For Her Sake; —OR— The Murder in Furness Wood.

CHAPTER X.

"You may consider, mamma, that we have given your permission to marry, and that we bestow upon you our filial benediction," laughed Evadne.

Lady Scarsdale's face grew crimson. Thea averted a storm, as she often did, by kissing her mother, saying at the same time:

"It will entail some sacrifice on you; but it seems the best thing to do."

It is not perhaps the easiest thing in the world for a mother to consult her grown-up daughters about a second marriage; but Lady Scarsdale passed through the ordeal with dignity. She now rose from her easy-chair.

"I think we understand each other," she said. "Providence has evidently placed this money in our way, and we shall do well to avail ourselves of it. I shall inform Mr. Cameron that I accept his offer."

Again Thea bent her dark, proud head over her mother's face and kissed her.

"I hope you will be happy, mamma," she said.

And Evadne cried: "The very first thing I shall ask for, when it is all settled, will be a velvet dress with real lace. I have longed for such a dress all my life."

Lady Scarsdale retired to write some letters, and the two girls were left alone.

"Thea," cried her sister, "it is of no use looking so miserable over such joyous news. I wonder whether we shall be mamma's bridesmaids?"

"I wonder you can laugh!" was the rejoinder.

"It would be a greater wonder still if I could not," said Evadne. "I foresee a lively time at Ferness. It will be a war with Diana. And, do you know, she is a girl worth fighting; there is a ring of true metal in her. It will be like a scene from a play—'Enter Lady Scarsdale and her daughters; exit Diana.'"

"Diana will never 'exit' from Ferness," said Thea. "I wish, Evadne, you would not be quite so heartless." "That is a change; you generally call me artful," laughed Evadne. "I believe you are both," said Thea. The same evening Peter Cameron was told that it would be made a happy man.

CHAPTER XI.

"Diana," cried Richard Marche, "all your dogs are jobs! Hughes is in despair because John Brown has been over the bed of tea-roses, and Captain Langley has done untold mischief to some fine scarlet geraniums. Why do you love dogs so much, Diana, and why do you keep so many?"

"Why do you love them yourself, Rich? You remember the saying of a great and gifted writer—'The more I see of men, the more I admire dogs.'"

"Diana," cried Richard, "I will not have quotations thrown at me; I will not, indeed! If you will have dogs, why do you not train them?"

"They are well trained," replied Diana. "There is not a more obedient dog in England than John Brown. If he has destroyed the bed of tea-roses, it is because he has mistaken it for some other flower-bed."

"You had better tell Hughes that!" laughed Richard.

"I am not afraid of Hughes," said Diana, who always stood up for her dogs.

John Brown, so called from his color, and Captain Langley, named after his donor, were two noble retrievers. John Brown, whose hair was thick and curly, had great loving brown eyes and a bark that could be heard half over the park. Captain Langley was black and a trifle more violent in temper than his companion. Both of them were devoted to Diana with all the ardor of dog-worship. They raced toward her, they barked round her, they fought about her; and, though Diana had many other canine favorites, these two were the most prominent. At times, if by accident they made their way into the garden, causing damage and devastation. Hughes would complain loudly; but the worst thing he ever did to the faithful animals was to fasten them up in the kennel, an indignity they bitterly resented, and from which Diana quickly freed them.

On this bright summer morning John Brown, rampant with health and good spirit, had employed himself most vigorously in destroying a bed of fine tea-roses, the very pride of Hughes' heart; and the old gardener declared that things could not and should not go on so. He must see Miss Diana herself. Richard came upon the scene just in time, and sought his cousin with the news. She was on the terrace, the sunshines around her, the blue sky above her head without a cloud, the birds, singing, the flowers in full bloom. Yet no flower was there so fair and sweet as Diana herself. Her white morning dress had no ornament, and fitted her tall slender figure to perfection; her fair hair, surmounted by a picturesque broad-brimmed hat shaded her lovely face; the fresh morning air had given a brightness to her eyes and a blooming radiance to her face.

Richard watched her for some minutes in mute admiration—he was not in love with his cousin, though he thought her the fairest and sweetest of women. She stood leaning over the stone balustrade, toying idly with the crimson roses that grew round the twisted pillars, a picture of youth, beauty, health, and happiness. "When I look at you, Diana, I always wish I were a poet," said Richard, after he had given the particulars of John Brown's deprecations. "As you stand there now, bathed in sunshine and surrounded by flowers that vie with your own loveliness, all kinds of poetic ideas come into my mind; but I cannot give expression to one of them. I can only compare you to a Dryad or something of the kind."

Diana interrupted him with a laugh. "Never mind, Rich. I assure you that, whatever I may look, I feel like an ordinary young woman in a morning dress. I must go and see what damage John Brown has done."

"Stay a few minutes, Diana; we do not often find leisure for a little conversation. How beautiful the sea looks this morning—the waves are so blue and crisp!" Diana, he continued, abruptly changing the subject and looking with wistful eyes at the lovely face, "has it struck you that your father has been much from home lately?"

"He has been at Tresham Park," she answered, carelessly. "He is very fond of Sir Granterly."

"He goes there every day, does he not?" asked Richard.

"I do not know. Perhaps he does; he has not told me. Why do you ask, Rich?" And the lovely eyes that looked up at him were so clear, so bright, that Richard had not the heart to shadow them by revealing all that he had heard, and all that he suspected.

"I wondered why he goes so often," he said.

"He has no particular reason; he likes talking to Sir Granterly." "She had not the faintest suspicion of the truth. She knew that Lady Scarsdale and her daughters were still there, but she never for a moment connected that fact with her father's visits. No such idea as her father's marrying again had ever presented itself to her. A star falling from heaven or the earth suddenly opening would not have surprised her more. He was hers, all her own; they lived for each other.

Richard saw how utterly unsuspecting she was. He turned away, saying to himself—

"I will not be the one to open her eyes. Great Heaven, what will the poor girl say when she knows it!" What indeed! The young heiress, who had never known a shadow of care, what would she do? "I can only hope it is not true," he muttered to himself.

"What a difference it will make!" "Rich," said Diana, "I have an idea in my mind which I should like carried out. Can you guess what it is?"

"I am afraid not," he replied. "Your ideas are generally quite beyond me, Diana."

"I think it is a sin not to take advantage of this lovely weather. Can you not see what glorious opportunities we are letting slip by? Well, Rich," she added, turning to her cousin, "I want to give a series of picnics at all the lovely spots around us. They are beginning to make hay in the large meadows where the two great oak trees stand; I should like the first there—a regular picnic."

"You have but to express the wish, and it shall be obeyed," said Richard; but in his heart he was wondering how long her happiness would last, and how Diana would bear the shock. If all that rumor said were true.

Her lovely eyes were fixed on his face. She could not read the thoughts that had shadowed it, and she cried, with a touch of the half-sweet, half-imperious manner that belongs to her: "You do not like the idea, Rich?"

"Indeed I do!" he replied. Then he added suddenly, looking toward the house. "There is Uncle Peter! How well he looks this morning!"

There was something in Peter Cameron's face which Richard was quick to read—a sense of half-shamed exultation.

"He has done it, I believe, after all!" the young man said to himself. "Oh, my beautiful Diana!"

There was a cloud on Diana's fair face as she turned to greet him.

"What a glorious morning, papa!" she said. "And how praiseworthy early we are! It is not nine o'clock yet. Rich, tell papa about John Brown."

But Richard was keen enough to see an expression of impatience on Mr. Cameron's face; he knew by instinct that he wanted to talk to his daughter, and he guessed shrewdly what he wished to impart.

The bright happy face and shining eyes smote him with keen anguish. "I must go," he decided. "I know what it will cost her; I could not listen to one word."

He asked to be excused just at that moment, and nodding to her, said: "I will go and look after John Brown."

As he descended the steps of the terrace, he said to himself that the old happy days at Ferness were nearly ended.

"You look bright as the morning, Diana," remarked Mr. Cameron.

As he looked with admiration upon the beautiful young face, he thought to himself that no position could be high enough to rher, that nothing could be good enough, and that he had gone right in opening the gates of the world of fashion to her.

"I want to talk to you, Dian," he said. "Sit down, my dear, for I have much to say, and you must listen patiently."

"I always do to you, papa," she returned. "I may tire of Rich, I may tire of Sir Royal at times; but I never tire of you."

"True, Dian."

Peter Cameron sat down by his daughter's side. He had so much to say to her that he hardly knew where to begin; but suddenly a strange hesitancy came over him. It had seemed so easy, for was it not "the very thing for Diana?" Now, however, when he looked into Diana's face and tried to tell the story, a sudden numbness seized him. He felt the veins swell on his forehead and great drops gather there; his hands trembled and his lips grew cold. He turned coward when he most needed his courage. Yet he had acted as he had for her sake, and it would be best for her.

She was smiling, it seemed to him, at the red roses she held in her hands; her white fingers caressed the crimson petals as she awaited her father's communication.

"Dian," he said at last, "I have asked Lady Scarsdale to marry me, and she has consented."

The abruptness with which Diana had this news imparted to her seemed for the moment almost to overwhelm her. The flowers fell as she started up with raised hands and parted lips. At first no sound came from them; then she uttered a faint inarticulate cry. The color faded from her face, leaving it white as the face of the dead.

"Great Heaven, Dian," he cried, "do not give way like that!"

The Intelligent Way To End Corns

Not by paring. That's a risky makeshift, and results are brief.

Not by harsh, haphazard methods made by non-scientific men.

Not by padding. Pads are unsightly, and they simply coddle corns.

Expert Methods

Blue-jay was invented by a scientific expert. It is made by a house famed for its surgical dressings.

It embodies the up-to-date method, the right method of corn treatment.

Apply it and the pain stops instantly. Forget it for two days. Remove it, and the corn is gone for good. One corn in ten may need a second application, but that's all.

Millions of corns have been ended in this way. Aching corns are unknown to its users.

Parliament Not

Imperial Govt With Industrial Lorries as S

AMENDMENT REJECTED
WASHINGTON, D.C., Oct. 2.—Taking its first action on changes in the Peace Treaty, the Senate today rejected an amendment proposed by Senator Fall, Republican, of Mexico, to eliminate the United States from membership on the commission to determine the boundary between the United States and Belgium. The vote generally was accepted as a sign of the Senate's attitude toward the treaty, and was a blow to the administration. The amendment of similar nature, was rejected by a vote of 52 to 40.

BACK TO WORK.
NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The authorities have decided that Parliament will not be called in connection with the industrial situation. A demand to this effect telegraphed Prime Minister George by William Adamson, chief of the Labor Party and Leader of Opposition in the House of Commons yesterday, but the Government determined to abide by the date of meeting, October 22.

All the longshoremen who went in Brooklyn yesterday to back to work Oliver Morton, secretary of Local 968, of the national Longshoremen's Association, announced this today. They thought their demands, instead of being referred to the National Arbitration Commission, had been rejected, and struck on that morning, Mr. Morton said.

CINCINNATI WINS AGAIN.
CINCINNATI, OHIO, Oct. 2.—The Cincinnati Reds tonight grasped on the World's series by defeating the Chicago White Sox 4 to 2. As they also won the game yesterday, they need but more games to land the series. The game yesterday was safely away in the fourth, and when the Reds arrived to-day the fans had a roar in demand of an encore. The Cincinnati batsmen responded, but the person who took the demand to himself was Claude Williams, the pitcher, who was on the mound.

To-day's Messages.

THE RAILWAY SITUATION.

LONDON, Oct. 2. (Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—Except in the west of Scotland and in South Wales, the situation in the provinces is not very bad. Canal transport is proving most helpful in the midlands, in supplying fuel and raw material to the numerous industries. Indeed, although many collieries are closed down, or partially closed, there is nothing approaching a general breakdown of industry in the Black Country. A quarter of a million people in Nottingham are carting coal from the pits without the assistance of the railways. Blacklocks restarted the hydraulic power House at Cardiff, enabling 100 feet of steamers to leave yesterday mostly for home ports. Blue Jacks also acted as dock gatekeepers. Strikers watched the operations from a distance, but beyond some jeering, attempted no action. The situation at Manchester, Liverpool and Birmingham is not yet serious. The effects of the strike are gradually becoming more serious in west Scotland. There are already twenty five thousand out of thirty two thousand stone workers are idle and also twenty-five thousand miners and twenty-five hundred dockers, while all the Clyde capstanmen and cranesmen have got notice. Blue Jacks are assisting to handle coal trucks at Greenock. Up to the present the behavior of the strikers in Glasgow has been admirable. The position in East Scotland is not serious, although shipping is temporarily tied up at Leith. The food situation in the provinces continues excellent. A timber shed, in the southeast of London, near a railway, was gutted by fire to-night as a result of incendiarism. The vehicle workers union prevented thirty lorries leaving London for Cambridge to fetch two hundred tons of potatoes. The drivers obeyed the instructions of the pickets to leave the work ground, stating that vehicle workers must not touch railway work or handle even foodstuffs.

INDEMNITY BILL PASSED.
SIMLA, India, Oct. 2. (Reuter's Ottawa.)—A martial law indemnity bill to protect officials against the possible consequences of their action in the recent troubles in Northern India, was passed to-day by the Legislative Council. Several Indian members opposed the bill.

BOLSHEVISTS RETREATING.
LONDON, Oct. 2. (Reuter's Ottawa.)—The outstanding event of the week in South Russia, is the rapid advance of General Denikin beyond Kursk, while he has also been continuing progress on the rest of his front. He is now only about 240 miles from Moscow, where it is rumoured marshal law has been proclaimed owing to fear of raids. Admiral Kolchak also continues to make progress. The Bolshevists have evacuated Tobolsk.

"I SUFFERED SEVEN YEARS"

Was Eventually Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I suffered for seven long years with a lame back, rheumatism, irregular menstruation and pain. I had consulted several physicians after another but they did me no good. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and gave it a trial and in a short time I felt benefited and am now feeling fine, and without weakness or pain. Many of my friends have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and have been helped by it."—Mrs. MARGARET NILES, 1846 E. Howard St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Women who suffer from displacements, irregularities, inflammation, ulceration, backache, sideache, headaches or "the blues" should not rest until they have given this famous remedy a trial. Lydia E. VICTORY MESSAGES.
From Twillingate and Placentia Districts.

Special to Evening Telegram.
BISHOP'S FALLS, To-day. W. A. Mackay and Lieut. Moore held their most successful meeting in Albert Hall last night. The meeting was most enthusiastic and appreciative. Lieut. Moore gave a masterly address and was warmly applauded. Mr. Mackay spoke for an hour, and warmed up the audience with his enthusiasm. Messrs. Mackay and Moore have visited Grand Falls, Badger and Millertown, and have been remarkably well received in all places. The brand of politics they are presenting is new and is winning them hosts of friends. The indications are, so far, they will make a clean sweep from Millertown to tide water.

Special to Evening Telegram.
ST. MARY'S, To-day. The Progressive-Liberal candidates, Walsh, Sullivan and Sinnott, are still counting their triumphal march through the district, and never have candidates received such hearty and cordial receptions. Every settlement was decorated with bunting and rounds of musketry fired in their honor. Large and enthusiastic meetings have been held in St. Vincent's, St. Mary's and Riverhead. People came from miles to attend the meetings. Peter's River, St. Vincent's, the Gaskiers, Pointe La Hava, Riverhead, St. Mary's and Mill Bay will give Walsh, Sullivan and Sinnott a record vote. Reports coming from all other settlements in St. Mary's Bay assure the Progressive-Liberal candidates that the balance of the district will fall in line with the sections already visited and give Walsh, Sullivan and Sinnott the largest vote ever polled in the District of Placentia and St. Mary's. The voters of this district are prepared to fall in line, and as Ferryland has trusted Cashin for thirty years, the people of this district feel that they will not make a mistake in giving him a chance for four years. All are of the same opinion here and the slogan "Cashin is coming back" is the straight ticket for Walsh, Sullivan and Sinnott.

mored marshal law has been proclaimed owing to fear of raids. Admiral Kolchak also continues to make progress. The Bolshevists have evacuated Tobolsk.

"Atlantic" Flies Wednesday.

A LONG FLIGHT PROJECTED.
Special to Evening Telegram.
PARRSBORO, N.S., this morning. The Handley-Page monster biplane "Atlantic," which was built to bomb Berlin, being prevented there by the signing of the armistice, and was transferred to the London Daily Mail Transatlantic competition, being sent to Mr. Grace, Newfoundland, and there being assembled at Handley-Page-on-the-sea. Later becoming wrecked here while enroute to New York, will fly on Wednesday. The machine has been completely rebuilt and tried out. This flight will be a great one. Leaving here, she will fly to New York; thence to Chicago and St. Louis; thence back to New York, Toronto, Montreal and other cities. Vice-Admiral Mark E. F. Kerr, who was her commander at Mr. Grace, still commands Major Brackley going as pilot. Major F. Grace, the famous Norwegian explorer and airman who was with her from Newfoundland to here, has since gone to England and from that, by air, to his native country. He is there now and will not fly this time. The regular wireless operator, Mr. F. Wyatt, of the Marconi Company, who was at Handley-Page-on-the-sea, will go now, while members of the mechanical staff will make up the crew. Certain others well known in Canada, will fly as "guests." Admiral Kerr and companions have not forgotten the days spent in Newfoundland and will possibly return there before many months have passed.

Shipbuilding Plant at Second City Affre.

A BIG LOSS.—NO INSURANCE
As a result of the shipbuilding plant at Mr. Grace taking fire yesterday afternoon, the Mr. Grace Shipbuilding Company has suffered the loss of a large amount of money. The fire began yesterday at four o'clock in the afternoon and spread rapidly. By 7 o'clock the greater part of the plant had been destroyed. No word since last evening at 8 o'clock has been received from there, and it is presumed that the fire has before this been extinguished. About two weeks ago some $100,000 worth of insurance was cancelled, while a business transaction with a man, whereby he was to purchase all of the glass in the plant, had to be cancelled. Two ships were in the stocks at the time, one a new one and the other being rebuilt. The spars and rigging of the new one were in a loft over the main building, and are believed to have been destroyed.

"NEW BOOK BY LOCAL AUTHOR."—The Telegram learns that the public will shortly have something to talk of beside party politics and that Mr. Coaker will be particularly interested.

"Mr. Arthur English has prepared a little work dealing with Mr. Coaker as a diarist and traveller. The book is entitled 'Invincible Ignorance,' and will shortly be offered to the public."

Mr. English being now slated as the Coaker candidate for Ferryland, it is pertinent to ask if the public will really have the pleasure, or otherwise, of enjoying this interesting "little work." Come along Arthur.

The Progress of Harrow School.

Although no more than a substantial yeoman, John Lyon, who died October 3, 1892 established an enduring memorial when he founded the school destined to fame as Harrow. This was in 1871, when Queen Elizabeth granted him a royal charter, but the rise of Harrow School was slow and not unchequered. In 1740, however, there were 150 boys there, and already it was beginning to be noted for an infusion of that Whig leaven which characterized it thenceforward until well on into last century. At the same period, too, began the rivalry with Eton. But it was not yet fashionable, since in 1745 the headmaster, Dr. Coxe, is said to have conducted tuition in the school yard with pipe and pint pot! Happily his successors were of higher type, and the school's prosperity was established under Thackeray, Summer Heath and Drury. But between 1805 and 1829 there was a re-action, owing largely to the financial condition of the country, and the lowest point was touched in the time of Dr. Christopher Wordsworth, who ruled over only 69 boys when he retired. A great revival came with the advent of Dr. Vaughan and continued under Dr. H. M. Butler, Dr. J. E. C. Weldon, and Dr. Wood. How far were conditions well affected Harrow and other great schools it is impossible to divine. Doubtless there will be modification and development, but Harrow is bound to play a great part in reconstructed England, although it is not likely ever again to equal the record of Dr. Drury's headmastership, when no fewer than five future Prime Ministers were educated there—namely, Spencer Percival, Lord Goderich, Sir Robert Peel, Lord Aberdeen and Lord Palmerston—as well as one great poet, Lord Byron.

Laid to Rest.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Mary A. Butler took place at Port-de-Grave on Wednesday, Sept. 24th, and was the largest seen there for some time. The service, which was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Moore, of Clarke's Beach, was a most impressive one, and the singing of an anthem, especially prepared for the occasion, was beautifully rendered by the choir. At the close the Dead March was played by Miss King, organist of the church. No better evidence of her popularity could be shown than in the large gathering assembled to pay their last mark of respect. Her charming personality and kindly disposition endeared her to all, and many a poor woman and child will miss her pleasant greeting and friendly hand. Devoid of selfishness, she was always eager to do good to others, and nothing gave her greater pleasure than helping some poor creature who needed assistance. Even through her long illness she never murmured but always tried to brighten and comfort those around her, and when the end came, she passed peacefully away into the presence of Him who said, "by their fruits ye shall know them."

WHY BOOKS MEAN
When I was looking up a quotation in a familiar question book the other day, I noticed a paragraph that I had underscored. I stopped to read it. And, for the life of me, I couldn't understand why I had underscored it. Which reminded me once more of the Scrap Book Keeps Her Homeless.

She puts in it the thoughts which still seem worth preservation to her after three months. She went to live alone in a big city recently. Side by Ruth

She shows it to all sorts of people with the firm belief that they will find it as beautiful as she does. And, of course, they don't. For my part, there were a few thoughts that reached down into my heart, but such of it struck me as at all, as some of it seemed downright commonplace.

WHY BOOKS MEAN DIFFERENT THINGS.

How much of our pleasure in what we read is subjective.

That sounds like an obvious statement, but there are some people who do not realize that truth.

The Scrap Book Keeps Her From Homesickness.

For instance, I know a very intellectual woman who has a scrapbook of thoughts which she has been collecting for years. She puts in it only the thoughts which still seem worthy of preservation to her after three months. She went to live alone in a big city recently. "I would have been terribly lonesome," she said, "if I hadn't had my scrapbook to turn to."

All of that is very natural and beautiful. But here is the queer part.
Brilliant woman though she is, she does not seem to realize that other people cannot get the same help out of that scrapbook that she does, because they haven't put into it what she has.

She shows it to all sorts of people with the firm belief that they will find it as beautiful as she does. And, of course, they don't. For my own part, there were a few thoughts that "ached down into my heart but such of it struck no spark at all, and some of it seemed downright common place.

the Reads By A Torch That I Have Not.

We looked at the worn pages together and on them she sees something that I cannot see. Her life experience is the torch that lights them up. I can only see the beauty of that which my own different life experience illumines.
One especially notices the subjecive nature of one's pleasure and one's understanding when one reads over something which one has read at intervals throughout life.

It is almost like looking over an old diary to read some such books.
One remembers the emotion that made one mark this passage or that.
For instance, in Emerson's essays I find underscored (with seven lines!)
"when a single tone of one voice could make the heart beat, and the most trivial circumstance associated with one form is put in the amber of memory," and I bask for a moment in the afterglow of the emotion which guided my pencil.

When We Read With The Seeing Eye

And then how sure one is to find new pages to mark! I never read my favorite essays in Stevenson without having some sentence flash up at me out of the text with as much vividness as if I had never before seen it. Actually, I have read it a dozen times before with the physical eye, but it has taken some life experience to make me able to read it with the understanding eye.

Only the great literature will stand such intensive reading—and I am sure I do not need to tell you the book that seems to stand it best of all, and to yield up something new and beautiful not just the seventh time, but even up to 70 times seven.

LOT LIBERTY.

Still some lament, with language rude, the passing of Old Booze; the precious boon of getting stewed they cannot calmly lose. "Our fathers fought at Bunker Hill, Toledo, and elsewhere, that we our tanks with gin might fill,"
they wretchedly declare. "Our noble sires gave up their lives that we might wear a bun, and paint the town
and beat our wives, and all kinds of
fun. George Washington fung forth

our boasted lib-

shrunk, and all our palladiums are cheese, and all our bulwarks bunk."
The precious boon of getting full of alcohol or gin, until a husky harness bull came up and ran you in!
It is a queer thing
to lament, and I,
for one, don't know,
why any sane, well-
balanced gent should weep for such "liberty" that makes men bore to neighbors and to friends is better

such freedom ends.
The "liberty" that starves the kids,

BLOTTING OUT PARTY LINES.

The minimum standard now demands in politics, in industry and in every department of public and commercial life and activity is that any man who sincerely desires to advance the national interests shall show himself ready and eager to co-operate with all who adopt the same broad ideal.
In politics particularly such a departure from pre-war methods and procedure would involve a sweeping transformation. The complete obliteration of party lines as they have been drawn hitherto would be only a first step. But no man can venture to oppose progress in this direction without showing himself not merely indifferent to the essential interests of the Dominion, but openly disloyal to the great ideals which have taken shape in war and in the enforcement of a peace of justice.—The Dominion (N.Y.)

THE PRESENT JOYS.

If you cannot see the beauty in the rising of the sun,
If you cannot romp with children and enjoy their bit of fun,
If the wife who walks beside you isn't all the world to you, If you cannot be contented with the friends you know are true, Then you never will be happy though you reach life's highest niche,
You would still be melancholy should to-morrow make you rich.

If you cannot find the splendor in the little you possess,
If you spurn the honey sweetness in your baby's glad caress,
If the little home you're keeping isn't ringing now with glee,
All in vain must be your dreaming of joys that are to be;
If to all that now should please you,
you're different and cold,
You would find yourself unhappy should to-morrow bring you gold.

If you're putting off your gladness to some distant future day,
If you're blind to all the roses that now bloom along your way
And you cannot find this morning some good reason for a smile,
You will never be contented in life's golden afterwhile;
For the joys of life surround you—love and claim them while you can.

For it's now that you are learning how to be a happy man.

Playing the Game.

True to its policy of belittling its opponents, and giving a partially true account of meetings—whether of its own side or not—the Opposition press still deals out cheap political reading, trusting in the small possibility that the shallowness and insignificance of its articles may not be correctly gauged by the public. Such articles, are but mere advertisements of the opinion that the writers have of the electorate, as a whole, and are sufficient proof of the fact that they consider their readers as being easily taken in and duped by the matter they publish. Search the Opposition press daily and each edition appears to be a facsimile of the preceding one with a few changes in the scary (?) headlines and big lettering, and possibly a few more attacks on the efforts of the Government in its endeavor to fulfil its obligations to the people.

The latest instance of glaring headlines, and doubtful matter is contained in Monday's Advocate, wherein the meeting at Bonavista is styled as being most enthusiastically and largely attended, as entirely opposed to the fact stated by Dr. Forbes that about 400 were actually present, and many of them Liberal-Progressive supporters. This example of course is by no means an isolated one, and is daily expected by those who know the Opposition records for vacillation and inconsistency, as well as political chicanery. Really the Opposition scare heads and vain repetitions are poor returns to those who search in them for occasional glimpses of a sound and Reform (?) policy.

Someone has said that a man's character is judged by his writings. We are not prepared to prove either the truth or otherwise, of this bit of philosophy, but assuming that the author knew the truth of what he said, what a portrayal is given us of the characters of those who do the Opposition writings. No term can so aptly designate the editorials of the L.R.P. (?) as the phrase "playing the game for what it's worth." In these days of troublous times (we quote the Opposition) it seems rather a pity that no other work can be devised for the brilliant writers in question. There is something lacking surely or else "playing the game" so unsuccessfully would not suffice those who are now so busily engaged in raking up ancient history for material which they are utterly incapable of producing themselves.

It seems superfluous to us to offer a word of advice to the Opposition writers but in our generosity, make a few suggestions. Do not be so free in copiously reprinting things of the long ago, as time might be much better employed in outlining a sane policy for the safe navigation of the ship of state, which in your opinion needs the controlling hands of the Opposition so badly. Secondly, dear friends be not so sure of the electorate. Remember that deeds speak louder than words, and that the electorate are not so unintelligent as you would have them appear, as they see through the transparency of your writings and gauge their contents at their true worth. Finally look closer at the writing on the wall, and don't rest your chances of success on "playing the game" as you are now engaged in doing.

What Your Vote Can Do.

There is only one question which the voter has to ask himself in order to decide as to the way in which he will cast his ballot at the approaching General Election. That question is: Shall the present Government be continued in power in order to carry out a sane progressive policy of development which has already been started upon and the results of which are even now manifest; or shall the country change horses crossing the stream, and place in charge of our affairs a party composed of people who do not trust each other, who were bitter enemies up to within a few days ago, and who are just as likely as not to start a vendetta amongst themselves before they are well in office?

This question also embodies a very important fact. One of the principals of the Bolshevik party is Mr. W. F. Coaker, President of the Fishermen's Protective Union, whose one desire and aim is to govern the country solely in the interests of the Union which he represents. His policy is government of all the people in the interests of a particular section of people. He is the President of the F.P.U., but he wants to be the President of Newfoundland as well, sole dictator and autocrat, whose will must be law, and whose wishes, however opposed to the general good of the people, must be carried out without regard to results. He is a man of peculiar temperament. He can only see one side of a question—the side that interests himself; and he is striving to be placed in a position to impose his views upon those who do not think as he does, and who have no sympathy whatever with his wild schemes and crazy notions.

So strongly set is he upon this object that he even went to the length of amalgamating with Mr. R. A. Squires, his bitter enemy in the whole country, a man whom he had dubbed as "that black rascal Squires" and against whom he had warned the very members of his Union that he now asks to vote for him. His lust of power has driven him into the arms of his most virulent opponent, and it would seem as if he was prepared to sacrifice the F.P.U. itself in order to gain his own selfish ends. A vote thus cast for the Coaker-Squires party is a vote cast against the independence of the country, because, if placed in power, Coaker will run the country to suit his own purposes. By voting for the Coaker-Squires party a man is simply placing a halter around his own neck, and giving the loose end to Coaker, Squires, et al, so that they may "string him up" at leisure. The man who votes for Squires is assisting one who, according to his colleague Coaker, received a large sum of money from the Reids, the receipt of which he has never denied although charged repeatedly therewith. A vote for Squires is a vote for stagnation. A vote for Coaker is a vote for autocracy and one-man government. But a vote for the present Government is a vote for clean, honest administration and a continuance of the happy and prosperous conditions which have prevailed within the country during the past ten years.

Too Much Protest.

The Opposition papers are raising an awful howl about Morine, and still they profess to believe he will have no chance in Bonavista. If they don't believe he is going to win out in his district, why worry about him? Funny, isn't it? The truth, of course, is that Coaker realizes Morine is going to down him in his stronghold, and this campaign of calumny against Morine is for the purpose of trying to catch a few stray votes. Coakerism will receive its death-blow in Bonavista next month, and the Union will be the better for it. Coakerism has been the barnacle which has impeded the progress of the F.P.U. during the last 6 years, and the best friends of the Union recognize the great drawback which Coaker's experiments in politics mean to the best interests of the organization. Coaker has too many irons in the fire. He has all he can do to look after the money entrusted to him by the investors of the Union, without taking chances at the political game.

Why Does He Do It?

"A Tory's Word or a Tory's Promise is Worthless," cries the Advocate. If that be so, then Squires' Words and Promises are Worthless. If that be so, then Coaker must have been crazy to have appointed Mr. Morine Counsel of the F.P.U. in 1912. He must have been crazy to have asked him to come back here for that purpose in 1912. He must have been crazy to have told his followers in May last that "Morine was always the friend of the Union." He must be crazy now to make a liar of himself in the way he does. But of course the explanation is that he is crazy, and the people are too sane to entrust the control of their affairs to a man of his type, or to those over whom he may have any influence.

Liberal Progressive Winners.

CARBONNEAR.
We are informed that at a meeting held in Carbonnear recently, Mr. James Moore, the highly respected and successful business man of that town, was unanimously selected as the candidate of the Liberal Progressive Party to contest the important district of Carbonnear at the election to be held on Nov. 3rd. Mr. Moore is a son of the late Robert Moore, Merchant, of that town, whom he succeeded in his present business, and a brother of Rev. Dr. J. G. Moore of North Dakota, U.S.A. He is popular, genial and an all round jolly good fellow, and no better choice could be made. He will be Carbonnear's next representative in the House of Assembly.

With Hickman and Whiteway in Bay de Verde, Moore in Carbonnear, Piccott and colleagues in Hr. Grace, and Crosbie in Port de Grave, there is not much doubt about what is going to happen in these districts.

BAY DE VERDE.
It is with pleasure that we announce to-day that the standard bearers of the Liberal Progressive Party for the district of Bay de Verde are Hon. A. E. Hickman, the present sitting member, and Hon. Jesse Whiteway, the colleague of Hon. Sir J. C. Crosbie at the last election. Hon. Mr. Hickman won his seat in 1913, coming out at the head of the poll in a very close contest. He was then fighting under the leadership of Sir E. Bond. When the new Government was formed in May last he accepted office and took the portfolio of Minister of Militia. He is one of the Colony's most successful business men and has very large trade connections with the district he represents, supplying scores of Labrador fishermen and buying shore fish in large quantities. Hon. Jesse Whiteway represented Bay de Verde from 1908 to 1912 and proved a very capable and painstaking representative, and much regret was felt when he failed to retain his seat by a very narrow margin in the election held in the latter year. He now elects to resign his seat in the Legislative Council and enter the fray again under the banner of the Liberal Progressive Party and the leadership of Hon. Sir Michael Cashin. In 1913 Mr. Hickman and Mr. Whiteway were opponents, but now they have come together to fight under one banner, determined to sink all differences and go into the fight with one object in view, viz., to destroy the menace of a Coaker-Squires combination getting control of the Government of the country.

That Messrs. Hickman and Whiteway will be the choice of the electors of Bay de Verde as their next representatives is a foregone conclusion.

Political Notes.

EJECTION DAY.—Squires will be ejected, not elected in St. John's West. You may mark that down sure, and as with himself, so with his colleagues. To vote for a colleague of Squires would be equivalent to supporting his cause and this the voters of St. John's West will never consent to do.

BLOT 'EM OUT.—Remember voters that you should not only vote against Squires but it is your solemn duty also to turn down every one of his candidates. Blot them all out from your memory from now till after polling day and you will accomplish a good purpose that you will be pleased to remember.

THEY REMEMBER.—When the committee from the Soldiers and Sailors were presenting their claims for gratuity and allowances, Cashin, Crosbie, and Bennett were the ones that fixed it for them. And not only that, but everything they asked for was granted in full. Where were Squires and Coaker then? They must have been down in the old dug-out.

The people of the country were never better off than they are to-day. Prosperity and progress are to be seen on every side. The public know that these satisfactory conditions are due to wise and sane Government, and they are determined to take no chances on political adventurers like Coaker and Squires whose bolshevik ideas might bring the whole economic fabric of the country toppling about our ears.

Coaker's day is done amongst the fishermen. He knows it, and he realizes he is fighting a losing battle. He will awake after the election to find that all his dreams of power have been shattered. It will be the best thing that ever happened the Union, too, because he will then be able to devote himself to its interests instead of his own.

Vote for Cashin and a continuance of good times and prosperous conditions.

CASHIN WILL COME BACK.

To the Electors of St. John's.

The Telegram has always stood for the maintenance of the great and high ideals of Liberalism, hence its appeal in this election to the Liberals of Newfoundland, and particularly of St. John's, to keep these principles pure and unadulterated, by preventing the Coaker-Squires combine from pulling down and trampling on the ground the grand old Liberal flag. Keep the cause of Liberalism bright and clean then, free and independent voters, and do not let the political interlopers surrounding Coaker and Squires beguile you into their snares and nets. You owe that duty to yourselves, to your wives and children, and any failure to perform that duty will result in reproaches to you hereafter from sons and daughters, your younger brothers and your younger sisters, who look to you for their country's protection during the years that are to come.

Your sense of intelligence is being put to the test by the gang that is led by the notorious Coaker and the undesirable Squires, but the Telegram pins its faith to the strong belief that all of you will unite as one man in defence of the common good. Do not let the finger of scorn be pointed at you hereafter by your allowing the Squires-Coaker pair to pull the wool over your eyes. Do not have it pointed out to you on the streets hereafter, if the Squires-Coaker pair get control of those high representative places for which it is your duty to select the best men, that there is the pair of worthless Newfoundland voters deemed its highest type of citizens. Are you going to have that pair of types strut the streets and mis-adorn your public assemblies, as the best that Newfoundland voters were capable of selecting? We know in our hearts that you have not the slightest wish or desire that these are of the class most fitted to stand forth before an intelligent world as Newfoundland's most respected statesmen. We know your minds are far from leaning in favor of such undesirable, but as the watchdog of Liberal principles and the exponent of true and genuine Liberalism we take the liberty to caution you to be on your guard, and the best way to be on your guard and to defend your rights is to rally in your thousands and show your whole-hearted approval on polling day of the standard bearers of the Liberal Progressive Party in whose behalf the Telegram is now fighting. Give Bennett, Mulhally and Martin, and Higgins, Timmings and Fox a great big straight ticket vote and you will help to kill Coakerism and Squiresism for ever in this land.—LIBERAL.

THE FISHERY.—Between Point Amour and Red Bay the cod fishery is practically over. The season on the whole has been better than last year. The fishermen are now engaged at herring fishing and between 50 and 60 barrels are being taken daily.

MINARD'S LUBRICANT RELIEVES NEURALGIA.

His Price.

It is generally reported in shipping circles that Mr. Cheeseman's price for accepting nomination as the Squires-Coaker candidate for Burin is the promise by Squires of the control of a freight steamer to run between southwest coast points and Sydney in opposition to the Farquhar and other interests, who are giving such valuable service those at present, and on which it is proposed to place an embargo so as to eliminate them entirely.

Heavily subsidized and with all opposition squashed, Mr. Cheeseman's firm would of course reap a very handsome profit as with the thing entirely in his own hands and no competition—plus an unrestricted tariff promised him by Squires—other firms doing business in Burin and Fortune districts would have to pony up and say nothing in protest.

Besides giving Mr. Cheeseman a distinct business advantage over his competitors he could acquire an inside knowledge of their most intimate dealings—which of course is a state of things most undesirable not to say unfair.

It is further rumored that Squires promised to finance the steamer to the extent of 40%. Sam Foote demanded a 40% footing so as to keep tab on Squires, and Mr. Cheeseman gets the balance of 20%.

The West Coast business men have the well deserved reputation of being the keenest and most progressive in the Dominion, and they are certainly not going to stand for this high-handed and crooked proposition from Squires or Foote or Cheeseman or anybody else. If such a steamer is essential (and we certainly believe it is not) the business men there would have had it before) it should be Government owned and controlled, and if this is found impracticable the West Coast people should be given an opportunity of forming a company with every business man given an opportunity of subscribing the capital.

This would remove any stigma of most unfair competition by any one firm such as Mr. Cheeseman's.

We should imagine that this little move will be seen through and that John T. will have to give full explanation to the business interests of Grand Bank, Fortune, Marytown and Burin for which he proposes to be a candidate.

"A fair deal for all and favour to none" is the slogan of the ever popular representatives of the district—Mr. John S. Currie—and his colleague Mr. George A. Bartlett.

Dangerous Shooting.

Now that the shooting season is in, young men and boys, armed with anything from a horse pistol to a Martini-Henry, are to be seen near the city, shooting at everything that happens to be alive, or dead. There is surely some law to prevent the indiscriminate use of fire arms. Yesterday evening some person in the vicinity of Smithville, came near shooting a young lad who lives at that place. A bullet, evidently fired from a 22 rifle, a very dangerous weapon, struck the ground within two feet of where the boy was standing. Investigation failed to find out who fired off the gun. Two young men were seen in a field 30 yards from the place, one was armed with a shot gun and the other had an army rifle. When spoken to about the danger of shooting so near where people lived, and children played, they took it as a joke and simply said we are not shooting. As there is no game except blackbirds and tomsfoxes to be seen near this place, surely the police can have the nuisance stopped. Presentation of Medals.

The popular head mistress of Bishop Spencer College, Miss Sterling and one of the teaching staff, Miss Worrell, were both presented with souvenir medals by Dr. Hall at the class room this morning. Rev. Dr. Jones of St. Thomas's Parish being present. The medals, which are made from copper sheathing, taken from the bottom of H.M.S. Victory, Nelson's famous flagship, have engraved on the obverse side a miniature Victory. These were given as souvenirs to the two most popular teachers of the institution, the choice of the pupils being taken by vote. After the presentation Dr. Hall made a short address, which was replied to by Miss Sterling on behalf of the college. God Save the King was then sung by the school.

The train was pulling into the station, and as the passengers crowded to get off, the hotelman walked up and down calling: "King George, sir! King George!" Coming up to an old gentleman from the country he said, while stooping for the man's bag, "King George, sir?"

"No, sir," replied the old man, "you are mistaken. I'm Abraham McCarthy."

The Rival Editors; Or the Two M's.

The Advocate, Jan. 10, 1919: The Daily Star, April 1, 1919:

So they (the Squires bunch) established a paper and an extra $5 a week produced a traitor, whom they made its editor. A medley of failure in peace, a slacker in war, a turned-down candidate in 1913, this strange mixture of character may in the minds of the Inkpot Heads be a success as a political, twisting 'snake' which would poison the body of fishermen whom as editor of The Advocate, he helped to unite.

March 8, 1919:

It was a few days ago that this twister enumerated some of the things that his master did not do, and had he enumerated a few more of them, he might have arrived at the solution to his master's failure. Had he gone a bit further, and treated his readers with some things his master did, he might have undergone a real conversion to the idea which seems general of giving the chief Baby-Kisser a leather medal.

He might have told how many babies his master kissed in Trinity District, and how many he intends to kiss next time—that is, if he gets the chance to kiss them. One is inclined to think that very few fishermen's wives would think it any honor to have the fellow kiss their little ones for votes.

What do you think of the Coaker jokers now?

Cashin Will Come Back

Liberal Progressive Candidates.

ARE POPULAR IN BONAVISTA.
Private messages and letters from all over Bonavista Bay, received in the city the last few days, indicate that Morine, Winsor and Forbes will have an easy victory in the coming election. The people are 'fed up' with the Coaker propaganda, and when polling day comes, will send Kaiser Bill back to the woods again. The fishermen of the F.P.U. are beginning to learn that the real friend of the union is Morine, and its greatest enemy Coaker. They have also learned that the men who saved the union are Cashin, Crosbie and others. The whole of Bonavista Bay turned against one man rule, and it is safe to say that Morine, Winsor and Forbes will be returned with a substantial majority.

Every Saturday evening after 7 o'clock, Choice Ends of Beef, Mutton, Lamb, Pork will be sold at cost. ELLIS & CO., LTD., 203 Water Street.—nov 29.

ANDERSON TIME CEASES.—Anderson's time will cease for this year on Sunday, Oct. 5th, when all clocks will be put back one hour. The Daylight Saving proved very popular in the city.

A Soldier Says

Squires is a young man, considerably under forty when the war broke out, eligible for service, and no doubt physically fit.
Did we see him in the forefront with Major Franklin, Capt. Alderdice, Capt. Cooper, or the two Outerbridges—all married men, who chucked up their business and fought for democracy?
No!
Did we see his name connected with any of the patriotic committees?
No!
Did we see his name as a subscriber to the Mayollind and Christmas Comfort funds?
No!
Did we see one of his two expensive cars ever at the railway station to meet the batches of our lads broken in body but not in spirit, coming home?
No!
Did we see his name figuring as offering one of his cars for one afternoon a week at the military hospitals to give our chums God's blessed sunshine after the dreary hospital wards?
No!
When Harold Mitchell, Murphy, LeGrow, Robinson, Harris and Matthews were using their best endeavors to settle our grievances in regard to demobilization, allowance and gratuity, did we see the name of R. A. Squires figuring in the negotiations?
No!

Did we ever see his name figure in anything in connection with the soldiers and reservists, but selfish advertising and in the contemptible low down manner in which he endeavored to prey on our passions when our executive of the G.W.V.A. were in treaty night and day with the executive of the Government?
No!

Cashin and Bennett are good enough for us, and Squires and Coaker will be "smacken well na-poop" when we are through with them on November 3rd.

Wounded 5 Times War Hero Now Gains 24 Pounds

After Strain Of Service Was Almost A Nervous Wreck—Praises Tanlac.

Here is another instance of the remarkable reconstructive powers of Tanlac. William J. McCullum of 114 Borad St., St. John, New Brunswick, who spent three and a half years at the front in France and Belgium, wounded five times, gassed and shell shocked and finally invalided home, states that Tanlac has put him in shape to where he is not only beginning to feel like himself again, but that he has also gained twenty-four pounds in weight, besides.
Mr. McCullum is a veteran of two wars. He holds a medal for service in the great European war and also a four bar medal for gallantry in the Boer war.

"I can hardly realize just what Tanlac has been worth to me," said Mr. McCullum, in an interview, recently, "in restoring my health and putting me on my feet. When I got home from the war—I was simply a nervous wreck and neither time or medicines seemed to do me any good. I was so nervous and shaky I could hardly hold a cup of tea to my mouth and if my wife happened to drop a fork or knife at the table I would nearly jump out of my chair. In this excited condition, my food could not digest, but would sour and ferment on my stomach adding more misery to my already desperate condition. I would toss and roll most of the night, getting only about two hours restful sleep, and would sometimes have to get out of bed and walk the floor. My condition was distressing in the extreme and seemed to be getting worse all the time."
"Finally someone suggested that I try Tanlac and I got a bottle, having little idea it would do me any good, but it has not only helped me, it has made me feel like a new man. I now have an appetite like a bear and eat just anything set before me without the least effect from it. I have been built up and strengthened until my nervousness is practically gone. I can sleep all night long like a log and my wife has a job waking me up in the mornings. I am now able to do a full day's work and Tanlac gets all the credit for me being on my feet. My nerves have steadied down until I can stand all sorts of noise and sudden jars. When I first began taking Tanlac I couldn't hold my hand steady enough to take a drink of water, but now I can shave myself. I am praising Tanlac to all the boys, especially those suffering like I was. Take a "tip" from me—get Tanlac, for I fully believe I would still be a nervous wreck if I had not taken it myself."

His Grace the Archbishop at Bay Bulls.

On Sunday last the 28th, His Grace the Archbishop, accompanied by the Rev. Dr. Green, made his second episcopal visit to Bay Bulls. The occasion was made one of special rejoicing. From early morning the little town began to show signs of the preparations that were being made for the reception of the Archbishop's party. The beautiful September sun excelled itself in giving promise of an ideal day and from every household flew streamers of bunting, the varied-colored pennons waving in the Autumn breeze seeming to silently proclaim the Catholic loyalty which is so characteristic of the Southern Shore.

Shortly after Mass the sound of music in the distance announced that the distinguished visitor was drawing near and soon the surrounding hills echoed and reverberated with volleys of music, together with the continuous cheering which greeted His Grace as he passed the enthusiastic crowds which lined the road on his way to the Church.

The grounds were beautifully decorated with bunting and signals of welcome. From the entrance of the grounds to the Church door a guard of honor was drawn up in charge of ex-Corporal Richard Walsh of the Royal Nfld. Regiment, and consisted of ex-privates Dan. Henry and William Quirk, and James Walsh, together with a number of young men of the Settlement, and as His Grace passed through, the squad presented arms and carried out the different movements in a manner that would do credit to any brigade.

At the entrance of the Church His Grace was met by Rev. Fr. O'Brien, P. P., and conducted to the Sanctuary where a class of seventy young boys and girls were awaiting the Sacrament of Confirmation. The neat appearance of the children and their conduct throughout the ceremonies could not but draw forth from all present the highest praise for parents and children.

After Confirmation, His Grace in his usual plain but eloquent style briefly addressed the congregation. After thanking the people for their loyal and cordial welcome which to him was no surprise, judging from the old time Catholic spirit of the place, he said it was a source of pleasure to him to observe such marked signs of prosperity and advancement, particularly in the splendid group of Church buildings, which had so lately sprung up around them. He was particularly pleased to note that the Pastor had begun the erection of a Convent where he hoped in a very short time to have a Community of Sisters to carry on the great work of the education of the children. His Grace said it had been his pleasure, during the past four years to lay corner stones of ten churches, whilst there are in all this work of a lifetime. It has been accomplished within the short period of three years, during which time, Fr. O'Brien and parishioners have "gone over the top" in a building record. Such great work by a community of less than a thousand people, is creditable in the extreme, and not an hour of labor, and very little assistance has been secured outside the settlement. That the good Pastor may be spared to see his great work completed, we feel, as the earnest wish of every admirer of untiring industry and devotion to duty.

After the ceremonies in the Church, His Grace accompanied by Rev. Dr. Green and Rev. Fr. O'Brien, made a tour of inspection of the new buildings. These consist of a spacious Convent nearing completion, an excellent and up-to-date school, and a large Parish Hall, which has few equals in the country. These buildings together with the Church are all equipped with electric fittings and both Church and Convent, are heated by one of the latest furnace systems. Nor is all this the work of a lifetime. It has been accomplished within the short period of three years, during which time, Fr. O'Brien and parishioners have "gone over the top" in a building record. Such great work by a community of less than a thousand people, is creditable in the extreme, and not an hour of labor, and very little assistance has been secured outside the settlement. That the good Pastor may be spared to see his great work completed, we feel, as the earnest wish of every admirer of untiring industry and devotion to duty.

Bitten By a Dog.

As a result of both hands being bitten by his own dog yesterday, Mr. J. Burnstein, tailor, is now being treated by a doctor. The dog was run over by an automobile and picked up by Mr. Burnstein, who carried it into the house. There, probably maddened by pain, the little animal turned on him, inflicting the wounds. Fearing hydrophobia, Mr. Burnstein hurried to a doctor and had the bitten parts cauterized and dressed. The dog will probably be destroyed.

At the City Hall.

The Municipal Council held its regular weekly session last night. The Mayor presided and Councillors Mulhally and Vinicombe were present. After reading the minutes, etc., the following matters were disposed of: Job Bros. & Co. sent a communication agreeing to the Council's proposal re laying water main down the South side.

Reid Mtd. Company wrote they would give attention to the streets near the railway tracks. A protest was read from residents of Lealle Street against the erection of a stable there. No permission was given for the erection.

F. Fitzpatrick asked for permission to lay concrete foundations for buildings on Franklin Avenue. Permission was given provided owner agrees to pay his proportion for the extension of the water and sewer mains, etc.

The Secretary and Plumbing Inspector were asked to deal with several applications for water and sewerage under the Small Homes' Act.

A protest against the removal of a crossing at the foot of Stephen St. was read from a number of residents. The crossing will be replaced.

Petitions for lights were read from residents of Casey Street and Blackmarsh Road. These matters will be investigated.

The following plans were approved: Sir John C. Crosbie, addition, King's Bridge Road; H. J. Taylor, addition, Springdale Street, subject to Engineer's approval; Mrs. Barnes, Atlantic Avenue, garage; Thomas Smythe, garage, King's Bridge Road; C. Windsor, house, Brazil's Field.

The following permits were ordered: M. J. Galvey, repairs roof, New Gower Street; E. Spry, fence, Monkstown Road; Arthur Ehsary, repairs, South Side.

Mrs. Jane Dillion requested permission to build a house on South Side Road. No action.

James P. McLoughlin requested permit to repair houses on Brennan Street. Permission could not be allowed under the law.

A plan of storm porch, submitted by James Murdock, was referred to the Engineer for enquiry.

It was decided to change the name of "Brazil's Field" to "Beaumont St. West."

Addition to the house on Newtown Road for E. M. Cahill was approved.

The City Engineer reported on work at wall City Terrace; curb and gutter work, number of services laid and repaired, and other routine matters.

The Health officer's weekly report was read.

After disposing of some routine matters and passing pay rolls and bills, the meeting adjourned.

Methodist Sunday School Convention.

The Conference Sunday School Convention is to be held in Gower Street Church on Oct. 28th and 29th, when a gathering of Sunday School workers from the Outports is expected. Rev. M. Doyle, assistant secretary of the Sunday School Department, expects to arrive in Newfoundland on Oct. 8th, and will visit a number of Circuits in the five Districts of the Conference, conducting institutes at Clarke's Beach, Carbonara, and be present at the Convention in St. John's. The full programme for the Convention will be published in a few days. Reduced travelling rates have been granted to the delegates by the Reid Nfld. Co.

At the Majestic.

The Majestic has still another big special to offer its patrons to-night, when Miss Withers will give an interpretation of classic dancing that will be sure to take the hall by storm. The Majestic is setting a high standard of shows for any moving picture theatre, here or abroad, and the patron may always be sure that he will get the best. "The best is none too good" is the motto of this popular house, and it is the carrying out of this that has put the Majestic where it is to-day—at the head. The feature to-night is a picture starring popular Jack Pickford and the almost equally popular actress, Louise Huff. To make up the full show a Ford Educational Film, such as has already been seen here, will be screened. To-night's show is an unusually big one, and patrons should turn up in full force.

Joint Meeting at Bonne Bay.

A joint meeting was held here last night, which was a great success for Capt. Kean. Scammel spoke well, but made some bad breaks. He stated that the town of St. John's could not produce two jurymen who would give Cosker a righteous verdict. Kean replied and literally tore his speech into shreds. Meeting closed with National Anthem. Admitted by all the best meeting ever held in Bonne Bay, and wonderful success for the Liberal Progressive candidate.

The Leader of the Opposition in St. John's East.

Dan! Dan! The Yeast-Cake Man, Is Going to be an "Also-Ran! New Dan Takes a Tip, Just Pack Your Old Grip, And Beat It Back as Quick as You Can.

Mr. Daniel J. Curtin has been announced by the Squires-Coaker faction as leader of their ticket in St. John's East.

What with his colleagues Hero Carter coming to be Minister of War and Harry de Barge Bartlett aspiring to be the Arthur Henderson of Newfoundland this good old district has a lot to put up with. But, frankly, this candidature is sorely trying its long-suffering patience.

Our memory is not quite clear on Mr. Curtin!

If we remember rightly, a few years ago this young man decided that the Newfoundland climate was not sufficiently salubrious, the people of St. John's too insufficiently educated in the higher themes, and the district too confined, so that on one bright and sunny morning he hit the choo-choo for parts unknown. After an absence of many moons, word evidently reached here that he had pitched his tent on the wig-wam slopes of a neighbouring Canadian province and was deeply engrossed in the study of Evangeline. "Evangeline" of course does not mean the well known brand of cider.

Then comes Election time!

Squires vainly endeavours to find candidates to oppose the Fighting Trio—Higgins, Vinnicombe and Fox—in the eastern section of the capital. Men were coaxed and cajoled and even threatened, but no one could be found foolish enough to associate himself with such canaille as Squires and Coaker. De Barge and the Hero (two hoo-does in the last election) were willing to be sacrificed, but the third victim for the slaughter could not be found.

Squires decided that if a local article were not forthcoming then one must be imported as the ticket just had to be filled and that was all there was to it. And lo! and behold the product is Curtin who was found wandering aimlessly about Annapolis looking for the vanished Evangeline.

With that innate modesty for which he was always noted, Daniel J. refused to go on the Coaker ticket unless he were leader, and despite their priority the other two poor fell fell for Squires' suavity, and accepted the indignity without protest.

We deeply sympathize with him in the role he has to portray of "Caesar to Squires' Cassius" but Brutus says he was ambitious and Brutus is an honourable man.

It would, we think, have served Mr. Curtin better had he endeavoured to enter Canadian politics with his friend of the "reform" ring at Toronto, who engineered his visit here at Squires' direction.

However, we can assure him that when the bell-rap is rung he will be so many furlongs behind the winning trio—Higgins, Vinnicombe, and Fox—that he will vanish instantly from the scene of his political disaster to court once more the Muse in the land of Evangeline.

Liberal Progressives Will Win.

Editor Evening Telegram

Dear Sir,—Allow me space in your valuable paper to say that the greatest Political meeting ever held in Trepassey was held last night in the Star of the Sea Hall and was filled to its capacity long before the Candidates arrived. The first to come was Mr. Sullivan, and he was heartily welcomed by the audience and three lusty cheers were called for Sir M. P. Cashin, and Candidates of the Liberal Progressive Party. When Messrs. Walsh and Sinnott arrived the audience fairly brought down the house. One of our most highly respected citizens acted as chairman in the person of Mr. Jas. Butler, who introduced the Candidates. Mr. Walsh then took the floor and spoke for over an hour, followed by Mr. Sullivan with a speech which reflected much credit to himself. Mr. Sinnott came next with a very nice speech, which gave us to understand that every word he said he meant, and they all left us an impression that if we put them in the House of Assembly we shall be well represented, and this we shall surely do, and no others need apply. The writer has attended many meetings but never a more orderly or respectful one. A vote of thanks to the Chairman was proposed by Mr. Walsh and seconded by Mr. Sullivan, and so brought to an end, one of the finest meetings ever held at Trepassey. Cashin will come back! Thanking you for space, Mr. Editor. I remain, yours most respectfully,

OLD FISHERMAN.

Of all the poisons taken into the blood, the germs and pus contributed by diseased gums (Pyorrhoea) are the most destructive to the human system. If every red blood cell is forced to fight against numbers of germs to the cell, the blood cannot attend to the building up of the body, and if allowed to continue the system is bound to break down and eventually you are an invalid. Kidney, stomach, heart trouble, Rheumatism and many other diseases are brought on by diseased gums and teeth.
