He was heartily in sympathy with the movement to decrease the stumpage on lumber and bark, and would use his oest efforts to assist in bringing it about. He had done what he could to secure this in the past, but would be more energetic in the future. It was greatly to be regretted that the lumbering industry was declining, affecting as it.

The policy of the late administration, he was informed, was to make the term for which licenses should be held five years, and to raise the stumpage to $1.00 per m—allowing also no drawback for mileage —and it was to be regretted that the lumbering industry was declining, affecting as it.

They made the leases good for ten years. changes as a whole, and gone further. They made the leases good for ten years, which was right and justified by all experience for, in Quebcc, leases are practically perpetual and the stability of the local Government to lighten the local Government to light and local Government to light a burdens of those engaged in the business, trade is thus promoted—but they gave who find it difficult to conduct it profit another turn to the screw and put stump, on the simple lines of the Municipal who find it difficult to conduct it profitably: The tax of $1 25 per thousand feet was more than the lumbering interest of the Northern counties particularly could stand, especially as those engaged in it could not now make all ends neet. It was especially the duty of the Government to do its utmost to foster so important an industry, which gives so much employment to our people, and which the property of the northern country as those engaged in it was dangerous ground—for it seemed that the lumber trade was falling employment to our people, and which the property of the simple lines of the Municipal system. He had given the matter some thought and believed an honest effort by honest men would bring about such a reform in this respect and would save nearly as much to the Province as the whole lumber revenue amounted to. He knew that was dangerous ground—for it seemed that by-roads constituted the politics of a great part of the country—but if he were in the legislature, even now, he would insist.

The Mystery has recovered from the simple lines of the Municipal system.
