HEADS OF CHICAGO STRIKE IN CONTEMPT

Teamsters' President Escapes Jail Because He Is Indicted

Settlement Seems Out of the Question--Lumbermen Ask for Soldier Protection, But Police Think They Are Sufficient--Delivery Wagons Moving Without an Escort--Senator Platt Declares Express Companies Will Not Take Old Drivers Back Under Any Circumstances.

Chicago, May 25.--Cornelius H. Shea, president of the International Teamsters' Union, was upheld today by Judge Kohlsaat of the federal court in his refusal to answer questions before Master in Chancery Sherman, which might tend to incriminate him.

Strikers Can't Come Back, Says Platt. New York, May 25.--That the express companies will not recede from the position they have taken in connection with the teamsters strike in Chicago was the statement made today by United States Senator Thomas C. Platt, president of the United States Express Company.

Lumbermen Want Soldiers Out. Mayor Dunne and Chief of Police O'Neill did not meet today with the response expected when they called yesterday 1,000 volunteers for additional policemen.

CASHIER ATTEMPTS SUICIDE AND BANK SUSPENDS. Stockton, Cal., May 25.--Consequent upon the fact that Cashier Kahan, of the Oakland Bank, shot himself yesterday, the directors of the institution of which Thomas B. Dorney is the president, today suspended business indefinitely.

German Fleet to Visit Canada. Montreal, May 25.--(Special)--A Canadian newspaper correspondent in London understands that later on in the year Prince Henry of Prussia, accompanied by the Kaiser's second son, with a large fleet, will tour round the world, visiting Canada amongst other places on the way.

Wounded Halifax Led Improved. Halifax, N. S., May 25.--(Special)--Alfred Blake, one of the boys shot at MacNab's Island, was much better today. All the shot has been removed and it is now thought he will recover.

NO PREFERENCE PROPOSALS AT NEXT COLONIAL CONFERENCE. Balfour Announced This Yesterday--Another Bitter Discussion Over Recent Disorders in Parliament--May 30 Fixed as Date for Vote of Censure Debate.

London, May 25.--There was a further acrimonious discussion in the House of Commons this afternoon on the riotous scenes in the House on May 22, and a recurrence of the disorder at one time seemed to be eminent, owing to Premier Balfour's demand that Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman (the Liberal leader), guarantee that there shall be no repetition of "such outbursts of decency and fair play" if he granted a day for discussion of the proposed vote of censure.

Staff-Captain Peary Lost 'His Life' While Bathing in the Ottawa River. Ottawa, May 25.--(Special)--Staff Capt. Peary, of the Ottawa River for its swim at Rockcliffe while out for an afternoon. He was here three weeks from Nova Scotia. He went to Rockcliffe with his wife and a number of attendants.

Eight People Killed and 100 Wounded, Many Seriously

CONFLICT OF CLASSES. Respectable Element Making War on Disreputable Houses, and Most of Them Have Been Destroyed--Authorities Stand Inactive and Let the Fighting Proceed.

Warsaw, Russian Poland, May 25.--p. m. The Jewish disorders here last night arose from an attempt of a Jewish socialist organization called the Bund to purge the Hebrew district of Warsaw of all disreputable persons.

Authorities Inactive. The authorities took no steps to prevent the riots until late tonight when the Cossaks fired on the crowds at two points wounding four persons.

Another report has it that Jewish roughs in the guise of members of the Bund were levying blackmail upon shopkeepers, thus enraging the Socialists.

RIOTS INCREASE THROUGHOUT RUSSIA. St. Petersburg, May 25.--3 a. m.--The most disquieting news regarding the internal situation and of the renewal of hostilities between the Russians and the Poles in the Southern Caucasus has reached St. Petersburg.

PHILADELPHIA'S GAS LEASE FIGHT

Mayor Weaver Forcibly Ejects His Old Directors from Office

NEW ONES INSTALLED. It is Believed Now That Council Ring Will Not Be Able to Carry Out Their Scheme as Public Opinion Has Changed Some of the Aldermen to Change Their Base.

Philadelphia, May 25.--The bitter feeling that has been engendered by the gas lease fight was intensified today when Mayor Weaver practically ejected from the offices of the department of public safety and public works his two former directors and again installed the men appointed by him on Tuesday night.

Another dramatic incident of the day was the great ovation given Mayor Weaver by several thousand persons who on his way from City Hall to the Union League for lunch.

To Impose Mayor. In the thick of the fight this afternoon came the story, but from where no one appears to know, that the mayor is to be impeached.

ENJOY HOLIDAY IN FINE WEATHER

How Victoria Day Was Passed Here, and Elsewhere in Canada

Seaside Park Opened, But Not Enough Cars to Accommodate—River Steamers Have Large Patronage—Holiday Sports at Chatham, St. Stephen, Moncton and Other Places.

Queen's weather reigned Wednesday and the city was practically deserted. The holiday was enjoyed in many places and in many ways. Thousands went up river and across the bay; others journeyed away by rail, many rambling off to the quiet reaches of Rockwood Park, or to the attractions of Siasbee. And then there were the ball games devoted, and the ones who earnestly enjoyed.

The traffic to Seaside Park was extremely heavy. It was the opening of the season there, and the rush was as great as on any day last season. There were not enough cars, only four running from the bridge to the park and the crowds had to wait for an opportunity to ride. It is felt that a double track is a necessity. The park restaurant did a heavy business. There was ice cream and there were good lunches. But they all went. A merry go round will be established on the grounds next week, and as soon as the weather becomes warm enough, there will be theatrical offerings.

The Day at Woodstock.

Woodstock, N. B., May 24.—(Special)—Victoria Day was royally celebrated. In the morning there was a baseball match in the junior league between the Alberts and Broadway, the former winning 8 to 7.

The afternoon a large crowd attended the trot and baseball match, the proceeds for the benefit of the hospital. In the four-year-old class Tackhamer won in straight heats. Don Seese, the former horse is owned by Ernest McLean and the latter by Dr. Hand. In the gentleman's driving class, Plumber, owned by Conn. Fever, won in straight heats; Bob D., owned by Everett Colwell, second.

In the 2-40 class, Brown Dick, owned by J. A. Smith, second.

The baseball match was won by the Monctons over the Colts 10 to 9. Batteries—McKinley and Long; Milmore and McLoughlin. F. Sullivan umpired.

The Holiday at Moncton.

Moncton, May 24.—(Special)—Victoria day brought the first summer weather and Monctonians enjoyed it to the full in various outdoor recreations. Many citizens went out of town on fishing excursions and to visit neighboring towns.

The amusements at home consisted of a baseball match on the M. A. grounds between St. Joseph's College and Moncton and the Sweet Clover company at the Opera House in the evening drew a large audience.

A number of local horsemen enjoyed the afternoon on the exhibition speedway testing the speed of their flyers. Moncton defeated St. Joseph's College ball team by 12 to 6 before one of the largest crowds ever on the grounds on the 24th. The home team took a big lead in the second inning, making seven runs on a batting streak and errors of the college boys. After this the game was a procession.

Manning and LaBlanc were batteries for the college while Smith and Bovard performed for Moncton.

The Day Well Observed at St. Stephen.

St. Stephen, N. B., May 24.—(Special)—Victoria Day was celebrated here by all business houses and offices closing with a general display of flags.

A horse trot took place in the park this afternoon at which about 300 were present. Two events were pulled off, each half mile.

The first event was the three minute class. E. H. Barter started Free Lance and Bird Gardo. M. Cronin started Annie C. Free Lance took the two out three heats, thus proving a winner, Annie C. second.

Only two horses started in the 2.30 class, but two out of three, and Rachel B., owned by E. H. Barter, won out with Wheelwright, McLaughlin, owner, a close second.

Victoria Day at Dalhousie.

Dalhousie, N. B., May 24.—(Special)—Victoria Day is being well celebrated here. The weather is beautiful. All the business places and schools are closed and considerable bunting is seen flying to the breeze. Picnics are being held at Maguachies, Charles Falls, and the sisters of the Dalhousie convent with their scholars and lady members of the Roman Catholic church societies have gone to visit the St. Ann church opposite Campbellton. A most pleasant day will terminate by a social dance to be held in the Masonic Hall.

Victoria Day at Ottawa.

Ottawa, May 24.—(Special)—Victoria Day was observed here as a general holiday. All places of business were closed. The Capital lacrosse team played an exhibition game with the Champaign Indians. The visitors were defeated by nine to one.

Morgan Gives $250,000.

So deeply has the public mind, especially in the north, been absorbed of late in the controversy as to the ethics of John D. Rockefeller's contribution to the cause of church missions, or rather as to the acceptance of it, that little attention or consideration has been given to the offer of J. Pierpont Morgan to donate $250,000 toward the establishment of a school for teachers at Nashville (Tenn.). This enterprising group out of the meeting in Washington on Feb. 24 inst. have offered to give $1,000,000 for the founding of the proposed college if its promoters would give a like sum. This amount has already been subscribed, and Mr. Morgan will shortly be called upon for his share. Whatever may be said of recent contributions by rich Americans to the cause of charity, religion and education, there can hardly be two opinions as to the merit of the undertaking which the Wall Street magnate has offered to aid. The public will be surprised and pleased at the statement of Dr. Wickliffe Ross, dean of Peabody College, who, in announcing Mr. Morgan's donation, says that "the new George Peabody College for Teachers, which will start with an endowment of $2,250,000, will be the greatest training college for teachers in the south, and second to none in the world."

Why He Didn't Like It.

One of the ecclesiastical states credited to Bishop Potter concerns a Scotch clergyman who was preaching on trial before a consistory. Now, the one thing that a Scotch divinity is a sermon read from manuscript, and this one was not only read, but was exceedingly labored and invigorated. At the end of the service the clergyman rather unyieldingly asked one of the elders how he liked the sermon. "I didn't think weel of it," replied the elder. "Why not?" asked the anxious minister. "Weel," said the elder, "there were three sermons. First, ye read the sermon; second, ye didna read it weel; and, third, it wasna worth reading."—N. Y. Times.

RECORDS BROKEN AT N. B. SPORTS

Squires Won Championship Belt by One Point Over Barker

MONCTON DOWNED TWICE

Trojans Put up a Good Game in the Morning, But in the Afternoon They Were Blanked—Holiday Generally Observed.

Fredericton, May 24.—(Special)—Victoria Day passed very pleasantly and gloriously with the stores and factories were closed, flags floated from public and private buildings and the small boys was much in evidence with fire-crackers. Many devotees of Isaac Walton spent the day out of town but their absence was more than offset by visitors.

The base ball game at Seaside Park of the college sports were the chief attractions and were liberally patronized. This evening the Fredericton Braves banded held a festival in the Arctic rink and St. Joseph's Dramatic Club of St. John gave a performance in the Opera House.

In the base ball match here this afternoon between the Trojans and Moncton Trojans, the Trojans succeeded in blanking the visitors and piled thirteen runs against them. Lyons was in the box for Fredericton. The other positions were occupied by the Trojans. The Trojans seemed to lose heart early in the game and never had any chance of winning. Ernest Boone, a promising youngster from St. Mary's, pitched for the Trojans and only three hits were made off him. It was a good game from a spectators standpoint and the local fans are delighted with the showing made by the Trojans.

The morning game resulted in a victory for the Trojans by a score of 8 to 7.

Seedless Apple an Old Story.

New it would be just as illogical to denounce the seedless apple as a humbug because of its failure to bear seeds as it is to wonder of the world because it had no seeds. The seedless apple has become a household name and is being grown in many places. It is not new, but it is a new variety of the old apple. It is a variety of the old apple, but it is a new variety. It is a variety of the old apple, but it is a new variety.

The Craze of 1930.

In 1930 there developed a sudden gusty craze for this fruit. At this time it was hailed as a new variety, and it was hailed as a new variety. It was hailed as a new variety, and it was hailed as a new variety. It was hailed as a new variety, and it was hailed as a new variety.

The Payless Advertisement.

Prof. Bailey's statement offers an explanation for the seeds in the English specimens. It is a statement that the seeds in the English specimens are not the seeds of the seedless apple, but they are the seeds of the seedless apple. It is a statement that the seeds in the English specimens are not the seeds of the seedless apple, but they are the seeds of the seedless apple.

Doubting Thomases.

Prof. John Craig, of Cornell, writing to the Canadian Horticulturist, ridicules the claims of the seedless apple. He points out that the seedless apple is not a new variety, but it is a variety of the old apple. He points out that the seedless apple is not a new variety, but it is a variety of the old apple.

of (Rothesay), Bernason (Rothesay), McLean (Rothesay), 20 feet 21 inches, breaking record of 10 feet 10 1/2 inches held by Desbrisay, of Rothesay.

120 yards hurdle—Wood, Barker, Squires, 18 1/2 seconds, breaking Ryan's record of 1 1/2.

1/4 mile run—Belyea, Hill, McNaughton; time, 5:10 3/4.

Squires won the championship belt by one point over Barker.

A. M. Scott presented the prizes at the close of the steps of the grandstand.

St. Stephen, May 24.—(Special)—The Steamer "Polaris" arrived from St. John at 6 o'clock, evening on her first trip of the season. She landed about twenty passengers.

Fred A. Estey, who is well known in lumbering circles, is to leave next week for Revelstoke, where he has accepted a lucrative position.

SEEDLESS APPLE PROVOKES DISCUSSION

There is a simple-minded horticulturist named Spencer, who lives in Colorado, and he is a wonder. He has produced "not only the seedless apple, but the seedless cherry, the seedless plum, and the seedless pear. He has produced "not only the seedless apple, but the seedless cherry, the seedless plum, and the seedless pear. ### TO THE WOMEN OF THE UNITED STATES. Successful Home Treatment.

Dr. Hartman's Cure for Female Diseases—A Generous Offer to Women.

MRS. J. P. COADY, Treasurer of the Ivy Leaf Club, 1702 6th Avenue, Council Bluffs, Iowa, writes:

"Peruna is an experimental medicine. I have used it off and on for three years. At that time I was cured of irregular and painful menstruation and I have since felt overworked and in need of a tonic, and I have always found that Peruna pleased and happy to say a word in its praise and shall gladly endorse it to my friends."—Mrs. J. P. Coady.

Miss Hattie Grace, 254 West 46th St., New York, writes:

"Peruna has changed me from a fretful, irritable, nervous woman into a healthy and happy one. Nothing seems to worry and to fret me any more. Since early womanhood I suffered with bearing down pains, irregular menstruation, and I have since felt overworked and in need of a tonic, and I have always found that Peruna pleased and happy to say a word in its praise and shall gladly endorse it to my friends."—Mrs. J. P. Coady.

Mrs. Elizabeth Ferguson, No. 181 51st St., Brooklyn, N. Y., President, West Brooklyn Audition Society, writes:

"I am pleased to tell that a blessing Peruna has brought me. Several years ago my constitution seemed broken down and I could do little whether I worked or rested. I had taken so much medicine that the sight of a bottle made me sick. I had read about Peruna and had heard that it was a blessing. I bought a bottle and I thought perhaps it would help me. I bought a bottle and I thought perhaps it would help me. I bought a bottle and I thought perhaps it would help me."

In view of the great multitude of women suffering from some form of female disease and yet unable to find any cure, Dr. Hartman, the renowned gynecologist, has announced his willingness to direct the treatment of as many cases as make application to him during the summer months without charge.

The treatment will be given exclusively by correspondence. The doctor will prescribe all medicines, applications, hygienic and dietary regulations necessary to complete a cure. The medicine provided can be obtained at all leading drug stores. This offer will hold good only during the summer months. Any woman can become a regular patient by sending a written statement of her age, condition of life, history and symptoms of her derangement.

Tuberculosis in Cattle.

Professors of dairy husbandry and the agricultural press of the country have been urging farmers for several years to "weed out" the tubercular cows from their herds. The various provincial governments of Canada cannot do better than conduct surveys of their herds. The tubercular cow is a danger to the dairyman and to the public. ### Now Use Ligozone. Won't You Try It—Free?

Millions of people, of nine different nations, are constant users of Ligozone. Some are using it to get well, some to keep well. Some to cure germ disease; some as a tonic. No medicine was ever so widely employed. These users are everywhere; your neighbors and friends are among them. And half the people you meet—wherever you are—know someone whom Ligozone has cured.

We Paid $100,000

For the American rights to Ligozone. We did this after being the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, after proving, and thousands of different cases, that Ligozone destroys the cause of any germ disease.

Most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is a germicide. Certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $10,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are everywhere; and Ligozone is like an access of oxygen—it is dead to them.

Germ Diseases.

There are 100 known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these is to help Nature overcome the germ, and such results are indefinite and uncertain. Ligozone attacks the germ, wherever they are. And the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and never. That is inevitable.

50c. Bottle Free.

If you need Ligozone, and have never tried it, please send us this coupon. We will then mail you an order on a local druggist for a full-size bottle, and we will pay the druggist ourselves for it. This is our free gift, made to convince you; to show you what Ligozone is, and what it can do. In justice to yourself, please, accept it to-day, for it places you under no obligation whatever.

CUT OUT THIS COUPON

For this offer may not appear again. Fill out the blanks and send to The Ligozone Company, 56-58, Wabash Ave., Chicago.

My name is _____ My address is _____ My city is _____ My state is _____ My zip code is _____

Any physician or hospital not using Ligozone will be gladly supplied for a test.

Character and reputation are by no means the same. Make the former strong and the latter will be safe.

He also pointed out that while it was a good thing to have low brush cut down along the road side there was no necessity for interfering with shade trees and it was very important that all the brush should be removed so there would be no chance for damage when it became like tinder in the hot weather for the neglected match or cigar end to start a forest fire.

There is no government money for road purposes last year," he said, "only what was necessary for some of the larger bridges, but the work we were able to do was not done in any chess-pairing way. To best a man down in his price is not always the best way to get value for money expended. We found it so and no doubt the same will be true in the future."

GOT NO HELP FROM DOCTORS

Afflicted for Years With Neuralgia, Backache, and Insomnia.

Though Mrs. Hamilton's Case Was Serious She Was Cured by

Dr. Pitcher's Backache-Kidney Tablets

As another striking instance of the power of Dr. Pitcher's Backache-Kidney Tablets to cure diseases which other remedies and even doctor's treatment have failed, we cite the case of Mrs. Andrew Hamilton, Port Robinson, Ont., who gave the story of her cure as follows: "I was afflicted with neuralgia, backache, and insomnia for several years. I had consulted many doctors and had tried all the remedies they could give me, but without success. I was very nervous and could not sleep. I was very miserable. I tried doctor's treatment, but gave it up, as it did not help me. The various patent medicines I used likewise proved ineffectual. I had to get hold of one of Dr. Pitcher's pamphlets, and after reading it, decided to try his Backache-Kidney Tablets. I am glad I did so, as they helped me from the start. After taking a few boxes I had complete immunity from pain, and the serious symptoms passed away and living was once more a comfort. I can heartily recommend Dr. Pitcher's Backache-Kidney Tablets as an ideal restorative."

It does not require much push to go down hill.

ATERRIBLE SUFFERER A gentleman in White suffered so severely with his feet, he was obliged to bath them three or four times a day and change his shoes each time. One box of Backache-Kidney Tablets will cure you. 18 papers 25 cents.

ST. JOHN, N. B., MAY 27, 1905.

ST. JOHN AS SEEN FROM MAINE

The proposal of two years ago to dam the St. John River at the Winding Ledges was the beginning of a campaign which, if successful, will deprive St. John of its great glory—the lumber industry; and Maine will get what we lose. The Boston News now makes the frank confession that the work of the St. John Lumber Company at Van Buren is part of a plan to divert all American logs from New Brunswick mills, chiefly for the benefit of the mills at Van Buren. The building of a railroad to that point, the News maintains, renders it unnecessary to continue to admit free to the United States American lumber manufactured here. Because of this existing arrangement for the duty free entry of manufactured lumber, the News sets forth St. John has been "built up" by handling American lumber. In future the logs must be sawed at Van Buren.

The News does not see any good reason in the world why New Brunswick should object to the American Company's boom and wing dams. It cannot believe that the Attorney-General has any case, and evidently hopes that he has none. It intimates that were the action brought in a Maine court, the New Brunswick contentions would be quickly whistled down the wind. Mr. Peter Keegan, a well known Maine lumberman, backs up the News, and says St. John boss New Brunswick appropriates business really belonging to other provincial towns and to the State of Maine, and is not at all an ornament to the map or even to civilization. In short, both the News and Mr. Keegan are displeased with the Attorney-General. St. John and New Brunswick generally, however, is a bad case they are dividing for each other's interests, and without much regard for the facts or the rules of evidence. The Portland (Me.) Press set a good example for Maine newspapers the other day when it remarked that if the damns and booms constituted an obstruction to the free navigation of the river, they must be removed as violating the Ashburton Treaty. The Attorney-General holds that the company's works do constitute a breach of the treaty, and if that court regards the evidence as sufficient they must be removed, from the New Brunswick side of the river at least.

Nor is it likely—in spite of the News—that a Maine court will disregard the facts and ignore the treaty if a case were brought on that side of the line. As for the repeal of the law permitting American lumber cut here to enter the United States duty free, the News forgets that the repeal would probably be followed by the placing of an export duty on the logs which the Maine mills require.

Senator Hale of Maine—bids fair to be successful in his effort to prevent the St. John River matter from being considered by the International Waterways Commission. He insists that a special commission must deal with it. If Maine has a good case and does not fear justice there would seem to be no good reason why the present commission should not handle the question. Senator Hale—of Maine—apparently has enough influence at Washington to have it his way. Meantime the New Brunswick government will push its case in court for the removal of the obstructions.

A STUDY IN DEPRAVITY

Horrified by the crime of the little Toronto girl who killed a baby in order to obtain its carriage and clothing, or in the hope that its death would enable her to escape punishment for thieving, many persons are now attempting to account for her amazing depravity. By some it is explained that she was neglected by her parents, by others that she played truant and read "trashy" novels. Many children are victims of parental neglect, and certainly many play truant and read injurious books; but they do not kill babies, as one would down a kitten and then apparently wonder why any one should make a fuss.

The state will look in vain for a fit punishment for Josie Carr. To take her life would serve no good purpose, and will not be thought of. To send her to a reform school may be the easiest way out of a difficulty; but few will believe that she will be "reformed." The child's brain is abnormal. Girls of her age are naturally affectionate toward infants and feel horror at the thought of serious harm, pain or death to human beings or even animals. But this girl could go back to the scene of the crime, and even move the little body. Thus she is seen to be a proper subject for the alchemist and the criminologist.

A Toronto writer quotes from the work of Prof. Arthur Macdonald, an associate of Lombroso, to the effect that Josie Carr's "coolness and unconcern would indicate that her crime is to be classed under the head of 'pure murder.' In such cases there is innate tendency to take human life, little or no provocation, and the murderer is almost entirely unconscious of repulsion. The case of murder can be not only in positive characteristics, as courage and force of will, but in the want of characteristics, such as lack of repulsion in injuring others or even one's self. The same writer instances a case of a boy in Iowa, eleven years of age, who went early in the morning into the room where his grandparents were sleeping and shot them both; seeing his grandfather move, he finished him with an axe. He said afterwards: 'I did it all alone.' Such crimes in the case of children, if less cruel than in the case of adults, are so from the lack of force rather than ferocity, is the conclusion drawn by Prof. Macdonald.

Probably some congenial defect alone can account for the girl's lack of the common attributes of her age and sex. There is nothing to be done, apparently, but to shut her in from the world as was done with a more famous child monster, Josie Pomeroy. The state cannot in this case punish "the sins of the fathers" in the child beyond isolating the unfortunate. The case is one to set the country thinking.

FLEETS AND AMBITIONS.

More or less official revelations concerning the Kaiser's practice of playing with fire are being multiplied. The National Review is to the fore with a story to the effect that the German war lord was detected smoking in a powder magazine just after Rostovtsevsky fired upon the North Sea trawlers, and that Great Britain promptly caused the reckless man to put out his cigarette. This story, the Review asserts, is not now disputed even in official circles. It is, in brief, that while England was stirred by the slaughter of the fishermen, and there was some likelihood of war, William of Germany advised the Czar to refuse British demands for an apology and all possible reparation, and intimated that he would support Russia if she found herself at war with the King. The German fleet was mobilized at that time, but no sooner was the order given from Berlin than a division of the British Mediterranean fleet was called home and it was made apparent to all the world—Germany included—that Britain was ready to deal promptly and vigorously with any situation that might develop. The Review uses this incident to illustrate its view of German diplomacy, which is that the German empire hopes to benefit from the crises which other nations face, perhaps through German meddling.

The Review's revelation leads the Boston Transcript to review the German attitude at the time the British and German ships went to Venezuela on a debt-collecting mission. The Transcript says in part: "Whether we accept this explanation of the Kaiser's secret policy or reject it, there can be no doubt that the Kaiser is regarded in more than one capital as seeking adventures of a not too perilous nature, in the belief that out of the complications that will arise he will pick some good for Germany. That this motive was back of the Kaiser's demonstration against Venezuela was more than suspected at the time, despite public official protests to the contrary. Our government acted throughout that trying time with perfect propriety. It did nothing that could be deemed offensive by Germany, and nothing that could be deemed neglectful by the United States. Admiral Dewey was sent to the Caribbean with the most powerful fleet that has shown the American flag in that sea since the Spanish War. What his instructions were and still is best known to himself, but the disposition he made of the several divisions of his fleet were admirably calculated to frustrate any attempt to seize the Venezuelan island of Margarita as a consolation prize or as a set-off to German claims. Margarita was not seized, and the surface of our relations with Germany continued untroubled. Since that time they have become strained, and our government, conscious of its strength, saying nothing about the only European Power that conceivably can be thought hostile to the Monroe doctrine. To let bygones be bygones, so long as our traditional policy is not among them, is a wise policy."

The Kaiser, as the Transcript points out, has succeeded only in getting a reputation as a disturber of the peace against whom several nations would be ready to make common cause.

THE G. T. P. AND NEW BRUNSWICK

The Frederickton Board of Trade will take action today, and probably will enlist the support of the St. John and Woodstock boards in urging the government to bring the Grand Trunk Pacific down the St. John River Valley. Such information about the surveys as has been made public thus far leaves us somewhat in the dark as to the comparative values of the routes discussed, granting that a level road meant to carry long-distance freight economically is the all important consideration. The impression to be had from the partial report of the commissioners is that there will be no material difference in length between the valley route and that across the centre of the province, and if this be true the greater population and greater local freight offered by the more populous valley route could scarcely be ignored.

Whatever claims for consideration may be put forward by towns desiring to find themselves on the main line, the route must depend upon the engineers, and they will advise that the road traverse the country providing the best grades and the shortest stretch of rails. But until the route has been actually selected it is but fair and natural that the populous centres, containing many people who require additional transportation facilities and who are to help foot the bills, should push their claims with energy and persistence.

New Brunswick could discuss this question much more intelligently if it had complete details of the surveys thus far made. It would then be clear whether the engineers had examined every practicable route, and the comparative merits of all could be weighed. When the shortest line with the lowest gradients is found there will of necessity be branch roads, one of which must give the export freight access to tide water at St. John, the natural winter port of the country. Having this fact in mind one would suppose the engineers, and the government, would seek to avoid a line which would carry export freight very far to the seaward of this port, since, after all, the chief purpose of this division should be to strike the seaboard by the most direct line practicable.

THE LATE MR. JOHN McMILLAN

The death of Mr. John McMillan removes a graceful, valued and distinguished figure from the life of the city and the province. With a comparatively short time the circle of which he was an ornament has been narrowed by the departure of many who were his social and business associates, and his death serves to remind us how many men who have filled conspicuous places in the front rank here have gone upon the long journey. There were many reasons why Mr. McMillan was an admirable citizen and one whose loss will be deplored. He was at once commanding, dignified and courteous, and his fellow citizens instinctively awarded him a high place in their esteem.

As the head of an old and honored business house, in politics, in social and club life—in all his activities—Mr. McMillan by many valuable qualities commanded the respect and good will of those whom the circle of his life touched. To the mourning relatives will go out the sincere sympathy of a community recognizing its loss.

ONE KIND OF PREACHER

Very likely the Rev. E. E. Scott, of Galt, who delivered an address on "Christian Citizenship" to the young people's societies of the Methodist Church at Hamilton the other day, is an earnest and well-meaning advocate of the right. "Among the things he said was that no good Christian would try to evade paying his income tax. He spoke of the liquor traffic, and the corruption in politics, and declared that if the present state of society were known in hell the lost would hold high carnival, and the devil would appoint a day for festivities. The speaker declared that 3,000 people in Canada were doomed and damned every year." etc.

No doubt there is much wickedness in the world, and therefore much need for religious work by men in and out of the pulpit. The righteous may or may not reap profit from such remarks as those attributed to Mr. Scott. One fears the sinners and the indifferent will hold it untrue for any man to attempt to express in figures the yearly increase in the population of the lower regions through Canada's or any other country's contribution to the ranks of the damned. The question may or may not be one for profitable speculation; it hardly is one for definite assertion, since there may be a tendency to ask the reverend gentleman from what evidence he compiles his statistics. Perhaps the Rev. Mr. Scott, upon reviewing his somewhat reckless and pessimistic estimate of those crowding the broad way, may feel inclined to confess that his statement implies a knowledge no one possesses. Or is the country to infer that he has some source of information and authority which he did not deem necessary to reveal? He might have been more impressive had he taken the young people more—or less—fully into his confidence.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Senator Hale has his eye on the St. John River and is "standing firm." One shudders to think what an "impartial tribunal" consisting of Messrs. Lodge, Root and Turner, might discover with respect to the noble stream.

The young men of the U. N. B. show little respect for the athletic records of their predecessors. They bettered these yesterday. It is to be regretted that the date of these games and the late spring make proper training so difficult. The records are good under the circumstances.

Boston and Bangor newspapers are inquiring if there is any truth in the report that a young woman who recently escaped from a Massachusetts insane asylum is to make her stage debut in St. John. In our reputation for high class drama becoming known?

Earl Grey attended the races on the opening day at the Toronto track. Next day he went to church, and Canon Welch preached against betting, taking for his text I Corinthians, viii, 13: "If we eat his brother to stumble I will eat no flesh for evermore, that I make not my brother to stumble." The Earl's sometime deputy, Sir Elzear Teacheau, would have had the reverend gentleman submitted to the thumbcrews and the boot for the like of that. I . . .

Many Chicago school children have attempted to actively aid the strikers. In Stockholm, where the street cleaners are on strike, school children have formed a volunteer street-sweeping brigade. . . .

The new press for The Telegraph and The Times has arrived and within a short time these journals will have the advantage of up-to-date facilities. An expert from the Goss Printing Press Company of Chicago, which built the new machine to order, will arrive today and put the press together. The press has a capacity of 24,000 eight, ten or twelve-page papers an hour, and is the best three-color machine in Canada today. The press will be more about its work, and before long will have an opportunity of seeing it at work. . . .

The list of Northern Securities stockholders shows that Mr. J. J. Hill interested many notable persons, and some whose appearance in this enterprise is a matter for surprise. There are for instance the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, Goldwin Smith, Lord Roberts, the Duke of Connaught, the Marquis of Lansdowne, the Duke of Argyll and a great line of other titled Britons, among them Lord Elinstone, whose holdings are $1,115,100. Lord Strathcona figures for $14,850,000 and Lord Mount Stephen for $13,139,400. Union Theological Seminary is down for 1,260 shares and Dartmouth College for 4,222. . . .

The ridiculous "head tax" imposed on foreigners entering the United States through Canada elicits caustic comments from the Montreal Witness: "If we wished to be specially abhorred in certain quarters, say the British countries, we (having put on a head tax) should exempt those countries from the general insult and heap on their people special and personal contumelies which they claimed the exemption. It is certain that all who should be so fined would accept it as an intimation that their presence in Canada was unwelcome. If they had taken it in that way, they would take it that they had got a kick just where one looks for a welcome. The only other explanation of such an inhospitable attitude towards those who were too poor to support ourselves, and had to tax our visitors, as they do in English colonies, through the servants, except that there they pay no head tax, we can hardly imagine any self-respecting country, far less one that cared anything for the good-will of other people, doing anything such as we have hinted at. Still it is undeniably true that one country does this very thing. We know of no reason why Canadians should look for exemptions not accorded to their fellow workers in other countries. It is necessary to visit the United States should prepare themselves to pay the entrance fee if demanded."

GREAT NAMES IN NORTHERN SECURITIES
(New York Globe.)
For a man who was once a "aud clerk" on the St. Paul, Leeds and stood around in the ooze as he checked in freight from the pioneer steamboats, Mr. James J. Hill has a right to be proud of the aristocratic company he brought together in the late Northern Securities Company. The list of stockholders filed at Trenton in connection with the liquidation reads like pages from Burke's and even the Almansack de Gotha has been drawn upon.

The Duke of Connaught, brother of King Edward and son of Queen Victoria, appears as the owner of 1,267 shares, and his wife, the Duchess, owns 25 shares. The Marquis of Lansdowne, Great Britain's foreign secretary, has 8,630 shares, worth $1,372,800, in his name. Other titled British stockholders were: Lord Elinstone, 11,150 shares; Earl of Leven and Melville, 9,641 shares; Lord Clan William, 5,719; Lord Margaret Douglas, 1,461; Earl Roberts, the conqueror of the Boers, 2,340; Earl Waldegrave, 1,159; Earl and Countess of Lichfield, 2,333; Baron Rothschild, 20,000; Countess of Roslyn, 1,800; Earl of Sandwich, 315; Lord Seymour, 648; Lord Lytton, 228; Marchioness of Bath, 140; Marchioness of Bristol, 400; Marchioness of Dufferin and Ava, 150; Baron Harlech, 850; Lord Hobhouse, 260; Earl of Leicester, 108; Sir Henry Stephenson, K. C. B., 285, and, finally, the two following remarkably named persons, the Hon. Reginald Le Norman Brabazon, Lord Ardee, and the Hon. Gates Stephen H. Fox-Strangways, Lord Stavordale, who owned 531 shares jointly.

On the American side among the stockholders may be noticed Amherst College, 1,941 shares; Dartmouth College, 4,222; General Memorial Hospital, 1,180; Union Theological Seminary, 1,260; and Brown University, 1,125. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst was a stockholder to the amount of 30 shares, Dr. Charles McBurney to the amount of 1,000 shares, and Goldwin Smith, 546 shares. The firm of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. given the credit with Mr. Hill of managing the huge corporation, is put down as the owner of the comparatively modest number of 2,500 shares.

HANNIBAL HAMLIN'S CLIENT

Hannibal Hamlin, for many years a United States senator from Maine, and vice-president during the civil war, was wanted to tell the following story on himself:

"An Englishman by the name of Pearson, while passing along the main street in Bangor, stepped in a hole in the sidewalk, and falling, broke his leg. He brought suit against the city for $1,000, and engaged Hamlin as counsel.

"Hamlin won his case, but the city appealed to the Supreme Court. Here, also, after setting up the claim, Hamlin sent for his client and handed him $1,000.

"What's this?" asked the Englishman. "That's your damages, after taking out my fee, the cost of appeal, and several other expenses," said Hamlin.

The Englishman looked at the dollar, and then at Hamlin. "What's the matter with this?" he said, "is it bad?"—Boston Herald.

A FATEFUL SNEEZE
Paris, May 20—Little Sammy's sneezes are appearing at a Paris restaurant a couple of nights ago, when one of the diners sneezed twice violently across the table without excusing himself. The man opposite promptly threw a sausage box at him, spilling his clothes. Both were taken to a police station.

The man who threw the sausage turned out to be a Scotch lawyer. When his address was known the lawyer exclaimed, "Why you're the man I've been looking for a week," and promptly drew a writ from his pocket and served it upon him.

A Case of Sixes.

William Allen White says that during a severe drought that once afflicted the state of Kansas, a visitor from the East was one day driving across country in the direction of Topeka when he met a farmer hauling a wagon load of water. A desultory conversation ensued between them.

"Where do you get your water?" asked the man from the East.

"I've driven miles up the road from here," was the reply.

"What!" exclaimed the stranger, "do you mean to say that you haul water seven miles for your family and stock?"

"I shore do," answered the Kansas farmer.

"But, man," expostulated the Easterner, "why in the name of common sense don't you dig a well?"

"Stranger," replied the farmer, with a grin, "out this direction it is just as far one way as the other."

ENERGY FOR THE FUTURE.

Source of Supply Available After the Present Means of Power Have Been Exhausted.

When the Standard Oil Company is dissolved, when the coal kings finally vanquished by virtue of the exhaustion of their natural production, how will civilization obtain fuel for light and energy, ever increasing demands for the world's domestic uses and the industrial arts? This question has been propounded before, but it now receives a singularly optimistic answer from N. S. Shaler, in the International Quarterly for April. There is unused power in the world which invention has just rendered commercially available, coupled with which the resources of the coal fields and oil wells are insignificant.

It is certain that the rivers of the earth will henceforth be utilized for electrical supply ever large areas to reinforce the needs of civilization. Their output of energy is not less than that from coal in process of exhaustion, but permanent and unending. Over practically the entire extent of North America, available water power is in the best of all continents new industrial centres will converge on the east between the Arctic circle and the Ohio, and westward throughout the continental valley from the Upper Mississippi and the Ohio to the Mackenzie river. The industrial development of Europe will change, its great manufacturing centres shifting to the streams radiating from the Alps, the head waters of the Rhone, the Po, and the Rhine, and to Sweden and Norway, whose rivers descend from great heights steadily and with speed. By its tremendous capacity for power, second only to those of North America, the exploitation of Africa may be hastened, and the mountain watersheds of Eastern Brazil will pour down their benefits of electrical power upon the populations of China and India.

The energy of its rivers alone should supply the needs of all the hosts of earth which ply their busy hands in the pursuit of civilization. But there is also the tidal movement of the oceans, once limited to the mills for grinding corn, whose possibilities for power, knowledge of the uses of the turbine, and the science of electricity, the genius of the winds, for centuries with a modicum of its power at the service of the sea that wing the deep, may now be tamed and harnessed to the compelling uses of electricity.

It is comprehensible that coal and oil hinder the chief dependence of the world's industries, furnish but a residue of the earth's available stores of energy. The combustible carbon in the forms of peat, coal, oil and gas is expended to last for the world's consumption during the next three or four centuries. Coal mining is effectively confined to the northern part of North America and the Eurasian continent. The carbonaceous shale of the world's oil deposits is similarly limited beneath its sea floors and the continental deposits in America and Russia will soon be drained. The carbonaceous shale of Ohio, however, which distills one-tenth of its substance in oil, is estimated to contain petroleum in volume exceeding the mass of Lake Superior.

Nothing heretofore contained is to be construed as condoning the conspiracy to divide the public property in Niagara Falls to private use without compensation, or to carry the commercial exploitation of this cataraque to a point which will injure its unique grandeur as a spectacle.—New York Times.

THE SOUL OF THE SKEPTIC
(By Clinton Dangerfield in Boston Post.)

They told me that this was all: a tomb and a coffin, a slab of granite, and a corpse in a lead-lined case, and yet my dear dead fish lying in state, and it seems to me with stifled curls lips and to whisper: "You learn too late."

"I was the thing you set as your absolute overlord; now you are loosed and away, while I am of men absorbed; and yet—you are not dead to be free, for you colored the cast of your life by this, that you would decay with me."

"The angels' selves must laugh, and the pitiless friends will jeer; yet you or the other you must so face, while I am the sleeper here! Bravely you lived and loved, secure in the intellect's lie. Yielding your soul to a sensual death, a death that it could not die."

Some one spoke those words! Was it those poor lips of clay, the thing I held as mine? Or was it I escaped today? I am sitting alone, and my terror no words can tell. For I dare not knock at the Gate I mocked, and I would not go to Hell.

Reflection on Her Age.

They had not met for years. "Do you remember," he asked, "the little sapling we planted together as boy and girl?" Her eyes softened at the recollection. "Yes," she answered, "I remember it well."

"That sapling," he continued, dreamily, "must be a strong and sturdy oak now." "The softness all died out of her eyes and conversation ceased."

POPE ANNULS AN AMERICAN MARRIAGE

Woman Was a Catholic and Husband an Unbaptized Protestant—Second Marriage to Italian Prince Now All Right.

Rome, May 24.—Pope Pius X. has approved the decision of the congregation of the propaganda to annul the marriage of Marie Jennings Reid, of New Orleans and Washington (D.C.), who is now Princess Joseph Rospiogio (to Colonel H. P. Parkhurst, of Bangor, Me.). The decision of the Pope will now permit the Prince and Princess Rospiogio to contract a religious marriage.

Mrs. Parkhurst was granted a divorce from Colonel Parkhurst in 1898 and in 1901 was married to Prince Joseph Rospiogio, head of an ancient family of the papal nobility. The latter ceremony was a civil one and the Catholic church previously refused to countenance the union. The prince claimed legality for her marriage to Prince Rospiogio on the ground that there had not been a proper dispensation for her marriage to Colonel Parkhurst who was a Protestant, that he had never been baptized and that therefore that marriage could not be recognized by the church. Mr. Chappelle, who performed the first ceremony testified that the marriage was irregular according to the laws of the church.

At Rome on May 23 the congregation of the propaganda discussed a report on the case presented by Cardinal Martinielli, formerly papal delegate to the United States, which was said to have been favorable to the Princess Rospiogio.

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCES

Thousands of Men Annually Drop Out of Sight—Why?

More than 5,000 persons annually disappear in the United States and are never heard from again. At first blush the assertion seems incredible, but police statistics furnish confirmation. The actual figures, based on a conservative calculation, are even more alarming than those given. In fact, the reports of the police departments of the larger cities show that in the twelve months just past 10,000 of the persons who disappeared during the year were never reported as missing, but the sheriff or police officers, accustomed to the eccentricities of human nature, are of the opinion that the return of many thousands of these persons, through shame or indifference, was never reported at police headquarters. But even after making allowance for this feature of the case, it is reasonably certain that more than 5,000 persons were swallowed up in oblivion.

The tragedies of real life hidden within these peculiar cases, if they could be brought to light, would rival many of the novels penned by the world's greatest writers. No subject that can be imagined has such weird fascination as that of the thousands and thousands who have gone down this grand canyon of oblivion.

It would be possible to fill many pages with the absorbing stories of these curious cases, but nearly every reader of the newspapers, whether he lives in village, town or city, is probably acquainted with some instance of the kind concerning either friend or relative. Men and women who have lost all they have treasured most in life in this manner go about tacitly, usually, awaiting the return of the missing one—a dream that never comes true.

A glance at the police statistics in a few of the leading cities shows the ever growing extent of the "disappearance habit." In the city of New York during the last year 1,415 persons were reported to be missing or missing, leaving 335 unaccounted for. This percentage of unexplained cases is larger in proportion than either New York or Philadelphia, but Superintendent Peirce is of the opinion that a number of these persons reported as missing afterward sought their homes and the friends or relatives neglected to notify the police of the fact.—Brooklyn Herald.

UP-RIVER NEWS

Mr. LaForest of Edmundston Speaks of Liquor License Conditions There—Exiled Religious to Occupy Convent.

Fred LaForest, ex-M.P. of Edmundston, is at the Victoria. He says there is a bad mess about the liquor licenses in that town. He claims that the newly appointed license commissioners for the municipality did not have the applications before them a sufficient length of time to meet the requirements of the law. The government, Mr. LaForest said, did not proclaim the town incorporated until some time in March and that it was three weeks after that that eleven licenses were issued by authority of the county commissioners. About three weeks later, he said, liquor license commissioners were appointed for the town and as a consequence of this combination of events he believes there is not a license in Edmundston today that is worth the paper on which it is written.

Some of these license holders, he continued, sell both wholesale and retail and they declare that they will not close up either of their departments and if fined they also say they will smash the whole liquor business in the town.

Mr. LaForest says that some of the sisters of religious orders who have lately been exiled from France are expected next week to occupy the convent in Edmundston. There has not been as much rain in Madawaska as here and consequently, he says, the drives are not all safe yet.

LEMIEUX DECLARES ANNEXATION A WHIM

Canada's Solicitor General Talks on Uncle Sam's High Tariff at Boston Banquet.

At a banquet of the Boston British societies Wednesday the toast of The Empire was responded to by Canada's solicitor general.

Mr. Lemieux said, in part: "We see American capitalists today invading Canada, coming money out of our mines, out of our forests. But if Americans cross the imaginary frontier to help us in developing our natural resources, Canadians come in larger numbers to the republic to help capital in maintaining the American industrial supremacy. Such is the position today—a healthy competition in trade, in which you do yourselves the pleasure to pay heavy duties to get our goods and an interchange of men from both sides of the line.

This reciprocity is more useful than the reciprocity in blows and ugly expeditions which years ago made the blood of women run cold in their veins. We contribute to the mutual progress of the two countries.

We, in Canada, earnestly desire that both countries should avoid friction in the future. We have a common origin; we come from the same stock. It is our duty to preserve the good feelings which exist between neighbors, between cousins. But let me say at once that annexation is nothing but the whim of a visionary mind. A union of hearts for the cause of peace and liberty is much nearer to reality. And would not such a union bring priceless blessings to the two civilized worlds."

We rejoice in the fact that the Americans won their independence, and all the more because the circumstances which led to it reacted to the benefit of Canada. The American republic and Canada are not only drawn to each other by ties of race, by a common language, by similarity of political institutions, but also by the geographical unity of great areas. These influences not only invite but literally compel intercourse, and I regret to say that there are between these two countries too many trade restrictions which have been imposed to our mutual inconvenience and loss.

We have been practically closed out from your markets, and have been compelled to direct our trade through other channels, to seek new customers, to shape our commercial methods to entirely new conditions. The provisions of the Dingley bill stand out in strong contrast with our own liberal and moderate trade policy.

We want to share in the commercial activity of this continent. Our farmers, miners, lumbermen, want access to the market. They are willing to meet the Americans halfway. We all understand that commercial hostility is not of general rivalry. But in such matters the golden opportunity will always pass unheeded if the principles of equity and fairness are not adhered to by the contracting parties.

A STRANGE DISEASE

Part of North Shore and York County Have Cases—Doctors in Consultation.

A report reached here Wednesday that in more than one section of the province medical authorities are puzzled over the appearance of a strange disorder resembling what is popularly known as the "itch," but the physicians do not believe it is that.

Yesterday Black and Northumberland counties, Dr. Fisher, secretary of the provincial board of health, and Mr. Malby, health commissioner for Northumberland county, Dr. Debono and Dr. McLennan were in conference over the matter, for there are a number of cases in the vicinity of Blackville and Renous River.

It is also reported that one of the doctors of Fredericton had ten to fifteen cases on his visiting list. It is understood that the board of health have determined to isolate all cases until more is known about the strange affection. There have been no deaths.

WENT ON A ROCK

Steamer Lansdowne, Now on the Blocks, Struck Rock at Le Tele Passage.

The government steamer Lansdowne was placed on the blocks Wednesday for examination and repairs made necessary by a mishap which occurred on Wednesday of last week.

The steamer was on a cruise in connection with the lights and buoys and put into Le Tele passage at St. Andrews. But because of a buoy out of position the steamer went foul of the rock which the buoy had been placed to indicate. She struck bow on and held there for nearly half an hour but was then floated. The steamer was leaking some and it was decided to curtail the trip and the return to St. John was made.

Appointments at Netherwood.

Miss Field, who holds an honor certificate in French and German obtained in the higher local examinations of Cambridge University, has been appointed to the modern language teacher at Netherwood for the coming session. Miss Field has had the advantage of much study in France and Germany, and speaks the language fluently. She holds a certificate in the theory and practice of teaching from Cambridge University.

Miss Dorothy Switzer, an honor graduate in classics of Victoria University, Toronto, has been appointed as teacher of Latin and history. Miss Switzer has an excellent record as a student in Toronto, held a leading position in her class during the four years of her university course.

Both ladies come to Netherwood with the highest recommendations and in scholarship and general culture it is believed they are well fitted for the posts to which they have been appointed.

Halifax Natal Day Celebration.

In Halifax a big celebration on June 21, their Natal day, is being prepared. There will be a regatta in the morning, on either the Northwest Arm or on the harbor. At noon there will be a military review on the common. The regatta will be at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and the events will be 2.19 and 2.25 trot and pace, and for each a purse of $250 will be hung up. Between events will be athletic events. The whole set to wind up with a public concert in the gardens in the evening.

ST. JOHN MARKETS

No change has yet taken place in the price of refined sugar although the price of both raw beet and cane has advanced. Raw beet has advanced from 11 shillings and nine pence to twelve shillings and a penny. This is an advance in a few days from 11 shillings and three pence or an advance of 20 cents per 100 pounds. One of the local dealers says the demand for sugar is considerably in advance of that of any previous year at this time.

The other markets are unchanged. Shad are beginning to appear in the harbor, although not yet in any very considerable numbers. All other kinds of fish are very scarce. The following were the principal wholesale quotations yesterday:

COUNTRY MARKET.
Beef, western, per lb.	0.00 to 0.10
Beef, butchers, per lb.	0.08 to 0.09

OBITUARY

Ross Woodrow, Senr.

Ross Woodrow, sr., died Wednesday and in his passing away the city has lost one who in his early years was prominent in the community. Though seventy-six years of age, Mr. Woodrow had enjoyed good health until two years ago, since which time he had been failing. He founded the weekly paper, the British Constitution, some forty-seven years ago, and after a time it gave way to the Globe, with Mr. Woodrow as publisher. The Globe was first issued as a tri-weekly and then as a daily morning paper, but was not then a financial success. In 1881 it was purchased by Messrs. Christopher Armstrong and J. V. Ellis, now Senator Ellis, the latter of whom it still one of the proprietors.

Mr. Woodrow returned to the west and resided some years in California and British Columbia, returning again to St. John in 1887. During the last twenty years he had lived in Kings county. He is survived by two sons—R. D. Woodrow, of the post office department here, and Victor Woodrow, a C. P. R. baggage master; and one daughter, who resides in the Western States.

James Kenney.

James Kenney, a respected North End resident, died at his home, 317 Main street, Wednesday, at the age of 82. He was a native of Kingston, Kings county. One son, Henry, a motorman on the street railway, and three daughters—Mrs. John Farrow and Mrs. Elizabeth Logan, of this city, and the third a religious in a Michigan convent—survive.

Mrs. Annie Carlin.

George Carlin, the well known local tradesman, had the sympathy of many friends in the bereavement he has sustained in the death of his wife, Mrs. Annie Carlin. Mrs. Carlin passed away at St. John, Manxton (Eng.), on May 13. She left St. John about a year ago for St. John to visit her parents and other relatives and the news of her death came as a great shock to Mr. Carlin. The deceased, who was forty-eight years of age, is survived by the following children: Annie, William, John and Samuel. The last named is a resident of St. John. The other children were with their mother at the time of her death. Interment was made at St. John.

Mrs. John F. Godard.

Mrs. John F. Godard, widow of John F. Godard, died Wednesday, May 24. She was a daughter of the late Thomas Macnaughton, who was an officer in the 8th Regiment of Nova Scotia. She had been in poor health for some time since the death of her husband. She is survived by five daughters and two sons—Mrs. C. H. O'Leary, of Montreal; Mrs. C. H. Hunter, of St. John; Mrs. S. T. Vaughan, of St. John; and Mrs. John W. Godard, also of this city. Mr. Godard was a very worthy citizen, and had many warm friends.

Beverly R. Watrich.

Beverly R. Watrich died Sunday night at Presque Isle, aged 33. He was a son of Rudolph and Carrie Watrich, of St. John.

F. B. Wade.

Ottawa, May 23.—F. B. Wade, chairman of the transcontinental railway commission, died this evening of the Russian disease, cerebro spinal meningitis, the immediate cause of Mr. Wade's death, his preliminary trouble was acute gastritis. He was born at Grandville, Annapolis county, Md., on Oct. 1, 1832. He was trained to the bar and obtained a considerable practice in Annapolis and Lunenburg counties. He became interested in the railway through a professional connection with the Nova Scotia Central, which fell into his hands as receiver. Mr. Wade's management of that line and his transfer to other parties, led to a complete loss of business energy. He removed to Halifax and entered upon the practice of law there at the same time interesting himself in Annapolis county politics. His election to the county of Canada was the result of the Liberal party after it had gone conservative in three previous elections. He took a large share in the discussion of the Grand Trunk project, and when the measure became law he accepted the position of chairman of the commission charged with constructing the eastern section from Annapolis to Amherst. Mr. Wade was a man of more than twenty feet, besides being badly shaken up his face and head were cut.

Wm. Ziegler.

New York, May 24.—William Ziegler, the capitalist and promoter of Arctic explorations, died this morning at his country home near Noroton (Conn.). He was unconscious all of last night. The funeral will be held on Saturday at noon. Mr. Ziegler had been an invalid since a runaway accident in which he was injured last October. He sustained internal injuries and was so severely shocked that physicians were able to do little more than relieve his sufferings. Two or three days ago his condition had a change for the worse. Mr. Ziegler was born in Beaver county (Pa.), Sept. 1, 1843. He was educated in the public schools of Iowa and later learned the printers' trade in the office of the Muscatine Journal. He went into the baking powder business in 1870 and made a large fortune. During the last years of his life, he operated in Brookline and other Long Island real estate to the amount of millions of dollars. He led the fight against the purchase by the city of Brooklyn of the Long Island Water Supply Company, the prevention of this purchase resulting in a large saving to the city.

Lorenzo E. Meigs, Formerly of Grand Manan.

The death of Lorenzo E. Meigs, a native of Grand Manan, occurred on May 9 last, at Okaloosa, Whiting county (Wash.), where he had resided for the past fourteen years. Mr. Meigs was born on Grand Manan on December 21, 1841, and in 1865 married Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Worth, of Custer (Me.). From this union were six children—five sons and one daughter—of whom two sons and the daughters still survive. In 1870 Mr. Meigs went to reside with his family in Bodega in California, but returned eight years later to Grand Manan where he remained until his removal in 1880 to the states. He was a member of the Free Baptist church until taking up his residence in Okaloosa, where he found no church of his denomination near, and he joined the M. E. community. Mr. Meigs was well known and much respected and his death after a short illness is much regretted by a large circle of friends. His funeral took place at Okaloosa (Wash.), and was attended by a large concourse of relatives and friends.

BAPTIST REVOLT

Feeling Far and Wide Against Rockefeller's Money—A Great Protest is Promised.

Pittsfield, May 24.—The Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, pastor of the Warren avenue Baptist church of Boston, declared here yesterday that the Baptist clergymen throughout the country were in revolt against John D. Rockefeller's gifts to the church. Asked if the Baptists were so restless to receive Mr. Rockefeller's money, he said: "While the masses of the Baptists are not affected with the feeling of protest, nevertheless, to my personal knowledge there are Baptist ministers in all parts of the United States, from Maine to California, and North and South, who are ready to unite in a public protest. I believe this protest will be made."

"It is not a sporadic uprising, but part of a movement calculated to change the standard of ethics in the churches of the United States. The movement will crystallize soon. These are facts which no newspaper has hinted at before this, because it was not known that such a plan was on foot. An interview with me on 'baptized money,' along with the statements of others, was telegraphed all over the country. The result has been a flood of letters from every quarter of the continent, and they are all in the same strain. It is not the Congregationalists alone who are aroused over the disastrous moral effect of taking this money.

"I think Mr. Rockefeller should restore his wealth to the government, or give it to philanthropy, but before doing so he should acknowledge publicly that he regretted the money as a penitent. Under those circumstances the church would be justified in accepting his money. It cannot accept it from one who claims to be in the spirit of Christ, and who yet has laid the foundation of his wealth in outrageous injustice and oppression."

RAFFLES, the AMATEUR CRACKSMAN

THE IDES OF MARCH

FIRST OF THE REMARKABLE RAFFLES STORIES

BY E. W. HORNING

This is the first of a series of thirteen new stories entitled "Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman."

Raffles is destined to achieve as widespread fame in his own peculiar line as did Sherlock Holmes in a totally different sphere, (for Raffles and Holmes are exact opposites in view, character and career.)

While Sherlock Holmes exercised his wonderful powers towards the detection of crime, Raffles is represented as a man of unusual intellect and of high birth and breeding who has sunk to employing his undoubted genius to enable him to live by his wits.

The second adventure of Raffles—"A Costume Piece"—will appear next week.

My folly and my cowardice in coming to him at all. Because he had been kind to me at school, when he was captain of the eleven, and I had dared to look for kindness from him now because I was ruined, and he rich enough to play cricket all the summer, and do nothing for the rest of the year, I had fatuously counted on his mercy, his sympathy, his help! Yes, I had relied on him in my heart, for all my outward diffidence and humility; and I was rightly served. There was as little mercy as of sympathy in that cunning nostril, that right jaw, that cold blue eye which never glanced my way. I caught up my hat. I blundered to my feet. I would have gone without use of my old school nickname. His next words showed me my mistake. "What a boy it is for jumping to conclusions! I have my views, Bunny, but backing and filling is not one of them. Sit down, my good fellow, and have a cigarette to soothe your nerves. I insist. Whisky? The worst thing for you; here's some coffee that I was brewing when you came in. Now listen to me. You speak of another chance. What do you mean? Another chance at burglary? Not if I suppose it didn't. We should only have made bad worse. No, my dear chap, you've plumped enough. Do you put yourself in my hands or do you not? Very at school, and they set me thinking of yet another of his many sides—and of the little incident to which he had just referred. Everybody knows how largely the tone of a public school depends on that of the eleven and on the character of the captain of cricket in particular; and I have never heard it denied that in Raffles' time our tone was good or that such influence as he wielded to exert was on the side of the angels. Yet it was whispered in the school that he had in the habit of hanging round at night in load checks and a false beard. It was whispered, and I disbelieved. I alone knew it for a fact, for after night had I pulled the rug up after him when the rest of the dormitory were asleep and kept awake by the hour to let it down again on a given signal. Well, one night he was over-bold and within an acre of ignominious expulsion in the heyday of his fame. Condemnation and extraordinary nerve on his part, aided doubtless by some little presence of mind on mine, averted that calamity, but he never forgot the incident. He was, I suppose, the only person on earth who would have forgiven it either, when he stopped and stood over my chair one morning. "I've been thinking of that night we had the narrow squeak," he began. "Why do you start?"

"I was thinking of it, too." He smiled, as though he had read my thoughts. "Well, you were the right sort of little beggar then, Bunny; you didn't talk and you didn't flinch. You asked no questions, and you told no tales. I wonder if you're like that now?"

"I don't know," said I, slightly puzzled by my own affairs that I had just been told. It was impossible for me to follow one who led with such a zest. You might question, but you followed first. So now, when I heard him kick off his own shoes, I did the same, and with my back to the door I felt that I realized what an extraordinary way this of approaching a stranger for money in the dead of night. He had obviously no intention of following me, but I did not know what he intended to infer that they were in the habit of playing practical jokes upon each other.

"We groped our way so slowly upstairs, but I had time to make more than one note before we reached the top. The stair was uncarpeted. The spread figs of my right hand encountered nothing but the smooth of the stairs as I trailed through a dust that could be felt on the banisters. An eerie sensation had been upon me since we entered the house, and it increased as we climbed. What herald were we going to startle in his cell?"

"We came to a landing. The banisters led us to the left, and to the left again. Four steps more and we were on another and a longer landing, and suddenly a match blazed from the black. I never heard the faintest sound, the light was on my eyes before I had time to react. He came in from the door at the end of the passage and he looked at me with a cold and steady gaze. He said, 'What do you want?'"

"I had time to react. He came in from the door at the end of the passage and he looked at me with a cold and steady gaze. He said, 'What do you want?'" the narrow squeak," he began. "Why do you start?" "I was thinking of it, too." He smiled, as though he had read my thoughts. "Well, you were the right sort of little beggar then, Bunny; you didn't talk and you didn't flinch. You asked no questions, and you told no tales. I wonder if you're like that now?" "I don't know," said I, slightly puzzled by my own affairs that I had just been told. It was impossible for me to follow one who led with such a zest. You might question, but you followed first. So now, when I heard him kick off his own shoes, I did the same, and with my back to the door I felt that I realized what an extraordinary way this of approaching a stranger for money in the dead of night. He had obviously no intention of following me, but I did not know what he intended to infer that they were in the habit of playing practical jokes upon each other.

"We groped our way so slowly upstairs, but I had time to make more than one note before we reached the top. The stair was uncarpeted. The spread figs of my right hand encountered nothing but the smooth of the stairs as I trailed through a dust that could be felt on the banisters. An eerie sensation had been upon me since we entered the house, and it increased as we climbed. What herald were we going to startle in his cell?"

"We came to a landing. The banisters led us to the left, and to the left again. Four steps more and we were on another and a longer landing, and suddenly a match blazed from the black. I never heard the faintest sound, the light was on my eyes before I had time to react. He came in from the door at the end of the passage and he looked at me with a cold and steady gaze. He said, 'What do you want?'"

There he stood with his dark lantern, laughing at me. "A burglar! I gaped. 'You—you!'" "I told you I lived by my wits." "Why couldn't you tell me what you were going to do? Why couldn't you trust me? Why must you live? I demanded, puzzled to the quick for all my horror. "I wanted to tell you," said he. "I was on the point of telling you more than once. You may remember how I sounded you about crime, though you have probably forgotten what you said yourself. I didn't think you meant it at the time, but I thought I'd put you to the test. Now see you didn't, and I don't blame you, as quick as you can; leave it to me. You won't give me away, whatever else you do."

"Oh, his cleverness! His fiendish cleverness! Had he fallen back on threats, coercion, entreats, all might have been different. But he set me free to leave him in the lurch. He would not hurt me. He did not even bid me to accompany him, he trusted me. He knew my weakness and my strength, and was playing on both with his master's touch.

"Not so fast," said I. "Did I put this into your head, or were you going to do it in any case?" "Not in any case," said Raffles. "It's true I've had the key for days, but when I saw tonight I thought of chucking it; for, as a matter of fact, it's not a one-man job."

"That settles it, I'm your man." "You mean it?" "Yes—for tonight." "Good old Bunny," he murmured, holding the lantern for a moment to my face; the next he was explaining his plans, and I was adding, as though we had been fellow-cracksmen all our days.

"I know the shop," he whispered, "because I've got a few things there. I know this upper part too; it's been let for a month, and I got an order to view it and took a cast of the key before using it. The one thing I don't know is how to make a connection between the two; at present there's none. We may make it up here, though I rather fancy the basement myself. If you wait a minute I'll tell you."

He set his lantern on the floor, crept to a back window and opened it with scarcely a sound, only to return shaking his head, after shutting the window with the same care.

"That was our one chance," said he; "a back window above a back window; but it's too dark to see anything, and we haven't a ladder. I've got to go down after me to the basement, and remember, though there's not a soul on the premises, you can't make too little noise. There—listen to that!"

It was the measured tread that we had heard before on the flagstones outside. Raffles darkened his lantern, and again we stood motionless, quiet as death.

"Either a policeman," he muttered, "or a watchman that all these jewelers run between them. The watchman's man for us to watch; he's simply paid to spot this kind of thing."

We crept very gingerly down the stairs, which created a bit in spite of us, and we picked up our shoes on the passage. They were now in a bare and my lantern behind the door, and separated therefrom by an iron curtain, the very sight of which filled me with despair. Raffles, however, had no such qualms. He was now in a bare and my lantern behind the door, and separated therefrom by an iron curtain, the very sight of which filled me with despair. Raffles, however, had no such qualms.

"I'm ready," said he, after a minute's inspection; "we'll be through that in no time, but there's a door on the other side which may give us trouble."

"Another door? I groaned. And how do you mean to tackle this thing?" "Prise it up with the jointed jimmie. The weak point of these iron curtains is the leverage you can get from below. But you make a noise, and this is where you're coming in, Bunny; this is where I couldn't do without you. I must have you overboard to knock through when you're clear. I'll come with you and show a light."

"Well, you may imagine how little I liked the prospect of this lonely vigil, and yet there was something very stimulating in the vital responsibility which it involved. Hitherto I had been a mere spectator. Now I was to take part in the game. And the fresh excitement made me more than ever insensible to those considerations of conscience and of safety which were already as dead nerves in my breast.

So I took my post without a murmur in the front room above the shop. The fixtures had been left for the refusal of the incoming tenant, and fortunately for us they included Venetian blinds which were already down. It was the simplest matter in the world to stand peeping through the lattice into the street, to beat twice with my foot for the watchman when he passed, and once when all was clear again. The noises that even I could hear below, with the exception of one metallic crash at the beginning, were undisturbed. But I was not to be lulled by this. I was on my feet; but they ceased altogether at each double rap from my toe; and a policeman passed quite half a dozen times beneath my eyes, and the man whom I took to be the jeweler's watchman offered still, during the better part of an hour that I spent at the window. Once, indeed, my heart was in my mouth, but only once. It was when the watchman stopped and peered through the peep-hole into the lighted shop. I waited for his whistle—I waited for the galls or the fall! But my signals had been studiously obeyed, and the man passed on in undisturbed serenity. In the end I had a signal in my turn, and retraced my steps with lighted matches down the broad stairs, down the narrow ones, across the area and up into the lobby where Raffles awaited me with an outstretched hand.

"Well done, my boy!" said he. "You're the same good man in a pinch, and you shall have your reward. I've got a thousand pounds worth if I've got a pen-orth. It's all in my pocket. And here's something else I found in this locker; very decent sort and some cigars, meant for poor dear Danby's business friends. Take a pull and you shall light up presently. I've found a lavatory, too, and we must have a wash-and-brush-up before we go, for I'm as black as your boot."

The iron curtain was down, but he insisted on raising it until I could peer through the glass door on the other side and see his handiwork in the shop beyond. Here two electric lights were left burning all night long, and in their cold white rays I could at first see nothing amiss. I looked along an orderly lane, an empty glass counter on my left, glass cupboard to stand by with the dark lantern in one hand and a small bottle of rock oil in the other. Raffles had produced a pretty embroidered case, intended obviously for his razors, but filled instead with the tools of his secret trade, including the rock oil. From this case he selected a "bit," capable of drilling a hole an inch in diameter, and fitted it to a small but very strong and hit near the keyhole. But first he aimed the bit to minimize the noise, and this he did invariably before beginning a fresh hole, and often in the middle of one. It took thirty-two separate borings to cut round that lock.

I noticed that through the first circular orifice Raffles thrust a foreigner; then, as the circular became an ever-lengthening oval, he got his hand through up to the thumb, and I heard him swear softly to himself.

"I was afraid so!" "What was it?" "An iron grate on the other side!" "How on earth are we to get through that?" I asked in dismay.

"Pick the lock. But there may be two. In that case they'll be top and bottom, and we shall have two fresh holes to make, as the door opens inward. It won't open two inches as it is."

I confessed I did not feel sanguine about the lock-picking, fearing that one lock had baffled us already; and my disappointment and impatience must have been a revelation to me had I stopped to think. The peril of the whole proceeding added me nervous undertaking with an involuntary zeal of which I was myself quite unconscious at the time. MAINE PAPER ATTACKS THIS CITY AND ITS LUMBERMEN

A Stormy Article in Which St. John Comes in for Abuse While the River Obstruction Case is Presented from the Maine Standpoint—Aroostook Attorney Given Chance to Say Things.

The Bangor News gives a large amount of space to an attack on St. John and its lumbermen in connection with the action to be taken by Attorney-General Piquet to cause removal of obstructions to navigation which the St. John Lumber Company has placed in the St. John river at Van Buren.

As for sheer booms, the St. John lumbermen have them scattered along the river, and above Port Kent on the New Brunswick side, and they have them on Kennedy Island, and Conner's Station, as well as below the point of contention.

Peter C. Keegan, one of the most prominent attorneys in Aroostook county, a resident of Van Buren, and a man thoroughly familiar with the situation on the St. John river made the following statements to a News reporter in Van Buren on Monday.

The Pike law according to Section 20, Vol. 2 of the U. S. Statutes is as follows: "That the product of the forest of the State of Maine upon the river and its tributaries, owned by American citizens, and saved in the Province of New Brunswick, by American citizens, the same being otherwise unmanufactured in whole or in part, which is now admitted into the ports of the United States free of duty, shall continue to be so admitted under such regulations as the secretary of treasury shall from time to time prescribe."

DEADLOCK OVER ST. JOHN RIVER OBSTRUCTIONS

Washington, May 24.—The Canadian members of the international deep waterway commission are insisting that the St. John river navigation question be considered by the joint commission.

ter becoming fattened at our expense, now objects to the use of the St. John river, or any portion of it, without being able to show the least damage to their interests.

A Distorted Maine View.

But the St. John lumbermen are dealing with a different breed this time. We are not, and do not propose to become serfs—we know our rights, and knowing them, dare maintain them and we feel assured that so long as we are right, we can rely upon the support of our government and people.
