A LONG FIGHT BUT WHEN END COMES-- A HEADLONG RUIN

Paris is Grimly Confident To day—Time is Gained Also Ground and Both are Precious—When End Comes There Will be Great Awakening.

[By Special Wire to the Courier] PARIS, Nov. 14, 7 a.m.—The battle line of the allies, extending 100 miles from the sea to the river Somme, has been subjected night and day, during the three weeks past, to continuous onslaughts of unprecedented ferocity. The attacks reached their highest degree on Thursday, after the capture of Dixmude, two days before according to eyewitnesses, who have returned from the front but has now slackened, whether through the lack of ammunition, from fatigue or discouragement or pending the arrival of fresh drafts of men from Germany, has not been established. The allies' line in spite of all the fierce assaults, remains unbroken. Many competent observers had expected to see it drawn back yet it was not, although to have fallen back on the strong positions which had been prepared in the rear would in no way have diminished the strategic feature of the allies' forces. "We have lost nothing since the great battle wherein the Kaiser's hasty onslaught fell to pieces," writes Georges Clemenceau, the ex-premier. "We have lost nothing and we have gained something. We have gained time and ground, the one no less precious than the other." The public and military experts alike are recovering from the momentary discouragement caused by the loss of Dixmude and are resuming the patient confidence in the outcome which, it is quite realized, will be long in coming. General Bonal declares that no army can undergo losses, out of all proportion to the effort expended and the result so far obtained by the Germans, without finally becoming discouraged and exhausted and that an attack in force, well pushed home at the proper time, will bring about the defeat of the enemy. He quotes in support of his opinion a letter from an old friend now fighting in Flanders, which says: "It is always the same here. We stand firm. We even advance a little and as a tangible result there is a slaughter of the Prussians who are replaced by fresh reinforcements, which we smash at will. On our side there is considerable loss, but it is not to be compared with that of the enemy. At the same time it is a long fight and definite success is by no means for to-morrow, but when it does come what a headlong ruin it will be."

THE BURNING OF THE NEW ZEPPELIN SHED AT DUSSELDORF.

HOW THE GIANT FLAME, 500 FEET HIGH LEAPT UP AFTER THE BOMB HAD EXPLODED IN THE SHED

The above illustration, drawn by G. H. Davis, special artist for this newspaper, the New York Herald and the London Sphere, shows the daring exploit of Lieutenant Marix, the British aviator who partially destroyed the Zeppelin shed at Düsseldorf. "When close to this gigantic structure the daring aviator suddenly put the nose of his machine down, and, though under fire from rifles and high angle artillery, made a daring spiral dive to within 500 feet of the roof of the shed; here he dropped his bombs. So fast was his dive that it is certain his speed reached more than 140 miles an hour, and at this impetus he turned and shot upward—his mission accomplished—with the velocity of a rocket, and managed to get clear a great height as he went that a great gust of wind had been up from the roof of the shed to a height of nearly 500 feet, proving that the Zeppelin in the shed had met its fate. He then turned back toward Antwerp, but within ten miles away the 80-horse power Gnome engine ceased to revolve; he was rescued by a Belgian car and got safely into Antwerp. Since the visit of the aeroplane the nerves of the inhabitants have been so badly shaken that the general in command has had to issue a communique rebuking the inhabitants and advising them not to become so irritated with the enemy score.

LEE YOUNG'S STORY IS ACCEPTED BY JURY AND OPEN VERDICT RETURNED

Responsibility For Chinaman's Death Could Not be Fixed—Searching Cross Examination Was Given to Chief Witness.

The inquest into the murder of Lee Duck and the assault upon Lee You was held at the police court buildings last night by Coroner Fissette, but it revealed nothing and an open verdict was returned, the jury finding that Lee Duck had come to his death by blows delivered by some person or persons unknown. The evidence throughout was clear and Lee You withstood a severe cross-examination without flinching. His answers were always straight, his manner left little room to doubt his sincerity. When confronted with the man's clothes he calmly identified them. His conduct was to the police and jury entirely satisfactory. Lee Ling, an interpreter, recommended from Toronto by the Chief of Police, did his work well and truly. Also attending the inquest was Ing Hing, an Oriental of note in Toronto circles. The session of inquiry was a long one and lasted from eight o'clock until eleven. One thing which was revealed by the enquiry, was the fact that little attention was paid to the theory that the Chinaman, Lee Duck and Lee You committed the injuries, one upon the other. It was evident that they have worked upon the theory of a third party and the evidence showed that their energies are not misdirected. Chief Slemin. Chief Slemin was the first witness and he gave evidence of the store and the scene as the police found the place when they arrived. Lee You was sitting on a chair and he was in a badly wounded condition. He had apparently washed his hands when he (witness) arrived. There were signs of his having done so. Not a sign of blood was to be seen on the door. He could not definitely say that the key was in or out of the lock at that time. In his belief both men were in bed when they were struck. He was led to so believe by the fact that the wall was splashed near where the men's heads would be when they were asleep. The fight, which was an electric one was well out of reach. Lee You, when first discovered, was in a dazed condition. The bed on which Lee You had lain, was a straw mattress and the other was a hard board bed. The wall beside Lee You's head, where it was when he slept, was smeared with blood, where it appeared that he had rubbed against the wall after being struck. It was the Monday forenoon. FIFTEEN CASUALTIES AMONG TROOPS FROM CANADA, BUT CAUSE IS DUE TO TOO MUCH BRITISH HOSPITALITY

OTTAWA, Nov. 14.—There have been fifteen new "casualties" among the Canadian troops on Salisbury Plain. But the casualties are due to the common enemy of all kind, and not to the Germans or Austrians. Too much British hospitality and too much firewater taken by some of the Canadian troops while on leave from camp in London or elsewhere have resulted in fifteen privates being dismissed from the ranks. Word to this effect was received here yesterday, and the pay of the men has been stopped by the Militia Department. It is also stated that in a few cases lieutenants have been reduced in rank to sergeants for the same cause. These sporadic outbreaks of men on leave after the strict discipline of Valcartier and Salisbury have evidently caused General Alderson a little trouble. Hence his public request to the British public to stop treating the Canadian troops, with his added statement that unless more discretion is shown passes will have to be stopped entirely.

Crack Prussian Guards Took A Good Beating From British Says Official Press Bureau

[By Special Wire to the Courier] LONDON, Nov. 14.—The Official Press Bureau issued the following communication at 11 o'clock last night: "A very severe attack against the portion of the line held by the First Army Corps before Ypres was delivered on Wednesday, the 11th, by a Prussian Guard corps. The enemy made an especially strong effort on this occasion to break the line, which they hoped already had been weakened by attacks of infantry of the line. "The facts briefly are as follows: Our troops were subjected to the heaviest bombardment that we have yet experienced, from dawn for three hours. This was at once followed by an assault in force, carried out by the first and fourth brigades of the Prussian Guard Corps. It is understood that these picked troops had been brought up specially to act against us in order to force their way through at points where previous efforts made by the infantry of the line had failed. "The attack was pressed with the greatest bravery and determination. Owing to the gallantry of our troops and their splendid resistance against great odds, the attempt to penetrate to Ypres was repulsed, but the weight of the enemy's advance enabled them to break through our lines at three points. They were, however, hurled back and prevented from gaining further ground. "An immense loss had been inflicted on the Germans, seven hundred of their dead having been found on the ground behind our front trenches alone. The casualties suffered by them in advancing up to our line under direct and enfiladed fire must have been enormous. Our casualties also were heavy. "The action of our troops on this as well as on previous occasions cannot be praised too highly."

GERMAN ATTACK FAILS AGAIN

[By Special Wire to the Courier] PARIS, Nov. 14.—2:47 p.m.—The French official communication given out in Paris this afternoon says that a German attack against the bridge at Nieuport resulted in failure, and that various offensive movements of the enemy around Ypres have been checked. The text of the communication follows: "In Belgium a German attack against the head of the bridge at Nieuport resulted in failure, and various efforts at offensive movements on the part of the enemy in the region to the east and to the southeast of Ypres have been checked. "In the environs of Bixchoote we have progressed one kilometre toward the east. Between the canal of La Bassée and Arras, our troops have made minor progress. (Continued on Page Four.)

SIXTY MEN FOR BATTERY FROM CITY

Artillery Force Will be Increased—Announcement Made. Not 50 but 60 members of the 32nd Field Battery of Brantford will join the second Canadian contingent now in training for active service. This was the announcement of Col. Rennie of Hamilton, who visited the local battery last night and expressed great satisfaction with the class of volunteers which were joining here. The battery paraded 64 strong and there were 24 recruits. At the close of the drill Col. Ashton selected 54 men to join the contingent and decided to open the lists again for four days to those desirous of going to the front. Good men are wanted. The active service contingent will start Monday morning at 9 o'clock their parades, and on Monday night they will likely go to Hamilton for ten days training before joining the main forces at Toronto. Naturally, Lt-Col. Ashton is greatly pleased with the manner in which the call has been responded to in Brantford. Battery Orders Headquarters, Brantford, November 14th, 1914. FEELING IS GROWING THAT COVETED BASE IS LOST BY ENEMY

Germans Will Never be Able to Get to the Channel to Attack the English Coast—Russian Advices Indicate an Advance That Will Not be Checked.

[By Special Wire to the Courier] LONDON, Nov. 14.—10:25 a.m.—Both official and unofficial reports concerning the situation in Flanders agree that the force of the German assaults on the allies' lines disputing the way to Dunkirk and Calais has lessened, and the feeling is growing in England that the coveted base for the invasion of England never will be gained by the Germans. A Paris official statement declares that from the sea to the River Lys, the German action has been less keen; that the allies have assumed the offensive along some parts of the front, are making progress south of Bixchoote and have re-taken a hamlet east of Ypres. Artillery duels continue along the rest of the line. A British official report gives a vivid account of the tremendous action which preceded the recent attacks on Ypres by the Germans. From dawn for three hours, the British soldiers were under a heavy artillery fire which died away to be succeeded by an infantry onslaught by the Prussian guard, who were hurled back after penetrating the British lines at two points. Dixmude has been reported as re-occupied by the allies, but this lacks confirmation. As the allied armies, (however,

Machine Gun Fire Had Advantage—Men Fought Up to Their Waists in Water—Some Features of the Situation Recently.

[By Special Wire to the Courier] AMSTEDDAM, Nov. 13.—London, Nov. 14.—The correspondent of the newspaper, Tijd, says that the Dixmude fight on Tuesday was a fight for the dykes, and that whoever was master of the dykes, was master of the ground. "Machine gun fire had the advantage," the correspondent continues, "as heavy guns were useless on the morass. The Germans very cleverly surmounted in some places the difficulties offered by the inundated land. "The contending forces literally fought in water. It was a man-to-man struggle and one of great wretchedness. Some of the soldiers were completely exhausted with cold and their wet clothes stuck to their bodies and greatly impeded their movements. "The allies won ground foot by foot along the coast near Nieuport, which the Germans were prevented from entering. They were fearful of the British naval guns. "The allies' middle line, which occupied Dixmude, was obliged to yield, but Dixmude was not wholly occupied by the Germans as the allies retained the outer districts. "The Belgian regiments made seven bayonet attacks in one night between Nieuport and Dixmude. The total of Belgian losses in killed and wounded is estimated at 10,000. DID NOT CROSS RIVER LONDON, Nov. 14.—8:35 a.m.—An Amsterdam despatch to Reuter's Telegram Company "According to The Telegraaf's Sluis correspondent, the Germans after the occupation of Dixmude tried unsuccessfully to cross the Yser. "Patrols of the allies are reconnoitering close to Ostend. Measures for the defense of the coast Shupedone and Leopold canals must be evacuated as the Germans intend to blow up the so-called siphon under the Bruges-Sluis canal, which would cause an inundation. "A proclamation posted in Bru-

FOUR GERMAN AEROPLANES WERE SMASHED TO PIECES IN FIGHT WITH THE ALLIES OVER TOWN OF YPRES

PARIS, Nov. 13.—A thrilling encounter, in which eight aeroplanes, four German, two French and two British, figured, occurred in the vicinity of Ypres. The German machines were destroyed finally by the artillery, and the eight officers whom they carried killed. The Germans were seen approaching to reconnoitre the lines of the allies. The French and British airships immediately ascended to meet them. For some time the aircraft circled about each other, rising and descending, while machine guns spattered bullets among them. The sky was clear, and the gunners on the ground had a good view of the aeroplanes, but failed to cripple any of the German machines. Then suddenly four of the allied aeroplanes made a swift dash toward their own trenches, and were followed by the Germans, who too late discovered the feint and perceived the perils of the situation only when shrapnel burst about them. In a few minutes the four German aeroplanes crashed to earth.

LEE YOU'S STORY

Following, when Lee You talked intelligibly. Before first asked, he said he knew nothing of the affair. When he first came to, he had a confused idea of the affair and knew little of the affair. He had let Lee Woon in himself on the Sunday, at one o'clock.
He had not said he was just asked, he or Lee Duck. They had gone to bed together.

He had no definite idea of how long
he had sat on the chair or how long he had been out of bed and he had only a very vague idea of the assault.
The key with which he had fastened the door was attached to the knob by a string. When he came to, it was gone. As far as he knew, the key was left in the door.

"Then your theory is that if any third party entered they entered through that door. I am not entering into theories," answered the Chief. He thought there was very little chance of any one getting in any other way, but by the front door. The shop was a Chinese grocery store and he did not see any sign of robbery beyond the cutting of the cash box.

Who ever did the deed apparently was not eager in his search for money
for he left the clothes of both parties intact and money was found in each set of clothes. The chief's theory of the third party was that some one had entered in the absence of both parties and concealed himself until the others had gone to bed. The statement of Lee You that he had left the key in the door, pointed to this. Otherwise, the Chief could not see how anyone could enter from the outside with the key in the door. In a test of keys at the hospital Lee You had picked out a key which was found in the street
as one which opened his door.

Lee You said he could not say who had done the deed. He could not even say if he thought it was a Chinaman.
He had voiced no definite opinion
upon the matter and had not said whether it was among themselves or not. He had no idea of his cry.

There was no evidence of a three-cornered struggle and the Chief thought if they were accepting the third party story, then both men had questioned the Chinaman on every point, but had obtained very little information of value from him.

Detective Chapman
Detective Chapman explained that the Chinaman had no definite idea of the assault. It was daylight when he came to, and he was very dazed. He had a double satisfaction, quality and quantity, thoroughly screened and free from dust.

SAGE TEA PUTS LIFE AND COLOR IN HAIR

Don't Stay Gray!—It Darkens so Naturally That Nobody
Can Tell.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a 50 cent bottle of "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old, famous Sage Tea Recipe are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly
that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray becoming faded, dry, scraggly and thin have a surprise awaiting them,
because after one or two applications
the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful—all dandruff goes, scalp itching
and falling hair stops.

This is the age of youth. Gray haired unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Weyth's Sage and Sulphur to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

Emperor William has offered for sale his villa at Corfu which cost $5-000,000 to build.

Lee You's Story

noticed he was rather doubled up and the coverlet was over his head.
They were not particular to be in any given position. He did not know at that time whether Lee Duck was then. He had no idea how he himself received his injuries. He knew nothing of the affair as far as the actual infliction of injuries was concerned.

Did Not Take Opium
Lee Duck had been out of the city all day. Previous to his return at night, the witness had paid a visit to his brother's home upon Dalhousie street. When he came back he let himself in with the key which was found in the street. He had then tied the key to the door knob. He locked the door with another key which he had only possessed two days. He went to see his son at the brother's place. Witches did not take opium except for medical purposes. It relieved pain. He had no opium or whiskey that night. Lee Duck was neither a smoker or drinker, and he was suspicious of the Chinaman. He had no idea how much money witness had,
but he would know that there was some around. He had no doubt that his cousin did not open a box, and the suspicious rested upon no one. A chopper produced, he used for domestic purposes. He had left it near the sink, and it was not there when he went to wash his hands. He had turned off the lights and was going to bed and never got up in the night, and wound up by answering that he had never heard a single noise. Business on Saturday was fair. Twenty dollars was taken in, mostly from Chinese customers. They were all Brantford Orientals.

On the Friday, previous to the night of the murder, a few of his friends had gathered for a game of cards. It was not for money, and was just a friendly game. He, himself, had offered a sum of money towards the reward for the discovery of the murderer. He had no enemies of which he was aware.

Lee Duck's clothing was brought in and was identified by witness.
Money was found in the suit and it was produced and contained an American bill and Lee You said it was not his as his cash box had not contained an American note. He identified more of Lee Duck's clothing and also a waistcoat belonging to Lee Duck. With this the examination closed.

Lee Woon, the Chinaman who had called at the store and who first brought the murder to light, was next examined. Immediately the door was opened he noticed Lee Lou's state. He was afraid and ran out from the door. You said some one had struck him. He then went away to inform several other Chinamen. He was a cousin and often called and he did not know of any strange Chinaman
in town that day.

Lee Ben, whose prin was found in the grocery store, was brought in up for examination, but his testimony revealed nothing.

Screams Were Heard
Mr. House, who resides immediately upon the store, testified that he was awakened by a noise. He could not be definite as to the time, perhaps it was four o'clock. It was a terrible scream, and it was followed by other two. The noise seemed to emanate downstairs. There was a lot of groaning and crying and the groans continued. It was simply a repetition and continued for some time. That was the only noise of the night, and he did not think they were words. He investigated and like some one awakening from a bad dream. Later the rose, it being Sunday morning, and thought no more of the affair until he heard of the assault during Sunday afternoon.

Strange Man Seen
Mr. Spedding, who also lives above the store, heard one groan and did not think it worth while giving attention. He noticed a Chinaman in the store as he passed it about 10.20. He was one which had been used as a job piece. It had a metal piece soldered to it. It was the only gold piece in the box and he had put it there. He wore it often and was only in the box
when his watch was being fixed. It was unattached to a chain while in the box, but they were both in the box.
The chain was small, gold filled and had cost a dollar. He had only owned the gold piece for a short time. He knew no more of the gold piece if he ever saw it again.

Lee Duck arrived home on the night of the murder at 12 o'clock, and they both went to bed at the same time. There was no quarrel. He was under the impression that they both lay with their heads towards the window, which was towards the west. He went to sleep within half an hour and could not say whether he was asleep before Lee Duck or not. He was a sound sleeper. Usually he got up at ten on Sundays. On this occasion he was aroused by a pain
and knew no more only to awaken after it was daylight. He then felt a pain and was lying in bed. His head had been bleeding. He got up and dropped upon the floor. There he lay and then struggled to his feet. He heard a knock and crawled to the door and let in a Chinaman. Previous to this he washed his hands at the sink and dropped again. That was the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Cataract being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution, and assisting nature in doing his work. No proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

FIGHTING AT DIXMUDE

"Bombs dropped Tuesday by airmen of the allies set fire to the benzene tanks at Bruges."

ALLIES RE-INFORCED
LONDON, Nov. 14.—7.40 a.m.
—Telegraphing from the Belgian frontier, the correspondent of The Express sends the following in regard to the fighting at Dixmude:
"Heavy reinforcements have been brought up before Dixmude
by the allies, who have resumed
the offensive with great vigor and there is every indication of an early re-occupation of the town
by them.

"Fresh German entrenchments are being dug for the purpose of holding the town and big guns have been sent forward to new positions. The roads behind the town are filled with advancing ammunition trains.

"During attacks Thursday by the French the Germans placed mitrailleuses in the tower of the railway station which enabled them to command the southern approaches of the town and they back successive bodies of infantry which had succeeded in reaching the suburbs."

WAS MOST TERRIBLE
LONDON, Nov. 14.—"Accounts of the German's entry into Dix-mude, received through the German lines, say that the fighting
there was the most terrible yet experienced," says a Daily Express correspondent on the Belgian frontier, writing under date of Friday. His despatch continues:

"The German corps commander ordered his troops to take the town, warning them not to return alive if they failed. The earlier onsets resulted in the slaughter of eighty per cent of the attacking forces, who were unable to advance across the flooded fields. Their dead bodies formed a footway for the infantry following them, thus enabling the German to win the victory."

the White Star liner Olympic, di-

THE SITUATION

The statement has been made that a surveyor's chain could cover the distance of the difference made in the relative positions of the two armies in Belgium, where for the past month the fighting has been most terrible. Such a difference, in position, when the vastness of the operations is considered, is merely negligible to either side, but there is one most important factor which cannot be overlooked from a German viewpoint. That factor is time. It is the most valuable asset the allies possess, and Germany's most implacable enemy.

In today's issue Clemenceau, a former Premier of France, remarks as to what a long, hard struggle the war is proving, and points out that the longer it is the greater the ruin to Germany. Over two million fresh troops from Britain, including the finest and best from Canada and Australia, will soon be thrown into the balance, and those who have faith in Kitchener can readily understand that these troops will not be disembarked on French soil until they are most needed. How vastly important, then, is the news day by day that the line of the Allies holds fast and true; that when positions are lost others are taken and the score kept even. Of what great import at this stage of the conflict is the official announcement of today that the British cut up the crack Prussian Guards at Ypres, leaving 700 dead before one front trench? Time undoubtedly is fighting with the Allies, and from the self-confident goose-step of August a change in morale has undoubtedly come over the German troops. Recently the forces of the Czar have made their weight felt, and advance guards are well into German territory.

For all the reassurance which can be found in the situation it must be borne in mind that more than one hundred days have elapsed since the war began, and very little of its devastation has reached German soil. This in itself is a remarkable tribute to the Kaiser's war machine. But it is for the very reason that Prussian militarism is a machine, and that as a machine its first objective has failed, viz., the dash on Paris, and its second objective, seizure of the Channel ports as points of attack against England, has also failed. When a machine fails to do its work it is not long before it reaches the junk heap, and that is what is going to happen when two million free men of Britain put on their armor for King and country against Prussian militarism. The Kaiser's army will be smashed, and it will be only a question of time.

In the matter of naval warfare, in spite of losses, which are really pay- ment in blood and iron for a supremacy centuries old, Britain is still mistress of the seas. Straggling patrol cruisers may be torpedoed, but it is comforting to note that not one ship of the Grand Fleet has as yet proved a target for a German submarine. The fleet has been out in the open sea, ready for all and sundry attacks, and after nearly four months it remains with all units intact. Submarines doubtless have their uses, but the Grand Fleet of Britain, standing as it does intact, is sufficient proof that there is ample means of protection against under-water attack by torpedo boat destroyers and other like craft.

On the whole, while the struggle is a terrible one in its every phase, there is good reason for optimism, and when this war is over there will be world peace for 100 years.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The war teaches two or three daily lessons in geography. Tchenstochow is the latest.

General Winter and General Blockade will both be found hard nuts to crack by the Kaiser.

Some of these days the Pacific will not be quite so peaceful when British warships meet the German raiders on that ocean.

The monotony of war is being still further relieved by official communique from Constantinople as well as from Berlin.

The Australian cruiser which nailed the Embden owes its existence to the fact that the Kaiser hasn't got as many friends in the Australian as he has in the Canadian Senate.

With 60 Brantford artillerymen going to the front, as well as many more Dragoons, this city's quota to the Empires fighting forces is well over 600. The Telephone City is doing its share handsomely.

There is no objection to our esteemed local contemporary keeping the Empire's fighting forces as well as its navy question, if it rehearses its declarations just a little while back that there was "no emergency."

Besides swift manoeuvring on the part of war vessels, there is another way to beat submarines. Drag the sea with a chain to which is attached a 100 pound explosive. Then watch the oil come up.

A few women and children have so far been murdered by Zeppelin bombs and this is about the only claim Germany can make to aerial supremacy. On the real battle line the British airmen have invariably shown superiority.

John Bull has just voted $1,125,000,000. This amount will cover the war up to March 31, will provide for loans to colonies, to Servia $4,000,000, to Belgium $14,500,000 (already advanced), and all other internal expenses of government, which include relief work on a large scale. There is nothing small about Britain in time of need for action.

The London Times has enormously increased its circulation by becoming a penny paper, but the result from a financial point of view seems to have been far from satisfactory. The profits of the Times for the year which ended on June 30, during three months of which the reduced price had been in force, were only $30,000 compared with $95,000 in the previous year. The war must be costing the Times and all the other London papers enormous sums. The next annual statements of most big papers both in Europe and America will show heavy losses instead of profits. A general increase of subscription rates may become inevitable if hostilities are prolonged, says the Toronto Globe.

GERMAN ATTACK

(Continued from page 7) "In the region of Lassigny and in the vicinity of the Aisne, as far as Berry-Au-Bac, the Germans have attacked but without success. In the Argonne the fighting has recommenced, with greater spirit. The enemy endeavored, but in vain to recapture Four de Paris and St. Hubert. Particular- ily in the vicinity of Verdun serious and offensive movements on the part of the enemy were checked by the fire of our artillery before the forward movement of the enemy's infantry could be undertaken.

Press Comment

Confidence and Enthusiasm. Boston Transcript: Lord Fisher, who succeeds Louis of Battenberg in the British Admiralty, is a naval idol in Great Britain. He is different from Lord Charles Beresford, another idol, in that he inspires confidence rather than enthusiasm. It has been said that the British soldiers followed Wellington with confidence and the French soldiers followed Napoleon with enthusiasm. The comparison extends to Fisher and Beresford.

Large Target, Little Hit. London Telegraph: According to all prophecies, at least the poorest among us should be feeling the pinch of hunger and unemployment ought to be increasing. Food is little or no more than it was in peace! Raw materials are reaching our shores regularly and employment is good. It should be matter for congratulation that though we presented to the enemy so large and valuable a target he has been able to do us so little injury.

"MADE IN CANADA" CAMPAIGN GETS WIDE ENDORSEMENT. FORD, Ont., Nov. 14, 1914—"A strong 'Made in Canada' campaign will make Canada commercially great," says A. N. Lawrence, sales manager of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited. "The 'Made in Germany' movement made Germany in a few short years the second commercial nation on the globe, and the rule should be just as valuable on this side of the Atlantic. Producing Canadian goods that are second to none—that will be the full measure of 'practical patriotism'."

That Ford automobiles and Ford service are strictly "made in Canada" propositions, is being emphasized by the Ford Company. Although the plant at Ford, Ontario, was established but a short time ago, there are already more than 23,000 Ford cars in active service in the Dominion, every one of which is a home-product—and as a result, Canada can boast of having the largest automobile factory in the British Empire. The company is a member of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, and is helping to boost the "Made in Canada" campaign.

All Ford extra parts are "Made in Canada" as well as the cars themselves. The problem of prompt and efficient service is solved by the Ford Company by supplying all their nine branches in as many principal cities of the Dominion, with large stocks of spares. In addition to this, every dealer, little or big, carries a complete stock of parts, and is thus in a position to give prompt and efficient service to Ford owners.

It is estimated that the value of service parts carried by Ford dealers in the Dominion alone is in excess of a million and a half dollars.

C. J. Mitchell, 55 Darling street, dealer for Brant County.

CADETS HELD FINE BANQUET

Young Soldiers in the Making Hear Patriotic Addresses.

It was a scene of boyish enthusiasm and much splendid loyalty to King, School and Country at the Collegiate last night when upwards of seventy boys of the B. C. I. Cadets sat down for their annual banquet.

Many guests were present representative of the scholastic and military life of the city. The 38th D. R. were represented by Maj. Genet, and the ex-members of the Collegiate by Cadet H. Genet R.M.C. Mr. W. G. Raymond was present and spoke splendidly in his usual vein. The principal, Mr. Burt, and Mr. S. F. Passmore, M.A., represented the Collegiate staff and the greetings extended to them by the boys was a tribute to an esteem which was heartfelt.

The menu was excellent, "Crumb- cake, as usual" being the motto, and gave excellent practice in a drill not taught by the Sergeant-Major, the "knife and fork" variety.

S. M. Slemin acted as chairman in a capital way, supported by Capt. Sweet and Capt. Vaughan. A toast of some length was gone through, the star feature being an address by Mr. W. G. Raymond in reply to a toast by Capt. Sweet, "The Empire".

Mr. W. G. Raymond. After complimenting the cadets, the speaker said, never before was our Empire at such a crisis as she is to-day. Its magnitude could be measured by states and nations, and while in the reading of history a realization of stirring times might be had here to-day as a people we were for the first time in many generations called to mark well its significance and collect in scrap book form, all records by picture and pen of the most outstanding events in its ten years of its history.

The most important in the Empire of to-day, continued the speaker was not the diplomat, the banker or the master of commerce; but the soldier in no other epoch-making struggle and on no other form of national life did our reliance find itself so much centered as in the strong arms and courageous hearts of our soldiers and sailors.

That contemptible little Kaiser, who called it was land, as the Kaiser called it was an undaunted—retreat it had done, but never broken—like a steel band it had linked up with the armies of France and had at Mons from disaster, rescued an army of soldiers.

The speaker then turned to the present, and in the reading of history a realization of stirring times might be had here to-day as a people we were for the first time in many generations called to mark well its significance and collect in scrap book form, all records by picture and pen of the most outstanding events in its ten years of its history.

raise one regiment, when nightly on the streets he saw idlers enough for two regiments.

The day for compulsory service, he hoped, would come soon and the events of to-day would surely hasten the time when every man would have to take his place in the militia. He could not promise a field marshal's hat, but he could assure the boys that they each could carry in their knapsacks a commission in the 38th.

A short interval was here made in which Mr. Shultis of the company, treasurer, was presented by Ex-Capt. Slemin with an umbrella, as a mark of the appreciation of the companies for his work. Mr. Shultis made a feeling reply and thanked the cadets for their kindness.

Mr. S. A. Passmore, M.A. Another toast, the teachers, was proposed by Cadet Goetz, and replied to by Mr. S. E. Passmore, M.A., who spoke of his privilege in replying for staff and apropos of his position as Latin master, quoted some excellent doggerel a boy had penned on that subject:—

All are dead, who wrote it, All are dead who spoke it, All will die who learn it, Blessed Death—they earn it.

A gust of laughter followed this, but no boy would acknowledge being its author.

Principal Burt Principal Burt replying to "The School" proposed by Col. Sergt Joyce, said he never had been prouder of the Collegiate than he was to-day. It stood higher now than ever before.

Out of a recent class examination, only three papers were under the possible marks. There had never been any expulsions and never had been any necessity for them.

The Russian authorities that even the resumption of German offensive against Russian Poland will not cause a diversion.

The usual contradictory reports come from the scene of the Russo-Turkish battle front. The Russians report steady progress over the old battle grounds of 1876, while the Turks claim that the Russians have been pushed back across the border with very heavy losses.

From the headquarters of the Teutonic allies come conservative statements of the activities of their armies. Vienna admits certain Russian successes, which incidentally mean that the Slav power again is in possession of the great oil fields of Galicia, but another report from Austrian headquarters balances this, by believing to have destroyed certain German submarines, which for weeks have been successful in eluding the British guardships.

behind their own borders. Berlin reports progress on the western front, accompanied by the repulse of every attempted advance by the allies. German military experts, commenting on the fact that the prisoners taken at Nieport were French, claim that this is proof that the Belgians have been so cut to pieces that it has become necessary for the French to take their places. They believe also that the taking of prisoners on the Ypres front indicates that the energies of the allies is flagging. One of these military writers does not conceal the anxiety caused by the Russian advance, but sets down his belief that the German frontier has not yet been crossed.

The only naval news of importance is the announcement that the submarine menace of Dover has been relieved by the dragging of chains along the bottom of the channel. This procedure is believed to have destroyed certain German submarines, which for weeks have been successful in eluding the British guardships.

TEN YEARS
WAS GIVEN TO DRAPER

Revolting Crime Proven
Against Prisoner—30
Lashes Also.

William Draper was sentenced to ten years imprisonment in Kingston Penitentiary, with thirty lashes, fifteen to be received now and fifteen six months hence, when he was tried and convicted upon a charge of criminally assaulting a six year old girl in the East end of the city, at the County Court yesterday.

In summing up Judge Hardy said it was a very revolting crime, and one which struck terror into the hearts of all parents of small children. Prisoner's lawyer had put the case as ably as the circumstances would permit him to. The crime was one of a heinous nature and it was the judge's duty to deliver a sentence of the court. He did not think he could enlarge upon the observations of the lawyers to any effect. The sentence would be ten years in Kingston penitentiary with 15 lashes to be administered now and fifteen six months hence.

Crown Attorney Wilkes appeared for the prosecution and Solicitor A. L. Baird represented the prisoner, W. Draper. The prosecution had a strong line up of witnesses whose stories, each corroborative, formed an irrefutable chain of evidence and realizing this, the defence seized upon the one loophole and pleaded extenuating circumstances in spite of a plea of not guilty. It held little weight with the court Mr. Baird put up a very strong plea for leniency in the case of conviction, pleading for the man's social status upon his liberation, and particularly emphasized the brutality of lashes, which he desired to be left out of the sentence.

Draper took his sentence without a flinch. He never uttered a syllable and quietly left the court in the care of High Constable Kerr.

The history of the case does not need repeating. Draper after being caught elected to come before the Assize court and there he was yesterday tried.

The first witness for the prosecution was Dr. Secord and he testified as to the inflicted injuries upon the little girl. In his opinion she would recover. Dr. Bier in the box gave similar testimony. This case was an abnormal one. He had never had any cause to think that Draper was abnormal, although he undoubtedly was at the time of his offence.

The mother, gave evidence. The baby, as her little six-year-old daughter was known, was playing on the afternoon of Saturday, Oct. 24, on Darling street in front of their home. Later she missed her and went to look for her, calling out as she looked. She found her daughter near the school buildings and she was then with the prisoner. She suspected nothing and she did not know how to account for her daughter's condition until her suspicions were aroused by the little girl's story. She then saw Draper slinking off and she gave chase.

Mrs. Ann Kaughman testified that she saw the prisoner coming down Stanley street with the little girl and she recognized the man as the prisoner in the dock.

Mr. Harry Isaac saw the man Draper from the door of his home on Chatham street. He was rushing past and then witness heard the mother shouting and he then came out and gave chase. He caught the runaway. He hit his captor's fingers severely and tried hard to get rid of the witness who held on until help arrived.

Mr. Reynolds testified as to the finding of the wheel and also as to the discovery of the hat of the prisoner.

The little girl herself, and then her little friend identified Draper in the dock as the man who took the little victim away on a wheel. With a plaintive voice and a direct finger she pointed out the prisoner.

This concluded the case for the prosecution. The witnesses for the defence were the prisoner's brother, Thomas who testified as to the movements of William on the day of the crime, and John Westcott, a former foreman over the prisoner, who spoke of the quietness and reserved nature of the prisoner, and also John Kerr who gave evidence corroborative and with a view to establishing the fact that the prisoner was a heavy drinker and that probably the liquor had affected his mentality.

Thomas draper then testified that on the day of the crime he was with his brother, William, who was the prisoner. On the morning of Saturday they had a few drinks together and he had left him. He did not know his movements after that. He was a quiet man and was of a reserved disposition.

ACTION IS TAKEN

Western Counties Company Must Ground Wires to Avoid Danger.

A short time ago a resident of St. Catharines was killed in his home by touching an electric lighting socket. The coroner's jury decided that it was a repetition of the old story of somebody's neglect to safeguard the lines and property of electric light users by the simple precaution of grounding the low voltage wires to the earth, or in other words by grounding the secondary wires.

When the Hydro-Electric system in Brantford was constructed this danger was completely avoided by grounding not only the secondary wires but the 2200 volt wires as well so that no customer of the city system need have any uneasiness as to danger to his life or property from high voltage wires.

Fortunately, also, the necessary legal machinery now exists to compel those companies which for any reason lag behind in humanitarian engineering practice to safeguard their customers.

The Ontario Legislature recently provided Municipal Inspectors with authority to order companies to ground their circuits, and Mr. W. H. Ground was newly appointed inspector of this city, with commendable promptness has already ordered the Western Counties Electric Co. to ground their system, forthwith in accordance with regulations. It seems in accordance with the necessity for such an order exists, but the city authorities are determined that every possible safeguard in connection with the use of electricity shall be given to the citizens of Brantford.

Notice to Electric Wiremen, Contractors, Electrical Supply Authorities, Builders and Others

Notice is hereby given that commencing on November 10th next the inspection of all electric wiring, building and apparatus in the City of Brantford will be carried out in accordance with the Power Commission Act, and a City By-law duly passed in accordance therewith (copy of which by-law may be seen at the City Hall) and that Mr. W. H. Mowat has been duly appointed electrical inspector for the due enforcement of the said By-law.

Commencing on the aforementioned date, the installation of electric wiring must not be commenced in or in connection with any building in the City of Brantford without first obtaining a written permit from the electrical inspector at his office in the City Hall.

It will also be illegal to install any live service into any building or in connection with any wiring, power, illuminating heat or temporary installation without a written certificate from the electrical inspector.

Lathers, plasterers, carpenters and others are hereby warned that it is contrary to the provisions of the by-law to cover in any electric wiring until the same has been duly inspected by the Inspector and the written permission given to thus cover in any electric work. Any one violating the provisions of the By-Law, or the Rules and Regulations of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission will be subject to the penalty provided in the City By-Law.

By Order, H. F. LEONARD, City Clerk. Brantford, Nov. 13, 1914.

AMERICANS ARE RESPONDING TO QUEENS APPEAL

Thousands of Pairs of Socks Are Being Sent Over to England.

(By Special Wire to the Courier)

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Americans have been liberal in their response to Queen Mary's appeal for 300,000 pairs of socks and belts for the soldiers at the front.

Through Lady Arthur Paget, who is prominent in the relief work in behalf of the soldiers, the need of a fund for the supply of these articles was brought especially to the attention of American women.

In discussing to-day the response to this appeal, Lady Paget said:

"The generosity of my countrywomen and countrymen is most gratifying. Every day I receive parcels from all parts of America. Already 15,000 pairs of socks have been sent to me, many accompanied by touching letters from women, children and shop girls. Some say there is nothing they could spare except a pair of daily knittings, but that they gladly yielded their leisure time to help the men in the trenches."

"Many business houses also send socks. The gifts are forwarded immediately to the men at the front, with the explanation that they are from American friends. The soldiers are duly grateful for the gifts."

Lady Paget has received the following letter from Queen Mary:

"Buckingham Palace, Nov. 7. "Dear Lady Paget, "The Queen is much touched at the very large number of socks, belts and shirts being made and sent to you for our troops by friends and well-wishers in the United States. Can you find some opportunity of expressing

CENSORSHIP WAS ATTACKED IN THE HOUSE

Bitter Debate Last Night in the British House of Commons.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—There was a bitter debate in the House of Commons last night when several members attacked the Official Press Bureau and the censorship, and charged that the unreasonable attitude of the censors was preventing the Englishmen from getting the number of first class fighting men desired. Sir Stanley Buckmaster, head of the Official Press Bureau, practically told his critics to mind their own business, and declined to promise a relaxation of censorship severity.

Col. Yates declared that the censorship as exercised has done an enormous harm to recruiting. Other criticisms were that the public was not properly informed in a number of matters where it should properly have information. Among the cases instanced were the refusal to permit criticism of the methods of transporting wounded, the refusal to permit inferences to be drawn as regards the government's policy towards neutrals, the deletion of the Premier's own announcement that Indian troops were landing at Marseilles, the censoring of official communiques of the French Government, the veiled threats that have been held over newspapers, which in some cases have practically been terrorized.

Makes No Apology

Sir Stanley Buckmaster, replying with considerable warmth, said that he regretted he had not been able to exercise a severer censorship over some news that dealt with foreign questions. He continued: "I make no apology for what has been done once as regards the French despatches, because they disclosed an important movement by our troops. I am grieved to say that I was too late to strike it out effectively."

"As regards the Premier's statement that troops had landed at Marseilles, it was inaccurate. I don't care what the document is or who the authority is, if, according to my judgment there is matter which imperils the safety of our troops, I will strike it out."

"The press bureau alone stood between the press and martial law. I have merely executed to the best of my ability the orders of the Admiralty and the War Office."

A SCENE IN TURKISH CAPITAL AS COUNTRY PREPARED FOR WAR.

TURKISH CAVALRY IN STREETS OF CONSTANTINOPLE.

SIDELIGHTS ON WAR FROM ALL QUARTERS

When halted on the edge of Sosisons, a Black Watch Highlander was heard to say to his mate in the trenches where he had been fighting since day break, and the "black marias had been stirring the ground up hotly around him, "I dinna mind the feelin', Georgie, but I maun hae ma breakfast; ma stomach's fair windy wi' black maria's pickle 'n' dust." Such is the sangfroid of the British Tommy, which has endeared him to his French ally, and which, with its dry humor, signifies the inward strength of the Anglo-Saxon race.

We are not all made alike; we do not all possess the same iron nerve; but when you hear a playful midday shout "Come in, as a 9-inch shell hits the side, you smile in spite of yourself. At Heligoland a shell tore away about nine feet of a destroyer's outer casing. "That's right," sang out a man standing by the gaping chasm.

"You are not leaving us, sonny? That was the greeting of a bfe-acker to a torpedo which missed him." "I landed 'in a plum"—A good shot, a German probably killed.

"The zoo"—Wire entanglements. "Prisoners of war are ordered off the field," and German spies are "playing off-side." "Every morning I rub my eyes with amazement at seeing London as it is. It will be like going back to a cemetery, seeing Berlin after this. These were the words of a well-known American who has reached London from Berlin. But one thing amazes him still more than the blithe cheerfulness and energy of London, and that is the effect of the enlightenment which the German citizens are some day bound to receive. "It will be the greatest landslide in history," he said.

"Living seven weeks and more with news of German victory dimmed into my ears day after day, I am still wondering how much of this is a dream. In Berlin every one is convinced that you are half-rutted and thoroughly demoralized, and that your expectation is an important but very costly victory at sea. Just a few officials have begun to realize what your army means, and the admissions of the Berlin Tagblatt only dimly reflect their misgivings."

Grim details of the destruction of Aerschot are contained in the fourth report of the official Belgian Commission appointed to investigate the outrages committed by the Kaiser's Huns.

"I entered a house which was said to have been occupied by officers," states one of the Commissioners. "On reaching the threshold a smell of spent wine drew our attention to hundreds of empty and broken bottles which filled the hall and stairs case, and even the yard opening of the garden. The rooms were in indescribable disorder. I found an amount of torn clothes, of pieces of wool, torn from open mattresses, everywhere open chests and in every room by the bed, still more empty bottles.

"The drawing room was full of them; dozens of wine glasses covered the table and sideboards, by which stood tattered armchairs and sofas, while in a corner a piano, with stained keyboard, seemed to have been smashed by boots. All showed that the place had been during many days and nights, the scenes of the vilest debauches and drinking bouts.

"I believe that I may affirm, even now, that the total ruin which has overtaken this laborious and peaceful population is much more due to an organized pillage than to fire, which spared certain portions of the town. Full wagon loads of booty left Aerschot in the direction of the Meuse."

A boy named Gustave Chattaïn, 15 years old, is now lying in a nursing home in Paris. He took part in several battles, notably that of the Marne, and the first part of the battle of the Aisne, where he was wounded.

Near the boys' bed is a pair of red trousers, given him by his admirers, as he took part in the fighting in civilian dress.

Asked how he came to join the troops he said: "It was simple. I was anxious to fight the Boches, and I joined the company, and told the officers I would be quite good, and not in their way. At last I saw the Boches, and the fighting began. I picked up a rifle, and nobody paid any attention to me. I fired many cartridges as I could, and got so interested in this new sport that I suddenly discovered that I was quite alone. I had lost my company. I managed to retire in good order."

Ultimately I met an infantry regiment, and was allowed to join the ranks. Then came the Battle of the Marne. I was delighted and took part in bayonet charges. In order to get near the Boches, I held a bundle of straw in front of myself, and managed to reach the enemy's trenches. Several times I saw in the trenches German soldiers apparently dead, but as I was suspicious of some of their tricks, I kicked them to find out if they were really dead. The fun was greater still at the Battle of the Aisne.

"Tommy Atkins" in reply to the compliments from all sides as to their splendid behaviour in the battle field, and especially as to their ability to withstand rifle fire, reply that they owe their power in this direction to the hard lessons of the Boer war. There, where they were pitted against splendid marksmen, they soon learned to abandon the compact charge for a more scattered formation, and they find it a comparatively easy task to protect themselves against the indifferent, not to say poor, German marksmanship.

TROUSERS FOR FRANCE
 CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—Buyers for the French Government opened negotiations here to-day for the purchase of 40,000 pairs of red trousers of four different shades for the army. In addition, contracts are to be made for wire markers to designate the regiment and company for 300,000 soldiers.

BAYONET CHARGE IN PITCH DARKNESS

"We are in the thick of the horrors of war," writes a British soldier from the fighting line.

"The enemy occupies a fort, and we are told to dislodge him. Four days back we made a night sortie, and I assisted at the most awful butchery you can conceive."

"We made a bayonet charge in the pitch darkness, talking to keep in the enemy played us a most seditious trick by placing a lot of French prisoners in front of his men, and forcing them, at the sword's point, to cry 'En avant.' We trustfully advanced accordingly right on to their trenches. I never saw anything like what followed."

And our own artillery had to bombard a village taken by the enemy where we had left our own wounded."

"We take shifts day and night without respite in the trenches in front of our village. It rains without stopping, and never a ray of sun to warm our stiffened limbs. My feet are in the worst state as I have not taken off my boots yet since I started. The whole country is covered with dead horses, and is a very charnel house. We are all sure of winning, and if the enemy violates all rules of war and commits atrocities it must be because he feels he is lost."

"It's dull work," says another soldier, "compared with what we got at first, but it is enlivened now and then by little fights by day and night, when the Germans rush out to surprise us, or our generals think it well to push the enemy a little further back."

"The Germans have got the look of men who are already licked and know it, but they are just the chaps that will do their dirty best to make their last kick as nasty as it can be for everybody around. My impression is that their plan from the start was to have the horrors of war confined to other countries, and when they are cleared out they will howl for peace rather than have their sacred country invaded."

"We shall see about that. Our chaps get on remarkably well with the French, and after this war it will be hard to make trouble between France and Britain any more."

"The French people and soldiers are warm admirers of the British army, and always say, with a smile, that it's a good thing for the Germans there aren't more of us."

Dutch and Swiss Neutrality.

London Chronicle: The last thing that British statesmanship desires in the case of either Holland or Switzerland is that either of these countries should be forced to abandon a neutrality which benefits not only themselves but civilization.

Food Cheaper in War Time.

Springfield Republican: Russia's case is different from that of any of the other countries at war, in that food has become cheaper and more abundant since hostilities began. This, of course, is natural enough, for Russia is a great agricultural country, and normally does a great export trade, both by way of Germany and through the Black Sea and the Dardanelles.

Exportation is now in great part cut off, and the food stuffs are thrown back upon the home market, with the result that the poor are faring better than in normal times.

KAISER BILL GETTING RID OF HIS PALACE

(By Special Wire to the Courier)

GENEVA, via Paris, Nov. 13.—Emperor William is offering his marble palace, the Villa of Achilleion in Corfu, for sale. It was built in 1890-91, for the Empress Elizabeth of Austria at a cost of $5,000,000, and has since been improved. A syndicate of Germans and Swiss hotelmen wished to buy Achilleion a few years ago, but they were outbid by the Emperor.

The Emperor's decision to sell the palace, it is stated, is the result of the uncertain attitude of Greece toward Germany and Austria. It is said he fears confiscation of the palace if Greece joins the allies.

A Swiss syndicate has been given an option on the palace at a low price. The villa of Achilleion, which was in the Italian renaissance style, was purchased in 1907 by the German Emperor. The gardens are open to visitors. At the back of the villa are a peristyle and three terraces with a large number of statues and an antique keyboard, seemed to have been smashed by boots. All showed that the place had been during many days and nights, the scenes of the vilest debauches and drinking bouts.

In The World Of Labor

A Budget of News For Those Interested in Labor

By G. A. M.

Gleaned From the Exchanges and Other Sources

Labor's Toll to Industry

(By Clarence Darrow.)

Clarence Darrow, the famous labor attorney, in a recent address said: "When did you ever hear of a prohibition convention raising its voice in protest against killing workmen when their lives were only one-half done? They are too busy talking about hum."

"Now let me tell you more. Do you know of all the people born into the world, all who come upon the earth, one-fifth or one-sixth of the human race of the whole world go out through one door, and that door is tuberculosis? And they die between 20 and 30, as a general rule, when they are of most use to their families and their friends. They die from lack of air and food and room and opportunity to live. They die, not on account of Rum, but on account of Monopoly, and if one-tenth part of the energy and money and talk that is spent on Rum were spent on Tuberculosis, the great scourge would have been wiped out years ago. Do these gentlemen care anything about tuberculosis patients? No! A man may be eaten alive by tuberculosis and the prohibitionists look square in his face and say: "Oh, Rum! Rum!"

"Why, in our tenement districts, tuberculosis goes from father to son, from mother to daughter, from sister to brother, and in our sweatshops and factories, they die like flies because men have monopolized the earth and the prohibitionist looks on and shouts, 'Rum!'

"Let me tell you more: A half million workmen were killed and maimed last year, the victims of our industrial machines. They were ground up by cars; they died in molten vats of steel and lead; they had their arm sand hands cut off by machines; they fell from the tenth or fifteenth story up in the air, while working to buy bread for their families. They died by every spindle and engine that makes these great industries what they are. Half a million of these lives and limbs could have been saved if man cared for life and didn't care for dollars. If they tried to make machines safe, safe to protect human life, men and women and little children, these lives would have been saved."

"Not long ago, in the state of Illinois, 300 poor fellows went down into the earth with a torch on their head and lived a lingering death for perhaps a week or ten days, and never came up to their families and their homes. The reason was that men were more interested in making a mine profitable than in making the mine safe. Do you hear any of these

But while their remarks are encouraging, so far as they are an indication of awakening conscience, they are still short of what they should be.

The suggestions tell us that cooperation should be substituted for competition; but they give no hint how this is to be brought about. If they had shown how the speculator could be converted from an impoverishing despoiler to a beneficent enricher, their allusions would have been much more valuable.

The president of the Congressional Union did not seem to recognize the source of the social wrong, nor was he any more explicit than the Methodists as to the remedy. The employers do not fix the wages and it is no use scolding them; it is not the employers who subject labor to an everlasting tribute for the occupation of the earth. The preachers are perhaps more to blame than any other body, because they are the ostensible teachers of righteousness. The employers simply buy and sell according to the market, and they make no profession of being the leaders in the path of the just. If our pulpits had taught the principles that lie at the back of the Mosaic economy—the injustice whereby one child is horned to millions, with the power to command the toil of scores, if not hundreds, of others who must spend their lives in poverty and want, the solution would not have been so difficult for them to find.

Will Pay Minimum Scale

The minimum wage of twenty-five cents per hour to be paid to all laborers on civic work will be maintained. So ordered the Toronto City Council last Tuesday by a vote of nine to four. This closing one of the most determined attempts that have been made in this country to get rid of the entering wedge designed to play havoc with the payment of a fair rate of wages to the men who are generally to be found on the low-down end of the payroll.

Christ's Prayer

Jesus prayed and taught his followers to pray. "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven." Is this prayer ever to be answered? Certainly it is, and that just as soon as the so-called Christian church is willing to lend a hand, and help the poor, to remedy the wrongs of the world. Let us get rid of Rum, and then we will help you."

Notes by the Way

W. A. Douglas, B.A. "Still the world moves." So said the noble Galileo, after he had been condemned for heresy and compelled to recant.

At the meeting of the Congregational Union, the president, in his address, called attention to the declining influence of the church. Then he discussed the bad social conditions, the widening between the two extremes of society.

A few weeks ago, the superintendents of the Methodist church also emphasized the importance of the social problem. Many of us can remember when such allusions would have been received with amazement, if not with rebuke.

FRENCH SOLDIER RIGHT FROM THE FIRING LINE

GEORGES PIERLOT

This picture shows Georges Pierlot, a French reservert, as he arrived in New York from France. Pierlot, who lives in Montreal, was still wearing his uniform when the vessel reached her pier, making a picturesque figure as he stood among the crowd of passengers dressed in the hazy red trousers, the tall cap and the long, shapeless coat of the French infantry. His uniform, together with a small knapsack, comprised all his possessions, and kind-hearted fellow passengers made up a collection to pay his fare to Montreal. Pierlot was among the first to be sent to the battle front. While in the fighting near Rheims he suffered a serious wound in the left shoulder, which caused a temporary paralysis of the arm and brought about his release from further duty.

These destitute millions in the production of the food, shelter and raiment which they so much need. When will the church be willing to assist in the repeal of these iniquitous laws, so that the Lord's prayer may be answered, and the gospel of "peace on earth and good will to men" be permitted to convert the earth into a heaven. The world is rapidly getting ready for this grand culmination, but strange to say the popular church opposes any such radical change for the betterment of the condition of our common humanity.—The Drum-Beat.

Go Straight to Your Goal

You can't make a real success without making real enemies. You can't hold a strong position without strong opposition. You won't seem right to any if you don't seem wrong to many. A useful life can't be entirely peaceful and carefree. You must do your duty as you see it. Every earnest man in every generation has paid the price of individuality. You can't judge. The greater you are, the greater the penalty of your progress. The farther you go, the wider your range, the more you increase the points of contact with which you must reckon, and therefore, conception and slander and envy and avoid or evade your allotted destiny—you can only hold down your share of trouble by holding back.

In every sphere men gibe and sneer and threaten to furnish the laborer who covets his job. So long as you aspire, others will conspire—so long as you try, others will vie.

You'll have hostility to face in every place and at every pace. Go straight to your goal. So long as your conscience isn't ashamed to acknowledge you as a friend, don't you give a rap for enemies.—Herbert Kaufman.

What You Make It

A lesson that every union man should take to heart is the fact that the success of the labor movement depends on the individual effort of its members. It is just in proportion as the average member takes an interest in his organization that it will progress or retrograde. The man who seldom attends a meeting of the union who is always backward in his dues, and only knows by hearsay as to what is transpiring, is really of more use outside the organization than in it. It is the man who recognizes that he and endeavored by every means, except of course, direct address, to which it would have been his duty to respond, to attract his attention. It was quite in vain. He remained unregardingly, respectfully rigid, and as if turned to stone. Moreover, she observed Colonel Verly smiling at her discomfiture. It was too much. With characteristic imperiousness she stepped close to the sentinel and boxed his ears. Not a muscle moved.

The colonel had won his wager. The Empress afterwards sent the man a handsome compensation for the cuff he had received, but he refused to accept it, declaring—and there spoke the unmistakable Frenchman, after all—that he had been already sufficiently compensated by the touch of his sovereign lady's hand on his cheek.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The grand correspondent of The Daily News has just announced that Petrograd has been made a dry city for the duration of the war and that no wine, spirits will be allowed to be sold where, gives a legend of a Russian army of a "white" who rides through the ranks white horse.

"If he looks a man full in the legend runs, that man bears a red life. Those whom he passes eyes averted are marked for death. During the last two weeks the general has not been seen in Russian ranks. The soldiers are busy in the German and armies walking with his eyes ground."

QUEER LEGEND OF RUSSIA

(By Special Wire to The Courier)
LONDON, Nov. 13.—The Petrograd correspondent of The Daily Mail in announcing that Petrograd had been made a free city for the duration of the war and that no wine, beer, or spirits will be allowed to be sold anywhere, gives a legend permeating the Russian army of a "white general" who rides through the ranks on a white horse.

"If he looks a man full in face," the legend runs, "that man bears a charming life. Those whom he passes with eyes averted are marked for death. During the last two weeks the 'white general' has not been seen in the Russian ranks. The soldiers say he is busy in the German and Austrian armies walking with his eyes to the ground."

GREAT WHITE THRONE AND ITS BLESSINGS

Messiah's Dominion for a Thousand Years. HEAVEN AND EARTH TO FLEE

Scriptures Filled With Symbolisms—Due Time to Appreciate Many of These Symbols—Earth's History Thus Revealed—Deeply Ingrained Selfishness of Humanity, a Blight—Mankind Cannot Remove This Condition—Small and Great to Be Judged—The Books to Be Opened—The Book of Life.

Philadelphians, Pa., Nov. 3.—Pastor Russell preached to-day to a deeply interested audience. His text was, "I saw a great White Throne, and Him that sat upon it, from whose face the earth and the heaven fled away; and there was no place found for them." (Revelation 20:11.) He said in part:

Sin made moral cowards of our race. From early times fear and apprehension, especially in respect to things future, have been impressed upon us. We realize our imperfection, and know that our God is perfect. The laborer is poor, not because he is imperfect, but because the standard which he could approve, and that some kind of punishment for sin must be expected. The Adversary, taking advantage of our weaknesses, has represented the Almighty, and has used our fears to alienate us from Him and to distort His Message to us in the Bible. St. Paul assures us that this Satan, the great deceiver, has to put light for darkness and darkness for light. Thus it comes that our text, which is really one of the most beautiful and comforting in the Bible, when understood, has to become a curse in the hands of their fears.

It is needless to say that our text is one of the symbolisms of a Book filled with symbols. Guided by the Holy Spirit, interpreted by the use of the scriptures, we find in the words of many of them the due time is already here.

The Throne is Messiah's, and represents His Kingdom. His dominion for a thousand years. Its whiteness symbolizes the purity, the justice, of His Kingdom of Righteousness under the whole heaven. The heavens and the earth, which will be destroyed, will be replaced by the great Immanuel will not be the heavens of God's Throne, nor the earth which He has given to the children of men.

The New Dispensation which Messiah's Kingdom will inaugurate is the Kingdom of Righteousness. It will be a Kingdom of Righteousness, just, truthful, pure, holy, righteous, just, truthful, God-like—a Great White Throne. No wonder we read that the symbols of His Kingdom, representing the Kingdom of Righteousness, will be destroyed, and the Kingdom of Righteousness will be established.

But let no one think for a moment that ecclesiastical princes, monarchs, and popes, and all the other rulers of this world, will be destroyed, and the Kingdom of Righteousness will be established. The Kingdom of Righteousness will be established, and the Kingdom of Righteousness will be established.

We are in the very time when the Lord through the Prophet David calls the great ones of the earth to recognize the truth of the scriptures. The day is coming when the Kingdom of Righteousness will be established, and the Kingdom of Righteousness will be established.

On the other hand, the money kings, the great princes are taking counsel together to-day for the preservation of the present inequity of the world, by which they are profiting. The Lord Jesus is coming, and He will bring down the Kingdom of Righteousness, and He will bring down the Kingdom of Righteousness.

Advice to Diners. In one of the French restaurants in Soho, where there had been a fight a few nights before, the following was at once posted in large type: "The war will be settled abroad. Please do not start anything here."

Finance. Visitor—Why are you naughty so much of the time? Bobby—Mamma gives me a nickel every time I promise to be good, and she never wants me to promise to be good unless I'm naughty.

Lesson VII.—Fourth Quarter, For Nov. 15, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Mark xiv, 53, 54, 66-72—Memory Verses, 71, 72—Golden Text, 1 Cor. x, 12—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

A few weeks ago we saw in the story of Jesus Christ and Judas Iscariot, God and the devil face to face; now we have the same Lord Jesus in the hands of His enemies and the strange conduct, or, rather, misconduct, of one of His most favored disciples. All who are not saved are lost, but He came to seek and to save the lost. When any lost one is convinced of sin and truly receives the Lord Jesus Christ they become saved ones, and all such are equally saved; no one is more saved than another; for all have the same Saviour and the same salvation. But the experience of such as are saved is very varied, and the rewards will be according to service.

Some follow fully as did Caleb and Joshua, while some follow after like Peter in this lesson. Some utterly renounce the world, the flesh and the devil, while some are more or less conformed to this present evil age. Some have no confidence in self and lean wholly upon the Lord, but others are too often self-confident as Peter was when he said, "I will lay down my life for Thy sake" (John xiii, 37).

When the band of soldiers took Jesus and led Him away Peter followed Him afar off, even unto the palace of the high priest, and sat with the servants of the high priest, and with the servants of the high priest, and with the servants of the high priest, and with the servants of the high priest.

There is growth in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, a blessed experience, of which Peter speaks in the last verse of his second epistle (II Pet. iii, 18). There is also a possibility of a growing departure from the Lord, even in the case of a saved person, and that the saved one enter the kingdom saved as by fire (I Cor. iii, 15; v, 5), but according to the words of the Lord Jesus Himself it is impossible that a saved one should ever perish (John x, 29).

Peter's downward steps as a disciple seem to have been his self-confidence and consequent blundering, his following afar instead of fully, his sitting in the company of the servants and warming himself at their fire, followed by his profanity and base denial. Earlier in the record we hear Peter speaking rather to pity himself, or pleading which Peter speaks in the last verse of his second epistle (II Pet. iii, 18). There is also a possibility of a growing departure from the Lord, even in the case of a saved person, and that the saved one enter the kingdom saved as by fire (I Cor. iii, 15; v, 5), but according to the words of the Lord Jesus Himself it is impossible that a saved one should ever perish (John x, 29).

The Master said, "My Word shall judge you in the Last Day." Happy has it been for comparatively few men who have heard the Master's Word, and during the Thousand-Year Judgment Day of the world (2 Pet. 3:7, 8) the same words—"wonderful words of life"—to those who will obey, but who refuse to obey—will be the standards of justice for all.

The books to be opened to all will include not only the words of the Master, but also the Divine Message through the Prophets of Israel. According to these standards whoever would have life everlasting must conform to the Master's Word. At the end of Messiah's Reign the approval will be delivered over to the Father as perfect human beings, but the disapproval will be delivered over to the Father as imperfect human beings, but the disapproval will be delivered over to the Father as imperfect human beings.

Another book of life will be opened—another besides that which is the Lamb's Book of Life, and in which are written the names of the faithful followers of Jesus in the present time. The new book of life will be for those who will be on trial during the Millennium; it will include the names of all of Adam's race found worthy of everlasting life.

The judgment of the Church in the present time is not according to works, the perfection of which would be impossible under present conditions. Hence the Church's judgment is according to faith and the obedience of faith. But the world's judgment will then be so great that faith will no longer be at a premium. The great Mediator will accept perfect works according to the ability of the people; but as they rise out of degradation more will be expected until they reach perfection. Then perfect works will be required.

It would be well for us if we would always remember that those same eyes are ever upon us, searching us through and through, and live by the will of Him that liveth and seeth me (I Cor. xvi, 9; Gen. xvi, 13, 14, margin). "Condemn not yourselves, ye who are called, in the presence of the high priest and the council, hold as a lion (Acts iv, 5-13, 19, 20), and let us be so filled.

Any fear of man is an indication that the Spirit is not for the time being controlling us. The fear of man bringeth a snare, but in the fear of the Lord is strong confidence.

Any fear of man is an indication that the Spirit is not for the time being controlling us. The fear of man bringeth a snare, but in the fear of the Lord is strong confidence.

Nigel

By A. Conan Doyle

Copyright, 1905, 1906, by A. Conan Doyle.

She shook her proud head. "So it seems to you now, fair lord, but it may be otherwise as the years pass. How shall you prove that I am indeed a help and not a hindrance?"

"I will prove it by my deeds, fair and dear lady," said Nigel. Here at the shrine of the holy Catharine, on this, the Feast of Saint Margaret, I take my oath that I will do three deeds in your honor as a proof of my high love before I set eyes upon your face again, and these three deeds shall stand as a proof to you that if I love you dearly, still I will not let the thought of you stand betwixt me and honorable achievement!"

Her face shone with her love and her pride. "I also make my oath," said she, "and I do it in the name of the holy Catharine whose shrine is hard by. I swear that I will hold myself for you until these three deeds be done and we meet once more; also that if—which may dear Christ forbid—you fall in doing them then I shall take the veil in a convent nunnery and look upon no man's face again! Give me your hand, Nigel."

She had taken a little hangle of gold filigree work from her arm and fastened upon it a brilliant wrist, reading aloud to him the engraved motto in old French: "Fais ce que dois, adviegnis que pourra—c'est commande" au chevalier. Then for one moment they lay in each other's arms and with kiss upon kiss, a loving man and a tender woman, they swore their troth to each other. But the old knight was calling impatiently from below and together they hurried down the winding path to where the horses waited under the sandy bluff.

As far as the Shalford crossing Sir John rode by Nigel's arm and many were the last injunctions which he gave him concerning woodcraft, and great his anxiety lest he confuse a spray with a brocket, or either with more the Shalford meadow. Nigel saw that the old man upon the gray cob was riding slowly toward Saint Catharine's Hill, but that the girl was still where he had seen her last, leaning forward in her saddle and straining her eyes to pierce the dark forest which screened her lover from her view. It was but a fleeting glance through a break in the foliage, and yet in after days of stress and toil in far distant lands it was that one little picture—the green meadow, the reeds, the slow blue-winding river, and the eager bending graceful figure upon the white horse—which was the clearest and the dearest image of that England which he had left behind him.

But if Nigel's friends had learned that this was the morning of his leaving, his enemies too were on the alert. The two comrades had just emerged from the Chantry woods and were beginning the ascent of the grassy figure path which leads upward to the old Chapel of the Martyr when with a hiss like an angry snake a long white arrow streaked under Pommers and struck the great bow of the gray figure as he tried to turn; but Aylward struck the great war-horse a sharp blow over the haunches, and it had galloped some hundred yards before the rider could pull it up. Aylward followed as hard as he could ride, bending low over his horse's neck, while arrows whizzed all around him.

"By Saint Paul!" said Nigel, tugging at his bridle and white with anger, "they shall not chase me across the country as though I was a frightened doe. Archer, how dare you to lash my horse when I would have turned and ridden in upon them!"

"It is well that I did so," said Aylward, "or by these ten finger-bones! our journey would have begun and ended on the same day. As I glanced round I saw a dozen of them at the least amongst the brushwood. See now how the light glimmers upon their steel caps yonder in the bracken under the great beech trees. Nay, my friend, my fair lord, do not ride forward. What chance has a man in the open against all these who lie at their ease in the underwood? If you will not take the men of the forest, consider your horse, which would have a cloth-yard shaft feathered in its hide ere it could reach the wood."

Nigel chafed in impotent anger. "Am I to be shot at like a popinjay as a fair, by any reaver or outlaw that seeks a mark for his bow?" he cried.

"By Saint Paul, Aylward, I will put on my harness and go further into the meshes."

"Nay my fair lord, I will not help you to your own downfall. It is a match with clogged dice betwixt a horseman on the moor, and archers amid the forest. But these men do no outlawry or they would not dare to draw their bows within a league of the sheriff of Guildford."

"Indeed, Aylward, I think that you speak truth," said Nigel. "It may be that these are the men of the forest of the Posse of Shalford, whom I have given little cause to love me. Ah! there is indeed the very man himself!"

They sat their horses with their backs to the long slope which leads up to the old chapel on the hill. In front of them was the dark ragged edge of the wood, with a sharp twinkle of steel here and there in its shadows which spoke of these lurking foes. But now there was a long moat upon a horn, and at once a score of russet-clad bowmen ran forward from amid the trees, spreading out into a scattered line and closing swiftly in upon the travelers. In the midst of them upon a great gray horse sat

Britain's New Fleet

London Daily Telegraph: The vast superiority of force with which our navy began the war has already been very greatly increased, in spite of the occasional success of that policy of stealthy attrition which the German Admiralty has adopted as its own. Close upon a score of new fighting ships, from dreadnoughts to mosquito craft, have been commissioned for sea since the war began. We started with a superiority, taking all ships together, of about two to one; our losses, ship for ship, have been fewer than the enemy's; and we have added more fighting strength to our fleet than Germany can by any possibility have added to her own. That is a magnificent, a heartening, record of sea-supremacy, the vital thing on which, though armies on the Continent conquer or fail, the security of this nation and its weight in the war for liberty depend.
