The Only One-Cent Morning Paper in Canada, and the Only Independent Morning Paper in the City of Toronto.

FRIDAY MORNING DECEMBER 2, 1931.

THE WORLD NOT AN ORGAN

The Ottawa Citizen, though the Tory organ at headquarters, is always ingenious and courteous in its treatment of its contemporaries, but when it dubs The World "a protesting organ" it does not correctly represent our status and position.

The World can say truthfully that another Toronto journal has said untruthfully, that it is not an organ, in the conventional sense of the term.

It endeavors to voice the liberal sentiment of the country, without outburst of any individual. However small may be its success in this attempt it at least deserves, and we have reason to believe, credit for making it. Therefore, we dissent from some of Mr. Blake's views, our dissent must not be quoted as that of one enjoying his confidence, bonded to influence his course.

The World has no control over Mr. Blake, nor has Mr. Blake any influence over The World, except such as he may publicly and legitimately exercise upon any re-creative mind by his logic and his policy.

If, as the Citizen avers, and it is not the best authority upon such a subject, Mr. Blake is irrevocably wedded to the Globe's line of free trade, which is not free trade at all, we may regret but we cannot help it. What we have said of that idea was stated by, and shall continue to stand by, as we are convinced and convicted of error. But he is bound by some stringent vow to never change or modify his opinions? We have met men who boasted that they had never changed their opinions, but that was because they never had any opinion to change.

Mr. Blake, one has Mr. Blake's opinion, it is to be hoped, Sir John A. Macdonald has never permitted any supercilious reverence for consistency to stand in the way of his judgment. Burke, Peel, Boscawen, and Gladstone, all made sweeping changes of opinion. Therefore, if independent liberal journals like The World are to be the national policy, if they can persuade us that it is not the proper point of attack, he will not lack illustrious and patriotic examples for his justification.

But if his intellect and his conscience tell him that he is right in his present course, his persistence in that course will not affect The World's intellect and conscience, nor make it an organ. The World's protest are the protests of those liberals who deem it time for the liberal party to take a new departure from the lines laid down by the grit faction. Nothing more and nothing less.

THEIR DISABILITIES

By their persistence Farnell has thrust the line of his opinion so prominently forward that it has become the only one to be regarded as the official line of the liberal party.

It is unfortunate for the liberal people themselves. There are many liberal outsiders who cannot bring themselves to endorse a movement which aims, after all, at the conservation of the property of the people whose fault has been in undisputed possession for generations, or who may have purchased and paid for it in good faith, with the sanction of the law, but yesterday. Even the hand that is a confederate measure. The difference between depriving a man of all the revenue from his property, depriving him of a part of his own's right rather than of kind. It is at least a compromise between the two, for the people who are the poor will be a poor man's property.

There are many liberal outsiders, however, and not a few of a somewhat character, who are agitating for the removal of all the liberals of all parties and committees might sympathize with the inequality of the franchise in the two countries. The qualification, not merely for parliamentary but also for municipal elections, is much higher in Ireland than in Canada. If the federal government at Ottawa were to abolish our provincial legislature, and enact that while one man in three might vote in Quebec and one man in ten could vote in Ontario, we should be placed in a position towards our sister provinces towards her sister Ireland, and it requires no statesmanship to say that we should not silently submit to the injustice. It is strange that in a country so fruitful of agitators and agitators this inequality has not been brought well to the front as a grievance which all but thoroughbred Tories would appreciate. The popular enjoyment of the franchise is the fulcrum upon which the favor of successful agitation must rest. The Irish leaders have hitherto been so illogical as to neglect to provide that fulcrum.

THE VACANCIES IN THE SENATE

As a fisher for men Sir John A. Macdonald has great faith in dangling baits. He has seldom or never been known to make an appointment promptly. He seems to take a delight in having a large number of applicants running after any office that may be in his gift, having all the time the lucky man in his mind's eye. It is wonderful, too, how much of this sort of thing his followers will put up with. There are among them men who have been standing for years with their eyes shut and their mouths open to see what he will give them, and their patient faith has not yet been either rewarded or exhausted.

Take the vacancies in the senate, for instance. We are within what we know to be the mark when we say that there were dozens of would-be senators at the recent convention, men who have fought and have bled from the pocket—in the cause. We went away without hope, although it would require an enlargement of the senate chamber to accommodate all the aspirants to place within its walls. Their name is legion, and they dwell in all quarters of the Dominion.

Few, except the aspirants themselves, will chafe at the delay. Sir John does not need votes in the upper chamber, and the people would not complain if the vacancies were never filled. The saving in salaries which is being effected, and for which Sir John will of course take credit in his political balance sheet, is of more moment to the taxpayers, small though it be, than the disappointment of a few respectable old fogies. It would be a rare stroke of policy upon the premier's part to permit the vacancies in the senate to lapse by effluxion of time, until the last of the venerable band would read the deserted hall and deplore that he was a survivor, not of the first, but of the fittest. Such is not Sir John's purpose. He will use these vacancies as bait for the next election campaign and catch many judicious therein.

SENATE JOURNALISM

The Globe poses as the leading paper of Canada, yet its conductors connived at reporters getting into the conservative convention by underhand means, and then published a report of the proceedings as what took place at a "conservative conspiracy," and gloried in the sneaking act by using big headlines and boasting of the deception employed.

A day or two after the same journal stated that forty bottles of whiskey had been drunk by the stipendiaries of University College in one of their pranks. This was a deliberate falsehood, but when the students in the Globe office and asked that a correction be made, they were told that it was good to publish lies as it often brought in the truth. But no correction of this slander has been made by the Globe.

Yesterday the sneek policy was again manifest. A private pamphlet of the conservatives, giving instructions to the members of that party as to the manner of organizing and containing nothing improper other than calling the oppositionists grubs, fell into the sneek editor's hands, and it, too, was published under a big head with an introductory glowing in the act.

If the political parties of this country cannot hold a close convention, or issue confidential circulars to its members without having them "sneaked" our party journalism has fallen mightily low. The convention was legitimate and so were the circulars, and we, suppose, only of the same nature as those resorted to by the opposition.

Sneak journalism is discreditable, and what is more to the point, disastrous to the party or paper that employs it.

FREE TRADE V. PROTECTIONIST POSTER

Political economy is generally regarded as a dry, practical subject, but a speaker at the Chicago tariff convention "dropped into poster" in a manner that would have done credit to Silas Wegg. Our protectionist readers must have the benefit of his effusions.

From New Hampshire's icy mountains, From Florida's coral strand, To where the Rocky Range, Red down their golden sand, Protection! oh, Protection! The joyful sound proclaim, Till each remotest nook, Has heard the leader's name.

As The World goes round for all, we wished to place both sides of the question before the public, and therefore secured, at enormous expense, the following rejoinder from the free trade bard, Mr. J. D. Edgar:

From Ontario's golden mountains, From Nova Scotia's foggy strands, From Prince Edward's gleaming fountains, To Keeweenaw's fertile lands, Where the poor man's share and silver, 'Nash a fair high that harts, They call us to deliver.

The poor man's share is silver. It is now in order for Mr. Burdock Plumb to strike the key.

In West Northumberland the opposition have an excellent opportunity of trotting out the much talked of reaction, the existence of which has been denied by the ministerial organs. The Tory machine's selection of Mr. George Gulliv as the government candidate has made several serious heads in the Tory camp, including the veteran Sidney Smith, who justly complains that his many services to his party have been forgotten in his old age. His is not a singular experience. In 1878 the friends of the Irish Canadian supported Mr. Cookburn, and immediately turned the scale in his favor. In 1881 that contingent of the electorate is very much dissatisfied with both parties, but with a leaning towards Mr. Blaine and the candidate who comes out under that gentleman's auspices will probably get the bulk of their support. If under these circumstances, the grubs cannot redeem West Northumberland, the Globe had better lay down the agricultural implements and suspend the ministerial instrument at a lofty altitude.

It is one of the merits of true liberalism that it dreads no brother near the throne, and allows every man to speak out his dissent from his associates. We therefore find no fault with the St. Catharines News for saying that the proper method of achieving Canadian independence is not by the aid of a third party but by continued agitation within the ranks of the old parties.

The News forgets that the Globe upon the one hand, and Sir John A. Macdonald upon the other, have forbidden such discussion within the ranks of both parties because it is "rebellious" and "covert disloyalty. How can any reformer or conservative agitator for independence in a party caucus which would do him as a traitor? The formation of a third party would give an impetus to the agitation which it must otherwise lack. Our St. Catharines correspondent thinks that both Sir John and Mr. Blake would take up the independence cry to-morrow if they would gain votes by it. Mr. Blake's modification of the instructions to governors-general and Sir John's national policy were both steps in the direction of independence, and the treaty-making power will be another when conceded. The News explains that by Canada it means citizens, native and adopted and so say we all. There is no room for know-nothingism in Canada.

Mr. Mackenzie Bowell's officiousness threatens to alienate that staunch supporter of the government, the London Free Press. He has issued an order to customs officers instructing them to prevent foreign cars carrying local freight. The London organ characterizes this "hindrance to trade," and "on a par with the policy which places an embargo on the people's books." The fact is that the railway companies cannot supply the demand for cars, and as the forbidden practice is reciprocal between our lines and those of the United States, it is difficult to see why it should be stopped by a ukase from the customs czar. Mr. Bowell is an illustrious example of a man whose position is too big for his occupant.

BRANTFORD has made a definite project for extending its railway facilities, namely, to run a branch of the Credit Valley from Milton to that city and thus put its people in direct communication with Toronto, and to run another branch to Waterford on the Canada Southern. These two short lines would give competing routes to all points east and west.

THE STATEMENT that Sir William Howland and the Ontario bank directors will in any event resign, recalls the story of the dutchman who was asked if his wife was resigned when she died, and replied: "Meth God, she had to be."

Two Mackenzies ran in Lambton in 1878 Alexander and John A. If the former is elected for East York all the latter will need to do will be to change his front name and trade under the old sign.

THE PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS take place in Quebec to-day. The prevalent opinion is that the bloc corruption fund will prove too much for the free bribery party.

IF ENGLAND were to send persons guilty of bribery at elections to jail for six months, in Canada we would then parliament for five years.

THE CHANGEMEN are forming a third party in order to secure the incorporation of their body by the Ontario assembly.

PUBLIC OPINION

Prescott Telegraph: Some of the reforms advocated by The World are worthy of discussion, and would be a source of strength in the platform of either of the existing parties.

Windsor Times (conservative): Why is it that some prominent Englishmen pose Canada by for foreign countries? There is Walter of the London Times now pulling up the United States at the expense of the Dominion.

Prescott Telegraph: That there is a growing feeling in Canada in favor of an independent existence for the Dominion is becoming more apparent; and that the question of national independence is destined here long to be one of prominence in the political life of the Dominion. A number of the cleverest papers in the Dominion have, in a measure, already pledged themselves to support the question, and it is not at all unlikely that they will soon recruit. Annexation is a question that will never be seriously considered by Canadians, and would be the very worst that could befall Canada. If there must at any time be a change in our relations with the motherland let us have independence—annexation never.

Lindsay Murray laid down twenty rules to govern the use of the comma, and Wilson, in his "Treatise of punctuation," gives us his own list. No wonder that with so many rules people get confused as to the use of this, the smallest grammatical division in the written matter. Many illustrations might be given to indicate the important character of the errors that arise from its omission or improper use; but the following will suffice:

In the infernal dictionary, the word "far" is thus defined: "A small mountain, lake, or pool." The improper use of the comma after mountain, makes three very long things: 1, a mountain; 2, a lake, and 3, a pool, instead of simply mountain lake or pool.

In the same dictionary the word "woman" is thus defined: "A female person." At a public dinner this word was given: "Woman—without her, man is a brute." A reporter had it printed: "Woman without her man, is a brute."

A printer, mulling with the verdict of a coroner's jury, by inserting a comma after "drinking," instead of "apoplexy," made it read thus: "Deceased came to his death by drinking, causing apoplexy in the mind of the jury."

A clergyman was expatiating before a deeply increased congregation upon the alarming increase of temperance in his parish, when he astonished his hearers by saying: "A young woman in my neighborhood died very suddenly last Sunday, while I was preaching the gospel in a state of beastly intoxication."

"People have no more right to become dyspeptic, and remain gloomy and miserable, than they have to take poison and commit suicide. If the stomach becomes weak and fails to perform its functions, Burdock Bitters will speedily remedy the trouble.

A Madam's Miracle. The French missionary Father Bridaine was always poor for the simple reason that he gave away all he had. One night he was asked for shelter at the house of a curate of a village through which he passed, and the worthy man having but one bed shared it with him. At daybreak Father Bridaine, according to custom, and went to say his prayers at the neighboring church. Returning from his sacred duty he met a beggar who asked him: "Alas! my friend, I have nothing!" said the good priest, mechanically putting his hand in his breeches' pocket, where to his astonishment he found something hard wrapped up in a paper which he knew he had not put there. He hastily opened the paper, and seeing four crowns in it, cried out that it was a miracle! He gave the money to the beggar and hastened into the church to return thanks to God. The curate soon after arrived there and Father Bridaine related the miracle with the greatest jubilation; the curate turned pale, but his hand in his pocket and in getting up in the dark had put on the wrong pair of shoes, he had performed a miracle with the curate's crowns.

We call special attention to the latest and beautiful styles of pigtoe, made at J. H. Lennette & Co's Studio, 324 Yonge street (two doors north of Edward). They have introduced a new pigtoe which is extremely quick, sure and artistic in its results, and not known to others in the art. Owing to the constant rush daily at their studio these delectable pigtoes their photos taken should secure their appointments. Cabinets only $3 per dozen. Labels $2 per dozen.

The latest style of overcoating for the fall season is the "fancy sapped tweed." A large variety of the above can be seen at J. M. Maloney & Son's, men's and boys' 89 Bay street. They have also on hand a complete stock of colored wools, west of England trousers, etc., etc. 246

Don't buy a sewing machine until you have seen the Wagner new-family "C" and people's books. The fact is that the railway companies cannot supply the demand for cars, and as the forbidden practice is reciprocal between our lines and those of the United States, it is difficult to see why it should be stopped by a ukase from the customs czar. Mr. Bowell is an illustrious example of a man whose position is too big for his occupant.

No article ever attained such unbounded popularity in so short a time as Burdock Bitters, and that too during the prevalence of countless numbers of widely advertised litters and blood purifiers. It is the only medicine that has been tried at once, and leaves no desirable effect unattained.

Keep the feet dry.—This is the season of slippy weather so in the case of colds and lung troubles; neglected cold or damp feet is a great source of these troubles. Care your feet with Burdock Bitters. Factorial Balsam. Pleasant to take and always effective.

The causes of colds are getting overworked in hot rooms or crowded assemblies, sitting in a draught, cooling too rapidly after exercise, mulling up warm and changing to lighter wrap-ups, cold and damp feet. No matter what is the cause, Haggard's Factorial Balsam is the cure for all throat and lung diseases that induce consumption.

"Is it his name Mr. Wooling?" asked Mildred. "A slight, successful female fitted the visitor's face."

"I agree with you, Miss," her mother added with a smile. "I have been observing your visitor closely."

"I think we both appreciate Miss Wetheridge's visit," said Mrs. Wooling. "You will let me know when you can repeat it in my opinion."

"I think you will let me come and see you," said Mrs. Wooling. "I have been thinking of you very much since you were in my district."

"The thing is mutual then," said Mrs. Wooling. "I am coming to see you."

"I'm not good like my sister," said Mrs. Wooling. "The clergyman now laughed heartily. 'All the more reason that I should come,' he said."

"Well, then, please come in the evening, for I wouldn't miss your visit for the world."
