SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON X.—MARCH 9, 1913. Destruction of Sodom—Temperance Lesson.—Gen. 19: 1-3, 12-29.

COMMENTARY.—1. The angels warning to Lot (vs. 1-3, 12-14). 1-3. Two angels in the form of men appeared to Lot as he sat in the gate of Sodom, and with the usual Oriental hospitality he invited them into his house and entertained them. He did not know who they were, and was not aware that he was entertaining angels who were soon to save him from death. Like Abraham Lot was hospitable. The whole account and the references made to Sodom throughout the Scriptures show the deplorable wicked condition of the city, which was now ripe for destruction.

12. The men.—The angels, hasten thou here any?—A question preliminary to the announcement that the city was to be destroyed. For Lot's sake his family would be spared. 13. We will destroy this place.—The ten righteous persons in Abraham's tent (Gen. 18: 32) were not found. There was not enough moral salt in the city to preserve it, hence the declaration that it would be destroyed. The cry of them is woe is great.—The wickedness of the people is represented as calling down the wrath of God upon the city. The Lord hath sent us to destroy it.—Angels brought the promise of joy and of a new son to Abraham, and angels were commissioned to destroy the cities of the plain. 14. Sons in law, which married his daughters.—The Hebrew expression may mean "brother-in-law," as well as "married," and some have supposed that the "sons in law" were the men to whom Lot's daughters were betrothed, but it is more likely that there were other daughters besides those that were at home. He seemed as one that mocked.—The sons-in-law looked upon Lot's announcement as a jest.

11. Lot rescued (vs. 15-23). 15.—when the morning arose.—At daybreak, some time before sunrise, the angels hastened Lot.—The angels realized the urgency of the destruction even if Lot and his family did not. The apparent security in which Lot had lived was at an end. Two daughters, which are here.—The form of expression implies that there were other daughters, in the iniquity of the city. The city and its vicinity are to be burnt out together, and those who wish with the city, perish with it, and in its iniquity, being identified with it.—Whom.—16. While he lingered.—He was loath to leave the place that had long been his home, his property, and his relatives who would not go with him. The men laid hold.—Not only was mercy shown in warning Lot and his family of their danger, but also in using force to get them out of the way of destruction. The mercy shown in warning Lot and his family of their danger, but also in using force to get them out of the way of destruction. The mercy shown to Lot was entirely undeserved. Abraham's intercession for Sodom was bearing fruit. 17. Escape for thy life.—The urgency of the case was great. There was not a moment to spare. Their life depended upon their instant action. The sinner has no time to lose in making his escape from the plains of destruction. Look not behind thee.—There was no safety for them in all that region which Lot had eagerly coveted, and the choice of which was proving most disastrous. He was not even allowed, on pain of death, to cast a glance upon that which he loved, except to the mountain. The mountains of Moab, east of the plain, doomed to destruction.

18-22. Even in this critical time in his life Lot did not lose his selfishness. He was worldly and wanted to remain near his former possessions. He seems to have had a dread of the mountains and wanted to be saved in what he considered the easiest way. God had already shown him that he was wrong, and he made a plea for further mercy. His request to turn toward Zoar was granted, that that place was spared through his entreaty. It was probably located upon the foot-hills of the mountains. Zoar, the sun was risen. The journey to Zoar occupied the time from dawn to sunrise. The location of this place which before was called Bela, is not known, nor is the location of Sodom and Gomorrah. Opinions are divided. Some place it at the north end of the Dead Sea, and others at the south.

III. Sodom and Gomorrah.—Destroyed (vs. 24-29). 24. Then.—When the rescue had once reached Zoar. The destruction did not come until they were out of danger. The Lord rained.—brimstone and fire from the Lord.—The cause and the source of the destruction are made clear. It was not by chance, but by divine direction and divine power that the fiery rain of brimstone fell upon the doomed cities. We may suppose that there was an upheaval of the earth's crust which changed the face and character of the valley. 25. Overthrew.—The destruction was complete. The inhabitants, the cities, the plain and the vegetation were all involved in the ruin. 26. She looked back from behind him.—She looked back, regardless of warnings, her knowledge of the danger and the entreaty of her husband, because she was longing for the home, property and friends that were left behind. She may also have been prompted by curiosity or a desire to know whether the destruction was really coming, a pinger of salt.—Looking backward and lingering behind, she was probably smitten by the fire and brimstone, and afterward covered over by a deposit of salt, and became a mound, or pillar, like that which may even now be seen at the southern end of the Dead Sea.—Terry.

27. stood before the Lord.—Abraham lived in the presence of the Lord. His place was about thirty miles west of the plain that was destroyed. 28. As the smoke of a furnace.—The rain of fire and brimstone left behind it a smoking ruin, and the deep depression from which the smoke ascended might well remind one of the smoke of a furnace.—Whom.—29. God remembered Abraham.—Here is a strong proof that God answers prayer. Questions.—How did Abraham know that God was about to destroy the cities of the plain? What entreaty did he

PRACTICAL SURVEY.

Topic.—The abode of sin. I. Proved disastrous to Lot. II. Was deserted at God's command. III. Proved disastrous to Lot. The selfishness of Lot's first choice of residence was the seed of evil which multiplied into all his subsequent suffering and wrong doing. He made a wrong choice in early life. He loved ease, comfort, wealth, possessions and beauty. He followed the bent of his nature. His was the reverse of Abraham's disposition. Lot, though weak and faulty in general life, erring after repeated warnings, irresolute when standing on the brink of ruin, was the subject of Abraham's prayers and the object of God's love and mercy. Lot's character is a singularly mixed one. His sitting at the gate to offer hospitality may be taken as an indication of his townsmen and also to shield the stranger from their brutality. Unless a process of moral deterioration had been going on in the soul of Lot, residence among a people so depraved would have been intolerable. Instead of being "vexed in his righteous soul" as upon his first association with the Sodomites, he would have taken the earliest opportunity to remove from Sodom. He did no good among the inhabitants, not enough at least to institute any appreciable reform. His family was not even exempt from affiliation with the Sodomites. It was impossible for Lot to afford safe and agreeable lodging to his guests. There is no evidence that his opposition to sin had been of the slightest avail. Earnest prayer for Sodom had been offered by Abraham who lived in communion with God, while Lot had been in no agony about the destruction of Sodom, and had but one prayer to offer and that for his own comfort.

II. Was deserted at God's command. Then God remembered Abraham, and sent Lot out of the midst of the overthrow. There was no hope for Sodom. The time had come when God's abhorrence of iniquity should be manifested. Mercy to surrounding nations, and succeeding generations in danger of falling into like depths demanded judgment. The Bible teaches that a limit of judgment shall be fixed, beyond which judgment never to be shown. There was nothing worthy to show that terrible scenes were at their door. Within Lot's dwelling a solemn conference was held which made his heart heavy and disturbed. His message to his sons-in-law was founded on divine authority. Their conduct discloses their character. Lot had taken his children into the world and could not get them out again. The destruction of Sodom was sudden and complete. It was the direct act of God, but it was preceded by an inquiry of the most unquestionable completeness and authority. Cities, though ever so strong and stately, cannot secure sinners from ruin. When Lot lingered, he was defeating his own purpose, if he wanted to continue his sons-in-law that he spoke the truth, the death of Lot's wife might be partly at his delay. The angels had to lead him forth. Even then Lot did not want to go as far as he could from destruction. Zoar was spared, not for the unworthy reason which Lot suggested, but because God's merciful care for Lot made it a shield for others. This revelation of Lot's weakness comes in wonderful contrast to the terrible revelation of judgment which followed. Led by the example of those among whom she dwelt, Lot's wife had no just view of the evil of sin. She heeded not the interposition of angels, nor divine goodness and mercy. The fact was, her heart was in Sodom, where her treasures were. Even the display of God's wrath upon sinners could not avert her eyes or quicken her steps. She was more willing to stay amid the sins of the Sodomites than to abide apart with God. Her heart's wish became a fact. She looked back, never to look forward again, to remain an example against sin in all ages.

THE POULTRY WORLD. CHEAP INCUBATORS ARE DEAR. In artificial incubators the first thing to do, of course, is to select the machine, and, while we do not intend to recommend we will mention a few points that are absolutely essential for success before we buy. Do not buy a cheap incubator, for unless made of the best kind of material, when subjected to moisture, a cheap machine is liable to rust and crack, and, again, do not buy a single-case machine, for it cannot fail to have some cold spots when the thermometer on two sides is very cold on the outside. Having selected your machine, the next thing is to decide upon the place in which to run it. Unless you have a regular incubator cellar the best place in which to run it is a cellar or some other underground room, or, if you have no such place, a draught or where it is very wet, for although a good incubator can be regulated to run in almost any place, a thermometer on two sides from 40 to 45 degrees day and night will necessitate a change in the regulator. After the machine has been set on a level and level it up even by placing thin pieces of wood under the legs. Shingles answer this purpose very well. The lamp going for two or three days and regulate the temperature at about 100 or 105 degrees. The temperature of the incubator will usually raise to 103, as the animal heat in the eggs that are fertile will raise the temperature. Keep the eggs fresh, and change them frequently, removing all that are infertile or have died in the shell at different periods of incubation. THE POULTRY WORLD hatch is good the operator gets the praise. Nearly everyone knows that during the late winter and early spring months, when the birds are confined to the houses, that they do not get as much exercise of the change of ration which they do later, when allowed to run in the yard, thereby causing lack of vitality and fertility in the eggs. Even when the eggs are all that should be desired. Care must be taken of them during the period they are being kept before putting in the machine. During cold weather they should be gathered several times a day and then placed in a cool, dry place, not subject to any marked change of temperature. They should be turned every day or two. The choosing of a thermometer is also quite important, for more so than one would think at first. Be sure to get a good one, with a clear glass, and that will register as low as 0. A great many glasses will not go below 30. Do not get one with the mercury bulb lying on the solid metal plate, as the refraction of the heat from the tank above the bulb will run the heat up two or three degrees higher than the heat in the egg chamber. After the eggs commence to pip they should not be turned or cooled again, and the door should not be open unless to apply moisture. Some people are constantly turning the eggs, and this will ruin the eggs and to help the young birds out of the shell. This should never be done, for if the young bird cannot get out without aid it will never amount to anything anyway.

POULTRY NOTES

Some people have claimed that shipping young chickens throughout the country is cruel. On the other hand, thousands have been shipped some over a thousand miles, in good condition, and grey as fine as those raised at home. Properly hatched chickens are a good acquisition to the man who does not wish to bother with the mystery of the incubator. Hatch early, with Orpingtons and Leghorns. So soon as people learn that corn will not produce more eggs than wheat, and that wheat and other grains will produce more eggs, it is hard to convince the farmer that corn alone is not a good egg producer. Too much corn has made hatcheries in the United States for a long time, and the result has been a shortage. Plenty of chances to make success in the poultry business and sell direct to those who are willing to pay for the product. Producing is the hardest part. Selling good goods is easy—but to produce is a different matter. Hatch early, with Orpingtons and Leghorns following closely. "She's nothen o' the sort, John Richards," the boatswain retorted—"not by her build, as I can make out. 'Tis hard to say," he admitted to Lieutenant Caerlyon; "she be goin' to pieces heavy riven."

"Has none of the cargo come ashore?" the officer asked. "Not much, sir, except bars, and chests of lay, and pieces of staves."

"An' not a soul left aboard o' her?" John Richards put in. "Yer a-talkin' of what 'e don't know nothen of," the boatswain said again, more sharply; "ef 'e've got eyes, ears, and a glass, what kind o' use do 'e put 'em to? I see three men, not ten men, as come in through the passage atween them flat rocks forrard tier, hoddin' on to a spar, poor fellows! They must be a most dead."

"Where have they got to, then?" Lieutenant Caerlyon asked. "It will be low tide in three hours, but there's not a sign of low water the rocks will all be covered in this storm, and no one can get to them. I am afraid, poor fellows, it's a black look-out from every point for them."

"Here be winnin' comin'! What do they want a-comin' in such a place?" the constable boatswain, a bachelior of some forty-eight years' standing, remarked, crossly—the gentler sex, in Mr. Ned Boscaewen's opinion, having no earthly right to appear in any place where their presence was not directly required. "Comin' up here, with the wind blowin' their gowns an' shawls like balloons—it'll take 'em off their feet afore they knows where they are!"

Determined to give the adventurous females a smart rebuff if they ventured "to come clackin' with their questions," as he phrased it, to him, Mr. Boscaewen deigned to bestow no further notice on the two darkly-robed advancing figures. Lieutenant Caerlyon, standing his glass against a field glass skirting the last cultivated stretch of land on the Head, heard nothing, saw nothing but the echoing roar of the thunder of the waves and the hissing sheets of flying spray, with that black dismantled head lying so forlornly on her side, and the sharp black rocks beginning to show all around her in the ebbing tide. "I'll carry out everything afloat be- longing to her, too," he said, half aloud; "we can't even tell what cargo she had."

Suddenly he perceived Mr. Boscaewen staring amazedly at something and touching his cap.

Wheeling around to discover the cause of the phenomenon of Mr. Boscaewen's politeness, Lieutenant Caerlyon nearly dropped his glass at seeing his daughter Winnie's pale face at his elbow, and, leaning on her arm, Lady Mountrevor, wrapped in a mackintosh cloak.

"Your ladyship is very brace to some extent here on such a morning, and at such an hour," he remarked, involuntarily, through sheer amazement, after replying to her brief but courteous greet- ing.

"Your daughter was not afraid to come—begged to be allowed to come—why should I fear, Lieutenant Caerlyon?" her ladyship said, quietly.

"Oh—but—Winnie," he said, cough- ing a little deprecatingly, and smiling—Winnie's more used to early hours and rough weather than you are, Lady Mountrevor. Winnie's been out on the cliffs with me years ago, when she was a little girl—at three o'clock in the morning some- times."

"Can no one tell anything about the unfortunate vessel, Mr. Caerlyon?" Lady Mountrevor asked, rather im- patiently. "I came out to see if I could be of any use. Where are the poor people?"

"A few men were seen getting in by spars and such things some time since, my lady," he replied, "but we can dis- cover nothing of them—nor can we reach them, I fear, even at low water."

"They must be under the Head, father!" Winnie cried, her white face red- dening with excitement.

"Yes, but where, my dear? Half-drowned sailors could hardly cling to the face of the cliff," her father return- ed. "As soon as the tide turns, if our boat can be launched, we'll try and get out a bit to see where they are."

"Couldst, sir—couldst, he done these twenty-four hours," Ned Boscaewen in- terposed, gruffly, shutting up his glass with a snap.

"I doubt if it could," said the Lieuten- ant, sadly, shaking his head; "I fear, madam, the poor fellows have no chance."

"Must they be left to die, then?" Lady Mountrevor asked, shuddering. "Mr. Caerlyon, I wish to offer rewards to encourage the men to try to save them. I will give fifty pounds to the boat's crew of your men that goes out to try to rescue them—a hundred pounds if they are successful!"

"Lady Mountrevor," he said gravely, "you are very kind, but a thousand pounds would not tempt a man to fling away his life—as it would be flung away in any attempt to man a boat through such a sea as that for the next twenty-four hours; and long before that time those poor fellows must be washed away, or have died from cold and ex- posure, if they are not dead already."

"Father, they might hold on to those flat rocks—they are at high-water mark, you know," Winnie urged, "and they are a little sheltered from the beat of the waves."

thusiasm, in the pleasant warmth of benevolence, melting away the ice at her heart, she could have washed and clothed and fed with her own hands the wretchedest, most tattered, worn, wretched human creature which could be rescued from the waves, and re- joiced over him as if he had been a dear friend.

"Where are you going, Lady Mount- revor?" Winnie asked, pausing. "Will you let me stay with my father? I would rather stay here to see if any- thing can be done," she pleaded. "Please allow me I cannot stay in bed, I cannot eat or drink. Let me stay here for a few hours, at least."

"You shall stay all day if you wish, you rejoice quickly," but I must go and give some orders first at Tregarthen House."

"Orders at Tregarthen?" Winnie re- peated, half mechanically. Lady Mountrevor and Winnie were walking side by side up Mennacarth Lane—just as Winnie had walked here eight years ago in the bleak dawn of a wild March morning, with Stephen Tredennick's side—just as she was walking with his proud, beautiful cousin now, she who had been naughty Mildred Tredennick then; and he—where was he now?

"I am going to have Tregarthen House prepared to receive those poor people, if they can be rescued," said Lady Mountrevor, hurrying faster. "Come, Winnie, we will order Mary Truscott and her old aunt to have blazing fires and plenty of hot water and aired beds and blankets. I know Stephen would wish it to be so."

"But—but he is not com' home!" Winnie observed, starting a little wildly, as they entered the house. Stephen Tredennick came home? Cer- tainly not! What are you thinking of?" asked Lady Mildred, in surprise.

"You are not well, Winnie, after your sleepless, agitated, and ghastly night. Try not to think of the wreck for a few minutes, dear, and sit down by the fire and rest, and look at all the im- provements I have been making."

"Yes, beautiful! You have made it look as if it had been always lived in and taken care of—everything so fresh and neat," Winnie said, languidly.

She sat down, weary and shivering, in a large chair in the oak-paneled dining- room, its woodwork all newly polished, reflecting like mirrors in a thousand flashes of yellow light the leaping flame of the newly-kindled wood fire, the rich ruddy glow of the velvet crimson and purple of the carpets and curtains; the tall yellow wax candles in the bronze candelabra, the white statuette on brackets on either pier between the three windows, the books in their ory tray—nay, even the three tall silver jar-jardiners of purple, red, and white, with their blossoming clusters of white and purple hyacinths, each making the air heavy with fragrance—a beautiful, welcoming home-like room, looking as Winnie had said, as if it had been always lived in and taken care of, with not an item in its home luxuries over- looked by the sympathetic taste, the thoughtful mind, that had designed and perfected its furniture and accessories.

"Well, Winnie, what do you think of it?" asked Lady Mildred, coming back to the dining-room. "You must come all through the house with me and look at it, and then Mary Truscott will give us some breakfast. She makes coffee and griddle-cakes to perfection as I have often proved on cold days, when I was here looking after the workmen."

She said to blushing, curtsying Mary, who considered naughty Lady Mountrevor "the sweetest creecher of a lady—grand as she is—that you could find in England."

Like one in a dream Winnie followed Lady Mildred from room to room, as she drew back curtains, pulled up blinds and exhibited the chintz and damask hangings, cheval bassees, French bedsteads, bath rooms, carpeted

THE SECRET OF GIRLISH BEAUTY

The Blood Must be Kept Rich and Pure, and the Nerves Properly Nourished.

Every parent of a growing girl and every young woman who looks after herself should be constantly on the watch for symptoms of impoverished blood. Girls in their teens should not be pale, languid and constantly fatigued. Nature intended them to be bright, energetic and active. The happiness of a lifetime depends upon giving the blood the help it needs at this time, when girls are too frequently allowed to overstudy, overwork and suffer from lack of exercise.

The symptoms of impoverished blood are unmistakable. They are languidness, pale, sorrow-complexion, shortness of breath, violent palpitation of the heart, particularly on going upstairs, poor appetite, dizziness and headaches, and a tendency to faint. These symptoms of course are not all found in every case, but the more the victim has of them the greater progress has the trouble made and the more imperative is the necessity to act at once to check it, through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which bring back the flow of Health and energy to every part of the body. The case of Miss Jennie Fraser, Ham- ilt, Ont., offers proof of this. She says: "For over eighteen months I was in a very bad state of health and thor- oughly run down. I had no appetite and suffered from most of the symptoms of anemia. I went to a local doctor, and received treatment from him for three months, and although I took bottles after bottle of medicine I was steadily growing worse, and I got so downhearted and depressed that I felt I would never get better. At this time I read the case of a young lady whose symp- toms were similar to my own, who had been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to try them. By the time I had used three boxes my appetite had improved and I was feeling more en- couraged. I continued the use of the Pills for a time longer, and my health was fully restored."

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brock- ington, Mass.

Is Your Back Full of Aches All Day Long?

That Stablike Pain in the Back is Sure Indication of Kidney Trouble

Mrs. Anna Rodriguez writes as fol- lows from her home in Valencia: "For a long time I suffered with fail- ing strength and nagging headaches. My condition grew steadily worse, my limbs became bloated and shaky, I was sallow and thin, felt rheumatic pains, dizziness and chills. I unfor- tunately did not suspect my kidneys and was nearly dead when I discovered the true cause of my sufferings. I read so much about the wonderful health and strength that comes to all who use Dr. Hamilton's Pills that I felt sure they would help me. Such blessings of health and comfort I got from Dr. Hamilton's Pills I can't de- scribe. They speedily put me right, and their steady use keeps me active, energetic, strong and happy. I strongly urge others to regulate and tone their system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut."

No greater medicine exists than Dr. Hamilton's Pills for the cure of indigestion, flatulence, liver, bladder and kidney trouble. Refuse substitutes, 25c per box or five boxes for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or postpaid by The Catarthozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

corridors and staircases of polished oak, the massive hall lamps, the statues, pictures, flowers, everything fresh, and furnished, and cleaned, and polished, painted, papered, varnished, stained, gilded, to the acme of the complete lux- urious neatness of a well-appointed English old country house—noting glaringly new or bright, everything warm, cosy, comfortable, inviting, need- ing only the additional brightness of liv- ing presences by the bright hearths and the glad blazing fires.

"This is just as Stephen would like to see it, I think. He will be so pleased with the old house," said Lady Mildred, cheerfully. "Only some outlandish, need repair now, and a new conserva- tor has to be finished, otherwise it is quite ready for its master, Winnie."

The girl did not offer a word; she was looking from the bay-window of the drawing-room across at the Head, and the stretch of hostesses foam-flecked water, dimly seen beyond the clouds of mist above the crashing breakers, and she shuddered violently.

"When may I go back to the wreck, Lady Mountrevor?" she had taken some breakfast—she replied, Lady Mildred, decisively. "How you shiver, you poor little thing! In the strength of her own splendid physique, imperially moulded, morally and physically, as she was, the young peeress looked down pityingly on the slender, frail, girlish form of the woman who was her junior in years as if she had been a weakly child. "You are not equal to such exer- tion, Winnie, I see that; your sleepless night has made you quite ill. I am stronger," she supposed, she asked, her face clouding wearily as the memory of what that sleepless night had brought to her knowledge arose freshly on her mind.

But she did not remember that to strong, fiery, passionate natures like hers, that rebel wildly against the grief which is yet eroding their very soul, it is possible to live aside for a time the weary memory of the weary burden that the meek ones girl around them to bear patiently, grudgingly, uncomplainingly to the grave.

Besides, it was no new grief that she had learned; and gentle Winnie Caerlyon's touch had been only soothing to the old, hidden wound, throbbing so fever- ously beneath Lady Mountrevor's cold, statuesque beauty.

"You have not seen half my improve- ments; you can have no idea of the state that this old house was in when I took it in hand," she went on, kind- ly intent on rousing Winnie from what she considered to be merely nervous de- pression, as she poured out a fragrant cup of hot coffee and buttered the crisp, hot griddle-cakes, at the other side of the little oval table which she had wheeled up to Winnie's chair. "Don't you think this oblong table perfection for a tete-a-tete breakfast?" her lady- ship pursued, smiling, as she ladled the thick, golden, sealed cream into Win- nie's cup. "I do; I chose it in Ply- mouth purposely for cousin Stephen."

"And yourself, I suppose?" Winnie said, smiling faintly. "Myself!" Lady Mildred exclaimed, raising her brows. "I could scarcely expect to enjoy tete-a-tete breakfasts with Captain Tredennick for the term of my natural life. Miss Caerlyon, you forget that this is the privileged enjoyment of Lord Henry Mountrevor."

"I beg your pardon," said Winnie, coloring in some distress, both at the mistake and the hostile flush and tone of voice of Lord Mountrevor's young wife.

"I thought it for the same people that I bought these two velvet chairs for," Lady Mildred went on, forcing her cheer- ful mood back again. "This is a tete- a-tete service; this Sevres; I got it in my pet bric-a-brac shops in Paris. I got it for Stephen and his chateleine—and I mean to tell him so."

"His—his?" murmured Winnie, bewildered for a moment. "Oh, I know! I did not—" "His—his?" murmured Lady Tregarthen's mistress—whichever she may be—said Lady Mildred, laughing. "Don't you think she ought to find a happy home here, Winnie? Don't you think she could flow on very peacefully here, with a woman whom Stephen Tredennick loved, and who loved him?"

"It could not flow on otherwise," Winnie replied, her voice shaking a lit- tle. A long pause ensued. Secretly Lady Mildred waited for Winnie to speak; secretly Winnie longed to speak, but dar- ed not.

"You must have had a great deal of trouble to have everything restored and the house so perfectly appointed," the latter remarked, taking refuge at length in commonplaces. "I almost feared that Tregarthen House would have fallen in to ruins before this, when I was in Amer- ica."

"You remembered Tregarthen House, then?" questioned Lady Mildred, with a rather curious inflexion in her voice. "It was a pleasure—the greatest pleasure I have known for years, Winnie—to be able to make my dear cousin Stephen some return for his years of kindness—brotherly, patient kindness to me."

"Kindness?" Winnie broke out, look- ing up with a fevered flash of light and color coming to her eyes and cheeks. "I thought I had been told years ago that—"

"That what?" "That Stephen Tredennick—I beg your pardon; it does not matter, and is no concern of mine." She interrupted herself brusquely, and locking her nervous, twitching hands with convul- sive tightness in her lap, she turned away her face, watching Tregarthen Head and its encircling mists of ocean spray.

"I think, Winnie," said Lady Mildred, with quiet reproach, "you need not fear to tell me any thought of yours, no matter how strange or incor- rect," she added, meaningly. "It does not matter—indeed it does not matter—it is of no consequence whatever," Winnie persisted, rising un- consciously in her agitation and walking away from the table.

A half-melancholy smile followed her from Mildred Mountrevor's keen, watch- ful eyes. "You poor little simple-hearted thing!" she said inwardly. "As if you could conceal it—and as if I did not know it long ago! As if I would not do more for Stephen's sake—dear brother Stephen, the only brother I ever had in loving reality—as if I would not have aided his happiness by every means in my power long ago, when I thought of my own happiness as near and as sure as his!"

Sadly, and half enviously, she gazed at the slender black-robed figure stand- ing in the cold gray light of the win- dow.

Ease That Sore Joint Nerviline Will Do It

The Champion Clog and Pedestal Dancer of Canada Tells How To Keep in Form

Few men in his profession are bet- ter known than Mr. Thomas Hogan, of 27 Fortification Lane, Montreal, who writes: "To limber up a stiff joint, to remove every sense of soreness from tired muscles I can tell you nothing compares with Nerviline. It is really a wonderful liniment, and I use it continually, simply because I find it keeps the muscles and joints supple and entirely free from pain and stiffness. I earnestly recommend Nerviline to every person that requires to use a strong penetra- ting pain-subduing liniment."

For Rheumatism Nerviline is a won- der; for Sciatica it eases where others fail; for Lumbago, stiffness and cold, nothing surpasses it. Keep Nerviline handy—it's good to take inwardly de- stroys internal pains quickly, and is just as good for outward application. Large family size bottle, 50c; small size, 25c. down—the girl on whom she had bestow- ed her half-scorful compassion in the years gone by, when her own youth and love and happiness were at their zenith of bloom and brightness—this poor, pale- faced gentle little woman.

"It is a most extraordinary thing for you to attempt to smile, when you are so ill," said Lady Mildred, when she saw her rather cold smile, when Lady Mountrevor and Winnie, wrapped in hoods and thick shawls, had entered her breakfast room to explain their ab- sence, and inform her of their intentions for the rest of the day. "You are very courageous, I suppose, and it is really very good of you, Lady Mountrevor, to take such an interest in those poor un- happy creatures. Can I do anything, can I send anything up to Tregarthen, Mildred? I will with pleasure."

"Thank you, madam, no," her niece replied, coldly. "Tregarthen House is well supplied."

"And do you really think that any of them have escaped? Hardly, I should imagine, poor creatures!" said madam, and she rattled and rattled oppressively amongst the hanging white laces of her purple satin under-sleeves, as with a smile she offered a dainty breakfast cup of her favorite green tea to her visitors.

"We breakfasted an hour since, thank you, again," said Lady Mildred, more frigidly, and drawing Winnie away. "We but came to explain our absence, and apologize for it, madam. I am old enough to consider an effort to save a poor, half-dead sailor's life of more im- portance than a comfortable breakfast at the usual nine o'clock hour—and I believe Miss Winnie Caerlyon shares my peculiarity. We shall not be home to dinner. Good morning, madam!"

"Good morning, Lady Mountrevor!" returned madam, offended, and taking up the newspaper. "Good morning, madam!" said Winnie. Madam rustled the paper very loudly, held the sheet before her face, and made no reply.

"Do I really think that any of them have escaped?" Lady Mountrevor re- peated indignantly, as she and Winnie made their way along the wild, bleak cliff road. "I prefer to make sure of the fact with my own eyes and ears, at all events, instead of sipping tea and enjoying raised pies and buttered toast and reading the paper, whilst my fol- lowing creatures are perishing in a watery grave within a mile of my doors. You do not call that selfishness—horrible, cold-blooded selfishness!" she said, sharply, to Winnie.

OLD SORE HEALED IN SIX DAYS

Nearly Impossible to Heal Skin. Badly Hurt. Sore, Red and In- flamed. Could Not Sleep. Cuti- cura Soap and Ointment Healed.

Bowman River, Manitoba.—"When I was thirteen years of age I got my shin badly hurt and when healed the skin was attached to the bone. The least bruise would injure it and it was nearly im- possible to heal. The sore would be very red and inflamed round the edges and had a burning sensa- tion. When extra sore I could not sleep at night on account of the pain. I always wore a cotton bandage on it from the ankle to the knee. For a number of years I used sticking plasters, then got a salve. I saw the advertisement offering a free sam- ple of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a sample and purchased some more and in six days the sore was healed completely." MAKE OILCLOTH LOOK NEW Oilcloth can be renewed easily and made to last twice as long if treated in the following way: Melt a little ordinary gine in a pint of water, letting it stand on the top of the oven until dissolved. Wash the oilcloth thoroughly and let it dry. Then at night, when the traffic of the day ceases, go over the whole carefully with a flannel dipped in the gine water. Choose a fine day for it, and by morning the gine will be hard and will have put on a fine gloss as good as new.—Burn Life.

ARE GROWING IN FAVOR EVERY DAY

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS PROVING THEIR VALUE AS A FAMILY MEDICINE.

Quebec Man Tells How They Helped Him and Cured His Nephew of Kidney Disease.

South Ham, Wolfe Co., Que., March 3.—(Special)—There is fresh proof every day that as a family medicine Dodd's Kidney Pills are growing in favor with the people of Quebec. Just to quote an example, Amable Piquard, of this place, says, in an interview:

"Dodd's Kidney Pills helped my rheumatism, backache, gravel, and heart disease, from which I suffered for twenty years. They have not yet cured me completely, but they did completely cure my nephew, who suffered from kidney disease."

Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure kidney disease. They will complete Amable Piquard's cure, because all the disease mentioned is the result of kidney disease. They cured the young man's kidney disease quickly, because he was taken on in its early stage. Amable Piquard's troubles are of twenty years' standing, and take a longer treatment.

The moral is, that if you cure your kidney disease early with Dodd's Kidney Pills, you will never be troubled with rheumatism, gravel, and other diseases that are caused by sick kidneys failing to do their work.

Nobody is really polite or disagreeable as his tone of voice while talking over the telephone will imply.—Washington Star.

Mr. J. E. Arsenaull, a Justice of the Peace, and station master at Wellington, on the Prince Edward Island Railway, says:

"Four years ago I slipped in the station and fell on a freight truck, sustaining a bad cut on the front of my leg. I thought this would heal, but instead of doing so it developed into a bad ulcer, and later into a form of eczema which spread very rapidly and also started on the other leg. Both legs became so swollen and sore that I could only go about my work by having them bandaged. My doctor said I must stop work and lay up."

"After six months of this trouble I consulted another doctor, but with no better result. I tried all the salves, liniments and lotions I heard of, but instead of getting better I got worse."

"This was my condition when I got my first box of Zam-Buk. Greatly to my delight that first box gave me relief. I continued to apply it to the sores, and day by day they got better. I could see that at last I had got hold of something which would cure me, and in the end it did."

"It is now over a year since Zam-Buk worked a cure in my case, and there has been no return of the eczema."

Such is the nature of the great cures which Zam-Buk is daily effecting. Purely herbal in composition, this great balm is a sure cure for all skin diseases, cold sores, chapped hands, frost-bite, ulcers, blood-poisoning, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ringworm, infected patches, cuts, burns and bruises. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., upon receipt of price.

HEADS TURKISH NAVY.

Commander Bucknam Pasha Was Born In Nova Scotia.

Bucknam Pasha—or Admiral Emsford D. Bucknam, as the intrepid Canadian admiral of the imperial Ottoman navy is better known to his friends in this country—is brought once more into the international limelight by despatches from the Balkans. These reports state that it was Bucknam Pasha who organized the sortie of the Turkish fleet from the Dardanelles, a maneuver which showed a potent grip of naval tactics.

The career of Emsford D. Bucknam from the time he first shipped before the mast as a cabin boy on the great lakes until he was commissioned several years ago with the full rank of an admiral in the Turkish navy reads like a chapter from fiction. He is the first Christian ever placed in actual command of a Mohammedan fleet. Even Hobart Pasha, the British admiral of the Crimean war, failed to gain this distinction.

Bucknam Pasha gained his present rank by his work in reorganizing the Turkish navy under Abdul Hamid. He was a rear admiral when Abdul Hamid was deposed, but the new regime confirmed his rank and later elevated him to his present position. Bucknam was born in Nova Scotia. His experiences on the great lakes began when he was fourteen years old, and two years later he sailed from New York as quartermaster on a schooner bound for the Pacific. When the Orange Shipbuilding Co. had completed the construction of the Turkish cruiser Medjida Bucknam was commissioned to take her to Turkey. He impressed the Sultan and the Ottoman naval officers so favorably that he was given a three months' contract to train the cruiser's Mohammedan crew.

His operations were so successful that the Sultan offered him the post of naval adviser to the Porte, a position that carried with it a princely salary. He accepted the post on condition that he might have a preliminary leave of absence to go home and marry a girl in San Francisco whom he was engaged to. He brought back his bride with him. As his popularity increased Bucknam was made a pasha and a vice-admiral and the Sultan conferred on him the order of Osmanieh, a medal for distinguished service. Shortly afterward he saved the life of the Sultan when a bomb loaded with a tremendous explosive was hurled into the midst of the royal escort. Bucknam leaped to the side of the Sultan's carriage and drew his sword, announcing that he would instantly kill any one who approached the spot. A band of bloodthirsty Moslems ready to throw themselves on Abdul Hamid were deterred by the Canadian.

Yewville Now a Farm.
Many residents of Lambton would be surprised to learn that there is no town as Errol, says The Gazette. Errol, yet the town of Errol, laid out by the Government some eighty years ago on the Lake Shore in the Township of Plympton at the terminus of the Egrement road from London was intended to be the county town, and was for some years in the early days the place for holding courts and the official centre of the district until its prospects were overshadowed by the development of Berlin, and the town of Errol gradually died out.

Two or three years ago the township council of Plympton disputed the right of a Lake Shore farmer to charge them for gravel, claiming they were taking it from a part still left of the Front street of Errol. The surveyor appointed to settle the dispute found that a very wide street had been provided for the waterfront and that the wearing away process of the lake has not yet wiped it out.

He also found that when the Canadian Government laid out the town plot of Errol in 1833 that 300 acres was used for the purpose.

In the centre of what was intended for the business portion of the place the surveyor found a large market square, with streets 99 feet wide running north, south, east and west from it.

This last find showed how much the men of eighty years ago valued a place where the farmers could congregate and do their trading. Although lots 15, 16 and 17 are used as farms to-day, the streets and market place as laid out eighty years ago are still vested in the crown.

Commercial Knights.
The knighting of men prominent in science, literature, or art, has not as yet become particularly noticeable in Canada. The only instances among living Canadians seem to be Sir J. A. Grant, who was made K.C.M.G. in recognition of his services as physician to the Governor-General, Sir Hugh Graham, the Montreal journalist, and recently Sir John S. Willson, of The Toronto News.

The men of finance and big business bulk largely in the ranks of Canadian knights. Railroad magnates like Sir William Van Horne, Sir William Mackenzie, Sir Donald Mann, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, and Sir William Whyte, rub shoulders with financiers like Sir Edmund Osler, Sir Rodolph Forget, Sir Henry Pellett, and Sir Edmund Walker. Sir William Mackenzie and Sir Melvin Jones represent big manufacturing interests, and Sir Montagu Allan, shipping interests.

Industry's Toll of Lives.
According to the record of industrial accidents maintained by the Department, 97 workmen were killed, and 357 injured during the month of December, 1912, as compared with 114 killed and 359 injured during the month of November, 1912.

SCOTCHMEN IN CANADA

THE CANNY GAIEL IS PRE-EMINENT IN ALL LINES.

The Dominion Has Been Inhabited More Extensively by the Men of the North Than Any Other Colony or Country and the "Mac's" and the "Mac's" Appear Profusely in Every Variety of Annals.

No other country in the world has been invaded by so many Scotchmen as has Canada, and certainly no other country owes so much to their enterprise. For something like three centuries this migration has been going on, and in Canadian finance, law, politics, medicine, literature, and commerce the names of Scotchmen are pre-eminent.

Remarkable indeed were the achievements of Scotchmen in Canada during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, but it must suffice to mention here prominent men in the life of the colony from the early part of the nineteenth century to the present day. There was, for instance, Peter Gault, one of the early administrators of Upper Canada; Sir Gordon Drummond, head of the forces, and also an administrator of the same province during the later days of the war of 1812-15; Col. John Macdonell, the first Speaker of the Upper Canada House of Assembly; Lord Selkirk, who, in addition to his settlement of the Red River, made settlements in Prince Edward Island, and was associated with enterprises in Upper Canada; Samuel Cunard, of Nova Scotia, founder of the famous ocean line of steamships of that name; and Sir Hugh Allan, who was later the founder of the famous Allan line of steamships, and founder of the great Scotch-Canadian family who were the pioneers of steamship traffic on the St. Lawrence.

Canada's most distinguished engineer of to-day is a Scotsman—Sir Sandford Fleming, who is also a great Imperialist and Empire builder. He, with Lord Strathcona, and Sir William Macdonald, founder of many colleges, make a distinguished trio of noble men that any race would be proud to own.

In regard to education, the fact is mentioned that all the Canadian leading universities, with scarcely one exception, and other higher institutions of learning, have been from the first established and controlled by Scotchmen.

Another reason given for the success of the Scotchman in Canada is that his strong individuality shows itself in his willingness to colonize and face the dangers and novelties of a new country. "His success is based on two qualities that go to make up this trait in his character, namely, courage and adaptability. The Scotchman is not afraid of new conditions, and he has the power and patience of observation required to fit into new circumstances."

We have a striking illustration of this in the career of Lord Strathcona, who at eighteen years of age emigrated to Canada and spent a generation of time on the shores of Hudson Bay. It was the Hudson Bay Co., and the starting of the Canadian Pacific Railway, which gave many young Scotchmen their chance. The present head of the Canadian Pacific Railway in Western Canada, Sir William Whyte, began business life in the office of a Scottish estate. He went to Canada at the age of twenty, entered the Grand Trunk service, and gained rapid promotion, thanks to his thoroughness. He went through every grade of railway work, won higher and higher positions, until at last he attained his present proud position.

One of the most brilliant financiers of Manitoba is Duncan MacArthur, who started in the Hudson Bay Co.'s finance department and became the manager of the Merchants' Bank of Canada. Another MacArthur, John D., a railway contractor, does probably the largest business in Western Canada to-day, the extent of which may be judged from the fact that on one of his Grand Trunk Pacific contracts he had to deposit a check of ten per cent of the contract, amounting to about $15,000,000.

As showing the opportunities given to young men in Western Canada, the case of Mr. George Paterson, a youth who went to Manitoba College, and then into general business, gives fullest encouragement. Beginning without means, he undertook to use the water power of the city of Brandon to produce electricity, and at the same time acquired a large farm of some hundreds of acres to cultivate and improve. To-day Mr. Paterson is a very wealthy man, and an encouragement to young men of pluck and good habits.

Another brilliant instance of business success is that of Mr. John A. McDougall, general merchant and financial agent in Edmonton, the capital of Alberta. A friendless young man, McDougall went to Winnipeg in the twenties, and joined a surveying party in the summer months. During the winter months he went to Manitoba College, and the following year journeyed by wagon trail for a thousand miles and settled in Edmonton. Here he opened a small store, with a partner, began to sell furs, and in a few years became a wealthy man.

Another fine type of the brainy Scotman is Alexander Macdonald, who as a young man in Winnipeg went through the various stages of clerk, partner, and proprietor of one of the largest business concerns in Western Canada. To-day he has branches of his business all over the Dominion, and has been alderman and mayor of the city of Winnipeg.

Wedded Seventy Years.
A notable wedding anniversary was celebrated in Rigaud, Que., recently by Mr. and Mrs. Louis Larocque. They were wedded in Rigaud Jan. 17, 1843, just seventy years ago. They have 47 grandchildren and 28 great-grandchildren living.

Civil Service Examinations

These examinations are held every May and November and allow persons to enter the employ of the Dominion in Outside Service positions as: messengers, porters, sorters, packers, assistant inspectors of weights and measures, railway mail clerks, clerks in city post offices, landing waiters, excisemen, positions under Customs and Inland Revenue Depts. and post office inspectors' clerks, etc. A higher examination is held for those wishing positions as clerks in the different government departments at Ottawa. A special examination is given stenographers who do not wish to take all the regular examination—subjects.

Last November one of our students passed his exam for Outside Service taking 100% on every subject, another of our students passed the exam for Inside Service standing 4th out of the list of the candidates throughout the whole Dominion.

Young people desiring to become candidates for these examinations should enroll with us.

HUERTA'S MEN AFTER REBELS

Mexican Federals to Open Attack To-day.

SONORA IN UPROAR

Madero's Body to Rest in Old Home.

Mexico City, March 3.—An attack on the rebel Governor of Aguascalientes, Alberto Fuentes D. will probably be opened to-day by a force of Government troops under General Carlos Garcia Hidalgo. The State capital, Aguascalientes, has been surrounded by Government troops, who last night began a siege. Governor Fuentes D. who absolutely refuses to recognize President Huerta's government, has taken up his position in the Government palace in the centre of the city, where he is surrounded by a force of State troops much inferior in numbers and armament to the army commanded by General Hidalgo.

Another encounter is likely to be brought about shortly between the rebels and the Federal troops, as General Tracy Aubert and his column are about to effect a junction with the forces under General Gerónimo Trevino, and the combined army will then begin to close in on the rebels commanded by the defiant Governor of the State of Coahuila, Venustiano Carranza, at Saltillo.

The isolation of Mexico City from the United States by rail is complete. Ramos Martínez, who, for several months, conducted semi-official negotiations for peace between the late President Francisco Madero and Emiliano Zapata, says that Zapata doubtless will surrender and co-operate with the central Government, but that the rebel leader is waiting for Senor Martínez to be appointed as an official messenger to him from provisional President Huerta's Government. He believes the Government will commission him as intermediary to carry out the new negotiations immediately.

The private secretary of provisional President Huerta declared last night that the situation in the State of Sonora was grave. Bandits, he said, were over-running portions of the State, and many families resident in the city of Hermosilla were abandoning the city, fearing an attack. Governor Jose M. Maytorena has abandoned the Government of the State, which has been since assumed by Ignacio Pesqueira. Mayorena says he will take command of forces now being organized to sustain him in opposition to the central administration, which he still refuses to recognize.

MADERO'S LAST RESTING PLACE.

Mexico City, March 3.—The body of former President Francisco Madero is to be interred to-day in the cemetery at his old home at San Pedro de Los Pinos in the State of Coahuila.

CONFERRING WITH REBELS.

NOVEL HONEYMOON

5-Year Walk to Test Meat vs. Vegetable Diet.

New York, March 3.—A honeymoon walk to last for five years is the plan of Hubert G. A. Hassler, aged 29 years, and Mabel V. Broadie, 15 years old, who were married at the bride's home in New Brunswick, N. J., yesterday. Hassler, in khaki, and the bride, in a biking dress, came to New York early to-day to start on their long ramble from the city. They declared that they held a contract under which the Metropolitan Athletic Association, of Jackson, Miss., will pay each of them $5,000 upon their return to the city half five years from to-day with vouchers showing that Hassler has stuck strictly to a vegetable diet and his wife to a meat diet throughout the trip.

WILSON SIDES WITH ROOT

London, March 3.—Washington correspondent of the Morning Post cables that President-elect Wilson favors the passage of Senator Root's amendment to the Panama Canal Bill, which provides for the striking out of the clause allowing the American coastwise vessels to go through the canal free of toll.

This is the point on which Great Britain protested at Washington some time ago, claiming that it was a discrimination against the ships of other nations and contrary to the provisions of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

POLICE CHIEF JAILED.

Larchford despatch: Chief of Police Charles Pyfe, Frank Marcott and John Legh were arrested by Constable J. Lefebvre last night at 10 o'clock. Brought before the magistrate this morning, they were sentenced to six months' imprisonment each and despatched to North Bay this afternoon. For some time past E. Kingston, proprietor of the King Edward Hotel, has been missing liquor, cigars and tobacco from his hotel, and information came to Constable Lefebvre last night which caused him to make the arrests. Legh is night operator at the T. & N. O. station and Frank Marcott night porter at the hotel.

MILITANT IS FREE

Mrs. Pankhurst Allowed Out On Bail.

London, March 3.—Mrs. Pankhurst's "hunger strike" was of even shorter duration than imprisoned suffragettes hitherto have been accustomed to. The Home Office to-day over-ruled the Epsom magistrate, and the suffragette leader was released from Holloway jail on bail to-night.

Mrs. Pankhurst, before her release this evening, undertook not to participate personally in the militant suffragette movement pending her trial. Mrs. Pankhurst will be tried at the Old Bailey in April instead of at the Surrey assizes in June or July, as would have been the case in the ordinary course. The authorities made this concession on her promising good behavior. The Suffragette Journal states that Sylvia Pankhurst is seriously ill in Holloway jail as the result of a hunger strike and forcible feeding.

AN AWFUL PLOT

Ten-Day Mexican Battle a Barbaous Scheme.

To Kill Off Loyal Followers of Madero.

Mexico City, March 3.—On the authority of one of the principal revolutionary leaders is told for the first time the inside story of an astounding conspiracy between General Huerta and General Diaz that constituted the whole reason for the ten days' battle in the heart of the Mexican capital.

The plot in its execution was so barbarous as to be without parallel in the history of modern civilized warfare. It is the story of a prearranged battle in which the common object of the leaders on both sides was the murder of thousands of loyal Madero soldiers—brave men who thought they were giving up their lives for the cause of their President, but who instead were being wantonly slaughtered to execute a plot of monumental treachery.

During these ten days of shrieking shell and death, Huerta, in compliance with carefully considered plans, never sent regular troops against Diaz, but rushed into impossible charges the irregular forces, whose loyalty to Madero could not be questioned, in order that Diaz might kill them and thus weaken Madero.

The guns of the Federal artillery were deliberately misadjusted to divert their shells from the Diaz forces to the neutral zones, there to mangle and kill non-combatants and wreck their homes. The statements of this revolutionary leader are borne out by the hospital statistics, which show that proportionately fourteen volunteers and marines were killed during the fighting to every Federal soldier.

FAVOR THE CANTREEN

Canadian Artillery Association Air Their Views.

Ottawa despatch: There promises to be a lively argument on the liquor question in the general conference of militiamen and of representatives of the W. C. T. U. and the Imperial Order of Daughters of the Empire which is being held at the military week at Ottawa here to-morrow. At the meeting of the Canadian Artillery Association to-day the question of camp canteens was discussed with considerable vigor and the statement was made that the representatives of the artillery branch of the militia present at the meeting voiced the general sentiment among the officers of the other branches who have been in Ottawa this week, in favor of well-conducted canteens for the sale of beer and light liquor, as opposed to the arbitrarily "dry camps" which Gen. Col. Hughes is seeking to enforce. The whole question is to come up at the general meeting of all the branches to-morrow, and the Minister and the W. C. T. U. will probably have some difficulty in maintaining their position if the criticism which was voiced this morning and this afternoon by the artillery officers is any indication of the general sentiment of the militia.

SYMPATHY FOR PRISONER.

North Bay despatch: Much indignation is expressed because the young night operator at Larchford has received a six months' jail sentence for being implicated with the chief of police and the night porter at the hotel in the theft of wines and liquors from the King Edward Hotel at that place. He is confined with a crowd of professional criminals and depraved characters, and efforts are being made to obtain his release. The lad is only eighteen, and it is felt that he should not receive the same punishment as his older associates.

The condemned men are Diendonne, Gallien, Souday and Monier, against whom a number of murders were proved. Fifteen of the others were sentenced to various terms of imprisonment, and four, including three women accomplices, were released.

OMAHA FIRE HORROR

20 to 75 Believed Dead in Hotel Blaze.

Omaha, Neb., March 3.—Loss of life estimated all the way from twenty to seventy-five resulted from a fire which destroyed the Dewey Hotel, a second-class hotel, occupying a three-story building at 13th and Farnam streets, to-day. Three hours after the fire was discovered it was pronounced under control. It was confined to the building where it started.

The fact that the hotel register was destroyed will make it difficult to obtain a list of the dead, and while the manager of the place states that about fifty were registered, others who were about the hotel and who had not made their names were not registered, and the total number was more nearly a hundred. Of these not more than twenty-five are known to have escaped.

The cause of the fire has not been determined. It started in the rear of the building, but had gained great headway before it was discovered. The lower floors of the Dewey Hotel building were occupied by the Raphael-Fred Cloth Company, the Miller-Liquor Company, the Adams Express Company. The stock of all these companies was destroyed.

WILSON ESCAPES ACCIDENT.

Philadelphia, Pa., Mar. 3. President-elect Wilson escaped a possible train wreck to-day on his weekly journey from Princeton to see a dentist here. A track walker on the Pennsylvania Railroad discovered a broken rail near Tacony, a suburb, and the train on which Mr. Wilson was riding was held on the block three minutes later. The preceding train had broken a piece out of the track just beside a culvert. The President-elect was delayed 40 minutes.

HAPPINESS KILLED AGED BRIDE

Los Angeles, March 3.—Happiness and excitement killed Marcelina Leon, and to be 105 years of age, after she had shown strength of mind and body sufficient to win her way and obtain the consent of the courts to marry the man who for 50 years had been her sweetheart. She is dead at her home to-day after being a bride for but five days. Relations opposed her marriage to Precantion Leon, 82 years of age. She fought them in the courts, obtained the dismissal of her niece as guardian, and established her competency to do as she chose, but shortly after her marriage she collapsed.

BABY PRINCESS HOLDS TRAIN.

The Hague, March 3.—Queen Wilhelmina and her daughter, Princess Julianna, were scheduled to leave here at 7:30 to-night to join the Prince Consort, who is ill in the Taunus Mountains. A crowd of people waited at the station to see the Queen depart, as there is great anxiety over the illness of her husband, but her Majesty would not start until she got the young Princess aboard. This delayed the departure until 10 o'clock, but the crowd waited patiently and then cheered the party as the train started.

D. R. A. ANNUAL

May Send Team for the Palma Trophy.

Ottawa report: Lieut.-Col. J. H. Burland, of Montreal, was elected president of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association at its annual meeting to-day. The others officers for 1913 are: Patron, the Duke of Connaught; honorary president, Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes; vice-presidents—Ontario, Col. W. C. MacDonald, Toronto; Quebec, Lieut.-Col. E. W. Wilson, Montreal; Nova Scotia, Senator L. Power, Halifax; New Brunswick, Col. J. Titton, Ottawa; Manitoba, Col. E. B. Steele, Winnipeg; British Columbia, Lieut.-Col. J. Duff-Stuart, Vancouver; Prince Edward Island, Lieut.-Col. H. McL. Davidson; Alberta, Lieut.-Col. James Walker, Calgary; Saskatchewan, Lieut.-Col. R. J. Gwynne, Ottawa; Yukon, Dr. Thompson, M.P., Dawson.

The Duke of Connaught was present, and congratulated the Dominion Rifle Association on its good work in the interest of rifle shooting. Col. Hon. Sam Hughes said he intended to add to the number of rifle ranges so that there would be one for each manouevring district. An effort will also be made to pay the expenses of one tyro from each unit to the D.R.A. meet.

Owing to heavy expenditure last year's balance of $1,075 in the finances of the association is down to $108. At the meeting of the Council of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association this afternoon it was decided that the annual matches be held from August 25th to August 30th inclusive. It was decided that if finances permitted Canada would send a team to compete at Camp Perry, Ohio, next September for the Palma trophy. Last year the American team came to Canada to compete for the trophy with the hope that Canada would send a team to the big meet at Camp Perry this year. The match will be shot on Sept. 8 and it is expected that several nations will have representatives there.

AGED WOMAN BEAT CHINESE.

Calgary, Alta., March 3.—Mrs. John Wilkinson, aged 70, is in jail here awaiting trial on a charge of striking Jim Lee, a Chinese, with an iron bar. They had a dispute over the ownership of a child, and it is alleged that in the subsequent battle the aged woman struck the Chinese with the bar, a physician finding the skull fractured in two places. Mrs. Wilkinson was unable to obtain bail and is being held until she is able to appear against her. The affair occurred at Bowden, near Red Deer.

HOMES FOR VANTOU? ORPHANS

Montreal, March 3.—Sympathy for the Vantou orphans, seven of whom their parents in the "doubt" tragedy of Saturday night, led two Montreal women to adopt two of the younger children, and they are now assured of good homes, in which good surroundings and care will, it is believed, efface from their childish minds all memory of the horrible crime which made them orphans.

GOOD ROADS

Ontario Convention Down on Statute Labor.

Provincial Minister Promises Further Aid.

Toronto despatch: To attempt to crystallize convention sentiment by the adoption of different resolutions relative to good roads legislation resulted in stormy discussions at yesterday's sessions of the Good Roads Convention. Following severe condemnation of the statute labor system by W. A. McLean, Chief Highway Engineer for Ontario, Dr. L. I. Hewes, Maintenance Engineer, of Washington, and others, a resolution, requesting that the Provincial Government consider legislation to bring about the abolition of statute labor in all townships, was submitted to the delegates.

The resolution met with strenuous opposition from several speakers, one delegate characterizing the consideration of such a proposal as "a retrograde step and a disservice to the pioneers who for over half a century have built and maintained county roads as well, or better, than they are constructed in the city of Toronto." The majority of those speaking to the motion favored the abolition of statute labor, and succeeded in having this resolution carried.

Discussion waxed warm over the resolution which recommended "that counties be empowered to arrange that a portion of the cost of construction of country roads be carried by property adjoining or benefited by those roads." The indefinite wording of the resolution immediately gave rise to the question as to whether or not this referred to city property, and introduced the matter of increased assessment. Many delegates opposed the resolution as embodying a principle of direct taxation of improvements which would have a deterrent effect on the construction of roads in the future, and would especially prejudice those counties which have not yet adopted the scheme outlined in the act. The proportion of construction cost to be borne by those living on back roads opened up new difficulties and the resolution was referred back to a committee for further detailing.

The necessity for thorough drainage of rural roads was emphasized by Mr. W. A. McLean. "The spring conditions in Ontario will do more harm to a poorly-drained road than the rest of the year," he said.

Mr. McLean referred to the fact that in spite of Government aid many counties of Ontario were not as yet taking advantage of the Good Roads Act.

Dr. L. I. Hewes, Engineer of Maintenance Division, U. S. Office of Roads, described the organization by means of which road reform has been accomplished in many states of the Union. "In the States where road work has been most successful, we find the people demanding State aid for maintenance," said Dr. Hewes. "I do not hesitate to condemn the old statute labor system, as millions of dollars have been spent under that system without any good result."

Promise of further aid from the Provincial Government, subsequent to exhaustive investigation, was made by Hon. J. O. Reame.

BROKE HER RECORD

"Unkissed Mother" Carressed by Young Son.

Baltimore, March 3.—The unkissed mother has been kissed. Mrs. Theresa E. Deems, who lives at 1208 A. M. street and was said several weeks ago that she had never known the kiss of man, woman or child, has been kissed at last.

It was last week, when Mrs. Deems was recovering from an injury to a leg and when the siege which accompanies such an injury was beginning to wear upon her carefulness, two lips were turned to her own. She could not resist them.

The tempter was her son, William E. Deems, who is now seven years old. She had never before kissed him.

"Was that really your first kiss?" Mrs. Deems was asked.

"Yes," she replied, and she smiled prettily as if the occasion was a dream long to be remembered.

$600 IS MINIMUM

A Montreal Society Lady Needs That Per Month.

Montreal, March 3.—What is considered in this city a reasonable and necessary allowance for a lady in society was discussed in Judge Guerin's court yesterday, when Mrs. Matilda L. Hall sought for a separation of property from her husband, George R. Hall, a well known real estate operator.

Mr. Hall was willing to give his wife $400 a month and a house rent and tax free. Mrs. Hall demanded $600 as the minimum upon which she could exist. "I think she should be able to struggle along on $400," said defendant's lawyer, opposing the motion to allow Mrs. Hall her claim.

Mrs. Hall further pleaded that her husband had deserted her and asked that her interests be protected, as he got intoxicated, and when in that condition might suffer business losses which would affect her position.

Judge Guerin reserved his decision.

WILSON WITH ROOT

In Opposing U. S. Preference in the Canal

And British Papers Congratulate Him on Stand.

Washington, March 3.—President Elect Wilson said this morning, when talking to the Democratic Senate leaders most closely in his confidence, that he favors the passage of Senator Root's amendment to the Panama Canal bill, to repeal the provision exempting American coastwise ships from payment of tolls. It was said to-day that the new President had made his position plain lately to several Democratic Senators. It was the subject of remark, because Senator O'Gorman, New York, who has been regarded as more or less of a spokesman for Mr. Wilson, was a sturdy opponent of the Root amendment and a champion of free passage of American ships.

There is no likelihood of any action upon the Root amendment during the few remaining days of the 62nd Congress. It was recently labelled in the Senate Inter-oceanic Canals Committee, thus preventing the possibility of even being brought before the Senate on a minority report. It is expected to be renewed at the next Congress, probably during the extra session.

London, March 3.—Despatches from Washington announcing that President-elect Woodrow Wilson had expressed himself in favor of supporting Senator Elihu Root's amendment to the Panama Canal Bill repealing the provision exempting American vessels from paying tolls for passage through the Panama Canal, have given rise to considerable comment in the English newspapers, which verse their gratification over his alleged attitude.

The Westminster Gazette says: "We all very much regretted to find ourselves in conflict with the United States Government on a point of this kind, and believe that public opinion in the United States will welcome this changed attitude, leading to the avoidance of further controversy."

The Pall Mall Gazette says: "Dr. Wilson is to be congratulated on striking a true and high note in this matter upon the eve of his accession. We think repeal of the exemption clause would be far the best solution of the tangle created by the shortsightedness of over-reaching politicians."

TO FORCE THAW

Whitman May Call Him Before Grand Jury.

New York, March 3.—District Attorney Whitman to-day considered the advisability of calling Harry K. Thaw to testify before a grand jury that may be drawn to investigate charges and counter-charges of bribery in connection with an attempt to release him from Matteawan State Hospital for the Criminal Insane. The prosecutor believes that Thaw holds the key to the complicated situation presented by the mass of evidence obtained by Governor Sulzer's committee of investigation.

While this committee has expressed doubts of its power to compel Thaw's appearance, a grand jury would have authority to examine him in criminal proceedings.

The New York District Attorney and the grievance committee of the New York Bar Association both took a hand in the Thaw investigation to-day. Mr. Whitman said he would not act until he had time to go through the testimony before the Governor's Committee, a transcript of which reached him last night. The Bar Association will attack an inquiry into the professional conduct of one of its members, John N. A. ...

After all arrangements had been completed, including extensive advertising and the engaging of an excursion train, Smith's Falls hockey team defaulted their game with Brockville on Monday. Cold feet and a shortage in their supply of pluck probably kept the team at home.

At the recent session of the Alliance it was decided to send a deputation to wait upon the Ontario Government and request the abolition of the public bar the treating system, and drinking in clubs, and the imposition of such other restrictions on the liquor traffic as shall most effectively curtail its operations and remedy its evils.

The Delta Women's Institute will meet at the home of Mrs C. L. Broley on Saturday, March 8, at 2.30. The chief feature of the meeting is a debate, "Resolved, that an untidy, good natured woman makes a better homemaker than the tidy, cranky woman." All ladies cordially invited.

Rod and Gun for March, published by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ont., is out with a varied and entertaining list of contents which include the following: "After Caribou with the Utchekats" by K. J. The Sox Social

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church have fixed the date of their Sox Social for Tuesday evening, March 11.

Poetical invitations, accompanied with a diminutive sock, have been sent far and near, with directions to enclose therein twice as many cents as the number of the sock worn by the recipient, and send or present at the door as an admission fee. It is possible that all who may wish to attend may not receive a sock; all will be welcome, and for the sockless a large sock will be found at the door into which they may drop their contributions.

A good supper and a good programme will be features of the evening's enjoyment.
