THE ANGLE LAMP
is hung above and because of having no under-shadow throws its beautiful, brilliant light everywhere. It cannot explode, can be filled while lighted and is always out of the way. It burns "old fashioned" kerosene giving an intense, clear, soft light. Its soothing rays invigorate the skin and rest the eyes. It is always ready, easy to operate, no smoking, no odor, no glassware to remove in lighting or extinguishing. A better light at one-eighth the cost of other illuminants. Instead of the trying light and dangers and trouble of Gasoline and Acetylene use the soft, cool light of The Angle Lamp to work or play by. 20

SUGAR REFINERY TO BE BUILT HERE

Mr. Durant and the Mayor
Settled It

Had a Conference This Morning—Site Near the Ballast Wharf Is Suggested.

A large sugar refinery will shortly be located in this city. F. C. Durant, of New York, had a long consultation with His Worship Mayor Ballou and W. E. Foster, president of the Board of Trade, this morning, when it is understood the project to locate the refinery in St. John was finally decided.
It will be remembered that Mr. Durant visited the city early in July and viewed several sites for the location of a refinery. At that time he refused to divulge the nature of the industry.
Since that time Mr. Durant has visited other centres in the maritime provinces, but is much pleased with St.
John as a location for the industry.
Mr. Durant desires a site about six hundred feet square and the company, which will be capitalised at $2,500,000 will employ between three hundred and four hundred hands.
It is stated that a site to the east of the Ballast Wharf is considered favorable for the location of the refinery.
This morning at City Hall the mayor and Mr. Durant went into fully an hour to secure the industry. A meeting of the common council will probably be held, when the offer which Mr.
Durant desires will be considered.

EMPEROR WATCHES AIRSHIP IN ACTION

Test of Military Dirigible at Mergenthal

Most Effective Work in Observation—
William, Grantly Pleased, Sees
for Zepplin

MERGENTHAU, Wurttemberg, Sept.
14—Surrounded by a brilliant company, including the King of Wurttemberg, Archduke Francis Ferdinand, Winston Spencer Churchill, and the Earl of Lonsdale, Emperor William yesterday witnessed the dramatic appearance of the military dirigible Gross II, which emerged from the clouds overhanging the Valley of the Tauber. Those on board the airship were spying out the positions of the red army and transmitting their observations by wireless back to headquarters many miles in the rear.

The Emperor was intensely interested and watched with his field glasses every turn of the airship, which answered the helm gracefully. The Emperor spent several hours on a hill top after the development of the first decisive engagement between the Red and the Blue armies. He talked with his guests of the hot lunch served from the Cultrassers travelling kitchen as the imperial automobile kitchen was unable to climb the steep hill. Thousands of spectators who had gathered around the dirigible, were greeted by hastily uniformed lieutenants opening meat cans and stirring soup.
The troops are responsible for the damages made on them. There have been few casualties. In spite of the wet weather, the Emperor was so impressed with the performance of the Gross II that he sent a message to Count Zeppelin to come to the manoeuvre from Frankfurt with the Zeppelin III.

WINNIPEG IS CLOSED TO NON-UNION LABOR

In So Far as Carpenter Work is Concerned
—Every Man Must be a Joiner.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 16—The Brotherhood of Carpenters at a large meeting last night decided to enforce the working card on all jobs except for bricklayers and plasterers. This means every man employed in the building trade must have a union card or in other words the city is to be closed to non-union labor.

H. Leslie Coombs of St. John, N. B., was in Montreal today. Mr. Coombs is one of the directors of the D'Irrell Asbestos Company of D'Irrell, Que., which company has almost completed their 250 ton capacity plant and buildings, and expect to commence producing Asbestos this fall. The serpentine Asbestos rock, as shown in a number of plates already opened up on the D'Irrell property, it is claimed is of a very fine grade and experts who have visited this property are said to assert that this district should prove very rich in this mineral.—Montreal Star.

BLOOR ST. BAPTISTS OPPOSE THE UNION

Want the Dominion Convention Revived

Toronto Goller Drops Dead—Injunction
Against Mail and Emplre—Brief Despatches.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 16—While taking part in a game at Mississauga Golf Links at Port Credit yesterday afternoon, W. L. (Dick) Knowles died suddenly of heart failure. Deceased was in his 42nd year and was for thirty-seven years with R. G. Dunn and Co.
At a business meeting of Bloor street Baptist church held last night a resolution was passed disapproving of the proposed Dominion Convention of outlined by the committee of twenty.
A further resolution passed recommending the revivification of the Dominion convention meeting which was held in Winnipeg in the summer of 1907.

TORONTO, Sept. 16—The injunction granted by the Supreme Court here, preventing the Mail and Empire from publishing the story of the marriage of his trip to the pole, has been continued as applying to Dr. Cook's story.
In connection with the Presbyterian church is dead.

TORONTO, Sept. 16—Mr. J. H. Burham, petitioner in the Straliland election case in Westchester, has been ordered to amend the examination for discovery.

The damage to Hendrick's stables by the fire of Tuesday night has been fixed at $12,000.

NO REPRESENTATION AT MONTREAL CONVENTION

St. John Canadian Club Failed to Send a Man—Speakers Booked for the Coming Months.

There is little likelihood that the local Canadian Club will have representation at the Dominion convention of the Canadian clubs which opens in Montreal today.

The President, C. B. Allan, was elected to represent St. John at the gathering, but Mr. Allan is absent in the west and a substitute has not been appointed. The convention will discuss in general matters relative to the various clubs. Several well known Canadian orators will deliver addresses and Friday evening a banquet will be held.

The local club is making every effort to secure prominent speakers for the fall and winter season. E. T. C.
Knowles, secretary, is corresponding with several upper Canadian gentlemen. While disappointment is felt over the announcement that Lord Bessford could not come to St. John, the club members are looking forward to an address from Henri Bourassa next month.

The date has not yet been fixed, but the club confidently expect that Bour-assa will come.

Major Stephens, a member of the Harbor Board at Montreal, is also likely to come to this city, and the club expect to have him deliver an address in November.

The Artillery band will meet on Friday evening instead of Thursday.

The big three masted schooner Laura
M. Hunt, 507 tons, Captain Wry, bound from Windsor, N. S. to New York, with a cargo of 850 tons of plaster put in here for a harbor last night and cleared this morning.

The Black Diamond liner Louiseburg, Capt. Marsters, arrived from Sydney this morning and is now discharging coal at the Dominion coal pockets.

GAVE HIS LIFE FOR A FIVE DOLLAR BILL

Arthur Bollard Accepted
Challenge to Wrestle

And Was Badly Used—Str. Islander
Burned at Her Dock—Dr. Jarvis
Fulton Dead.

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 16—The steambat Islander was burned to the water's edge at the dock at Alexandria, Bar. The loss is $20,000.

PETERBORO, Ont., Sept. 16—That Arthur Bollard came to his death on August 27th indirectly from the result of a fight he had at Chemong Park on Monday, August 23, for a five dollar bill, was the verdict returned last night by the jury empanelled to enquire into the death of the unfortunate young man. There were fourteen on the jury, and there was but one dissenting voice to the conclusion arrived at.

Dr. Jopling said that accompanied by his brother Harry, he had followed Bollard, Marks and Miss Minns through the park the night the trouble occurred to find out why Bollard was going to give the younger Jopling a five dollar bill. When they caught up with the Bollard party, Bollard turned around and rushed at Harry Jopling and put him down. Fred then interfered and Bollard said he could "lick anything at Brillenith."

Jopling said, "let her go," and the fight then took place. Jopling turned Bollard over and hit him once on the head. Bollard then challenged Jopling to wrestle for five dollars, and the challenge was accepted. Jopling threw Bollard once and Bollard threw Jopling the second time. Jopling said he threw Bollard hard. Witness said he did not know Bollard nor did he use any unfair holds.

Coroner Gray objected to protests from D. O'Connell, counsel for Jopling against his cross examining this witness and told the lawyer to "keep his mouth shut or leave the court room."

Mr. O'Connell said he would report the coroner to the Attorney General's department.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Sept. 16—Dr.
Jarvis Fulton of this city, died yesterday in London, where he had undergone an operation. Dr. Fulton was a son of the late James Fulton, a pioneer
of the county and had practised in the city for many years. He was surgeon
for the Michigan Central Railway.

100,000 CHILDREN TO WELCOME TAFT

Chicago En Fete for the President's Visit

Streets Gaily Decked in His Honor—Bill Will be Among the Rooters at a Ball Game—Lots of Caps

CHICAGO, Sept. 16—Chicago started early today in its preparations to receive President Taft. The police, school children and reception committees were about almost with the sun. The 100,000 children who will line the road the President will take in his trip through the south park started for their posts shortly after the regular time for the opening of school.
The street cars were fairly swamped with them. When the children were all at their positions along the line of march there were fifteen solid miles of them.

Each child wore a badge bearing the city's emblematic "T," embracing a large "A." And carried an American flag.
More than 2,000 police were used in the effort to protect the President.
Aside from certain strike details this is the largest assignment of police ever made in Chicago. There will be a policeman practically every ten feet long the route over which Mr. Taft will travel. From one end of the city to the other the streets were decked out in gala array in honor of the distinguished visitor. The west side baseball park where the President will attend the game between the New York and Chicago National League teams, early became the mecca of the crowds. The President has refused to occupy a box and will sit in the grand stand just behind the home team's bench.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE IS NOW IN SESSION

Diverse Views Expressed on Subjects Taught

Dr. Jones Stands Up for the Old Courses
—Mr. Kidner Wants Practical Work.

FREDERICTON, N. B., Sept. 16—The Teachers Institute of York, Sunbury and Queens Counties opened at Charlottetown here today. President A. S. Mc-Parlane was in the chair and only a fair number of teachers were present.
President McParlane in addressing the gathering, welcomed them to this city.
He also said that while teachers were not obliged to attend the institute any who closed their schools and came here were obliged to attend and he hoped they would do so.

Chief Supt. Carter spoke on rural school problems of the condition of grounds, buildings and equipment, which in some cases were not what they should be. The teachers of the province had in the past done much to better these conditions and he hoped that they would continue to do so. The Chief Superintendent also spoke of the change in text books, including geometry, grammar and the copybook.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Sept. 16—Dr.
Jarvis Fulton of this city, died yesterday in London, where he had undergone an operation. Dr. Fulton was a son of the late James Fulton, a pioneer
of the county and had practised in the city for many years. He was surgeon
for the Michigan Central Railway.

Mr. Kidner decried manual training and stated that it was through this and like subjects that consolidated schools were founded. He also pointed out that Germany was a leader in these branches and also leads in classics.

Inspector Hanson, who said that he was glad to meet the teachers for the first time, made an appeal for better attention to the teaching of arithmetic and spelling in rural schools. He also said that the inspector was the friend and not the enemy of the teacher and that he should not dread him.

Dr. Creed made a brief address expressing his pleasure at being present.
The following committees were appointed:

Nominating committee—Misses Harvey, Fraser, Ebbett, Mrs. Weyman,
Mr. F. A. Good.

Audit Committee—W. T. Day and Alexander.

Resolution Committee Page — Mc-Vickers.

The city today is crowded with visitors and all the well known horsemen are here in full force. The first day of the grand meet opens at 2 p. m., and there is every prospect of a large gathering. The weather remains overcast which detracts somewhat from the enthusiasm. Judging was begun this morning on the exhibition grounds and will continue now right along.

Rev. Mr. Foster, formerly curate of St. Ann's church, is on a visit to the city.

The beach caseras again further postponed this morning until Monday morning.

In the judging this morning Mr.
Scovill won first prize in thoroughbreds, Messrs. McIntyre and Parlee divided honors in Yorkshire cattle. Dr. Gilchrist won first in hackney horses.

INQUIRING INTO COST OF CARRYING MAILS
U. S. Postmaster Asks Railways for Data
Government Rents Cars and Also Pays at Pound Rates—Inquiry a Good Example for Canada.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—An inquiry has been inaugurated by Postmaster General Hitchcock into the cost of carrying the mails, for which the companies receive annually from the government $80,000,000. This is not intended necessarily to reveal any overpayments to the railroads. On the contrary, it may afford the railroads a long-looked-for opportunity to demonstrate that they are underpaid.
This has been their claim at all times, and while no one has believed it, it has afforded basis for a spirited resistance in Congress of every attempt made to reduce the compensation allowed them.
Mr. Hitchcock has sent a circular letter to all the railroads, asking that each inform him in detail of the actual cost of the transportation of mails, including the terminal facilities provided and all other items of expense to which the roads are subjected. Inasmuch as the railroads can hardly be expected to give themselves any the worst of it in their reports, the information may not be so valuable as the department hopes for.

The inquiry was suggested by the second assistant postmaster general, who has charge of the railway mail branch of the postal service. While the department does not assert that the railroads are overpaid for the actual carrying of the mails, it is held that in the charges made for postal cars the government is required to pay higher rates than any other class of shippers.
Long ago, in reports of several postmaster generals, it was suggested that the system of paying rentals for the postal cars and at the same time paying the railroads for hauling them, was a dual method of compensation for which the railroads derived all the benefits. The general suggestion made from time to time has been that the government should build its own cars and pay the railroads for hauling them, the same rates as are paid by other owners of private cars. This system it has been shown would result in the expense of mail transportation very materially.

There is more Cataract in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the few years ago was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly falling to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Cataract to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any cure it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Sold by Druggists, 75c.

The Algonquin football practice on the Shamrock grounds last evening was well attended, about 1000 persons being out in uniform. A considerable number of last year's inter-collegiate players were turning out with the "Indians" and it looks as if the latter will have a pretty good XV on the grid this fall, with perhaps sufficient material for a second as well as a first team.

At evening prayer at St. James church last evening a large congregation was delighted by the organ recital given by James Bayard Currier, organist of St. Paul's church, Marlborough, Mass. Mr. Currier is a graduate of the Carlisle School of Music, Boston and is a most accomplished musician. His recital was the best ever given in St. James church. Mr. Currier will remain in St. John for some time. On Sunday next he will play in the Mission church.

At the Stratford, Eng., Licensing Sessions yesterday it was stated that church services were held every week at the Farmers' Arms, Stratford, Oxford. The renewal of the license for the house was refused.
Jimmie giggled when the teacher read the story of the Roman who swam across the Tiber three times before breakfast.
You do not doubt a trained swimmer could do that, do you, James?
"No, sir," answered Jimmie. "You wouldn't why he didn't swim it four and get back to the side his clothes were on."

NO STREET NAMES IN OWEN SOUND
Town Boards Them and Adopts Numbers—Avenues North and South.
OWEN SOUND, Ont., Sept. 15.—Owen Sound stands unique amongst Canadian towns today, in that it is probably the first town to totally discard all the street names which have marked its thoroughfares since its incorporation, nearly 60 years ago, and adopt numbers. This system has been adopted partially in other municipalities, but by an order issued today by Judge Widfield, junior judge of Grey County, the change in its entirety came into effect by the passing of the by-law by the Council tonight.
All the streets running north and south under this by-law become avenues and number east and west from the River system, which divides the town. Thus Polet street, the main business thoroughfare, and Water Street, which is its northerly extension, become one as East Second Avenue. The streets running east and west are numbered consecutively from the southerly limit of the town and where divided by the river and harbor are designated east and west.
The house numbering will be by the block system. The adoption of the post office department of postal delivery in Owen Sound made it necessary to place street names and house numbers. This would involve the changing of over fifty names to avoid in some places two or three streets with the same name. As all the streets run at right angles, the adoption of the numbering system in Owen Sound is a comparatively easy one to make.

MOTHERS WHO HAVE DAUGHTERS
Find Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound
Winchester, Ind.—"Four doctors told me that they could never make me regular, and that I would eventually have dropsy. I would bleed, and suffer from bearing down pains, cramps and chills, and I could not sleep nights. My mother wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice and I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After taking one and one-half bottles of the Compound, I am all right again, and I recommend it to every suffering woman."—Mrs. MAX DRAE, Winchester, Ind.
Hundreds of such letters from girls and mothers expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished for them have been received by The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.
Girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences and be restored to health by its use.
If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass.—Her advice is free, and always helpful.

BATTLING NELSON WILL RETIRE FROM FIGHTING

Lightweight Champion Has Been Fighting Over Fourteen Years.
The announcement was made the other day that Battling Nelson would engage in just one more championship contest, and then retire for good. The Battler has been fighting steadily since 1918, and fourteen years in the ring is a long time for any fighter, although Bob Fitzsimmons and other good men had longer careers in the squared circle than, however, and has saved his money that he need not fight unless he enjoys it. But may also change his mind about retiring for good, as he is just like many others in that line of business—they like the excitement and also the glamour of the footlights while travelling about in vaudeville stunts.
There has been considerable speculation as to whom the Battler would meet in his final fight. If it is to be the last of his career, it is probable that he will meet an American. Cutting out all sentiment, it seems that an international title of the championship of the world in the lightweight division would be a fitting climax to the Battler's ring career, and there is no better lightweight in the ring today representing foreign countries than Freddie Welsh, the British champion. The latter may not be the slugger that some of the lightweights are, but he is a much better fighter than a man because he is clever.

SPORTING NOTES

THE INDIAN IS READY.
Hardly had the news reached the reserve that the Ontario championship of the A. A. U. were to be held at Scarborough Beach on the night of Sept. 22nd, than Hilton Green, the track Indian, and four men picked sent in his entry for the ten mile run, which will be one of the main features on the programme. Hilton has been doing very little running this summer, but he has been silently training back on the reservation. McCormack, of the Irish Canadians, the winner of the grand prize in the 15 mile race Saturday, has signified his intention of competing in this ten mile event also, and by the time the entries close there is bound to be a big class field. On a quarter-mile track, with a large number of starters, the scores will be high, but McCormack and Hilton have been selected to act, and no mix-up is anticipated. In the one mile relay race, four men will constitute a team, two of which will go 220 yards, one 440 and one 880, thus giving every club a chance to use their best men at each of these distances.

TEN BROTHERS FORM A BASEBALL TEAM

And Their Father Shows Them No Favors When He Acts as Umpire.
BRANDON, Vt., Sept. 15.—It is said that every community excels in something, but one would hardly expect that a community of less than one hundred voters was the home of perhaps the most remarkable baseball team in the world. But such is the fact.
In the hill town of Goshen lives Edward S. Hayes, born in the ancient city of Vergennes, fifty-eight years ago, of good, old fashioned Scotch-Irish stock. His wife, who was of the lake in Chiny Point. They were married thirty-eight years ago and moved from Vergennes to Goshen.
During their thirty-eight years of married life, two children have been born to them—ten sons and two daughters. The two little girls early passed beyond this world of tears, but the ten sons grew up to be hale and hearty, in fact, strapping fellows and great lovers of the national game of baseball. Recently they played the Brandon team, losing by one run, the score being 14-13.
But after seeing the Hayes boys play many said they were willing to wager a good deal of money that they did not one that ever grew, that there is no other ball team in the United States composed of nine brothers that can beat them.
They have played five games this season with out of town teams and won three of them. Edward S. Hayes, the father, is a baseball crank, and was one of the umpires in the Brandon game. He knows baseball and is an impartial umpire. He gave "the boys" a lot of advice and they are all would not listen to arguments.
The father owns a roomy farm in Goshen with plenty of wood to chop and potatoes to harvest and bring to market, and the boys have their own place at home. The one or two who have built nests of their own are located in the immediate neighborhood, and because they all continue to be known as the Hayes family.

WORLD'S RECORD BROKEN AT MONTREAL MEET

MONTREAL, C. Sept. 15.—At the championship track and field meet of the Amateur Athletic Federation held on the M. A. A. grounds this afternoon two world records and three Canadian records were broken. The 800 yards, Embo Lough of the Irish-American A. C., by doing the distance in 1 minute 42 1/2 seconds, broke the world record of 1 minute 45 seconds, set by Martin J. Sheridan of the Irish-American in a local throw made a distance of 130 feet 10 1/2 inches, breaking the world record of 132 feet 10 inches. J. P. Sullivan of the Irish-American broke the Canadian three mile record by doing the distance in 17 minutes 49 seconds. W. C. Robins of the Irish-American broke the Canadian record of 49 seconds for the 440 yards by 106 yards in 1:43.3-4, being 10-5 seconds faster than the record made by Longboat, Canada, in 1928. The British champion, Finagran broke the Canadian record. The Irish-American carried off the 1/2 mile mark in 1:44 seconds, breaking the world record of 1:45 seconds, set by Irish-American, 67; New York, 12; Boston, 7; Montreal, 7.

MITCHELL LEADS LEAGUE

Gardner, of Jersey City, is no longer the leading hitter of the Eastern League, having been ousted from the top place by Mitchell of Toronto. Mitchell's batting average is .308, while that of the Skeeter second baseman reads .308. Other good hitters are McDonald and Mitchell, of the Maple Leaf; Gausman, McConnell and Osborne, of Rochester; Gettman, Kelly and Myers, of Newark; Hoffman, Anderson, Blackburn and Moran, of Providence; Yeager, Corcoran and Krichell, of Montreal; and the big slugger, Hall, of Baltimore; Moeller, of Jersey City.
Mitchell was a pitcher for the Alerts here.

IN FAILING TO LAND PUNCH JOHNSON DISAPPOINTS FANS

The result of the ten round tilt between Jack Johnson, the fortunate title-holder, and Big Al Kaufman, whom Billy Delaney has tried hard to make the sporting public believe is the coming champion, has been a disappointment to the big Californian horseholder from that very circle he aspires to shine in. Well, he has to forget it. He has been battling along in a haphazard way, showing a lot of force in his punches, but he has not been able to knock out any of his opponents. He is a target for Johnson, who hit him when and where he pleased, and as for his heralded punch, he seemed to have left it where he hung his fannies' apron. The few times he did connect, it was a weak jab, and he failed to show a real punch. ENGLISH RUNNERS

Although England cannot boast of a real champion sprinter, we possess a good runner in C. J. Oliver of the Sparkhill Harriers. At Hinton, he won the 120 yards handicap on the 15th inst. in 1:44 seconds. He had two preliminary heats and the final to run, and twice showed 11-4 seconds mark in 11-4 seconds. He took something out of himself before he took the line with N. J. Carmichael in the final. In the 100 yards level race, in spite of this, he held Carmichael for 50 yards, but the American's fine finish on the home straight won the race in 1:34-5 seconds. Carmichael's win, by the way, was his third at the meeting in this particular event, and he is well known and liked in Birmingham. To return a moment to Oliver, he is a much improved runner and is the most likely of the home tracks to develop championship form.
Two of England's best stayers "caught the judge's eye" at the Eastbourne meeting last Saturday. The turt track was in splendid condition, so that A. B. Wood, and A. J. Robertson were expected to do some fast running. Wood ran a well judged race in the open mile, which he won from the 20 yards mark in 4 mins. 20-4 secs. This is clear proof that he is a fine "miler" and if he trained specially for the distance he would probably do close to 4:20 all the way. Robertson started from the 5 yards mark, but really saved himself for the three miles event soon after passing the two miles mark, and eventually won easily from Wood, by 50 yards, in 14 mins. 34 secs. Robertson is a wonderful all-round performer, but if he improves on all his previous best efforts, he is a specialist more, he would certainly improve on all his previous best efforts. His "forte" is staying, and in the writer's opinion he would do another "all round" and if he trained specially for the distance he would probably do close to 4:20 all the way. THE POOR MAN'S GYM

"Would you mind telling me," asked Mrs. Boardman, glancing admiringly at the athletic shoulders of the prospective boarder, "how do you keep in such splendid physical condition?"
"I go through a few gymnastic exercises every morning," confessed the young man, flushing.
"Well, I'm sorry, but we can't board you. I've had the bathroom monopolized that way before."

WANT PERMANENT TARIFF COMMISSION

HAMILTON, Sept. 15.—The association approved of a proposal to establish a permanent tariff commission.

NEW PLAYS FOR MR. MANTELL
ASHBURY PARK, N. J., Sept. 15.—At the opening of his season, in "The Merchant of Venice," in the Ashbury Park Casino tonight Mr. Robert Mantell announced that he and his manager, Wm. A. Brady, had accepted two new plays for production this season. The first play to be given, he said, was a modern comedy written by a Greek and the second by James Bernard Pagan, of London, formerly literary critic on the Daily Mail. This play had been written specially for him and was in blank verse.
Mr. Mantell was enthusiastically received tonight. He appeared as Shylock, and Miss Marie Booth Russell as Portia. Others in the company were Messrs. Fritz Lohrer, Guy Lincoln, Alfred Hastings, Frederick Baldwin and Hugh Jeffrey, Miss Agnes Elliott Scott and Miss Virginia Brownson.

DISS DE BAR'S FRIEND TO BE DEPORTED

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—David Livingston Mackay, assistant to Aln O'Della Mackay, who has been performing at a vaudeville house in New York, was ordered excluded by a board of special inquiry at Ellis Island yesterday.
Mackay was arrested several days ago after his performance and taken to the island. It was learned, according to the minutes of the special inquiry board that he had been convicted in Bristol, Canada, of selling pirated literature over the counter of a grocery store which he was running.
He was given the option of paying a fine of $100 or serving four months in jail, he served the time and then tried to enter the United States by way of Montreal, but was kept out. He is ordered deported by rail as an undesirable alien.

CHAPTER V

"He is certainly bold," Bertha said, with a faint smile; "but now, dearest, you ought to go to bed. You looked awfully tired when we were at dinner, so while that I thought you were ill, and you have so much to excite you, I will come and say 'Goodnight' when you are in bed."

GOSSIP OF THE OLD WORLD CAPITALS IN READABLE FORM

Prof. Boni is reported to have made an important discovery in the course of his excavations in the Forum. While exploring some underground passages near the north rostra of Caesar he found in twelve small rooms or galleries traces of a former system of elevators.

In each room there are unmistakable traces of grooves through which ropes passed and statements of the Forum-Whitcomb, who was a modern inventor that were fixed vertically into the passages. The professor is convinced that the elevators in the rooms served to raise to the surface the gladiators and wild beasts that participated in the games and that elevators or lifts. Thus what until recently was considered a modern invention was used by the Romans under the republic. There are no traces of similar elevators in buildings belonging to the imperial period and in all likelihood no attempt was made to improve the movable platforms in later times.

The Cologne Gazette publishes some surprising statements of the results of postal intercourse between Germany and the United States. It appears from the examples cited in the paper that numbers of young women started corresponding with the object of collecting colonial postage stamps, but afterwards allowed themselves to be addressed by these unscrupulous blacklegs in a manner which the white woman should tolerate. Some girls, even sent their dusky admirers photographs in a manner which the white woman should tolerate.

The Gazette severely condemns this practice, which it says is more extensive than is generally realized. It reminds the romantic Germans of the scandals connected with the "Princess" in Germany not long ago when the authorities had to stop by force the floating "Princess" which was being pursued by foolish women, with the result that no natives from the German colonies are candidates to be placed on ships in Germany.

The latest Japanese method of land surveying from airships was discussed in a paper read before the Frankfurt Physical Society. The lecturer, a member of the Jury of the Frankfurt International Aeronautics Exposition, discussed the method known as stereo-photogrammetry, or the utilization of the human faculty to take in a large field of vision with both eyes.

THE BURGOMASTER The management of the Opera House takes pardonable pride in announcing the extra special engagement of Piquet and Luder's greatest musical success "The Burgomaster," for Oct. 7, 8, 9. Manager Wm. P. Cullen has been especially careful in the organization of his present company, securing as many of the original members of the cast as was possible, and he has been eminently successful in doing so.

Of all the many clubs in the West End of London it is safe to say that none except the National Club in Whitehall are so popular as the religious committee. Two rules bear upon the question of prayers in the constitution of the club. No. 21 reads: "The household shall attend the reading of the Word of God and prayers every morning" in the committee room.

The club was founded in 1846 upon the doctrine and principles of the Reformed faith as revealed in Holy Scripture, asserted in the Articles of the Church of England. That is to say membership of the club is confined to evangelical Protestants as opposed to High Church men. On the list of members are many names well known in the city.

A large and representative congregation heard an eloquent sermon by Rev. George Jackson of Toronto in Centennial church last evening. The subject of the sermon was "The Denial of Christ," and he spoke of the temptations of young people and particularly mentioned evil companionship, impure literature and places of amusement.

Fred Cameron, the maritime five-mile champion, who lowered the record for that distance at Halifax, was accorded a magnificent reception by the citizens of Amherst last evening. The runner and his trainer, Tomlinson, were given a complimentary banquet. They were met at the station and accompanied by brass bands were taken to the city. Amherst is indebted to Cameron as to become completely immersed in the sand.

Among the visitors to the city yesterday was Dr. Joseph Coffin, of Plaster Rock. He says there has been a rather bad case of sickness up the line and the epidemic prevailing at Grand Falls, Andover and Perth, struck Plaster Rock first. It was at first thought to be typhoid, but it lacked some of the symptoms, and has been successfully treated as a combination of bilious fever and grippe.

THE NEW 1909 ANNEX

Manchester Robertson Allison, Ltd., Thru Open Their Magnificent Building to the Public—Wonderful Displays of Seasonable Merchandise to be Exhibited in All Departments.

With the opening of their new 1909 Annex, Manchester, Robertson, Allison, Ltd., have completed another link in the long chain of additions to their rapidly growing establishment and have brought to a successful culmination one more important event added to the many difficult problems which have been met and mastered in the overall career of this enterprising concern.

To advance step by step and always with that excellent judgment which has marked the steady and sure advance of this great business, from a modest three-story building in the old town to the present Main Store and after a very long and successful career, the firm moved to Market Square a little more than two years ago to the undisturbed led as the largest and most important mercantile establishment in Eastern Canada should be a matter of universal satisfaction to the citizens of St. John, giving as it does to this city a special distinction and a feeling of security and pride in the possession of such a huge enterprise contributing its quota to the development and advancement of the city which save it birth and nurtured by liberal and progressive patronage to the proud position of a preeminent factor in the dry goods trade of all Canada.

On April 5, 1906, Messrs. Manchester, Robertson and Allison threw open the doors of their new dry goods store to the public in the old Emma and Gardner building, Prince William St., on the site now occupied by the Canada Life building. It was not long, however, before increasing business necessitated larger quarters and the young firm moved to Market Square in a building which stood on a part of the site of the present Furniture Warehouse.

HONEY DROP CAKES. First, has your honey sugar? If so, place the vessel containing it in hot water till you can pour it out like sirup. It is fine on griddle cakes. It gives puddings a fine flavor and instead of sugar. You will find the following recipe for drop cakes excellent: One half cup cold water, into which put one teaspoonful (even) salt, one teaspoonful ginger, one teaspoonful nutmeg, one teaspoonful lemon extract, little salt. Flour enough to make a cake batter, add one egg beaten last. Bake in moderate oven. Honey is also excellent used with lemon and orange. (The latter being steeped for a couple of hours in water just before using is delicious, besides acting as a laxative.)

GRAND OPENING OF NEW 1909 ANNEX

Exposition Extraordinary of Seasonable Goods in All Departments

Fall Coats and Costumes Over Which Dame Fashion Has Waved Her Magic Wand

The new models for formal and informal wear have come quietly in and taken possession of our garment section. Sturdy rugged wraps for giving battle to Old Boreas while going to and from business, for driving, motoring and all informal occasions—and exquisite models for evening wear.

The new season's styles found birth with the production last winter in Paris of a drama of the Sixth Century called "Le Bon Roi Dagobert." Paris, ever impressionable, seized upon the costumes with avidity and from this inspirational source has been developed the garments which will rule all womankind during the months to come.

Our charming coats with their flowing lines and the cloaks with their plaited effects and wealth of trimming, mirror perfectly the style changes.

Come gaze at the exquisite models, the rich colorings and enchanting beauty of their trimmings. Nowhere in this city will you find such an attractive delineation of the new Autumnal modes.

Coats priced from $7.00
Costumes range from 16.00

Costume Department—Second Floor.

With the addition of our 1909 Annex and the enlarging, re-arranging and re-fitting of departments, we place at the disposal of our patrons greater facilities and conveniences incidental to modern shopping; providing a service truly metropolitan in character and equal in scope to that of any concern in Canada.

Our energetic preparation for a large Autumn trade has crystallized in a showing of surpassing excellence, a magnificent presentation of stocks exhibiting advance style tendencies, an assemblage of huge magnitude, in elegant, diversified and bewildering array. Come and view the beautifully decorated departments, the elaborately created displays, the charming and skillful exploitation of the newest and choicest ideas from every land.

ALL ARE ENTHUSIASTICALLY URGED TO ATTEND THE OPENING ON FRIDAY AND SATURDAY.

Magnificent Display of Fall Materials

Enchantingly Pretty Weaves Radiant With Autumnal Colorings

Beautiful as the mountain side when the Autumn sun shines on the trees and grasses of dull brown, green and gold are fashions dress fabrics for the new season.

The wealth of delightful offerings we have in store cannot be adequately described, they comprise the very cream of the world's smartest effects in an entrancing variety of the very handsomest late shades.

At no other period have we had so magnificent and diversified a showing and this gala occasion will afford a pretext of seeing—and choosing if you so desire.

Dress Goods Department—First Floor.

This Gorgeous Showing of Furs Will Hold the Centre of Public Interest During Opening Days

Not to have seen this fur exposition is to acknowledge that you have missed the most interesting display that this city has ever seen. It is an educational event, a picturing of the furry tribes which inhabit our modern woods.

Every creature whose pelt can be fashioned into rich, elegant wraps for women is here, the mink, fox, lynx, sable, squirrel, and ermine. If they could speak many would be the stories they could tell of the forest and of men who brought them to the little company post, far up on Hudsons Bay.

Never has any store pictured more accurately the fur fashion, never have we had such a complete showing, every one full of the quality for which this store is famous and priced in a most enticing manner.

Here are the furs the women of Paris and New York are delighting in, reflecting all the new style touches and modes, priced in a way that precludes the possibility of your securing their like at equal prices anywhere in this vicinity.

Small Ties, Throw-overs and Stoles in Dainty Effects; Muffs in Plain Empire and Pillow Shapes; also in Rug and Fancy Styles. Small Neck Pieces in Great Variety.

Fur Department—Second Floor

Fall Clothing for Little Men

We have built a reputation for good clothes—when we say good, we mean nothing common-place—this reputation means as much to a store like this as character and standing does to an individual, we would not part with this reputation for anything.

Clothes of character for Little Men. Clothes made to give lasting service and at the same time clothes that have style-retaining features. Without hesitation we proclaim this display far and above any similar showing in style, quality and interesting prices.

Your personal inspection is all we ask—the display is at its best now—we want the opportunity to prove our assertion.

We are showing the largest stock we have ever carried, at our unusually low prices. We can fit the youngsters here—fit them stylishly and at little cost.

Boys' Fancy Overcoats - - $3.75 to $8.50

Nobby Furnishings for Men--and Boys as Well

A man should be just as particular in his dress as a woman and we aim to fit him out so that he can keep right up to the latest styles if he wishes to. Our system of selling his dress accessories makes it a matter of very slight expense for him to secure the best and latest novelties in the wearables he needs. As we have men to wait upon men in this department, he need have no hesitation in coming here to buy.

At this opening we are completely stocked with every requirement for Fall and Winter wear. Call and inspect our great assortments of Shirts, Collars, Underwear, Half Hose, Ties, Trunks, Leather Goods, etc.

Mothers will find this department a great convenience in the purchase of furnishings for little fellows, in fact the boys themselves may come with every assurance of satisfactory treatment.

The Best Hosiery Values Will Greet You Here

We have many reasons for thinking so, for we have taken all sorts of care and made detailed comparisons before a single dollar's worth of this hosiery was ever bought.

Our hosiery is of excellent dye, sturdy and satisfying. Our hosiery is noted for its elasticity which insures comfort in the wearing—for its comfort giving qualities—which is a prime factor in its behalf.

You'll discover other things favorable to our hosiery when you reach these counters—and to think they're not a bit higher than the carelessly selected sorts.

HERE'S ANOTHER MAN WHO FINDS THAT HE HAS BEEN HANGING AROUND THE NORTH POLE

Mat Henson Discovers That He Accompanied Peary, Although the Latter Forgot to Mention It--Had a Great Time, Too--Sydney Lawyer Supports Cook's Story

THE HARBOUR OF CHRISTIANIA, N.W. FROM THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

SYDNEY, N. S., Sept. 15.—One of the arguments urged against Dr. Cook's claim that he discovered the North Pole is that he had no positive intention of attempting to reach the pole when he sailed in the summer of 1907. This is clearly disproved by the statement made today by Jos. MacDonald, barrister, of North Sydney, who knew both Dr. Cook and John B. Bradley, on the first visit to North Sydney neither Mr. Bradley nor Dr. Cook said anything about the North Pole venture and when Mr. MacDonald remarked upon the great supply of provisions which the schooner J. B. Bradley had on board—she was, he says, literally filled to the hatches with stores and equipment likely to be needed on a prolonged Arctic journey—an evasive reply was made. Mr. Cook, he was told, was going on a scientific expedition with the object in view of collecting data for a book on Arctic life. Mr. Bradley himself was going on a sporting trip and would hunt musk-ox, walrus, polar bear and other Arctic game.

He said that preparations had been made with great secrecy and the plan is outlined by Mr. Bradley, Mr. MacDonald said, corresponded with Dr. Cook's account of his polarward journey. When Mr. Bradley returned to North Sydney that autumn after leaving Dr. Cook in the far north, Mr. Bradley admitted to Mr. MacDonald that Cook's real objective point was the North Pole. Another thing stated by Mr. Bradley was that Dr. Cook wanted to get north as soon as possible so as to get there ahead of Peary, who was then preparing for the expedition just then, and go obtain the peak of the Eskimos. The event has proved that Mr. Bradley only spoke the truth to Mr. MacDonald as one of the charges made by Peary's friends against Dr. Cook is that the latter appropriated to his own use certain of the natives which the former regarded as his own exclusive property.

Bradley Master, Cook Servant

The thing which struck the people at North Sydney when Mr. Bradley and Dr. Cook were there in 1907, was the peculiar relations between the two men, the explorer and millionaire sportsman did not appear to go about as usual, but rather as master and man, Dr. Cook being the man. The attitude of the latter was singularly humble, not to say obsequious to Mr. Bradley, and he always referred to the latter's opinion of whatever subject came up and Mr. Bradley was always inclined to be contemptuously outspoken with his friend, the scientist. The latter, in fact, had every appearance of being subject to the former's orders.

Cook Part Eskimo? Regarding Dr. Cook's personal appearance a curious observation is made that at that time there appeared to be something about him which could readily be explained by his having a dash of Eskimo blood in his veins. It may be that his similarity in appearance and bearing to an Arctic native may have materially assisted him in his journey northward.

Mat Henson's Story BATTLE HARBOR, Labrador, Sept. 15, via Cape Ray, by wireless.—"We hoisted the Stars and Stripes twice at the North Pole," said Matthew Henson, Commander Robert E. Peary's colored lieutenant and the only other civilized man, according to Peary, who ever reached the Pole.

"Having spent eighteen years with Commander Peary, and a considerable portion of that time in the Arctic," said Henson, "I have acquired a knowledge of the dialect of the Northern Greenland Eskimos, who are probably superior to any other. As is commonly known to travellers in the far north, the Eskimo entertains a strange prejudice toward any tongue but one, and it is therefore necessary for successful dealing with them to study their own language."

Shortly Before Noon "We arrived at the Pole, just before noon, April 6, the party consisting of the commander, myself, four Eskimos and thirty-six dogs, divided into two detachments equal in number and headed respectively by Commander Peary and myself. We had left the last supporting party at 87 degrees, 53 miles, where we separated from Capt.

Barlett, who was photographed by the commander. Capt. Barlett regretted that he did not have a British flag to erect on the ice at this spot, but the photograph might show this as the farthest north to which the banner of England had been advanced. "I have kept a personal diary during this historic dash across the ice field. Our first task on reaching the Pole was to build two igloos, as the weather was hazy and prevented accurate observations to confirm the dispatch travelled from Cape Columbia. Having completed the snow house we had dinner, which included tea made on our alcohol stove and then retired to rest, thus sleeping one night at the North Pole.

Stopped at the Right Spot "The Arctic sun was shining when I awoke and found the commander already up. Here was only wind enough to blow out the small flags. The engines were hoisted towards noon from ten poles and tied with fish lines. "We had figured on the distance pretty closely and did not go beyond the Pole. The flags were up about midday April 7 and were moved until late that evening. The haze had cleared away early but we wanted some hours to take observations. We made three figures as much as we pleased. "When the flag was placed Commander Peary exclaimed: "We will plant the Stars and Stripes at the North Pole."

"In the native language I proposed three cheers, which were given in the Eskimo's own tongue. Commander Peary shook hands all around and we had a more liberal dinner than usual, each man eating as much as he pleased. The Eskimos danced and showed great pleasure that the Pole had been reached. For years the Eskimos had been trying to reach that spot, but it was always with them so an no closer. They exclaimed in a chorus, "ting neit timah ketaher," meaning 'we have got there at last.'"

Says He Was There, Sure Continuing his story, Henson said: "The report is absolutely untrue that it did not go to the Pole. I went the whole distance, side by side with the commander and just as far as he did."

GERMANY AND BRITAIN MAY CLASH IN EAST; A CRISIS IMMINENT

BEKIN, Sept. 15.—That the British government has taken positive steps designed to eliminate the Germans from their dominant position in the Yangtze Valley is revealed in the latest development of the loan situation. After receiving the notification of the American bankers' readiness to close the deal on the terms agreed upon, the Chinese authorities summoned the representatives of the English, German and French banks and urged an early consummation. The representatives of the Hong Kong Bank replied that they had been instructed by their government not to sign pending an agreement upon matters wholly outside the present loan. This refers to a secret arrangement entered into by the English, German and French groups in May relative to the control of a future loan for the Szechuan Railway extension. The British Foreign Office regards this arrangement among the banks as an abandonment of British rights, and apparently is determined to force the Germans to surrender. The Pekin viewpoint is that this active entrance of the British government involves possibilities of far-reaching consequences and perhaps signifies the determination of Great Britain to utilize this loan to force an issue with Germany.

Americans are not involved. Their position with the Chinese is strengthened by the disclosure that they are not responsible for the present delay, as has been charged. The feeling here is strong that unless the Germans abandon the rights accorded them in the secret compact Great Britain may utilize the present situation to precipitate a crisis with Germany.

It is stated in circles well informed in Government matters that Baron Kogoro Takahira, Japanese Ambassador to the United States, who was called home to confer with the foreign office on various matters of importance, will not return to Washington. It is said that Yasuya Tachida, Japanese Ambassador at Vienna, will succeed him as ambassador. "Wot's yours?" asked the waiter of a quick-lunch patron. "Doughnuts and black coffee," was the reply. And the waiter, sent in the order to the cook by wireless: "One in the dark" two rubber tires."

U. S. CABLE COMPANY TO USE NEWFOUNDLAND ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Sept. 15.—The direct United States cable company has informed the Newfoundland government that hereafter it will operate its trans-Atlantic cable service by way of Newfoundland. The company has agreed to pay the landing tax required by the colonial statute. The premier of Newfoundland, Sir Edward Morris declares that this latest development in the cable situation shows that he had ample warrant for his recent refusal to permit the Commercial Cable Company to establish a cable station here. The ministry of Sir Robert Bond, which immediately preceded that of Sir Edward, entered into a contract with the Commercial cable Company permitting that company to connect its lines with this colony, but shortly afterward Sir Edward Morris became premier and declined to ratify this contract on the ground that it gave the company undue privileges. FOUND WRECKAGE EAST OF CAPE HENRY BOSTON, Sept. 15.—The sighting of a considerable amount of wreckage about sixty miles east of Cape Henry was reported by Captain Theall of the schooner Frank E. Swain, which arrived here today from Charleston, S. C. The wreckage included pieces of a vessel's planking, with bolts attached, a grating, a chair and other evidences of a marine disaster.

NAMED CULLIGAN AND MONTGOMERY CAMPBELLTON, N. B., Sept. 15.—The Conservative convention here this afternoon was well attended, representatives being present from every parish. After addresses from Hon. Mr. Landry in French and English, and Hon. Mr. Fleming the convention unanimously chose Arthur Culligan and W. S. Montgomery as the party's candidates in the next election. After the convention a delegation of citizens waited on Messrs. Landry and Fleming and interviewed them in respect to the dispute with the Quebec government in reference to license for New Brunswick fishermen fishing in Quebec waters. The delegation suggested that the N. B. government endeavor to have an arrangement with the Quebec government, whereby N. B. residents could fish without license and that Bonaventure guides could guide parties in N. B. without paying the non-resident guide tax. A banquet is being held at the Watford tonight, at which all the prominent Conservatives are present. A LITTLE GIRL DROWNED DEXTER, Me., Sept. 15.—Playing in a boat which was fastened to the shore at Wassookong today, Agatha, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mountain, was drowned today when she stumbled into the water. The water was but a few feet deep and the body was soon recovered when the parents came to the shore to look for their child. C. P. R. SUBURBAN TRAINS. WOULD YOU CONVICT CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE?

RED HANDED
A TRUE STORY

Abraham C. Guber, one of the best known lawyers in New York, says: "The human being should be convicted on circumstantial evidence alone. Human nature and passions as well as human loves enter the witness box. Besides that there are thousands of jobs. Circumstantial evidence is akin to metaphysical discussions of right and wrong, religious tendencies and all speculative things. "During thirty years I have known many famous men to be accused by circumstantial evidence. Recently I was in Albany and wrote out a check with a New York head. In my own mind I would be very difficult to convict. I was not in New York on that day. "It might be many things done daily, in my own mind, which to some speculative and imaginative jurymen would be positive proof of crime. "It is better that ninety-nine guilty men should escape than that one innocent man should suffer. This is old rock bottom morality and law. It is better for justice and truth that no human being should be found guilty of crime on circumstantial evidence, no matter how seemingly honorable the source of it."

Discussion ranged high and the group about the bar of the little roadside hotel became more animated under the lash of partisan feeling. Affairs in the county had grown into a sharp local issue and there was talk of a kind that would have served for matters of much greater moment.

Several times the landlord had protested at the extravagance of the disputants and finally he thought it wise to refuse further refreshment until the present tone of conversation had been lowered. In this he was taking a bold step, for those he entertained were persons of consequence, wealthy farmers, country politicians and residents of the nearby village. His attempt to check the voracious turbulence was effective except with two of the men, who continued their interchange of invectives with violent gestures and heated language.

One of these was John Wickliffe, owner of a large property in the neighborhood, leader of one faction in the township, unpopular with the prosperous element and a bitter foe for his vindictive nature and political bias. He carried some forty-five years with vigor and his frame was wiry and knobbed with muscles. His face was clean shaven, and as he talked, his teeth like an animal. In angry conversation his appearance became almost repulsive, and so his opponent now found him.

Harry Blake, who confronted Wickliffe with flushed face and hostile eye, was the son of a wealthy storekeeper and landowner of the village. In the past he had found himself checked more than once by an unexpected subtlety and craftiness on the part of one whom he professed to despise as a schoolboy. Blake now held his ground against the other, whose mastiff snarl might have given pause to a less sanguine and determined antagonist.

Grayson, a magistrate, watched the two uneasily for some minutes after the rattling fire of argument had been abandoned by common consent among the rest of the party. Grayson did not like Wickliffe and he was fond of Harry and it was not to his mind to stand by while the young man became involved with one of ill repute and violent ways. He stepped forward finally and took a hand in the dispute.

"See here, Wickliffe, you're not gaining anything by this bickering. That fact alone ought to serve to make you save your breath for another and more promising subject. In addition, I say stop it!"

Wickliffe turned to him with his lips lifted. "What's bothering you, old man Grayson? Isn't the boy old enough to hold his side of a fight? If he isn't he'd better keep out of politics. He's old enough to vote, anyway, and he's put on a show of having opinions. And if his opinions don't suit me I'm going to quarrel with them, for all you may say or do."

Grayson held a steady eye upon him throughout the pause that followed these words. The situation became strained and Blake, unwilling to drag another into his own difficulty, cut the thread of tension himself.

The Bitter Quarrel. "Why, I didn't mean to quarrel," he said, shifting with the readiness that his personality allowed him from lowering brows to smiling countenance. "I'm afraid I got a little too heated about this thing. It really doesn't amount to much. I'm sure I'm quite ready to call it quits, although," he added, with a shade of pomposity, "I, of course, am not ready to abandon the position I took in the discussion."

Grayson nodded approval and Blake stepped from Wickliffe's side to the group of watchers. One of them spoke to him as he stood with his back to the antagonist and conversation in a lighter vein was soon running from one to another.

Wickliffe hung upon the bar by himself where Blake had left him, mulling over and hearing his teeth to assist his purpose. The superior scorn implied in Blake's abandonment of the quarrel and the fact that he now had no auditor for his bitter remarks, together with what he had drunk, accentuated the naturally evil disposition of the man. With his glass lifted in sudden bravado he made a remark that, coming through the light banter of the group, struck each hearer dumb with indignation. He had passed the unmentionable reproach, the word that means retaliation from any man with as much as a red corpuscle in his veins. Blake had not heard distinctly, but the white faces of his companions told him that Wickliffe had said or done something out of the ordinary.

Several of the men turned to Wickliffe with cries of "Shame! Shame!" Wickliffe glowered back at them defiantly. Blake, sensitive to the prevailing sentiment, felt instinctively that some serious insult had been offered to him. He thrust up to Wickliffe and looked into the hideous face fearlessly.

"I don't know what you said, Wickliffe," he remarked, "but if it was anything reflecting on me and you dare repeat it this will be the sorriest day of your life."

The courage of the young fellow and the challenging note in his voice held the elder man silent for a breath. He passed the threat off with a sneer, however, finding his reputation for overbearing contrivance of his own actions attested by such a remark. With a shrug he repeated his previous remark in words not so sharp, but still insulting and clear enough.

Blake, thrusting aside Grayson's friendly and detaching arm, sprang full at Wickliffe, struck him in the face and hurled him to the ground. The aggressor, overcome by his own rush, lost his footing and the two rolled together. Before either of the combatants could renew hostilities after the fall the other members of the group had swarmed upon them and pulled them apart, the landlord beseeching them to check the scandal that had come upon his house. Each fought to wrench loose from the hand laid upon him, but the affray had sobered the company and Grayson, sternly taking command, ordered that Wickliffe be ejected.

The suggestion was carried out none too gently. He was helpless in the face of universal enmity, his face drawn into his ugliest snarl. Wickliffe gave over thought of immediate reprisal. With vicious oaths and words of defiance, which Blake, still struggling at his restraining friends, returned in good measure, he mounted his horse and rode away. "You can get a fit for a coffin now," was Wickliffe's final word. "You'll need it after this."

Fifteen minutes had passed before the cautious Grayson, certain that the other had proceeded too far to allow of pursuit, gave Blake permission to go. The young fellow had lapsed into a hard-mouthed silence following Wickliffe's departure. Grayson accompanied him down the steps.

Blake Rides Away. "Keep away from him, Harry. That's my advice. He's dangerous, and he has a lot of good for nothing followers. He's too powerful for you to go against and he's too worthless to deserve any decent person's attention. Ignore him and forget what he said. There are some men that it is the part of wisdom to overlook in their nastiness, and this is one of them."

Blake made no reply, seemingly had not heard the kindly meant remarks of Grayson, who was his father's friend. He mounted his horse, cut the animal over the flank with his riding whip and vanished down the road in a cloud of dust. His way led straight to the village. Wickliffe lived on the same highway, but at the other side of the town, some mile or so beyond.

After Blake's departure the company was ill at ease, finding no further interest in discussion or in friendly anecdote. Shortly it began to break up, this and that man riding off singly or holding back until joined by some companion. Grayson went over the incident with Walton, an elderly man and a close friend of his.

"I don't like it, Walton," said the Magistrate. "These never was good feeling until he got the boy on and worked up his own bile until he had the bitterness on tap to pass an insult. There's nothing Wickliffe likes so well as to lie on bad terms with as many persons as possible, and Harry Blake would be a welcome recruit to his list of private enemies."

"I have heard there was a row between them before over the Dowell girl," added the other. "Wickliffe was pestering her last year and Harry stopped him one day and told him to quit. I guess her father put in a heap more effective argument, for he let up. But if I know the skunk he's probably been nursing his grudge ever since."

After further comment of the kind Grayson and Walton untethered their horses and started slowly toward the town.

It was late of a summer afternoon. The sun was within half an hour of setting, barring the road with long shadows from the fence rails and tinting fields and trees with russet. The highway was empty ahead of them to the next turn, a quarter of a mile away. A pleasant breeze was stirring the foliage and tall grasses. The two men rode in silence, taking quiet note of the colorful stretches of landscape and content to forget the disturbing scene in which they had just taken part.

They had reached the turn when from beyond a small grove of fruit trees that fringed the road to the right came a man's wailing cry of agony, borne past them on the wind. The startled riders drew rein and stared at each other.

"Something wrong here," said Grayson, sharply. "I made out a cry for help. Did you hear a name?"

"No." "I did, and it was Harry. Do you suppose that boy?"

He had set his horse at the fence and driven home the spurs and the rest of the sentence was lost as the animal took the jump. Walton was after him immediately and together they rode around the edge of the little orchard. As they circled the copse they were confronted by a wild growth of bushes, the tops of which partly screened a slight slope rising beyond. Through the film of the natural curtain, however, they could see the open amphitheatre of field. Not twenty yards from them a man lay outstretched upon the grass and motionless. Over him, with his hand still grasping a knife planted in the victim's breast, was a younger and a slighter one. The riders had burst through the hedge and were upon this scene before the second of the two figures was aware of their approach. He started up, bringing the knife with him, his hand and the weapon dripping. It was Harry Blake.

"Harry, Harry, what have you done? Don't strike again for God's sake!"

He Denies the Murder. Grayson leaped from his horse and thrust Blake back. The man on the ground was John Wickliffe, stiffening in death. The magistrate bent over him, thrusting a hand under his coat, but even as he performed the act Wickliffe had ceased to breathe. Walton had dismounted. He now threw himself upon Blake, who had started back at the sudden appearance of the two men. Walton gripped him firmly by the sleeve as Grayson looked up from the body.

"Dead," said the Magistrate, "and by your hand, Harry. This is a sad day for all of us, but the one whom I am thinking of even in this minute is your father."

Blake looked from one to the other of his captors, reading his condemnation in the stern faces.

"Why, I didn't kill him," he said, his lips trembling. "I rode here to give him help, and just then you came up."

Grayson shook his head. "It won't do, Harry," said Walton. "We heard the cry when you struck him, and we were here before you had recovered from the blow. In the absence of the proper officers you shall have to place you under arrest."

Blake tossed the knife from him and wiped his hands on a handkerchief, slowly regaining command of himself.

"Oh, I guess you won't," he said. "I'm not pretending I'm not glad the little beast is dead, for I am. But you know me. It's not as if you'd found another here with him."

Grayson found his tongue at this speech. "What's that?" he thundered, "asking us to connive at your crime? We take you red handed and we think we will shield you? No, Harry Blake, no. We are your father's friends and yours, too, but you should know us better than that."

"All right," said Blake, carelessly. "I'm not asking you to connive at a crime. I didn't kill Wickliffe. I'm only asking you to believe that when I tell you so."

"And I'm telling you we will accept no such lead and allow you to give us no such hint as to our position in the matter," said Grayson, impatiently. "But I didn't kill him," answered Blake, defiantly. "What! Do you really mean to try to face it out? You say you didn't kill him, with Walton and myself here?"

Blake nodded. "Then I can only say that such a device will be as futile as the other. You had just stabbed him as we rode up, and that's what we shall have to swear to."

The young man showed the first trace of active fear he had exhibited since he recognized the two horsemen.

Suggests a Search. "You saw me strike him?"

"No, but it was plain you had just done so." "But I was only trying to pull out the knife." "You'll have difficulty in proving that." Blake made a gesture of despair. "Then I suppose it's all up with me," he said.

"Wait," he added a moment later, with some bitterness. "If I can't rely on your friendship I shall have to begin contriving my defence in spite of you, I suppose. Do you mind helping me to search the vicinity for the man who did this thing?"

"For what man? Are you going to try to deny this thing in spite of what I have told you?"

"Do you think I am going to accept it meekly," the young fellow flared back at him. "You won't aid me and you're the very one I would have looked to for aid. In that case I'll have to do what I can without it. Wickliffe was too much everybody's enemy to make such a fuss about, it seems to me, but if you're on his side now he's dead why all right, that's your lookout."

Walton, who had listened to the dialogue without comment, but had been observing Blake closely, interrupted at this point. He had hunted among the grass where the knife had been tossed and he now held the weapon. "Have you your hunting knife about you, Harry?" he asked. "That would help to clear the affair somewhat."

The boy paled and stammered under the question. His hand rested on his belt at the left side and closed upon an empty leather sheath.

"No," he faltered. "I must have lost it. It must have dropped out along the road somewhere."

With full desire to give Blake the benefit of any circumstance, however slight, the two men searched the bushes on all sides of the spot, but discovered nothing further that had the slightest bearing upon the case. They sadly, but determined to do what in their capacity as citizens the law demanded of them, they prepared to take their prisoner to the village. Grayson buckled one end of a strap to the bit of Blake's horse, which was found in the orchard, and took the other in his hand.

"If you attempt to escape, Harry, I am armed," he said firmly, and this was the only word that passed among the members of the little cavalcade until the village was reached. Blake was lodged in the jail on the Magistrate's orders.

The body of Wickliffe was taken to the town hall that night and Ribbold, the prosecutor, was summoned before him in its entirety. Blake had been on his terms with the victim for a year, following a dispute concerning the attentions of the elder man to a young woman to whom Blake was attached. They had had no further collision until the meeting at the roadside inn. The former quarrel apparently had been forgotten in the meanwhile, but warmed by drink, they had carried a matter of politics to personal ground. Then had come an insult, a scuffle, and Wickliffe had left, promising trouble. Motive was not fully afforded, and testimony as to Blake's actions after Wickliffe's departure would weigh heavily toward proving that he had followed the other with deliberate intention of mischief.

The weapon with which the murder had been committed had been made the final step in perfecting the evidence. Grayson had found the dealer who had sold a hunting knife to the young man. He had identified it positively as the one shown to him by Grayson. Servants of the gathering at the inn identified it. Members of the gathering at the inn could swear that when Blake was in the place his knife was in his sheath. Nothing could be clearer or more satisfactory.

Wickliffe's horse, covered with dust and fatter, had returned to its owner's stable the next morning. Two pistols, still charged, were found in the holsters.

Easy to Convict. The prosecutor found the only question in the degree of murder involved, and felt assured that he could establish a premeditated crime. This view was borne out by the fact that no arms had been found on the body of Wickliffe, not even a knife. It seemed likely that Wickliffe had delayed his journey and waited for Blake along the road, but the natural supposition was that his intention in this had been only to renew the quarrel with words and threats, or, at most, to submit their differences to an encounter with fists. This would account for the fact the two men had left the road as they would have done if in search of a spot where they might be free from interruption. The theory was that Blake, finding his enemy without adequate means of defence, had taken advantage of his helplessness to kill him. But the haste with which he raw welt of insult from which he suffered all pointed to a determination to murder at the first opportunity.

At his trial Blake told a story of having heard a cry while riding along the road and of riding behind the orchard to find Wickliffe on the ground with the knife in the wound. He had not started out with the intention of overtaking Wickliffe, he said. He declared that he did not see any one near Wickliffe or in the vicinity until Grayson and Walton rode up. As to the knife, he could not attempt to explain the loss of his own, but counsel for the defence took the position that the one found in his hand was not the one he had carried. Attempts to shake the identification, however, were unavailing, and no other knife was produced. In fact, the case was so free from doubt as to place little responsibility upon the jury. There was but one possible view of the circumstances. The testimony of Grayson and Walton amounted to direct evidence, so strong was it; no single fact was incompatible with guilt, nor was any other construction than guilt possible when all facts were taken together. The prosecutor cleverly worked out his theory of a premeditated crime, and as no claim of self-defence or sudden anger was advanced the verdict of guilty in the first degree was returned.

Blake's imprisonment affected him mentally and physically and his execution hastened an end that apparently was inevitable within a few months.

The judge who had presided at the trial of Blake received a communication from the county jail one day about a year after the execution of the young man. He was requested to visit a murderer then resting under sentence of death who, according to the message from the head jailer, had matters of importance to confess. The judge, albeit sceptical concerning the information imparted by condemned criminals, consented to visit the man within an hour. When he arrived he found Grayson and Walton, to whom similar messages had been despatched that morning. There was as yet no inkling of the case which the murderer, Deemes, wished to throw light upon.

The three were conducted to the death cell. The prisoner rose to meet them. He was a tall man, with hollow cheeks and sharp, narrow eyes.

"You are the judge who passed sentence on Harry Blake for the murder of Wickliffe," he asked.

The judge nodded. "And you gentlemen were the two important witnesses against him?"

Grayson and Walton signified their assent.

Why He Killed Wickliffe. "Then you sent an innocent man to his death, and you others were the means of so sending him," said Deemes. "I killed Wickliffe. I know perfectly well that you think this is another case of a criminal seeking to take the crimes of another on himself, a familiar ploy to you will say. But this is the truth. "I was one of Wickliffe's right hand men some years ago. It does not matter how I came to be, but I did his dirty work for him, as you can find out if you take the trouble to investigate. I'm not trying to make a grand stand play, but I've been used in better things and finally we quarrelled. I left him. He wasn't willing to let it drop there. One of the ways of that slimy snake was to keep his grudges in storage and find a means of settling them sooner or later. He followed me out of the county to Albany, where I was trying to be decent, and took me off the only straight job I'd had for years and told me there wasn't a place in the State he couldn't find me. He was afraid of me because I knew too much about him and he was trying to get me out of his territory."

"I told him all I wanted was to be let alone, but he wouldn't. So I came down here to even up with him. I let him think my game was to blackmail him first, and perhaps I should have for a while. I was coming along the road that day and met him riding. He wanted to pass, but I told him I was through with letting him take the upper hand and that he'd find it to his advantage to have a talk with me. So he rode off behind the orchard and dismounted and we started to talk."

"He got mad, the way he always did when he was crossed, and words led to blows. He struck me in the face and when we grappled my hand fell on a knife stuck in his belt. I stabbed him with it and left him dying. I rode away on his horse just as young Blake was coming through the orchard in answer to his cries."

"I kept in hiding till it was all over, but I followed the case. You two witnesses came up just after Blake and saw him stooping over Wickliffe. He probably was just as glad the man was dead as I was, but he had nothing to do with it."

Grayson, pale with horror at these revelations, still clung to a final chance that the prisoner's statement was untrue.

"But the knife?" he gasped. "It was Harry's own knife."

"I know," nodded Deemes, with a sneer. "You never thought of that scuffle they had, did you? It's perfectly plain. All the gentlemen who were at the inn that afternoon testified to a fight between Wickliffe and Blake. But nobody stopped to think that Wickliffe might have pulled Blake's knife out of his sheath in the mixup, or that it might have fallen promptly, though you would have known it, for Wickliffe would have tried to kill Blake on the spot, if I knew anything of the temper of the man."

A careful investigation of this confession showed it to be true in all parts that could be tested. A re-examination of the members of the party at the inn showed that Deemes' suggestion concerning the knife probably was correct. Several of them recalled that Wickliffe, when dragged aside, had held one arm stiffly at his side, with the hand doubled under the cuff.

Blake's delay along the road to account for the fact that Grayson and Walton had nearly caught up with him when he heard Wickliffe's first cry remained the only unexplained point. This was cleared up by the related testimony of a farmer's boy, who said he had seen Wickliffe ride behind the orchard with a man on foot and later had seen Blake stop and pick some apples from an overhanging branch.

The Fall Styles Are Pleasing

Especially to men who admire "distinctive" modes—something just a little out of the ordinary, and strictly correct.

Our Fall Suits possess this quality of "distinction." They are specially designed by the high-salaried designers of the Twentieth Century Company, who spare no expense to make their product perfect.

Quality of fabric, lining, trimmings—excellence of tailoring—EVERYTHING about these superb suits shows the result of the infinite pains taken by the makers.

Can we fit you? Certainly, for 20th Century Suits are fitted to LIVE MODELS in the making. And the fit is permanent, for the honest inside work prevents shrinking, sagging or stretching at any point.

Suits, $10 to $25. Overcoats, $10 to $27.

LOCAL NEWS

Mrs. M. T. Gibbon is visiting friends in Boston.

You can't make it pay to go on wearing that old suit to long. Pileston's fall clothing has arrived.

E. J. Robertson, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., left at noon today for Halifax en route for a two weeks' trip to Bermuda.

A lady's shirt waist found on St. James street yesterday was handed to Sergt. Baxter. The garment awaits an owner at Central Station. George could never wear a shirt-waist.

The Eastern Liner Governor Cobb, Captain Allan, is due at 5.30 o'clock this afternoon from Boston via Maine ports.

The three masted schooner Adonis, Captain Brown, was towed to sea at noon today. She is bound for New York with a cargo of lumber shipped by A. Cushing and Co.

York L. O. L. will hold an open meeting this evening in the Orange Hall, Germain street, when addresses will be given and a musical program will be carried out. Members are entitled to bring their friends. Light refreshments will be served at the close.

Rev. Dr. Raymond will leave this evening for Ottawa, where he will spend the next ten days. The pulpit in St. Mary's Church on Sunday will be occupied by Rev. J. B. Warner, of Middleton, N. S.

There was only one offender in the police court this morning. She was Mary Ann Brooks. Intoxication is Mary's chief fault and she appears in court a number of times each week. This morning she was sent into jail for two months in default of paying a $100 dollar fine.

Policeman Finley reports that the sidewalk on Acadia street is in a dangerous condition, caused by the foundation settling and leaving a deep depression in the walk. As a result, last night Mrs. Margaret French, of Metcalf street, fell and badly sprained an ankle. The policeman assisted the lady to her home.

The floating wreck reported at Liverpool by the fishing schooner Arkon sighted on the passage there is supposed in Gloucester to be the schooner Annie Bliss, of North York, which was wrecked in August and whose crew were brought to Gloucester by the schooner Lillian. The wreck has been drifting around the Middle Atlantic off the Nova Scotia coast, a menace to navigation, and her location has been reported by several vessels.

At a meeting of the directors of the Grand Marine Steamship Company, held last week, it was resolved to offer the Aurora and all the Company's property for sale together with the good-will of the Company in the hands of some differents in the Company led up to this action. It is possible that these difficulties will be removed and the route continued.—Beacon.

Mr. Frank J. O'Neil, son of Mr. H. O'Neil, who has been a law student for the past year, leaves on Tuesday next for Halifax to take a course at Dalhousie Law School. Mr. John Landry, son of Hon. Judge Landry, Dorchester, has entered the office of J. D. Pihoney, K. C., where he will study law.—Gleaner.

Contractor John S. Scott has completed his driving operation on the St. John River. With only nineteen men and without horses he made the drive from Grand Falls to the head of the boom limits, including the Aroostook, in nine days. There was about five million feet in the last drive and the river is now clean from Grand Falls to the boom limits. Contractor Scott has not received a report of the amount of lumber driven this year, but it is expected that the total will be upwards of 135,000,000 feet.—Despatch.

HOW DRIVER SMITH'S HAD PARTRIDGE FOR DINNER

Season Had Barely Opened When the Man at the Throttle of No. 4 Found Things Coming His Way.

Wm. B. Smith, known as one of the oldest locomotive engineers in the employ of the C. P. R., probably ate the earliest partridge dinner of the legal shooting season of 1909, although he was not looking for sport at the time it came his way. He was, in fact, most interested in getting No. 4, the Boston train which left here yesterday morning, started on its way to Montreal.

At the Throttle of No. 4, the Boston train which left here yesterday morning, the partridge dinner was served. The train had pulled into McAdam, Mr. Smith found its plump body resting upon the front of the engine.

Cooked in the engine, the bird made the engineer's dinner, a meal which was the more relished because of its unique nature. Mr. Smith is still wondering how the bird knew just when it was legal for it to kill itself, and is of the opinion that it had been contemplating hard-kari for some time.

NEW SHOE FACTORY IS TURNING OUT SAMPLES

Delay in the Equipment Puts Back the Start of Full Operations.

The boot and shoe factory which the Humphrey Co. are starting down on the Courtenay Bay, is now turning out samples. There has been some annoying delay in securing from the manufacturers certain parts of the equipment, particularly lasts and dies. It was anticipated that the factory would be running on full time before now, but through the holding up of these orders it will be impossible to settle down to work much before the first of October.

The most of the machinery is now in place and a number of men are engaged, but until the remainder of the equipment is received it will not be deemed advisable to attempt much more than is now being done. Mr. R. T. Hayes, speaking to the Star this morning, said the company did not anticipate any delay in securing qualified men to carry on the work, but of course it is as yet a little too soon to make definite statements.

RECONCILED HOW TO THEIR DAUGHTER'S MARRIAGE

Mr. and Mrs. Dixon Forgive the Young Couple and Wish Them Lifelong Happiness.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dixon, whose daughter surprised them on Tuesday evening with the news of her marriage an hour before, have become reconciled to the fact and feel that things may not be as bad as they appeared.

It is stated that the young couple, Mrs. Dixon's daughter and Mr. F. H. Forgan, to the match and the young couple knowing the fact, took refuge in a quiet wedding. They have nothing against the groom, Mr. Knox, but considered the daughter, who is not quite seventeen, too young. "We were rather surprised and annoyed," said Mrs. Dixon, "and should have prevented it, had we known, but I trust that everything will come out all right and that neither of them will regret it."

TUG GOES UP RIVER TO CATCH DRIFT LOGS

The Glacier tug Flushing left for Fredericton yesterday with the outfit which has been engaged in beating the river from that place to St. John for logs escaped from the raft. The outfit consisted of two small tugs and thirteen men. It succeeded in capturing nearly 1,500 pieces.

Towing from the booms will be resumed on Monday. The Scott drive, last for the corporation drive of 1909, will then be handled. It is expected that four or five rafts will finish it.

The tug Lily has already been laid up and the Admiral, which arrived at Grand Bay yesterday with her last consignment of logs, will be laid up today.

THE SEASON FOR CHOLERA

INFANTUM ABOUT OVER

Only Eight Deaths So Far This Month and Few Cases Remaining.

The cases of cholera infantum in the city are on the decrease. The death list during the past few weeks from this disease has been much larger than usual, although in former years the disease has been more prevalent. The dry season affects the infants' health greatly and annually cholera has claimed many victims. From statistics compiled at the Board of Health office, it was learned that out of seventy-five burial permits issued, twenty deaths were due to cholera infantum. This is a large percentage. During the last week of August the death rate from cholera was quite alarming. There were eight deaths from the disease from August 31st to 23rd. Gradually the disease grew less prevalent.

There have been eight deaths from cholera so far this month, and while there are still a number of cases, it is believed the worst spell is over.

The Board of Health inspectors are taking steps to combat the cause of fever now existing. The situation is not considered alarming and there is little chance of a spread of the disease.

STILL USING FIREARMS ON COURTENAY BAY

A citizen complains that persons are still using firearms on Courtenay Bay. Some time ago Mr. D. Magee and another gentleman narrowly escaped being shot by a careless young man who was shooting at a tin can on a wharf and sending his bullets up toward the sky.

Yesterday afternoon another young man was shooting snipe near the railway track at the foot of Clarence St. and being unable to bag any snipe he shot a few pigeons.

A prominent citizen complains to the police that the use of fire arms in the vicinity where the young man was shooting yesterday is extremely dangerous, as there are a large number of children playing about the place.

FRATERNAL VISIT!

Last evening Johnston No. 24 L. O. L. paid a fraternal visit to True Blue No. 11, St. John, West. They were welcomed by an address by Rowley J. Anderson, Worshipful Master. True Blue No. 11 followed by an address by J. L. Osgood, Worshipful Master of Johnston No. 24. A musical programme was carried out. Among those taking part were: Messrs. Stokes and Walker of No. 24 L. O. L. Speeches were made by County Master Spinnex, of St. John, West; Past County Master Towners, of No. 24, and Mr. McIntyre, of York No. 2. Refreshments were served after which the meeting broke up with the singing of the National Anthem.

True Blue Lodge is now in a flourishing condition and much credit is due to their Worshipful Master Rowley Anderson. True Blue No. 11 will return the fraternal visit to Johnston No. 24 L. O. L. on the first Monday in October.

The Pilgrimage Outing Club will conduct a private assembly at the Wyandotte hall at Crouville on Friday evening, September 24. The following are the committee in charge—W. T. McLaughlin, S. G. McIntyre, Holly H. Thomsen, C. J. Thompson, C. J. Hize and E. J. Smith.
