It was in contradiction of the testimony given by a previous government witness, who had declared that he saw James in the house with his penders hanging down. Thi but another which he made later had the opposite effect upon the throng that filled the court room. The court room today was the scene of a number of exciting events.

Dr. W. W. Schodeld, the first physician to visit the scene after the tragedy, gave not one iota of assistance to the government case. It also witnessed the putting in as evidence of the socks and trausers forms. the socks and trousers found outside the house on the following day, the torn pillow case with which it is claimed one of the burglars was mask-ed, and the shoe found inside the house by the local police officials.

Witness, as questions about his sister's condition were put to him, hesitated and wept a little, drawing in his lips and biting them in his effort to keep back the ever ready tears.

Cross-examined by Mr. Joyner, he stated that at the time of the tragedy his brother and wife were staying at his brother and wife were staying at a house nearby, but came to their

He stated that two nights previous he had heard a noise in the cellar, but paid little attention to it. The same noise was heard on the night of the tragedy, but he went to sleep again. He was then awakened by "Terrible shrieks and heavy falls coming to the street of the shrieks and heavy falls coming the same of the shrieks and heavy falls coming from the direction of father's room." He then repeated the story as given in his direct testimony, and repeated his previous story as to the calling of a doctor. While at the house of Mr. Shepardson he heard his father call-

"Police, murder, help."
The face of the witnes at this point seemed to grow purple with restrained feeling, and there was a pause of some ed, and the shoe found inside the house by the local police officials.

Young James Fosburgh made an interesting figure on the stand, and his testimony was direct and conclusive. James was slightly nervous, and this was noticeable when any reference was made to the death of his sister or to the dishabille of the family on the night of the tragedy.

It was plain that all the strength of his nature was exerted to keep back the tears when he related the tragic story of the death of "Sister May."

The expected attempt of the government to delve into the question of family quarrels did not materialize.

The superstructure which the government erected today over their foundation of last week cannot, therefore, be said to be in any way complete.

After the close of the session for "As I was getting his shoes from under the bed I saw a large revolver there. I got it and gave it to someone, but do not know who. Beatrice came into the room and picked up an old worn brown derby hat that had been smashed in. It did not before."

On the railing of the balcony were marks of a hand in the dust on the slate found about the house, some in the kitchen bedroom, the attic and the carriage room. They were sulphur matches in cards, while nothing but parlor matches were used by the family. The witnesser still the servants did not stay in that night.

Counsel said to him:—"Mr. Chapma Counsel said to him:—'Mr. Chapman said he saw suspenders hanging down; is that so?"

The young man replied:—'I have not had a pair of suspenders for five years."

Mr. Joyner asked:—'Did you not stop to ask how your sister was wounded?'

"No, because she was hurt and we had to get some one. I did not stop. I just knew she was hurt and we had to get some one. I did not stop. I just knew she was hurt and I had to get some one there."

she was hurt and I had to get some one chere."

This closed Mr. Fosburgh's examination, and as he left the stand he smiled pleasantly at his brother, remarking: "That's through with."

Fred. W. Lund, who was in the employ of Fosburgh & Son as bookkeeper and paymaster, was called to the stand to identify a piece of paper with the names of employes written upon it. He could not do so, however, and James Fosburgh was recalled. He stated that he himself had written the names on the paper about september, 1900.

Capt. Wm. G. White, of the Pittsfield police, was the last witness of the day and retired from the stand at the close of his direct examination. He was notified of the affair and met defendant at the top of the front stairs and was by him introduced to Robert L. Fosburgh, the father. The latter declared to him that there had been burglars in the house and that they had shot his daughter. This was the first witness had known about the alleged burglars. History of the U. S. Navy,

The Third Volume of Which Secretary Refuses to be Allowed as a Text Book at the Naval Academy.

BOSTON, July 22.—Rear Admiral Sampson talked for publication today on the subject of McClay's history of the United States Navy, the third volume of which Secretary Long has ordered not to be used as a text book at the naval academy because of the chapter in severe criticism of Rear Admiral Schley's action at the battle of Santiago.

"I would welcome an investigation of this whole matter by congress or by the navy department, but I see no hope of its being taken up. Schler's first statement regarding the battle of Santiago was moderately correct. The interviews given out afterwards were not at all correct. They were entirely different from his first accounts, and were written in a different spirit. I think. THE STEEL STRIKE.

The New York Sun sees in the strike ordered by the Amalgamated Associa-tion of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers against three of the companies em-braced in the United States Steel Corporation, a serious blow at the ability of American steel manufacturers to compete with British and European rivals in the markets of the world.

In response to an inquiry whether or not he had ever given Mr. McClay any facts about his campaign, and emphatically that he never had. "I

he says that he obtained them from me, that is all well and good. I stand

For years the New York Sun has been foremost in praising the superiority of American over British workmen and in chronicling the pasworkmen and in chronicling the passing of large foreign contracts from English to United States workshops. That the Sun is now actually alarmed over the strike and its far-reaching effects, if successful, is evident from what it says regarding the future of the American steel industry:

mental and moral qualities. The inevitable outcome of such a system, where it is carried out with a completeness now approached in Great Britain, is a reduction of a nation's industry to a dead level of achievement, to a status of Chinese stagnation with respect both to quality and quantity. Such would be the drear and hopeless prospect which would confront our manufacturers, should our labor associations gain the nearly absolute mastery of industrial conditions which the trade unions have managed to acquire in the United Kingdom.

Without the knowledge of the militia department, the department of public works constructed the gtables on a piece of land quite close fo the powder magazine, a site on which stables existed some years ago. The department of militia had them torn down on account of their immediate proximity to the powder house, and consequent danger to life and property in the event of fire breaking out in the stables. It is likely that the militia department will insist on the public works people finding a new location.

LEBANON, N. A one-seated top buggy containing James Goodwin of Hinsdale, Mass.; Wm. Thurston of Percy, N. It is not known where Thurston and McCabe joined the party, which returned from Enfield just in advance of George B who reports them as singing loudly. The train was on time and was ma ing its usual speed on entering the yard. There is a long stretch of road over which they drove from which the train could be plainly seen, but no attention seems to have been paid to the usual crossing whistle, which was heard by Benjamin and others. It is evident that the party tried to cross in advance of the train, the alone clearing the rails. The train, which was in charge of Conducto Austin and Engineer Warren Emer-son, both of Concord, was quickly stopped. The bodies were all on the left side of the track, the largest man being 123 feet from the point of lision. The horse was thrown about 70 feet against the culvert fence and but little injured. Two trainmen were left with the bodies, and Dr. F. A. Smith and Selectman H. P. Goodrich were called. Examination showed that death in each case was instantaneous the skulls of all being crushed. To Grow in Incubator - Taken to Buffalo, Packed in Elderdown, to Thrive Before the Eyes of Pan-American Visitors.

NEW YORK, July 19.-After waltpear, there was joy in the family of Morris J. Cohen, at No. 54 Pike street, Tuesday night, when Mrs. Cohen pre-sented her hsuband with triplets. And as if this distinction were not suffipient, the fond parents have sent the newcomers to Buffalo, where, in an incubator at the Pan-American Exon, all the world may see them

The advent of the Cohen triplet vas unexpected, and the family phyremain in Buffalo until September, He was startled on Wednesday when a elegram was handed to him announ ng the arrival of the little ones.

In company with Miss Caroli Martin, a trained nurse, Dr. Fishel hastened to New York and fould mother and children progressing favorably. The triplets were packed in otton and tenderly cared for by Miss Martin, while Dr. Fishel gave attention to Mrs. Cohen. To a suggestion that their offspring would be more apt to thrive in an incubator, the parents replied that they would leave it all to the physician.

"So I decided," said Dr. Fishel yesterday, "to take the infants to Buffalo. There they will receive every possible attention. A special incuba-tor will be used, and visitors to the Pan-American Exposition will be permitted to see the babies grow. These are the first English-speaking triplets to be so environed, aside from the born in England during the diamond jubilee of Queen Victoria, and who were exhibited at Earl's Court. The American triplets are healthy and bid fair to prosper."

Dr. Fishel went to Buffalo at nine o'clock last night. Miss Martin carried the three little Cohens in a basket, which had been lined with eider-down and silk. Mr. Cohen will start for Buffalo today and the mother wi blow in the course of a fortnight.

CHINESE SIMPLICITY.

An Incident of the Capture of Pekin, (London Daily News.)

One of the most laughable instance which I witnessed during the war in China, happened on Wednesday, August 15, the day following the one on which Pekin was entered by the allies and the legations relieved. The American troops, commanded by Gen. Chaffee, started in the early morning from camp under the Tartar City wall, near the canal gate, without consulting the other powers as to their destination or intentions. About 9 a. m. word came from Chaffee that a side gate had been found and opened on the right. With two officers of his taff, the general started at once to see for himself the prospect of en-trance. But a short time before gatlant Capt. Riley had fallen, shot dead by a bullet through the head, which struck him as he was sighting a gun on top of the Chien gate. Dearly be-loved as an officer, a soldier, and a man, the news of his death was a shock to every one of the little army of Americans, who respected and admired him so greatly.

When General Chaffee and his staff officers went to the gate that had been discovered, passed through it and along the inside of the outer wall, I accompanied them. None of the party felt in the mood for levity, and I rer that I, for one, was laboring under a very strong realization of the danger of our position. We eventually discovered that the gate had but admitted us to an outer court, which was apparently between the outer wall and the inner one of equal dimensions. Consequently we had gained nothing in the matter of position by finding the gate. Before we had discovered all this owever, and as we were still engaged n exploring the court, those in adform of a soldier, so suddenly as to cause them to wonder if he had not sprung from the ground. His prox-imity at the moment of the discovery of his existence, the fact that he was apparently unarmed, and the broad and trustful grin which illuminated his countenance, were all partly re-sponsible for his escape from death. Had he been seen at any distance, or had he attempted to escape, he would certainly have been shot. Under the disting circumstances he very probably owed his life to the presence the American commander-in-chief, As the Americans advanced he pre

As the Americans advanced he presented a small wooden table, upon which were several Chinese characters. His evident anxiety that we should not overlook this bit of unintelligibly inscribed wood caused us at once to jump to the conclusion that he was the bearer of a message from "the city within a city within a city." In other words, we thought, "Here is a man with a message from the palace Perhaps it is from the Emperor himself."

At this moment I saw the interess.

ager, or even the Emperor himself."
At this moment I saw the interpreter of the French general approaching.
Knowing that he could speak Chinese, I hastened towards him and explained the important find we had made. The the important find we had made. The interpreter had come to ask General Chaffee if the French artillery might shell the Imperial City towers from the Tartar City wall, firing over the heads of the American troops. Chaffee refused to entertain such a probluntness, and even employ discourt-eous and profane language, before the French shells ceased bursting within a few yards of the American advance.

a few yards of the American advance. But that is another story.

The French interpreter was as eager as I to see what was on the placard. He, the soldier detailed to guard the Chinese, and myself, formed an anxious knot as the Frenchman seanned the queer hieroglyphics. I read distinued use.

"What about this fellow?" asked the

"Why, sir," said the interpreter, with a sickly smile, "this is a Chinese soldier. The board he carries testifies to that fact, and in addition tells who he is and to what body he is attached. He belongs to a sort of imperial guard. He says he was on duty guarding the gate in the outer wall, and left his post for a moment, to find, on his return, that your soldiers had entered in his absence. He is very anxious that I should ask you to go outside the gate at once; for, he says, no one is allowed in here, and if his commander discovers that he has neglect-ed his duty and left his post and gun, he will be severely punished. He also says that if you will allow him to return to the gate he will show you the order which forbids anyone to enter

Well, we all laughed. One or two of the younger ones fairly howled. We didn't any of us feel gay, but no one could keep a straight face in the presence of such amazing simplicity. Even the general smiled and grunted, which is as near as he ever comes to a laugh. nese soldier actually asking his ene-mies, who were even then undecided whether to put an end to him or send him to the rear as a prisoner, to go out of the Imperial city, because is commanding officer would nunish alm for letting us in! And when one thinks of American casualties that were piled up before that day was over and the Chinese dead that were cattered over that stubbornly contested ground, the gatekeeper's usual request seemed still more ludicrous. The last I saw of him he was vainly endeavoring to make up his mind whether to stop and expostulate with the American soldier, whose hold on or to go on resignedly in the face of the anticipated severity of his punishment, when he should be called to ac ount for his abandonment of his post

The old lady made no demur, merely request-ing that her daughter, who, she said, had just been confined, should be left undisturbed in her room. But the general was too old a bird to be allured by that kind of chaff, and said he was an old man with children of his own, and would go and see the aroused, he went and found in a upstairs room a young woman in bed. Advancing to the bedside, the old ruffian in his silkiest tones inquired how the mother and babe were progressing, and asked if he might see the latter. The proud mamma raplied that it was too cold to expose her offspring to his inquisitive gaze. At this point the old lady, who was denoing around in a perfect costage of this point the old lady, who was dancing around in a perfect ecstacy of apprehension, remarked that the babe was very delicate, and had to be kept under the bed clothes to avoid taking cold. There was silence for a mute, and then the general, turning und to the old gal of the 140-inch waist, said, 'I suppose, madam, when your time comes, it will be a fifteen-

Fulfil His Commission to Visit Fulfil His Commission to Visit the Fields of Darkest Africa.

(Cor. Portland, Me., Press.) Full particulars of the sickness and merly of Portland, were received yesterday in a letter to Mrs. LeLacheur. Mr. LeLacheur was just completing a trip to the principal mission field of the world in the interests of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, of which organization he was one of the founders. He had visited Japan, North China, the Philippines, South China, India and Palestine. His desire was to visit Africa, also, a field so dangerous that no member of the mission board had ever visited it. His mission board had ever visited it. His intrepid soul never shunned danger. So on arriving in London, he turned his face toward "Darkest Africa." He arrived in Freetown, Sierra Leone, West Africa, on May 25. His letter announcing his coming had not been received by the missionaries of the Alliance Mission, so he found no one to meet him. It was a trying position meet him. It was a trying position for even the veteran missionary hero. He found himself in a strange land with few white faces to be seen. But with his usual fearless energy, he planned to journey into the fever Truro Victorias, won from John Mills

Here he found Mr. Mitchell, one of the alliance missionaries from the interior. They travelled together to Makomp—a station some miles farther inland. From thence to Ro Bethel, a station still farther inland. A conference was arranged at Ro Bethel to be attended by the alliance missionaries. Thus was Mr. LeLacheur enabled to fulfil his mission to the Soudan. Great encouragement and blessing was brought to the weary workers by his inspiring Bible expositions. The business affairs of the mission also received due attention. ST. JOHN, N. B., July 4th, 1901. To the Editor of the Sun: with reference to the accomm afforded to the public on the railways last Saturday, and thought it might be interesting to your readers.

Some person (I presume a supporter of the present of the public of the of the present government) has lo-cated a saw mill on the Scoudac river adjacent to the railway bridge on the road between Painseo Junction and Shediac. This gentleman has machinery for cutting his slabs and edg-ings into firewood, which he loads or cars provided by the government and sends the wood to Moncton. The value of each carload of wood is, lunderstand, $5. The mill is situated from twenty to twenty-five feet be ow the main line of railway, and short the grade is very steep.

On Saturday last I was unluck on Saturday last I was unlucky enough to be a passenger on the train from Painsec Junction to Shedjac. When we arrived at the mill the passenger cars were left standing on the main line, while the engine attempted in vain to haul three empty cars and two cars loaded with wood from this mill. The empty ways were then any mill. mill. The empty cars were then run on the main line, and a second attempt was made at the loaded ones, and after a great effort and covering the track with sand and putting on a full head of steam, the engineer ceeded in getting the two loaded cars on the main line, and the empty ones were then run back to the mill. This performance detained the train three-quarters of an hour within one and a half miles of Shediac, and one gentleman who had an appointment was very much disappointed in not being able to keep it. The protests of the passengers received but, one rethe passengers received but one re-ply, that written orders had been given from Monoton that this work should be done, and on enquiry I ascertained it was a very frequent occurrence, and a great annoyance to passengers on their way to Shediac and Prince Boward Island.

The train hands, of course, are not to be considered in such a matter as this, but by this beautiful arrange-ment they would only have from ten to fifteen minutes to get their dinners leath of Rev. D. W. LeLacheur, for- before returning. Certainly if this is a sample of the way passenger trains are to be run, it is something new,

It might be interesting to enquire how much freight the government got from these two cars. Yours truly,

What Was Once a Settlement of Fifteen Families.

Only Two Remain—Deserted Farms -The Incendiary's Torch-A Place of Memories.

Hammond Vale, a dozen miles from Sussex, is a lovely green valley, with smiling farms and a generally thrifty ppearance, though it is perhaps a settlement of less importance than in the province. Mr. Simmons has been years gone by, when more lumbering in ill health for some time and had was done in that section and before the first of March last. He was, however, greater influence to the neighboring valley of the Kennebeccasis. But climb the lofty and steep hill beyond the Vale, and you find a deserted set-aspect of a place that was once the seat and centre of human hopes and ambitions but is now stowly returning ambitions but is now slowly returning to a state of nature. In many parts of the province one finds aband-omed farms, and in some places only a few scattered families where once were apparently thriving settlements. In some cases settlements were made in places where the physical conditions were unfavorable, and the people thred of the effort to till comparatively worthless lands after the lumber had been cut and sold. In some cases the allurements of New England caused first individuals and then families to migrate. Other parts of the province attracted some, and to some the cities and larger villages offered apparently better conditions of life. And under-neath and pervading all these movements lay the restless, wandering in-stinct that is in the drift of the Anglo-

Saxon blood, Yonder, beyond the Hammond Vale, where not many years ago some fif-teen families lived, and where there was a school for the children, there live today but two. And one of these, living farthest from the valley and in what was about the centre of the setwhat was about the centre of the settlement, would probably not be there but for the fact that the man is care-taker of the property of the Chisholm Lake Fishing Club.

It was in this deserted settlemen that the recent incendiary fires occurred. The buildings burned were the tenantless houses and barns along two or three miles of road. When a member of the Star staff drove along the road of the Star staff drove along the road recently the scene was one to appeal very forcibly to the feelings and the imagination. "Look at the wasted muscle," his companion said, pointing to great heaps of stones in the now deserted fields. First there had been the labor of cutting down the trees, then the rooting up of the stumps, and lastly in the years of cuttivation the toilsome gathering up of the loose stones and pilling them in these great heaps. In one place along the road the travellers could peer through the thriftravellers could peer through the thrif-ty growth of young birches and alders and see the old roadside fence, the poles rotten and only held in place by strong young stems of the trees Many years had passed since that fence was built, and in the interim the forest growth had swept triumphantly over it, and out to the very edge of the highway.

The keenly sensitive mind, looking upon it all, thinks of the infinite labor wasted, the life that once throbbed here, the children born and nurtured, the dreams and hopes, the pains and disappointments, and then passes out and down the hillside into the valley, feeling much as one might feel who had looked on the face of the dead.

PALE ANAEMIC YOUNG WOMEN

Anaemic, or thin, watery blood, is increasing—to an alarming extent among the school girls and young women of our land. Pale gums, tongue and eyelids, muscular weakness, inability for exertion, deficient appetite, impaired digestion, short breath, palpitation of the heart, attacks of vomiting, swooning, hysteria, and irregularities of the feminine organs are among the unmistakable symptoms of anaemia or poor quality of blood.

Anaemic persons are frequently said to be going into a decline, and as a fact do usually contract consumption or some fatal constitutional disease if they neglect to restore normal vigor. Fresh air, sunlight, moderate exercise and the regular use of r. Chase's Nerve Food after each meal will restore new vitality to the body and new color to the cheek of any anaemic person. ST. JOHN, N. B., JULY 24, 1901. RACE APPEAL FOR CIVIC CON-TRACTS.

The appeal to race which was s successfully made in Quebec province last year, and in 1896, on behalf of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his party has been found so useful that it is employed in Montreal to influence the award of contracts. When an electric lighting company, which had been paid $120 per lamp, tendered at $95, and another at $55, a strong effort was made to get the contract for the highest tenderer. The direct attempt failed but the high tenderers had friends enough to prevent the acceptance of the lowest offer. The high tender was reduced to $60, which was still higher than the offer of the competing company. Finally, when the old compan was found to be two votes short of enough to get the contract, a motion was carried in favor of a new call for

In the meantime the appeal to race is made in the strongest possible way in favor of the company which put in the high tender, La Presse says that the opposition is due to the fact that the Royal company is French, just as Sir Wilfrid was opposed in the English provinces because of his race. It lowest offer, the reason given by La poetais and the aut La Patrie last autumn. They then brought gain to the Herald's party. But it properly resents them now, though they are no more just than they were in 1900. What is the good Fredericton. of the Herald's protests? The French papers supporting the high tenderer are appealing to the same ma jority that they did when the supported Sir Wilfrid. Confident in the success of its appeal, La Presse repeats its statement in this emphatic way: "What La Presse "has said, and what it repeats in or-"der to get it into the heads of the "Herald and its friends, is that this "waged since June 15 is due to the "fact that they consider the Royal as "a French Canadian institution."

rot," just as the conservatives declared that the charges of face hatred made against them by Mr. Tarte and his friends last year was "all rot." The Herald says that the war was waged against the Royal "because an attempt "was made to debauch a good council
"in the interest of the Royal and also
"in that interest to outrage the prin-"ciple of awarding contracts to the "lowest bidder."

Whether it is true or not that an attempt was made to debauch the coun cil, it is certainly true that many attempts have been made by the Lau rier government to debauch the coun When these attempts were exposed the answer of the governmen party in Quebec was the same appeal which the Montreal Herald now vainwere told that the English were trying to turn Sir Wilfrid out because he was French. It was a good appeal to get voters and possibly it will be good enough to get the Montreal contract for the highest bidder.

He was satisfied with his ion as a newspaper man, and hably gave to its duties more of s strength than he could spare. In ferring the vocation which he inperited, understood and liked to any ublic position, Mr. Blackader was not inwise. Three brothers of his family were connected with the Recorder. A quarter of a century ago the one who was most conspicuous was offered an office, probably the second best that the dominion government had to bestow at Halifax. He accepted the position, and the two brothers, who were supposed to be less fortunate, stayed with the paper. They remained their own masters, engaged in work that they enjoyed and exerted considerable influence. It is said that the late Henry Blackader leaves in estate worth anywhere from $100.-000' to $200,000, and his partner has fared no worse. Masonic Sermon at St. Paul's Parish Church.

Probate Court Business Transacted at Sussex-People Who Are More or Less Known.

HAMPTON, Kings Co., July 22 .-Yesterday afternoon the officers and members of Corinthian lodge, No. 13, F. and A. Masons, with a few visiting brethren, paraded to St. Paul's parish church at Lakeside, accompanied by the Hampton Cornet band, There were over fifty men in line, and the route of march was the Masonic hall to the station, thence to Hampton vil-lage, and so by the old Eastern road to the church. There was a long wait for the congregation, which filled the difice in rear of the pews reserved for the fraternity, the monotony of hich was relieved by the playing of can by Miss Crawford. It was after if-past three when the sound of a litary march by the band as it topspeedy arrival of the long waited for Masons, and the bell rang out a brief call to worship. As the procession en-tered the church the choir and people stood and sang "O God, our help in ages past." The rector, Rev. C. D. Schofield, followed the visiting brethren and proceeded at once with orde of evening service. His sermon was founded on Genesis iv., 9: "Am I my brother's keeper," and was a lucid presentation of the idea that from the first man was endowed with the consciousness of an obligation to cherish and promote the well-being of his fel-low men. Along this line there naturally followed a culogium of the Ma-sonic order, its controlling principles and sublime ritual. Incidentally rerence was made to the opportunity afforded to Corinthian lodge during the past year to give practical expres on to those principles by the sympa thy, fraternal regard, and generous helpfulness extended to two brethre who had passed away and their fami-lies and friends who were called to mourn. The discourse throughout was a simple but clear enunciation of those blessed humanities which bind man to man, and which lie at the base of our nature and form the key-stor to our Christian civilization. Th prayers, responses and hymns were heartily taken up by all present, and the whole service was one of interest

THE MARITIME FAT STOCK

The executive committee of the Maritime Breeders' Association, which met at Truro on the 12th inst., decided upon the following draft of prize list, to which will be made a number of additions. These will be made pub-lic shortly—meantime it is desirable that all our good feeders should note the excellent prizes that are to be offered in the various beef, mutton and pork classes. In the general rules governing the ompetition, the most important are: (1) That entries must be made on or before the 24th November. (2) That all animals must be owned and fed in the maritime provinces at least five months before date of entry. (3) That all animals entered in the pure bred classes must be recorded in either the Canadian, American or Provincial Herd Books. The dates will be during the beginning 16th December, exact day and hours to be later announced.

Gen. Felix Angus, of the Baltimore-American, Scores Latest Addition to Maclay's History of the Navy.

BALTIMORE, July 19.—Gen. Felix Angus, publisher of the Baltimore American, wired the following letter to President McKinley this morning: Wm. McKinley, President, Canton, Ohio: "Maclay's History of the Navy is the standard in use at the Naval Academy. In the third volume, just miral Schley with being a coward, a liar, a caitiff, an incompetent and in-subordinate. In an interview in the American this morning Maclay, the historian, who is a navy department clerk classed as a laborer and attached to the Brooklyn navy yard, says that proofs of this third volume, which should have told the most glorious story in all our naval annals, were submitted to Secretary Long and Admiral Sampson and approved by them in advance of publication; also that Long put him in his present posttion after he had read and approved this scurrilous attack upon Admiral Schley. These proofs were also submitted to Admiral Dewey, who refused to read them. If aught were needed to convince any fair-minded man that a clique in the navy department has conspired to traduce the hero of Santiago and that the conspiracy was with bunting, and flags were in profusion in Chatham, Newcastle and all

Queen River of All the Tributaries of the St. John.

Unrivalled for Scenery and Home of Salmon and Big Game.

(Written for the Star.)

The Tobique river is—par excellent —the queen river of all the tribu-aries of the St. John. From the artist point of view there are pictures the would enrich many a canvas. The scenery is picturesque, and change with the windings of the river, so that it never grows common-place, and you pass mile after mile unconsciously. You are constantly wondering what lies around this curve of the road, and this winding of the river, and as you look at the overhanging cliffs above you and the river beneath you, and think that some day (perhaps this day) there is a gambler's chance that tons and tons of rocks and sand and gravel will—loosened from its frail hold, by the vibration of the train—come thundering down upon interview with J. A. Balley, who has just reached London from Mombasa, having travelled overland via Uganda and the Upper Nile. Mr. Bailey's journey was undertaken specially with a view of ascertaining the conditions of transport by this route, and the practicability of its adoption as a means of communication between the practicability of its adoption as a means of communication between British Equatorial Africa and England. For a considerable portion of the way to Gondogoro, in fact wherever it was possible to do so, Mr. Bailey rode a bicycle ahead of his caravan and also with it, at about two and a half miles an hour, when necessary to keep with his men. The account he gives of the route as a whole and of the conditions existing on the various sections, show the wonderful progress that is being made in opening to ordinary traffic this all-British route from Central Africa to the Mediterranean. It is not so very long since an escort of at least 50 armed soldiers was reconstructed. soldiers was necessary, where now it is really safe to travel without any so far as the natives are concerned.

FROM MOMBASA to UGANDA (Lawe Nakuru), thence marched and cycled to Port Florence, in Kavirondo, Uganda for a month, and left the capital on January 19th. Thence I proceeded to Khartoum, where I arrived within seven weeks of my start from Uganda. The importance of this route to our Central African poses sions cannot be over estimated. Quit apart from a commercial standpoint, the political value of being able to succeeded the downfall of the Der-vishes now makes it possible for one to reach the very heart of British Af-rica in comparative safety and com-fort with but two days' sea-journey, though the government is not pre-pared yet to open this route for general traffic. In Central African countries, like Ugands, where the unexpected often happens, it is of great importance to know that, if necessary, troops could be poured into the country by two routes, and that Progress is to be noted on all sides in Uganda. From mud and reed buildings there is now in the capital and neighborhood a transition to brick houses, and in the vicinity of Kampala, no building is allowed to be erected without special permission except it be constructed of brick. I cept it be constructed of brick. I think the day cannot be far distant when a great trade will be done in rubbers and other products, and no doubt the government will see their way by-and-bye to offer such inducements to settlers as will tend to open this fine country to the introduction of capital, and a capable skilled white population. Sir H. H. These Belgian stations are well constructed of brick, and brick-making forms an important native industry around the Belgian posts. From Lado to Bero, the northernmost Belgian fort, I travelled in a Belgian steel boat lent me by Commandant Renier. At Kero, where Commandant Chaltin received me with much kindness, I embarked on the Soudanese government steamer Khartoum, for which special permission had been obtained by cable via Mombasa from Khartoum. A party of four Scotchmen had just reached Khartoum, the journey having taken seven weeks owing to exceptional delays. PITTSBURG, Pa., July 22.-The expected did not happen today. Neither of the looked for programmes from Wellsville or McKeesport were car-ried out. At Wellsville the importaat McKeesport the attempt to resume at the De Wees wood tube plant was

At both points the situation is in statu quo. From the other important point, Duncansville, conflicting reports are received, and the result of the quiet struggle going on between the American Steel Hoop Co. and the Amalgamated Association is still un-certain, with the company's chances probably better for winning in the end. Late this afternoon the Amal-gamated Association issued its first strike bulletin from the general office. In the most important part of the bulletin is printed the warning words: "Do not drink, especially if the trust tries to break the strike by importing non-union men. Don't believe anyone who says the mills will be closed for ever or taken out of the community if you don't go to work."

Further on are the words: "There were not enough men in the country to run the mills before the strike, so all you need to do to win the strike is, don't work. Enjoy your summer shut down, it means more work next winter. That is the time for mill work,
