BUILDING LOTS .- We direct attention to the advertisement of the sale of build-ing lots belonging to the Venerable Archdeacon Palmer, which takes place on Thursday first at 2 o'clock. These lots are situated in one of the healthiest and most pleasant parts of the town, and in a locality where a great many improve ments are going on. Those who wish to get an excellent lot at a reasonable price ought not to miss this opportunity of securing one, for such an opportunity does not occur every day

Accident .- A boy named Jas. Thompon, son of Mr. Edward Thompson, 5th oncession Garafraxa, met with a sad accident on the 2nd inst. The boy was in the employment of Mr. Burns, 4th ncession, and after whetting his axe went out to the bush to chop. He was standing on a log, in the act of cutting a branch over head, when his foot slipped, and he fell on his face, the axe con down on his neck, making a fearful gash, and cutting several of the tendons Burns happening to be near at the time, went to his assistance immediately, but he had a very difficult job in staunching

They bound each conspirator to commit murder as well as robbery. They also stipulated that if any of the conspirators were wounded in the affair, so as to be unable to get away, his companions were to kill him, and thus put it out of his power to inform against them. It was also agreed that, if there were more than the usual number of persons on the train, the conspirators were to fire upon and kill them just as the train was reaching the place where it was to be wrecked. The details of the whole affair were set forth in the most concise and distinct manner, and the spoils were duly apportioned in advance. One of the conspirators became frightened at the contemplated crimes, and gave information which led to the arrest of all but two of the gullty parties, and as wholesale murder and robbery was thus prevented.

his description was given in the Rich-nond-st. Wesleyan Church, Toronto, on Friday morning last, to the Rev. George Young, Toronto; Rev. E. R. Young, of Hamilton; Rev. The latter has been engaged for many years in christianizing the savages of the North-west, and came down here recently for the purpose of procuring assistance. The building was crowded to excess, and numbers had to go away for want of even standing room. Rev. Mr. Elliott, of Hamilton, occupied the chair, and in opening the evening's proceedings referred to the missionary work, and to the object of the services The meeting was also addressed by the Rev. A DISTRESSING CASE.—A few days ago says the Ottawa Times, a person from New Edinburgh, applied to Mr. Langrell, as a Justice of Peace for the county, under the following circumstances: this wife had been laboring under mental aberration for the last two years, and at great sacrifice of comfort and expense, he had kept his trouble from the world by having her taken care of at home, but on Monday she became unmanageable, and in one of her frenzied moments had tried to cut the tongue of her child. Since then her madness has manifested itself in other acts, of a nature to render it unsafe to keep her longer at home, and an application was made to get her admitted to prison, but it was not granted, and she was returned home.

is start, now in custody, and who is a married man placed, a girl named a Jane Scape in a house of assignation, and that Whalen, Egleson and other parties whose names are known to the authorities, frequented the establishment. Mrs. Brown, who keeps the house, has been ordered to leave the town or go to gao! for three months. These and other facts elicited, seem to justify the authorities in their refusal to accede to the request made for the release of Starr. Some other very important testimony was elicited but it is not considered advisable to publish it at present. It may be stated, however, that the authorities are getting at the root of whatever may have been worthy of the name of a Fenian organization in this country.

The tablet inserted in the wall of the Desbarats block to commemorate the death of Mr. McGee, will be unveiled to-morrow. The inscription is as follows:—"Here fell on the 7th of April, 1868, by the assassin's hand, the Hon. Thomas Darcy McGee."

PROPERTY IN NEW YORK.—In 1826 the value of real estate on Manhattan Island was 863.844.650, to day it is about $475.000,000. Forty years ago the annual real estate sales in New York amounted to hundreds of thousands of dollars; now it is hundreds of millions. If any argument its necessary to prove the almost headlong manner in which the capitalists and small operators have traded in houses and lands this year, it may be found in the summary of real estate business for April. The recorded transfers in New York last month amounted to $23,853,133, and in Brooklyn to $7,610,017; $55,577,743 worth of real estate, or about 12 per cent of the total valuation, in this city, has changed hands since January 1st; in Brooklyn the amount during the same time has been $17,855,143.

The next detachment of Pontifical Zouaves is to leave Montreal on the 16th of May. Detachments in future will number about twelve or twenty-four, and none will be permitted to go unless in good health, and after depositing the sum of $100 each with the treasurer.

THE WALLACE MONUMENT.—We regret to hear that the amount needed in order to complete this great national undertaking is not yet made up, and the Secretary of the Wallace Monumont Committee has again been compelled to appeal to the generosity and patriotic feeling of Scotsmen throughout the world. The monument could be entirely completed this year if the funds were fortnering, but the building committee are compelled to regulate their expenses according to the means at their disposal.

Their husbands and a crowd of neighbors went, out of breath to the spot, and found —a hare caught in a net.

It is quite unnecessary now to say anything of Mr. Kennedy's splendid talents as a vocalist and delineator of Scottish customs.—His unprecedented success in the United States and in Canada affords overwhelming proof of the high character of his entertainments. Those who heard him in Guelph before will not fail to go and hear him again, and those who had not an opportunity then should not fail to embrace the one now offered.

IMPEACHMENT OF JUDGES.

A few days ago a petition from lawyers, and other citizens of Aylmer, County of Ottawa, was presented to the House of Commons against Justice Lafontaine, charging him with forgery, incapacity, falsification of the Court records, and defalcation of Government money while he was Crown Lands Agent. It is understood that his Lordship will be impeached before the House. Another Lower Canadian judge, Justice Drummond is likely to be proceeded against in like manner. Mr. Chamberlin has presented the petition of T. K. Ramsay, accusing and impeaching the judge of malicious and infamous proceedings against the Petitioper in the A few days ago a petition from lawceedings against the Petitioner in the Lamirand case; of being a notorious drunkard; of being an insolvent and fraudulent debtor, and abusing his position as a Judge to prevent the seizure of his effects; of using his position in 1864 to secure by bargain and money consideration the resignation of Justice Bowen and taking his seat. These are very serious charges, and every person will admit the serious charges, and every person will admit the serious charges. and every person will admit that no man is fit to be an administrator of that law which he violates so wantonly. The interest that will be felt in the proceedings connected with the impeachment of these two Justices will not be slight since if the accusation be substantiated the unpleasant truth must be forced to the surface, that the Bench of Canada, which has hitherto been considered a close approxima tion of purity, has been disgraced by the venality of two prominent judges.

The Cable has not informed us of the contents of this address, but it probably prayed for an enlargement of the functions of the Zollverein Parliament so as to make it in every respect the Parliament of the German Nation, and thus complete the National unity. The large majority against the address indicates that the Government of Prussia has used its influence against it. Prussia desires a strong current of public opinion in South Germany that shows itself at present in favor of a nion before she is willing to assume

The Maiden's Choice

A Tale of the Covenanters.

TRIUMPHAL REFURN TO BIRKENCIAUGH—CONCLUSION.
Between the marriage of Richard and Helen, and the final sequal of our story, there stretches an interval of eighteen years.
Eighteen most terrible years of Scottish history—perhaps the cruellest, bloodies years that ever passed over any land. The Covenanting struggle is still continued—the Presbyterian spirit would not be crush-ed out of the people. The Government had had the wish and the intention to do it, but the means at command were not adequate.—Suppos'ng even that Episcopacy was truth, and Presbyterianism falsehood, truth can never triumph by physical force, and this was the only kind of force the Government sought to bring to bear.

sand Presbyterianism falsehood, truth can anever triumph by physical force, and this was the only kind of force the Government sought to bring to bear.

But that particular force was employed with the most flendish persistency. On the side of the Government the matter was spoken of and treated as a struggle between authority and disaffection—nothing more. Disaffection was a thing in no case admissible. Nothing could possibly justify it. Government was to be obeyed, whatever it might say or do. The people had no right to think or act for themselves—their one and only duty was obedience.

This was the theory of the rulers of that period, but it was the 'theory of woful blindness and incapacity. The laws of this Divine universe can have no toleration for such ignorant perversity. When it seeks a lodgment among these, they can suffer no harmony to exist till it is conquered. It is just like a thorn in the flesh—the thorn has no business there—and the flesh festers and festers till it is expelled.

When a Government sets itself in opposition to the conscience of a people, that Government is justly doomed. The struggle may be long or short, mild or severe, according to circumstances, but one issue only can be reached; the cause of conscience must in the end prevail, because the cause of runsience in their struggle, the foundations of the Universe had been shaken, and the Divine order of things subverted. Of course this has only to be stated to show its impossibilty, but there are those still amongs' us who, unable to look below the surface, do admit even now that the Government was wrong, but say, on the contrary, that the Covenanters were a truculent and rebellious people. Alas! for such we surface, do admit even now that the Government were not only blind to its merits, but utterly obstinate and unyielding. They were determined to carry their point, and they thought they were able to do so by the physical means they had. It was not the conversion of the people they aimed it—it was protracted and severe beyond examp ied on.

Thus the struggle was made a flendish and ferocious one, and its history is in this respect one of the very darkest pages of national annals, though in its deeper aspects and sues it is a glorious and brilliant chapter at the wonderful story of humanity.

We are not, however, writing it here, but re shall merely in a few sentences indicate ta features, in order to form a necessary ink between the story we have written and is conclusion.

we shall merely in a few sentences indicate its features, in order to form a necessary his between the story we have written and its conclusion.

Compulsion was the subject of procedure. The one aim of the Government was to compel the people to worship in the parish church and nowhere else. The Covennneters refused to do this, and held conventicles in private houses, in barns and in fields. For this they were imprisoned, fined heavily and sold into slavery in foreign countries. Against these convexticles delet followed edict, each more severe than the preceding. he effect, however, being not to suppress them, but cause those who held them to come with arms in their hands. This was, such an advanced planse of the rebellion that the whole power and energy of the State were directed against the strict of the state were directed against the sew ho in any way aided or abetted them.

All would not do. In spite of fines, imprisonments, and confuscations, armed conventicles grew larger and more frequent.

Ard the next device resorted to was to let loose 10,000 Highlanders on the western counties, to pillage, plunder, and maltreat the inhabitants according as their lust and passion prompted. The visit of this Highland host lasted for two months, and when they were sent back to their mountains they went laden with all kinds at spoil.

No one was more incensed against the armed conventicles than Archbishop Sharpe. He saw that in them was the centure of opposition and source of greatest danger, and on the first of May, 1879, he produced before the Council the draft of a new edict more monstrous than any vet proposed. It was to give power to all officers to Kill any one whom they met armed going too r from a conventicle. This borrible edict obtained the sanction of the King. He was to start for London on the 6th of May, 1870, he produced before the Council that draft of a new edict more monstrous than any vet proposed. It was to give power to all officers to Kill any one whom they met armed going too r from a conventicle. T fitting retribution—execution of assassination—if we are to estimate a cause by the manner in which its promoter meets death, then the cause in which Sharpe laboured so zealously failed to enable him to meet his doom with fortitude. Contrasted with certain grand heroic deaths in the Grassmarket, the last moments of Sharpe show a miserable exhibition of cowardies. Lifel life He promised anything if Burley and his companions would spare his life. He would lay down his mitter; he would do mothing more against the Covenanters. Wildly, frantically, and in the most abject terror, he supplicated mercy, and when he saw that no mercy was to be extended, but that die he must, he could not even pray, but screamed in despair until the repeated sword thrusts silenced him for ever.

the great walking match against time (fifty miles within ten hours) undertaken by the English pedestrian Topley, came off on Monday, at the Fashion Course, New York, but resulted in failure. The "walkist' was in a fair way of success up to nearly the last, having accomplished forty-two miles in Shours 16 minutes; but unfortunately he indulged in some Scotch ale during the walk, which got to his nerves and brain, and laid him as low as many other mighty men have been laid by the same agency. On his last mile he started at the usual rate of walking, but he had not proceeded over 300 yards when he was observed to throw up his arms, stagger forward and fall to the earth. Assistance immediately came to him, and forward and fall to the earth. Assistance immediately came to him, and on examination it was assortained that he had fainted. Restoratives were applied, his hands, legs and feet, which were ice cold, rubbed, but in vain. After a time he was taken up by a number of men and carried to an apartment in Mr. Chambers' house, where, in the course of ten minutes, he recovered sufficiently to recognize those who were standing near him.
