'GOOD ANGELS' CARRIED 'SAN' THROUGH CRITICAL PERIOD

In connection with the decision of the London Health association launch a compaign for a $500,000 endowment fund for the Queen Alexandra sanatorium, an interesting fact has just come to light.
Some years ago when the sanatorium was in serious need of funds, and when no further calls could be made upon the public there was some danger that it would be necessary to refuse admittance to a number of sufferers from tuberculosis including gassed war veterans. The fund required, $75,000, was thereupon raised on the personal credit of Sir Adam Beck and Philip Pocock. It still stands as a charge against Mr. Pocock and Sir Adam's estate. Now, however, the sanatorium has outgrown that condition and will in the course of events meet this liability. Its capital assets now exceed its liabilities by half a million dollars. The endowment fund which the health association is about to campaign for will be invested in sound securities and the revenue will

The Purpose of a Newspaper.

The resignation of John Lewis as editor of the Toronto Globe has introduced on the eve of a political campaign a discussion of newspaper principles and the proper relation of a newspaper toward political parties.

Mr. Lewis has voluntarily resigned from the Globe because its president will not permit and encourage its own musicians. support of the Liberal government but insists on an attitude of neutrality, and this has led to discussion of the independent newspaper versus the "party organ.

There is a difference to observe, however equal difference between a newspaper with performing in a hall on Dovercourt road. This between independence and neutrality; there is political convictions and a party organ. Independence is a necessary complement to sincere conviction; neutrality is as little to be desired as a spirit should look. There was also as blind partyism, for both of these are the patriarchal beard of the flowing variety, and a products of either timidity, neglect, bigotry or white headdress. ignorance.

The essential differences between neutrality and party organism on one hand and independence and conviction on the other seem to be in the weird and misty light, and the spirit well expressed in the statement which Mr. Lewis was performing just like a spirit should perform. has issued explaining his resignation. Mr. Lewis

"My position was not that the Globe should give an unflinching support to the government, if that means a blind and un-. I freely conceded reasoning support the right of the Globe to part with the government upon a question of principle. "Mr. Jaffray's demand (Mr. Jaffray is president of the Globe) was that for the present the Globe should be neutral-saying nothing in favor of the government or against Mr. Meighen and his party; and that as to its attitude in the general election we should wait and see. My position was that while I did not claim perfection for the government, it should have, not the blind allegiance, but the friendly alliance of the Globe; and that we could not maintain an attitude of neutrality throughout the campaign; and that our only alternative was to support either the King government or Mr. Meighen. I advocated the former course.'

In every community there are two types of One is liberal; the other is conservative. This distinction applies not merely to political It applies to general principles of living, to religion, to education, to business, to liton. pleasure. The distinction is often subconscious, liberately or instinctively, reaches out for things that are new, for reform, for progressivewhich are new. Both types of mind are neces- alone? sary to a community and both deserve representation and expression in its newspapers.

The Advertiser is a Liberal newspaper, but it is not a party organ. The Advertiser has. independence but it is never neutral. The Advertiser seeks to be liberal not merely in political opinions but in its general principles. It seeks to represent the liberal type of mind in its community, with neither disregard nor disrespect for the conservative.

The support of The Advertiser has been given and will be given the Liberal government because it most closely implements the convic tions which The Advertiser possesses.

Leave a Good System Alone.

Acting-Mayor Tuson of Windsor suggests that one commissioner be appointed to look after the police department of a city. This is a substitute suggestion to the appeal from Kitchener that Windsor should join it in a move to have magistrates removed from police boards.

It is difficult to see where this agitation comes from or what good reason there is for it As at present constituted the board of police commissioners is made up of the judge, magis- good businessman; in many ways it is sometrate and mayor. In this way it is both ap what of a compliment. pointive and elective, for when the voters are electing a mayor they are also naming their member of the police commission.

The idea of making the commission elective, such as would be done by the Windsor suggestion, or if not elective, then appointed by those who were elected, throws the management of the police department at once into civic politics, turned boat for six hours and was then rescued. in order that they may make fortunes on their and that is not a good place for it. It is simply reaching over and borrowing a method that has made a flasco of police management in United States. The present system is good enough to be left alone.

player-piano has its place, but it never did nor will it ever displace the development of latent native genius in the field of music.

In the same way radio cannot shove our musicians aside; it cannot relegate our excellent bandsmen to the past, nor can it be allowed to interfere with the development of local performers. We want our young people to master certain instruments; to do so is an accomplishment that becomes the property of the performer and the pleasure of those who listen. We can imagine thousands gathering in a park to hear a band program, but we cannot picture them leaving their homes to listen to a program relayed by loud speakers. By the latter method we would be developing nothing locally; rather would we be making ourselves dependent on the programs wafted in here from United States.

It may be old-fashioned to urge the retention of existing bandstands or the construction of new ones, but it is an excellent means for assisting in the development of local talent, and one that we cannot afford to overlook. Were there proper bandstand facilities in Victoria park there are several local organizations capable of putting on good programs. Let London develop

NEW CHRYSLER

At the completion of the first history-making year of Chrysler Six—Walter P. Chrysler pledged himself and his organizzion to strive earnestly to keep the Chrysler Six as far ahead of the wasteful and commonplace as it stood

The new Chrysler Six—at new and lower prices—is the answer to that promise—the result of his engineering and manufacturing genius

While the motoring public acclaims the Chrysler Six as the most phenomenal car ever built, Walter P. Chrysler announces notable improvements in quality—of materials, of performance, of craftsmanship, of equipment, of design.

Greater Power-Increased cylinder bore, resulting in approximately 10 per cent more torque, giving 70 miles per hour with greater ease and quickness than ever before.

Faster Acceleration-5 to 25 miles in 7 seconds, power enough to climb the steepest grades and pull through deepest mud or sand, from refined power plant with a still larger crankshaft of 50 per cent greater torsional rigidity.

Remarkable Fuel Economy—Carburetion im-proved to deliver 24 and more miles per gallon gasoline, notwithstanding increased power Improved Rear Axle—Ring gears and pinions are larger; differential carrier heavier to handle increased engine power.

Distinctive Color Combinations-Body colors, in Duco, are the most attractive and tasteful ever offered. Chrysler-designed, Fisher-built closed bodies are further refined; attractively low and gracefully rounded.

Extraordinary Equipment—Chrysler equipment is of a quality and completeness rarely found on any car—even the highest priced. It includes Purolator, which filters all dirt from crankcase oil as the motor runs; Watson Stabilators, the most efficient and most costly device of its type to absorb the shock of road irregularities; air-cleaner, which removes all ro and dust from air entering the engine; ther-mostatic control of water heat for most efficient operation; Chrysler-Lockheed hydraulic four-wheel brakes which provide utmost safety of control; Spartan "SOS" electric horn; duco durable body finish; balloon tires.

Cold words fail to describe this new Chrysler Six—a car so far beyond any comparison with existing cars that you must know it personally to understand its unapproachable superiority. That is why we are eager to have you see and King Snake and some others, may like birds and mice and things of that kind, but Mr. Water Snake doesn't care for anything but fish and frogs. No, he is a perfectly good neighbor so far as I Peter watched. He saw Mr. Water Snake glide into the water. A moment it later he saw him glide out again. In his mouth was a small fish. Wha Jerry had told him was true. Birds an little animals have nothing to fear from Mr. Water Snake.

Mr. Water Snake swallowed the little fish and then once more coiled up on the roof of Jerry Muskrat's house for a sun bath and nap. That roof was almost perfect for such a purpose. (Copyright, 1925, by T. W. Burness.)

ROBBERS OBTAIN DRUGS AND LIQUOR

Police Working On Fourth Store Robbery of Recent Date.

Intent on stealing rope and rubbing alcohol, robbers last night entered White's drug store, 601 Richmond street, and made away with small quantities of narcotic drugs and liquor. Four drug store robberies which have occurred in the city within the past few weeks, when i each case drugs were stolen, leads police to believe that a dope ring is operating here.

Entrance into White's drug store was gained some time during the night, when a small piece of the door window near the sash was broken The lock was turned from the inside. Money and other articles were left untouched, although a thorough search of the drug store was made. Several bottles of rubbing alcohol and morphine were taken. In working on the case this morn-police are firmly convinced that all the robberies have been carrie out by the same persons. Two weeks ago Cairncross's drug store at the corner of Clarence and Dundas streets was broken into when the window was broken. On the same night attempts were made to ente

WALKING AROUND THE GLOBE.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan J. Le Roux of Kimberley, South Africa, who are at present in Ontario, hope to make the record of being the first people who have ever hiked around the globe on foot. They started from Johannesburg, South Africa, on Jan. 31, 1922, and have since walked through Portuguese North Africa and the native territories to Egypt. They have also hiked across Italy, Switzerland, France, Belgium, Holland, England and part of Canada. To date they have walked 8.414 miles and sailed 1,100 miles. Bad weather which they encountered has resulted in their now being eight months behind time on their schedule, which contemplated girdling the globe in five years. Despite the fact that he pushes a taining 200 pounds of impediment all along the route, Mr. Le Roux covers Oct. 1-2 Royal winter Fair ...... Nov. 13-21 about 16 miles a day.

WOMEN and THE HOME

SIMPLICITY FOUND VERY ESSENTIAL

Chief Expression of Individual ity Noticed in Treatment of Neckline.

New York, Aug. 22.-The knitted sport costumes now being designed for fall present the simplicity which is so essential to the smartly dressed sports woman, and at the same time give an ease and freedom of movement not attainable in the more closely woven fabrics. The chief expression of individuality is found in the treatment of the neck line, the so-called crow neck being especially popular.

Thousands of men and women wear athletic underwear, but it is a mis-take to allude to same as B. V. D.'s inless the garments themselves bear the well-known red wovewn B. V. D. label. B. V. Not all women have funny possession of which has carried more than one comedian to success, but almost any woman can have funny leg coverings. In some of the new est stocking designs, cross stitch needles threaded with many colors have worked out whimsical designs which appear just below the knee. These range from the characters of the comic strip to film and stage favorites in character.

"Don't shoot, Davy, I'll come down." That was what the racoon said to Davy Crockett, but no coon skin coat has offered to come down—in price—this season. The reason is that the football stadiums seem likely to be as full of racoon coats this fall as ever before.

The only way to fight selfishness—if standing up for one's rights can be ealled selfishness. So my advice to you is to entirely ignore your mother's protests and go on and marry your man. Probably she will be as pleased as Punch over it afterwards. We gain nothing by sacrificing our-selves to selfish people. They never thank us or appreciate what we have done, and they are never satisfied because selfishness grows on what it feeds. DOROTHY DIX.

Thomas Got Its Name Was a Wise Though Autocratic Administrator of the Western Ontario Wilderness --- His "Subjects" Were Found-Spot of Canada.

By PURDOM LOVE.

'As long as the waters of Lake Erie continue to flow towards the grand leap at Niagara, so long will the name of Colonel the Honorable Thomas Talbot continue to be a household word of friends announced his intention of weaning among the descendants of the pioneers of West- away settlers from the New England states and ern Ontario. Thus spoke the late Col. George Munro, of Elgin, some years ago, in referring to the "lion of Port Talbot," whom he knew and loved in the days when the present homestead at Port Talbot, now owned by Judge Talbot Macbeth of London, was the mecca of all settlers from Long Point to Windsor and the "metropolis" of the wolf and snake-infested wilderness ruled over by the erratic, generous and quick-tempered Col. Talbot, about whom there are enough stories to fill half a dozen volumes.

The wilderness that rang to the sound of an axe wielded by Col. Talbot himself on May 21, :803, is still surmounted by the colonel's old nome, which he jocosely referred to as his 'Canadian Malahide Castle"; but lowing herds of sleek cattle tread the soil where deer and turkeys were stalked by preying bands of vicious wolves. Automobiles whiz along the famous Talbot road where teams of oxen laboriously and slowly wended their way to the Talbot mill with loads of wheat to be ground into flour. Seven hundred acres surrounding the historic frame building on the Port Talbot bluff have been acquired by Judge Macbeth, son of the late George Macbeth, confidential advisor and manager of the broad acres of Col. Talbot in the latter years of his life. Coveted by Americans in the war of 1812, this property is still coveted in peacetime by their descendants and it may be that the greatest historical spot in with the history of the making of Upper Western Ontario will eventually be sold to De- Canada." troiters for a summer colony.

Historians have treated Col. Talbot in a fair and impartial manner. He had his enemies, and who among the great have none? Col. Talbot was essentially human and records and books written by the late Judge Ermatinger of St. Thomas and James H. Coyne, M.A., now living in St. Thomas, teem with paragraphs which show the colonel as a wise though autocratic ruler of the Western Ontario wilderness and one who would not brook interference from the provincial government. Time and again the colonel visited England to stop politicians from interfering with his colonization plans, and he was invariably successful.

An Aide With Wellington.

Col. Talbot was an Irishman, born at Malahide castle, county of Dublin, July 17, 1771, and traced his ancestry back to the time of William the Conqueror. He received his early education in Manchester public school and received an army commission at 11 years of age. At 17, he became aide-de-camp to the Marquis of Buckingham, having as a brother aide the famous Duke of Wellington, conqueror of Napoleon. periences. The Iron Duke had accomplished a a much lesser degree,

The Hon. Thomas Talbot receive his captaincy and his majority in the same year, 1783, and two years later was given command of the ers of Today's Garden 5th Regiment at the age of 25. He saw eight in Flanders and partly at Gibraltar.

In 1803 Col. Talbot was still a young man with every prospect usually considered alluring to ambition. A popular figure at court and one of the most promising young officers in the Brit'sh militia, he suddenly abandoned his military career and to the amazement of hundreds populating the northern shore of Lake Erie with sturdy settlers from the British Isles. colonel had made several confidential trips to the States while a member of Governor Simcoe's staff and knew that there were a number of settlers in New York, Pennsylvania and New England who were dissatisfied with republican institutions, and he rightly thought that they could be lured to his settlement by the fertility of the land and under his guidance build up a loyal British community.

Governor Simcoe promised his youthful staff officer every aid in his desire to acquire land in Yarmouth township, Norfolk county, and suggested to the home government that Col. Talbot be given 5,000 acres of land, and an additional 200 acres for every family established, 50 acres self, "for the expense and trouble of collecting and locating them." It was found, however, that it was impossible to grant 5,000 acres in one block to Col. Talbot in Yarmouth and it was then granted in the township of Dunwich.

"It was a memorable event," writes Judge Ermatinger, "in the history of the county of Elgin when on May 21, 1803, Col. Talbot took an axe and chopped down the first tree at Port Talbot, inaugurating what has since been known as the Talbot Settlement. Henceforward, Col. Talbot, Port Talbot, Talbot road and Talbot Settlement are names inseparably connected

Tribulations of 1808.

At that time the nearest settlement on Lake Erie was near Turkey Point, 60 miles away, and communication was practically entirely via the water route. The pioneers that Col. Talbot brought to his lake frontage, extending for miles and miles, endured many, many hardships. The farmer of today complains about the trials and tribulations of his existence, but what would he have thought of the hardships of 1808? In the twentieth century his crops may be curtailed by drouth and lightning may strike his barns, but he doesn't have to worry about wolves, snakes, raccoons, wild turkeys, bears, deer and black squirrels.

Back in 1820, just 105 years ago, one Talbot settler had 120 head of horned cattle in Aldborough township, some of them working oxen, devoured by wolves. Sheep secured at night in log barns were destroyed in the daytime as they roamed pastures. In 1824 the father of the late George Munro, Elgin, had 35 of a flock of 50 sheep devoured in less than an hour by a pack of wolves, while the family was at dinner. There was no township council to award the settler Sixty-three years later the two old friends money for sheep losses, as there is today when met for the last time and recounted their ex- sheep-killing dogs take the place of wolves to WATERS OF LAKE ERIE GENTLY KISS THE SHORES BELOW THE SITE of THE TALBOT HOME

COL. TALBOT'S SARCOPHAGUS, STILL INTACT IN THE BEAUTIFUL TYRCONNEL CHURCHYARD

Deer and wild turkeys were almost numberless in the trackless forests and they tramped the settlers' grain on occasions so that it could not be cut. One fine day in August, 1830, a to go to the family and 150 to the colonel him- friend of Mr. Munro was passing the latter's oat field and, seeing the grain shaking suspiciously, brought his gun to his shoulder and with one discharge of buckshot killed seven turkeys, two of them weighing 22 pounds each. Before the end of that week the whole five acres that had promised a yield of 50 to 60 bushels per acre had been completely destroyed by turkeys. Two acres of corn on the same farm in the same year was destroyed by raccoons at night, while black squirrels took over the job in the daytime and saw to it that Mr. Munro would have to purchase grain from more fortunate settlers that winter. The settler, however, with the aid of his family, put up a sturdy battle and during one week shot 14 raccoons and 110 squirrels. Rattlesnakes, which are practically unknown in this district at the present time, were most numerous 100 years ago. Records state, however that only four settlers received bites and each was saved by drinking heavily of a beverage composed of horehound and plaintain, and by pressing salted fat pork on the wound. In recounting this fact, Mr. Munro explains in his memoirs that "at that time it was not known that of all antidotes whiskey was the speediest and the best." School privileges of pioneer days were few and far between. The first school in Elgin was erected in Malahide in 1816 and up to 1839 there were only 20 schools in the whole Talbot Settlement, extending from east of Elgin to

Schoolroom in Smithy.

Malcolm Robinson took charge of the first school in Aldborough in 1819 in his own house of one room, which served as parlor, kitchen, dining-room, bedroom, blacksmith shop and schoolhouse. The seats and desks were logs, flattened with an axe. The school fees per scholar were 10 bushels of wheat per annum. A spelling book cost one bushel of wheat, a was in proportion.

Pioneer commerce consisted exclusively of barter. Gold, silver, and promissory notes were almost unknown. It was not until 1831 that cash was paid for wheat on the Talbot Settlement and it is said that all the money in the settlement over and above that paid for taxes would not exceed $100. In 1828 there were only four stores in the settlement. The settlers wore no shoes in the summer, and even at their meetings for worship on the Sabbath the minister and his congregation stepped forth to church in bare feet. During the winter months, they wore shoes of home-tanned leather. Clothing for body and bed was made of wool and flax of their own growing. Home-made straw hats were all the style in the hot summer days, giving place to coonskin headgear when the first

The tea drunk by the residents was the fragrant spice wood and the aromatic sassafras, while coffee was made from toasted pieces of bread. This is hard to believe in the present day, but historians set it down in cold type as a fact and, as they are all men of the highest reputation, it must be so. All the sugar, molasses, vinegar and soap that was used was procured from that wonder tree of Canada, the maple. How many citizens of London could in this "enlightened" day of 1925 extract all these articles from the maple tree?

Indispensable articles such as salt and iron were brought from Buffalo to the Talbot Settlement by boat. There was no money in the settlement, so one or two members of each family journeyed to the United States each year and worked on the Erie canal, then in course of construction. Laboring from March to October, these hardy veterans walked as far as they could to Buffalo, carrying their food on their quire of paper the same, while everything else was most successful in getting and retaining the cream of the settlers from England and the United States, particularly those of Scotch and Welsh extraction. After announcing to his friend, Governor Simcoe, several years before the actual settlement at Port Talbot that "Here I will roost," he proceeded with characteristic vigor to obtain settlers for the land surrounding his own original grant of 5,000 acres. The settler, provided he was suitable in the eyes of the colonel, received 50 acres of land, the "lord of the log manor" keeping 150 for himself. The pioneer had to clear and sow 10 acres to crop, build a house and open half the road in front of his farm, all within three years. If he failed, he forfeited his claim and it passed on to some one else. However, if the stipulations were fulfilled, he received his 50 acres free and was allowed to purchase an additional 150 acres at $3 per acre and the right to a further 100 acres on payment of certain fees to the provincial government, which meant that a settler could acquire a total of 300 acres providing he worked hard and was lucky.

The Start of Good Roads.

The provision for road-making insisted on by the far-seeing colonel resulted in the settlement becoming noted for the best roads in the province, notably the Talbot road, the main artery of the settlement, and which is today one of the finest roads in this part of the province. The road brought fame and recognition to Col. Talbot and his settlers and was advertised throughout Great Britain and the United States. The manner in which Col. Talbot conducted his land transactions was simple. Until settlement duties, mentioned above, had been performed, the settler's title rested simply on a pencil entry made on the colonel's huge map of the district kept at Port Talbot. If a man failed or deserted the colony, his name was rubbed off the map and the name of a more deserving settler appended, who was given a certificate on payment of fees to the government.

So far as historians have been able to ascertain, no injustice was ever recorded against the colonel, who held the affection and respect of all.

Col. Talbot had, however, many rough customers to deal with who would not hesitate to use force or weapons to enforce their demands. As a precautionary measure, he conducted his extensive land business through the famous window of movable glass at his Port Talbot home. Jeffrey Hunter, his trusted attendant in the early years of the settlement, would hand the map to his master after the latter had talked to a prospective settler. The laconic "Well, what do you want?" with which the colonel opened an interview to the "Jeffrey, set on the dogs," with which unsatisfactory talks were closed, have become historical expressions in

Many stories are told of the colonel and the fear and trembling with which some of the Canadian pioneers approached his window. These men thought nothing of fighting wolves and bears and taking their chance in the forests, but the thought of interviewing the choleric colonel, whose fame had spread by word of mouth as far south as New Orleans, was often quite terrifying. One young man, fresh from British soil, neatly dressed, approached the Tal-*bot window one afternoon and asked for a gran

"I will grant no land to any who can afford to dress in the rotten refuse of the Manchester warehouses," roared the colonel, who was himself garbed in the rough garments affected by his settlers.

A year later the same man returned in homemade clothes and again stood at the window where many hundreds had stood before, an I once more asked for a grant.

"You can have it," conceded the colonel, "if you always promise to wear such clothes as you are wearing now, instead of the 'dandy' suit you wore a year ago," proving that for the colonel to once see a man was to remember him

Another story is told of a Scotchman who, after a verbal battle with the colonel at the window, refused to leave the premises and proceeded to board free of charge in his kitchen. He consumed so much food that the colonel, in a rage, finally allowed him his land. It is the only instance recorded where Col. Talbot was bested in a land deal. He called all visitors to his window "land pirates," and even today descendants of the 'pirates" regale their children with accounts of the conversations that took place between their grandfathers and the grand old bashaw of the

Not of Shylock Type.

It must not be inferred that Col. Talbot was a grasping landlord of the Shylock type who insisted on his pound of flesh or, to be more appropriate, his bushel of wheat or corn. late Col. George Munro spoke for the bulk of the settlers when he stated that Col. Talbox esteemed a straightforward man, no matter how our, and despised a fawning, servile schemer, nowever rich. "He abominated evasion and falsehood and loved truthfulness, integrity and candor," wrote Col. Munro, who went on to relate a number of stories proving his statements. Families that had been afflicted with much sickness were helped by the colonel with characteristic sympathy.

On one occasion some newly-arrived immigrants, unused to the hardships of the new world, took exceedingly ill and the colonel with his own hands arranged beds for them and covered them with blankets. He told them that he would take them into his own service and all during their illness he paid them wages. No person ever served Col. Talbot who did not love him sincerely and devotedly.

The war of 1812 put a stop to activities in the settlement and as commander of the Canadian forces in the district, Col. Talbot was away from home a great deal of the time. The American raiders, having been trounced on numerous occasions by the troops of Talbot, made a secret dash on Port Talbot and burned the colonel's Continued on Page 10, Column 2.

Fusilier, Sask .- "For two or three days every so often I would have such pains in my back and sides that I could not do anything — could not even lie quietly in bed, and my head ached, too. I was this way about three years, but was worse after I was married. I was on a farm with not a house nearer than five miles and there was not a person to advise me, as my folks lived in Manitoba. My sister-in-law told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told me to try it. I took her ad-vice and have been thankful for it ever since. # RIN TIN TIN, THE WONDER DOG AT LOEW'S THURS.

Will Be Presented in Feature Film Tracked in Snow Country.

Rin-Tin-Tin, the wonder dog, who has appeared in a number of highly successful photoplays made by Warner Bros., is not a mere stunt performer. Before his present contract was signed he had established a screen versatility which enabled him to play as wide a range of parts as are commonly given to a male or female human star. At the present time the photoplay stories in which Rin-Tin-Tin appears are being chosen almost entirely because of their broad interest and not because they are especially suited to a dog, with the usual restrictions brought about by the average dog's inability to do anything other than a few tricks.

In Tracked in the Snow Country which is coming to Loew's on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Rin-Tin-Tin has a real acting part. Most interest in him in this picture comes who will be shown in his latest production, The Making of O'Malley, a sensational story of the New York police, showing at the Capitol Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Talbot could name 28 townships as composing his settlement, taking in an area of 518,000 acres. A year later the total was 650,000 acres. some 98,700 being cleared land. The population was 50,000, an increase of 10,000 in one year. The tract, however, was not settled on the original basis of 50 acres to the settler and 150 to the colonel, as in 1820 he had obtained the right of pre-emption of 100 acres additional for each settler, while much of the land afterwards settled did not come within the terms of the grant.

Advent of Macbeths.

It was not until 1838 that the Macbeth family invaded the district. George Macbeth came from the Red River Settlement with five children, the oldest of whom, named after himself, eventually became Col. Talbot's business and farm manager, graduating into trusted friend and advisor in all matters. Col. Talbot, who was now getting up in years, handed over 13,000 acres in Aldborough

Airey, although he was not on particularly good terms with his younger relative. The latter wouldn't think of eating dinner at noon and insisted on having it at seven in the evening. The colonel, on the other hand, wanted his dinner when he wanted it, and he "wanted" at 12 o'clock each day. This led to trouble and the colonel stamped off, leaving his nephew in the big house at Port Talbot, while he took over more modest quarters in the vicinity. An open break occurred when the colonel found that his nephew had locked up all the liquor when he went for a bottle to drink a toast with an old friend who had arrived at the settlement. Col. Talbot then decided on a visit to England and on his return was enraged to find that his old home had been turned over by Col. Airey to strangers by the name of Sanders. His friend, George Macbeth, however, did not view the matter in the light of a catastrophe and, being what a present-day flapper, would term a "fast worker," he wooed and won one of the Sanders daughters for a wife. Buying property in London, Bleak House, razed to make way for the Lord Roberts school, Mr. Macbeth took Col. Talbot to live with him.

Three years later Col. Thomas Talbot died at the age of 83. His remains were taken first called Stirling and then named after the colonel himself with the explanation that "the village is called after Thomas Talbot, who has never otherwise been held up as saint or devil."

From St. Thomas the hearse wended its way to Port Talbot, where for a few hours the remains of the old warrior rested in state in the home that he had helped to build with his own hands.

Are We All Mad, More or Less? -Rich Men Who are Poor

RITICS of Bernard Shaw have said almost all there is to say about him. But few, if any, ever suggested that he was mad. Now this statement is put forward. And by no less an authority than Shaw himself. He qualifies his remark, however, by adding that we are all more or less off our balance.

"We are all mad, more or less," were his exact words, given during a recent address. If you knew everything about me that I know about myself, you would all get up and rush out of doors." He was speaking about "nerves," taking the stand that no one knows anything about the condition at present referred to as "nerves" exbept that it very certainly has nothing whatever to do with nerves.

"Doctors know nothing about these things," he comments. "They call them nerves just as we do, but I suppose it is in order to flatter our ignorance."

When you say that a person's nerves are trained, he declares, what is really meant is that the character is trained.

"The problem of dealing with people's nerves as we will all discover if we consult the people with whom we live.

Now it is announced that the downfall of former Premier Briand of France in 1921 was due to the fact that he acquired the week-end habit. This habit, according to reports, is as contagious as measles or the giggles and the famous Frenchman developed it after visiting British statesmen. He played golf week-ends with Lloyd George at Cannes just before the crash. He liked playing golf during the week-east and he continued to do it.

It seems absolutely necessary for people to have something to worry about and view with alarm. The undermining effect of week-ends is as good as anything else. The terrible habit of spending Sunday in the country is almost impossible to overcome. Despite his 1921 downfall Briand still does it.

Jean Kosto is Completely Contented-Has a Valuable Collection of Old Masters, Including One Supposed Rubens, In His Own Hidden Gallery-Help Others, He Says, and Keep Healthy

EAN KOSTO, a junk dealer in Toronto, claims to have reached that enviable state of mind-complete happiness.

Unlike most people he did not look for it in riches, which more often than not require a lifewith. Most of us are not pleasant to live with, time of toil and worry to obtain, but took a short-cut to his goal and discovered it within himself and his little second-hand store.

In his shop Jean has all those articles for sale that one expects to find at such a placesmall tools, massive pieces of furniture, delicate decorative trinkets and butchers' scales, fountain pens and long brass rods, stoves and stove pipes and enough lumber to start a carpenter shop. But what makes his place stand out from

For Jean, although he is a junk dealer, is also

His business is his living, but not his life. He has many customers and friends, who marvel at his contentment and generous nature, but few know the real Jean Kosto, for he has a modest reserve that only long friendship is able to penetrate. Let him know that you are in sympathy with his moral philosophy and his ideals and his heart is open to you. Then he will give you his secret for happiness.

Jean is a Rumanian, about thirty-five years of age, of moderate height, but marvelously welldeveloped physique. He is a bachelor, a state in which he finds himself perfectly satisfied, but he does not list it as one of his claims to happiness.

He finds his greatest joy in his love for art -paintings by old masters, the collection of which is his dominant passion. Next in importance, perhaps, is music, not of the jazz variety, for he abhors it, but classics and old operas. In the evening he sits in his shop with a group of friends, entertaining them for hours with exquisite airs from his accordion.

Then he adds something more to his happiness recipe-kindness to others. This he says often means personal sacrifice in time and money, but the rewards are great.

Last but not least he finds happiness in good health. He gives more than ordinary attention to his physical development, for he believes a is good for the nerves. If you are lacking in healthy body means a healthy mind.

Jean is in ecstasy. Here is his great possession before which he stands hour after hour in silent admiration. It is one of the things that gives him most happiness. The painting, seven feet by four and a half feet in size, is said by some experts to be a genuine Rubens-the "Adoration of the Shepherds." It is exactly as described in Smith's catalog, "Raisonce of Rubens' Works," a painting done for the church of the Dominicans at Antwerp, from which place it vanished in the eighteenth century. The picture had been in the possession of two Toronto families for twenty-five years before Jean came in possession of it. Even without the Rubens there are few private collections in Canada which can compare with this treasure gallery, hidden away from public view above a junk shop.

He is a genius and also a millionaire—a combination that is rarely found among fools. In appearance he is sufficiently peculiar to be startling. He is fat, that is the only word for it. The accumulation of flesh about his face stamps him definitely as a man who loves to indulge his penchant for new and extravagant dishes. His attraction for food, or, more correctly, food's attraction for him, is so great that he has opened two houseboat restaurants. But that is another story. His business sense is as keen as his palate. The prices charged on these houseboats are sufficiently great to make any patron believe he has bought the entire organization, not merely eaten there. But that, too, is another story.

In photographs, M. Poiret's outstanding facial characteristic is a beard, or, rather, the basic foundation of one. It is a species of foliage usually affected by the more indolent variety of hobo. His features are almost obliterated by this scraggly growth.

But when seen face to face he has a characteristic which is obviously his joy and pride. The beard is only a framework for it. The beard, in fact, has been built up for that purpose. His eyes are Paul Poiret's most noticeable facial possession. The camera cannot catch them. In color they are greenish blue of a pale sea. They are over-large. They are as luminous as lamps and as clear as the sky on a summer night. They are near enough to perfection to give an impression of artificiality.

And all the rest of his face has been fixed as a stage setting for them. The great maestro who calculates to the nth degree the effect of a bead on a sheet of silk exploits in the same way his own optics.

But to return to the American woman and the puzzled look which suffuses these remarkand ords whenever she is mentioned, Paul Poiret does not like the lady aforesaid.

"I was asked when I last went to America which women I thought the most beautiful. I said, of course, the American women. They are athletic. They conform most closely to the classic standards of beauty as conceived by the Greeks. They are strong, clear-eyed, independent and self-sufficient. "But I added that, nevertheless, I preferred Parisian women, and when they asked why I said: 'Well, Parisian women are not athletic. They do not take part in sports. They do not conform to the classic standards of beauty. They are not independent. In short, they are still

The young fellow was fairly observant, and he could tell them how Cully Ross looked after the amusements, how Joe Hay handled the publicity, how Frank Brentnall cared for the cash, and on down the list.

"But what kind of a job has Mr. Kent got?" asked the boy's mother. "What does he do?" "Well, I don't know exactly all that he does, but he has a swell office," said the lad, "and every time I went in there he was sitting in a big chair behind a desk, smoking a fat cigar and chatting with some men."

LURE OF SOUTHERN SEAS DRAWS HIM BACK AGAIN

Frank Burnett, 74-Year-Old Canadian Explorer, to Search the Haunts of God Rasikalu

THE lure of the "Summer Isles of Eden" has once again proved too strong for Frank Burnett, Vancouver author, explorer, ethnologist and collector of rare curios. In November he is leaving his luxurious home for the South Sea islands, the unknown interior of Borneo, and a dash as far as Kashmir, India.

Mr. Burnett is seventy-four years of age. For twenty-five years this intrepid explorer has been devoting his time, talent and money to the study of the South Sea islands. To-day he is recognized as one of the world's great authorities on many races that are fast dying out. In his library is to be found every book ever published on the South Seas, and his collection of weapons, idols, mattings, earthenware, jewelry and curios is believed to be the largest owned by any one man in the world.

"This is to be one of my most ambittons trips," he explains. "I propose to explore & tropical mountain labyrinth which has thou sands of passages on the island of Cicia, one of the Windward group. Later I shall go through virgin territory over a height of land in unes plored Borneo. Then, after returning to civilization, I intend climbing Kina Balu, 13,700 feet, the highest mountain in Borneo. After that I propose going on to India at least as far as

In exploring the labyrinth Mr. Burnett will also try to discover whether an ancient island legend has any background of fact. There are two islets on the outskirts of the Windward group, Cikobia and Cicia. In 1923 a native named Mbengi, known to be over 100 years old, showed Mr. Burnett the entrance to a mountain labyrinth on Cicia and told him that this led under the sea to the top of another mountain on Cikobia, inside Koro Macau, now deserted. but once a fortified town.

Ages ago the god of earthquakes, Rasikalau, dwelt in this labyrinth and accepted the human sacrifices of the islanders. Then there came a time when the Cikobians angered him, and he led their hereditary enemies, the Cicians, into

Unexplored Labyrinth

BURNETT is the only white man who M has seen the cavernous entrances to this labyrinth. He has penetrated under the mountain, but only for a short distance, for he found tortuous passages branching out in all directions and reluctantly refrained from going beyond sight of the opening.

This time, armed with torches and accompanied by runners from tribes which know not of the terrible god Rasikalau who still lurks in the Stygian darkness, Mr. Burnett will adventure to the limit.

In the spring Mr. Burnett will go to British North Borneo, ascend the river Beram to its source, force his way through dense jungles over the height of land, then drift down the river Kayan back to civilization on the other side of the great island. This journey will take the veteran explorer through territory where headhunters abound. His packers and paddlers will be Dyaks, the fiercest fighters of all the uncivilized tribes in the East Indies, and the route is through a land never yet traversed by a white man. For miles and miles paths will have to be cut through the forests, and there will be danger of attack by wandering tribes at all times.

Mr. Burnett has no fear of leaving his whitehaired head as a trophy to some Dyak brave. He knows and understands these savages and makes them realize he is boss from the first day out.

"If a native acts at all in a suspicious manner," he says, "make him walk ahead of you and stick your rifle in the small of his back. Anyway, they're not particularly interested in white men's heads. They collect these gruesome trophies to impress their lady loves, or as revenge for murders committed perhaps generations ago. No Dyak youth can hope to win the smiles of the fair sex until he has at least one

As farmer, grain dealer, banker and speculator, Mr. Burnett experienced prosperity and failures for fifteen years, then, with his purse well filled, moved to Vancouver in 1895. Seven years later he retired from business, independently rich. Feeling the need of a hobby, he bought and outfitted the Laurel, an 80-ton schooner, and set out for the South Seas on what he describes in one of his books as "the dirtiest voyage in history." That was the first of many voyages to the Solomons, the Fijis, the Friendly Islands, and many other scattered groups where he collected his marvelous curios.

in some of Lefty's efforts, but the London Tecs couldn't see anything very furny reason is obvious. The Tecs were halted abruptly by the eccentric southpaw, who scattered eight one-base blows over the entire nine innings and presented the visitors with a clean-cut defeat. The final count was 4 to 2 for the locals.

Pete Harris' wildness lost him the decision, although Carmen was visibly stronger in the pinches than the Tecmoundeman and emerged from more difficult, situations by smart work. Harris had not the control he usually shows, and of the three men he walked. The final marker work about he had a hole in the opening inning. Babe Ruth has a liking for nice cuts-in meats-but the one that he is going to get when he signs his contract is going to be a cut of another kind, and the unkindest one the Babe has had.

Jabez Wolfe who coached Miss Ederle failed twenty times to cross the Channel. Jabez is still a persistent cuss, for he persisted in telling his charge to cut out the George Bernard Shaw diet and anchor off some thick steaks swimming in equally rich heavy gravies. The channel and Jabez must have had a laugh when apple fritters and tea were ordered for Miss Ederle for breakfast the morning of her attempt.

A REAL MOVE.

The new Ontario Athletic Commission has laid out a program that should make Canada a real force in the next Olympic. Canada has accomplished big things when her athletes had no encouragement whatever. Things had not really changed much since the days when Billy Sherring, of Hamilton, paid his own expenses to Athens and brought to Canada her first measure of world-wide athletic fame. Money could have been lavishly spent with few results as things have gone in the past, but the Ontario Athletic Commission is going right to the source of future athletic talent-the schools-and it will not be wasted even if direct results do not come at once in Olympic honors.

Track athletics will be put on a solid foundation when they are impressed into the life of the public schools, as the commission purposes doing. Hamilton collegiate has demonstrated what can be done on track and field with proper coaching, and in the future, any boy who gets out of his own section will not lack for coaching.

THE SUPERLATIVE THRILL.

Bill Phelon, syndicate writer and sports editor of the Cincinnati Times-Inquirer, died Thursday, after a three-day illness. A short time ago Phelon, than whom there were few more likeable personalities, said that in his 35 years of describing sporting events, he had received no greater thrill than the last game of the last world's series had given He admitted to having seen over 5,000 baseball games, 200 or more of them world's series tilts, and nearly 1,000 fights, in which were numbered all the big scraps of the last two decades.

Nobody will worry much over the passing of the Mint, unless it goes out under the blare of a play-off series between Hamilton and London.

GUEST OR CUSTOMER?

The outbreak at Forest Hills was to be expected. As long as tennis galleries consisted of a few hundred people, mostly players themselves and nearly all acquaintances as well, it was to be expected that little more than well-bred emotion would be aroused at the most thrilling of moments, expressed probably in scattered hand-pattings and a few "bravos" from those who had recently toured Europe and had, therefore, become Gallicised to that extent. The gallery had probably not paid admission, and if admission were charged, the gallery knew that its contributions only met meagre and bare expenses. They were guests, in a word, and it is not good form for guests to be over-critical.

The moment Forest Hills, Wimbledon and other large tennis clubs were enlarged from house to hotel size, things were inevitably bound to change. The old house-party days of tennis were over. Tennis still tried, by means of selected guests lists and exorbitant rates of admission, to keep up a genteel paying-guest atmosphere, but within the last few years these old establishments, which started out so modestly, blared forth the call for patronage as loud as any 20-story, up-to-thelast-minute-service hostelry, and they are reaping the harvest. The spectators are no more guests, they're customers, and they want what they pay for-or they'll tell it to the complaint clerk, and a whole fover-full for that matter.

Tecs Begin Long Home Stay With Colts Here on Monday

The Bakermen come home Monday, form or other and at some time, and leading the little orphans of the Mint, the Kitchener Colts, by the hand. The series was originally to have been played in Kitchener until the cruel sheriff dispossessed the Colts and told them to move on.

Meantime the rest of the clubs have come to an agreement to take the homeless Colts in, in turn. The Tecs are just brimming over with sympathy for the deserted and orphaned Colts. They'll take them in all right and wipe fem out if at all possible. The Colts time was due mostly to the same cause.

Two Londoners

for the deserted and orphaned Colts. They'll take them in all right and wipe 'em out if at all possible. The Colts play ten games here altogether and then the Tecs have three here with Saginaw. The Tecs make one more trip to Michigan around September I. their only break from the home lot from now until the season closes.

Compensation always comes in some games it took from the then-hapless Colts and Bay City's position at that time was due mostly to the same cause. Watching the Tecs conduct a summer for the underprivileged boys managed by George Orme should be good fun for the fans. Saginaw Aces here later will make a pleasant break in the long-drawn out duel with the Colts.

Preston Special

While the special train has been cancelled the London seniors will not lack followers when they invade Preston today for the second game of the series to decide the champlonship of the Intercounty league. Many are going both by car and train.

Last night the team was confident of another victory over Preston. Wednesday's victory has strengthened them in the belief that Lady Luck is with them to stay, and that they can do nothing very wrong. It's better than being a wonderful team in a slump, imbued with the idea that nothing they can do will be right as many a good team has been before this.

Manager Braund made no announcement of a pitching selection for today's till. It is believed, however, that Freddie Quick will draw the assignment, and that Down will be held in reserve. Quick justified the promise he has held for the last couple of seasons when he beat St. Thomas in the last game. It was just the sort of victory the youngster needed to give him confidence.

The Londoners as a whole exuded While the special train has been can the youngster heeded to give him cost fidence.

The Londoners as a whole exuded confidence. They have a big mental advantage over the Riversides to start with this afternoon, as they will be fighting with the knowledge that it isn't absolutely their last throw whereas Preston will be facing the bogey of defeat and oblivion. It's a big help in amateur ball to have that one game advantage. It creates confidence and a certain amount of naturalness. game.

Teh Hamitlon Speciator admits the almost certainty of a piay-off, and thinks it will be between London and Hamilton, Judging from the pace the Tecs are setting right now.

"There seems to be little doubt, however, of a piay-off series. Both London and Saginaw teams are travelling at a fast pace at the present time, and they will be very hard to stop. The Aces will have their hands full from now on, as will Bay City, but London has still a flock of games to play with the Kitchener Colts, and the schedule favors them much more than it does any other team. They should be able to hold their own with the leading teams, and then eke out a goodly margin from the series with the orphans." The summary Kellogg's Inning.

A sudden revival of activity and strength of United States Steen common, which touched 124%, the highest price reached since the culmination of the winter advance, stimulated the demand for other high-grade rail and industrial issues. American Can soared over 7 points to a new record high at 247%, but lost about half of its gain in the late selling movement. Baidwin closed fractionally higher at 114%, after having sold as high as 115%.

Havana Electric was the outstanding individual feature, soaring over 13 points to a record high of 253. With the exception of International Telephone, which broke four points, other public utilities were not seriously affected by a repetition of warnings by power company officials concerning speculation in those issues.

Pool operations were aggressively conducted in a number of specialties, particularly in the food group. California Packing. Postum Cereal, Fleiscn-Famn, and Reid Ice Cream had a net gain ranging from 1 to 5 points.

Chesapeake and Ohio rose to the highest point in a quarter of a century. Merger and dividend rumors, though unconfirmed, stimulated the demand for southern and southwestern issues. Frisco common, Selboard Air Line confinon, St. Louis Southwestern common and Kansas City Southern preferred all reaching new high ground.

Demand sterling heid steady around 44.55%, and French francs were quoted just 'under 4.70c. Norwegian kroner rallied over 12 points to around 18.80c, rand the Danish kroner jumped nearly 39 points to 23.32c.

Associated Press Desnatch.

New York, Aug. 21. — All classes of bonds continued to attract buying orages today, reflecting the reassuring influence of easier time money rates and the reawakened interest in United States government obligations. Investors and traders showed a marked preference for high-grade railroad liens and other securities of an investment nature. vestors and traders showed a marked preference for high-grade railroad liens and other securities of an investment nature.

Negotiations were formally closed today by Harris, Forbes & Company for a loan of $8,760,600 to the city of Munich, Germany, and an issue of ten to twenty years serial 7 per cent bonds will be offered to the public next week. Several points of interest developed in the day's foreign bond trading. French eights reached another high level for the year, and a renewed demand for Mexican obligations carried the government's 4 and 6 per cent bonds up 1 to 2 points.

Inquiries for railroad bonds were especially namerous for Chesapeake & Ohio convertible 5's, which were pushed up 2½ points to a new high record at up 2½ points to a new high record at 18 closing slightly below this figure.

Buying of Large Amounts Difficult As Very Little Offered.

Canadian Press Desratch.

Winnipeg Aug. 21. — Trading was agam light on the wheat market today, but showed a firm tendency, closing from 1½c to 1½c up. October delivery, after opening fractionally higher, closed at $1.45%, an advance of 1½c. December closed 1½c up at $1.41% and May 1½c at $1.45%, a signal of any large amounts was difficult, as very little was offered. Trade was mostly local, and only one or two of the large firms attempted to do business. There was a very light trade in the coarse grains, with prices steady to a little higher, in sympathy with the advance of wheat. Seaboard advices were to the effect that some export business was transacted in oats and rye, mostly American varieties.

$10,000 Worth of Liquor Seized From Export Warehouse.

Special to The Advertiser.

Sarnia, Aug. 21.-Liquor worth between $8,000 and $10,000, owned by Lewis Kellner, was ordered confiscated from the export warehouse at the foot of George street, by Magistrate Gorman, in a decision given out today. The confiscation comprises 1,300 cases of beer and 130 cases of liquor. The seizure followed the arrest and conviction of Glen Grouchman, an employee of Kellner, who sold two cases of whiskey to Mike Dulet of Detroit the latter being intercepted in the act of carrying the liquor to the steamer Tashmoo in a suitcase. It was not known this afternoon if the decision will be appealed, but this course is very likely. Freight Heavy. Freight traffic continues brisk at the C. N. R. LINES AND WRINKLES are defects to which a dry skin is particularly susceptible. Because of their drying tendency, avoid the use of soap and water on face. Elizabeth Arden's Venetian Cleansing Cream will cleanse the skin without depleting the natural oils. After cleansing, pat with Ardena Skin Tonic or Special Astringent. For an afternoon treatment, apply Anti-Wrinkle Cream, leaving it on for half an hour. Remove with Skin Tonic. At night pat in Velva Cream for a well-rounded face or Orange Skin Food for a thin face. These creams nourish the tissues and Muscle Oil eradicates lines and wrinkles. Sold in London only by Roy Kitchen, 399 Richmond ines and wrinkles. Sold in London only by Roy Kitchen, 399 Richmond

Thomas, Aug. 21. — Delighted with the tour of West Elgin farmers yesterday, those in charge are endeavoring to arrange another outing before the season closes. Leaving early Thursday morning, the tourists went to the Carnation Milk plant in Aylmer. After spending an hour in they journey to the Springer Gully to see the improvement work being done there. After being joined by the inspecting the operations at the plant East Elgin representatives in Straffordville, they examined the famous Ayrshire cattle of Mr. Stansell's model farm. Proceeding to Port Burwell, lunch was served, after which they inspected Memorial Park, by invitation of Deputy-Reeve Mc-AUCTION SALE Lean. after which they returned to the city. Plaintiff Wins. Judgment for the plaintiff for $325 has been entered by consent in the case of Daniel McAlpine, Dunwich as follows: Chesterfield suite, 3 pieces, chesterfield table, practically new upright piano, piano lamp, music cabinet, Sonora phonograph, writing desk, smokers' stand, Axminster rug, 9x12, Wilton rug, 9x9, fernery, parlor suite, china cabinet, buffet, table, chairs, walnut dresser, brass bed complete, oak dressers, beds, bedding, carpets, mats, Congoleum rug 9x12, odd chairs, rockers, china, glassware, ornaments, kitchenware and furniture, gas range, heater, range, electric washer, electric sweeper, curtains, drapes, garden tools, etc. farmer, versus the village of Dutton and William Riddell and Ralph Coates of that place. The question involved was whether the defendants had removed from the plaintiff's property more gravel than was stipulated in a contract. It was also alleged that defendants, drawing gravel for the village, had broken down fences and assaulted the plaintiff. The case has been awaiting disposition since October 24, 1922.

Rumor Denied. Doubt as to the feasibility of a gasoline-propelled train over the Canadian Pacific Railway between St. Thomas and Woodstock is expressed by local officials, and a reort that such a service was con templated is genied. The reported intention was to pick up perishables between here and Woodstock and transfer them to limited trains running into Toronto.

Pass Examinations. Results of the summer course at Toronto indicate that the following Honsinger, Evelyn McVitty and Mar-Honsinger, Every met visual and the specific stands on Wednesday. # Vienna Dislikes Attack On Jews, May Force Chancellor To Quit

Special Cable to The Advertiser and the Chicago Dally News. Copyright. Vienna, Aug. 21.—Chancellor Ramek's government, which never has enjoyed the support given former Chancellor Seipel, has not been strengthened by the anti-Semitic and anti-government demonstrations. Already the Nationalist newspapers have demanded Ramek's resignation. Some think the Ramek government is about to fall, with former chancellors Seipel and Schober competing for the chancellorship.

It is pointed out that the Communists and Socialists are both anti-Zionist. Indeed, the Vienna Socialist burgomaster has not attended the Zionist congress. Outside of the hall where the Zionist congress is being held the police have succeeded in discouraging anti-Semitic demonstrations, but the storm seems to have been transferred within the congress, where an agitated session shows how difficult it is for the Zionists to unite their efforts.

Attending Physicians Claim Many Now Beyond Medical Skill.

SUFFER FROM BURNS

Associated Press Despatch. Newport, R.I., Aug. 21.-The death of Edward Donovan of Pawtucket at 8:15 tonight brought the total dead in the S.S. Mackinac excursion explosion of Tuesday evening to 46. The death of three others today was recorded, and as the hours pass it is expected that others will be added to the toll. The 45th victim to succumb to his frightful burns was Peter Borsay of Pawtucket. He died early tonight. The other deaths today were Bessie Mullin and William Robinson, also of Pawtucket.

Both the naval and Newport hospitals report a number of critical cases, and physicians frankly said there are several who are beyond medical skill, so horribly were they scalded when the boiler on the excursion steamer exploded as she steamed through Narragansett Bay on the return trip to Pawtucket with almost 700 excursionists on board almost 700 excursionists on board.

Crisis Threatened in Syria-Rebels Dissatisfied With

Chicago Daily News. Copyright.

Parls, Aug. 21.—Although the foreign and war office are still without news from Syria, private information which reached Paris today indicates the situation continues to be extremely serious. Contrary to official reports, it appears that Sarrail did not succeed in making satisfactory arrangements with the Druse factory arrangements with the Druse rebels, who now are not satisfied merely with the transfer of the French governor who incurred their displeasure by his somewhat harsh displeasure by his somewhat harsh management of local affairs, but desire an Indemnity for the losses caused the villages by the bombardment of French aeroplanes.

It appears also that the capital, Sovesda, is still occupied by rebels, while the garrison of 700 Frenchmen. while the garrison of 700 Frenchmen, of Vi besieged in the citadel, is offering stubborn resistance to repeated attacks by the mountaineers. On the other hand, the writer learns from reliable sources that Arab agitators are very active in Damascus and Aleppo, and that an uprising started among the Moslem population was crushed only after the French general commanding the district used cannon and machine guns against the natives.

Cut In Oil Price

Special to The Advertiser.

Sarnia, Aug. 21.—A probable indication of lowered price of gasoline in Ontario was given this afternoon here, when Imperial Oil, Limited, announced a 10c reduction in the price of crude oil. This brings the price from $2.73 to $2.63 a barrel. It is the first change reported in the price of crude oil for several months, when it went up to $2.73 by successive advances. The price of gasoline in the U. S. has fallen several times in the last few days, and today's reduction of crude oil at the refinery here may presage a downward move in the refined product.
