Burghers Had at Least 80,000 Fighting Men-16,500 Have Surrendered.

London, Monday, June 16 .- A dispatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, Saturday, June 14, says that 2,594 Boers have surrendered since Friday, June 13, and that everything is proceeding most satisfactorily.

Gen. Delarey has surrendered at Lichtenberg, Transvaal, with 800 men. rendered is 16.500, and the British are extending every possible kindness to the men who come in.

The large number of side during the war will be immediatesurrenders exceed the estimates of ly disbanded, and each scout will be Boer strength made by the most cautious military experts. It enables military men to assert that the army has been fighting 80,000 burghers since the war opened. It also inspired apprehension on the part of pessimists lest at once surrounded by thousands of there may be a renewal of trouble and a fresh outbreak of hostilities after the release of the Boer prisoners.

NOTHING TO EXPECT FROM OUT-SIDERS. One great safeguard of peace, without doubt, is the conviction of the Boers that they have nothing to expect from foreign nations, but a sentimental admiration for their grit in out foreign intervention they hoped to secure. Hence they may be contented to settle down as British subjects and secure Dutch control of the confederation destined to follow the war. MORE TODAY. The Times' correspondent at Pretoria says the surrender of another four or five thousand Boers is expected on Monday. The great friendliness which is arising between Boers and

The circular states there there is good reason to believe that the government will subsidize the scheme.

The repatriation committee, which has been formed to assist the Boers in returning to their farms, has a gigantic task before it. The concentration camps will be converted into supply depots to provide the returning burghers with the means to rebuild and restock their farms. The wives and families of the Boers will, if desired, be maintained at the expense of the government, while the burghers are preparing the farms for their re-

THE BOERS' HERO. The appearance of Gen. Dewet at the camp at Winburg was the signal for a great display of enthusiasm. When he arrived at the camp he was Boer men, women and children, who struggled and clamored to shake the hand of their hero. Gen. Dewet warmly applauded the staunch support that the women had given the burghe during the war, which, he said, had greatly encouraged the men in the field. Continuing, Gen. Dewet recommended his hearers to be loyal to the new government, and said: "Perhaps it is hard for you to hear this from my mouth, but God has decided thus. HARROW EVER KNEW Reduction of 28 From Returning Twelve Freight Cars Piled on Top Officer's Figures.

Bracebridge, June 14.-The recount of the ballots cast in the late Muskoka election was held in the court house on Friday last before His Honor Judge Mahaffy and was not completed until late this evening. The result of the recount leaves Dr. Bridgland, the Liberal member, with a majority of 59 instead of 87, the number of the official declaration of the returning officer. Dr. the west and north hundreds and Bridgland was represented by Mr. hundreds of acres of farm lands are Thomas Johnson, and Mr. Mahaffy by hundreds and Bridgland was represented by Mr. Mr. O. M. Arnold, both of Bracebridge. The result of the actual recount of the ballots reduced Mr. Bridgland's majority by three. Judge Mahaffy decided that all the votes polled at polling dis-trict No. 17, being subdivision No. 1 of the townships of Medora and Wood, Montpelier Junction. Passing through should be thrown out owing to the Middlesex it struck a ditch washed fact that the deputy returning officer, Henry C. Guy, initialed all the ballots with "H. G.," leaving out the second initial of his name. As the result of this decision Dr. Bridgland lost ten of a majority. In polling district No. 18, being subdivision No. 2 of Medora and Wood, where William McNaughton was the deputy returning officer, he marked all the ballots with "McN." Judge Mahaffy held that the failure to place the initials "W. M." on the ballots invalidated the whole vote, and as a consequence of this decision Dr. Bridgland lost fifteen votes, his majority in this polling subdivision. APPEAL IN PRINCE EDWARD. The Conservative Association has given notice of an appeal from Judge Merrill's decision in the recent recount held at Picton, for Prince Edward. The ballots will be forwarded to Toronto the first of this week. EAST MIDDLESEX RECOUNT. The appeal against the recount in East Middlesex will be heard before Mr. Justice Osler at Osgoode Hall on Wednesday next.

Against this Dr. Wilkie protested in his memorial, stating that he believed that the decision of the committee unjustly threw on him "the disgrace and blame of the past unsatisfactory state

THE CASE SET FORTH, Dr. Wilkie spoke at length in support of his memorial, his address containing a detailed statement from his standpoint of certain very painful circumstances of a personal nature in the conduct of the work. It appeared from The Winooski River rose to spring his statement that acute personal diffreshet pitch and several bridges were ferences have existed for some time in the staff in the field, differences which of late, at all events, have centered around the management of the college at Indore, of which Dr. Wilkie may be styled the creator. Until three years ago this college in theory was, locally. under the control of the Presbytery of Indore. Much friction attended its working, and in 1899 the experiment was tried of placing the college directout by water, which rushed down the ly under the foreign mission commitside of Camel's Hump Mountain. Mr. Hamilton Cassels, K.C., spoke played upon the Atlantic coast, from on behalf of the foreign mission committee, reciting the history case, and holding that Dr. Wilkie had proved unable to work satisfactorily with his colleagues. Rev. Dr. Mc-Tavish followed, holding that Dr. Wilkie had, through personal peculiarities, proved an impossible colleague. Rev. Dr. McLaren, on behalf of the minority in the committee, which is disposed to take a more favorable view of Dr. Wilkie's case, urged that the case had never been examined fully, and suggested the appointment of a commission of assembly to go into the whole matter.

Rev. Dr. Gordon, of Halifax, moved that the action of the committee be sustained. He held that the work in Central India could not be carried on by the present staff if Dr. Wilkie continued a member of it. He could not see that the appointment of a commission would do any good. A GRAND TORCHLIGHT TATTOO

His Majesty Subsequently Reported as Suffering From Chills and Lumbago.

London, June 16.-King Edward, Queen Alexandra, the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Lord Roberts, the commander-in-chief of the forces, and their respective suites were at Aldershot on Saturday. The Town Council of Aldershot presented his majesty with an address in a silver casket. On their way to the royal pavilion their majesties reviewed 2,000 or 3,000 school children. The town was gaily decorated with masts and tri-umphal arches, and was crowded with visitors. The great feature of the royal visit was a grand torchlight tattoo at 10 o'clock tonight.

TORCHLIGHT TATTOO. The torchlight tattoo at Aldershot tonight was one of the most striking spectacles which has been witnessed at England's military center for many years. The royal party had the benefit of an ink-black night as a foil to illuminations. Their majesties drove beneath a succession of blazing arches from the royal pavilion to the drill grounds, where an open marquee, brilliant with electric lights, was used as the reviewing point. First came the march past of the English, Scotch, Irish and Welsh bands, encircled by a cordon of torch-bearers. In front of the marquee the bands halted and played an evening hymn, which was followed by music for the drill, in which thousands of torch-bearers marched and counter-marched, in complicated evolutions, breaking and re-forming in artistic figures. The bands rendered separately a succession of their typical national airs. The bands together then played the National Anthem in company with the bugles. At the end the bugles sounded "last

CHARLATANS IN AUSTRALIA

Numerous, Prosperous, and Not Legally Liable for Errors.

Methods by Which He Victimizes the Public.

As there is no proper medical law in Australia, nor, indeed, any legislative enactment in force by means whereof the practice of medicine may be confined within the hands of its duly qualified exponents, quackery flourishes exceedingly, and in the most impudent and barefaced fashion conceivable.

Statistics prove that each legitimately qualified practitioner living in Australia strives for his bread in competition with three quacks. But if the law does not protect the qualified man, and despises the health of the community thus impiously exposed to the ravages of imposters, the charlatan himself it takes to its heart and nourishes as though he were a precious jewel. Thus! If a man suffer from the negligence or malpractice of a qualified surgeon or physician and can prove his case, the law gives heavy damages to the injured one. But if a like injury be suffered at the hands of a quack, the law non-suits the plaintiff, remarking, with a wag of its asinihe head, "My dear sir, you have no case! If you employ a quack to attend you, you do so at your own risk. You have no legal redress!" Strange, but true! What wonder then that Australia is the happy hunting ground of quacks?

BOUND BY ETIQUETTE. Again, restrained by the absurd chains of custom and rigid, iron-bound etiquette, a properly-qualified medico dare not advertise. He may be a gold medalist, an F. R. C. P., an F. R. C. S.; he may possess the talents of a Treves, a Gull, or a MacCormac; but if he so much as insert a card in a newspaper he is cut thenceforth and for all time by his professional brethren. He is, therefore, obliged to spend the best years of his life waiting idly behind his door-plate, often vainly, for the public to discover his abilities. The quack, on the other hand, sufarm so mangled that it had to be taken off at the shoulder. His recovery is The Breakfast Dish of Royalty.

He has besides many other tricks and artifices up his sleeve wherewith to attract at tention and gull the ignorant. One of the methods now most widely in use is worthy of note. It was invented by the late notorious and infamous Dr. Gresham, who, starting life as a bookmaker, on being posted as a defaulter turned quack and made a large fortune in a very few years. The quack hires three large rooms in a prominent city thoroughfare. The outer is a waiting-room, the second a dispensary, the third and inmost a private consulting-room, with a second door of egress. Here the quack lurks and interviews his patients. The dispensary is occupied by his confederate. The patient enters, and his attention is immediately absorbed by the extraordinary arrangement of the walls. Skeletons, skulls, stuffed birds and snakes, and colored anatomical plates and pictures of horrible can-Gal 2-Quack Doctors gDw'.a$ cers, tumors, etc., cover the wallsalso a thousand framed testimonials given by grateful patients.

The confederate presently calls the patient into the dispensary and engages him in talk. He lauds the quack's marvellous genius to the skies, and deftly pumps the patient as to his particular ailment. The patient, an ignorant person, whose mind dwells morbidly on his disease, is usually anxious to talk about himself. He falls an easy victim, and describes his symptoms at length. Pretty soon a bell rings in the consulting-room, whereupon the confederate, in a hushed, awe-stricken voice, informs the patient that the great doctor is now disengaged, and will see him. The patient enters the consulting-room, and finds himself in a small dimly lighted den, littered from floor to ceiling with most mysterious objects—great heaps of dried herbs, enormous glass torts, cases of formidable looking instruments, and papier-mache dummy figures of half-dissected human be-Seated before a table is an old man clad in a symbol-covered silk

The quack bids the patient to be seated-and sternly enjoys silence. He then turns a curious bull's-eys electric light full on the dumb-stricken patient; and pressing one end of a telescope made of crystal against the man's side, pretends to look through the telescope and examine the organs of his interior, one by one. Presently he leans back n his chair, nodding his head. "Hum!" he remarks. "You have had a knawing pain in your back just under your fifth rib-for the last four years!'
"My God!" gasps the astonished patient, entirely forgetting that a few minutes ago he has detailed his suf-ferings to the dispenser in the next room. The quack, with unmoved com-

Riding along a country road a few years ago in New South Wales, I was overtaken by an equestrian, who introduced himself to me. I knew him by repute as a notorious itinerant quack, and was glad of the chance to converse with him. He, presently perceiving that I was not a likely patient, confided to me the facts that all his knowledge of medicine was abstracted from Dr. Beard's "Encyclopaedia of Household Medicine": that he had been brought up to the shoemaking trade, and that his real name was Key. He declared he was making £2,000 a year at his new profession, and would continue to do so, because the supply of foods was inexhaustible. He was an interesting creature, quite the most cynical person I have ever encountered.

On the outskirts of a town he took his leave of me. I inquired: "Why?" he replied. "It is my invariable custom to gallop through or into a town at the top speed of my horse. It excites attention. The people ask one another who I am, and the reason of my hurry. Some one is sure to know me, and reply: 'It is the great Dr. -, just coming from saving or going to save some one's life.' Good-bye, sir. I hope we'll meet again!" With that the great (?) doctor gathered up his reins, and, digging his spurs into the flanks of his steed, disappeared in a cloud of dust.

The quack has many names, and is often a specialist—generally in skin diseases and in the diseases of the eye, ear and throat. As a herbalist, however, the quack particularly thrives. There resides a herbalist in every village in Australia, while hundreds infest the larger towns. These rascals pretend to cure every ill to which humanity is sub-They charge nothing for consultation, but live by selling their nostrums, and live well.

Nature's Own Euthanasia.

Sir Henry Thompson in his essay just republished, "The Unknown God," makes the following statement as the result of long and careful observation: "A really painful death from disease is never witnessed. Whatever of suffering may have previously occurred, the act of death is believed to be always preceded by a considerable period of insensibility. Acute and sometimes long-continued sufferings and sometimes long-continued sufferings precede death. But, thanks to man's scientific researches, especially to one of the most recent, the inhalation of anaesthic vapors, all acute sufferings can be completely avoided. In the course of most chronic diseases it is well known that some forms of anodyne, of which several notable examples exist can also several notable examples exist. several notable examples exist, can almost always be utilized so as to avoid severe suffering. No man should be a martyr to pain who can obtain a tolerably skillful medical attendant, and such are provided in all the public institu-tions for the care of the poor, or at the hospitals that abound in London, and exist in almost every small country town." Sir Henry philosophically remarks the continued sufferings "are believed by not a few to have perhaps a beneficial effect upon the sufferer himself, leading him to exercise the virtues of patience and of sympathy with fellowsufferers."

Auto-Expanding

The foot spreads when borne upon! It contracts again when lifted!

A new shoe, which fits the foot neatly when off the ground, must therefore pinch it when stood upon, till it is stretched to the maximum width of foot.

A shoe which has thus been stretched, till comfortable across the ball when stood upon, must be too loose when the foot is lifted.

The RESILIA is the only shoe which expands at the ball when the foot does, and contracts again when lifted.

It becomes a size larger inside when the foot sinks down into the resilient centresole, the rebounding of which takes up the leather slack again when foot is lifted.

It is thus as easy as an old shoe the first moment it is worn, requires no "breaking in," and retains its shape because the leather is never overstretched.

"The Slater Shoe" J. H. BROWNLLEE, Manager., 146 Dundas Street.

Origin of Cambridge University. The University of Cambridge originated through a migration from Oxford. In 1209 an Oxford townswoman was killed by a clerk; whether accidentally or not, we do not know. King John, who was under sentence of excommunication, and so had no desire to protect the clergy, allowed the people of Oxford to have their revenge by putting two or three scholars to death. Their fellow students became alarmed and began to migrate-some to Paris, some to Reading and some to Cambridge. There is no evidence that Cambridge had acquired any special pre-eminence as an educational center before the beginning of the thirteenth century. No doubt it possessed one of the grammar schools which, by time, were to be found in most English towns. The rise of Cambridge received a check from a return of scholars to Oxford in 1214, on John's reconciliation with the church, but it had, some fifteen years later, an accession of strength from the dispersion of the scholars of Paris. The distinguishing mark of the English universities today is the collegiate system. Yet Paris, not Oxford, was the original home of the college as an academic

EMIGRANTS TO CANADA FROM OVER THE BORDER

Some 50,000 Have Come in Three Interesting Experiments Made at Years-Sir Wilfrid Wishes More.

New York, June 16. - Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the premier of Canada, and Lady Laurier, who arrived here Saturday from Ottawa, sailed for England | will be of great value to the state in on the Etruria to attend the coronation utilizing the large peat bogs of the middle of August. "I hope to have an opportunity while in England," Sir Willrid said to an interviewer, "to devise some plans of emigration to Canada. Emigration from the United States, am glad to note, is increasing every year. Fully 50,000 have gone from this country across the border during the last three years, and we will be glad to have all the fifty thousands more she can stand."

DANGERS AND PERILS AHEAD.

the State University.

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 16 .- In the basement of the engineering laboratory experiments have been made that of King Edward. They expect to reach state. The difficulty that has preventhome about the end of July or the ed the use of peat for fuel is the large amount of water it contains. After being air-dried it still contains 20 per all round. cent of water.

By experiments which have been made by the professors and students, an economical method with the use of electricity has been devised to expel this water, and the peat is compressed into blocks. It then has a heat value, as compared with coal, of 75 per cent, with only 1 per cent of ash, while coal has 6 or 7 per cent. The system and machinery which has been devised will be used on a 2,200 acre peat bog near Capac. It is from 15 to 30 feet deep, and 200 tons of dried peat can be produced a day for 100 years, and there will still be peat left for generations afterwards.

CANADIAN FORESTERS.

Montreal, Que., June 16 .- The departure of the steamer Tunisian for Liverpool on Saturday was the occasion for a great demonstration, in view of the fact that both the Hong Kong coronation contingent and the Bisley team were on board. Besides these the steamer carried a large number leading Canadians bound for the coronation. Over a thousand people were at the Allan's dock, and the people on board received a great send-off.

C. P. R. AND TRACKMEN AGREE

Preparing for Trouble in Toronto-The Street Car Men Propose Arbitration.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 15 .- The presence of 100 armed men sent by Governor Kimball to restore order had little influence except in the central parts of this city today, and this afternoon rioting broke out anew in the suburbs and spread to the neighboring city of Central Falls.

The resumption of the electric service which had been abandoned since of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discov-Thursday was the signal for demonstrations at the points where neither soldiers nor police were stationed, and the character of the attacks grew worse until the traction company was FORCED TO ABANDON THE CAR SERVICE.

The disorders extended over so great an area that the troops available were unable to handle the situation, and it was said that before the usual car traffic can be resumed it will be necessary to place the city of Central Falls and part of Cumberland, Lincoln and North Providence under military control. To do this an increase in the number of troops will be necessary. The tracks were obstructed, and cars were pelted with stones by the mobs not only in the suburbs of this city, but in Central Falls. Missiles struck many of the employes, some of whom were injured.

MACHINE GUN USED. About 3,000 people gathered around one car in Central Falls, and their attitude was so threatening that a machine gun was loaded and two companies of marines were ordered to charge the crowd. The car proceeded, but the line was later abandoned. The marines then marched through the city, and at another point the ma- ed an increase in wages of 5 per chine gun was made ready for action when it became apparent that an outburst was imminent. Mayor Fales, of Central Falls, not having requested work, which was refused. This strike treeps from the governor asked that troops from the governor, asked that affects mills at Palmers' Falls, N. Y., the troops be withdrawn, and this was done after two hours of service.

TROOPS PATROL THE STREETS. At a conference this afternoon between Governor Kimball, Mayor Fales and Brigadier-General Tanner, it was decided that the militia would not be sent to Central Falls until their services were required. The militia un-intentionally invaded Central Falls to quell a disturbance, and the conference was for the purpose of preventing such a repetition. No disturbance occurred in this city or elsewhere during the forenoon, and the troops territory than before in preparation for the resumption of traffic. The troops guarded the entire city line until 11 o'clock, when they returned to the armory, and at midnight all the companies who had been on duty the greater part of the day were called in for the night. SETTLED BY ARBITRATION. Toronto, June 16 .- The board of arbitration who have been sitting for the past few days at the Queen's Hotel, adjusting the wages of the C. P. R. trackmen, concluded their labors Sat-urday night. The board was composed of John D. Wilson, of St. Louis, Mo., president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trackmen, representing men; Chief Engineer Curtelius, of the maintenance of way department, Montreal, representing the company, and Chancellor Boyd as the third party. The award is satisfactory to the men and to the company alike. It amounts to an average advance of 15 per cent

READY TO ARBITRATE. In answering the letter of the street car company, refusing to have anything to do with the union, the street railway employes asked for a conference to be attended by a committee of employes. The men offer arbitration of all points in dispute. An answer is expected today. EXPECT A STRIKE. Both sides are hard at work preparing for the street railway strike that is generally regarded as inevitable. As the men claim that the com pany is already bringing in non-union men from London, Buffalo and other points. A mass meeting of the men will be held on Monday.

Ironton, Ohio, June 14.—As a result of the miners' strike in West Virginia the plants of the Union Iron and Steel Company, the Sarah Furnace and the Hanging Rock Iron Company, sus-pended work today. They can get no coke. If the strike continues the Bel-font furnace will bank its fires on Tuesday, and the Marting Iron and Steel Company in a week. The King and Morgan.

- The King of England and the bogeyman of the British Empire, J. Pierpont Morgan, had a pleasant half-hour's chat over their walnuts and wine at Mr. Choate's dinner last week. While so many of his subjects are shivering at the thought of Morgan gobbling up British maritime supremacy, his Britannic Majesty is quietly doing a good stroke of business by winning the allegiance the king of the United States. A little royalty goes a long way with our American cousins. In fact, the fascinations of the court and aristocracy, of which the Anglo-American marriages are a symptom, are probably doing as much to forge a real tie between the two countries as all methods, but she is sound at the core, the gush about Anglo-Saxon kinship. The American plutocrat who is once her. admitted to the charmed circle, and breathes the atmosphere of London society, is thereafter as dutiful a subject as his Majesty could desire. There is a shrewd diplomacy, therefore, in the flattery which London now bestows on | wealth of any country, and puts it in rich Americans. Mr. Morgan, for example, is already as much a Briton as an American. Besides his London bank, he has a town house and a country house in the tight little island, and spends half his time there, like hundreds of his class. The millionaires own the United States, and Great Britain will soon own the millionaires.

Snatching at Straws.

In East Middlesex they are asking, because of trifling errors by three deputy returning officers, that the seat be given to Capt. Robson. It may be that Mr. Clark in Center Bruce does not represent a majority of the good votes. It is quite certain that Capt. Robson would not represent a majority of the good votes if he Won the seat on appeal. The Opposition, in these two cases. is within its legal rights, and the Liberals cannot squeal. But the Opposition should cease its silly noise and pother about being tricked out of victory, when it is willing to snatch at such chicane.

Canada for the Canadians.

The Hamilton Herald frankly admits that it has come round to the view that a Canadian officer should command the Canadian militia. Our contemporary says:

"Hitherto the Herald has held that this is a matter which should not be considered on sentimental grounds, but from the standpoint of the efficiof our militia system, and that an officer of the imperial army with experience in actual warfare, more likely than a Canadian officer to bring our militia up to a high standard of efficiency. The South African war has, however, proved that it may be possible to have too much of British army methods in our militia system, and has also brought to the front Canadian officers who are well qualified for high command. The conditions being changed, we see no necessity now for importing imperial officers to command the Canadian militia; and as the necessity does not exist, the custom ought to be dis-continued."

Customs die hard. If the Canadian Government, especially a Liberal one, undertook to make the change all the returned Newed, "I notice he always tuft-hunters and lip-loyalists in the howls when you play." country would raise the silly ery that Canada was severing a bond with the suggestion would come with gace for mother country. For that reason the suggestion would come with grace from the imperial authorities.

Luck on Both Sides.

The Toronto World quotes a mournful Conservative as saying that it's "the toughest kind of luck" that Mr. Whitney is not today the Premier. He points out that Ross today has a majority of only 3, not counting North Renfrew, whose member-elect is deceased, and one more Conservative vote in Lennox would have given the seat to Mr. Carscallen. This would give Mr. Ross 49 seats, and Mr. Whitney 48. Then turn six votes in North Grey, and Mr. Boyd would have been the sitting member, and Mr. Whitney would have had a majority of seats. Put the boot on the other foot. We can imagine a Liberal saying: "It's the toughest kind of luck that Premier Ross did not have a greater majority. Two votes more in North Perth would have elected Brown, and given Mr. Ross a clear majority of six, or more than Mr. Hardy had in 1898. Then again, seven votes more in Center Bruce would have defeated Clark and increased the majority to eight, while 23 votes more in North Norfolk would we are coming for. have wone the seat and given Ross ten to the good in the House."

Admonishing the Anglicans.

There is something piquant in the fact that Canon Welch, who tells the Church of England in Canada that it is not Canadian enough, is himself an rough creatures her fit companions. Englishman and has been resident in present that God has given to man.

He is a graduate of Cambridge, and came to Canada as provost of Trinity University, resigning that post about four years ago to become rector of into a better world. Women are much St. James' Cathedral, a charge he nearer to God than men. still holds. He is one of the strong men in the Anglican communion.

Canon Welch's complaint was that the Church of England in Canada had not shown sufficient elasticity, that she had not adapted herself to new and untried conditions. The very name adopted, "The Church of England in Canada," did not suggest that she was native of the soil. The Church could profit, he thought, by studying the example of other denominations. She had tried to perpetuate methods which had not been too successful in England. The mother church had learned, however, and was adapting know. herself to the changing conditions of whether the climate disagrees with modern life, especially in the cities and towns. Canon Welch's admonition will doubtless cause some heart-searching among the Anglicans. After all, it is a question of organization, not of inherent defects in the church. There The Church of England in England seems to have had a new baptism, and was never more vital and aggressive than in the present day. Letters to the Editor.

THE RECTORY STREET LINE.

To the Editor of The Advertiser: There has been a great deal said lately about the Hamilton road extension and the abandonment of the Rectory street belt, questions of great importance to the residents of East London. In regard to the extension on the Hamilton road, we have not now, nor ever had, any objection; but in the matter of the abandonment of the Rectory street belt, the residents of that district have on every occasion fought against it, believing that it would not be in the best interests of the city at large; and of the east end particularly. As stated in other letters published in your paper, the Rectory street belt is the only cross-line between the southern and northern sections of the city, east of Richmond, and the southern portion of the city is surely entitled to some consideration at the hands of the street railway corpora-ten only aggrevates the offense. tion. It is said by the street railway people that the line is not necessary, like the ways of the heathen Chinee, that it is dangerous, and that it causes are peculiar. One of them is that as delay in the running of the cars. We all know that the street railway company would like to abandon the Rectory street belt, thereby dispensing with the services of four crews-eight menand the watchman at the crossing. In regard to being dangerous, it is no more dangerous than other railway crossings; and as to delays, the cars are very often needlessly held there by the watchman, as many can certify to. We are very much of the opinion that company's desire railway for the abandonment of the Rectory street belt lies in the fact that they are of the opinion they could collect as many fares per day without the disbursement of the salaries of those eight men and the watchman, no matter if the public were inconvenienced thereby.

Trusting that the city council will see that no injustice is done to this section of the city, I remain, yours respectfully, W. A. HUNTER. 196 Rectory street.

Victims Must Be Very Careful or Else be Arrested.

A fire started one night not long ago in the apartment of an American who was staying in Berlin, and as the tenant didn't think he could put out the flames unaided he rushed across the street and turned in an alarm at a

Now it happened that this particular street was the boundary line between the city of Berlin and the town of Charlottenberg, which is one of Berlin's suburbs. The American's apartment was on the Berlin side; the fire alarm box on the Charlottenburg side. The Charlottenburg fire department firemen arrived and found that the fire was in the Berlin district, did they The chief hurried to the nearest box on the Berlin side and turned in an alarm there. Then he and his men responded to the alarm. When the

When that was done the American was arrested for giving a false fire alarm in the town of Charlottenburg, an offense punishable by a heavy penalty. He wasn't aware that his street was a boundary line or that he had committed an offense, but ordinarily the German law does not recognize ignorance as an excuse for violating the city ordinances. However, he was an American, and as every German knows all Americans and all Englishmen are lunatics, that was taken in his favor and he got off

The Municipal Journal, which tells this story, intimates that the incident is typical of German municipal regulations and their rigid enforcement, irrespective of circumstances. Residents are supposed to know what these regulations are and not to make mistakes about them. Berlin's are printed in large volumes and sold for six marks by all booksellers and if citizens don't know them they must take the consequences. Nobody but a policeman can remember half of the ordinances, but that isn't considered any affair of the author-

The fire regulations particularly, are peculiar. One of them is that as soon as an alarm is turned in the owner and occupant of the house for which the alarm is sounded are absolved from all responsibility concerning it and must get out of it and stay out unless invited in.

The fire department and the insurance companies take charge until the damage has been estimated and paid, both of which proceedings are promptly set about. When that is done the owner can have his house again. If the tenant or any member of his family or any one of his servants interferes with anything about the premises after an alarm has been turned in, he may get off with a fine, but is far more likely to go to jail. Quite recently a man was fined 20 marks for returning to his burning apartment, as he said, to save a canary which had been left behind. He should have kept his hands off. The city supposes that the fire department is competent to take care of any emergency and the insurance companies to pay for whatever is injured or destroyed.

This matter of leaving everything to a paternal government and walking the chalk line of conduct it has laid down is incomprehensible to many visiting Americans at first, and they are likely to get into trouble very easily. A Western man, according to the same municipal authority, did, only last win-

Something caught fire in the rooms occupied by himself and his family early in the morning, and the servants rushed out and gave the alarm. But it was not a serious fire, and the Western man thought he saw a much better way of dealing with it than turning a lot of firemen out of bed. He and his family formed a bucket brigade, doused the fire with water from the bath-room and soon put it out. When the firemen arrived the family was sitting around talking it over. They were promptly arrested and marched off to jail for interfering with the fire department. They should have walked out locking the doors and leaving the firemen to do the work of fire extinguishing That family has decided that it would

THE DEMON, DYSPEPSIA.—In olden times it was a popular belief that demons moved invisibly through the ambient moved invisibly through the ambient air, seeking to enter into men and trouble them. At the present time the demon dyspepsia is at large in the same way, seeking habitation in those who by careless or unwise living invite him. And once he enters a man it is difficult to dislodge him. He that finds himself so possessed should know that a valiant friend to do battle for him with the unseen foe is Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, which are ever ready for the trial.

was attacked yesterday by lumbago, following a chill contracted while reviewing troops at Aldershot, passed a good night and is much better. Rain is falling, however, so he will not risk attending the grand review today. The Prince of Wales will take the salute in his majesty's stead.

Aldershot, England, June 16 .- The

His Majesty Still Indisposed- | indisposition of King Edward and the incessant downpour of rain combined to effectually spoil the grand review of troops here today. The King did not leave the royal pavilion, and was represented by the Prince of Wales, who London, June 16 .- King Edward, who rode to the saluting point, accompanied by the Duke of Connaught and a brilliant staff, comprising several Indian princes, the military attaches, Lord Roberts, the commander-in-chief, and the headquarters staff. Queen Alexandra drove to the parade ground in a closed carriage with the Princess of Wales and the Princess Victoria. In other carriages were the Duchess of Connaught and many of the notabilities who are now visiting England. Over 32,000 rain-soaked troops marched past the heir to the throne.

DUKE OF SOMERSET FELT SNUBBED!

Because Not Invited to Royal Private Supper.

KING AND PREMIER ARE OUT LIBERALS IN BETTER SHAPE

Hand-Kissing Omitted in Favor of American Ambassador's Guests-A Watching Game.

London, June 16. - A curious story is being circulated regarding the Duke of Somerset and the King, at the last court. When his majesty made the rounds of the select circle he passed close to the Duke of Somerset, who made a careful obeisance. Either the King did not see him or he was preoccupied. However it was, his majesty, without acknowledging the obeisance, beckoned to someone almost directly behind the duke and asked him to come to the private royal supper. The person addressed happened to be nobody, as regards rank, and the Duke of Somerset, who is the fifteenth duke of that name, the title dating from 1543, was very wroth. He went home and wrote a letter, saying he regretted his sovereign saw fit to disregard him so publicly. would not occur again. Society gossip adds that the Duke and Duchess of occur, as they have no intention of again attending sourt.

HAND-KISSING OMITTED. Prior to the dinner of Mr. and Mrs. Choate it had been the custom of those meeting their majesties at private houses to "kiss hands," but his majesty sent special word that he desired that this ceremony be not othserved when he set foot on American soil, which Mr. Choate's house is supposed to be. The omission created considerable comment among the Engto the Americans. However, society had already had some warning of the King's desire, for at Epsom he had the word passed around that he did not desire any public hand-kissing in the inclosure, which had been a sight for all Derby Day crowds. One very fashionable woman, disregarding the informal injunction, grabbed his ma-jesty's hand and kissed it, much to the King's embarrassment. KING AND PREMIER AT ODDS. The relations between King Edward and the premier, Lord Salisbury, do general belief among members of the House of Commons, the King wants The Eighty Club, which celebrated Lord Salisbury to dissolve parliament tory for the next four years. dissolution of parliament. King Edward is the first sovereign whose succession has not been followed by a mechanical dissolution. NOT THE KING'S PARLIAMENT. The King is understood to take the standpoint that this is not his parliament, it having been elected prior to his succession, and, apart from any political prejudices, he wishes to feel that the House of Commons has been elected by the people under his rule, according to all precedent. So strongly has this report gained ground that the party organizations are already taking steps tentatively to select candidates for the various seats, though even the highest officials seem to have no definite idea of how the struggle between the aged premier and the new sovereign will eventuate.

A WATCHING GAME. The Liberals are playing a watching game. If the government decides to dissolve parliament, it will be met with the bitter opposition of the Liberals who will then openly declare that the royal prerogative has been abused. In this contention they will have general support, for apart from the merits of the case, scarcely any members of what is comparatively a new parliament desire to so soon go through the expense and worry of another general election.

SENT TO PRISON FOR LIFE. "Eddie" Guerin and George Miller, of Chicago, were on Saturday in Paris sentenced to life imprisonment at penal servitude, and May Churchill, known as "Chicago May," was sentenced to five years' imprisonment. When the verdict was pronounced, May Churchill threw her arms around Guerin's neck guards separated them and led the prisoners away. Guerin and Miller were charged with having entered the offices of the American Express Company in Paris during the night of April 26, 1901, and with stealing 30,000 francs ($6,000). The Churchill woman was accused of being their accomplice.

LONDON DEPRESSED BY BAD WEATHER

Which Delays Preparations for the Coronation.

Harmony Restored by Menace of Corn Tax and Challenge of Education Bill.

London, June 15 .- Over three weeks of almost incessant rain, with cold, raw weather has had a depressing effect upon the spirits of officials and tradesmen, and the opening scenes of the coronation have been marked with disappointing results. The work of the carpenters and street decorators has been hampered from the same cause, and although the preparations have been in progress for many weeks, it is doubtful whether London will be in readiness for the coronation. The unhappiest people are the speculators

PRICES FOR SEATS. Speculators in the street-coronation seats, who at first were charging exorbitant prices, are now lowering them by leaps and bounds. A general slump is setting in. The best West End situations are now at a minimum of two guineas ($10 50), instead of three guineas ($15 75). Two windows at The King's secretary answered the Temple Bar this week were sold for letter, saying it was all a mistake, and | 75 guineas ($393 75). Two hundred guineas ($1,050) was the price originally asked. The churches have all let their grounds to speculators in stands Somerset say it certainly will not re- for a lump sum. Consequently they will not suffer from the slump. As an example, St. Margaret's Church, Westminster, will get 5,000 guineas ($26,500) for its ground. A secret emergency door is being built in Westminster Abbey. The locality is known only to their majesties and a few other people, so that in case of a pante during the coronation service, they can get immediate egress.

Another effect of the outburst of March weather in the middle of June is the breaking down in health of a good many overworked functionaries and several of the leading figures in the coronation ceremonial. The King endures the strain of the coronation lish guests, but it was no small relief preparations with more fortitude than any official. REVIEWED 13,000 BOYS. The Prince of Wales held a unique coronation review on the Horse Guards parade. He reviewed 13,000 lads, gathered from all parts of the kingdom, belonging to the Boys' Brigades connected with the various churches. The Princess of Wales, her children, Lord Roberts and the Duke and Duchess of Aberdeen were among the spectators. Twenty-one battalions, each headed by its own band, participated in the review.

In 1886 home rule threatened the Eighty Club with disruption, and it lost, in fact, about a third of its members, but the losses were soon made good, and Mr. Gladthe president this year is Mr. Asquith. Divided by the war, like the rest of the Liberal party, the club was nevertheless unanimous in the choice of Mr. Asquith, whose conspicuous services to Liberalism no difference of opinion could obscure. In his speech on Wednesday night Mr. Asquith happily congratulated his majesty's ministers upon having restored harmony to the opposition by the menace of a corn tax and the challenge of the education bill. He greeted Campbell-Bannerman, who proposed the toast of the club, as the leader of the Liberal party, thus intimating in unmistakeable language that all schism was at an end. Sir Henry responded in cordial terms with characteristic pleasantry and good-humor. The occasion was not one of serious argument or elaborate eulogy, but it was none the less significant because it showed that peace had been restor-ed elsewhere than in South Africa. A NEW ORDER.

Edward VII. is credited with intending to signalize his coronation by creating a new order-Princes of the Empire-to be conferred on those who already have the order of the garter and who have performed services which can be recognized in no other way. A case in point is that of the Duke of Norfolk, on whom falls the brunt of the arrangements for the coronation, and who already possesses every distinction possible. The title will not be hereditary, and will be open only to dukes. The holders precedence of all except royal dukes. There is talk of the King creating twelve new peers

CORONATION ODE

Other Words. New York, June 16 .- A London cable to the Herald says that William Watson's coronation ode, which has just been published, consists of fewer than 150 lines, a much more modest production as regards length than it is expected will be the production of the Poet Laureate. Mr. Watson makes very free use of metaphores. "Bearded pines" and the "iris of Australasian spray," are instances in point. Of England's duty to herself Watson writes: "Already is doom a-spinning, if unstirred

WITH CRIMINAL ASSAULT

Indian Girl Says She Was Given Drugged Whisky.

Joseph French, jun., a Caradoc Indian, appeared before Squires Lacey and Smyth, this morning, on a charge of committing a criminal assault on Mary Noah, the 16-year-old daughter of Cephas Noah, a Muncey Indian. The girl's story is that she was overtaken by the prisoner's brother while on her way home from a tea meeting. He gave her some whisky and she lost con-sciousness till the morning. During the interval the alleged assault was committed. The hearing was adjourned at noon and resumed at 2 p.m.

Ontario Deaf Mute Convention—Today's Session.

The Ontario Deaf Mute Association, now in session in the city, met in the Auditorium this morning. One characteristic of the members of this convention is their punctuality. In this respect they set an example that other conventions and assemblages that meet from time to time might copy. Long before the hour for opening this morning, the Auditorium and the corridors leading thereto were occupied with little groups of four and five who were busy conveying their ideas and impressions by means of their sign language. Their privation of speech is a "bondage sweetly brooked." They seem to experience little or no difficulty in giving expression to feelings of joy in meeting old companions on whose visages time is working its

This morning considerable time was spent in discussing the subject of getting a large group photo taken. Several short addresses were given in the sign language. Mr. Wm. Kay, who is blind as well as deaf, refered to the first convention in 1886 and the progress of the conventions up to the present. He also touched upon the on its opening at Belleville in 1870. | noon.

PRINCIPAL MATHISON. Mr. Mathison, of Belleville, the principal of the institution, was hailed by the convention with great delight. As he entered the building about 11 o'clock the assemblage rose, and there was an enthusiastic waving of handkerchiefs. He took the platform and addressed those before him, many of whom were his old pupils, and were bound to him by ties stronger than exist between the average school or college head and his pupils-stronger, because Mr. Mathison is to them not only the Moses who led them out of wilderness of ignorance, but he and his efficient assistants have given language-"a garment of they were there. He had just got over seeing that over 200 children had returned safely to their homes all over the province. Last year was a trying time on account of sickness. This year they were more fortunate, as there was little or no sickness at the institution. He was pleased to hear from his old pupils and always glad to learn of the success they were achieving in their work. He hoped to the support of their work people they would endeavor to become firstclass citizens.

At the conclusion of his address Mr. Mathison shook hands with all his old early education of the deaf, he being among the first to attend the institute He returns to Belleville this after-business, in which she showed her usual clear-headedness and precision, when my attention was arrested by the child and his pony scouring across the park in our vicinity—I need not say at poor Mouse's utmost speed. Lady Olivia stopped in her walk and drew herself up, as was her wont. "I wish you to know my son," she said, in her cold, measured voice; and the clear imperious tones, calling "Gilbert! Gilbert!" cut through the summer air to where he was galloping, intent only on Mouse and his performances.

The child seemed pleased to be taken notice of, and turned quickly in our direction. As he approached without checking speed, a fallen tree of no great girth lay in his course and, with a pardonable display of horsemanship, he put his pony straight at the obstacle. I can see him now, sitting resolutely back on his little saddle, his golden curls floating behind him, and his smooth brow bent and rosy lips set fast for the effort. Mouse rose gallantly, but, predestined to failure, or perhaps a little blown with the pace, caught his forelegs in the leap, and, pitching his little rider forward over his head, followed him in a very complicated kind of fall.

I was standing close to his mother, and I thought I heard her breath come quick; but as the child rose to his feet, I glanced at her face ere I went to catch the pony, and saw that it retained its usual marble composure. "What is the woman made of?" I thought, as I ran my arm through Mouse's rein, who no sooner found himself on his legs again without a rider, than he took advantage of the respite to crop a mouthful of the short sweet grass.

When I came back to them the child had his hand in his mother's. He was

When I came back to them the child had his hand in his mother's. "It does hurt, mamma, dear, kiss it and make it well!"
"Nonsense, Gilbert," was the cold repoly, "don't be so silly; how can my kissing it do it any good?"

But when the luncheon bell rang and ladyship had gone into the house, her ladyship had gone into the house, I met Gilbert on his way from the stables. He came up to me very shyly, and put his little hand timidly in mine.

Need I say that henceforth we were fast friends? I will not recapitulate the progress of our intimacy. How family circumstances brought me more and more into contact with Lady Olivia and her son. How I used to correspond with her son. How I used to correspond with the lad at Eton, and visit him regularly in the dear old college, from the "after-twelve" on which with three others of the fourth form he was deservedly "swished," having attempted in vain to get off with a seventh "first-fault," till the memorable evening of the 4th of the control of the beautiful the memorable evening of the 4th of the control of the seventh "first-fault," with June on which I went up "sitter" him to Surley Hail, and he pulled stroke in the ten-oar. I knew one or two of the dons behind the scenes; their faces always brightened when his name was mentioned; and they were quite of my opinion, that with the least bit more application he would have taken "honors," and, being by that time pretty well his own master, he abandoned the university in disgust. Nevertheless, I do not believe that the ripest scholar of them all could have written letters teeming with such classical learning, fun and imagination as that in which he convince cal learning, fun and imagination as that in which he apprised me of the unexpected failure; nor would I have exchanged for the proudest diploma of science the kindly expressions of regard and sympathy in which he couched his announcement of a defeat far more for my sake than his own. After this I saw him, of course, at rarer intervals; the lives of a young man in the world and an old man out of the world are so and an old man out of the world are so different that they need seldom expect to meet. For full two years I had not set eyes on him, when I met him in Piccadilly on that spring day to which I have already alluded, after his walk with his cousin, Lady Gertrude, in the square. We were on opposite sides of the street, but my boy rushed across, regardless of mud and omnibuses, with all his old freshness and cordiality, to link me by the arm and turn me as of yore in his own direction instead of 'You have nothing in the world to do," said the butterfly to the earthworm, "and I am always so busy I have not a mo-ment to spare. Come with me as far as ment to spare. Come with me as far as the top of St. James street, and tell me the top of St. James street, and tell me all about yourself as we go along."

I had been busier perhaps than he thought for, but my day's work was nearly over ere his had begun, and it was refreshing to look upon his kindly, handsome face, and listen to the tones of his cheerful, hearty voice once more, though it seemed to me that they were a little faded and saddened to what they had been long ago. I sometimes think the world wears the gloss off the players faster than the workers. It may be perhaps that the former are the more in earnest of the two. I know that I would fain possess the same energies now to be expended on useful purposes, would fain possess the same energies now to be expended on useful purposes, which I wasted in my youth on trifles and worse than trifles; but, alas! in life, vestigia nulla retrorsum, and indeed that world of long ago was a bright and joyous world after all.

It had not palled entirely on Gilbert yet. As we paced slowly along the pavement every second man we met seemed to know Orme and be glad to see him. Bright glances were shot at him from fo know Orme and be glad to see him.

Bright glances were shot at him from open carriages, and pretty fingers kissed in his favor from brougham windows.

Even my own old heart felt lighter after my walk with my pupil; and I wended by way toward the British Museum, where I resolved to spend the afternoon, with a firmer step the usual; the while Glibert, with his hat very much on one side, sprang lightly up the steps at White's, and inquired, according to custom, of the affable functionary who presides over the postal department whether there were "any letters for Mr Orme."

There was one, a note that had just arrived. Gilbert smiled as he perused the laconic contents:

"Dear Gilbert.—The tickets have come for the morning concert. We will call for you at White's in an hour. Yours, as ever.

GOLD HEELS WON SUBURBAN. New York, June 16 .- Gold Heels, worthy son of a great sire, bore to the front and gallantly held them there to the end of the colors of McLewe & Brady in the Suburban handicap Saturday, over the Coney Island Jockey Club course. He stripped two-fifths of a second, on a track not at its best, from the mark set by the speediest of his predecessors, Alcedo, last year, as victor of this greatest classic of the American turf. Courage and speed won for the son of The Bard-Heel and Toe in 2:05 1-5, favorite by a slight margin in the betting, and ridden in masterly fashion by young Wonderly, who first knew on Saturday the thrill of that brief ride in the floral horseshoe, amid the wild plaudits of half a hundred thousand lovers of the sport of kings.

THE WHOLESALE LEAGUE. The D. S. Perrin team were badly beaten by McClarys at Springbank on Saturday. They did not hold together well and eighteen of Summers' pitched problems were solved by the McClarys. This and eight errors on the part of the Perrins team accounts for their umpire's decisions, and on his determination to hold to it, refused to play.

The trophy is open for competition to members of all lawn bowling clubs in the Dominion of Canada, and is to become the property Batteries—Siever, Mercer and McGuire; of any club whose representatives shall win it the greatest number of times in ten years. It was won last year by the Kincardine bowling club, and in tournament in connection with the trophy competition, and offer prizes in the different events. VARIOUS SPORTS.

A. G. Pittaway, of Ottawa, has received a letter from Sydney, N. S. W., asking how much the Capitals would guarantee for expenses should an Australian team decide to tour Canada next season. The letter is signed by F. J. McDonnell, and suggests that the guarantee be substantial, as the team's trip would be very expensive. Secretary Wm. Foran of the Capitals is looking into the matter.

Outing at Springbank.

The first annual pienic and outing of the Ancient Order of United Workmen of the city of London and county of Middlesex was held on Saturday at Springbank, under most favorable circumstances. So much interest was taken in the picnic that the energetic officials claim that they have abundant reason to again put forward their efforts when the time for another picnic comes around. This was the first of its kind ever attempted by the combined lodges of the city and county, and judging by the success with which it was conducted, another of its kind, only more extensive, will be held each year. During the afternoon delightful music was rendered by the members of the 26th Regiment band, under Bandmaster Pococke's direction. About 4,000 people, including members of the order, their wives, children and friends, witnessed the afternoon's pro-

Interesting speeches were given by Grand Master Joseph Gibson, of Ingersoll, Grand Treasurer F. G. Inwood, of Toronto, and Grand Recorder M. D. Carder, of Toronto. Their remarks outlined the success with which the order has met and is meeting throughout the Dominion, and the good it is doing to widows, orphans and others who are in need. They made apparent the advantages and benefits to be gained by members of the order, both physically and mentally, and as a means of securing to him the best friends and companions. The speaker congratulated the local brethren on the complete success which had attended their undertaking, thanked them for the kind reception given them as visitors, and extended an invitation to the local members of the order to visit any of their functions on similar oc-

This was due to the hard and conscientious work of the committee and officials, who were unceasing in their efforts to make the day enjoyable. They had difficulties to contend with, too, as a baseball game was in progress, and many of the small boys' ardor turned more in the direction of baseball than foot-racing. As it was, every race had a dozen or so starters, and all were keenly contested. The older people took as much interest as the children, all the adult races having as many starters, and being as warmly raced as those for the young-

The chairman was Mr. P. Fraser, of Toronto, president of the association. The meeting opened with prayer by Mr. Nurse, secretary of the association, after which the mayor welcomed the visitors on behalf of the city. He was sure that the citizens of London felt it a compliment that their city had been chosen as their place of meeting. The deaf, he continued, had great reason to be grateful for the opportunities provided them for receiving an education and for learning useful trades, which enabled them to become as useful in many respects, if not in every respect, as those who possessed the faculty of hearing. In conclusion, Mr. Beck extended an invitation to the convention to visit Springbank on convention to visit Springbank on hymn, "Jesus Loves Me," after which
