THE REFERENDUM VOTE EXPLAINED

Many are disgusted with the condition of affairs from the standpoint of prohibition since the Dominion Government lifted the war measure ban on the importation of intoxicating liquor on New Years Day 1920, thereby legalizing the bringing in of liquor in almost any quantity desired for private use. To be able to get and have large supplies of liquor legally affords a special temptation to sell it illegally to those who desire the same. Thus we hear of considerable liquor being illegally sold in Watford and other places. There is an opportunity afforded Ontario citizens of stopping this regrettable condition by the vote on April 18th. A study of the ballot will convince every voter that the question to be decided that day is simply, do you want this regrettable state of affairs stopped or do you desire the thing to continue as it is and probably grow worse? If you want it as it is or worse vote No. If you desire it stopped then vote Yes.

BUY CANADIAN GOODS

Are the people of Watford doing their duty by their fellow-citizens of the Dominion and by the Canadian dollar? If they are purchasing goods made in the United States when the same goods made in Canada can be secured, they are assisting in keeping the discount on their own money and preventing some citizen of Canada from securing the work that is rightly his. If a Canadian would only decide to buy the goods manufactured at home, the factories of Canada would be running full time and the amount of unemployment throughout the country would be at a minimum.

Last year over 68 per cent. of the goods imported into Canada came from the United States, where our dollar brought anywhere from 80 to 88 cents. Let us see that the conditions of 1921 show a big improvement over last year and let us help to build up our own industries and give employment to our own citizens.

This is not an anti-American policy—it is a pro-Canadian policy. This is a critical time in the industrial life of Canada. There is every confidence that it will safely be survived, but each individual can do his bit towards more quickly regaining uniform prosperity if he will assist in reducing the annual outlay of nearly a billion dollars which we are sending to the United States.

The expenditure is in itself undesirable. It is especially undesirable at a time when so many Canadians are out of work and when every dollar sent across the line only brings a return worth less than 90 cents.

PROTECT YOUR VOTE

It is necessary that every person qualified to vote on April 18 shall make it his personal business to protect his franchise if his name is not already on the voters' list.

Every person in the Province who voted on the Referendum or in the Provincial elections of 1919 is absolutely entitled to cast his ballot on April 18, and may be certain without inquiry that his name is on the list for the division in which he last voted.

Every man or woman who had no vote in 1919 who is 21 years of age and a British subject and has lived in Ontario for two months and in Canada for one year should attend the place of registration provided in the place where he lives and have his name placed on the list.

Only those residing in the rural districts, outside of cities, towns and villages, are spared this inconvenience. The rural voter is entitled to a ballot at the polling booth on polling day if a voter at the same subdivision appears with him and vouches for his qualifications.

The voter who is on the list but has moved from one urban subdivision to another, or from a rural subdivision to an urban one, since the vote of 1919 may be placed on the list of the subdivision in which he resides by appearing before the Revising Officer, but he need not do so if the distance is such that he can readily vote in his former subdivision.

In Watford the registration must be made not later than next Saturday, April 2nd, in the basement of the Public Library. W. S. Fuller is the revising officer and will be present at 10 in the morning and 2 in the afternoon.

COMMUNICATIONS

PURE BRED POULTRY

Wallaceburg, March 28, 1921.
To the Editor of the Guide-Advocate, Watford.

Dear Sir:—
If you will allow me a short space in your valuable paper I would like to write a few words in regard to poultry raising in Canada.

What I refer to is utility advertisers who think a hen with the resemblance of a breed is fit to sell stock or eggs from as a certain breed for instance, a man buys utility Banded Rock eggs from a prominent advertiser. The eggs are about twenty ounces to the dozen, the mature birds are black green in legs, some the size of Leghorns and grey in color, not Banded Rocks at all.

Now I am not citing a specific case but there is nothing, in my opinion more detrimental to the success of the poultry business than advertising and selling utility birds and eggs that do not measure up to the standard qualifications of the breed. You want outside quality as well as that concealed from the eye. A Banded Rock should be a Banded Rock; a White Wyandotte, a White Wyandotte; and so on.

Every bird sent out on sale should resemble closely the standard description of the breed, though not necessarily a winner. "Play fair and win out," is good advice.

Of course all breeders are not faulty but there is room for a big improvement. For instance, a man has a flock of hens, no particular strain, just a flock of barnyard hens. They look all right and he advertises their eggs for sale at a very low price. He can afford to do this as he has comparatively no money invested in his flock. He advertises his eggs at 75c per setting, thus undermining the pure bred Breeder and cheating the man who buys.

What we want is more pure bred poultry and not so much the barnyard hen.
Yours for more and better utility and quality poultry.

A. E. NELSON.

The Easter egg prices went down to 25 cents in some parts of Ontario. In Chicago it touched 19c.

SUCCESS IN BASEBALL
GREATER THAN IN BUSINESS

Heywood Brown in a recent article says that in no business or occupation, or art are the chances for early success so great as in baseball. No business has such an organization for discovering new talent. He mentions the case of four young men living in a Texas town. One was Rube, a baseball pitcher, another was Harry, a bent towards engineering; Donald with literary tastes, and Tom a born executive. When he was nineteen Rube pitched a fine game for a local team, and was picked up by the Sacramento club and by the time he was twenty-one had reached New York and his name was known to millions.

The other three remain in the little town. One is chief mechanic in a garage; another is night clerk in a hotel; Donald is a newspaper reporter, and has written a play called "Hearts Adrift" which he is endeavoring, so far without success, to induce somebody to read and produce. Each of them had as much talent in his own special sphere as Rube. Yet none of them was given the brilliant opportunity to make good. Nobody is scouting for playwrights, for business executives, or for engineering geniuses. In time any or all of them may succeed, and if so the success is likely to be more permanent than that of a baseball player.

But whereas fame and success came to Rube when he was a youth, and with hardly a struggle on his part, they are not likely to overtake the other on the sunny side of middle age, and then only after a long hard struggle and plenty of luck. If a man is a superlative baseball player he does not have to struggle for recognition. The professional baseball teams are always on the lookout for talent. They keep scouts to hunt out likely prospects. One New York team has four scouts. The result is that promising players do not have to beg for opportunities to show their abilities like promising young playwrights, for instance. The urging will come from the other side. Babe Ruth, the best drawing card in baseball, was dug out of an industrial school where he had been committed, by Jack Dunn, manager of the Baltimore team. Dunn had to legally adopt him before he could be secured. It would seem that even in the depths of a penal institution if a youth showed baseball promise he would be sought for probably released and presented with a handsome salary.

DEATH OF ALEX. C. KEMP

Carlyle, March 8th.—A feeling of deep gloom passed over the town of Carlyle on Thursday, when word was received of the death of Alex. C. Kemp, a pioneer business man of the town. The late Mr. Kemp, who has conducted a confectionery and bakery business for the past nineteen years, was 62 years of age. He was one of Carlyle's most respected citizens. The deceased was taken to Regina on March 1st. by Dr. C. H. Stapleford, and was operated on the same evening for appendicitis. He survived the operation and until Thursday morning was making progress towards recovery, when he was seized with a paralytic stroke and died the same afternoon.

The funeral on Sunday, which was largely attended, was conducted by the members of the I.O.O.F. lodge, of which the deceased was a member, in the Presbyterian church. Three members of the Royal Mounted Police stood at attention at the church entrance during the hour of worship, and afterwards headed the funeral procession to the Glenmorris cemetery.

The floral tributes testified to the esteem in which the deceased was held. There were wreaths from the business men, the Oddfellows, the Foresters, a cross from the boys club and a spray from the Ladies Auxiliary of the Presbyterian church.

He leaves to mourn him, three children, Alma at home, Mrs. Adams of Radville, and John aged 15; two sisters, Mrs. McIntosh of MacGregor, and Mrs. Wheeler; and three brothers, D. Kemp, J. D. Kemp and J. L. Kemp. The bereaved ones have the sympathy of the entire town and community in this time of sorrow. In December, 1917, Mr. Kemp and son, John, visited relatives and friends in Forest and around Watford.

BABY'S HEALTH

IN THE SPRING

The Spring is a time of anxiety to mothers who have little ones in the home. Conditions make it necessary to keep the baby indoors. He is often confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms and catches colds which rack his whole system. To guard against this a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. This will prevent colds, constipation or colic and keep baby well. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THIS WOMAN'S MISERY

Ended by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Remarkable Recovery of Mrs. Church.

Smiths Falls, Ont.—"I suffered with falling of my organs, pains around my heart and in bowels and down my legs, neuralgia in my face and head, and that terrible sinking feeling. I felt that I could not live and would fix my house in order every night so there would be no trouble if I dropped off in the night. My husband went to the druggist to get the best remedy he had and he gave him Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took six bottles and felt a lot better. I will always recommend the Vegetable Compound, and you can use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. J. O. CHURCH, Box 845, Smiths Falls, Ont.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from nervous prostration, displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion and dizziness. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard remedy for female ills.

SHALL A WOMAN BE JUDGED BY HER PAST?

WHAT IS THE VERDICT?

BY A UNANIMOUS VOTE, A JURY OF MOTION PICTURE EXPERTS FIND KATHERINE MacDONALD GUILTY OF INCITING A MOB TO BUY TICKETS FOR "THE NOTORIOUS MISS LISLE."

Against the romantic setting of Merrie England and Quaint Old Brittany, beautiful Katherine MacDonald portrays the role of "The Notorious Miss Lisle" with an appeal that will stir sentimental emotions in a marble breast, and rising passionate out pourings from hearts that have frozen for the want of romance. Widely read as a novel more beautiful as a picture.

THE STORY

Gaenor Lisle, beautiful daughter of an English Army Officer, is compelled to leave England to avoid the army of reporters and photographers that follows her from one end of England to the other. The girl is a prominent figure in a divorce scandal, and the most talked about woman in England.

In Brittany, where she has taken refuge, Gaenor meets Peter Garsten, a tourist, who knows nothing of Gaenor's notoriety.

On a visit to some island ruins, Gaenor and Peter are marooned on the island for the night by a sudden rising of the tide. At first Gaenor refuses to marry him, believing that his request is only an observance of conventions, but Peter insists that his true love prompts the proposal, and Gaenor accepts him. They are married in a quaint old Breton church, with the groom entirely unaware of his wife's unenviable notoriety.

In Paris on their honeymoon, Peter meets an old colleague who tells him of his wife's affair in London. Peter demands that Gaenor explain her participation in the affair but Gaenor refuses to speak. She takes the channel steamer for England, and on the way to Southampton, Gaenor recognizes the man who was implicated in the scandal with her. Attempting to avoid recognition Gaenor slips and falls down the companionway. When the steamer arrives, she is removed to a Southampton hospital. Peter believes implicitly in his wife's innocence. He locates her in the hospital, and then begins the battle to clear his wife's name.

THE LYCEUM, WATFORD, FRIDAY, (TO-NIGHT)

SHE DIED BEGGING FOOD

(By Edith M. Clark, in The Central China Post.)

The place was thronged with carts and men passing in one continual stream. Though it was in the heart of the famine district, yet the railway station was as busy as ever.

We had just come back from our mission-meeting in the city fifty miles away, and were preparing for our long ride in mule-litters across the hills.

At the railway crossing, in the midst of all this hubbub, I suddenly hesitated and stopped. Why was that woman by the roadside kneeling so long, and to whom was she praying? She was a simple country woman, and her poor cotton garments were clean, though thin and patched. She was not a beggar. She was just one whom the cruel famine had stricken.

It was easy to read in that poor bowed figure her whole sad story; so many, many have told me the same heart-breaking history.

As she knelt there in the dust, with forehead bowed down to the ground, I knew she was beseeching the passersby to have pity upon her little children starving at home. It was not an easy thing to do. It would have been easier to die quietly at home than to come out of her life-long seclusion and face those strange men and kneel to them. But her children were starving. They cried and moaned continually with cold and hunger, and begged her for food when she had none to give them.

At last she could bear it no longer. The mother-heart is the same all the world over. She called her little ones to her and said:

"Mother will go to the city and get food for you, and you must be good and wait till I return."

The children, almost too weak to smile, were comforted. Even the tiny tot just beginning to toddle, but now lying on the bare brick bed, too thin and faint to move, knew what the promise of food meant.

So the mother, herself so weak that she could scarcely stand, went out of the cold house into the sharp wintery wind, stumbling through the snow on her bound feet with their worn cloth shoes. She fell many times but struggled on, for were her children not depending upon her?

Then she came to the railway station, where the crowds were coming and going; and as she stood by the roadside and looked upon those strangers hurrying past her heart almost failed her. Could she kneel to them and beg: she, who had never dared to speak to a strange man?

Then the picture of her little ones waiting for her return with the promised food, rose before her; their tiny chapped hands, the shivering emaciated bodies, the pinched faces; and her fear was gone, her pride was gone. She dropped upon her knees to make the strongest petition a Chinese can offer.

Once she bowed her forehead to the ground. Again, but very feebly, and then, the poor sad face lay quiet in the dust. She did not move again. I drew closer and looked down at her, kneeling there, still in death. The poor broken mother-heart at last was resting. No more cold, no more hunger, no more fighting bravely on for those she loved.

But does not that poor kneeling figure cry to you "Save my children, your own little ones have food and warmth and comfort. Have pity on my little ones. I can help them no longer."

This one mother, on her knees in death, is pleading for all the thousands of mothers who are watching their dear children die from cold and hunger.

Does she plead in vain?

THE CITIZENS' LIBERTY LEAGUE FOR MODERATION

WHAT IT STANDS FOR

The total and final abolition of the bar and public drinking places.

A demand for Government control exercised with a view to the elimination of the abuse, without undue interference with that temperate use of alcoholic beverages which is characteristic of the people of this Dominion.

All legislation for the general good which does not unduly interfere with the private life and habits of the individual citizen.

The safeguarding of those rights and liberties of the individual which are of the solid foundation of the British Empire.

What It Opposes

All legislation, Dominion or Provincial, which tends to unduly curtail the individual rights and liberties of the citizen.

The tyranny of a highly organized minority over an unorganized majority through legislation affected by agitation and propaganda.

The Facts

The question submitted in the Referendum, to be voted on April 18th, was framed by the well organized minority, the Prohibitionists, and was purposely worded so as NOT to give the people of this Province a chance to voice their true sentiments.

Any legislation based on such a Referendum would therefore be violation of personal liberty.

Personal liberty is not a question for a Referendum.

It is an Inherent Natural Right

Interference with strictly personal affairs is unbearable to a free people. The exercise of such authority by a majority would be intolerable tyranny, but the assumption of such power by an ill-informed and bigoted minority is colossal impudence, which should be resented.

Personal liberty is the right to do as one pleases in sacredly private affairs. The choice of occupation, religion, food, drink, clothing—these are matters of personal liberty.

Prohibition is unethical and a plain violation of personal liberty.

SWEET--SCOTT

A very interesting Easter event took place at 1.30 o'clock Wednesday, March 23rd, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Scott, 47 Gladstone ave., when their only daughter, Ina May, became the bride of Mr. Victor J. Sweet, of Cleveland, Ohio. The officiating clergyman being the Rev. H. M. Paulin, of St. Andrews Presbyterian church, Windsor. The house was a gorgeous mass of spring flowers and palms cunningly and delightfully arranged to blend with the color scheme of pink and white. While Mr. W. D. Armstrong played the wedding march of Mendelssohn, the bride entered the drawingroom accompanied by her father. Her gown was of ivory chamoise with overdress of chantilly lace and seed pearl trimmings, the veil of embroidered swiss net with Juliet cap and coronet of orange blossoms, and a beautiful bouquet of Easter lilies, orchids and bridal roses completed the charming picture.

Mrs. Hugh Ferguson of Alvington, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor, while the groom was supported by his brother, Harry Sweet, of Windsor. Little Edith Tetheridge was a winsome flower girl in a dainty frock of primrose yellow taffeta, and carried a basket of sweetheart roses in which the wedding ring was concealed. During the signing of the register Mrs. W. H. Shaw, who wore silver taffeta with trimmings of old blue, rendered Sanderson's "Until" gown in grey satin with embroidered eries of old rose and smoke pearl trimmings. Immediately after the ceremony a dainty buffet luncheon was served. The bride's travelling suit was of peacock blue duvetyl and her wrap of reindeer silk with smart hat to correspond.

The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful set of gold earrings studded with pearls; to the matron of honor and soloist sterling bar pins with stones of sapphire; to the pianist and best man cuff links of gold, and to the flower girl a pretty gold locket and chain. The bride during the past ten weeks has been the guest of honor at numerous luncheons, dinner parties and showers and was the recipient of many pretty and useful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Sweet will reside in Cleveland.

Sunday was the warmest March Easter experienced in Montreal in 43 years. The temperature registered 68. degrees.

Col. Chas. A. O'Malley, one of the oldest and best-known pioneer residents of the community, passed away at the home of his son, Peter O'Malley, Wardsville, on Sunday morning, March 20. Col. O'Malley was a Fenian raid veteran, and in 1882 commanded the 25th Battalion, or Elgin Infantry, with a strength of 18 officers and 170 men.
