I will appreciate a continuance of your support.

Village of Watford

To the Electors:—
You will again find my name down near the center of the ballot, seeking re-election to serve you as Councillor for another year. My many years of service in the 'Council have always been devoted to the interests of the town as a whole and a constant endeavor to conserve the finances. I will appreciate your support on Monday next, and in turn, will do all in my power to merit your confidence.

The annual meeting of the W. A. of St. Mary's church, Warwick, was held at the Rectory, where, in addition to packing a good bale and presenting a very satisfactory report, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—President, Mrs. A. Cox secretary-treasurer, Mrs. E. Herbert; delegate to the annual meeting in London, Mrs. B. Dann; substitute, Miss D. Wordsworth.

The W.M.S. of Zion United church met at the home of Mrs. R. Wynn, on Nov. 12th, there were 13 members and two visitors present. Meeting opened by singing a hymn and all repeating the Lord's praver. Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. C.C. Fuller. Minutes of last meeting were read and adopted. A chapter on "Building with India" was read by five ladies. Mrs. T. H. Fuller gave interesting news from China, after which Mrs. W. E. Parker closed with prayer. We then packed two-bales valued at $57, one for Fred Victor Mission. Toranto, and one for All People's Mission, Hamiton. Rest Fund collection $5.30. Next meeting at Mrs. F. A. Wynn's Dec. 10th

Photographs can now be taken with a solid steel ball-bearing substituted for a lens. It would seem impossible that an opaque obstacle could achieve such a purpose, but Prof. A. O. Rankine, an English scientist, has recently shown that it can be done. It is essential that the obstacle should be a true sphere, such as a ball-bearing, and the phenomenon depends on the light waves curling round its edges. The amount of light so focussed to an image is very small, and it is doubtful if the device will ever have a practical value for photographers. In order

7. Do not open the fire door to check the fire; learn to use the dampers to control the rate of burning. All air admitted above the fire in excess of that needed for combustion simply cools the heating surfaces which furnish the heat for the house.

8. When firing coal for a long run, or banking for the night, use any fine coals for this purpose that may have accumulated. When banking, live fire should be evenly dis-At this music-hall any aspirant to stage success can have a free "audition." Several old "stars," who topped the bill in their day, have performed there.

Being refused a part is a tragedy of the sadder kind. "Some of these auditions," M. Samett related, "can tear the heart-strings. One woman advanced to sing a song, and after a few bars fell in a dead faint. She was starving, yet you can find her name in the stage "Who's Who."

11. To save the heat made by burning coal, the following suggestions may appeal to some:

(a) Do not heat unused rooms;
(b) let in sunshine; (c) pull down shades at night; (d) do not ventilate unnecessary all night; (e) do not overheat the house—65 to 70 is sufficient for most people; (f) get a thermometer and watch the weather.

Spread before visitors in eighty major ties flowering in modern enterprise. The Canadian National Exhibition is a broad gateway giving access to the whole country and affording a knowl-edge of Canada infinitely greater than could be acquired in many times the period of travel. A Government grant of forty acres of ordnance land and $120,000 in buildings, the latter provided by the City of Toronto, was the foundation of this immense institution, which, to-day, after forty-seven years of continuous operation, is recognized as the world's greatest annual exposition. It has an expanse of three hundred acres of entrancing under its blanket of exotic bloom and domestic plant life. The grounds are valued at $5,000,000 and the buildings at an additional $6,000,000, all owned by the City of Toronto.

Last year 1,519,000 people visited the Annual World's Fair, represent-ing about one in eight of the entire population of Canada, but coming from over forty States of the Union, many of the States of Latin America.

much of the success of the early col-ony, and to these earliest colonists must go much of the credit for the subsequent successful colonization movement of Icelandic settlers in Western Canada. They mothered the newcomers, cheered and welcomed them and "tided" them over. A word as to the racial origin and historic background of the Icelandic people is not amiss here. Late in the ninth century, Harold the Fairheaded, then King of Nor-way, was forcing the landed proprie-tors and leaders of the people in the various districts into vassalage and subjecting them to such taxes as he might impose on them. The more resolute of the nobles would have none of it. When too hard pressed none of it. When too hard pressed by the king, they embarked in their viking galleys with their families, "household gods," retainers, goods, chattels and kine, and set sail for Iceland, a virgin Island, known to Ile north and west and partly within the Arctic Circle.

From these Viking chieftains of Norway and their hardy retainers has sprung the Icelandic race. They found the island surprisingly moderate in climate, richly verdant and surpassed by none for startling scenic beauty.

Education was adjudged to be the key to all well-being and constitu-tional reform—the desirable means to political autonomy. Accordingly, Iceland has had no illiterates for the last 150 years, and has, in the last half century, stepped from an obscure colony to sovereign powers as a state under the Crown of Denmark. Unremitting effort on the part of Ice-landic statesmen and a broad reform policy on the part of the Danish Government has made such a change possible.

To-day there are nearly 30,000 Canadians of Icelandic origin located in various prosperous settlement mostly in Canada's "Golden West They are prominent in all walks life and hold with credit positions

Most people who have not visited this country, writes Miss Fay Sutton. describing in the Wide World Magazine a journey in Central Morocco, derive their ideas of the desert Moors (or Arabs, as they are more usually called) from modern novels, in which the shelks and their countrymen appear in a most romantic These notions are very far indeed from reality, for the sheik of inland Morocco is a fierce, dirty, uninspiring individual who would cheerfully rob his best friend if only inland Morocco is a fierce, dirty, uninspiring individual who would cheerfully rob his best friend if only Providence would send an opportunity. Indeed, the state of the natives may be imagined from the single fact that even to-day, in Meknes, which is quite a large town, a native sect called the "Aissawah" gather at a mosque on their religious feast-days, and then ria madly through the streets adment" and retirking and devouring the raw fiesh are free and goats as they go. It is the two worse than Christic, the twould be torn to pieces. It is the two worse than Christic, the two worse the christic for the world her cocived her courteously, inspited her to a meal in his hut, and of howed her the village bath. This, was sutton proceeds, was quite a communal affair—a hive-shaped mud hit about four feet high with a small hole on either side. Through one of these holes the bather crawls, and through the other a little charcoal fire on a slab is pushed by a friend, with a petrol-tin full of water reposing upon it. The steam which is supposed to arise is sufficient for the bather's simple needs—he is careful not to touch the water! Even then the Arabs endeavor not to use the bath too often, as was shown by the fact that, at the time of our visit, hens were sitting on eggs inside!

We passed women squatting on the ground before their huts and grinding corn between two stones in the ancient manner, and, being naturally interested, I made an instinctive motion to unsling my camera. I can truthfully say that no one was more alarmed than myself when everybody in sight, except Si Jellili himself, precipitately disappeared. Even he looked dangerous until Jules hastily explained that the camera was not a firearm. When he was further informed that the mission of the "black box" was to take pictures, the —it aic bringerially in serving vital interms of on which the private vital interms of on which the private of a real vital interms of one which the private of the real vital in a round of a real vital in a real vital vita tions that further growth appeared to some impossible. Yet the following year has always witnessed still furthe tour through the village, and we returned in disgrace past the noolah in which Si Jeilili kept his wives. However, he said no more of the inas now constituted, is a dazzling miniature of Canada graphically recident, and we discovered that great preparations had been made for our flecting the material wealth of the Dominion, the artistic, the pictur-esque and the typical life of the nareception.
Miss Sutton succeeded, however. tion. It is really many Exhibitions in one, so gigantic in its proportions.

Miss Sutton succeeded, however, in getting some photographs — one even in her host's territory. Next morning, she says, I was up and out of my tent just as the sun was rising, for — despite the sheik's command to the contrary—I was determined to get a picture of the dooar, and I thought it would be safest to take the absolute and the safest to take the safest safest. take the photograph before the natives were stirring. I took up a position on a hillock which commanded a good view of the huts, fearful all the time lest someone should emerge and see me, for I knew that I was endangering both the guide's life and my own. I had just got the camera focussed when a couple of women suddenly appeared to the right. I was absolutely terrified, but they did not seem alarmed, so I took the photograph in a great hurry and escaped back to my tent. Apparently the incident never came to the ears of Si Jellill, for I heard no more of it.

There is a good story of an Arab boy whom Miss Sutton encountered:

As we passed through the outskirts just got the camera focussed when

As we passed through the outskirts of the vilage I heard, proceeding from a grass hut, a whistled tune which sounded like "Tipperary!" Out there in this sun-scorched wilderness came lilting that old tune, which took me—homesick all of a sudden— back across the seas to Dublin Bay. Of course, we dismounted, and Jules went to investigate. Suddenly a dirty Arab boy appeared in the sunshine, and he could actually speak a little English! He explained that he knew London well — "oh, ver'dam vell"
—having once worked his passage
there on a cargo-boat. And then, he boasted, he had spent fourteen days in the great city, inside a "grand stone palace" (a prison) for stealing from his ship, before-he had returned to his native land full of wonder ful descriptions of the mad English nation, Suddenly, while I was still laugh-

LUST LANGUAGES.

There Are But Five Dialects Left In England. Prince Lucien Bonaparte, in his work on the subject, distinguished no fewer than seventy-seven forms of English dialects, and published the "Song of Solomon" in twenty-two of them.

To-day there are but five dialects left in England, and even these are steadily dying out, for they are being killed by rapid transit and the schools. The five divisions of dialect which are left are: the Southern, reaching from Cornwall to Kent; the Eastern, including London; the Midland, oc-cupying central England from Buckinghamshire right up to South Lan-cashire and South Yorkshire; the Western, that of the people all along the borders of Wales; and the North-ern, extending to the Scottish border and becoming nearer and nearer to Lowland Scotch at it approaches the In each of these main divisions

there are, however, many variations and in none more so than in the Midland region Then again, in the South, Devonshire has many words which would be quite incomprehensible to a persor living in Sussex or in Kent.

Such are: "Scat," meaning "ruta-ed" or "undone"; "vitty" for "fit-ting" or "appropriate"; "gook," meaning "sun-bonnet"; "rottletraps" for "old furniture"; dicky" for "mouldy."

A very curious point about dialects is that an educated person usually dislikes the dialect or accent of his part of the country, yet if he goes elsewhere, and hears a dialect quite new to him, he is apt to think it interesting and even pretty.

An instance in point occurred when, some years ago, Mr. Justice. Rowlatt, taking the Assizes at Leeds, described it as the most difficult town. in England in which to hear witnesses. The people of Leeds, he added, "drop their voices in a very sweet and delightful way." Leeds people were amused at this pronouncement,
