The Summer Fallow.

Hiel an' me don't often have any words, but once in awhile he does get such notions in his head that I just can't stan' it—nor there, couldn't nobody else, neither. This trouble come about last Spring, or you might say 'way long last Fall, when he was gettin' the crops in.

There was one piece of wheat that didn't amount to nothin'. He mowed it really—it was so dreadful weedy an' lodged that he couldn't do anything with the harvester. Well, as I was sayin', it wasn't good for nothin', an'

that made him cross, so I didn't say anything back, but made some cream gravy with the pork-steak and told him to set up.

We didn't say any more about the weedy lot for a while; but he studied the paper every day, an' I was wonderin' what he was comin' when one day, as we were sittin' home, he takin' our turkey in the market, he says as he came by the door.

"I'm goin' to the mill, I have to get next year."

"To what?" sez I.

"To put that into Summer fallow," he sez again.

"Wal, I hope you'll have a good crop, I sez. Will there be any market for it here, or will you have to take it to Markato, same as you used to your barley?"

You see, I've heard father an' the boys talk about going into the fallow to burn brush; but of course I know Hiel couldn't mean anything like that, and so I thought it might mean some new kind of grain lik' it.

He looked at me out of the corner of his eye and sez:

"Yes, I can get rid of all I'll raise, I guess," an' he give the lines a little jerk that I learned long ago means bad temper.

I was kind of put out, for I had doted on a nice field of corn and some cane. They say cane seed is such good feed, and sorghum makes splendid vinegar, and I can do up lots of things in it that taste real good. But, as I said before, I don't believe in arguin' with a cross man, so I kep' still.

We'd had a pretty cold afternoon, waiting around for Coo-Stock to get to our load. Everybody was bringin' in their fowl just before Thanksgiving, and you know how the wind sweeps up that Main street, so we was glad enough to get away. I put a before I went away, and I tell you the heat felt good. We took a doughnut and a glass of milk apiece, and I forgot all about the new crop till 'most Spring, when one day I happened to think about it and asked Hiel where he was going to get his Summer fallow seed.

He smiled as pleasant as could be. It was Sunday, and I had just clipped his hair and trimmed his beard a little, and he had on a nice new pair of woolen socks, and set with his feet up in a chair by the fire. I have noticed that when a man feels comfortable, he is pretty sure to be good-natured. Well, he smiled an' sez:

"My Summer fallow seed? I guess I shall have to send away for it. I don't think they keep it around here."

I didn't say any more then, for I know he didn't have much money to spend for fancy seed and he gets so blue when we talk of money this year that I couldn't bear to spoil our nice day. But I kept it in my mind, and thought I would do a little planning on my own account. So I began to save a little here an' there. Hiel never was the man to inquire after the butter and egg or poultry money, an' I just did my best to lay by a saug against seed-time.

I know there was about ten acres in the field, and, if it was anything like wheat, it would be somewhere about two bushel to the acre, and that would be about twenty bushel. Then, if it was a fancy kind of grain, it would be anyway a dollar a bushel, an' that would be twenty dollars.

Now, I didn't know, no more than the cat, where I was going to get twenty dollars; but I'd do what I could, and maybe he could make out of doors he went.

The first thing I 'gino was to set to work and make a keg of vinegar. Then I told Mr. Miner I had made more than I wanted, and he could have it; he was kind to get it. Then I darned up my table cloths again, and got along without the new gingham I had counted on, and scrimped a little on the butter an' lard on the table.

When Spring come, I had laid by a seed time came at last, and I never know whether to cry or be mad when I think of that day when I said to Hiel, calm like:

"Have you got your new seed yet?"

"I can't stop to tell you about it now," he says; "but when I get this cow fixed I'll be in."

I went back into the house, smoothed down my hair, put a clean ruff in my neck, an' got my pocket book handy.

Hiel came in; he looked kind of queer. I can always tell when he don't feel just right in his mind, by the way his mouth looks. Sez he:

"Hain't you got it through your head yet what I'm goin' to do with that lot?"

"Why, you said you was going to put in a crop of Summer fallow, whatever that is."

"Tain't nothin'," says he; "it just lays idle."

I didn't sense it at first; but pretty soon it come to me, that he had got some new fangled notion out of the Farm Journal, an' I riz right up an' sez I:

"Do you mean to say that you're agoin' to let ten or twelve acres of land lay idle a whole year, as poor as we be, and as old as we're gettin'?"

Re you a-gettin' childish?" sez I.

An' he sez: "No, I hain't. But, a woman don't know nothin' about farmin' anyway. I guess we or oats in a six years' course of cropping. The older cattle are tied up in the stalls about 36 weeks in the year, the stock cows in lyes, from which those in calf are never loosed, from autumn to spring, everything, includin' water, being supplied to them in the stall; young cattle mostly in covered boxes 14 by 16 ft., with yard of the same size to 4 heifers of 10 to 12 months old; no catli, old or young, turned out to the fields during winter and spring. In autumn the food is barley straw or oat straw with yellow turnips. These turnips are good to February or March, when swedes take their place, and with both the only other food in common use is straw principally oat straw, until the grass season begins in May."

Pineapple Juice for Diphtheria.

Pineapple juice is the latest remedy for diphtheria. The pineapples are compressed and the juice used as a drink. It is said that the negroes of Georgia and other southern states have used this remedy for years. The juice cuts or burns out the membrane of diphtheria rapidly. Constitutional medicines are always necessary. The juice is a local remedy only and taken in teaspoonful doses every two hours undiluted. The local journals assure that pineapple juice acts so promptly that few, if any, cases of diphtheria perish. It is harmless and agreeable and efficacious.

Pineapple juice (by analysis) contains: Sugar, water, albumen, citric acid, malic acid, tannin, cellulose. Citric acid is found in lemons, oranges and plums, and has been used in malignant throat diseases for many years. Any mild acid acts well in

Curious Calendar Facts.

There are some curious facts about the calendar. No century can begin on Wednesday, Friday or Saturday. The same calendar can be used every twenty years. October always begins on the same day of the week as January, April and July; September as December. February, March and November begin on the same day. May, June and August always begin on different days from each other and every month in the year. The first and last days of the year are always the same. These rules do not apply to leap year, when comparison is made between days before and after February 29th.

LILLIAN'S EXPERIENCE.

How She kept trouble, loss and disappointment from a city home.

Lillian, —, the bright daughter of a farmer living some eighty miles from Toronto, was visiting her aunt in the Queen city during Fair time.

The little country girl, only in her eighteenth year, was a model of all that pertains to housework; she excelled in butter-making, cooking, sewing, crocheting, and understood the art of making old things look like new—home dyeing with Diamond Dyes.

During the second week of Lillian's visit, her aunt intimated one day that she had made a careful selection of some clean but faded skirts and suits of boys' clothing which she thought were good enough for another season's wear if they could be properly re-colored.

Lillian's aunt acknowledged that she had said she was encouraged by the statements made in some of the newspapers that — Dyes would work wonders for her.

At once Lillian came to her rescue and said: "Auntie, for goodness sake do not risk your good garments with these common dyes; they are quite useless, I tried a package some time ago in order to satisfy my curiosity, and they gave just such results as I expected—spoiled pure dyestuff, quite free from grease. Let me suggest the use of the Diamond Dyes; they are safe and sure, and your colors will be just right. Send to the drug store for them and I will assist you in your work."

The Diamond Dyes were procured, and part of an afternoon was spent by aunt and niece in making the old things look like new creations. All were delighted with the magnificent results, and Lillian was particularly proud of the achievements of her friends the Diamond Dyes. At the tea table that evening the aunt said: "Lillian, your experience in dyeing certainly saved us from trouble, loss and disappointment."

Cover During Sleep.

The object is simply this: Nature takes the time when one is lying down to give the heat a rest, and that organ consequently makes ten strokes less a minute than when one is in an upright posture. Multiplying that by 60 minutes gives 600 strokes. Therefore in eight hours spent in lying down the heart is saved nearly 5,000 strokes, and as the heart pumps six ounces of blood with each stroke, it lifts 30,000 ounces less of blood in a night of eight hours spent in bed than when one is in an upright system. As the blood flows so much more slowly through the veins while one is lying down, extra coverings must then supply the warmth usually furnished by circulation. —Popular Science News.

A good and pleasant cure for hoarseness is to roast a lemon until it is soft all through, do not allow it to burst, and fill the lemon with as much granulated sugar as it will hold, then eat it hot.

Editorial Notes.

The annual meeting of the N. S. Fruit Growers' Association is to be held this year on Feb. 20th, 21st and 22nd, in this town.

The Athensium Society is arranging a "Star Course" of lectures for the winter. The first is to be given on Wednesday evening next by Sir J. G. Bourinot, on "Some Reminiscences of Nova Scotia's Famous Men."

It is reported that the government has decided to rebuild the school buildings of the agricultural school at the former site in Truro, and that plans are now being prepared.

The annual meeting of the congregation of St. Andrew's church was held on Wednesday evening. There was a good attendance of the members and adherents.

Art Association.

The monthly meeting of the Art Association which was held at the Baptist parsonage Monday evening, 9th, was large and interesting.

News of the death of Mr. W. R. Campbell, general manager and secretary of the Dominion Atlantic Railway, was received on Monday with sincere regret.

Mr. Archibald's Visit to Ontario.

Mr. W. C. Archibald, of Wolfville, N. S., was in Toronto yesterday. Mr. Archibald is on his way back to Nova Scotia after visiting and inspecting the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, and the Experimental Fruit Station at Grimby.

"You have accomplished much more than we thought for in the Maritime Provinces," said Mr. Archibald to the Globe. "You not only have accomplished more, but the influence of the institution is already felt in the Maritime Provinces, as witness the presence of five students from there."

"Your institution has accomplished wonders. Your government has been very generous indeed in the granting of money and building up an institution that must ultimately be recognized by the entire agricultural population as one of supreme importance to them in view of our enlarging markets."

Canada's Future.

Canada's future is a subject which has been taboed for some time, but is again to the front in enlarged proportions. Again it is a question between the United States and Great Britain.

Bring Newfoundland In.

There can be no doubt that the Imperial Government is bent upon the settlement of the Newfoundland French shore question. In a short time that issue will be a difficulty of the past.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., JAN. 6, 1899.

Local and Provincial.

The schooner Leonard B. arrived on Monday morning. Her cargo consisted of 7,800 bushels of corn for the corn mill.

Don't miss hearing the lecture by Rev. Mr. Carruthers in St. Andrew's church next Tuesday evening. A treat is in store.

The mayor's report for the past year is to hand too late for publication this week. It will appear next week, and will be found to be most interesting reading.

We understand that Mr. F. W. Woodworth intends building another fine residence on Acadia street next summer, and the lot next the dwelling occupied by Mrs. Borden.

Mr. T. L. Harvey has been distributing among his friends and customers, during the past week a very pretty calendar. One of them graces the walls of our sanctum.

Mr. George Thompson, agent in this town for the "Queen" Insurance Co., has sent the ACADIAN a very handsome and useful calendar for 1899, just issued by that company.

WANTED—By a young lady, a room in a central part of the town, first or second floor. Address, stating terms, etc., F. R., P. O. Box 217.

Mrs. Kaiser, now occupying a room in the old Wolfville Hotel, is anxious to secure any kind of household work or nursing. She is a worthy woman but at present is in very straitened circumstances. We hope kindly disposed readers will remember her in this inclement weather.

The People of Wolfville are promised a treat on Tuesday evening next in the lecture in the Presbyterian church by Rev. Mr. Carruthers, of New Glasgow. The lecture is entitled "A World Gone Mad," and is most highly spoken of by the press of Halifax, where it was given a few weeks since.

The Fruit Growers' Association has received a diploma for the best exhibit of grapevines at the trans-Mississippi International Exposition held at Omaha last autumn. The apples were put up by Dr. DeWitt, of this town, and donated to the Fruit Growers' Assn. The prize will be a gold medal, which is now being prepared.

Rev. D. J. Fraser, formerly pastor of St. Andrew's church, this town, is to be one of the lecturers in the course to be given this winter under the auspices of the Y. P. S. C. E. in connection with that church. The subject of his lecture will be "The Religion of Rudyard Kipling." The lecture will be looked forward to with pleasure by Wolfville people.

At the meeting of the congregation of St. Andrew's church on Wednesday evening the chairman, Mr. W. H. Chase, on behalf of the congregation, presented Mrs. C. M. Murray, who for a number of years has presided at the organ and led the choir, with an envelope containing a sum of money, as a token of appreciation of her faithful and efficient services. Mrs. Murray was taken wholly by surprise, but in a few words expressed her thanks. Owing to ill-health she has recently been compelled to resign the position, which is now very acceptably filled by Mrs. J. D. Chambers, who is a most accomplished and accurate performer.

Local and Provincial.

At the meeting of the County Council this week W. E. Roscoe, Esq., was again elected warden.

Mr. C. E. Starr will please accept thanks for copies of U. S. papers received this week.

The assessors have completed their labors and the roll is now open for inspection at the office of the town clerk. 17,292 barrels of apples and potatoes were handled at the Cambridge, Kings county, warehouse during the last four months of 1898.

The members of the "Browning Club" will please take notice that it will meet on Monday evening, Jan. 16, at the home of Mrs. Chipman.

The lecture by Rev. Mr. Carruthers in the Presbyterian church next Tuesday evening will be one of the events of the winter. Don't fail to hear it.

We understand that Mr. B. G. Bishop intends building a residence on Highland avenue next summer, next the residence of his mother, Mrs. S. B. Bishop.

Communion services will be held in St. Andrew's church, of this town, and Chalmers' church, Grand Pre, on Sabbath, 15th. The preparatory service will be held in St. Andrew's church Friday evening at 7.30.

The Nova Scotia Farmers' Association will meet at Annapolis on February 22nd and 23rd. Hon. Sidney Fisher, minister of agriculture, and professors Shutt and Macoun, of the Ottawa experimental farm, are expected to be present.

A fire and accident occurred on the D. A. R. on Monday evening. As the express from Halifax was approaching Windsor, the engine struck and demolished the carriage of C. J. Nicholas Curry, of Avondale, at a crossing and killed the occupant. The deceased was about 52 years of age and leaves a widow and three children.

Word was received here yesterday that the town of Bridgewater had met with the same fate as that suffered by Windsor in October, 1897. No particulars could be got but it was reported that fire had broken out on Thursday morning at about 3.30 o'clock, and destroyed the whole business portion of the town. We trust the damage may not be as great as reported.

Meers, Kenny & Co., wholesale dry goods merchants of Halifax, whom some of the newspapers some time ago reported as going out of the business the first of the year, announce that "in spite of all the reports to the contrary, which have been extensively circulated by our competitors and a portion of the press during the past six months, the old house will remain as active a factor in the dry goods trade for some years to come, as it has ever been in the past." The firm was established in 1827.

In St. James' church on Sunday evening next, January 15, the Rev. Canon Brock will refer in his sermon to the loss sustained by the Canadian church by the death of Bishop Sullivan, of the Right Reverend Bishop Sullivan, for several years Bishop of Algoma. He will also refer to the loss sustained by the Province of N. S., and particularly by the Annapolis valley, by the death last Sunday, January 8, of the general manager of the D. A. R., the highly respected and well known Mr. W. R. Campbell, of London, England. Railway officials and others attending St. James' church, Kentville, will be provided with seats by the wardens and the sexton.

Sheffield's Mills.

Notice regarding the very cold night quite a large gathering met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kinsman on the eve of Jan. 10th, where the guests were entertained in a right royal manner, and a most pleasant time was had. A very sumptuous supper was had, consisting of turkey, ham, beef and other nice things too numerous to mention. It was quite amusing to see the ladies after they had got ready to face the bitter cold night. It was quite hard to recognize one from another on account of the wonderful way they were wrapped.

The Wolfville band is to play in the rink this evening. A good programme of music will be given and no doubt a large number will be in attendance.

Household Rewards.

It is often argued that mothers and those in authority in the household should never pay children to do what is required of them.

That was enough. The little task was willingly performed, and the mother's gratified smile was all the child asked or received.

Reward is another word for incentive. And it is a bait that attracts everyone, both old and young.

I have frequently heard a mother promise a reward to a child if it would avoid some fault. This might be some crudity she wished omitted at the table, or some inadvertent habit of a trying or disgusting nature.

No mother, as we look at it, need be afraid of weakening her authority over her children by promising a reward in case some special duty is well done.

When the one habit of obedience is properly established, do not hesitate to lighten the slight burden of work by a little shining bait at the end of the line.

A Good Rule for the New Year.

"I expect to pass through this life but once, if, therefore, there is any kindness I can show, or any good thing I can do to my fellow human beings, let me do it now. Let me not defer nor neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again."

Words.

Just a gentle, loving message,

In the depths of one and spirit

Has a new ambition stirred.

To be purer, nobler, better,

Rise above the sordid earth,

Have a higher hope of heaven,

Where the soul life has its birth.

Still another word is spoken,

Hasty word of careless scorn,

But it bore such cruel anguish

To a heart that was forlorn.

Echoing still, it travels onward,

Bearing venom in its sting,

Wounding heart and life forever,

Swift as an arrow on the wing.

Oh, these words of ours are mighty

To bring comfort or distress,

For each one is born in heaven,

Or in Satan's dark fortress.

Words! they seem of little moment.

Yet just one has saved a soul,

While another, bitter, scathing,

Ruin spread beyond control.

—Sel.

What No One Can Have.

No one can have too much of that fear of the Lord, which is to hate evil and depart from it, which is to love good and to pursue it; the fear which makes us afraid to sin because it is wrong; the fear that makes us dread to be selfish because selfishness paralyzes character; the fear that makes us afraid to refuse to give ourselves up to God and his service because by such refusal we slight the love of our Heavenly Father, and miss the life of happiness and usefulness that we ought to live.

We cannot have too much of that fear of the Lord which springs from a sense of his goodness and care, and from an admiration and choice of his holy, ever-lasting love; the fear which is the beginning of wisdom and a fountain of hope, and which tendeth to a purer, more unselfish and spiritual life. —Sel.

Drunkenness a Crime.

Drunkenness is not only the cause of crime, but it is crime; and if any encourage drunkenness for the sake of the profit derived from the sale of drink they are guilty of a form of moral assassination as criminal as any that has been practiced by the bravos of any country or of any age. —John Ruskin.

No man has a right to use his property in such a manner as shall injure the life or property of another, and the consent of the party injured is no mitigation of the offence. —Blackstone

A Word to Mothers.

As soon as he can understand anything, teach your child that the greatest good you can desire for him, is that he shall do right. To ask your child to do the right thing, because you will give him this or that, is putting the love-motive in place of the higher, and what he does then is not being done at all because it is right, but because you will give him something. He should feel that you will give him all that he needs, or that will make him happy any way, and that of all the good things you can give him, the most excellent is the truth. —Talmage.

A White Flower in a Coal Mine.

"One tells of going with a party down into a coal mine. Close to the gargery there grew a white plant. All about it flew the black dust, but on the plant's whiteness no trace of it stayed. The visitor could not understand how the plant retained its purity in such a place. One of the miners took a handful of the coal dust and threw it on the leaves, but a particle adhered. The plant was covered with a wonderful enamel on which nothing could leave a stain. Growing in an atmosphere filled with floating black dust, its snowy purity remained immaculate.

It is part of pure religion, says an inspired word, to keep one's self 'unspotted from the world.' We cannot flee away from sin's atmosphere or from amid its unholiness. It is not the Master's plan for us that we should be taken out of this sinful world, to live our life where no evil can touch us. But the problem is to be in the world, to live in it without being stained by it. —Sel.

India has perhaps a greater variety of plants than any other country in the world, having fifteen thousand native species, while the flora of the entire continent of Europe embraces only about ten thousand.

Second Boarder—Well, I'm sure we've found pretty much everything else there.

"He proposed to me on a postal card."

"Did you accept?"

"Of course not. Do you suppose I would marry a man who doesn't care 2 cents for me?"

Caller—What is the matter with Fido that you are watching him so closely?

Charlie—Mamma said your hat was enough to make a dog laugh, and I wanted to see him do it.

His Tailor—You'll give me your note, will you? Your note, sir, is absolutely worthless.

Young Ardent (pale with wrath)—It's worth two cents to the government, you infernal slanderer.

Minards Liniment Cures Distemper.

Gertie—Papa, will our new mamma go mad after awhile?

Father—What a question! Why do you think such a thing?

Gertie—Well, I heard her tell the cook yesterday that she got badly bitten when she married you.

"Mad!" exclaimed his chum. "Of course he's mad. He has reason to be in a dispute with his best girl the other day he offered to bet a box of candy against a kiss, and she agreed."

"Why, his rival happened to be present and suggested that he would like to be stakeholder and she also agreed to that."

Minards Liniment Cures Colds, etc.

"What's the use of 'otherin' me 'bout dat rent?" inquired the occupant of a dilapidated shanty. "De grocery man was jes' 'zain' hyuh, an I owes a doctor's bill an a hull lot of yuthub folks. An hyuh I is down on my last four dollars."

"Why don't you pay that, on account?"

"Go 'way, man. I needs dat ter pay de license foh dem two dogs."

The Boy.

The boy on the farm is not always to be envied. He is often obliged to work early and late, and do the work of any other hand, and not receive any recompense whatever. This is plainly not right, and it is not surprising that so many leave the farm at the first opportunity in spite of father's and mother's entreaties.

The boy who is old enough to do more than the chores, is old enough to receive some remuneration in a money sense; is old enough to be allowed some independence of thought and action, and should have a chance.

If you conscientiously feel that you cannot pay him in money, give him an opportunity to earn something some other way.

Let him have a small plot of ground to work for himself outside of the work he does for you, or let him raise poultry and not only let him do these things but encourage him to earn a little money which will be his own, which will tend to show him the value of money, and will raise in him ambitions and love of work.

Encourage him and help him all you can. Do not grind him down to a mere existence of servitude. Remember that he has rights, even if he is your son, and you owe him a good chance even if you don't fall inclined to pay him. It is a debt which you owe him as a parent, and for which there will be an accounting.

A Valuable Recipe.

Here's a recipe that should be cut out and pasted in one corner of the kitchen mirror, where it can be seen, for it will save many dollars worth of time and strength. Shave five cakes of good hard soap into just enough boiling water to dissolve them nicely. Stir constantly until the soap is dissolved, then add two tablespoonfuls of powdered borax, and a scant teaspoonful of kerosene. Remove the mixture from the stove before adding the kerosene. Stir it well, then pour into a covered stone jar, and use it whenever anything is very dirty, either cloth, linens, woodwork or iron utensils, it is cleaned. Apply a little to the outside of your teakettle, while it is hot, using a flannel cloth for the purpose, and see how quickly you can clean it, and how bright it will be. Use a little, also, when cleaning your windows, and you'll never again regard that task as something to be put off as long as possible. For cleaning sinks, wash-basins and slop jars, there is nothing that can equal it, and by its use the dish towel can be kept nice and white without rubbing. Put them in a pan of cold water, add enough of the compound to form a good suds, and let them come slowly to a boil. Let them boil until they are sufficiently clean, then rinse them and hang them out. Such work will almost do itself, while one is attending to other duties, and the task of keeping clean is thus robbed of more than one-half its terrors.

Minards Liniment Cures Gargot in Cows.

Oncos are almost the best vermine known. They are most useful in cases of nervous prostration, and will greatly assist in toning up the system. They are useful in all cases of cough, colds, influenza and scurvy, and kindred complaints. Eaten every other day, they soon have a whitening and clearing effect on the complexion.
