CHAPTER XIII.

Clarence seized the bottle almost affectionately; and taking an empty medicine bottle from the next room, filled it with the vinegar and placed it in his coat pocket. This done, he set to work and at as heartily as he could, drank a good quantity of wine and awaited the evening with the best patience he could command.

Dark brought his jallers, two bottles of wine, the box of dominoes and another of cigars.

"Come," said he, rubbing his hands. "You are welcome. Now for a pleasant evening."

Antoine looked prudent, Jacques grinned.

Clarence drew the table up to the fire, and with a corner of his eyes, watched Antoine lock the great door and put the key in his jacket pocket.

"The left hand top pocket," murmured Clarence, as a thing to be remembered. "There's a draught at that window, so I won't sit under it," said he, seating himself away from the door to deaden any suspicious Antoine might have. "I wish you would try to shut it, one of you, while I tap these bottles."

Both of them got and hauled at the window readily, and Clarence commenced hunting for the corkscrew, which he knew was in his pocket.

"Hem!" said he; "left it in the bedroom, I suppose"—and, bottle in hand, he went in for it. "Ah, here it is," he said, and quickly drew the cork, poured some of the wine out and filled up the bottle with the vinegar.

This done, he sauntered into the room, and, of course, remembered that he had again left the corkscrew in the next room.

Under the same pretense he managed to extract some wine from the second bottle and adulterated the remainder with vinegar.

This done, he came back to his seat, poked the fire, and rubbed his hands with the anticipation of enjoyment.

"And what do we play for? The same stakes?" he asked.

"Move!" said Clarence, sternly and sharply; "and I kill you. Keep your hands down, it is your only chance."

Antoine hesitated for a moment and his eyes rolled savagely. His hands twitched to tear away the bandage, but he could see by the light in the dark eyes above him that such a movement would be the signal for the descent of the deadly bar of iron, and he hesitated.

Clarence seized the moment and skillfully thrust his foot out and threw the great fellow upon the floor; his knees were upon his chest the very second he fell, and his hands were busy trying the sheet round his arms and legs in a knot which he had practiced on himself for two hours.

It was done, so quickly, in half the time it has taken to read the imperfect description of its doing, that Antoine had not time to recover his senses. But helped thereto by the removal of the poker he suddenly gained courage and attempted to rise. Clarence drew back to see the effect of his knot. Alas! for human fallibility, it gave way, and up sprang Antoine, the strong, ready for a struggle.

"Stand clear!" he cried, hoarsely; "or your blood be upon your own head! I am fighting for more than life!"

But Antoine would not listen; with the sheet still clinging to and impeding him he rushed on.

Clarence drew back a step, took deadly aim, and down came the iron with awful force, crushing in the man's temple as his hand actually touched Clarence, and felling him to the ground. Still grasping his weapon, the prisoner knelt down, placed his hand upon the faller's heart, felt it beat, sighed with excited satisfaction, and then, extracting the key from the top left-handed pocket, sprang to the door.

Here a sudden fear—a sudden thought struck him and momentarily paralyzed him. Suppose Jacques had bolted the door on the outside? He had never thought of that. His hand trembled like a child's as it inserted the key in the lock and turned it.

Alas! His fear was a certain truth. Jacques had barred the door, and he was shut in with the blood-stained body of the unfortunate Antoine!

Clarence Clifford had passed through some stirring moments in his eventful life, but he was conscious of a presentiment that none were ever so critical as these. He felt—though why he could not have said—that he was fighting for more than liberty, even for as much as his future happiness.

He waited, with the cold beads of perspiration cropping out upon his forehead, for the heavy footsteps, and, at last, after what seemed an eternity, they came, their owner grumbling still, and blowing with irascible puffs.

Clarence smiled grimly.

"Things have gone hard with the ruffian but they will be going harder directly," he thought, and, slipping back so that the opening door would shield him, stood with the poker uplifted.

Up came Jacques, drew the bolts, kicked the door open and Clarence Clifford's game was nearly lost.

The Futility of Third Parties

The career of the late Senator La Follette of Wisconsin illustrates the futility of third parties in democracies of Anglo-Saxon origin. It seems to be generally admitted that La Follette was honest and sincere in his radical ideas and it will be remembered that just a year ago there was serious alarm lest his third party make such inroads on both the straight Republican and the straight Democratic vote that he would hold the balance of power and force a situation whereby Congress would be compelled to nominate the next President.

La Follette was himself for many years an ardent Republican, and when he became leader of the progressive party he admitted that he had broken away from the habits of a lifetime in coming out as an independent. To an American correspondent of the London Times, shortly before the U. S. elections of November, 1294, he stated that his purpose in standing as a third party nominee for President was to discover by an independent candidature whether there existed a basis for the foundation of such an organization in the United States. It was his intention if he attracted a sufficient number of votes in all sections of the country to form a permanent organization, just as the Republican party was established in the late fifties, and the Democratic party some decades earlier.

Though, after the polling he said he was satisfied with the results, and believed the movement he had launched would develop strength, his optimism was not taken very seriously. His third party failed not merely to live up to his own expectations but to the anticipations of Republican and Democratic campaign managers. Everyone had overestimated the strength of the new movement, perhaps because of the interest in La Follette's own powerful personality. His death rendered the movement, such as it was, headless, and it will probably disappear altogether.

These facts demonstrate once again the immense vitality of the two-party system. This does not mean that a new party may not sometimes take the place of an older one which is in a state of hastening dissolution. What it does mean is that English-speaking democracies are instinctively opposed to the group system in politics and inclined to divide between two outstanding organizations. This instinct is justified by the fact that third parties and minority groups seldom perform a function sufficiently useful to justify their continued existence for more than four or five years. We have had experience of that fact in Canada, where in proportion to our population, third parties have cut a bigger swath during recent years than elsewhere. Any analysis of the situation as it is with us will find the condition which La Follette discovered in his own country last autumn; that there is no basic desire for three parties among the electorate at large.

More Ocean Travel Expected

More than 250,000 Canadians and Americans will travel to Europe this year, breaking the record of 245,592 set in 1913, the heaviest year in the history of Eastbound trans-Atlantic transportation, according to estimates by Montreal steamship officials. French Papers Say Great Britain Will Co-operate—New Commanders of Troops.

PARIS, July 7.—Sharp checks administered to the Rifian invaders by the French in Morocco are reported to have materially relieved the situation in the Taza Region.

And El Krim's followers are said to have been so discouraged by their heavy losses that they made little or no effort to react to the French counter attacks.

The appointment of General Naulin as commander of the French operations in Morocco, came as a surprise. The government had decided on General Guillaumet, head of the troops in the Rhineland, but he declared a change of command there inadvisable at this time and suggested that Naulin be sent to Africa.

General Naulin, although little known to the public, enjoys a high reputation in the profession. He is one of Marshal Foch's pupils and rapidly came to the front during the war.

The French papers say Great Britain is likely to join the Franco-Span-

Some People Have Funny Ideas

What do you think Carnation Milk is like? Do you think it is "thick as molasses in January"? It isn't. Do you think it is syrupy sweet? It isn't. Do you think it has a funny taste? It hasn't. Do you think something is "put in" to make it keep? There isn't. Do you think some of the food value is taken out? It isn't.

Pure Milk in a modern package—that's all

Carnation Milk is just pure milk with part of the natural water content taken out by evaporation. All the food value of full-cream milk is left in. No artificial sweetening or other preservative is added. Each can is hermetically sealed and sterilized to keep its contents pure, sweet, and utterly safe.

Carnation Milk is a great aid to better baking because of its convenience, safety and richness. Always ready for use on your pantry shelf—none is wasted because it keeps sweet for several days when opened. Sold by grocers everywhere—order several tall (16 oz.) cans or by the case of 48 cans.

Inclination to Disrupt Work Will Avert a Strike

Australian Shipping Held Up by a Strike—Cardinal Begin's Condition is Criticized—Canadian Rifle Team Successful at Bisley.

STRIKE AGAINST A STRIKE.
WASHINGTON, July 14. A desire on the part of both employers and miners for disruption of work in the hard coal fields at Bisley, will bring a settlement from the wage negotiations now being held on at Atlantic City, high Government officials, who are closely watching the wage party, declared today.

to hang next Friday for the murder on April 2nd, 1924, of Joseph Maurin, Chicago drug clerk. The State Board of Pardons and Paroles to-night had the case under advisement, and expected finally to determine Scott's fate to-morrow. Unless the Board recommends to Governor Small that he commute the sentence to life imprisonment Scott will be executed Friday for the crime of which he was convicted.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.
TORONTO, July 14. Magistrate J. E. Jones this afternoon committed Andrew H. Peppall for trial on four charges arising out of provincial bond cases in 1920. The Magistrate refused to consider the question of bail referring the defendant to a higher court. In consequence an application will be made to-morrow morning at Osgoode Hall for bail, which has been refused in the police court ever since Peppall was brought back from California, where he fought extradition for over a year. In the regular course of events Peppall will be tried at the Assize opening next September.

L. O. A. Celebration

FRATERNAL GATHERING.

Following the religious ceremonies of Sunday, to which reference was made in Monday's Telegram it was fitting that the Orangemen meet in fraternal convocation on the subsequent day to celebrate in due form the one event which for them forms the culmination of their obligation. And so at 8 o'clock Monday evening a joint communication of the city and joint Lodges was called to order by Worshipful Bro. W. H. Pike, Master of Leeming Lodge, who in well chosen words informed the brethren present of the purpose of the assembly. Tables having been prepared, those present sat down to enjoy the feast of reason and the flow of soul as exemplified in the Toast List, which was as follows:

The King—Prop. Chairman, W. H. Pike, W.M.; resp. God Save the King. The British Empire and Newfoundland—Prop. Bro. R. Hibbs, M.H.A.; resp. Sir R. A. Squires, P.G.M., K.C., M.G.

Mundy's Pond Notes

The bathing pool (?) at Mundy's Pond was well patronized on Sunday last particularly in the afternoon when several young ladies took to the water and displayed their ability as swimmers. One with a male escort swam across the pond then back to the centre where she remained some time before returning to the shore. The pool itself is nicely situated at the head of the pond, and the brushwood in the vicinity affords shelter for dressing and undressing. But oh, you pool! Some people call it sandy bottom, but all the sand must have been removed years ago leaving rocks, mud, and weeds. One would need three-quarter boots to protect his feet from the unclean weapons that lie beneath.

By the number of people who visit the pool it must be a popular bathing resort, and is deserving of more attention from the proper authorities than it is getting. Quid Vidi and Long Pond, each boast of a regularly kept bathing pool, and both are outside the city limits. The greater part of Mundy's Pond is in the city limits, and the condition reflects no credit on the City Council, particularly the portion of the road from LeMarchant Road to the foot of the Pond.

Now, Mr. Government and Mr. Council, give us a half decent road to walk on; a place to bathe in that we may be clean, as we are not blessed with baths in our homes, and a telephone which is the most important in case of emergency.

Obituary

MR. URIAH FRAKEE.
The funeral of Mr. Uriah Frakee took place at Lewisport at 2.00 p.m. on Thursday, July 9th, and was perhaps the most impressive and largely attended funeral ever witnessed in this community. Large numbers of friends came to pay their last tribute of sympathy as he lay in his coffin covered with the touching tribute of beautiful wreaths and flowers. A short service was conducted in the home by the pastor of the church, the Rev. B. Wilkinson.

As the procession left the house, it was most impressive. Headed by the scholars of the Sunday School, there followed a gathering of Freemasons from Botwood, next in order came the members of the Local Orangemen. Then came the coffin, carried by equal numbers of Masons and Orangemen. Immediately following were the family, relatives, and close friends. As they approached the Church, the coffin and chief mourners passed between the lines of Masons and Orangemen, the scene was very marked indeed.

Inside the Church every seat was taken, and the solemn silence was indeed something that will never be forgotten by those who were present. The Church service was conducted jointly by the Pastor and Rev. W. Woodley, who is visiting his home here, prior to taking up his work on the island. The text of the sermon was: "Let not your hearts be troubled" and was preached by the Pastor. It was indeed a very appropriate and forceful sermon, and brought tears to the eyes of all present.

As the cortege was leaving the Church, the Organ poured out the solemn strains of the "Dead March," and its deep meaning was to be seen on every face. After the Pastor had concluded his service, the Rev. W. E. Mercer of Botwood gave the last rites of the Order of Orangemen, and the members dropped their token of sympathy upon the coffin. After them came the Brother, Masons, who filed around the grave and dropped their silent tokens, and thus were paid the last marks of respect so befitting to such a personality.

The deceased was a very prominent and active member in the Church and Sunday School, being Secretary of the school, and a member of the Quarterly Official Board. Great sympathy is felt for the bereaved wife and family, who are left to mourn their loss, and it is to be hoped that God will give them strength to bear up under the heavy load, and that peace may be theirs in the coming years.

"On Thin Ice"

A Strong Crook Play Feature At The Majestic.

Was she guilty of the crime that threatened to engulf her beautiful youth?

Two murderous gangsters; a lovely girl; a thrilling mystery!

A fascinating, devastating expose of Frisco's underworld.

Humiliating bonds tied her to a band of criminals, but

A girl's illusions broken and mended by life's inevitable demands.

A crook story with a novel crook that means thrills!

Adorable youth makes friends even with scheming tricksters.

A marvelous combination of fun, pep and sizzle!

Begins with a rush and ends with a bang!

How far can they skate "On Thin Ice"?

"On Thin Ice" is the screen feature at the Majestic Theatre for the last half of the week, whilst to-day the public will have a last chance to see "What Shall I Do," a feature which is so highly spoken of by the many who saw it on Monday and Tuesday evenings.

C. L. B. Cadets

About 125 all ranks were on duty. The Battalion marched countrywards accompanied by the Bugle Band under their respective regular officers. The Lieut. Colonel and staff very much appreciate financial help voluntarily contributed towards the annual camp expenses of twelve hundred dollars from the following friends:—Messrs. W. N. Gray, E. D. Spurrell, C. O'N. Conroy, C.C.C., Anonymous No. 1, Anonymous No. 2, Rev. Canon Jeeves, M.A., and the Misses Brownings, of "Richmond."

C.E.A. Jeffrey, Wm. Churchill and Joshua Hookey. Thank you all very much. Camp is an expensive item to provide for, but the staff have confidence of receiving further financial help and no doubt it will be forthcoming.

The police authorities have the names to the lads who recently broke the Armoury windows throwing stones. We advise the parents of the lads to arrange payment of the damages promptly with Lieut. W. R. Motley before a summons is issued and the boys brought before the magistrate. The Brigade Armoury rights must be preserved.

Grand Falls Company are despatching a Co. Sergt. Major, one Sergt. and seven Privates to Topsall Camp. The railway will be asked to give excursion rates to all ranks in uniform going to Topsall.

About 150 lads will go from St. John's and Quartermaster Motley last night was busy in conference with the Chief Cook Roberts, calculating quantities of supplies. Orderly officer last night was Lieut. Hubert Rendell, and this week Rev. W. Godfrey of St. Thomas's is duty chaplain.

Lads will parade next Tuesday with kit bags and pay camp fees. The regular parade is cancelled that date. Camp fees are: Privates, $1.50; N.C.O.'s, $2.00; Sergeants and Warrant Officers, $2.50. Lads going for a day only or a part of a day will pay twenty cents. Lads going to Camp must provide bathing suit, off coat or rubber sheet, oil hat, rubbers, knife, fork and spoon, plate, cup or mug, one pair dark blankets, change of underclothing, two pairs of socks, two pairs of boots, needle and thread, overcoat, buttons, clothes brush, brass and boot polish, soap and towel, hair brush and comb, tooth brush and paste and swagser cane. Lads must mark kit bags with name and registered number, and camp fees are to be paid promptly.

Headquarters last night welcomed Capt. C. T. Fitzgerald, M.D. and C.O. of Trinity East-Port Rexton Company, and his father, Dr. C. Fitzgerald of St. Jacques, Fortune Bay. The Colonel and officers were delighted to meet them both. Dr. Fitzgerald (Sr.), we understand, is the oldest practicing physician in Newfoundland—the Dean of the profession and has 55 years of magnificent service as a doctor to his credit. He is 78 years old and still going strong, doing his daily rounds with great credit to himself and the medical profession. In his early days he was surgeon on the ships of the Black Ball Line. His son, Dr. Fitzgerald, is O.C. of the C.L.B. at Trinity. The Trinity East-Port Rexton Company has 61 on the roll, and about 40 more lads ready to join when there is room. Their report for June shows an average attendance of 40. Good work, Doctor!

Bay Roberts Company's contingent for the Topsall front are signing up this week. We are awaiting news from our other companies.

Amongst the officers on duty last night were: Lt.-Col. Walter F. Rendell, C.B.E., Capt. Fred W. Burden, M.O., Lieut. W. Reeves, Assistant Medical Officer, Lieut. W. R. Motley, all in multi; Brigade Major Williams, Capt. P. B. Rendell and Harold Hayward, and Lieuts. Hubert Rendell, Eric Jerrett, with Regt. Sergt. Major E. W. Best.

All friends are reminded we need twelve hundred dollars to provide for ten days camp for over two hundred lads. Carry on, subscribers, carry on!

The Canadian West Indian Agreement

The trade agreement recently made between Canada and the British West Indian Islands is of great importance to us because of the fact that it places this country at a considerable disadvantage in respect to that fish market, and it emphasizes the necessity for more effective methods on the part of the authorities in taking care of our interests in the foreign markets.

The proposal that Newfoundland should be represented at the Conference held at Ottawa to discuss the terms of this agreement did not meet the views of the Canadian Government, and while we may be inclined to regard the attitude of the Dominion in this matter as unneighbourly and regret that we are not a party to the preferential terms that have been agreed upon, we have no just cause to complain, nor can we in reason blame anyone but ourselves for having been left out in the cold.

Our keenest rival in the West Indian market has been and is Canada, and in the competition we are unaware that we have ever shown, or that she has ever expected us to show any particular consideration for her interests on the ground that she is a sister dominion. Canada has her provinces, that like ourselves, make a specialty of the fish business and it naturally follows that the Federal Government must by every possible means assist and encourage that trade. Newfoundland is not a province of the Dominion and has no intention or desire to join the Confederation. She prefers to paddle her own canoe, and in a race with Nova Scotia or any other country must win on the strength that she herself puts into the stroke.

we with a lamentable lack of foresight have rejected! It is possible, in spite of the disadvantageous position in which we are placed by the Canadian-West Indies agreement, that it may prove a blessing in disguise, and it will, if it has the effect of rousing us from our lethargy and making us realize the need for more vigorous action. All things considered, the handicap imposed may not be as serious as it appears at first glance. Let us take stock of our natural advantages, which, as compared with those enjoyed by the fishermen of Nova Scotia, are in many respects infinitely superior, and let us give our undivided attention to the business of developing them to the fullest extent. Then let us see what can be done towards regaining the affection of the West Indian Islands which was once ours, if we had but chosen to accept it. A considerable quantity of their products is marketed in this country, and that quantity could be enormously increased by a reduction in the duties at present imposed. Such an arrangement would be to our mutual advantage, and to the people of this country the obtaining of fruit—to mention but one instance—at a reasonable price would be a great boon. We should be far better employed if we gave more attention to the matter of raising the standard of living of the people in the Island, than in wasting our energy in resentment because it is criticized. Improve the conditions, and we can afford to disregard offensive comments from outside. We may prefer to call the feeling aroused by these remarks righteous indignation, but would it not be near the mark if we admitted that the sting is mainly caused by the consciousness of our own shortcomings?

Workers Object to Isolation By-Law A lightning strike which affected 800 workers at Middlesborough docks has a curious origin.

Several stevedores, in whose households smallpox had occurred, had their houses fumigated and received permission from the health authority to resume work. Because of an old by-law of the railway company at the docks, however, they were told they could not resume work for three weeks.

The men were refused employment benefit and a strike resulted. On learning that the question of the dock was being taken up with the authorities in London, and that negotiations were proceeding with the railway company, the men resumed work. Three fresh cases of smallpox have been notified in Newcastle.

Trial Marriages in Luzon Successful

Trial marriage, at frequent intervals proposed as a panacea for the marriage problem, has been in effect among the Isegs, northernmost of the Igorot peoples of northern Luzon, as far back as their history goes, says the New York Evening Post. With the Isegs it works perfectly. The primary object—indeed the sole object—in marriage among the Isegs is children, and their trial marriage system therefore has the object of avoiding childless marriages. Divorce is a very simple problem. Either husband or wife may decide that the matrimonial bonds are too tight and either has the right to divorce the other without interference. It merely involves the payment of a sum equal to the marriage by the person who desires the divorce, which is completed when the payment is made to the other.

Girl Babies Killed in Food Shortage

Among the Eskimos in the upper Hudson Bay country girl babies are killed by the parents if there is a shortage of food, according to Knud Rasmussen, Arctic explorer. The custom is dictated, he says, entirely by the difficulties of obtaining food for large families. If there is not provender enough, says the explorer, the Eskimos kill the babies immediately after birth by smothering them. If a girl baby, prior to birth, is pledged in marriage the mother will preserve it. If not, the infant is killed. Boy babies have a greater value and are seldom if ever killed.

Germany's exports dwindling

British Exports in June Were More Than Double Those of Her Old Trade Rival—Taxes on Industry and Bourse Quotations. A comparison of German and British trade figures by Lloyd's Bank Monthly for June, shows how un-founded is the popular belief abroad that Germany is doing a flourishing export trade. Germany's exports of all kinds for April totalled £25.6 millions, as against British of £20.9 millions, whilst she has, in comparison with Great Britain, practically no invisible exports now.

The conditions on the Bourse show that the public here thinks of Germany's alleged "prosperity," says a letter from the Bank of British West Africa, Ltd., under date of May 28th. "Practically all industrial undertakings have scaled down their capital to a mere fraction of the cost of erection of their plant and property, so that only a trifling sum would be required to enable them to pay a reasonably dividend. Despite this fact only about 25 per cent. of the shares quoted on the Berlin Bourse now stand at par or better, and prices continue to fall every day. A selling order of Mk. 5,000 now sometimes suffices to send the price of a security down by 2 or 3 per cent. Since the beginning of the month the average shrinkage of prices is about 10 per cent. This process has now been continuous for months. Shipping shares are to-day 30 per cent. lower than on 1st January last.

The popular belief abroad that German industry pays no taxes is also a myth. The Rütgerswerke—a well managed and sound undertaking—passed its dividend and carried forward for last year Mk. 335,000, after paying 2.8 millions in taxes. Mix & Genest, the important telephone manufacturing concern, paid 17c taxes and social contributions in 1913 6.4 per cent. of their productive salary list; in 1924, this item amounted to 110 per cent. of their salary list. Unfortunately the achievement of a budget surplus by such methods of taxation is a direct incentive to spending departments to live up to their name.

The position of industry is not likely to be rendered any easier by the introduction of the proposed agrarian protective duties. Now that the German-National Party is playing a leading role in the Cabinet they are compelled, in order to satisfy their followers, to introduce a scale of high protective duties on grain, flour, and foodstuffs of all kinds, which must shortly have a marked influence on the cost of living, and thus further handicap industry.

On the Hamburg produce market depression also reigns. Difficulties are reported both on the coffee and grain markets. The business of many of the smaller private banks has come to a complete standstill. The Register of Commerce has, during the month, deleted the names of over 180 firms whose registration or existence they do not now consider justified.

AN ODE TO BACKYARDS.

I sing to-day an ode to backyards. I love backyards. I don't mean estates, nor gardens, nor yet farms, nor yet the miserable little pocket handkerchiefs of grass or gravel that have taken the place of backyards behind our two and three family houses.

I mean real backyards, the kind people of 40 and 50 and 60 years old, who were brought up in small towns, used to spend their childhood in. An acquaintance of mine built a house lately. He had half an acre of land. He set his house three quarters of the way back in it because he wanted a lovely front lawn. His place is handsome, I know; they have a pocket handkerchief of formal backyard to play in. That may be landscape gardening, but just the same I feel as if those children had been deprived of their natural birthright.

What A Backyard Should Be.

I love backyards—great big, overgrown, not too well manicured backyards, sprawling and straggling out to meet the alley behind or the backyard of the people in the next street. Front yards may be beautiful but they have no romance in them. Backyards are full of it. For one thing they have spots that are not plainly visible from the street or any window—a sine qua non for the natural living of a child's existence. Then they have ample trees in them with pet seats for each member of the family in their big, friendly, guarded boughs. Maybe there is a hen house or a tool house or a garden house. Maybe there's a hill down which one can coast in winter and roll in summer. Probably there is a whirring for drying clothes, an object that always seemed to me in my childhood to have faint suggestion of adventure about it—a flavor I think I have since traced to its cousinship in my mind with the merry-go-round.

A Cornfield Taking the Part of a Forest.

Perhaps there is a tangled thicket of raspberry bushes, or rows of currant bushes or a small cornfield with its mysterious paths that when one is five can be made to take the part of an impenetrable forest. If one is supremely lucky there might be a barn or a stable, and I once knew a boy who actually had a brook in his backyard. Though not apparently possessed of a high quality of personal magnetism he never lacked for playmates.

I'd Like To Go And Play In It.

"Poetry," says Wordsworth, "is emotion recollected in tranquillity." My ode to the backyards is the result of yesterday's emotion. For the first time in some years I was in a real old-fashioned backyard, a beautiful backyard with a wonderful wisteria vine climbing over an old tumbledown summer house (somehow new shiny things are not so delicious to children as old tumbledown things, perhaps because the children are with reason afraid of the new things); with rows of currant bushes; with overgrown trees that gave one only occasional glimpses of surrounding houses; with grapevine trellises; with a disused hen yard and hen house; with a back fence not on the street but on a street's more romantic cousin, an alley; with little paths through lilac bushes, and with best of all a small old barn still standing. I wonder if it will seem absurd to you that I felt I loved that backyard.

Aunt Lucy who always said: "You love your mother and you like your food," would call that a very strong use of the word. But I refuse to withdraw it.

Now what did the Ragged Rabbit Giant whisper in Uncle John Hare's ear? Goodness me, no sooner have I asked this question, Little Reader, than I smelt it. How should you know? You might guess, of course, and then call me up on the telephone.

"One, two, three, Tinkle Bell, Rail Fence Corner, Clover Dell," which is the telephone number of the little rabbit's house in the dear Old Bramble Patch, and tell me what you thought would happen next. But, just as I was wondering what the old giant did say to Uncle John Hare, Bobbie Redvest lighted on my window sill and, tapping on the pane, sang such a pretty, sweet refrain that I opened the window and asked him in. In a few minutes he told me the Ragged Rabbit Giant's secret. So, here we go, "Remmy," my old typewriter and I, to tell you all about the big man's mysterious whisper.

"You don't say so," exclaimed Uncle John Hare, as the Ragged Rabbit Giant finished. "Goodness me, I am surprised," and he looked at his small bunny nephew busily feeding the Circus Elephant with peanuts. My, how fond they were of each other, especially since the day the little rabbit rode on the big animal's back in the circus and blew pretty colored candies from the cornucopia at all the little boys and girls.

"Yes, I do say so," answered the Ragged Rabbit Giant, straightening up, his head bumping into the treetops, he was so very tall, you see. "Let's call the bunny over and tell him."

"Hey, there, Little Jack Rabbit," shouted Uncle John Hare, "too many peanuts are not good for your big friend. Maybe he's to polite to tell you so. Come over here. I have something to tell you," and taking off his brown derby hat, the old gentleman hunched his head with his left hand as he tried to think of a way to explain the mysterious secret. "The Ragged Rabbit Giant has told me his secret," went on the old gentleman here, as his small nephew cuddled up to him. Meantime, the Circus elephant had gone back into his log cabin and closed the door.

"What is it?" asked the little rabbit, quickly, his pink nose twinkling with curiosity. "Why did the Circus Elephant close the door? Doesn't he want to know the secret?"

"Ha, ha," laughed the Ragged Rabbit Giant so loudly that all the trees began to sway to and fro like the grass on the Sunny Meadow.

"Please stop," twittered a little bird from a branch overhead. "My nest will fall down."

Down he sat right beside the Bunymobile.

"All alright, I'll only smile," answered the good natured giant. "Wouldn't hurt a little feather person, would it?" he asked, turning to the tiny Yellow Bird perched on his shoulder.

"Tell the secret," she twittered, knowing how important the bunny boy was growing. Goodness me, he was so curious that he couldn't keep still. "Well, I might as well sit down and be comfortable," said the Ragged Rabbit Giant. And down he sat right beside the Bunymobile. Stroking his long whiskers with his big hand, he began. But what the secret is, Little Readers, you must wait to hear in the next story.

Fox Ranching in P. E. I.

Fox ranching continued to prosper in Prince Edward Island during the past year, some $3,000,000 being realized from the sale of live foxes and pelts. The desirability of the island's foxes for foundation stock has brought about a heavy demand on the provincial stock and during 1924 shipments were made to Upper Canada, Manitoba, Alberta, British Columbia, Oregon, Washington, France and England.

The Good Old Days

(London Daily Telegraph) Who the fellow was who discovered in the sublime words of the military historian "that gunpowder could best be used for the throwing of balls from tubes," nobody now knows. Some say that he was a Chinaman and some an Arab, and some a German monk, but it is best to believe none of them. What is certain is that the earliest gun which we know anything about was firing six hundred years ago. There is a picture of it at Christ Church. It looks like a water-bottle lying on its side, and is shooting an arrow. The gunner, very wisely, wears armour.

Chinese Take Much Salt From Sea-Water

The salt industry in China is a government monopoly. Salt produced along the coast is bought by the government at specified prices. Over the Yellow Sea and the Gulf of Pechili there is little rain, and atmospheric humidity is so low that natural evaporation goes on rapidly. Sea water in the shallows along the coast is, therefore a concentrated brine which is further evaporated in "salt gardens" by the action of the sun. The water is carried into the gardens by the tide and by the aid of windmills. The yearly Manchurian output of salt from this source averages 150,000,000 bushels.

WEARINESS

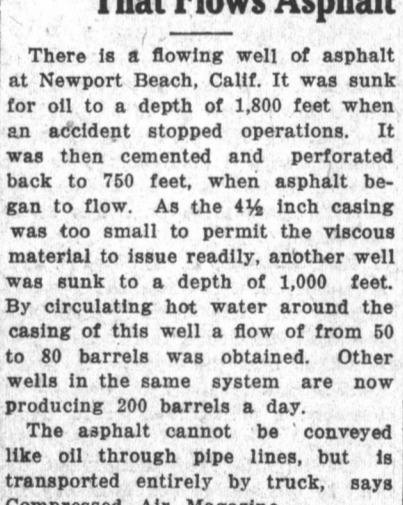

The sun is sinking in the west, where it has always sunk, and now I sit me down to rest, for I am feeling punk. The grievous labors of the day have left me weak and worn, my native pep has oozed away, my ligaments are torn. For digging postholes in the sun is hard on ancient gentles, and when the weary day is done they feel like twenty cents. I am too tired to go to town to see the movie show, or hear a speaker of renowned discourses con and pro. I am too tired to read a tome or wind the phonograph, or gossip with the folks at home, or sing or cuss or laugh. I just infest my easy chair, and close my eyes and think of my nice bed up yonder stair, with mattress green and pink. In half an hour or maybe more, to bed I shall parade, and passers-by will hear me snore like tractors on a grade. No druggist's lotion will I need to bring the restful nap, no aspirin or lotus seed, or poppy's deadly sap. No Dover's powders do I keep, no coke or other dope; my weary bones insure the sleep through which no nightmares lope. Oh, gallant gentles and ladies fair, who view the night with dread, when you seek slumber in despair, and toss around in bed! Go forth and labor till you're tired, so tired you stand aghast, and then the slumber, much desired, will come along at last.

Well of California That Flows Asphalt

There is a flowing well of asphalt at Newport Beach, Calif. It was sunk for oil to a depth of 1,800 feet when an accident stopped operations. It was then cemented and perforated back to 750 feet, when asphalt began to flow. As the 4 1/2 inch casing was too small to permit the viscous material to issue readily, another well was sunk to a depth of 1,000 feet. By circulating hot water around the casing of this well a flow of from 50 to 80 barrels was obtained. Other wells in the same system are now producing 200 barrels a day. The asphalt cannot be conveyed like oil through pipe lines, but is transported entirely by truck, says Compressed Air Magazine.

THE NEW CHRYSLER FOUR

WALTER P. CHRYSLER TELLS ABOUT IT.

Far ahead in power, speed, fuel mileage, beauty; in safety, ease, and complete and perfect roadability. First car of its price with the option of hydraulic four-wheel brakes.

Walter P. Chrysler's manufacturing ability is incontestably proved by the most enthusiastic public endorsement ever given an individual in the motor car industry.

For four years, you have seen Chrysler-created products steadily forging forward to the very forefront of the four and six-cylinder fields.

You have seen Chrysler engineering, Chrysler manufacturing quality and Chrysler value build up to a production of more than 15,000 cars per month.

Every step of that irresistible advance was part of a process in preparation for the production of the new Chrysler Four.

Throughout these four years, Chrysler standards and Chrysler quality have won the most impressive success in motor car history.

A CAR WHOSE ABILITY AMAZES EVEN ENGINEERS

And all of this achievement, all of the fine manufacturing which have made the Chrysler Six such an unprecedented success, served to create an insistent demand for the outstanding Chrysler qualities of engineering supremacy, manufacturing fitness, riding ease and beautiful appearance—and to stimulate the genius of Walter P. Chrysler to produce these same qualities in the lower priced field of the four.

Now, the full Chrysler conception of what a four-cylinder car should be, becomes an actuality.

Briefly summed up, it is our conviction that this Chrysler Four delivers more of power, speed, fuel mileage and charm of appearance than any other four in the world to-day.

Mr. Chrysler's description of the new Chrysler Four is here given at length.

"A good engineer never accepts a fact until he has proved it to be a fact to his own satisfaction." Mr. Chrysler said, "and the engineers who designed the Chrysler Four were themselves amazed at the ease and road ability it displayed in their tests.

"It can and does hold its own on the road with the highest priced; and it can and does leave the ordinary and the average far to the rear.

"It will open any man's eyes at the way it fairly sprouts up and over the long, heavy hills.

"And with Chrysler hydraulic four-wheel brakes, which are optional at a small extra cost, it offers a certainty and a safety that have never before been present in cars of its price.

"In the fewest words, it puts a wholly new interpretation on four-cylinder ability and performance, on riding ease and complete and perfect roadability.

"Like the Chrysler Six, it puts a new interpretation on quality by way of the extensive use of fine and costly alloy steels, and with rigid adherence to the highest of manufacturing standards.

GIRLS BORN 1908 TO 1912 May Need Medicinal Treatment How Two Mothers Helped Their Daughters By Giving Them Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Every mother possesses information of vital importance to her young daughter, and the responsibility for her future largely rests in her hands. When a schoolgirl's thoughts become sluggish, when she suffers the consequences of wet feet, pain, headaches, fainting spells, loss of sleep and appetite, and is irregular—her mother should have a care for her health and give her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which has proved a reliable aid to Nature for just such conditions in many cases.

Had Faith in It

Hamilton, Ontario.—"When I was a young girl I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because my father and mother had faith in it. It had helped mother and it helped me. I took eleven bottles of it then and my Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. Now I am on my third bottle of the later female troubles. I would go two or three months and then have such bearing-down pains they were unbearable. I would have to go to bed and was unable to do my housework. I was weak and would faint at the least little thing I did. My husband got me the first bottle and I was already feeling better in every way. I can do my washing now and before I could not even walk about at that time. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to every woman. For Joy of Good Health

Crandall, Manitoba.—"When I was a young girl at home and working I had terrible pains, almost more than I could bear, and I was not regular. These troubles kept me so tired all the time that I had no strength and no ambition to join in with my friends and have a good time. I was just tired and miserable always and life just seemed as if it wasn't worth living. I saw so much in the papers about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and then I had a friend who had taken it and told me about it—so I got some. Every month after taking it I grew stronger and I soon did not suffer every month. It stopped the pains and helped me other ways. Then when my babies were coming I was tired and worn out the first three months and ached badly. I took the Vegetable Compound right along and must say it was a new woman of me and able to do my work, and it helped me through confinement. You see I am a farmer's wife with a big house to look after and three babies now. I have told ever so many women about your medicine. Just last week I got a letter from my old chum in the East. Her baby was born fifteen days before time and she told me she was not feeling very well, her back ached so much, and that she is going to take the same medicine I took. You can use my letter and I hope some one will be helped by it."—Mrs. JOSEPH H. KING, Box 56, Crandall, Manitoba.

Supreme Court

Nfld. BANKING & TRUST CORP., VS. REID-NFLD. CO., ET AL.

WEDNESDAY, July 8, 1925.

When the Court resumed sitting this afternoon, Mr. W. R. Howley, K.C., Counsel for defendants, continued his address.

SALE OF THE RAILWAY.

MR. HOWLEY (Continued)—My Lord, just at the time of recess, we were dealing with the question of a claim for a commission upon the sale of the Railway to the Government of Newfoundland, and I had tried to point out that a claim for such a commission must necessarily rest on one of two facts: the first being the alleged oral agreement of December, 1919, the alternative being that it was one of the direct incidents of the ultimate Humber Deal. There is nothing in the Plaintiff's statement of claim to indicate clearly upon what basis this claim is made. As I have tried to point out, first, that if it is made on the basis of an alleged oral agreement, it must fall because the oral agreement fails; and secondly, that even if the oral agreement be held to have ever existed, it must fail because there is no evidence to show that the Trust was instrumental in bringing about the sale of the Railway to the Government; and thirdly, that if it is based upon the oral agreement, the sale, whether made through the instrumentality of the Trust or not, is subject to a commission of ten per cent. under the clause which states that the Reid-Newfoundland Co. appointed the Trust its sole agents in Europe, it must fail, because that sale was not effected in Europe.

The other alternative with regard to the claim for a commission on the sale of the Railway is that it is based upon the dealings with the Humber, and is part of the outcome of the dealings with the Humber with which the Trust is connected and on which the Trust is entitled, or claims to be entitled to commission; and that it is so directly a part of that transaction as to involve a liability to pay the commission to the Plaintiff; and in connection with the consideration of that view, I feel that it might be more convenient to defer my argument on that point until we have dealt with the question of the rights, if any, of the Trust with regard to the Humber; and I therefore propose to now proceed to deal with the question of the Humber.

THE QUESTION OF THE HUMBER.

It would appear from the correspondence and the evidence that the idea of a deal in connection with the Humber originated with the first conversations between Mr. Thomson and Mr. Reid in Montreal in the winter of 1918-19, and then when Mr. Thomson went over to England in the Spring of 1919, that the matter above all others that had advanced to the stage of having his serious consideration in introduction to capital was the Humber scheme, or as in its early stages, we might say it was referred to as the fixation of nitrogen scheme.

Your Lordship will recollect that the correspondence shows a variety of references to the possibility of interesting capital in this Humber scheme. In a general, vague way, all the letters of 1919 from time to time refer to the fact that someone, or some group who were supposed to be of financial importance had had the Humber scheme, in some form or other, mentioned to them; but, if I might use an expression that has occurred frequently in some of this correspondence, the Humber scheme does not appear to have "crystallized" until we came into contact with Blakstad, or until the Trust came into contact with Blakstad.

Incidentally, prior to the meeting with Blakstad, we have the position that in so far as the Trust is related to the Humber scheme, or to the defendants, Reid-Newfoundland Co., and its associate companies, we have reference to it in a letter from Mr. Thomson to Major MacDonald, written on November 5th, 1919. In that letter the first matter dealt with is the nitrogen fixation. He says:—"Dear Sirs.—Relative to prices and options upon the various properties in Newfoundland owned or controlled by Mr. Reid and his associates, the following is the situation: Nitrogen Fixation: Detailed surveys and plans and estimates . . . have been made on the various water powers . . . These reports are contained in the two volumes herewith . . . options can be secured on these . . . etc."

That is what Mr. Thomson wrote to the Trust on the 5th November, 1919, with reference to the Humber scheme, and on the 31st December, 1919, the Directors of the Trust report to the statutory meeting, embodying that letter, and making the following comment on the nitrogen fixation proposition at the bottom of page three of the report: "As is well known the demand throughout the agricultural world . . . etc."

Now, my Lord, at this period it is evident that Mr. Thomson's letter to the Trust of November 15th, 1919, was in some respects, at any rate in respect of some of the properties mentioned, including this fixation of nitrogen, not an option so much as an undertaking to give an option; and that it was made out by the language of the Trust directors to the shareholders holders that I have just quoted, as indicating the terms on which options can be obtained by the Trust; and at that time, it is worthy of note that the Humber scheme as such was apparently confined to the idea of the development of this fixation of nitrogen proposition.

You do not require sugar in Coffee or Cocoa when you use Purity. It is rich, pure milk with sugar added.

Then, my Lord, following this report of December 31st, the next item with which we are concerned is the letter of No. 45, J. A. McD. 236, written by Mr. Reid to the Trust on the 15th January, 1920, and says:—"Dear Sirs.—Relative to the project 'for Fixation of Nitrogen' in Newfoundland. The Newfoundland Products Corporation, Limited, own water powers, land and privileges in Newfoundland, which properties are covered in the reports upon this Corporation by Joseph H. Wallace & Co., of New York, and which reports you 'have copies of. When the question 'is decided upon as to which of the 'water powers will be selected we 'are prepared to give you an option 'subject to prior sale upon them as 'well as plant sites and other facilities that may be required for the development of the project at prices 'and terms to be arranged when the 'scheme is further advanced.' (J. A. McD. 236)

And on the 21st January the Plaintiffs reply to that letter in No. 52, which is J. A. McD. 238, as follows:—"Dear Sirs.—Relative to the project 'for Fixation of Nitrogen' in Newfoundland. The Newfoundland Products Corporation, Limited, own water powers, land and privileges in Newfoundland, which properties are covered in the reports upon this Corporation by Joseph H. Wallace & Co., of New York, and which reports you 'have copies of. When the question 'is decided upon as to which of the 'water powers will be selected we 'are prepared to give you an option 'subject to prior sale upon them as 'well as plant sites and other facilities that may be required for the development of the project at prices 'and terms to be arranged when the 'scheme is further advanced.' (J. A. McD. 238)

"We beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 5th instant, in which you state that you are prepared to grant us options on Water powers, Plant Site, and other Facilities that may be required for the development of the project at prices and terms to be arranged when the scheme is further advanced."

Now, the first point that I would like to make about that is this: even if your Lordship should be satisfied that the oral agreement of December, 1919, had been made had been agreed to by the Reid on the terms set forth in the amended paragraph 2 of the amended Statement of Claim, here was a distinct and independent proposal and acceptance with regard to the Humber scheme which took it out of the limits of the oral agreement of December, 1919, and placed it in a class by itself; and if you are satisfied that the oral agreement was made at all, and made in the terms alleged by the Plaintiffs, then here we have, some weeks after the making of this oral agreement, a new proposition of a different character from the terms of the oral agreement, made by the Reid and accepted by the Plaintiffs; so that, irrespective of the fact as to whether or not there was such an oral agreement as alleged in January, 1920, the position was that in so far as the Humber scheme, which then was merely the fixation of nitrogen proposition, was concerned, it was excepted from the terms of the oral agreement, and made the subject of a special arrangement, as is set forth in our letter of January 6th, and the Plaintiff's reply of January 15th.

The next step in conjunction with the Humber development was on February 6th, 1920, in message number 53 in the book, and marked J. A. McD. 239, sent to Congress, London, from Reid in Montreal on February 6th, 1920:

J. A. McD. 239.

"Consider best policy you proceed 'nitrogen and Humber pulp proposition combined stop British concern 'anticipates enlisting support on return stop letter follows."

Here we reach the stage where the Humber proposition involves the pulp development as well as the fixation of nitrogen; and from that date, the dealings with the Humber as involving a pulp proposition commence.

Now, I take the position that, irrespective of Mr. Thomson's letter of November 5th, 1919, and irrespective of the making or otherwise of the oral agreement of December, 1919, that we must treat with the Humber proposition as from this date in January, 1920, on the terms contained in those two letters of January 6th, and 15th; and there is no change in that position until we reach the minute of August, 1920; so that all that was done in connection with the Humber proposition up to the 14th August, 1920, was done on this understanding of an option to be given to the Trust by the Reid interests upon terms, and at a price to be settled when the scheme was further advanced, and the method of remuneration of the Trust for any services which they might perform in connection with the Humber proposition is not expressly set forth, and the only way in which we can get it is from a consideration of the letter of November 5th, and these letters of January, and I do not think that it is open to any more to any other than the one conclusion—that the Trust at this time and for this purpose was a large corporation proceeding to the sale and realization of the property which they were able to hold at a definite price, and on which they were to make a profit on resale; and that was the position with regard to the Humber down to August 14th, 1920, and everything that was done in connection with the Humber down to that date must be considered as being done on these conditions and no other.

The Home & Overseas Trading Trust, Ltd.

Now, my Lord, apparently Blakstad became injected into these negotiations some time in March, 1920. Referring to 59 which is W. H. G. 13, we see that on 10th March, 1920, Greenwood wrote Blakstad:

"Dear Sir.—We sent you the following telegram to-day:—Blakstad 41 'Karl Johans Gate Christiania desirous discussing important business matters with you. When will you be in London. Home and Overseas Trading Trust Ltd."

Now my Lord, there is one point that strikes me, and I think it is worthy of mention, and it is this. The Home and Overseas Trading Trust, Ltd., is a young corporation, that came into existence on October 1st, 1919, that had not up to this time, March 10th, 1920, so distinguished itself in financial circles as to have achieved an international reputation; and on the 10th March, 1920, it telegraphs Blakstad: "Desirous of discussing important business matters with you. When will you be in London"; and it appears to me that that is not the message that a corporation known to Blakstad would send. Naturally when Blakstad got that message, he would say to himself: "Who is this Home and Overseas Trading Trust, Ltd. I have never heard of them. What do they have to do with me? and Blakstad, we are told is a great big firm in Norway and generally in Europe; and it is to be assumed that, naturally when Blakstad got this message he would ask himself: who this Home and Overseas Trading Trust was (what they were, and he would ask himself, what is their address, to which I shall send my reply message; but in addition to that, my Lord, here is this letter No. 59.

"In the interests of our clients we are desirous of discussing with you certain phases of the fixation of nitrogen from the atmosphere, with which we are informed you are conversant. We would like to know whether you are returning to London shortly, or if not we might consider it advisable for us to get to you where you are, and discuss this matter, if it is agreeable to you. We will be pleased to hear from you."

Now, my Lord, there is nothing to indicate in this letter who Greenwood is, there is nothing in this letter to indicate to Blakstad who "our clients" are that are referred to, there is nothing in this letter what the nature of the proposition which we are desirous of discussing with you, beyond that it is concerned with "certain phases of the fixation of nitrogen from the atmosphere." And strange to say, although this telegram was sent on March 10th, 1920, and although this letter was written to him on the same day, and the Plaintiffs in

Sensible Women Prefer Sunlight Soap

A half bar of Sunlight Soap which costs about 8 cents, will wash your clothes cleaner than a bar of inferior soap which costs 9 to 10 cents.

The half bar of Sunlight Soap weighs only 6 ounces, but it is ALL pure soap. The bar of inferior soap may weigh 10 ounces, but it is NOT pure soap.

As it is soap which cleans, one should buy Sunlight Soap, which is ALL pure soap, therefore best and most economical.

A half pound of good tea costs 40 cents, but you may buy twice as much inferior tea for the same money. Yet everybody prefers the good tea.

This action thought fit to disclose this letter and this telegram as relevant to the issues involved in this case, we have not here any record of Blakstad's reply, if he made one at all.

What I wish to point out is that I think we must conclude from this letter that the Home and Overseas Trading Trust, Ltd., or Greenwood, or his associates in the Home and Overseas Trading Trust must have had some previous acquaintance with Blakstad, and that when this message went to Blakstad on the 10th March, 1920, it must have conveyed something to him. He must have had some information which would enable him to know what the Home and Overseas Trading Trust was, and who controlled it and directed its affairs.

made on January 5th, 1920 and accepted on January 21st, 1921.

Incidentally to the point that I have just been trying to make as to the previous acquaintance with Blakstad, and as to the absence of any reply from Blakstad to that message and letter of March 10th, if your lordship will refer to No. 69, W.H.G. 17, we find that on the 3rd July, 1920, the next mention of Blakstad we get after March 10th, when that letter and telegram were sent, we see that on the 3rd June, 1920, "R.G.", that is Mr. R. G. Reid, "gave a luncheon to-day to R. Blakstad and Dr. J. A. Harker at which J. A. MacDonald and myself were present. The reason of the meeting was to get from Mr. R. Blakstad his opinion on the Humber Valley big scheme. We had left with him some weeks ago the Wallace reports and had had from him the declaration that after reading these reports he was greatly interested in the scheme."

It seems to me that it would have been very much more satisfactory to all concerned in this case, if we had some information by correspondence or verbal evidence or some other information which would enable us to fill the gap existing between the first mention of Blakstad in March, 1920, and the date upon which we had left with him the Wallace reports.

MR. EMERSON—If you wanted that information do you not think that you might have asked your own witness Mr. R. G. Reid, who was in London at that time?

MR. HOWLEY—I think that we might have asked a lot of things that we did not ask, but we are not bringing the claim into court, and I think that if my learned friend is here to make this claim against us, and to ask your lordship to adjudicate in his favor, that he would have been interested in bringing the fullest and most complete account of the matter before the Court.

MR. EMERSON—So we have. We have brought the evidence that we consider material; and if you consider that this point was material, why did you not ask your own witness about it when he was in the box?

MR. HOWLEY—I submit that here are the Plaintiffs who have considered it material to show us this letter of March 10th, and this telegram of March 10th, and now apparently they do not consider it material to show us anything else.

MR. EMERSON—You have not shown that we have anything else to show.

MR. HOWLEY—No, I do not know whether you have or not.

MR. EMERSON—Then you have no right to suggest that there is.

MR. HOWLEY—I say I do not know whether the Plaintiffs have anything else to show, but if there is, that it is not considered it material to show it, and that if there is not, it is more remarkable to find out how Blakstad got into touch with the Trust, and got the reports from them.

MR. EMERSON—He probably got them from R. G. Reid.

MR. HOWLEY—Mr. R. G. Reid does not know anything about the matter—MR. EMERSON—He gave a luncheon to Mr. Blakstad.

MR. HOWLEY—Yes, he gave them a luncheon on the 3rd June. There is no suggestion that R. G. Reid met Blakstad before the 3rd June, but there is the suggestion here from this letter that he did meet him on the 23rd June; and from the 10th March, when that first communication was sent to Blakstad, we have a complete gap; a gap, my lord, which has not been accounted for by the suggestion that there were no letters or telegrams—I do not say that there was any correspondence or telegrams—I do not know; but if there was any correspondence then there must have been some verbal communication, there must have been some communication between the Trust and Blakstad, and even if that was not an irresistible inference from the facts, there is a statement here in the letter: "We had left with him some weeks ago the Wallace reports, and had had from him the declaration that after reading these reports he was greatly interested in the scheme."

Between this time, June 3rd, when Blakstad's name appears before the footlights for the second time, down to the visit of Major MacDonald to Newfoundland in August of 1920, we have a number of telegrams and letters dealing with the proposed negotiations for the Humber proposition. In this letter of Mr. Greenwood's, after telling us of this luncheon, and of the reason for the meeting, Greenwood goes on to say:

"While we had suggested that perhaps his interest might result in his making a proposal to us to join the scheme or in asking us to make a proposal to him, yet our negotiations with him had not and have not reached that stage at the moment, though at our next meeting this point may be up for decision."

Then he goes on and gives us an account of Mr. Blakstad, who he is and what he has done, and then he goes on to say:

"He declares that the Humber scheme is similar to the one he has so successfully developed in Norway and that conditions in Norway and Newfoundland are not dissimilar. . . . In brief his idea is that a holding Company should be formed to embrace all the assets of the scheme. . . . What is needed is definite information regarding construction costs in Newfoundland; costs of material and labor. He is apparently prepared to consider our invitation to visit Newfoundland in August and September and look over the project on the spot. . . . He suggests that a statement in detail regarding the scheme be prepared and draft scheme decided upon. The Trust has been working on this, as you know, for some weeks. . . ."

Well, my lord, I submit that this is the first information that we have that the Trust has been working on anything of this sort for some weeks, and I fail to comprehend whether or not that the Trust . . . that this means that the Trust has been working on Blakstad's suggestions for some weeks, or that they now, on the 3rd June, ascertain what Blakstad's suggestions are, and they find that they are identical with the lines that they have been considering themselves. However, they go on to say:

"It is now suggested by the Trust, and this is the view of Mr. Blakstad, that you, as the owner of the assets of the proposed project, should consider the advisability of taking bonds, or preference shares or common shares or some of all as full payment for your interest. This would materially aid in the financing of the scheme which will be a heavy proposal involving £10,000,000, of course not all to be issued at once. The scheme will take years to complete as a finished industrial enterprise and must be big enough financially to carry itself till it produces a profit."

And then down below he says:

"Furthermore, we suggest that you ask Mr. Powell to prepare a schedule of construction, costs of labour and material applicable to the scheme, which we could place in Mr. Blakstad's hands to guide him in estimating the cost of construction. Beyond a doubt, the investigations so far made by the Trust, prove that the Humber Valley project is feasible and will be commercially profitable if properly managed and organized and amplified as herein indicated. The danger is that we may inadvertently over load it at its inception and jeopardize its success by our impatience to get something out of it quickly."

Then, my lord, there follows a number of letters and telegrams with regard to the terms upon which an arrangement may be made.

To dispose of the Humber Property and provide for its development, and I would like to draw your lordship's attention to the fact that in all these letters and telegrams Blakstad is the central figure; Blakstad stands out as the wizard who is going to perform all these miracles in connection with the development of the Humber. Now and then, we have a reference to "the Humber Group"; but I think it has been admitted and it is abundantly evident that every reference to Blakstad and his associates, and every reference to the Humber Group mean, more or less, Blakstad; and when they refer to his associates, they mean Blakstad's intimate personal associates, and do not mean, and never meant any outside concerns, such as the Armstrong Whitworth Company.

If your lordship will look at No. 78, which is J.A.M.C.D. 248, written by Major MacDonald to Mr. H. D. Reid as late as on July 1st, 1920, you will be able to get some information which will direct you in ascertaining who were referred to as "Blakstad and his associates," and who were referred to as "the Humber Group." This letter begins:

J.A.M.C.D. 248.
Humber Valley Area.

"Dear Mr. Reid,—As you have been steadily working away for months in an endeavour to crystallize a scheme for the sale and proper development of the water power and other natural resources contained in this area."

This letter was written on the 1st July, and if they had been working on this scheme for some months, than I take it that that must mean that they had been in touch with Blakstad prior to that date of the 3rd June, when Mr. R. G. Reid gave the luncheon. He goes on to say:

"You will have seen from our cable of the 24th June that the efforts of all in the Trust have borne fruit to the point of receiving an offer on 'what appears to us as satisfactory.' Then follows the cable. Now, my lord, this is a cable having reference to an option to Blakstad. This is a cable from the Trust, who at this time are interested in this property in accordance with the terms of the letters of January 5th and January 21st, 1920, and at that time there is no doubt that the idea which the Reid Nfld. Co. had in its mind was that the Trust was going to make a resale to Blakstad and his associates of the properties upon which it had been agreed to give them options in January. Then you will notice the reply to that cable:

"What is the capital of the Company to be, etc."

To which the Trust replied:

"Humber Group consider price excessive, etc."

Who is the Humber Group I think, my lord, that something on the top of the following page will explain that. He says:

"The last cable was sent after a lengthy interview with Messrs Percy Tarbutt, Blakstad and Stanford. They explained that the matter had received weeks of careful consideration and prices generally in Newfoundland, Scandinavia and America compared."

This, my lord, was written on the 1st July, and this Blakstad groups, who apparently were met for the first time on June 3rd, explain that they have given weeks of careful consideration to this whole scheme. Then he says:

"It is evident to us that they had made up their minds to go into the scheme if the price was within what they considered reasonable limits. We gathered that they had gone a considerable distance in selling their scheme of finance and were actually arranging for experts and engineers to proceed immediately to Humber Valley on the signing of an option."

"It is Mr. Blakstad's intention to go to Newfoundland on the signing of an option and would like me to await this departure and go together. This I will do if negotiations do not extend indefinitely."

HON. MR. JUSTICE KENT—That letter is from the Trust?

MR. HOWLEY—Yes.

HON. MR. JUSTICE KENT—Was there any option at that time given to the Trust?

MR. HOWLEY—No, at this time there was merely an agreement to give an option to the Trust at "prices and terms to be arranged when the scheme is further advanced," and here we have them at this time asking them to settle the price.

HON. MR. JUSTICE KENT—That would be some arrangement between Reid and the Trust.

MR. HOWLEY—The arrangement between the Reids and the Trust is the arrangement contained in the letters of January 5th and 21st.

HON. MR. JUSTICE KENT—There was no term of any option fixed by that?

MR. HOWLEY—There was an understanding to give an option, as it says, "at prices and terms to be settled when the scheme is further advanced"; and now the scheme is further advanced, and they come back to the Reids asking for prices.

HON. MR. JUSTICE KENT—But the matter that they are considering now is an option to Blakstad. There must have been some intermediate arrangement between the Reids and the Trust.

MR. HOWLEY—Apparently, my lord, there was not—there was no progress made.

HON. MR. JUSTICE KENT—Does not the fact that they are talking about an option to Blakstad materially affect your argument?

MR. HOWLEY—No, my lord, I do not think so.

HON. MR. JUSTICE KENT—The basis of your argument, as I take it, is this: that the remuneration of the Trust on this transaction as it stood at this date would be the profit on resale.

A—Yes, my lord. If I might refer back to that letter of January 5th, and incidentally the letter of January 5th in many respects is in the same terms as Mr. Thomson's letter of November 5th. Thomson's letter of November 5th in relation to the fixation of nitrogen says: (Reads). Then Reid's letter of January 5th says:

"When the question is decided upon as to which of the water powers will be selected we are prepared to give you an option subject to prior sale upon them as well as plant site and other facilities that may be required for the development of the project at prices and terms to be arranged when the scheme is further advanced."

That is just roughly 14 days after the alleged oral agreement. But the scheme is not "further advanced" down to June 3 apparently. On June 3 we get this letter W.H.G. 17, which tells us of the meeting with Blakstad, and of the plans that Blakstad has outlined, in a general way; and then he says in this letter:

"It is now suggested by the Trust, and this is the view of Mr. Blakstad, that you, as the owner of the assets of the proposed project, should consider the advisability of taking bonds, or preference shares or common shares or some of all, as full payment for your interest. This would materially aid in the financing of the scheme which will be a heavy proposal involving possibly £10,000,000—of course, not all to be issued at once. The scheme will take years to complete as a financial industrial enterprise. . . ."

HON. MR. JUSTICE KENT—That would be done in Blakstad's name?

MR. HOWLEY—Yes. Then on the 18th June, No. 70 J. A. M.C.D. 242, comes this message from the Trust, to Egry Reid, St. John's:

"Egry Islands Can you quote price cash, the remainder in shares you will accept for all interests there including pulp and water power stop Subject to offering Rothermere pulp according to promise stop We may have a chance disposing whole property cash and share basis stop Also state additional price you want for Hamilton Inlet timber and water rights." (To be continued).

Just Folks.

By EDGAR GUEST.

GRACE AT EVENING.

For all the beauties of the day. The innocence of childhood's play. For health and strength and laughter sweet. Dear Lord, our thanks we now repeat.

For this our daily gift of food. We offer now our gratitude. For all the blessings we have known. Our debt of gratefulness we own.

Here at the table now we pray. Keep us together through the day. May this, our family circle, be held fast by love and unity.

Grant, when the shades of night shall fall, Sweet be the dreams of one and all; And when another day shall break Unto Thy service may we wake.

The Romance of Racing

HORSES THAT HAVE MADE FORGETTUNES.

(Mr. J. BARR-LINNEY, in Glasgow Weekly).

There are few more interesting chapters in the history of the Turf than that which tells the story of Tattersall's world-famous auction-mart, which has been the Mecca of horse-lovers from all parts of the earth since the far-away days of "Farmer" George; and, unlike most of its chapters, it is practically unknown to the present generation of sportsmen.

It was as long ago as 1766 that Richard Tattersall, training-groom to the last Duke of Kingston, conceived the idea of opening an auction-mart where sales of horses could be regularly held and where sportsmen could meet and discuss their favorite topics; and with the financial help of Lord Grosvenor he soon had suitable premises built on the site on which Grosvenor Crescent now stands.

From its opening day Richard Tattersall's venture was an unqualified success. His sterling qualities commanded universal respect, while he had the valuable gift of making personal friends of his most distinguished supporters. Charles James Fox, who was one of "Old Tat's" greatest admirers, always spoke of him as "my dear old friend"; and few weeks passed which did not see him hobnobbing and cracking his jokes with one or two royal princes.

So successful was his early sales of horses that Tattersall decided to increase his venture by holding also sales of hounds and sporting-dogs. Here again he scored a great hit; and country squires and masters of hounds, who in a general way came to town but rarely, now willingly put themselves to the inconvenience of a long and wearisome journey by stage coach solely in order to patronize "Old Tat's" sales, while a still further development came when he started sales at Newmarket, which were even better attended than those in London.

A shrewd, far-seeing man was this first of the Tattersalls, as is proved by the following story: Hearing that the stud of a Scottish nobleman were to be sold by auction in a few days' time, he took the coach, without mentioning his errand to a soul, and, travelling day and night, reached his distant destination on the very eve of the sale. On inspecting the horses, he quickly saw that there were some treasures among them; but, alas! his available capital was too small to secure many of them. Luckily he chanced to meet a wealthy man of his acquaintance, and to him he made this proposal: "If you will find half the capital to pay for the whole of this stud, I will find the other half and the skill. We are in for a good thing." The offer was accepted, and Richard Tattersall was thus able to secure for himself and his partner every animal in the stables.

What an excellent bargain he made is proved by one fact alone—that among the horses sold was Highflyer, the famous son of Herod, and sire of Sir Peter, a horse which never knew defeat. This prize he secured for 2,500 guineas; and, in later years, he confessed that he had cleared £25,000 out of him! By the time "Old Tat's" son succeeded him the fame of Tattersall's had spread all over Europe, and it had become the chief medium for traffic in racehorses and hounds not only with all parts of England, but with most of the countries of Europe and as far afield as America and the West Indies; and each succeeding generation had added to its fame and popularity.

In 1865 the great auction-mart was transferred from Grosvenor Place to a site at the junction of the Brompton Road with the main road through Knightsbridge, near the Albert Gate—commonly known as "The Corner"—where it entered on a continued career of prosperity.

The new premises largely followed the lines of the old, with the subscription-room and counting-houses on the right of the entrance; a circular dome structure in the centre, standing on four Corinthian columns and surmounted by the bust of the fourth George, as shrine for the ancient pump, the yard being surrounded by stabling for the horses and galleries for carriages offered for sale.

Not very many years ago, it is interesting to recall, the site to which Tattersall's was removed was a village green, with its maypole, around which the lads and lasses used to make merry; and there may be some living who can remember the watch-houses and the pound which stood close by, and to which Addison refers in the Spectator.

If it were only possible to write a full history of Tattersall's the chronicle would be one of extraordinary interest; it would, in fact, be an epitome of the history of the British Turf for little short of a century and a half.

"Nearly every great sale of horses during the past century, has been in our hands," says Mr. Somerville Tattersall—a fact which in itself is eloquent of a whole world of romance. Among the most famous racehorses which have passed through their hands, was Meddler, who fetched the then enormous sum of 14,500 guineas; and seldom has there been seen, even at Tattersall's such excitement as marked this sale. The bidding was followed by the onlookers with bated breath. Scarcely a soul stirred as the price mounted higher and higher; and when at last the horse was knocked down, the tense and highly- wrought feelings of the spectators found vent in a general sigh of relief.

La Fleche, as filly, was sold (to Baron Hirsch) for 5,500 guineas, and as a brood mare for 12,600 guineas; Blair Athol fetched 12,500 as a stallion; Busybody and Harvester realized 8,800 and 8,600 guineas respectively; and Galopin, as a stallion, brought 8,000 guineas.

So the long list of famous "lots" and record prices runs on, until one ceases to marvel even at the fabulous sum of £230,000 for which Tattersall purchased the great Ormonds from Don Juan Bocan, for Mr. McDonough. Of them all, probably the two cheapest horses ever sold by Tattersall were Galopin and St. Simon—the former of which went for 8,000 guineas, and the latter, as a two-year old, for 1,600 guineas. Since then these two horses have brought their lucky owners many thousands a year; and St. Simon, who was never beaten as a two and three-year-old, proved to be the most successful sire in England.

When Mr. Somerville Tattersall was asked who is the quickest bidder he has known, he answered unhesitatingly, "Captain Macchell. He is generally able to silence his opponents," he said. "If a horse starts with a bid of a hundred guineas, and the captain is present and wants the animal, he bids two hundred. And thus he goes on until he has scared off his opponents by the hugeness of his bids, the ordinary bidder being usually content with bidding, ten, twenty or fifty pounds."

But even Captain Macchell once found more than his match, when None the Wiser was put up for sale at Newmarket. After the Captain had run up the price by hundreds at a time, Lord Ellesmere stepped in and completely took his breath away by sensational bids which carried the price quickly to 7,200 guineas, at which figure his Lordship secured the filly.

Of the most remarkable bidders ever known at the Corner, Mr. Harry Tattersall tells the following amusing story: "Some time ago I was selling in the yard when a gentleman came to the front near the rostrum, and began to bid in a most energetic way. His bids were generous to a degree, and we were all pleased at his total disregard for proportion. At last a horse was knocked down to him. When he went into the office to pay his deposit, we found he was stark, staring mad. As a result, we had to put the horse up again."

How Kipling Got Slang and Lingo

How Rudyard Kipling "crammed" the technical slang and lingo of soldiers, railwaymen and engineers, which figure in so many of his poems and short stories, has been revealed by S. F. McLean, a secondhand book dealer, or Pasadena, California.

It was when he had a shop in New York that Mr. McLean one day had a call from a stranger, who, to have some books forwarded, wrote down his name and address, "Rudyard Kipling, Brattleboro, Vermont."

The sequel is told by Mr. McLean: Not long afterward, I received a letter from Mr. Kipling, asking me to submit to him information about all the books that I could get on the subject of shipbuilding, railroad construction, tunnel-boring, surveying, labor unions, and kindred activities. I made up a comprehensive list, from which he culled a goodly order. When the books arrived he promptly acknowledged their receipt in a short, cordial letter, and asked for more.

During a period of twelve months I sold him a very large number of technical books. I often wondered what interest such an author as Mr. Kipling
