DRESS AND MANTLE MAKING

The Fashionable West End.

To the Ladies:

We have during the past two years contemplated the establishment of a Dress and Mantle Department, in connection with our other branches. The difficulty of obtaining a suitable person to take charge, has, up to the present time, only prevented us from doing so.

We have now great pleasure in informing you that we have secured the services of Miss Morrison, of Toronto, a lady of first-class abilities, highly recommended to us, and we believe eminently qualified to give complete satisfaction in every respect. Miss Morrison has for the past few years occupied the position of cutter and fitter in one of the leading Fashionable Dress-making Establishments in the City of Toronto.

Miss Morrison is also an experienced Mantle-maker, and all orders entrusted to her will be executed in a style equal to anything that can be obtained in the largest cities.

Orders for these departments will be received on and after Monday next, the 13th of May.

A. O. BUCHAN, Fashionable West End Dress, Mantle and Millinery Establishment.

Town and County News.

CRICKET.—Mount Forest has organized its Cricket Club for the season of 1873. President, Mr. John Sheppard; Vice President, Mr. H. Yarett; Sec.-Treasurer, Mr. J. C. Wilkes.

The Meaford Monitor is responsible for the statement that they have a curiosity in Ephraim—"a lamb which walks about on two legs, and has only two." What next?

CHANGE.—Mr. R. White has sold out his interest in the Durham Chronicle to his partner, Mr. John Johnston. We hope that success may attend Mr. White in his new sphere, and that the Chronicle under its present proprietor may continue to prosper.

GUELPH DISTRICT MEETING.—On Thursday next all the Wesleyan Ministers of the Guelph District will meet at Elora for the transaction of business, with a number of laymen from the different Circuits. The session will continue two days, and some religious services will be held.

The Herold special from London says that John Stuart Mill died of phlegmonous erysipelas. It terminated fatally the third day after its appearance, closing the passages of the throat. Mr. Mill has left an autobiography ready for the press and several other completed works.

CRICKET.—The Elora Cricket club has been reorganized. Dr. Paget was elected President, Mr. Burns, Vice President, and Mr. Gavin, Secretary and Treasurer. It is the intention of the club to practice regularly; already they are preparing their bats and wickets.

TORONTO, GREY AND BRUCE RAILWAY.—We learn from the Orangeville Sun that work has again commenced on the Owen Sound extension of this railway. At the Orangeville end of the line there are two engines and a large number of men already at work ballasting the road and to all appearances it will not be long before this line will be ready for traffic to the Georgian Bay.

FOUND DEAD.—A respectable farmer named Joseph Hunter, who resided in the Gore of East Garafraxa, was found dead on Friday morning, in the entrance to the basement of Mrs. Elgie's hotel, in Orangeville. When last seen alive he was intoxicated, and it is supposed, that while walking along the sidewalk in this state, he lost his balance, and falling into the entrance, dislocated his neck, proving an instant death.

ELORA MANUFACTURING COMPANY.—The Company formed for the manufacture of carpets in Elora, held their first general meeting in the Dalby House on Wednesday afternoon. A code of by-laws having been adopted the meeting proceeded to elect a Board of Directors which resulted in the choice of the following gentlemen:—Messrs. J. M. Fraser, W. F. Findlay, R. DaBy, A. Waddell, W. H. Fraser, H. Graham, and D. Humble. Messrs. E. H. Newman, and Thos. Cannon were appointed Auditors. The Directors afterwards met when J. M. Fraser was elected President, W. F. Findlay Vice-President, E. Burns, Secretary, and W. Kingsley Treasurer.

SUDDEN DEATH.—We learn from the Mount Forest Examiner of the sudden death of Mr. Wm. Lackey at his residence in Orchardville on Tuesday morning last. He rose from bed seemingly in about his usual health; but, after a little, feeling unwell he laid himself down again, while Mrs. Lackey proceeded to prepare breakfast. Having everything ready she went to arouse him and found that he was apparently dying. She at once hastened across the street to procure medical assistance, and returned to find that he had almost ceased to live—the heart gave a couple of pulsations and all was at an end.

SUNDAY TRAFFIC ON RAILWAYS.—The Mount Forest Examiner says:—Complaint having been made before Messrs. Swan and McMullen, Justices of the Peace, that traffic had been carried on unremittingly for a number of Sundays past over the railway from this point, they determined to take steps to prevent it. Making their way to the station on Sunday morning last they found that a quantity of timber had been loaded and was shortly to be removed. Some little conversation was had with the officials when they deemed it prudent to cancel the train and the labors of the day ceased. If the superintendent cannot see his way clear to do all the week's work in six days, we have been assured that it will be made disagreeably plain to him some of these days.

Local and Other Items.

George Elliott received $40,000 for writing "Middlemarch."

The Tavistock cheese factory consumes the milk of about 400 cows.

On Monday, the 26th inst., trains will resume running on the Canada Air Line.

The construction of the Toronto, Grey and Bruce Railway between Wroxeter and Teeswater is progressing rapidly.

There are some 150 men in Toronto already engaged to work in the silver mines at Thunder Bay. They expect to leave on Monday or very shortly for the scene of their labors.

A man named McDonough got into an altercation at St. John, P. Q., on Friday, with a very violent man, when the latter knocked him down and jumped upon him. The victim died in about two hours.

POISONED MILK.—A little girl in Norwich, Conn., was poisoned last Wednesday by drinking the milk in which a green milk ticklet had lain a couple of hours. The poison in the coloring matter had mixed with the milk. The child's life was saved by violent vomiting.

THE HEIGHT OF TOWNS.—The last report of the Fruit Growers Association gives the sea level of the principal cities and towns in Ontario. The places are given in alphabetical order, with the heights in feet as follows:—Barrie, 779; Belleville, 207; Goderich, 715; Hamilton, 325; Pembroke, 400; Peterborough, 629; Simcoe, 79; Stratford, 1,182; Toronto, 342; Windsor, 620. It will be seen from this that Stratford is by far the highest town in the Province.

BERLIN CRICKET CLUB.—A meeting of this club was held at the St. Nicholas hotel last week, when the following officers for the current year were elected:—Mr. H. F. J. Jackson, President; Mr. D. C. Chalmers, Secretary and Treasurer; Messrs. Scully, Smith and Nicholas, with the above officers, General and Match Committee. From the report of the Treasurer, which was read at the meeting, it appears that the club is in a flourishing condition.

The Paisley Advertiser says:—Fall wheat in the townships we have visited looks remarkably well, and promises an abundant yield, the dry weather which followed the disappearance of the snow, gave farmers a chance to push forward their spring work. Seed will, this season, be in the ground earlier than usual. Recent showers have advanced vegetation, notwithstanding the cold winds which have sometimes prevailed.

SAD ACCIDENT.—A very sad occurrence happened to a little girl about seven years old, a daughter of Mr. Alex. Bruce, of the firm of G. & A. Bruce, Builders, on Saturday morning last. It appears that she was playing with a tin tube and ran against something while she had it in her mouth, inflicting a terrible gash in the palate, and severing a piece of flesh from it, which got into the windpipe, and would, in all probability, have suffocated her had she not succeeded at last in withdrawing it with her fingers. Dr. Herod was called in and attempted to stop the wound, but finding it impossible, had to cut the hanging flesh off. She is doing as well as can be expected.

INCENDIARISM.—Shortly after 10 o'clock on Tuesday night, a barn belonging to Mr. George Amer, of Oregon Sound, was discovered to be on fire. Several entries and sleighs, together with a number of farming implements, were consumed with the building. Early on Wednesday morning a man named John Grieves called at the house of Constable Robert Vanweyke, and stated that he had set fire to the barn, and wished to give himself up to the proper authorities. He was committed to jail until Wednesday next, when he will be brought up for examination. He says he can assign no reason for the commission of the act other than that he was slightly under the influence of liquor. Grieves was in the employ of Mr. Wright, miller, and is about 30 years of age, and has been married a few weeks. Mr. Amer's loss is about $700 over insurance.

OBITUARY.—On Tuesday afternoon, about two o'clock, Mr. Alexander Riggs, latterly editor of the Planet, and who has been connected with the press of Canada for nearly twenty years past, died at his residence, Adelaide street, after an illness of only two days' duration. Mr. Riggs, when we first knew him (in 1855) published a paper in St. Mary's; but he was not successful in its management, and publication was soon afterwards suspended. Since that time he has been connected with a number of Conservative papers in Ontario—among others the London Herald and the Planet. He started the Volunteer Review at Ottawa a few years ago, and subsequently published the Dresden Gazette for a year or more, but like other of his ventures, both enterprises proved unremunerative to him, and these journals fell into other hands. He was a ready writer, thoroughly conversant with the political history of Canada, and under more favorable circumstances, might have risen to a high position as a journalist. Mr. Riggs was about forty years of age.—Chatham Planet, May 7.

THIS MORNING'S DESPATCHES

Modes at Snow Mountain.

France and the Slave Trade.

Monarchists in Spain.

Horrible Occurrence.

Illness of the Pope.

Turned Queen's Evidence.

San Francisco, May 11.—The very latest news from the camp is that the Warm Spring scouts have found the Modes at Snow Mountain, where they are strongly entrenched.

London, May 12, 6 a. m.—The French Government has given renewed assurance that it supports the action taken by England for the suppression of the slave trade on the east coast of Africa, and denies that the Sultan of Zanzibar has been authorized to rely on French protection.

Madrid, May 11.—The Monarchists have everywhere abstained from voting in the election for the Constituent Cortes.

London, May 12.—A special despatch to the London Times reports that a Russian picket party, under command of a Colonel in the Advance Guards of Gen. Kauffmann's column, were surprised by some Bokhanezh horsemen, and all put to death by impalement. Thirty officers and a few men were captured by the Kirghise between Orak and Kasanick.

New York 12.—Weather clear and warm.

Mordecai, who was reported to have been fatally shot in the Richmond, Va., duel, is now in a more favorable condition, and may recover.

Mr. Blake, daughter and son-in-law, Mr. Blake, were overwhelmed with the announcement of the Governor's death yesterday, which was made by both the Rev. Dr. Hall and Taylor to their congregations, and is generally believed to have been signed by Dr. E. G. Payne, the Governor's aide-de-camp, finally relieved the suspense of the family with a telegram announcing the Governor in usual health. The telegram announcing the Governor's death was handed up to Dr. Hall as his services were being concluded, and was signed by Dr. E. G. Payne. The morning papers pronounce it one of the most malicious hoaxes ever perpetrated.

London, May 10.—Despatches from Rome say the Pope was too ill yesterday to receive a party of pilgrims from France.

Advisers from Cape Town, South Africa, just received here, state that the King of Ashantee, one of the most extensive and powerful kingdoms of West Africa, has declared war against Great Britain. An Ashantee army 35,000 strong, has marched from Coomassie, their capital, and is now threatening Elmina, a fortified town on the Guinea Coast. Much alarm exists, and preparations are being made for defence.

George Bidwell, one of the forgers implicated in the recent heavy bill frauds on the Bank of England, has turned Queen's evidence against his associates in the affair. It is now believed that Edward Noyes and others charged with the forgeries, will be speedily convicted.

CAPTAIN TYSON'S STATEMENT.

In September, 1871, The Polaris entered winter quarters, and left August 12, 1872. The ice was very heavy, and set in a southerly direction. She was forced out, and so continued drifting till Capt. Tyson and party were driven from her. The sledging party crossed Kane's Polar sea, which they pronounced to be a strait about 15 miles wide. There was an appearance of open water to the north. The rescued party suffered very much during their dreary drift from hunger and cold. For the last two months they ate raw seal and Polar bear when they could get them. When met by the Tigris they showed evident signs of their great sufferings, but during the nine days they have been on board they have improved vastly and are now in fair health. The party are in charge of the United States Consul, and will arrive in St. Johns to-day (Monday).

The following statement was furnished by Capt. Tyson:—On the 24th of August, 1871, we left Tessinack and went through Smith's Sound. We succeeded in getting as far north as lat. 82 deg. 16 min., when we returned and wintered at Polaris Bay, lat. 81 deg. 35 min., long. 61 deg. 44 min. We were frozen up until the 5th Sept. On the 10th of Oct. Captain Hall started on a sledge journey north, and returned on the 24th, when he was taken sick, and died on the 8th of Nov. He was buried on the 11th. The attack that carried him off was said to be apoplexy. We passed Polaris Bay on the 18th of June, 1872. We attempted to reach the north with two boats. We hauled our other boat on shore and returned over land on the 8th of July. We started for home on the 12th of August, and on the 15th were beset with ice in lat. 80-82. We drifted from there down to lat. 77-35, when we encountered a heavy south-west gale, the ship being under heavy pressure. On the night of the 15th, we commenced landing provisions, &c., on the ice, the vessel being reported leaking very badly at times. We continued landing provisions for two or three hours, when the pressure ceased. I went on board the vessel and asked the sailing master if the vessel was making any more water than usual. He reported that she was not. I then went to the pumps and ascertained that she was not making any more than she had been doing all summer. I went on the ice, and again shortly after it began to crack, and in a few minutes afterwards broke in many places. The vessel broke from her fastenings, and was soon lost to sight in the darkness and storm. On the broken ice was most of our provisions to sustain the party through winter, and seeing nothing of the vessel, we attempted to reach shore, in hopes of finding the natives, to assist us in living through the winter. Getting about half-way to shore, with our heavily-laden boats, our progress became hard by reason of the drifting ice, and I was compelled to haul on the ice again. At this time I succeeded in saving 14 cans of pemmican, 11 bags of bread, 10 dozen one and two pound cans of meat and soup, 14 hams, and a small bag of chocolate weighing twenty pounds, some muk ox skins, blankets, and a number of rifles and ammunition. In the morning, knowing that I had not provisions enough and other articles of food, clothing, compasses, &c., on the abatement of the gale I endeavored to shoot as many seals as possible, both for food, light and fuel, but could only get three owing to bad weather having set in. I supposed the ice to be about 111 miles south-west. On its clearing up I found myself within about eight miles of what I supposed to be the east coast, and about 30 or 40 miles below the ship. The ice being weak I could not transport the boats and provisions to land until it grew stronger. While here I discovered my other boat, bread, &c., and saved all. The ice crew firm and I made another attempt to reach the shore, carrying everything in the boats and dragging them on their keel. The ice being exceedingly rough we were obliged to see the land on the 1st of November in getting about half-way to the shore. Night came on us and very stormy weather. In the morning the ice was broken and we were drifting southward very fast. We saw no more land for many days, but weather continuing all through the month of November. We built snow-houses, and made ourselves as comfortable as we could. We were ten white men, two Esquimaux, two women and five children in all. We succeeded in killing a few seals, which furnished us with light and fuel with which to warm our scanty allowance of food through the darkness of the Arctic winter. In the latter part of February we lived principally upon birds, and in March commenced to catch seals. Through that month we supported ourselves on seal's "fat" and seal's "liver," washing neither skin nor entrails. We collected enough wood in this way to last us until the middle of May, but we had not been driven to sea by a strong westerly gale in the latter part of March, our food being then reduced from 5 miles in circumference to about 20 yards in diameter. We left the piece on the 1st of April, and abandoned nearly all of our meat, a large amount of ammunition, clothing, skins, and other articles, taking a portion of the meat in the boat, which we were obliged to throw overboard on account of the boat being so deeply laden. I regained the outer edge of the pack of ice on the 3rd of April, and succeeded in getting a little further in on the pack. On the 4th, a heavy north east gale set in, a heavy sea running under the ice, which broke it in small pieces, so that we had to live on small pieces, as we could not put the boat out, neither could we find seals for food, and we were reduced almost to starvation. On the 21st April we sighted a Polar bear. Every person was ordered to lie down and imitate the seal, while the two Esquimaux crept themselves behind a piece of ice, enticed the bear near enough to us to kill him. A few days after this we got our way in the water and worked our boat west and south-west, and continued to work on every opportunity to the westward in hope of reaching the Labrador coast and getting temporary relief. We were picked up by the steamship Tigris, Captain Bartlett, on the 30th April, in lat. 63, 35 north, long. 55 west, or near Wolf Island, and about 40 miles from land. The Polaris is without boats having lost two in trying to get north in the spring of 1872. The Tigris fell in with the party in a dense fog and provisionally struck the very blow on which they were, otherwise they must have perished. They all seem tolerably well.

The Work of the Session.

Although reports have been current for some time past that the present session of Parliament would be brought to a close in a few days, it is now pretty certain that these few days may stretch into two or three weeks, unless the Government shut down on all legislation, and leave the business of the country in a mess. The estimates have yet to receive the concurrence of the House, and a good deal of discussion on many of the items of expenditure will take place before they are finally passed. Scarcely any of the important measures referred to in the Speech from the Throne have yet come up for anything like a fair and full discussion. It seems that the Election Bill is to be thrown overboard for this session, and it is hinted that the Controversial Election Bill will share the same fate. The Government, embarrassed as they are by a compact and vigorous Opposition, and by the many conflicting elements which threaten their stability, will no doubt push aside every measure which would cause protracted debate, or tend to divide their followers. The fifteenth or land clause of the Pacific Railway Act has yet to receive the sanction of the House, and the Government seem in no hurry to bring it up. Day by day the question has been asked by the Opposition when the House would be asked to give validity to this clause, and day by day the answer has been put off. On Saturday Mr. Blake again asked the question, but Sir John Macdonald was absent, through indisposition it is said, and no reply was given. This subject will no doubt excite much discussion, and in the present unpromising condition of Pacific Railway affairs, it would seem as if the Government were afraid to face the Opposition, and ask the sanction of Parliament to this clause.

The Prince Edward Island delegates are at present in Ottawa, negotiating with the Government to have that Province admitted into the Union. Should any arrangement be made, the terms on which they propose to join the Dominion will have to come before Parliament, which will have to tinker up a constitution for that Province. This will also take some time. This proposed union will no doubt entail another large addition to our rapidly-increasing debt, and in securing the support of another half dozen supporters of the Government in the House of Commons. It is no wonder that the people of the country are beginning to be alarmed at our enormous expenditure. Why, the proposed additions to our public debt, which have already, or will yet be adopted this session, foot up to the very large amount of twenty five millions of dollars!

Surely this ought to be sufficient to alarm even the most thinking of Sir John Macdonald's followers. Such reckless and extravagant work can only have one issue, and that is sooner or later increased taxation and a rise in the tariff. It will then be too late to grumble, for the harm will be done, and the money must be raised in some way or other.

Judging from all these things, we are of opinion that the session will be prolonged beyond the time mentioned in the Speech from the Throne. The Government shut down on all business, and by the votes of their subservient followers choke off all legislation.

The Council has the option of increasing this force, but they cannot reduce it without the consent of the Commissioners. ANNABEL

THE TEMPTATION.

CHAPTER XIX.

ANNABEL'S JOURNEY TO ENGLAND. And where, then, was Annabel? What had she been spirited away, and to what conditions had she been reduced? To learn these things we require to return to the evening of the day on which Ellen Mattocks died. Now that her devoted work was ended, and the poor sinking one whom she had so faithfully ministered to was beyond all need of earthly assistance, Annabel began to realise how weary and exhausted she was, how thoroughly worn out in body, how greatly under the influence of mental lassitude, and how much she needed rest. Yet speedily she found that rest was to be denied to her, for no sooner had the body been swathed in the shroud than Mrs. Langton informed her that she had made arrangements for her departure early in the morning, accompanied by Ellen's brother, who was to travel with her to England, partly as an attendant and partly as a protector. Annabel received the intimation with no little surprise. She did not understand the necessity for such haste, nor did she see wherein it was desirable that she should set out having Mrs. Langton to follow by herself, not only without a travelling companion, but having in addition the anxious charge of conveying the body. She had begun to give expression to these very natural ideas when Mrs. Langton gave her to understand in a very decided tone that her mind was made up, that the arrangements were made, and could not be departed from. Of course she had ready prepared an array of specious reasons why this plan should be followed—reasons which the unsuspecting girl never thought particularly of considering. Annabel was in truth so overpowered both in body and mind to give much heed to the matter. She had a vague dislike to the proposal, and was decidedly of opinion that it was not the best course to adopt, but seeing Mrs. Langton so determined, she had no desire to contend the point, but quietly acquiesced, and within half an hour thereafter she was sunk in the most profound and oblivious sleep which she had known since the happy days of childhood. So utterly were her senses steeped in oblivion that when Mrs. Langton awoke her with the intelligence that morning had come, and the hour of her departure was at hand, it looked to her as if she had been asleep only for a minute; and, oh, how strong was the desire to sleep—how difficult it was for her to rouse herself into motion, or even to keep her heavy eyelids from again closing. But Mrs. Langton was absolute—even impatiently so, and brought her to a large basin filled with cold water that she might bathe her face, and be thereby withdrawn from the power which sleep was exercising over her. It had the desired effect so far as to make Annabel dress and prepare to go. Truth to say, she had little or no preparation to have been making these for her over night, packing her boxes, and doing all other necessary things, so that, after she was dressed, Annabel had little to do but take breakfast, ere she was ready to set out. A conveyance was already at the door to convey her and her attendant, with their luggage, to the railway station, and in a state which positively bordered on semi-consciousness she entered the vehicle, and, as the horse moved off, heard Mrs. Langton say: "Good-bye for the present, my love. We shall meet again at Rockstone." Richard Mattocks was on the box beside the driver, dressed, not in mourning, as Annabel expected, but in his usual light grey garments, his tall neck being concealed by a thick woollen muffler. For the morning air was chill, and a huge great coat laid across his knee. He did not seem to be excessively grieved by his sister's death, and after Annabel had been shut in and the vehicle got into motion, he favored Mrs. Langton with a steady and significant look, which she as steadily and significantly returned. Only a moment before had she impressed the kiss of the traitress on Annabel's cheek, whom she was so basely and so cruelly betraying, and now in the look exchanged by her and her accomplice there was a fulness of dark meaning which only themselves understood. Though knowing full well that she was not to see Annabel again—that she was about to be consigned to a frightful imprisonment at her instigation, and to gratify her ungodly wishes—yet a tear of pity dimmed her eyes, no throbs of compassion stirred her bosom, as she cast the final glance on the meek and languid face within the carriage, and turned away into the house to utter deliberately the lie which she had framed as the beginning of that frightful series of falsehoods by which her own part of the foul plot was to be prosecuted. The lie she told the simple farmer and his family, who wondered at the suddenness of the maid's departure, was that the death of her young mistress was so affected her mind that her brother was taking her away to a place of recreation. The kind-hearted people excited gestures expressive of their saddest pity; and thus the first link of the chain was forged which was to bind Annabel in hopeless despair. The journey through France to the sea coast seemed to Annabel much longer than when they journeyed inland, and she noticed also that they were going another route, for the scenery and the places through which they passed were different from those which she remembered on that occasion. But her excessive weariness and lassitude kept her from rousing up to any great interest in outward things, and Dick had no difficulty in satisfying her on the subject. He admitted that they were returning by a different route, according to Mrs. Langton's instructions, in order to go by a vessel which would land them at a port nearer to Yorkshire than Dover. Set at rest by this explanation, she relaxed into her state of listless quiescence, and allowed her companion to manage all the affairs of the journey as he pleased. Thus without her knowing it they quitted France, crossed the frontier into Belgium, and at length reached the quaint town of Flushing, where in a hotel in one of the narrow streets near the harbour Annabel was taken to lodge till the vessel was ready to sail. DEPARTURES.—Burglaries are becoming frequent in Montreal. Two occurred on Friday night, one at a house in Dery street, the servant, girl mysteriously disappearing with the intruders. Nothing was stolen, while the girl was gone, leaving behind her all her clothing. She bore a good character and it is feared a dark tragedy had occurred. A little girl named Movitt, while playing with matches at Kingston on Thursday set fire to her clothing and was burned to death.
