CHAPTER XXXIII

Yes, I repeat to you, I am here to tell you that I have seen the ship...

It was a person, a man, but either it was a person, a man, but either it was a person, a man...

We went to the roof with our old cases. In two hours, we had our messengers walking rapidly...

"Well, yes, thank heaven" it was the signal. The women threw a great ball to a considerable height...

"It would come." The men were formed from the raft to the rooms below and everything of value that we desired to carry...

At half past seven, equipped for the work we were on the roof, looking out in the direction of the west for the coming of the Hermon.

At half past eight, the men began to descend just over our heads. It seemed about ten feet above the roof...

Just at this moment a greater burst of tempest reached my ears. I went to the door and looked out into the night...

"What does that mean?" I asked him. "My first thought was that they were all drunk, their voices were so raucous."

HASTARD "LIBERALISM"
 Those workmen who are disposed to fancy that the cause of Labor lies far more to expect from the so-called liberal party than from their opponents, will probably read an article in last Friday's Liberal on "The Wages of High Officials," which embodies the most reactionary and democratic ideas. It is a plea for increasing official salaries on the ground that big corporations are able to pay their leading officers on a handsome scale—so the can well afford to do so of the people. They bring in the public the $25,000 company the $50,000 a year which President Harrison is given for being the grandfather's grandson with the New York Central Railroad, and the salaries given to managers by the banking and investment companies. It is dignified with "paragonous policy" which regulates the salaries paid to the statesmen and distinguished public men who control the policy of nations," instancing the salaries of British and American cabinet officers. It is worth noting the fact that these purveyors of the partisan and platitudinous do not nowadays control the policy of nations to any extent. That is done by the high salaried capitalist managers of banks, railroads and tin and copper companies, whom the jumping jack statesmen have allowed to supply their functions and do the real work of government.

The Liberal asserts that plutocrats should "make large profits for their companies, and even save more money for their shareholders than the salaries they receive." What do Labor Reformers who realize the heinous, dehumanizing and oppressive character of the salaries committed by the railroad and financial magnates, in coming millions out of the misery and starvation of the masses, think of the tantard "liberalism" which would make the unjust accumulations of these robber-lords the standard by which to grade the remuneration of public servants?

The Liberal concludes the article by a denunciation of "the paragonous policy of the Dominion Government in regard to judicial salaries." pointing out that they were fixed in 1895, and that "now, although the cost of living has nearly doubled, the salaries are kept at $10,000 for chief justices and $7,500 for the associate justices." The refusal of the Dominion Government to yield to the clamor of a change of legal provisions and to modernize benches and raise the salaries of the judges, is worthy of the few really grandly unjust provisions of the law. Mr. McMillan's article is pertinent. When it is borne in mind that according to the reports of the Bureau of Industry the average earnings of a skilled workman, if he is fortunate enough to have steady work, are only about $200 a year, or not so far from those of a third class seaman, who, the farmer who works a 160-acre farm, and from whom he must, thank heaven, be able to extract a few dollars' worth of profit, the proposition to raise the incomes of these pretentious and overpaid tails of the privileged class at the expense of the tax-payers, is nothing but a method short of infamy. Surely the mere cost of living ought rather to be a reason for asking to elevate the condition of the cruelly plundered toilers by sweeping out of existence the non-producers who prey upon them, instead of adding to their burdens by increasing the cost of the judicial system. The Liberal's attitude on this question is only one of many evidences that there is no essential difference between the two monopoly-led parties. Yet there are some souls who would have our workmen support the Gites, to leave, for a purely party purpose, they pretend to offer protection, while upholding all other forms of monopoly and spoliation.

WEALTHY SHUGGLERS AND CHEATS
 An old saying pitifully contrasts the treatment meted out to the poor with that dealt out to the rich for offences that in one case are trifling compared to the heinousness of the other.
 The man who steals a goose off a common is sent to jail, while he who steals the common itself is liable to be sent to the House of Commons.
 There has within recent years sprung up a custom amongst our wealthy citizens of spending large sums in England for household appliances and other goods. These people are reaping large incomes from the money in Canada. Some workmen support the Gites, to leave, for a purely party purpose, they pretend to offer protection, while upholding all other forms of monopoly and spoliation.

THE HOURS OF POLLING
 The LABOR ADVOCATE is pleased to note that Mr. Joseph Tait, who has shown a praiseworthy disposition to advance the legislative reforms asked for by the labor organizations has undertaken to move an amendment to the bill which would give municipalities the power to extend the hours of polling until seven o'clock p.m. The present arrangement, by which the polls close at five o'clock, is grossly unfair to workingmen voters, as in many cases it necessitates their losing half a day to do so. In large cities many workmen leave several miles away from their work, and it is impossible for them to reach the polls in the neighborhood of their homes, cast their votes and return to work within the two hours in the middle of the day which the law now gives them. The consequence is that many, sooner than lose the time, stay away from the polls. If the polls were open until a later hour in the evening the men would vote on their return, from labor would long obliged, at no little inconvenience, to make a special midday journey to the polling place. The measure is so reasonable that it ought to carry without objection, and any opposition to it whatever the pretext, can only be prompted by a desire to see the influence of the working people on public affairs limited as far as possible. Mr. Tait's measure is a move in the right direction, but it would be better still if the hour for closing the polls were fixed at eight instead of seven.

GIVING PROTECTION AWAY
 Mr. Massey, of this city, president of the Massey Manufacturing Company, has committed the indiscretion of talking on the tariff with a Liberal interviewer. In the course of the conversation, he exposed in the most innocent manner in the world, the utter rottenness, ineffectiveness and futility of the protective system in a way to reprove the heart of a Free Trader. Mr. Massey is sore over his estimate that he is robbed by the tariff of $10 on the material of every boiler he turns out, and kicks like a man because when he exports a boiler, government only allows him three dollars as a rebate. He was of opinion, too, that he ought to be allowed to import free of duty not only the raw material, which is used in the article exported, but also in his business such as chemicals and pig-iron. This consistent Protectionist objects to the free trade policy which relates are a reward for working the raw material is produced in Canada. He says that the Canadian tariff system is so intricate and so complex that it is impossible to complete with others using the tariff as a guide. In short, Mr. Massey's plan is to give to Free Trade legislation the right to interfere with the best of our interests for himself. His conclusions clearly show what a bundle Protection is considered as a means of developing native industries or doing anything but bleed the people to enrich a set of tax-eating politicians and extortionate monopolists.

Every manufacturer's product is somewhat raw material, or is used in some way to add some other form of production. The cost of Mr. Massey's protected machines, for instance, is an important item in the expenses of the Manitoba farmer. Now, if Massey is entitled to get his raw material free from the States, on the same principle the wheat growers of Canada, representing an infinitely more important branch of industry, are equally entitled to buy their agricultural implements wherever they can do so cheapest.

But who proposes a rebate for them of the duty paid to enrich the Masseys, on the ground that they send their wheat abroad?

THE MONOPLIST MAFIA
 This terrible story which we publish elsewhere of what, from the latest information obtainable, appears to be the cold blooded and deliberately planned murder of nine or ten striking workmen in the Pennsylvania coke region, should be a revelation to every workman of the devilish and blood-thirsty spirit which animates the capitalist class. Following closely on the heels of the New Orleans massacre, it makes it abundantly clear that the plutocratic element "needs to be opposed by any and every means in the attempt of the masses to recover their stolen birthrights." The Morewood butchery was no doubt a premeditated and carefully planned atrocity, carried into effect with the purpose of intimidating the strikers by wholesale bloodshed that the survivors would be ready to make an abject surrender of everything for which they have been fighting, and resign themselves to the bondage of serfdom into which the capitalists are endeavoring to force them. To prevent labor from obtaining its rights the upper class everywhere are ready to spill blood like water, if need be. They prefer to state to fraud and make use of the machinery of the law, but when that will not answer, there is no measure of force so cruel, brutal or villainous that they will hesitate to employ it. The blood of the nine murdered strikers at Morewood is merely the drops of the crimson ocean which the Fricks, Cartwells, Depews, Goulds and their fellows are prepared to pour out of the hands of their brutal henchmen, rather than allow labor to work out its emancipation peacefully.

The late massacre by the Mafts of a monopoly is no exceptional case. It is such frequent instances of the treatment meted out to strikers in the United States by the moneyed despots who have realized that the cause of labor would be an making dangerous headway. It is an example of what workmen in Canada may at any time expect, whenever the ruling classes think that their interests would be rendered insecure by a little blood-letting. The Socialist and well written editorials of the Liberal give right to the core of the capitalist Mafts have so far refrained from uttering workmen in a blood of general news and interesting news in this country, it is only because the labor movement has not so easily obtained the ascendancy as in some parts of the United States and because the capitalists have so far been able to check it in other ways. The prejudiced judges, like Begbie, of British Columbia and subsequent politicians of the Hamilton, Ontario, the Mafts of Hamilton, are not their liking thus. Protectionist other nations armed with the Fricks come cheaper and the Fricks have no competition. But the presence of the steel industry is quite sufficient to show that the Canadian monopoly classes are as God-forsaken, vindictive and dishonest as their American brethren. No one who has an opportunity of listening to the opinions of devilish freetraders and their people of means and power, habitually use in speaking of the organizations when any strike is in progress, can doubt the stern and unyielding repression of a crowd of strikers without it will be justified if not aided with protection by the privileged class in Toronto.

The Morewood tragedy is a most entirely not the first of the long series of outrages perpetrated on the coast at the command of the moneyed plutocrats of America and is probably very far from being the last. We can only hope that in due time when working men have learned the lesson which these events are teaching for their blood, that all these crimes and lawlessness will be amply avenged—not alone upon the individual perpetrators, but by the destruction of the infernal system of competition which turns men into devils incarnate. Then the Morewood martyrs will not have died in vain.

A SCRAWLING JOKE
 THAT IS WHAT THE METROPOLITAN STRIKERS' CONVENTION IS CALLING.

—Paris, April 6. The Ministers of the city for the past week. Each strike has ended in a disturbance that culminated yesterday in a free fight between Richard and Hort, the English delegates, returning home, saying that they were discouraged and convinced that the Latin strikers would never walk hand in hand with their English and Franco-American brethren.

It is, of course, a lie and the World knows it perfectly well. But in publishing such lies and otherwise doing the dirty work of capitalism it is only fulfilling the conditions of its existence. It is paid to publish what suits the moneyed classes, the original fabricator, the associated agent is for originating falsehoods of this kind.

Secretly legible is no doubt the animating motive with most of those who protest against the action of the City Council in giving the expense of $10 for an elaborately engraved address of condolence on the occasion of the death of the late Father Labourer. Nevertheless, the objection is a just one. The Council have no right to spend the money of the citizens in any such way. Moreover, this whole business of engraved addresses, whether of the crimson ocean which the Fricks, Cartwells, Depews, Goulds and their fellows are prepared to pour out of the hands of their brutal henchmen, rather than allow labor to work out its emancipation peacefully.
