The Mother of Marie

A STORY.

The writer of this story is Marguerite Audoux, the French seamstress who wrote one morning a year or two ago to find herself famous as author of "Marie Claire." This story, under the title "Mother and Daughter," appears in a volume of her short stories, "Valserine and Other Stories," published by George Doran Company. This is a complete little domestic drama told in barely fifteen hundred words. Maupassant himself could hardly have compressed it into smaller compass.

Mme. Pelissand came into the sitting-room. She walked restlessly about it once, twice, holding in her arms a basket of stockings to darn, of odds and ends to mend. She stopped at length before the armchair, as if she contemplated sinking into its comfortable depths, then seated herself on a chair nearer the piano. Marie stopped playing at once. She knew that her mother disliked music. Mme. Pelissand held the mending-basket between her knees, a hand on either edge, and said softly: "You may go on playing, Marie." For the first time Marie turned and looked at her mother. Her eyes expressed the surprise she felt. She was still silent, but her glance betokened her thought. "What does mamma mean now?" For several days Mme. Pelissand had not seemed like herself. Formerly she would never cross the sill more searching. Receiving no answer, she took her place in the usual position of the musician, but her fingers did not strike true, the favorite Beethoven sonata left her unmoved. Stealthily she regarded her mother. Mme. Pelissand had her eyes riveted on the carpet, and her fingers actually seemed to clutch the handles of the basket.

"Mamma, something is the matter. What is it?" The eyes of the mother avoided her own. Mme. Pelissand thrust her hands in front of her as if trying to push something unseen away. She rose, then resented herself quickly. Suddenly at bay, she looked her daughter squarely in the face.

"What is the matter? I wish to marry again." Marie commenced to laugh and play at the same moment. She stopped simultaneously. She comprehended that her mother was speaking the truth. She was mentally paralyzed. She looked furtively at her mother. She noticed the white hair puffed youthfully about the temples, the wrinkled face, the narrow, tooping shoulders, the emaciated hands. She blurted out: "Why, mamma, you are 58 years old."

"Yes," responded her mother, "but what of that?" "What of that? What a strange answer! Marie had nothing to say. Tears came to her eyes, but she would not be silenced.

"What will become of me?" "You, my dear, are certainly old enough to be left alone." Holding a stocking up to find the holes, she said dryly: "You reproach me for my 58 years, but you seem to forget that you are 37, nearly thirty—"

"I do not forget," interrupted Marie. "Only—"

"Only what?" asked her mother. "I was thinking," answered Marie, "that you have always prevented my getting married, because you did not want to be left alone and now you are doing what you have begged me not to do so many times."

There was a silence. Bitter thoughts surged in the daughter's breast, which she did not care to voice. After a long silence Mme. Pelissand said:

"I am going to marry M. Tardif. I have told you about him. When he was 20 years old he asked me to marry him, and my parents refused because he was too young."

Marie made a gesture signifying that she recalled the name.

Her mother continued. "He married, too, but it seems he never ceased to love me. He has been a widower now three months and last week he asked me to be his wife." She added, after a short pause, "He has a fine house in the South of France. We are going to live there."

Marie's head had dropped. She raised it now. She said gravely, "You do not have to marry him simply because he asked you." Mme. Pelissand's answer was a vague gesture.

Her mother continued. "He married, too, but it seems he never ceased to love me. He has been a widower now three months and last week he asked me to be his wife." She added, after a short pause, "He has a fine house in the South of France. We are going to live there."

Marie's head had dropped. She raised it now. She said gravely, "You do not have to marry him simply because he asked you." Mme. Pelissand's answer was a vague gesture.

Marie continued, "Every time a man has asked me to become his wife you have forbidden me to think of it." Her mother looked ashamed. "I loved Julian. I wanted to marry him. I did not care before that. Still you stepped between, saying my duty was to you. You complained bitterly when father's death left us poor and I went to work. I refused a happiness that must be taken at the expense of yours, and Julian, finally tired out, married another. To-day you calmly announce that you are going to marry a man you never cared for and whom you have not even seen for years."

Mme. Pelissand's head was now bent so low that only the nape of her neck could be seen; but visible there were rigid cords like snakes. Marie, with a shaking voice, continued: "Mamma, I did my duty, by you, won't you do the same by me? Do not leave me alone in the world." Mme. Pelissand straightened herself abruptly. "I am going to marry because I can no longer live with you, Marie." Marie's face was spectral. She stared forward until it almost touched the agitated one of her mother.

"Why? What do you mean? Of what do you complain?" "Of everything." "For example?" "You are more intelligent and more cultivated than I. You sit for hours dreaming of things of which you never speak, and when our friends come to see us you sit and talk learnedly to the clever men, and I am ignorant of the very subjects you converse about. You choose the books I must read and I am bored by them, frightfully bored. You decide the colors of my gowns, the shapes of my hats. You earn the money by which we live and if I give an order to the servant she does not obey until you second it.

"Yes, everything is changed. It is you who are the parent and I am the child. I am afraid of being criticized whenever I open my mouth; and even when you try to be most sweet and charming you have a patronizing manner that is most irritating." A long silence intervened. Marie was lost in her dreams. Her fingers lightly touched the keys.

Finally her mother began to weep. She asked timidly, "Won't you let me marry him, Marie?" Marie rose from the piano-stool. She came and bent lovingly over her mother. She tried the wrinkled cheeks, then kissed her forehead. "Of course you may marry him, dear. Since only one of us can be happy, I wish you to be that one."

A Canadian Princess.

Perhaps no Canadian girl ever had a more varied and adventurous career than the Princess Salm-Salm, who died just recently at the age of seventy-two. She was not born a Princess, and there was nothing in the circumstances of her early youth to point to a high or prominent position in the future. It was in the little village of St. Armand West, in the Province of Quebec, that the little girl who afterwards became a Princess, was born in 1840. Her father was Captain Joy, a fisherman. Agnes Joy, as she was named, was what is called a stirring child. She was at home on the sea or in it, she rowed, swam, and dived, was an adept at village sports and could ride any horse in the district.

With Travelling Circus.

A travelling circus was the beginning of her career in the outside world. Obtaining a position in the company, she created a sensation as a daring and graceful equestrienne, who seemed not to know what "nerves" meant. In Washington her path crossed that of a dashing soldier of fortune, Prince Salm-Salm, a younger son of a Prussian royal house. He had served in the Austrian army, but having gone through his fortune, the pressure of debts drove him to make a fresh start in the new world, and he came to the United States to offer his services to the Federal forces. He fell in love with the young equestrienne of the circus, and they were married in St. Patrick's Church, in Washington, August 30th, 1862. Thus began the third chapter in the life of the Quebec fisherman's daughter.

Hardships of Campaign.

A commission in the Federal army that was being organized was not immediately forthcoming. In fact, it seems to have been due to the persuasive ways of his wife, that the Prince finally was appointed to the command of a regiment, stationed in West Virginia. Thither the Princess accompanied her husband. It was soon after her arrival with "the boys in blue" that the Princess received her first real lesson of the hardships of campaigning in war time. News came one night that the enemy were advancing, and the encamped soldiers received the order to retreat. It was raining hard, and the twelve-mile ride to the next tenting ground was through a downpour and mud almost knee-deep. The Princess rode with her husband, carrying with her from the camp a long red ostrich feather for her hat. The company was poorly provided with food, and the recent favorite of the Washington public had to content herself with salt pork and hard tack, while her bed was made of some rough boards, a straw mattress, and a couple of buffalo skins. When the war ended, Prince Salm-Salm had risen to the brevet rank of Brigadier-General, and through all his campaigns the Princess accompanied him, sharing the hardships and danger.

Prince Went to Mexico.

From the United States, after peace was declared, Prince Salm-Salm went to Mexico, to join the forces of the Emperor Maximilian, who was then just beginning the campaign for the maintenance of his Empire. The Prince was appointed as a Colonel on the staff, but soon after was made aide-de-camp to the Emperor, and chief of his household. The Princess was quite well qualified to rise with him to this new position. It was in this campaign that she was destined to go through the most stirring events of her remarkable career. When the fall of the city of Queretaro made the Emperor a prisoner, with most of the leaders of his crushed undertaking, it was the Princess upon whom fell most of the planning and scheming for their rescue. She took long, midnight rides across the country, swarming as it was with lawless men in the unsettled times of war; she was frequently under fire, but always escaped uninjured. Her husband, as one of the Emperor's aides, was imprisoned with his leader, and to rescue them in some way was the absorbing object to accomplish which the Princess set herself to do all that a fearless, resourceful, and persevering woman could do. She sought to interest Porfirio Diaz in the royal captive, and to arrange a conference, between the fallen Emperor and the general commanding the opposing forces. When these attempts failed, she plotted day and night to effect the escape of the prisoners, but her carefully laid plans were frustrated, chiefly through the lack of ready money. She rode to San Luis Potosi to implore President Juarez to save the Emperor and his aides. The President told her that her husband was in no danger, but the Emperor must die.

Like One Distracted.

"I was like one distracted," she wrote in her diary after it was all over. "I was convinced that the Emperor was lost beyond hope, but I struggled on for his life. The last day before the execution I made another effort, the last, to save him. It was eight o'clock in the evening when I went to see Mr. Juarez. He was pale and suffering himself. With trembling lips I pleaded for the life of the Emperor, or at least for delay. The President said he could not grant it; he would not prolong his agony any longer; the Emperor must die to-morrow. When I heard these words I was frantic with grief. Trembling in every limb and sobbing, I fell down on my knees and pleaded with words that came from my heart, but which I cannot remember. The President tried to raise me, but I held his knees convulsively. I said I would not leave him until he granted me the life.

"He answered me in a low, sad voice: 'I am grieved to see you on your knees before me, but if all the kings and queens of Europe were in your place, I would not spare that life. It is not I who take it; it is the people and the law, and if I do not do its will, the people will take it and mine also.'"

In Franco-Prussian War.

Soon after the Emperor's death and the termination of the struggle in Mexico, the liberated Prince and the Princess left for Europe. When the Franco-German war broke out, Prince Salm-Salm was commissioned a major in the Prussian army. For the third time the Princess followed her husband to the field of conflict. This time she devoted herself to caring for the wounded soldiers; she organized a hospital corps and trained nurses, her past experiences in the American Civil War and in Mexico standing her in good stead. Soon, however, a great blow fell upon the Princess. Her husband, leading his troops in the charge at Gravelotte, was shot down by three bullets. He was buried in a soldier's grave on the field, but a few days later the grief-stricken widow came from the nursing lines to remove her husband's body to the burial place of his ancestors. It was on the eighteenth of August, 1870, that the Prince fell. The Princess was then about thirty; she had been married scarcely eight years, but they were years which had proved that the affection of the fisherman's daughter and the soldier son of royalty was no passing emotion.

Stricken With Smallpox.

The Princess went back to her duties in the field hospital, until she herself was struck with smallpox, from which she recovered after a serious illness. She went into no more campaigns. Some years after her husband's death she married Mr. Charles Henneage, of the British diplomatic service, but the marriage was not a happy one, and a separation was effected. From that time, the Princess lived quietly in Germany until she was an old woman.

Her body now rests in the little cemetery of the village of her birthplace, St. Armand West.—Canadian Pictorial.

CHANGE OF CLIMATE DID NOT HELP

But GIN PILLS Conquered His Rheumatism

THE fact that men of standing and responsibility do not hesitate to come out and state frankly how much good GIN PILLS have done them, speaks volumes for this good old remedy.

Mr. W. C. Reid, of Hamilton, whose statement we publish below, with his permission, is one of the best known commercial men in Canada. His many friends throughout the country will be delighted to learn that he is quite himself again. He says:

"I have been for the last two years a cripple with Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I have tried almost everything known to medical science to relieve me of the intense pain and inflammation. I sought change of climate in Kentucky and other Southern points without relief. Your manager in this city recommended GIN PILLS and I have since taken eight boxes and am now cured. I consider GIN PILLS the conqueror of Rheumatism and Kidney Disease."

(Signed) W. C. REID.

Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica and all other troubles arising from Weak, inactive or diseased kidneys, have little chance against GIN PILLS.

The curative properties in these pills go straight to the root of the trouble—the failure of the kidneys to keep the blood free from the irritating Uric Acid which is continually being formed in the body. GIN PILLS help the Kidneys to perform this function properly, and the train of troubles vanishes.

Just try it and prove it to your own satisfaction. There is no risk—money back if GIN PILLS do not help you.

Do You Remember Dates.

By RUTH CAMERON.

My small niece, Rosalie, came home from school completely discouraged, the other day. She had failed in her history examination. Now if it had been arithmetic we wouldn't have been at all surprised, for Rosalie has no head for figures. But she is extremely pleased with her first history course, and so we were much puzzled until we asked a few questions about the test; and we understood perfectly. For at least half the questions were more like arithmetic than history. In other words, they were on nothing but dates. And while Rosalie seems to have a fine grasp of the facts of English history and their relation to each other, and can tell us some of its thrilling stories with a dramatic fervor, that makes them far more interesting than the history book does, she doesn't know the exact dates. And so she fumbled.

Perhaps it is because I take after my niece in having no head for exact figures, but it certainly seems to me that the attempt to make children remember lists of dates is one of the great mistakes of our education. Of course, if we put sufficient mental effort upon it we can learn dates, and doubtless it is good mental training and teaches concentration. But aren't there plenty of other ways in which one can learn concentration, and at the same time absorb something that will be more worth knowing, and that one will remember after a few years?

I emphasize those last few words because I think there isn't one person in a hundred who remembers more than two or three dates in all the innumerable list he was obliged to learn in school.

I have asked several people lately what dates in English history they can remember. Four out of five whom I asked remembered exactly one date, and all, curiously enough, the same. Before you read on, ask yourself what date in English history you remember, and I'll wager it will be that very one—1066 the Battle of Hastings. Incidentally two of the four could not tell what that battle stood for in English history, or why it was so important—things that would certainly have been more worth remembering than its exact date.

The average person seems to remember more dates in American history, but even here he has little to show for the long lists he once learned. It is actually true that before I started talking with my friends about this subject, I could have named just four dates in American history, 1492, 1775, 1812 and 1861. And the only reason I remembered two of those dates was that they were embalmed in verse.—"In 1492, Columbus sailed o'er the ocean blue;" "1775, hardly a man is now alive;"—and verse I do not easily forget.

Doubtless I am more forgetful than the average, but my investigations have persuaded me that I am not so much so as you might think. Bring up the subject of dates sometime among your own friends, and see.

If a child learns the sequence of events in history, their causal relation to each other, and their approximate dates, it seems to me he has learned all that is necessary, and all that he will ever remember.

And for the sake of our little student, and all the other little students who find it hard to remember cold figures, I wish our school boards thought the same.

Notable Easter Messages

REV. J. S. SUTHERLAND,
Pastor Presbyterian Church.

"In the midst of life we are in death."—This oft-repeated saying expresses the common experience of our race.

"To our graves we walk in the thick footprints of departed men."

And yet few lay this fact to heart. We are prone to think all men mortal but ourselves.

Perhaps it is often just as well. Life would be too sad were we always thinking of the grave. Death brings a private and a public meaning to the one to whom it is addressed.

The affairs of life almost necessarily engage the attention of others. In most instances, Watson's lines are true: "In mid whirl of the dance of Time ye start."

Start at the cold touch of Eternity. And cast your cloaks about you and depart—

The minstrels pause not in their minstrelsy."

Sometimes, however, we who still tarry in the life of Time look wistfully after the forms that pass out into the night, and wonder where they have gone.

On such occasions the Easter message appeals to us with greater power. It comes to us like the return of spring, or like a glorious sunrise after the darkest hour of night.

The fact that Christ is risen inspires us to look death in the face and to die with Paul, "O death, where is thy sting?" O grave, where is thy victory?" It enables us to find peace and hope, not by ignoring death, which is folly, or by trying to explain it away, which is futile, but by looking at what lies beyond it and gives it its true significance.

Blessed as is our life, and as its message is founded upon a definite historical fact.

That fact is the resurrection of our Lord Jesus Christ. Into the consideration of the evidence in support of it we cannot enter in the space at our disposal on the present occasion.

It is sufficient to say that, without acknowledging as a fact the resurrection and continued life of Him who was crucified on Calvary, it is impossible to account in a satisfactory way for the existence of the Christian Church and the New Testament Scriptures.

In those scriptures we find the vision of the risen Saviour placed over against the dark portal of the tomb; and as we listen to the first Easter message we feel that death has been swallowed up in victory. Each of the Evangelists seems to proclaim in his own way what Browning makes David say to Saul—

"O Saul, I shall be to a face like my face that receives thee: a man like to me. Thou shalt love and be loved by, forever: a hand like this hand. Shall I throw open the gates of new life to thee? See, the Christ stand!"

I have heard men speak in eloquent eulogy of the dead. I have been told that those whom they praised were not dead, because their memory and their fame survived, and the results of their good deeds continued.

It is all we can say about those who were almost better to say nothing at all. Such panegyrics can never comfort men who deal with realities and not merely with words. If Livingstone's death ended his conscious personal existence, what difference does it make to him how he is lived, or that the Christian world is celebrating the centenary of his birth? Men say that

"Sappho survives, because we sing her songs, and Meschylus, because we read his plays."

But such statements would seem ridiculous were they not pathetic. They must ever appear a hollow mockery to those who know what life really is. They may be well-meant tributes of respect and admiration, but they laid upon the tombs of departed greatness. But like the flowers we lay upon the graves in our cemeteries, they are doomed to swift decay, and often wither in our grasp.

The message of Easter is altogether different. It tells us of one who lived on after death. It assures us that "There is no death; What seems so is transition."

It points us to Christ as a living Saviour; and to all who are His friends and followers, it recalls His words: "Because I live ye shall live also." "He that believeth on Me hath everlasting life." In fact, this message is essentially that which Browning expresses so well in "The Grammarian's Funeral"—

"Others mistrust, and say: 'But time escapes; 'tis not to live now or never!' He said, 'What's time? Leave now to dogs and apes!'"

The Manse, St. John's, March 18, 1913.

REV. W. HENRY THOMAS,
Pastor Congregational Church.

The message of Easter is a message of hope. "If a man die, shall he live again?" was the repeated question of pre-Christian humanity when it sorrowfully lay the bodies of its beloved out of sight. Returning dawns and recurring springs whispered "he may." But hope languished until that brighter spring and brighter dawn loudly proclaimed "Fear not, for He is risen!" No longer may any shroud hopeless tears over the dead Christ. For the way has been opened and the light is shined upon the bereaved widows and children of the desolate Antarctic explorers. Easter utters its comforting message—"Thy husband, thy father, shall rise again." Shiloh's bones in this sea-girt Isle may already begin to banish grief for "the sea shall give up its dead."

And if life conquers death, shall not sin of which it is the wages, be overcome of holiness? In the Resurrection of Christ, every other resurrection is implied and foreshadowed. Sinners awake! Evil habits shall not always prevail. We are destined to rise out of dishonesty and intemperance and hatred and lust. Purity will burn out the warm breezes of unselfish love; the craving for drink will give way to the quest for God and the burglar bent will be straightened out beneath the pressure of righteousness.

High Jinks at Rossley's.

There is a treat in store for the patrons of Rossley's Star Theatre. An Easter Pantomime, with thirty-two performers, because the city children trained by Mrs. Rossley are worthy of the name performers, by their singing, dancing and acting is much more enjoyable than a great many so-called performers. Mrs. Rossley has made a name and reputation for herself in St. John's, and brought forward the talent in the children. She has brought out to such a state of perfection his pantomime that it is on a different scale to any of the others. There is a plantation song and dance in character that will surprise a great many. There is also the most effective and beautiful butterfly dance with elegant electrical effects and costumes. It promises to be the biggest affair ever attempted. New pictures by Rossley's fireproof machine, and the Star orchestra with Prof. Ryall, as leader.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf. There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast.

PARIS, March 20.
Rumors reaching here from Rome, yesterday, regarding the serious illness of the Pope, started gossip as to his possible successor. The name most frequently mentioned is that of Cardinal Diomedo Falconio.

LONDON, March 20.
The London taxicab strike is ended. All firms belonging to the motor cab Proprietors' Association have acceded to the men's terms. The strike began on January 1st, when the proprietors sought to make the men pay 13 pence a gallon for oil instead of 8 pence.

LONDON, March 20.
The Arson squad were out again last night, and burned down the fine country residence of Lady Amy White, widow of Field Marshal Sir George White, the hero of Ladysmith; also the building on the West-ern Super Mare golf links. Lady White's house was a big mansion, standing on spacious grounds at Bagfield Green in Surrey, near the Thames. The fire was discovered at 10 a.m. when the flames had made such headway that it was entirely gutted. Traces of oil and inflammable materials were found in prominent spots outside the grounds were papers inscribed, "Stop torturing our comrades in prison," "Votes for Women." "By kind permission of Charles Hobbouse," the last referring to an utterance by Hobbouse, who is Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, uttered some time ago, when he said women lacked the real revolutionary spirit of men, who burned and sacked to support their cause. Two women on bicycles were seen in the neighborhood half an hour before the fire was discovered. The criminals at Weston Super Mare also escaped. There are many suffragettes there, where Viscount Haldane is scheduled to deliver an address before the National Teachers' Conference.

GRANDHAVEN, Mich., March 20.
Nineteen fishermen, suffering the terrors of hunger, cold and ice reached port 16-day in the fish tugs Anna, Dora, and Box and Cox. They had been fast in the ice for three days and nights until rescued yesterday by the Pers Marquette, car ferry, No. 18. The boats left Grandhaven at dawn on Monday. Ice closed in on them when two miles out of Grandhaven, said Capt. Fisher, of the Anna, to-day. We tried to break through, but it was of no use. A gale came up and started huge cakes running and crushing. Finally the Anna was lifted clear of the water and thrown upon great icefields. The steering gear was smashed and the steam pipe cracked. When the steam shot out of the boilers, the cabin was filled and the men were driven out on the ice. They thought they were gone, but repairs were made in time, and the ice opened and splashed the Anna back into the water. Early on Tuesday they ran out of food and tobacco. On Wednesday the Dora broke her shaft backing the ice. That night the car ferry came along, and supplied them with provisions, which were much needed, as the men were suffering greatly from hunger.

The Police Court.

A drunk, who was up for the second time, was fined $1 or 3 days; another drunk was fined a similar sum. A drunk who was also charged with assaulting a girl, was fined $5 or 14 days.
A man, convicted for the fourth time of being drunk and disorderly, in his mother-in-law's house, was fined $25 or one month.

A fireman charged with being drunk and using threatening language toward a shipmate, was fined $5 or 14 days.
A driver convicted of driving without lights was fined $1, or three days.

A Possibility.

The public news message of yesterday conveys the rumor that in the event of the death of His Holiness Pius X, there is a possibility of Cardinal Diomedo Falconio being elected to the Chair of Peter. Such an event would be most pleasing to all Catholics here, but especially so to the people of Harbor Grace, where "Father Falconio" as he was familiarly called, was a priest of the Cathedral Diocese for several years under Bishop Carafagnini and endeared himself to all. Many now in middle life will remember him.

Father And Son Both Speak Out.

TELL WHAT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS DID FOR THEM.

Old and Young Are Alike Liable to Kidney Disease But Both Can Find New Health and Renewed Vigor in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

St. Faustin Station, Terrebonne Co., Que., March 21. (Special)—That kidney disease is liable to strike the young as well as the old and in either case is surely cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills is shown in one family resident here. The father, aged fifty-two, and the son, aged eighteen, have both made statements for publication.

Pierre Berton, the father, says: "I suffered much from kidney disease. I urinated very little at a time and it was very thick. I used Dodd's Kidney Pills and they cured me."

Eugene Berton, the son, says: "Those who suffer from kidney disease should use Dodd's Kidney Pills, as they cured me."

Kidney disease is not hereditary but weak kidneys undoubtedly are. Weak kidneys are liable to break down under the constant strain put on them. To prevent a breakdown and the bad health all over the body that is sure to result you must use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Easter Fifty Years Ago.

It is little more than fifty years ago that I, as a young minister of a suburban church, was invited to preach, one Sunday morning in April, at the Broadway Tabernacle Church, then standing at the corner of Broadway and Thirty-Fourth Street in New York City. It happened to be Easter Sunday, as I knew; and although almost no notice of the day was taken at that time by the non-Episcopal Protestant Churches, it had been my custom to preach an Easter sermon, and I ventured to bring one with me for that service. There were no Easter flowers, and there was no Easter music. I doubt if it had occurred to the minister or to any member of the congregation that it was Easter Sunday. I thought it prudent therefore to make a virtual apology for preaching a sermon on the Resurrection, to say that while we, as the children of the Puritans, had little to do with sacred days, it might not be unfitting for us, on the day when many Christians were celebrating the resurrection of our Lord, to turn our thoughts in that direction.

After the sermon, my good and great friend, then pastor of that church, had just one word of commendation, and that referred to the sentence in which I said that we as Congregationalists, had little use for sacred days. "I am glad," he said, "that you emphasized that fact." The incident will illustrate the change which has taken place in the attitude toward the Easter festival of the Protestant churches during the last half century. It is now the day of the Christian year most generally observed in all the churches.

The message of the Easter Day to you and me, and to all men—what is it? In what words shall we phrase it? We might get some idea of the message from the conduct of those who hear it.

See that man sitting solitary and dejected within his home. There is a knock at the door, and a messenger enters. Now he is delivering his message. The downcast look has gone from the face of the listener; he is all attention; watch him. He springs to his feet; his hands smite each other with a ringing blow; his face is all ablaze with joyful emotion; his voice is pitched in a high key; his movements are full of energy. You have not heard a word that the messenger has spoken, but you know that he must have brought a joyful message.—Washington Gladney, D.D., LL.D.

Pope's Health.

Special to Evening Telegram.

ROME, March 20.
Professor Marchisani, consulting physician to His Holiness, to-day absolutely refused to allow the Pontiff to receive General Porfirio Diaz, considering it dangerous to his weakened condition after his recent illness. During the past two days the Pope has suffered from insomnia and loss of appetite. The liquid diet which he has been taking failed to overcome the weakness resulting from his illness. Yesterday, on his name day, St. Joseph, he was compelled to remain in bed, and for the first time since he was ordained priest he was unable to celebrate mass on this occasion. The Pope's physician called to-night. He was afraid the Pope would not last long. In any case he will not resume audiences for a month.

Delicious "Syrup of Figs" Removes All Sour Bile, Gas, Headache, Constipation

All those days when you feel miserable, headachy, bilious and dull are due to torpid liver and sluggish bowels. The days when your stomach is sour and full of gas, when you have indigestion; the nights when your nerves twitch and you are restless and can't sleep could be avoided with a teaspoonful of delicious Syrup of Figs. Isn't it foolish to be distressed when there is such a pleasant way to overcome it?

Give your inactive liver and ten yards of waste-clogged bowels a thorough cleansing this time. Put an end to constipation.

Take a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs to-night, sure, and just see for yourself by morning, how gently but thoroughly all the sour bile, undigested fermenting food and clogged up waste matter is moved on and out of your system—no nausea—no griping—no weakness.

You simply can't have your liver inactive and your thirty feet of bowels constipated with sour, decaying waste matter and feel well. The need of a laxative is a natural need, but with delicious Syrup of Figs you are not drugging yourself. Being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it can not injure.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna." Refuse, with scorn, any of the so-called Fig Syrup imitations. They are meant to deceive you. Look on the label. The genuine, old reliable, bears the name, California Fig Syrup Company.

Terrible Accident On Good Friday.

TWELVE-YEAR-OLD BOY THE VICTIM—SIDNEY GILES SWALLOWED GLASS TUBE—JUGULAR VEIN SEVERED AND HE BLEED TO DEATH.

The grim reaper—Death—has many peculiar methods of work, claiming victims. This was demonstrated yesterday afternoon when a promising young life was brought to a close under harrowing circumstances. The victim was Sidney, the twelve-year-old son of Samuel and Martha Giles, of Carew Street. News of the tragedy quickly spread around the city and there was widespread sympathy offered for the bereaved and grief-stricken parents. Facts of the sad happening which was really accidental, were learned by a Telegram reporter.

WHAT LED TO THE ACCIDENT.

At 3.20 the accident occurred and during the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Giles, who were visiting friends in the suburbs. Sidney was in the kitchen in company with his two sisters Sadie and Priscilla. The former was engaged sweeping the house while Priscilla, the elder of the two, was washing dishes. The latter was playing with Sidney, who was amusing himself with a glass tube which was about twelve inches in length and two inches in diameter. Through this instrument he was blowing soap bubbles at his sister. On this occasion the unfortunate lad went to a receptacle, filled the tube and standing at the kitchen door, which was partly open, started to blow the bubbles at Priscilla, who, at this juncture, was putting dishes in the cupboard. The girl unconsciously, and not dreaming of doing any harm, shut the door to avoid being wet. In consequence the panel of the door struck the outside end of the tube which was projecting from Sidney's mouth and drove it down his throat. The inner portion of the glass fastening tightly in that organ until it burst. The tongue was literally cut out of his head, while the jugular vein was severed, particles of glass penetrating the throat from the inside. Immediately blood gushed forth profusely. The two sisters became frightened and their screams alarmed neighbors. When asked what was the matter with him, Sidney replied: "It was my own fault, Prissy." The little girl was dumfounded and nearly fainted when she saw the state of her brother, who was fast bleeding to death. The boy was still conscious and remarked to his sister: "my tongue is cut." Several people, who were on the scene, hastened for a physician, but this was not an easy matter to accomplish as nearly all the doctors were out of their surgeries, it being a public holiday. Eventually, Dr. Anderson was communicated with by telephone, and he himself responded. In the interim Mr. John Fleming, who lives next

AFTER LONG SUFFERING

These Two Women's Health Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Read Their Own Statements.

Cheneyville, La.—"Some time ago when in poor health, suffering from female ill, I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills. I soon felt better and gained in strength and flesh. A gradual improvement continued as I took the Compound, and from 120 pounds I now weigh 155, and feel that my life has been prolonged.

"I deeply regret that I did not know of your medicine long before I did. Friends often speak of the wonderful change in my health, and I tell them that your medicine did it."—Mrs. J. W. STANLEY, Cheneyville, La.

Distressing Case of Mrs. M. Gary.
Chicago, Ill.—"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for backache and it has certainly made a new woman of me. After my first baby was born I was left a perfect wreck. I was so weak I could hardly do my household duties and suffered with an awful backache. But since I have used your Compound the pains in my back have left me and I am strong again.

"My mother used it also through Change of Life and speaks very highly of it. You can use this letter any way you wish. I think it is only fair for one who has suffered as much as I, to let others know of your great remedy."—Mrs. M. GARY, 2538 N. Ridgeway Ave., Chicago, Ill.

door to the Giles family on Carew Street, took into his arms the dying form, which was then a mass of blood, and hastily brought him to the General Hospital. While en route the poor little fellow moaned pitifully and was gasping for breath. The blood was flowing from his wounded throat with increased force, though he was still conscious, as he remarked to Mr. Fleming to "bring him home, he was dying." On arrival at the Hospital, the half-lifeless body was brought to the operating room where Dr. Anderson worked on it. The heart was beating but other portions of the body were dead. Artificial restoration and every means of trying to save the young life was resorted to, but all proved unavailing and within the period of a few minutes from the time he entered the institution, or twenty-three minutes after the mishap occurred, the soul of the bright young lad, who a half hour previously was in the best of health and strength, fled to the Great beyond.

BODY SENT HOME.

At 9 o'clock last night, the body was confined at the Hospital, and sent home. The parents were heartbroken over the loss of their son and more so because of their absence at the time he met his death. Mrs. Giles was distracted and could not be consoled until visited by officers of the Salvation Army, who gave her words of consolation. A sad feature is that this is the third son Mr. and Mrs. Giles have lost within the past three years, two of them, young men, having succumbed to that dread disease, consumption. To the sorrowing parents the general and sincere sympathy of the community will be extended in their hour of trouble and grief, and in which the Telegram joins.

Deathbed Poem.

"Last Message" of Joaquin Miller.
New York, Feb. 20.—"At the Final Parting," is the title of a poem by Mr. Joaquin Miller, "the Poet of the Sierra," who died at San Francisco on Monday at the age of 71. The poem was composed on his deathbed when he knew the end was near. A few hours before consciousness left him the aged poet handed a painfully written sheet to his wife with the words:

"My last message to the world." The poem runs:

Could I but teach man to believe,
Could I but make small men to grow,
To break frail spider-webs that weave
About their thrones and bar their low;
Could I but sing one song and lay
Grim doubt, I then could go my way
By tranquil silence glad, serene,
And satisfied from out the sooth.
But ah! this dabbled, this doubt,
This doubt of God, this doubt of good,
This doubt of man, this doubt of heart,
Wouldst learn to know, one little flower,
Its perfume, perfect form, and hue—
Yes, wouldst thou have one perfect hour,
Of all the years that come to you?
Then grow as God hath planted: grow
A lordly oak or daisy low.
As He hath set His garden, be
Just what thou art, or grass or tree.
Thy treasures, up to Heaven laid,
Await thy sure ascending soul—
Life after life: be not afraid.

Best City Doctors Failed, But Cure Was Effected by Use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mrs. A. T. Smith.
You apply Dr. Chase's Ointment for eczema and feel the benefit as if by magic. It may take some days to get the sores cleaned out and the healing process fully established, but from day to day you can see the old trouble gradually disappearing and know that you are getting rid of it.

Mrs. A. T. Smith, 1 Mt. Charles St., Montreal, Que., writes: "I had eczema on my leg for four years, and tried many remedies and doctors in Montreal and Boston, without any benefit. I used three boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and was cured completely. This was three years ago. Since then I used Dr. Chase's Ointment for irritations and eruptions of the skin, and easily got rid of them with two or three applications. Dr. Chase's Ointment is a wonderful preparation."

Sealing Notes.

The following was received last evening by Supt. Smith of the Anglo from Cape Ray:—

"Wind NW, foggy, heavy close packed ice everywhere. Seal reports packed 1,000 seals yesterday nine miles from ship. Neptune, 5,000, six miles from ship. Southern Cross, 400. Viking about 12 miles distant, no news from her."

Yesterday afternoon Job Bros. had this message from Capt. Farquhar of the S.S. Seal:—

"Neptune men report yesterday for 4,000 young harps, about six miles from ship. We have 1,000 packed, nine miles off. Southern Cross, 200. Viking about 12 miles west of us, no word from her. Ice very heavy; position of ship about 25 miles off Cape George, weather bad."

Last night Capt. G. Barbour, of the S. S. Nascope, wired, as follows:—

"Spoke Ranger and Sagona; latter 1200. Ranger and Kite nothing. Nothing seen since last patch was cut. Don't know 'Ventures' catches, but probably 8,000 to 10,000 each."

From S. S. Stefano, Friday, "Took 1,200 young hoods to-day; not in patch yet."

From S. S. Floriel, Thursday Night, "Met the Ranger, Kite and Sagona yesterday. Sagona has 1,200 young harps."

MEN IN DANGER.—The authorities have been informed that a score of men are constantly engaged at troubling on Quill Lake, on which the ice is thin and honeycombed and liable to give way at any moment. Citizens should exercise some discretion and not risk their lives in such a fool hardy fashion.

M. C. L. I.

A large attendance greeted the speakers at the debate on Thursday evening, the subject being very interesting and important, viz:—

"Resolved, that the Municipal Council are doing the best they can with the limited means at their disposal."

The affirmative was led by Mr. Alex. Mews and seconded by Mr. W. Dwyer and Mr. R. Holloway, the main contention being that the Council represented public opinion, and that when the citizens demanded improvements and a more efficient service they would get it; that full powers of incorporation were needed to make the Council independent of the Government, that owing to various reasons it was impossible to collect arrears of water rates, etc.

The negative was led by Dr. Macpherson, seconded by Mr. H. Wyatt and Dr. Roberts. It was advocated that the police could be used more than at present to enforce the Council's laws without extra cost to the Council; that infants mortality would be reduced if the law against the throwing of refuse and night soil on the streets was enforced; that insurance rates would be reduced if a more competent inspection of chimneys was obtained and citizens be compelled to clean chimneys at least once a year. The time for general speaking was fully occupied, the members contending that the Council ignored public opinion and did not apply the same principles to the Council as they do to their own business, and until that was done we could not expect much improvement, as no Council would accept for his own business labor which he now accepts for the city. On the vote being taken it was decided in the negative by a very large majority.

Good Friday at S. A. Citadel.

At the S. A. Citadel, yesterday, the services were conducted by Brigadier and Mrs. Morehen, assisted by Staff Capt. Cave and the city officers, and were largely attended. At 11 o'clock the Brigadier took for his text: "Getsemane." In the afternoon, "The Judgment Hall," and at night "Calvary." The speaker in choice language led his hearers step by step from the feast of the Passover to his sacrifice on Calvary. Mrs. Morehen also spoke at the morning and evening service, and her strong and pathetic appeals moved many to tears. The singing of the large congregations were exceptionally good and most heartily enjoyed. While the session by the splendid Citadel band evoked much favorable comment, the services at the Citadel to-morrow will be of a most interesting character. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

CHAPTER XXVII.—THE IRISH HEROINES.
CLOSING SUMMARY.

We have told these stories because there is so much in them that borders on human nature, and history, and to us the characters of those who pioneered our country. In the "Old Englishman" we had the lad who came as a son of industry; in the "Irish Emigrants" we had those who came for the same purpose; in the "Lad from Sunny France" we had a young man who was able to make his way; while in the "Soldier Lad" we had an equally desirable phase of life. In the good Doctor we found a man who, when he could not make a living by his regular calling, took the next best thing that came to hand and made a success of it. In our heroines and their good husbands we have those who represent capital and wealth; and who embarked on the uncertainty of business. In the company, therefore, we have a fair representation of the class of persons whom it takes to make a community; and upon whom the real success of a country rests. These men and women brought their best and gave it to their new homes; and though much has been written of Newfoundland's past her real domestic history has not been written; and it is in the annals of the freights, and the struggles of the individual, that many of our most interesting records lie.

In my ramblings round our Island home, I have learned much of these things, and it is because of this that I write in this manner. We have many in our midst who are well versed in our domestic history; and who, if they would give their views to the public, would contribute to our literature a vast amount of knowledge that is now being lost. We are being removed and estranged from the generation of our grandfathers and our great grandfathers; some of whom I have written about. It was while travelling on the West Coast that my interest in these things was particularly aroused; and while reading the stories of our fellow-townsmen, Mr. Kinella, of the Post Office, I began to think how much there is that we have yet to learn; and how much there is not written, and not recorded. Mr. Kinella has told some rare stories in our Christmas numbers; and he told them just as he found them; and he found them as I have found these, by simply touching the freights and hearts of the people. Though I have overstepped the number of chapters stated in opening these notes, I have not exhausted my list of stories, and perhaps at another date I will publish a few more. Each story as published has elicited comments and questionings from different people. I have met some who knew the old Englishman; and a few who knew the Irish Emigrants; and in the story of Dr. Walsh, I discovered that my neighbor, Mr. Benjamin Bugden, who lives in the old building property to mine, is a great grandson of the Doctor's. He called and told me that he had been following my notes, and that I had cleared up for him what had always been a title mystery. It was in reference to the table. He had often seen the table when a lad at Burin. There was something about it very uncommon that attracted his attention and the attention of others; but he never could find its proper history. He knew that it had been used by a surgeon who had served on a man-of-war, and that was about all the average person of the town knew about it. The table is still in the possession of the lady whom I have mentioned. She brought it to St. John's with her some twenty years ago when she came here to live. She did not like the city and returned to Burin; from whence she went to Halifax, where she now resides. The table is mahogany as I stated, and is round, of about three feet diameter. It is bound round the edge with a rim that is about an eighth of an inch higher than the surface of the table proper. Mr. Bugden left Burin some twelve years ago and returned to Australia. He lived there even and a half years, and returned here to St. John's for the good of his wife's health. He thought it a little singular that he should have seen the table so often, and have travelled so far, and come back and learned the story of it from his neighbor.

In closing our notes and stories for the present, we desire to thank all who have given encouragement either by kindly words or by expressions of approval. There are some few perhaps who misinterpreted the motive of writing; but the majority of readers, I feel certain, understand them, and read them in the spirit in which they are written. They are written for the common good of our common country; written to increase faith in her possibilities; and with a desire to show it possible that we have a heritage in Newfoundland that should be prized and developed; and if we are able to do this we must do it so often, and to learn her history we should study well the works of such authors as Prowse, Harvey and others; and thereby acquaint ourselves with their researches. To those who have read these pieces, and followed the stories through, whether at home or abroad; and who in the past have read our rambles and sent us kindly words; to one and all, whether their home be in the city or in the village—for another term we say ADIEU.

Fashions and Fads.

Linen and velvet is one of the startling new combinations we shall see much of. French and German valenciennes are being much used for summer lingerie dresses. The new glove handkerchiefs are in white and colors, lace-edged and hand embroidered. Some of the new gowns have white satin undersleeves to match the overlying collars. The very short skirt draperies for evening necessitate beautiful stockings and shoes. The new note for summer seems to be the extreme grace and costliness of the new tissues. A white wool skirt, embroidered with red and blue roses, has a coat of red or blue linen, with white belt. One of the loveliest new materials is a figured bengaline silk. Used with oriental embroideries it is perfect.

Enchanting little chemisettes and undersleeves of net have returned—a reminiscence of the Second Empire fashions. A great deal of fancy ostrich is seen on the new small hats, usually standing upright or set at some astonishing angle. A charming costume has the Napoleonic coat, with turned-back flaps on the position back and a front ending at the waist line. The new linen chemises are very open and very airy. Usually, they are made up for morning dresses, with a touch of black velvet. Silk novelty suits promise to be in great favor for spring. One unusual combination is of King's blue ottoman silk with soft gray. Taupe broche satin, silver lace and white chiffon are the elements of a delightful evening gown, which has dangling taupe acorns for ornament. One of the beautiful tinsel tissues for evening gowns has a golden warp shining through the vividly colored designs. Either side is the right side.

12 Tumors Removed Without an Operation

Dear Mrs. Currah—I am enjoying better Silver Lake, Ont., Sept. 20, 1909. I and I think I am entirely cured. I have none of the old symptoms. I am very grateful for my present health, and think Orange Lily is the greatest treatment for women known. Its use in my case caused 12 tumors or growths of various sorts to be expelled. Some were as large as a hen's egg, and others smaller, down to the size of a walnut. You may use my case in your advertisement, for it is the solid truth, and you cannot describe all the good it has done for me. Mrs. Louise B. Bolte-ridge.

This letter gives an indication of the positive benefits that always follow the use of Orange Lily. It is an entirely natural and comes in direct contact with the suffering organs. It produces results from the start in all cases of women's disorders, including painful periods, falling of womb, irregularities, leucorrhoea, etc. I will send a sample box containing 10 days' treatment absolutely free to any suffering woman who has not yet tried it if she will send me her address. Enclose 3 stamps and address MRS. FRANCES E. CURRAH, Windsor, Ont.

When Easter Falls.

Easter comes unusually early this year. Easter Sunday falls on March 23rd.

The date is determined by a somewhat complicated method. The rule is that Easter Day is always the first Sunday after the "paschal full moon"; that is, the full moon which happens upon or following after March 21st (the beginning of the ecclesiastical year), and if the full moon happens upon a Sunday, Easter Sunday is the next Sunday.

The date is not rendered more lucid by the fact that the "full moon" is not an actual full moon, but an ecclesiastical one, which falls generally on a day after the actual full moon. This method of determining when Easter Day should be celebrated was not settled without considerable controversy in the early church. It seems that in the second century a dispute arose between the Eastern and Western churches on the point, the vast proportions of the Eastern Christians celebrating Easter on the fourteenth day of the first Jewish month or moon, considering it to be equivalent to the Jewish Passover.

The Western Christians, however, kept it on the Sunday after the fourteenth day, holding it to be commemorative of the resurrection of Jesus. The matter was eventually settled by the Council of Nice in favor of Western usage, and further points were arranged as regards English usage at the Council of Whitby in the year 664. Many interesting Easter customs take place in Brittany, where so much veneration was paid to the numerous prehistoric stones which still stand in that the Church was obliged to associate Christian ceremonial with many pagan customs.

Thus in the giant paschal tapers which are tried the ancient fires which celebrated the coming of Spring. In England divergences of custom are still observed in several provincial towns. In the United States and Canada a vast number of white lilies are used at Easter, perhaps more than in any other part of the world.—Canadian Pictorial.

Capt. Bull and Crew Arrives.

Capt. Bull and his Norwegian whaling crew arrived by the Bruce express on Thursday to take charge of the whaler Cabot, which is now at the South Side being put in readiness for the coming season's voyage which starts earlier this year than usual. The whaling party crossed from Norway to Liverpool and then took passage on the R. M. S. Virginian to Halifax, then by rail to St. John's. At the Nova Scotian port a member of the crew, a blacksmith, complained of being ill. At Sydney he was placed in the Queen's Hospital where it was found he was suffering from a serious internal ailment. It is not likely he will be able to prosecute the whaling voyage. Manager Elliott is now at the factory at Bellevue where the Cabot operates.

Cascarets Surely Straighten You Up

No Headache, Biliousness, Constipation, Lazy Liver or Unsettled Bowels, by morning.

Are you keeping your bowels, liver and stomach clean, pure, and fresh with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passage way through these alimentary or drainage organs every few days with Salts, Cathartic pills, Castor Oil or Purgative Waters?

Stop having a bowel wash-day. Let Cascarets thoroughly cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the undigested, sour and fermenting food and feces, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all this decomposed waste matter and poisons in the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret at night will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep—never gripes, sickens or causes any inconvenience, and cost only 10 cents a box from your druggist. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never have Headache, Biliousness, coated tongue, indigestion, Sour Stomach or Constipated Bowels. Cascarets belong in every household. Children just love to take them.

Austria and Italy are said to be contemplating isolated action to stop the bombardment of Scutari, which is now said to be directed against the town, and not the fortress, and thus enforce the autonomy of Albania, from which Scutari is inseparable. Montenegro and Serbia will first be given the opportunity of withdrawing. Part of the Austrian fleet has already left for the Adriatic, and a German fleet, officially it is announced that the fleet has left for manoeuvres but it is understood that it is to prevent the bombardment of the city and to obtain satisfaction for alleged forcible conversion of Catholics, and interference with the Austrian steamer Stoodria. M. Popovitch, Montenegrin delegate here, describes the Austrian grievances as unfounded or trivial, but the bitterest feeling has been aroused in Austria, who people are demanding action.

NEW YORK, March 21.
In the presence of scores of physicians from various cities, Dr. Friedman treated 35 tuberculous patients to-day, 20 of whom were described as being cured. Officially it is announced that none but the selected patients could be treated, the doors of the Hospital were beset by a throng of sufferers, and the Doctor had some difficulty in reaching the Hospital. One mother sank to the ground, and holding her baby in outstretched arms, implored his aid. During the clinic a seven-year-old boy, walked into the operating room. He had been treated 12 days before. "Look at my leg," he said to Dr. Friedman, baring his knee. "When you put the vaccine in, I could hardly move it. It was so swollen. Now I know that I will get well." The boy went through exercises to show the suppleness of his legs, and then submitted to examination by the Government physicians. To-day Dr. Friedman will hold a clinic at Bellevue Hospital for pulmonary cases. He asked the Government physicians present, and Dr. Atkinson, of Wisconsin, a consumptive, who came last to urge Dr. Friedman for treatment, be placed on the list of patients.

Good Friday Services.

C. OF E. CATHEDRAL.
At the morning services there were large congregations. Holy Eucharist was celebrated at 8 o'clock, and at 10 a.m. Mattins and sermon, and the preacher being Rev. Canon Bolt. From noon until 3 o'clock the Rector, Rev. Canon White, preached on "The seven words from the Cross." At the children's service at 5 p.m. Rev. J. Britton gave the address on the Passion. Evensong was sung at 7.30, and the preacher was the Rev. C. H. Barton.

GOVER STREET.
Crowded and devout congregations attended the services at Gover Street Church yesterday. Stainer's Crucifixion was rendered, the soloists being Mrs. King, Mrs. Hue, and Messrs. Ruggles, W. H. Peters, H. Taylor and Dr. Macpherson, while Mr. King presided at the organ. The singing of the choir was exceptionally good.

COCHRANE STREET.
Rev. C. A. Whitmarsh was the preacher at the 11 o'clock service at Cochrane St. Church on the Crucifixion. The discussion, couched in choice diction, was a masterly one. He spoke of the different groups gathered around the Cross, the Roman soldiers arranging as to the division of Christ's garments, the group who were opposed to the Saviour and those who showed sympathy with Him in His sufferings. The choir rendered "There is a Green Hill," and the solo "He was Despised," from the Messiah, was sung in good voice by Miss Elsie Herder. At to-morrow's service the music will include the anthem "O Lord of Life and Glory," with a solo by Mr. C. Hatcher; the anthem by Ed. Broome, with solos by Misses Vincent and Herder; a carol anthem, "The Resurrection Morn," and an Easter Carol.

R. C. CATHEDRAL.
The Holy Week services were carried out at the Cathedral in a most solemn and impressive manner. Thursday and Thursday night there was exposition of the Blessed Sacrament, the altar of the Blessed Virgin being beautifully decorated for the purpose. At 7.30 p.m. Thursday Office of Tenebrae was chanted, Rev. Fr. O'Callaghan, Dr. Greene and the altar choir singing the Lamentations. After the service Rev. Fr. McPhail of the Redemptorist Order preached a most eloquent, logical and convincing sermon on Transubstantiation. Yesterday, Good Friday, Mass of the Presanctified was sung at 10 o'clock, after which there was adoration of the Cross by the clergy and faithful. At 3 p.m. there were Stations of the Cross recited by Rev. Dr. Greene. At 7.30 p.m. yesterday Office of Tenebrae was again chanted the Lamentations being sung by Rev. Fr. McPhail, His Grace the Archbishop and the altar choir, respectively. Rev. Fr. Brick preached a very devout and pathetic sermon on the Crucifixion and addressed lessons from the great tragedy of Calvary of an exalting character and comforting to the soul of the sinner. At all the services thousands of people attended and it was estimated last night that over 7,000 persons were present.

ST. PATRICK'S.
The Altar of Repose at St. Patrick's Church was beautifully decorated Thursday, and Mass was celebrated yesterday by Rev. Fr. McDermott. At the conclusion of the Stations of the Cross yesterday afternoon Rev. Fr. McPhail, of the Redemptorist Order, preached a beautiful sermon on the Crucifixion. Large congregations attended the services in this church.

ATHENS, To-day.
King Constantine of Greece, took the Constitutional oath of office at the Chamber of Deputies to-day in the presence of the highest officials of the State and of all the members of Parliament. A salute of 101 guns were fired with the royal procession left the Palace. The King wearing a General's uniform, entered the Chamber of Deputies accompanied by the other Princes of the royal family, dressed in mourning. Deputies stood in their places in deep silence, as His Majesty entered. The Metropolitan of Athens, surrounded by members of the Synod, in full canonicals, offered prayer and then read the Constitutional Oath which the King repeated in a firm voice. Then the King signed the oath and all the Cabinet Ministers and the Metropolitan of Athens counter-signed it amid hearty cheers. Immense crowds gathered outside the Chamber of Deputies and welcomed the King with offers of members of the royal family. When they emerged, cheering continued all the way to the Palace. Upon return to the Palace the new King and Queen received the congratulations from members of the Cabinet after which the Premier tendered the resignation of his ministry. King Constantine, however, refused to accept it, saying he knew his tender was only a formality, and he added the government enjoyed the full confidence of the Crown. The King and members of the royal household accompanied by the Premier, left for Salonika, where they will arrive to-morrow. The body of King George will be brought to Athens on board a Greek warship which will be conveyed by foreign men of war.

Dumont; Minister of Finance, Brieme Pichon; Minister Foreign Affairs, Louis Klotz; Interior, Minister War, Eugene Etienne.
