WINDSOR LOOKS FOR CHEAPER POWER

Cannot Offer Inducements to New Manufacturers Until Cheaper Power Can Be Obtained.

The Journal thus reports some of the utterances at a meeting of the Windsor Board of Trade a few evenings ago:

The Secretary urged the importance of starting an Industrial and Publicity Bureau, for the purpose of inducing industries to locate in Windsor, and thought the Town Council might be approached with reference to a grant for that purpose.

It was urged by Messrs. Hastie, Roach and others, that until we were in a position to provide cheap power, it was useless to incur expense because we had nothing to offer. Mr. Hastie showed that in some towns in Ontario power could be got at as low a rate as $9.00 and $10.00 per horse power per year, and in some cases for twenty-four hours continuous running for six days of the week. If we could do the same the chief obstacle would be removed, but until then we have but little inducement to offer manufacturers to come to Windsor.

It was shown that the St. Croix River could be secured to furnish required power, and that its purchase might prove a good investment for the town, which could then own its own electric lighting plant, sell power, etc., provided of course that the first cost was within reasonable limits.

The Trade Rivalry Between Two Great Powers

In our fear of Germany we overlook the fact that her navy has its origin in the same economic facts that caused England to produce hers, says an exchange. There is no room on her farms for her increasing millions, so these must be supported in the cities and the raw material for manufacture must be imported and the finished products exported. A large part of her population must live by this service. Her navy she considers necessary to her ever increasing commerce. So her navy is being evolved out of precisely the same economic conditions that have produced England's. England and Germany are rivals in trade. That rivalry will be determined not by war but by technical training and freedom from trade restrictions. Today Germany is more expert in the former, while England enjoys the latter. Were the German Emperor to light up a general conflagration in Europe it would give that trade which he is in a fair way to secure to America. Both England and Germany if they fought over it, would be helplessly behind in the race. Germany has other matters which will take all her time in the years to come, rather than the sport of war. She has her own internal problems which are becoming every day more acute. The bayonets of her police will not always quell the liberty loving spirit of her people. The world current of liberal ideas which has lately upset the administrative system of Russia, Turkey and even of Persia cannot be stifled in Germany. The final victory of the German people admits of no doubt. In the meantime there is no possible combination of powers that England is not prepared to meet with confidence on the ocean's highway. Come the four quarters of the world in arms and she is prepared now and will be next year.

Fishing Regulations

The special fishery regulations provide that no one may fish for, catch or kill trout by other means than angling with a hook and line.

The export of trout is prohibited except that a person may ship to the extent of twenty-five pounds of trout caught by him for sport provided that the shipment is accompanied by a certificate to that effect from a local fishery officer or local station agent adjacent to the locality in which the fish were caught or is accompanied by the official license or permit issued to the person making the shipment. No person is permitted to ship more than one such package during a season. No person other than a British subject may angle or take any sporting fish in Canada without an angler's permit, for which the fee is $5. One permit only can be issued to each applicant and the angler may not use under such a permit more than one fishing line provided with not more than three hooks. Foreigners temporarily domiciled in Canada, remaining thirty consecutive days or more and employing Canadian boats and boatmen are exempt from the regulation requiring permits. Trout less than six inches in length shall not be retained or kept out of the water.

AN ODD OCCURRENCE.

(Digby Courier.)

Last week stmr. Bear River was sent on a search for a large iron buoy which marked the ballast ground off Port Wade and which had gone adrift in the Bay. She found it off Gulliver's and when hauling it on board, the captain and crew discovered that beside its own chain and mooring stone it had in the course of its drift picked up forty-five fathoms of chain on which was attached a good anchor and that in its course had hooked another anchor, the latter being known as quite a heavy ledge. These were taken aboard and landed in Bear River. The buoy will be repainted before being again placed in position on the ballast ground.

APPALLING TRAGEDY IN MONTREAL

Huge Water Tank in Montreal Herald Building Crashes Down From Top Story to Bottom, Breaking Gas Pipe and Resulting in Conflagration with Many Fatalities.

Montreal, June 13th.—The building of the Montreal Herald was wrecked this forenoon in one of the most serious catastrophes that has ever visited Montreal. It is feared that about thirty people employed on the Herald met their death, although it is thought possible some reported missing may be found in safety.

The big water tank containing at least 30,000 gallons was located at the rear in the top story for protection in case of fire. Though recently inspected as to safety of its supports and thought to be in a safe condition its weight proved too much for its supports and without warning it crashed through the four stories and the whole rear portion of the building collapsed in a mass of ruins in which, under bricks, steel work and machinery a number of human bodies were crushed to their death. Those in the pathway of the destruction if not crushed by the falling timbers or machinery met death in the flood from the rushing water.

The horror of fire was added to the situation. On one of the upper floors the stereotype department was located, and the great tank in its fall turned over cauldrons of heated lead, setting on fire everything at hand. The fire however, did not develop for several minutes, and in the meantime editors, reporters and employees on the different floors rushed to the windows to the number of over a hundred, and with the cry of women first, and then men and boys, the firemen and others set to work to save life, for every one felt that the fire fiend would be on them in a very few minutes. Girls fainted while others screamed as they realized the terrible scenes they had witnessed just before, as their companions were hurled down to their doom by the ill-fated water tank.

FIREMEN TO RESCUE

After what seemed an interminable wait the Chief's auto came flying around the square and it was quickly followed by the extension ladders from the Craig Street Station.

As the ladder swung around in front of the building and the firemen quickly raised it to the top floor a cheer went up from the crowd in front. Thousands cheered lustily a second later as a fireman rushed up the ladder and began the descent with a fainting girl in his arms. Half a dozen firemen followed him and in a moment the girls were being taken down as fast as there was room for them on the ladder. Several other ladders were placed up to the other floors, and the other people who had been patiently waiting their turn came down.

The conduct of the people who were caught in the building was most praiseworthy. The great majority remained cool and stood at the windows waiting for the rescuers. A few however, chiefly women and girls, became excited, and had it not been for the coolness displayed by some of the men they would have jumped and met certain death. When the ladders were run up it was "Women first" and not one of the men made an attempt to get a foot on the ladders before all of the women and girls had been rescued. Those who had received injuries were next taken down and finally the men came rushing down the ladders to safety.

A BRAVE BOY.

One boy at the top floor displayed particular bravery. He was at the central window of the sixth storey, with about fifteen girls behind him. He stood on the ledge outside the window and kept the girls back until the ladders came. Standing quietly at the top of the ladder, he assisted the firemen to take the girls from the window and it was not until the last had been rescued that he came down himself.

TYPESETTERS ON THE FLOOR IMMEDIATELY BELOW TANK.

On the floor below were the typesetters, immediately in the path of the descending mass, and it is thought that at least ten of these have perished. Below this was the composing room, where the linotype operators and others were busily at work, altho many had narrow escapes.

One of the men was sitting at his machine when he heard the crash, and jumped back. A moment later the air was filled with dust and he saw his machine was hurled down through the broken floor, while the portion on which he stood near the wall remained, and he escaped with his life.

In another case a man was standing near the wall when the whole floor went from under him. He clung to the wall, three stories high, and was later rescued from its top by firemen.

DANGEROUS WALLS RAZED PRIOR TO THE DEATH SEARCH

Under the direction of Chief Tremblay, Deputy Chief St. Pierre, District Chiefs Mann and Marin, and Instructor Doolan, 75 firemen and 40 policemen started to work to search the ruins for the bodies of those who were buried, as soon as the dangerous side walls had been knocked down. It was 4:30 when the searchers started to work, and at a few minutes before 6 o'clock they came across the charred remains of a man and woman. The bodies were found on the first floor under a pile of beams and broken planks.

THE SEARCH IN THE REAR OF THE BUILDING.

Chief Tremblay then gave orders to the men to start to work in the narrow passageway to the back of the building, as he thought it more than likely that most of the dead would be found there, the walls and floors having been forced out into the lane when the big water tank fell through the roof and crashed down without a moment's notice to the basement. It was slow work, as the men were confined to a narrow space and with only pickaxes, shovels, axes and pitchforks to work with, it was difficult for them to remove the mass of twisted iron, beams and bricks. Some of the men had been working all day, and when darkness came and electric lights were hung down over the walls, the rescuers were almost exhausted. It was 7 o'clock before Chief Tremblay left the scene for an hour. District Chief Mann did not leave until 10 o'clock, to be back again an hour later, and Deputy Chief St. Pierre remained until midnight.

LOSS HALF A MILLION

The value of the building is said to be about $150,000 while the plant brings the total value close to the half million mark. The insurance on the plant reaches $200,000.

This is the fifth Herald fire in a quarter of a century. The first on St. James Street, the second at the corner of Victoria Square and St. James, the third on Beaver Hall Hill, the fourth on Craig Street and now the fifth one on St. James Street, West.

MONCTON MAN ELECTROCUTED

Electrician Employed in Boston Meets Terrible Death by Touching Live Wire While Showing Friend Through Power Station.

Mr. Henry Steeves, a Moncton man, was on Thursday night electrocuted while showing a friend through the electric light station. The news of the accident was received by his father, Mr. William Steeves, of the I. C. R. blacksmith shop, at his residence on Waterloo Street late on Thursday night, but it did not say it was fatal. The young man, however, was dead at that time.

The deceased, who was married, leaves a widow but no children, and was well known in Moncton and the news of his death will be heard with deep regret. He was brought to Moncton on the C. P. R. this afternoon and the funeral will take place from the parent's residence, 42 Waterloo street, Tuesday afternoon. Interment will take place at Elmwood cemetery.

Besides a widow, the deceased leaves a mother and father, four sisters and three brothers to mourn their loss. The sisters are Miss Ina at home, Mrs. A. E. Greene and Mrs. H. L. MacKeehan of Boston and Mrs. A. E. Nelson, of Oakland, Cal. The brothers are James and Edward, now living in the West and Beverly, of Boston.

Mr. Steeves was an electrician and has been employed by the S. B. Conduit Co. He left here about nine years ago and his name has been empty in Boston. So far as can be learned from sources the accident occurred in the following manner:

"While showing a friend through the Edison power station at Prince and Salem streets, North End, Thursday evening, an employee at the station, whose name and address the police give as Henry Steeves, 147 Brookline street, was instantly killed by touching a live wire. The man was about twenty-eight years old and married. It was nearly 5 p. m., about the time when the power is turned on for the night lighting, when Steeves, with William N. Dunn, an electrician, of 125 Capen street, Dorchester, began to look over the plant. Steeves was explaining the operation of the machinery when he accidentally placed his hand upon a live wire. In an instant his body became rigid and before he could put out a hand to assist him, Dunn saw Steeves fall to the floor. He called for help, and other employees of the power house came to the scene. Dr. B. G. Wernick of 259 Hanover street was called, and at the same time an ambulance from the City hospital relief station was summoned, but Steeves was dead. Medical Examiner McGrath was notified and the body was removed to the North Grove street morgue."—Moncton Transcript.

Loaves Without Wrappers

The Upper Province papers are again engaged in a campaign against "dusty bread," that is against bakers delivering their bread without any protecting covers on the loaves, and under such conditions that the outside of the loaves is not clean.

This is only a renewal of an old story. There have been campaigns of this sort from time to time as long as one can recollect, and yet generally the bakers have gone on to do just as they chose, put just as little flour in their loaves as they wished, deliver it as dust-covered and dirty as they might, charge their customers just what they willed, and then make the customers feel thankful that they got bread at all in time for their meals.

In some cities, we believe, bakers are compelled to have each loaf wrapped in paper before it leaves the bakery, either for delivery by wagon or to go to the shops.

This is the only way in which loaves can be protected from the flying dust of the streets or from the contamination of flies and handling. This is a matter for Boards of Health to deal with.

A Memorial to the Late

Rev. L. M. Wilkins

The Daily Enterprise, Chico, California, has the following reference to a memorial erected to Rev. L. M. Wilkins, who for many years was rector of Bridgetown and other parishes in Nova Scotia.

Rev. E. A. Osborn, the rector of St. John's church, made last Sunday morning the occasion to consecrate to "the glory of God and in the loving memory of the Rev. L. M. Wilkins, a beautiful brass eagle lectern, designed and made by the well known firm of Graham Bros. of New York. This memorial has been erected by the members of the parish in memory of one who has done more under God for the material welfare of the parish than any priest that has lived here. Coming to Chico in the year 1901 he realized the possibilities of the future of the church and through his efforts St. John's stands as one of the best appointed churches in northern California. He left Chico in 1906 and soon afterwards died suddenly in Chicago, leaving behind him a fitting testimonial of his work as a priest of the church of God."

W. L. Burgess Found Guilty

Truro Man Guilty of Stealing From the Canadian Express Office.

Truro, June 10.—Winburn L. Burgess was found guilty of robbing the Canadian Express company here on May 1909. The jury was only out for half an hour when they brought in a verdict for conviction. His brother's case has been postponed until Monday.

It is just about a year ago since Burgess's brother, who was a clerk in the Canadian Express office, was "held up" at noon hour by three men, who succeeded in escaping with several thousand dollars. Burgess claimed not to have known the men, but investigation showed that his brother was implicated in the affair, and he was arrested in the west and brought to Truro and placed in jail. William Burgess, clerk in the Express office, was also arrested.

Mrs. P. M. Fielding, editor of the Tribune, has been elected a member of the Windsor Board of Trade, probably the only lady in Nova Scotia belonging to such an institution.

Recital of Sacred Music in St. James' Church

The public will remember the rich musical treat given in St. James' church some three weeks ago, will be glad to hear that another "Recital" of sacred music is to be given in the same place this (Wednesday) evening, to which the public are cordially invited. Great interest locally will center in this Recital from the fact that Mr. Chas. A. Munroe, a son of the late Capt. Milledge Munroe, and formerly of Bridgetown, will take a prominent part. Mr. Munroe is now acknowledged to be one of the best, if not the best tenor soloists in the Maritime Provinces. Others kindly assisting are:—Mr. Kiley of Boston, baritone; Mrs. R. W. Elliott, of Sydney, mezzo-soprano; Miss Crowe, of Annapolis, soprano; Mrs. Harry Ruggles, of Bridgetown, soprano. With this aggregation of singers a rich treat may be anticipated. In addition to the above the choir are preparing two splendid anthems:—"There is a Blessed Home" (Marks) "Hark! Hark! My Soul" (Shelby).

MINARD'S LINIMENT RELIEVES NEURALGIA.

Base Ball Match

The first base-ball game of the season was played at the new diamond on Saturday afternoon last, between Paradise and Bridgetown, the score being 16-13 in favor of the Bridgetown "Nine", with one innings due them.

The Bridgetown "Nine" played a careful game, in fact, both teams, considering the weather and the bad condition of the diamond.

Lawrence Harlow, the youngest of the Bridgetown "Nine", did some very clever base stealing, making half the runs for the home team.

With the diamond in good shape and lots of practice Bridgetown could present a good team.

A return game will be played at Paradise on Saturday afternoon next. —COM.

The remains of an old coffin supposed to have contained the corpse of a French-Canadian buried before the expulsion in 1755 was discovered recently by some workmen excavating near the "old willows" at Grand Pre. The upper part of the casket was in a good state of preservation while the bottom and sides were decayed. Not a vestige of the contents remained.

Joker's Corner

BETWEEN THE COURSES

The stranger in the hotel plumped down his bag.

"I want room!" he said.

"No. 371" rapped the clerk. "Second floor."

"It is a good one?" queried the stranger.

"Excellent! The boy will show you the way," replied the clerk.

The stranger took up his bag.

"Right-ho!" he said. "Oh, I say, what's the eating hours in this hotel?"

"Breakfast," answered the clerk, "7 to 11; lunch, 11 to 2; dinner, 3 to 8; supper, 8 to 12."

The stranger dropped his bag again.

"Great Jerusalem!" he exclaimed, "When am I goin' to get time to see the town?" — Answers.

A YOUNG PHILOSOPHER.

Helen's enjoyment of the party given in honor of her ninth birthday was nearly spoiled by the ill-tempered outbursts of a very pretty well-dressed girl who was among her guests.

A peacemaker appeared, however, in a plain and rather shabby child, who proved herself a veritable little angel of tact and good-will.

After her playmates were gone Helen talked it all over very seriously with her mother. She summed it up in this piece of philosophical wisdom.

"Well, I've found out one thing, mamma. Folks don't always match their outsides."

TO MAKE SURE.

"How do you know when your husband forgets to mail the letters you give him?"

"I always put a card addressed to myself among them. If I don't get it the next day I know. And it only costs a cent." — Cleveland Leader.

"What is the baby crying for, my child?"

"I dunno; 'e's always crying. I never came acrawst any one wot looks upon the dark side of things as 'e does." — Punch.

MOTION PICTURES FOR INSANE.

Percival says that the pictures soothe patients and that they watch them without the exciting effects incident to other diversions.

BEST LAND IN THE WORLD.

The land of Canada is the best in the world, but yet it does not produce as much per acre as other countries does. This is because our farmers do not take the full advantage of the resources.

Compare the agricultural products of any Province of Canada with that of Denmark and Belgium and you will see that we have every reason to feel ashamed.

If properly worked the agricultural products of Canada can easily be increased threefold.— Sifting.

SURRENDER.

Bound unto thee by chains of love,
My heart shall peaceful rest,
Seeking no guerdon but thy smile,
No shelter but thy breast.
Not looking back to girlhood years,
I trust to thee my hopes and fears.
The hopes I cherished once alone,
I centre now in thee
Assured thy honor is my own
However high it be.
For I can never even fear
Thou wilt not hold me as thy peer.
Whate'er of pain the future holds,
Concealed behind its veil,
Whate'er of weariness or toil,
My courage shall not fail;
Content to bear whate'er may be,
Since I may suffer it for thee.
Dear heart, I place my hand in thine,
I pledge my all to thee,
I only ask thy constant love.
Thy tenderness for me,
For oh, beloved! this life of mine
Is blended and submerged in thine!

Be Like Weston-Waik it Off, Says Hood

(By Graham Hood.)

Weston, who has just completed his marvellous walk from the Pacific to the Atlantic, is quite as much the philosopher as he is the pedestrian, and during his long tramps—tramps that would put many a younger man to bed under the care of a physician, he has evolved some theories that deserve to be distributed so widely that all the world may know of them.

Practically speaking, every one of us enjoys life and wants to make it last as long as possible. In a word, the lust of living is in every heart. Even those who seem to be the most dissatisfied with things as they are—the misanthrope—the pessimist—the captious critic—all fight hard for life if by any chance it is threatened.

Schopenhauer taught his disciples that life was a burden, in bearing which we were never repaid and never could be; that, in fact, it would have been better for us had we never been born. In spite of all this Schopenhauer clung to life with all the avidity that he could possibly have shown had he been one of earth's most genial optimists. He simply helped to prove what many of us know, that an intellectual theory and a practical philosophy are two entirely different things.

There may be some who, temporarily, deem life not worth the living, but they are few in number, and the sentiments which now possess them will eventually be discarded for views of a more cheerful character. For most of us, on the other hand, life is a most enjoyable condition, and we would do almost anything within reason if we might prolong our stay on earth.

It is here that Mr. Weston's philosophy becomes of practical value, for he teaches a law of health that will lengthen the days of any man or woman who will adopt it and follow it continuously.

To do this, however, it is necessary that we should get out of our present sluggish habits. He does not advocate a new method of diet that can be pursued at home without trouble to anybody. Instead, he seizes us by the shoulders, drags us out of our easy chairs, and setting us upon our feet, bids us walk—walk many miles, eight to ten a day at least.

To many persons this may seem like a serious matter, and, under present conditions, it is; yet there is not the slightest question that were we to pursue this course of treatment the ills that are now bothering us would quickly disappear. The trouble with most of us is that we do not exercise enough. Transportation is so easy and economical that we deem it wise to save a few minutes wherever possible by taking a street car or a subway. It costs but a nickel to do this, and the time it saves may be worth many times the value of the nickel to us.

Logical as this argument may seem at present, we must rid ourselves of such ideas if we are to take advantage of Mr. Weston's gospel of exercise. At first though six, eight or ten miles seems a long distance to walk but if we were to take advantage of every opportunity that we have to walk, instead of riding, comparatively few miles would be left uncovered at the end of the day. By adding a mile or two in the evening, when we have plenty of time to spend in walking, we should find that we had covered the ten miles almost without knowing it.

As a cure for rheumatism, there is nothing better than walking. It may be heroic treatment, but it is the best and cheapest remedy to man. There are other ills, too, that may be walked off just as easily. Disease brought about by indigestion—the ailment caused by eating too much, of the wrong kinds of food—all these things give way to the improved circulation that walking alone can give us.

And then, as Mr. Weston says, these are not the only ills that can be walked off. "Walking isn't only a cure for the body," he insists. "It is a cure for the brain. If you have a sorrow, walk it off! If you have mental worries, walk it off! A good appetite, sound sleep, and the perfect composure of mind that comes after these blessings will solve many problems."

It is "Weston the Pedestrian" who is speaking, but if it was "Weston the Philosopher" he could not utter truer words. For sorrow, for worry, for every kind of mental ill, there is no quicker or surer cure than long walks. If you don't believe this, try it for yourself. Don't sit in the house moping over your troubles. Get out into God's fresh air. You will be astonished to see how thoroughly you can walk them off.

STORY

The Fire Engine

ITS COMING TO SPRINGVILLE, AND WHAT OCCURRED THEREAFTER.

Springville was eleven miles from a railroad. It was quite possible that Springville had failed to realize in any serious way what this deprivation of transportation facilities meant.

Springville was small in area and moderate in population, and the word progress was not in her lexicon.

But there were indications that Springville was getting uneasy. When John Pritchard invented his automatic raker and with true Springville inertness decided to put up his factory in the home village, on Hoop pole creek, where the water power was cheap and good, the beginning of the end of Springville's long slumber was close at hand.

John Pritchard found that he couldn't fill his orders with satisfaction to himself and his customers. He needed the railroad. He told the selectmen so. They shook their heads. He woke up and told them he would have to take his factory elsewhere. They didn't shake their heads quite so vigorously over this, but he received no encouragement.

The landlord of the Springville House who has succeeded his father, and more remotely his grandfather, in the business, sympathized with John Pritchard.

"There'd be a chance for this bunch of stagnation," he said, "if we could give their walking papers to that aggregation of fossils, the board of selectmen—an' the worst of the lot is Ezra Mayhew."

"That's so," John Pritchard agreed and being an individual of few words he tapered off his remarks with a sigh. Three mornings later a young man knocked at the door of Ezra Mayhew's office.

Ezra Mayhew owned a tannery up the Hooppole, and he had a sawmill on the Six-Mile, and he was a notary public, and an elder in the brick church, and president of the board of selectmen.

Ezra Mayhew, gray and stooping, was sitting at his ancient desk in his grimy little office.

"Come in," he said.

The young man entered briskly. "Mr. Mayhew."

"Yes."

"Mr. Ezra Mayhew, president of the board of selectmen?"

"Yes."

"My card, Mr. Mayhew."

He laid the bit of pasteboard on the desk and looked down smilingly.

The old man adjusted his glasses and read the inscription aloud.

"Arthur Brill, manager of the Brill Engine Company, Aurora." He looked up at the smiling stranger.

"Well?" he said.

"Glad to meet you, Mr. Mayhew." The young man cordially remarked.

"I am here to sell you a fire engine."

The old man stiffened up.

"Did you come all the way from Aurora to tell me this?"

"Yes, Mr. Mayhew."

"Fifty-three miles for nothing."

"I believe that is the correct distance. But I decline to admit the nothingness."

The old man frowned.

"Springville has no use for a fire engine," he said with a strong emphasis.

"Does the statement admit of argument?" the young man asked.

"No," snapped the selectman. "We have a well organized volunteer department. It has sufficed for our needs for more than half a century. The best men in the village are members. I myself am connected with Torrent No. 1. We have a hand engine, a bucket company and a hose cart. We are fully prepared for every emergency."

The young man nodded brightly. "I have seen the apparatus," he said, "in its quiescent state. Fate has tion. I noticed, however, that your hand engine is a Button of 1856. Time brings changes, Mr. Mayhew."

"Springville is a conservative village, Mr. Brill, and we are a deliberate and well ordered people. We find that what was good enough for our fathers is quite good enough for us."

"But the hand engine must date back to your grandfathers," said the young man blithely.

The selectman frowned darkly.

"It has served our purpose," he said. "No doubt but it will continue to do so."

"Oh," cried the young man, "you can't fight fire with sentiment. You should see our No. 6. That's Springville size—light, strong, powerful. I'll have an engine sent down from the works. Oh, it's no trouble. I assure you. They'll send an engineer with it, and I'll be delighted to show it off."

The selectman turned around.

"You are wasting your time and efforts, my young friend," he frigidly remarked. "I decline to look at your steamer. The selectmen will decline to look at it. The people of this village—I allude more especially to the taxpayers—will decline to look at it. We don't want your steamer, sir. Take this as an official declaration."

The young man bowed with much respect.

"I appreciate its weight, Mr. Mayhew," he said, "but you are quite sure about the taxpayers—your largest taxpayer, for instance?"

"You mean John Pritchard. John looks at this matter from a purely selfish standpoint. Sometimes I think his factory is a positive handicap to the village."

The young man continued to smile.

"There is Lanlord Bolton."

"More selfishness," growled the old man. "Bolton isn't satisfied to do business as his father and his grandfather did. He wants to spread out, to draw crowds, to get rich quick. We don't believe in that sort of thing in Springville."

The young man nodded.

"I met the agent of the fire insurance companies I patronize," he casually remarked. "He said he would give you much better rates here if you had adequate fire protection."

The old man started.

"Did he say adequate?"

"Yes, Mr. Mayhew."

"That was insolence."

The young man drew back.

"The steamer will be here Wednesday morning, Mr. Mayhew."

"Good day," the old man responded.

"Good day," replied the young man pleasantly, and he was whistling merrily as he walked down the street.

The old man listened for a moment.

"A bright boy," he muttered. "Man of an engine factory, eh? Smart no doubt. I've heard of the concern. They pointed it out to me when I took Emily to the Aurora Seminary. But the boy has over-reached himself this time." And he softly chuckled.

On Wednesday morning, close to noon, the fire engine arrived. A stout team of horses, secured in Clinton, the nearest railway town, drew it over the eleven miles of highway, while a third horse furnished the motive power for the well-stocked hose wagon.

As the little procession passed down the street, the president of the board of selectmen, attracted by the musical jingle of the bell, arose from his seat and went to the window.

"The foolish boy has kept his word," he muttered. "There he is now. Why, he's waving his hand at me."

He turned abruptly and went back to his desk.

That day the selectmen received neatly worded invitations to inspect the steamer.

Each selectman was a member of the volunteer fire department.

The invitations were disregarded. Nor did the unofficial villagers view the newcomer with any degree of warmth.

Young Brill laughed merrily. He speedily asking permission to exhibit the steamer the next evening on the village public square, McKinley Park, and his request was promptly refused.

He was told that the board failed to see any reason why it should encourage the hope that the village would purchase the steamer, or why it should permit idle gatherings.

Arthur Brill laughed again, and promptly mailed to the president of the board his price list and special terms, and a strong guarantee.

The president looked at this enclosure and tossed it aside. But he couldn't help smiling.

"He's certainly a persistent cub," he growled.

The next evening the hotel team drew the steamer to the outskirts of the village and halted it in front of the rake factory. The hose wagon drawn by the landlord's mare, and driven by its owner followed close behind.

The steamer was on the factory grounds and at the invitation of the factory owner, and here young Arthur Brill gave a fine exhibition of the capabilities of the beautiful machine. He took the water from the creek and with the help of the factory foreman guided the nozzle himself.

"She's a wonder all right," said John Pritchard. "It would take a big load off my mind if we had her here in town. But I guess there isn't much use of expecting it soon."

Arthur Brill declined to look discouraged.

"Look here," he said, "how will this do for a name plate?"

He drew a closely wrapped strip of metal from the steamer's tool box, and pulled off the coverings.

John Pritchard stared at it.

"Ezra Mayhew," he repeated, and shrieked with laughter.

That night Lanlord Bolton gave Arthur a warning.

"There's a good deal of feeling against your copper tea-kettle, my clods here who are just fools enough boy," he said, "and we've got some to try to damage the outfit. Look out for them."

That night Arthur and his engineer sleeping beside the steamer, were aroused by unknown miscreants who attempted to enter the building and were met and pummeled severely by the two guardians.

The next morning Arthur wrote to President Mayhew detailing the circumstances, and the president promptly wrote back that such lawlessness would not be tolerated, and that the fire steamer would be properly guarded by the village authorities for a reasonable length of time.

Arthur promptly wrote back that the guard—with the time restriction—would be unnecessary as Taxpayer Pritchard had offered to shelter the steamer at his factory where it would be amply protected until such time as the selectmen saw fit to bring their negotiations for its purchase to a close.

Selectman Mayhew glared at this communication for a moment, but his face softened as he tossed it aside.

"Smart boy," he growled. "I suppose that father of his is proud of him."

At two o'clock the next afternoon, a warm September afternoon, Elroy Green, a market gardener, went into his well-stocked barn, in the east end of the village, in hopes that he could destroy a worthless dog that had annoyed the chickens. His wife had seen the mongrel run into the barn and Ezra had promptly taken down his shotgun and started the chase.

He saw the dog cross the barn floor and in his agitation fired at it. Whether he hit the creature or not is of little consequence. He at last succeeded in setting fire to the barn.

For a moment he did not notice the flame. When he saw it he rushed down the roadway shouting an alarm. The cry was passed on, the bell of the town hall rang, the volunteers came by twos and threes. A half dozen men pulled out the ancient hand machine and headed it toward the fire.

The drag rope was quickly filled, the hub rumbled up the street, followed by hose cart and bucket-wagon—and the Springville volunteer department was in full action.

But the fire had gained dangerous headway. A brisk breeze had sprung up, and the barn was all in flames and blazing embers were whirling through the air.

When the alarm sounded Lanlord Bolton, Inventor Pritchard and Arthur Brill were in close conversation on the hotel porch. They watched the cloud of black smoke rising above the trees and the flying embers.

"Looks like a bad beginning," growled the landlord. "Notice the breeze."

"Lucky it isn't blowing my way," said John Pritchard. "Lucky, too, that we've got the steamer here."

"The steamer is subject only to the call of the Springville board of selectmen," said young Arthur Brill.

The landlord groaned.

"And they're stiff-necked enough to let the village burn up before they'd ask for it. Look at that!" He pointed a finger at the smoke. "It's spreading all right. Say, I'll take the horses down to the steamer and bring it and the cart up here to the hotel. This is a central point. What do you say?"

"I say yes," replied Arthur. "It would be well to be in readiness, no matter what your stiff-necked friends may do."

Twenty minutes later the steamer was halted in the hotel yard ready for action.

"If I am called," said young Arthur Brill, "what water can I get?"

"The fire is close to the Six-Mile creek," replied the excited landlord from his seat on the engine. "I'll drive you to the right spot. Gee, look at that! What are they thinking about?"

It was quite evident that the fire was spreading. The breeze was still brisk and the smoke came rolling up in great volumes.

The inventor and his foreman were on the wagon, the engineer from the Brill factory, the landlord and Arthur made up the engine crew.

"Quite an imposing department," he said. "We shall have to organize after this is over."

The landlord gave a sudden start and clutched the reins over the team with a firmer hand.

"See who's coming," he said.

There was no mistaking the bare gray head and bent form. The pale-faced man in the light wagon behind the galloping horse was Ezra Mayhew.

The young man ran forward.

"Mr. Brill," the old man gasped, "the board of selectmen ask you aid at the earliest possible moment."

"Yes, sir," responded the young man as he sprang to his place. "All ready, Mr. Bolton."

And the apparatus rumbled down the street.

It was a hard fight but the steamer and its crew won it. The light frame couldn't stand up under the powerful stream. It knocked the blazing rope-walk to pieces, it battered down the great barn that was used as a warehouse for green tobacco. For more than two hours that heavy stream deluged the blazing walls and embers; for two hours young Arthur Brill and the Pritchard foreman held the pipe.

Just how much property the steamer saved it was impossible to tell. The old brick church, the most pretentious church structure in the village, was directly in the pathway of the fire, and the handsome home of the president of the board of selectmen for a time seemed doomed.

The hand engine was early disabled by a broken brake rod, and the volunteers were forced to confine their efforts to carry water in the leather buckets.

At five o'clock the last vestige of fire was extinguished, and the tireless steamer was stilled.

Then Ezra Mayhew still bareheaded approached Arthur Brill.

"Thank you, young man," he said, and two blackened hands met. "Get a good rest and a good sleep, and let me see you in the morning."

When Arthur Brill entered the office of the selectman's president the next morning he was given a dignified welcome.

"Mr. Brill," said the old man, with some abruptness, "I am authorized to enter into a contract with you for the steam fire engine you offered us, according to the price and guarantee you named in your circular letter."

The young man smiled.

"That is very satisfactory to me," he said, "I am not in the habit of selling and exhibiting our engines, but I was particularly anxious to place this one."

The old man gave a dry chuckle.

"I don't believe your company would make a mistake if it kept you on the road all the year around," he said.

"Thank you again," said Arthur. "And now I have a little news that may interest you. The John Pritchard factory is to be doubled in capacity."

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 15, 1910.

—It was suggested to the Monitor not long ago that something might be done by the merchants to secure a portion of the large amount of cash that is going out of the town and vicinity to help swell the bank accounts of department store merchants in Upper Canada. Merchants' Day has proved an excellent institution in various towns of the province and might well be adopted by the merchants of Bridgetown. For several years no attempt has been made to attract a crowd, as is usually done in other towns, by public forms of entertainment on public holidays, but in days gone by Bridgetown has given some very successful "celebrations," and the large throngs of out-of-town people that gathered here on the occasion of the King's Memorial Day proves that it only needs some motive to bring the people together and they will not disregard the opportunity. Splendid results have been reported from other towns, and where once tried Merchants' Day generally becomes an established feature.

To make it a success the plan should be well organized, the merchants working in harmony and agreeing upon individual lines to offer discount upon, so that there may be a fair understanding and a fair opportunity for each.

Some offset to the greed of outside merchants and their attractive cash bargains is becoming a necessity if the retail merchants of the towns are to hold what rightfully belongs to them.

"In union there is strength" and what one merchant cannot do individually can be successfully accomplished by co-operation. It is a problem that the merchants must work out for themselves sooner or later, either individually or collectively and the sooner they combine to meet the enemy on his own ground the better.

They must also meet him with his own weapons. The catalogue has undoubtedly come to stay. So has news paper advertising. This paper has turned down several attractive advertising propositions from the mail order houses in the past few weeks. The same methods must be employed by the home merchants as by the outsider if his competition is to be successfully met.

The home dealer might just as well close his doors to the public first as last as to discard his weapon in the shape of advertising, for by doing so he only admits his weakness which the public will not be long in finding out.

—Amherst is preparing a royal welcome for her absent sons and daughters and expects to greet the wanderers by the hundreds on or about the 10th of July. Many will be the happy re-unions of friends and families and old associations will be renewed and home ties abundantly strengthened. These gatherings are becoming very popular and will doubtless in time become annual institutions throughout the country.

Amherst's local paper, the Daily News and Sentinel has contributed a special number finely printed and illustrated which will be a valuable souvenir of the occasion. It gives a large number of important historical and descriptive articles with portraits of the leading men and photographic representations of the industries of the second city of the province. A happy feature is a long list of the absent "sons and daughters" with their present addresses. The Monitor-Sentinel congratulates, the News-Sentinel and heartily wishes the bright and busy town of Amherst success and happiness in their undertaking.

Beautiful Holiday Literature

The new edition of "Vacation Days" issued by the Dominion Atlantic Railway Company is a work of great beauty, of excellent composition and artistic make up. It is safe to say no transportation company in Canada has produced such a gem in the shape of a Tourist Guide. This company has the reputation of tourist business down to a fine science; it is the pioneer in the development of Nova Scotia as a summer playground for all America. The text of this book is by Thos. F. Anderson, a noted journalist of Boston, whose terse pen pictures of every day charms and delights of Nova Scotia prove him to have been in love with his subject. To turn these pages is to catch a breath of the invigorating salt sea air, to feel the meadowiness of veritable Italian days; of breezes fragrant with odors of sweet apple bloom and meadow land of the Evangeline Country. The front cover is a four color sketch showing a large white motor boat, filled with a merry party, gliding over the placid surface of Digby Basin. The back cover contains a photo reproduction of a wreath of mayflowers from the Evangeline country.

The interior illustrations, numbering over a hundred, cover a wide range of vacation life: golfing, bathing, motoring, deep sea fishing, coaching, life in the famous log cabin colonies; also an unequalled series of hunting and fishing scenes.

None the less attractive and valuable to a summer visitor is the folder entitled "Summer Homes in Nova Scotia." The cover pages show a farm house flanked on one side by a grove of silver birches, near which a group of merry children romp and revel in the joyous pastime of kite flying. Also replete with half tones, this book gives the names and addresses of private boarding houses, camps, and cottages in Nova Scotia, shows the rates and gives a list of the attractions in the vicinity of each place. It is this publication which fills the farm homes of the Province each year with desirable summer boarders.

These two books strike the key note of perfection in railway advertisement literature and are invaluable to the Province of Nova Scotia. There is every prospect of a large tourist business this season, to meet which the Dominion Atlantic steamers will make eight round trips per week between Boston and their Nova Scotia water terminals Yarmouth and Digby.

A GOOD ANSWER.

To the question propounded by Mayor Rose, "Where will the people employed in the liquor business find work when it is prohibited?" Dr. Dickie said:

"In one of our Michigan towns the 'wets' were wiped out the other day. A saloon-keeper's wife went over to a neighbor's and began to storm about the people taking away her husband's business. 'What am I going to do when he has to close up?' she exclaimed.

"The neighbor had a woman scrubbing the floors, and this woman could stand it no longer. 'I'll tell you what you can do,' she said, with flashing eyes. My husband has been getting $12 a week, and he has spent half of it in your husband's saloon. Now that the saloon is to be closed he can support me, and you can have my job here at scrubbing.'—Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

The Ladies of Bridgetown May Now Have Beautiful Hair. Mr. Warren Has the Article and Guarantees it to Grow Hair.

Mr. Warren, backed up by the manufacturers of SALVIA, the Great Hair Grower, guarantees it to grow hair.

SALVIA destroys Dandruff in ten days. The roots of the hair are so nourished and fed that a new crop of hair springs up, to the amazement and delight of the user. The hair is made soft and fluffy. Like all American preparations SALVIA is daintily perfumed. It is hard to find an actress who does not use SALVIA continually.

Ladies of society and influence use no other.

SALVIA is a non-sticky preparation and is the ladies' favorite. A large, generous bottle, 50c. The Scobell Drug Co., St. Catharines, Canadian distributors.

TUNNEL OR BRIDGE?

Sir Robert Perks Thinks the Former

Would Be Better at Quebec.

The question as to whether the ill-fated Quebec bridge should be replaced by a tunnel instead of by another overhead structure was discussed by Sir Robert Perks, Bart., in an interview with The Standard.

In view of the fact that tenders will be called early in May for the construction of a bridge the plans of which have been strongly condemned by The Scientific American, the question is one of great public importance. There are few men more competent than Sir Robert Perks to pronounce on the relative merits of bridge versus tunnel, for the firm of which he is the head has carried out some of the greatest engineering works of modern times, including the Manchester Ship Canal and the famous Severn Tunnel. His firm also prepared the plans for the now defunct scheme of building the Channel Tunnel between England and France, which scheme was killed by the War Office, while the firm is now completing the first tunnel through the Andes, to connect Argentina and Chile by railway.

"The proposal to construct a tunnel instead of the proposed Quebec bridge is a perfectly feasible one," said Sir Robert recently, "and undoubtedly in the long run a tunnel would prove far more satisfactory. The St. Lawrence River at that point is no wider than the Severn River at the point where we constructed the Severn Tunnel. That tunnel connecting England with South Wales, under what is really the Bristol Channel, is, with its approaches, about eight miles long, and took four years to build.

"I take it that a tunnel and approaches for the St. Lawrence River would have to be about the same length. One of the great difficulties to be encountered, however, in replacing the bridge by a tunnel, is the fact that the railways which would make use of it have all been built on the high level, and the grades would have to be changed for tremendous distances.

"As to the question of cost, the bridge would cost, I should say, $12,500,000, and you can safely put the cost of a tunnel at three times the cost of a bridge. The Severn Tunnel cost $25,000,000."

"How does the cost of maintenance compare?" Sir Robert was asked.

"The maintenance of a tunnel is very much less than the maintenance of a bridge," he replied. "With a bridge there is a very large annual sum to be spent for maintenance, and then you have to consider that a bridge shows continual deterioration. With a tunnel, these conditions apply to a much more modified extent, so that in the long run a tunnel is cheaper and more satisfactory than an enormous bridge of this kind. Another consideration is that while a bridge may possibly prove too low for the huge ships of the future to pass under, a tunnel offers no possibility of interfering with river traffic."

Asked how deep the tunnel would have to be below the bed of the river, Sir Robert replied that twenty feet would be ample.

Red River Funerals.

A funeral service in the early days on the Red River was usually conducted at the house of the deceased and, as a rule, only those attended who had received personal invitations. Either before or after the service refreshments were served to all present. The funeral service was lengthy and always included a long sermon, which is still the practice in many parts of the country. Hearses were unknown, and to have carried the coffin to the grave in any kind of a vehicle would have been considered as a mark of disrespect to the memory of the departed. The shrouded coffin was, therefore, borne on a bier by four men who every few minutes were relieved by another four, and so on until the grave was reached. It is related that on the death of Hugh Ross, a Hudson Bay factor, his body was carried in this manner for more than eighteen miles, from Little Britain to St. John's. The journey took a whole day. At noon the party halted where a cart containing provisions met them. Here they had dinner, after which they resumed their slow march, reaching the place of burial just as evening was coming on.

And thus the early Selkirk settlers lived and passed away, leaving their children to till the Red River farms and extend the bounds of the little settlement, to establish which Lord Selkirk gave the best years of his life and the greater part of his fortune. It came through many vicissitudes and it survived many dangers; and although it again saw dark days during the brief reign of anarchy under Riel in 1887, it outlived them all, and finally expanded into the Province of Manitoba. That Canada today has a Great West is in some measure due to the fact that the banks of the Red River had the Selkirk settlers.

Australian Lads Coming.

A report from D. H. Ross, Canadian Trade Commissioner to the Australian Commonwealth, just received at Ottawa, announces the planning of an invasion of Canada and the United States by a party of Australian school boys in 1911. The trip will be made under the auspices of the Young Australian League of Western Australia. This league, which has a membership of over 400, recently sent a party on tour throughout their own continent. Now it is proposed to send forty to Canada next year, with a view to carrying out the purpose of the organization—to broaden the outlook on life,—still further. The cost of the trip is estimated at $50 per head, and already districts are subscribing money for boys to be nominated locally.

"The movement is spreading," says Mr. Ross's report, "and instead of the forty boys from Western Australia, it is now considered a desirable matter to arrange for 400 boys from all parts of the Commonwealth, to leave in a steamer chartered for the purpose on a trip to the most important parts of the British Empire.

"The example of the young Australians might be emulated by Canadian lads in the interchange of visits from the coastal provinces to the interior and from the prairies to the seaside."

"The Union Depot."

"The Union Depot," a local talent comedy will be given in the Bridgetown Court House, Monday evening, 20th inst, for the benefit of the Recreation Hall Fund.

This play was written for the purpose of entertaining and amusing people and truly succeeds, abounding in bright dialogue and funny situations keeping the audience in continuous roar of laughter. It is full of snap, hustle and bustle such as one sees at a Union Station where trains are constantly coming and going, where you see every type of humanity. We see Mrs. Chattermuck, who carries band boxes filled with cats, birds, and an endless array of ruffian, and insists on telling her troubles to everybody. Mrs. Garrulous, who relates her matrimonial experiences, the widower making love to the aged spinster, the staid business man, the nagging woman, the country bridal party the henpecked husband, smart dude, school girls, Madame Patti, opera singers, bootblacks, and newsboys. Also Miss B. Constreet, of Boston, will be there with her paralyzing English. Uncle Joshua Hayseed and his wife, Aunt Sarah, Deacon Langface and many others. Come out and enjoy this most novel entertainment.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

Meet your friends at the Union Depot.

Yarmouth celebrated its Natal Day on June 7th.

Come out and have a good laugh at the Union Depot.

Read carefully T. G. Bishop & Son's adv. in this paper each week.

It is reported that Thelbert Rice of Bear River will shortly move his store polishing works to Nictaux to be near his granite quarry.

Angus M. Gidney, former member of Digby county has been appointed Chief Collector of Customs at Digby, succeeding the late J. M. Viets.

The evangelistic singer, who is to conduct the services in the Baptist church on Sunday next will also give his assistance in a service on Thursday evening.

The summer time-table of the D. A. R. provides for the "Owl" train to Middleton on Thursday and Friday evenings to Annapolis Royal on Saturday evening returning the following mornings.

Outlook:—On Tuesday, Gilbert, the little son of Mr. Wm. Hart, picked up a loaded cartridge on the street and applied a match to it. The cartridge exploded blowing off the thumb and finger of his left hand.

The house of Mr. Norman Willett at Granville Centre was burnt to the ground last evening, the fire starting about six o'clock. Nearly all the contents were consumed. There was some insurance on the house, but the loss will be heavy.

One page of this issue of the Monitor-Sentinel is filled with the adv. of John Lockett and Son, who are advertising a discount of thirty per cent on all lines of their extensive stock. Bargain hunters need not send their cash abroad when it is possible to get such "snaps" at home.

The little son of Mr. Harry Egan has been critically ill with appendicitis the past week. It was decided yesterday to send to Halifax for a specialist and Dr. H. K. MacDonald is expected by the noon train today. After examination, if he concludes that it is advisable he will operate.

The marriage of Dr. C. F. Fraser, Superintendent of the School for the Blind, and Janie C. R., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Stevens, "Burne Brae" Brooklyn, Kings Co., will take place in St. James' church, Brooklyn, on Wednesday, June 15th, Rev. J. M. C. Wade officiating. They will reside at Bedford.

Among the graduates of Acadia Seminary, last week were Misses Marguerite Hicks of Bridgetown and Lillian Hicks of Clementsport, who obtained certificates of standing in the piano-forte course; and Miss Grace Ruffee, daughter of the late George Ruffee, of Bridgetown, who obtained a teacher's diploma in piano-forte course.

Amherst is going to have a clean town and the example of her town authorities might be followed by others. The Amherst News says:—"The town has entered several actions against property holders who have failed to clean up their premises as required by the by-laws of the town. Others will follow, as the authorities are determined to enforce the law."

Mr. James Videto, of South Farmington, has handed the Outlook a report of the catches in his shad net which he set in the Annapolis river on the Capt. F. A. Brown property. On May 11th he got 22; 12th 52; 16th 53; 17th 23; 18th 29; and 23rd 22. This is a total of two hundred and one shad. Mr. Videto also caught two salmon, one of which weighed about fifteen pounds.

The town of Windsor is making an effort to secure cheaper power for its manufacturers and refers to several Ontario towns where as low a rate as $9.00 or $10.00 per horse power can be obtained. Quite a contrast to the rate charged by the town water commissioners for power for the Monitor Office, where a rate of eighty dollars per year is charged for little more than single horse power and one ordinary tap.

The following sent us by a correspondent refers to a former Bridgetown boy:—A recent paper from Helena, Mont. announces the incorporation in that city of a new real estate firm with $40,000 capital stock. A townsite in the famous Prickly Pear Valley has already been purchased by the firm which they are now letting off. F. C. Leslie one of the incorporators who will be head salesman of the firm, will leave shortly for Chicago and St. Paul to place the property on the market.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

Follow the crowd—they are going to the Union Depot.

Mackerel, which are generally plentiful at this season are very scarce and high.

Prof. Goldwin Smith, the noted journalist and author of books, died at his home in Toronto last week.

Get your tickets early and avoid a rush at the Union Depot, Monday evening. On sale at J. W. Beckwith's.

It is reported that Rev. A. F. Newcomb has successfully undergone a surgical operation and that it is believed the crisis is passed.

Rev. G. R. White, Baptist minister, well known throughout the maritime provinces, died suddenly at Charlotte town, P. E. I., Tuesday.

The choruses, drills and musical specialties in the Union Depot are particularly attractive. The best singers will take part in them.

Ten thousand persons witnessed the military review under Sir John French at Halifax on the 9th. Over two thousand men took part in the review.

In addition to other vocalists mentioned elsewhere in this issue the St. James' choir will have the assistance of Dr. Carmon Johnson at their recital this evening.

The marriage is announced to take place on Wednesday morning, twenty-ninth inst. at the Parsonage of Miss Mary Johnson, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. G. F. Johnson to Rev. Aubrey S. Tuttle, of Alberta.

Invitations are out for the marriage of Miss Margaret Anne Marshall, daughter of Mr. Robert Marshall, of Clarence, to Mr. Herbert Franklin Williams, to take place at the bride's home on Tuesday, the twenty-first inst.

Mr. Guy Irving Waltz, Gospel Singer of Boston, will conduct the services next Sunday, morning and evening, in the Baptist church of this town. Mr. Waltz has a wide experience in evangelistic singing, having conducted musical services from Maine to Mexico.

The children of St. James' church Sunday School, principally the younger ones, are preparing an entertainment of songs and recitations, which they purpose giving in their school-room next Wednesday evening, commencing at 7.30. To this they ask the modest admission price of 15c. for "grown-ups" and 10c. for children. They will also have some made candy for sale. Proceeds go toward the S. S. library fund.

A former Bridgetown boy now residing in a western state proves his appreciation of the old home paper by remitting his subscription for three years in advance. When asked if he had not made an error he affirmed his intention of having his paper paid for well in advance as it had become a necessity to him, he "could not be happy without it" and would feel still happier to have it paid for. May his shadow never grow less.

J. W. Bigelow of Wolfville is quoted by a city paper as making most optimistic estimates of the fruit crop for this season:—"I repeat that although it is too early to determine the coming crop, blossoms have set well and show no damage from frost, and with favorable weather we may expect a crop of about a million barrels of apples for export. Plums, pears and all small fruits promise an abundant crop. It is significant that while nearly all the continent reports damage by frost, Nova Scotia has not and never lost an apple crop by frost."

The Yarmouth Times says of the entertainment which is to be given here Monday night:—"The 'Union Depot,' which was given on Tuesday evening to a packed house was a huge success. The play was under the management of the Beck Entertainment Bureau, and in aid of the Yarmouth Concert Band. About thirty-five of our best local talent took part and the whole affair went off with a swing. The acting of the various leading characters was good, and all the choruses were catchy and loudly applauded. Many promising voices were heard among the 'kiddies', especially that of Master Percy Porter"

FIXE HUNDRED HOMELESS IN SEATTLE.

Seattle, Wash., June 11.—Fire broke out in the Northern water front during a hurricane late last night was carried by the wind to a district to the eastward thickly covered with wooden buildings and in a short time twenty acres were ablaze causing a loss of $1,000,000 and rendering five hundred people homeless.

PERSONAL

Mr. Ronald Whitway is in Halifax.

Miss Martha Burgess, of Old Barns, Colchester county, is a guest at the Rectory.

Mrs. C. M. Hoyt, of Middleton, has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. I. Munro.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Turner spent Sunday at Annapolis as guests of Mrs. Turner's parents.

D. Garnet Morse, of Lawrencetown, has matriculated from the University at McGill as a doctor of medicine.

Mrs. R. W. Elliott and children, of North Sydney, are spending a few weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Beckwith.

Mr. Lloyd Potter, of the Union Bank staff of Annapolis Royal, was the guest of friends in town a few days of last week.

Mr. Mark Curry is leaving shortly on a trip to Europe in company with friends and will spend a couple of months in Germany.

Mr. W. C. Jones, customs officer of Clementsport, was the guest of his son, W. V. Jones, D. A. R. stationer agent, for a day or two last week.

Chipman Bauckman, of Roxbury, Mass., is occupying his summer home at Upper Clements. He will be joined by Mrs. Bauckman and daughter in a few weeks.

Mrs. Harry V. Barrett, of Newton, Mass. and daughter, Miss Blois Freeman, arrived in Shelburne last week to open their summer home, and will be joined by Mr. Barrett later.

Mr. Kenneth Dodge, who has filled the position of baggage-master on the Boston for the past month, has returned home, compelled by ill health to take a period of rest.

N. Curry, of Montreal, president of the Canadian Car Company, has presented Acadia the sum of $25,000 for the endowment of a chair of engineering, to be named after his son and to be known as the Ivan Curry chair of engineering.

One of the most gorgeous sights of America is the apple orchards in the springtime. Some of these orchards are of immense extent, and looking down on them from the hill tops they present a mass of color.—Busy Man's for June.

A. H. MacKay, Superintendent of Education, has intimated that an instructor in physical and military drill will be stationed at Wolfville next Autumn provided a sufficient number of pupils can be secured. This course is compulsory for teachers in Nova Scotia. Instruction is free and will be given to anyone desiring it. Provision is made in the Summer School of Science whereby teachers may qualify for the elementary certificates during the session of the school. Eighteen scholarships of from $10 to $20 in value are offered for competition at the session of the school.

NEW MAGAZINE

"The Busy East" is the name of a new periodical just issued from a St. John publishing house for the purpose of booming the eastern part of Canada and New Brunswick in particular. The first issue is very creditable and attractive. It states its mission in this wise: "To promote, encourage, and extend the manufacturing, commercial, and general interests of eastern Canada."

The cover is lithographed in three colors, and shows four scenes, entitled, shipping agriculture, fishing and lumbering. There are thirty-two pages of reading matter and advertisements and many very interesting illustrations. The editorial matter is breezy and the special articles well written. It contains contributions from the boards of trade in St. John, Fredericton, Campbellton, Chatham, Sussex, Woodstock, Newcastle, St. Stephen, and Moncton, and special articles of various kinds.

The editor and manager is W. T. Guest, and the magazine reflects much credit or his ability and energy. Even better things are promised in the next issue.

Winnipeg, June 2.—A heavy snow storm last night along the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway between Medicine Hat and Calgary, and over Southern Alberta has interrupted wire communication between Calgary and the coast, and only one wire is working with Winnipeg. The storm appears to extend into the mountains. Three or four inches of snow fell which alternated with sleet, pulling down many telegraph wires and seriously hampering train operations.

Here's the Truth, Madam, About Brown Breads

A prejudice, is an imaginary truth surrounded by falsehood. Which reminds you of the Brown Bread prejudice, the Whole Wheat Idea and the Food Fads.
 If, Madam, you will kindly introduce us to the brilliant individual who started the fallacy that Brown Breads is sounder, more substantial, more sustaining than White Bread made, say from FIVE ROSES flour, we will gladly undertake to put him right. For, you see, we deny the allegation and, if necessary, would face the "alligator".
 This is the how of it, Madam. Brown or "Graham" Bread is made from Graham Flour. Which, of course, is just common flour with the bran added—lots of it, from 25 to 100 per cent. maybe.
 Now, Bran is nothing but the woody fibrous husks of the wheat berry which are utterly indigestible in the human food tube, and therefore absolutely useless as nutrients. Might as well eat an orange plus the skin, a banana plus the peel, a cocoanut plus the shell.
 So that, Madam, if YOUR brown bread contains 25 to 80 per cent. bran, worse than useless as food, it's a very costly fad. Aren't you paying too much for your whistling?
 Then think that whole bread made from FIVE ROSES flour contains no waste at all, being 100 per cent. pure nutrition. Moreover, the sharp, horny particles in bran-charged flour (Graham) tend to irritate the alimentary tract.
 "Any attempt to eat brown bread three times daily without intermission very quickly resulted in setting up a diarrhoea with well-marked disturbance of the stomach. This was one of the many valuable contributions to science of Sir Lauder Brunton who established the fact of this cumulative irritating effect and even gave to the resultant "irritation of the stomach" the name of "BREAD GASTRITIS".
 This, Madam, lest you lend too ready an ear to calumnies against White Flour. For we make FIVE ROSES, and from it YOU can make bread infinitely more substantial, sounder, tastier, more sustaining, more digestible and healthful than the very best of brown or whole wheat breads. Ay, Madam, and infinitely cleaner—for it's impossible to purify the low-grade flour and bran in brown bread like we clean FIVE ROSES. We work on it.

Girl and Boy Gardeners Wanted

There is a novel epidemic raging in a number of the cities of the United States. Its special habitat is, like that of many other fevers, the crowded and neglected parts of these big cities, the kingdoms of ash barrels and garbage heaps. It shows itself in the spring, the premonitory symptoms may be detected for several months earlier. It rages especially among school children. Their parents and teachers are, of course, deeply concerned about it, but none of them have sought an endowment from Mr. Rockefeller to discover and annihilate its germ. In fact they don't want this epidemic cured, for it is none else than the garden fever, and it results in transforming the ugliness and insanitariness of the old-time backyards into bowers where flowers and fruit abound. And it has this better result, that it employs these children usefully, delightfully and in a way which makes a wholesome preparation for adult life.
 In South Chicago, where Upton Sinclair found his angle, in the midst of the smoke and the smells of the packing houses, there were last year twelve hundred gardens started by school children at their own homes. Some of these gardens were pathetically unlike what one expects a garden to be, no doubt. But every one means a little bit of a garden in the soul of the child who planned and attempted the reclamation of the dirty, smelly miniature wilderness which had lain at their back doors.
 One day last spring the head of the compulsory education department planned a raid and threw twenty extra truant officers into the South Chicago district. In the middle of the afternoon one of these pedagogic sleuths spied a bunch of children intently engaged in looking over a fence. Now looking over a fence in school hours is truancy. The truant officer descended on the group like an eagle on his prey. In fierce tones he demanded why they were not at school, what school they ought to be at, and what they were looking at, anyhow. Then out of the centre of the group looked straight at him the amused eyes of the school principal herself. With a rosebush in one hand and a trowel in the other she explained that a new order of nature study had been introduced into the school.
 In the official bulletin of the department of health of Chicago these gardens were thus notified:
 "They (the gardens) serve to keep the yard clean, to add to the revenue of the family, and to furnish crisp, fresh vegetables for the family table. Collections of cans and rubbish and stagnant pools have given place to small neat-looking gardens filled with cabbage, onions, parsley, beets and corn, and here and there a fringe or bed of flowers. Seeing this we do not wonder at the lowered death rate of babies in that ward."
 In Detroit, for some years, it has been the custom for many owners of vacant lots to allow the people of the neighborhood to cultivate these lots. Many a struggling family raises its winter's supply of potatoes in such a way, with great incidental gain to the young folks of the family. No factory legislation in the world will ever propose to forbid children working in the open air upon their own beds of vegetables or flowers.
 This is the best kind of technical education. It is just because the farm provides this kind of education that the boy from the country comes up to the city and wins out in competition with the boy who has seen more wonders but has never made any wonders appear. Nature is the great magician. It is in partnership with her that all the wealth and beauty of the world are produced. Her workshop is the right place for boys and girls to be apprenticed. And the enormous benefits which the children of Nova Scotia derive from the technical training beneath the roofs of the schoolhouses would be crowned and cemented if their industrial education were carried on out-of-doors as well.
 The secret of child education lies in combining work and play. To make toil interesting—and to make play disciplinary—those are not two tasks but one. And whoever succeeds in uniting them has guessed the riddle of childhood. It is good for children to work, no doubt, but it is not good for them to drudge in weariness and hot anger at the unfeeling or unintelligent authority that forces them to the hated task. That is the way to teach a child to hate work. And it is good for a child to play—but it is not good for a child to run wild in play without order or discipline. When a game of baseball is one long quarrel, when gangs of boys hunt for wanton and forbidden joys, the spice of which lies in their disobedience, or when the only share taken in the game is to yell in reasonless applause for one's own side and equally reasonless fury against the enemy, play becomes frivolity and tends to undermine the sources of strength in the child.

In Case of Accident

These instructions may prove of especial value at this time of year, when you are enjoying or contemplating an outing at lakes and rivers and may be the means of saving many lives.
 Swim up behind the drowning person and grasp the hair, being careful not to let him seize you. Turn the person on his back, if possible, and get his head out your chest, you swimming on your back. In this manner you can keep above water much longer and more easily.
 It is disputed that there is such a thing as death grasp or grip, it being claimed that drowning people relax before death and are not capable of gripping anything tightly. Be that as it may, avoid letting a drowning person get a grip on you that would prevent your swimming. He may grasp the rescuer in fright and possibly render him helpless. If the drowning person should grasp you and you were in danger of sinking, you would be justified, if possible, in striking him a stunning blow upon the temple and rescue him while unconscious, bringing about consciousness from shock later. Do not get excited yourself if you can help it.
 Restoring Those Apparently Drowned.—Do not lose valuable time in carrying the patient back from the water; every moment is precious. An exception to this rule would be made if there were danger of freezing. Give plenty of air; if there be wind place the patient's face downward toward it. Tear the clothing away from the throat and chest and work vigorously. Slip the chest sharply with the hand. Rough treatment is a life-saver now, and must be resorted to in resuscitating the victim, however distasteful it may appear.
 If these methods do not succeed in reviving the sufferer, proceed to expel the water from the chest and stomach by the method used in the life-saving service, which is as follows: Place patient on face with a large bundle of clothes, a stone, or keg or some like substance beneath the stomach. Press heavily on the back over the stomach to expel the water by the mouth.
 To Promote Respiration (Breathing)—Remove coat and shirt of patient, turn on back, put roll of clothing under the shoulders, allowing the head to drop back, freeing the throat. Use a handkerchief or cloth wrapped about the forefinger to clean the mouth of mucus, pull the tongue to one side to prevent it slipping back and preventing breathing. If no assistant be present to hold it, tie a string about the tongue and fasten the string to neck or lower jaw.
 Grasp the arms below the elbows and draw them steadily upward by the side of the patient's head to the ground, the hands nearly meeting. Then lower the arms to the side and front of chest over ribs, drawing the arms to the patient's head. This should be repeated every five or six seconds.
 If there be more than one person

I FEEL IT MY DUTY

To Give You a Statement In Regard To 'Fruit-a-tives'

HARDWICKE, MIRAMICHI, N.B., Jan. 17th, 1910.
 "I feel it my duty to give to you and the world an unsolicited statement in respect to the wonderful cure I received by taking 'Fruit-a-tives.' Chronic Constipation was the complaint I suffered with for years. My general health was miserable as a result of this disease, and I became depressed and alarmed. I was treated by physicians without the slightest permanent benefit, and I tried all kinds of pills and tablets but nothing did me any good.
 I saw the strong testimonial in favor of 'Fruit-a-tives' by New Brunswick's 'Grand Old Man', the Hon. John Costigan, and I knew that anything he stated was honest and true and given only to help his fellow-men. I tried 'Fruit-a-tives' and the effects were most marvellous, and now I am entirely well from all my Chronic Constipation that I suffered from for so many years. My general health is once more excellent and I cannot say too much to express my thanks for the great benefits derived from taking 'Fruit-a-tives.'
 A. G. WILLISTON.
 'Fruit-a-tives' is not gotten up by druggists or expert chemists—who know nothing about disease and the needs of the human body—but is the scientific discovery of a well known physician, and is the only medicine in the world made of fruit juices. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At all dealers, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.
 assisting, one may sit astride the patient at his hips and press hard and upward on the chest, while the other attends to the arm movement as here before described. If a third, he may look after the tongue as mentioned. This hard, energetic work should be carried on for hours, if necessary, before giving the patient up for lost, as lives have been saved after being long in the water. Do not get discouraged; you are making the fight against what is certain death if you fail.
 After the first few trials of establishing respiration have failed, place the patient in first position face down and if possible free the lungs from any remaining water.
 The limbs may be spatted with a wet towel and rubbed vigorously. Sometimes salts may be applied to the nostrils. The body should be warmed by applications of bottles of hot water, hot flannels, heated bricks. Any faint, short gasps should be assisted at breathing.
 After Treatment.—As soon as breathing is established the patient should be stripped of all wet clothing put in a comfortable bed, given small doses of whiskey, or alcohol and water, and allowed to rest for days. The danger of death is not yet passed. After reaction sets in the patient experiences great difficulty in breathing, and death follows if action is not taken at the time. A large mustard plaster over the chest and assistance in artificial breathing is to be used.
 CENSUS OF CHINESE IN CANADA; SAID TO BE 20,000
 Toronto, Ont., Feb. 22.—(Special)—A census of Chinese is now being taken in Toronto, as part of a general census of Chinese in Canada. The census is to enable the Chinese government to determine how many representatives the Canadian Chinese may send to the Chinese provincial legislature.
 There are said to be 20,000 Chinese in Canada.

The Fire Engine

 "Did you have anything to do with that?"
 The young man laughed.
 "I had something to do with it getting the necessary capital. And Springfield is to have a railroad."
 "A railroad!" gasped the old man.
 "And is that some of your work, too?"
 "Not exactly. But my father, who is interested in the East Shore, made the directors see the necessity for a cross country branch in the spring. The old man stared at his caller.
 "You are a very revolutionary young person," he slowly said. Arthur drew a little nearer.
 "There is one thing more, Mr. Mayhew," and his voice dropped. "It is the particular thing that brought me here. You have a daughter at the seminary at Aurora."
 "Go on," said the old man.
 "I met your daughter last winter, sir. I need not say that I admired her at first sight, nor that my admiration deepened into a much stronger feeling. We—we have a partial understanding—all depending on your favor, sir—and—it was to gain your good will that I came here. I was an entire stranger, Mr. Mayhew, and I and I thought that the best way to approach you was on the business side. That's why I brought up the fire engine subject, sir."
 "Wait," interrupted the old man.
 "Do you mean to tell me that my daughter Emily is at the bottom of all this rumpus—that she is responsible for the new fire engine and the railroad and the big factory?"
 "If you want to put it that way," laughed Arthur, "I really think she is."
 There was a little silence.
 "There's no use fighting fate," said the old man presently. "If you are determined to have Emily and Emily wants you," he hesitated and suddenly put out his hand, "why it's an unconditional surrender, son."

Dropsy

Given up by Doctor

"I had dropsy, and was told by my family physician that there was no chance for me. My family also gave me up. My limbs and body were swollen one-third larger than natural, water collected around my heart and I had to be propped up in bed to keep from smothering. I took Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy until I was entirely cured. This was in 1902, and I am now able to do any kind of work on my farm. My cure was certainly marvelous."

L. TURLEY CURD, Wilmore, Ky.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy has been wonderfully successful in relieving heart trouble. Its tonic effect upon the heart nerves and muscles is a great factor in assisting nature to overcome heart weakness.

RED ROSE TEA. "Is Good Tea"

"LET'S" Port Lorne. "Choose a man that says 'Let's,' my dear, or else teach him to—that's my advice." And pretty good advice I fancy, says Ruth Cameron. "Let's" is just a little word, but the spirit of it is a very big spirit. Not only in matrimony, but in other relations. You can lead a balky horse when you cannot drive him. You can often lead the sensitive, difficult child by the lead rein of "Let's" when you cannot drive him, with the whip and rein of "Do" and "Don't." You may be able to win the hearty co-operation of your office by an occasional "Let's" when the perpetual "Do" would win you only eye service. "LET'S"—yes, it's a very, very little word, but don't allow it on that account to slip down out of sight in the crevices in your memory.
