NINETEENTH YEAR

THE CROWN'S DAY AT NAPANE

High Constable Sills Started the Testimony and Miss French Told a Very Straight Story Which Hit the Prisoner Mackie Pretty Hard-Mr. Baines, Detectives Wilkes and Others Gave Interesting Evidence.

Napanee, Aug. 11.-[Special].-To-day was the Crown's day all along. The identification of Holden, Pare and Mackie as tramps that looted around Hawley's Point and Wigwags' barn last summer was a strong proof of part of Pare's confession. The statement by witness Mix that he had seen a strange man in light clothing talking to one of the tramps at the meeting place, while a bicycle stood against the fence, made "Bill's" friends take a choking breath, but W. B. Northrup, Q.C., cleverly turned this little item, and Napanee breathed more easily. Miss French's story was considered "a corker" by the Crown, but there was nothing in it to implicate Ponton. To-morrow night an adjournment will be made. The Crown will ask the magistrate to commit the prisoners on the evidence produced, and the defence will object to a committal. If the magistrate decides to try the case then the Crown will declare its case not closed. If the magistrate decides not to try the case then a thorough criminal investigation must go on before him. In that case an adjournment must be had till the defence can gather its witnesses together. It is understood that Magistrate Daly will try the case, if the evidence is strong on either side. He will give his ultimatum to-morrow afternoon. The arrest of John Roach is daily expected. The country is being scoured for him. The description of this crook runs in this wise. John T. Roach, 21 years old. He stands 5ft 8 1/2 inches, his hair is light brown, his eyes blue and complexion fair. His teeth are good. His home is in Kingston, Ont. His occupation is that of a clerk. His photo was taken by the Toronto Police May 8, 1893, when he was under arrest in Toronto. At the time of writing it is reported that Roach will be in evidence to-morrow. The defence claim that to properly present their case they must have Messrs. Durand and Green present, and this would necessitate a delay of ten days. If the voice of the Napanee folk were listened to, Magistrate Daly would try this case, for he is first in respect in this town. Late to-night the defence obtained track of a very important witness, who will be put on the stand to-morrow afternoon. This witness will give positive proof that for two weeks in July Pare and Holden were not near Napanee. Where they were and what amount of money they found during the two weeks will be clearly shown. The defence claim that this witness' testimony will be sufficient to shatter Pare's confession altogether. To-morrow will be a startling day in this trial, both for the defence and the Crown.

HIGH CONSTABLE SILLS

Gave Evidence as to Arresting Holden and Pare.

After court opened this morning High Constable Sills was sworn, and in response to Mr. Oler's questions testified as follows: "I saw Holden and Pare together a year ago on Aug. 21, 1892. I arrested these two men while they were going south across the swing bridge. I had searched these men for half a day previously. My attention had been called to them. I brought them to the police station. I searched their pockets and found on Pare a small piece of an umbrella, turned into a sharp right angle, and some small change. On Holden I found a bit of soft wire. On the change on the two men I found a cartridge of coppers done up in a piece of footed paper. It was a 25-cent cartridge. I put the men in separate cells in the police station. The next morning they were brought up before the magistrate and discharged."

Discovery of the Keys.

The witness testified to discovering the keys that Pare spoke of. "I found a small piece of broken file, sharpened at one end, and a piece of bent steel with the top beveled. The wooden bench was pried up. I found these in the dirt underneath. I went to the Dominion Bank. I took the cap of the combination of the safe, and found that the key fitted the keyhole of the combination exactly."

To D. H. Preston, Q.C., the witness said that notice was given in the open court about the search.

"I also picked up a piece of lead pencil and a piece of old nail, but no other tools. I searched only one cell. I made the test in the safe in the presence of Manager Hill, and I made a note of the arrest on Aug. 21, 1892."

The witness here produced his note-book, showing the entry he had made on Aug. 21, 1892.

"I arrested the men because they could give no proper account of themselves. The cartridge of coppers was found on Holden."

Holden and the Coppers.

"How do you identify Holden?" "Without casting any reflection upon Prisoner Holden," replied the witness, "I may say he has a face that could not be easily forgotten."

The witness could not recall any discussion he had had with Holden about these coppers.

"What did Holden claim you were mistaken about?" asked Mr. Oler.

"In regard to a statement I had made in Boston, Holden said, 'It was not me who had the cartridges; it was the other fellow,'" said the witness.

"To Porter the witness said that he did not try to unlock the safe. 'I simply fitted the key in the keyhole. Last year I was with the detectives but little.'

"Did you hear Detective Dougherty say that Ponton would have a coffin instead of a brass band before the trial ended?" "I did not hear exactly those words," said the witness.

"Mr. Oler objected to this question, but Mr. Porter appealed to the magistrate, who ruled the question out of order.

The witness said he asked Pare yesterday, "Where did you stand when you saw the watchman look into the bank window?" And Pare replied, "On Centre-street."

"That was all I said relative to the evidence."

To Lawyer W. G. Wilson the witness said, "I did not open the safe with the key. I fitted where the box was planted. I have not been there since it was discovered since its discovery. The tramp resort was

THE LORD MAYOR OF LONDON COMING TO AMERICA.

Col. Horatio Davies, the Lord Mayor of London, will leave that city on the 18th inst. for New York where he ought to arrive about the 25th. His daughter, Miss Davies, will accompany him. Why should not the Mayor of Toronto take advantage of this fortunate coincidence and invite the distinguished visitor to come on to this city? Why should we not invite him to open the Industrial Exhibition, and, if it is possible, to assist in the opening of our new City Hall?

We trust if the Lord-Mayor of London should decide to accept Mayor Shaw's proposed invitation that he will not forget to bring with him the trappings of his office and official paraphernalia. The citizens of Toronto would be immensely delighted to see a genuine Lord-Mayor's outfit and pageant. The Lord-Mayorship of London is the most gorgeous civic office in Europe. If the Lord-Mayor of London should come to Toronto he will receive an ovation even superior to that extended some years ago to Li Hung Chang.

A loyal and dignified cablegram to His Lordship will, we are satisfied, meet with his acceptance. The details of the arrangement could be followed up by letter.

Horatio Davies, Lord Mayor of London.

Accompanied by a daughter, the executive of England's capital is to leave on the Lucania on her next westward trip across the Atlantic for the purpose of paying a visit to America. The visit is noteworthy, because it is the first time that any one occupying this civic office has come to this continent during his incumbency. Mr. Davies has risen by force of trade shrewdness, from obscurity, to great wealth and high position.

This idea grows on us as we write. If Col. Davies should accept an invitation, why should he not bring with him his state coach and gorgeous livery of his office? The City of Toronto would willingly undertake to bear all the expense connected with his carriage across the ocean.

And if anyone were to ask us what would be the most fitting exemplification of the growing feeling of fraternity between the Motherland and Canada and the amplification of the Imperial idea, we should say that it would be the Lord-Mayor of London riding in state to open the new buildings of Toronto, which are the outcome of the same municipal institutions which have been the glory of municipal life in the Old Land.

Miss Davies, daughter of London's Lord Mayor.

In his approaching visit to America, Horatio Davies will be accompanied by Miss Davies. She is one of a family of seven, the little they lead to home being one of genuine English country comfort.

British Consul Ramsden Dead.

Santiago de Cuba, Aug. 11.-Mr. W. Ramsden, for over 35 years British Consul at Santiago de Cuba, has just died at King's Jamaica. In the 58th year of his age. He leaves a widow, three daughters and four sons, one of whom is British Vice-Consul at Manila.

Mr. Ramsden's services throughout the war, his efforts to bring about the surrender of Santiago with a view to avoiding further bloodshed, and his kindness to all Americans with whom he came in contact, entitled him to their consideration.

A Spill on King East.

It generally takes a dog fight or a runaway to draw a crowd, but in this case it was the spill in prices of 500 colored shirts in Swoill's window, 55 King-street east, that caused the crowds to stop and gaze at the marvelous values. Just think: Shirts worth $1, $1.25 and $1.50, selling at 50c each, and just the size you wear, too. Only a few left. Come quick.

THE NEW EXALTATION OF WOMAN.

The highest type of beauty, so the critics tell us, is the female form divine. Sculptors and painters have modelled and limned it and poets have sung it from the very dawn of art.

And the highest type of morality is, so the moral rhapsodists tell us, female purity.

We are all taught to worship the female form and the virtue of woman.

There is a country adjoining ours where woman is carefully nurtured and where she is worshipped. In no country is so much money spent on the gentler sex as in the United States. There is nothing the most of the United States would not do, the fathers, the brothers of that country would not do, for their daughters and sisters.

How do these daughters and sisters repay this devotion?

Every French soldier, so Napoleon said, had a marshal's baton in his knapsack, and every girl of promise in the United States dreams of a coronet, of marrying a nobleman—English preferred—of not marrying a United States man. In other words, the Yankee Venus and Diana want no Yankee Apollo in their!

The greatest glory that has struck the United States these days is not that Spain has been defeated, but that the daughter of Levi Letter of Chicago is the wife of the heir to an English title and is to be vicereine of India, second only to the Queen! Every United States home is tingling with the delicious sensation, "Ode Gioiri," too, is waving with delight thereat, and every United States girl is dreaming of not marrying in her own country, but out of it—of marrying some one who is not her countryman.

We say that we know of no sign of the time more significant than this: That the Yankee beauty, who is worshipped at home, looks abroad, ignores the companion of her brother, dreams of flying off to Europe like the Vanderbilt, the Leiter, the Bradley-Martin, the Gould daughters, to European titles and European husbands.

And we know of nothing to so much disgust the many young American as the weakness of the girls of his nation, this preference of theirs for a foreigner over him, and of this weakness of the American press and nation, the one to laudate out and the other to swallow, all the gush about Conserio Vanderbilt and Mrs. Curzon in their "widened spheres of social influence."

If the Yankee boy is not worthy of the Yankee maid, then has the Declaration of Independence been a failure. If beauty and purity disdain his own kind, what can we think of that kind?

The public dearly loves a lord, but the Yankee girl adores and must have one, and the Yankee press and public will swallow any amount of gush each and every time she catches one.

"Solon Shingle," the stage embodiment in our boyhood days of the people to the south of us, used to say, "Education is the crowning glory of the United States." Not so now; the Marlborough being in today the crowning glory of our neighbors, and Mary Leiter as vicereine of India is the apotheosis of American womanhood; the newer and more-to-be-desired exaltation of the woman. Indeed, we will not be surprised if some of the United States newspaper gushers will not stop at the privilege of using the "Hall Mary" of the title, in referring to Mr. Curzon's American wife.

Three Councils Were Held Yesterday and at 9.40 p.m. the Signatures Were Attached Which Ensure a Cessation of the War-Instructions Wired to M. Cambon Empowering Him to Sign Peace Preliminaries.

Madrid, Aug. 11.-10. p.m.-The Government has received the protocol, and the Cabinet Council rose at 9.40 p.m. The government will wire M. Cambon to-night, empowering him to sign the preliminaries of peace.

The day has been diplomatically one of the busiest since the outbreak of war. There have been no fewer than three Cabinet Councils, in addition to various diplomatic conferences. Though the text of the protocol was not received until the evening was well advanced, the Government had been made fully acquainted with the contents through Paris.

The matter was practically settled at the Cabinet meeting this afternoon and the receipt of the actual document, therefore, only required a meeting of the Cabinet for a formal acceptance.

Ministers adhere to the statement that the protocol contains no modifications of the original terms, but only new suggestions. They expect it will be signed at Washington to-morrow (Friday), and that a suspension of hostilities will be announced.

Duke Almodovar de Rio, Minister of Foreign Affairs, assures the correspondents of the Association Press that the negotiations for the peace treaty will take place in Paris, but he says the commissioners have not yet been appointed.

TERMS OF THE PROTOCOL.

The terms of the protocol will not be officially published until the instrument has been signed.

These are among the points covered by the protocol:

The cession of Porto Rico to the United States, together with other Spanish West Indian islands, not including Cuba.

The relinquishment of sovereignty over Cuba.

The cession of an island in the Ladrones.

Recognition that the United States shall temporarily occupy the city and harbor of Manila, until the final decision as to the disposition of the Philippines is reached.

The appointment of a commission to determine the final disposition of the Philippines.

The constitution of a peace commission to arrange the future of the Philippines, with the place and time of meeting.

The suspension of hostilities to follow the formal signing of the protocol.

The evacuation of Cuba to be arranged by a commission of captives.

The disposition of the Spanish warships now in blockaded Cuban ports to be settled by the commission of captives.

Raising of the blockade against Cuba.

Certain fortified posts, such as Morro Castle and Port Cabanas, to be occupied by United States troops at the discretion of the President.

Spanish soldiers remaining in Cuba until the end of the rainy season to perform police duty and preserve order.

A special commissioner to be appointed to co-operate with Capt. Gen. Blanco in the direction of affairs.

The Spanish municipal governments to be continued, as was done at Santiago, until such time as the evacuation shall have been completed.

Spanish officials to be permitted to collect revenues with the exception of those imposed upon the importation of food products.

Arrangements to be made for feeding, if not compensating, such Spanish soldiers as shall be employed in police duty.

And we know of nothing to so much disgust the many young American as the weakness of the girls of his nation, this preference of theirs for a foreigner over him, and of this weakness of the American press and nation, the one to laudate out and the other to swallow, all the gush about Conserio Vanderbilt and Mrs. Curzon in their "widened spheres of social influence."

CHEEKY TALK FROM RUSSIA

Novoe Vremya is Pleased With Lord Salisbury's Attitude.

Result of the Cession of Port Arthur and T'ai-Lien-Wan Will Not Show for Some Time-Russia's Military Position on Indian Frontier Fully Organized to Meet British Will.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 11.-Following in the footsteps of The Novosti, The Novoe Vremya eulogizes the Marquis of Salisbury for the wisdom with which he keeps in check the Russophobia outbreak of members of his party and the prudence with which he endeavors to obviate all pretext for misunderstanding between Great Britain and Russia.

The paper says it observes that "unfortunately more than half the British public share Mr. Chamberlain's views," but cannot understand "why the Russophobes are apprehensive of the Russians at Port Arthur."

The Novoe Vremya then says: "The results of the cession to Russia of Port Arthur and T'ai-Lien-Wan will not show themselves for some time to come. A considerable period must elapse before these ports can serve the purpose for which they were intended, so that he could go back to his people with character undimmed. Accordingly, this concurrent resolution was drawn up and passed: 'Resolved, by the Legislature of the State of Nevada, the Governor concurring, that the drink of whiskey taken by Johnson Sides in the Magnolia Saloon July 11, 1887, be and is hereby annulled.'—The Bits.

Bent's Retrospective Bill.

That passed in 1887 by the Legislature of the State of Nevada, under the following circumstances: Johnson Sides was a chief of the Nevada Indians, who had made for himself a name as a temperance lecturer. But one day, "being sick," he took a drink of whiskey in the Magnolia Saloon, and he was observed by some men, who straightway put the report about, and Mr. Johnson Sides' reputation was likely to be lost. He was, however, an Indian of influence, and, appealing to his white friends, he represented that something must be done, or he would become an outcast from his tribe.

As Sides had always been a fair Indian, and he begged so hard, two or three Indian fellows in the Legislature agreed to fix things so that he could go back to his people with character undimmed. Accordingly, this concurrent resolution was drawn up and passed: 'Resolved, by the Legislature of the State of Nevada, the Governor concurring, that the drink of whiskey taken by Johnson Sides in the Magnolia Saloon July 11, 1887, be and is hereby annulled.'—The Bits.

Montreal, Aug. 11.-Lieutenant Carranza is still here, but he has engaged passage on the Dominion Line steamship Scotsman, which sails on Saturday for Liverpool.

Expelled by Imperial Order.

Ottawa, Aug. 11.-Hon. David Mills this morning, on being asked what is the status of Lieut. Carranza, he having been expelled from Canada, and returned without leave, refused to answer, stating that he could only answer that question to His Excellency. It must be remembered that so Canadian authorities of Russian exiles in this case, the expulsion having been ordered by the Imperial Privy Council. Another high legal luminary accustomed to dealing with such questions, was asked the same question, and replied:

Lieut. Carranza was expelled, not under any Canadian law, but by Imperial order. He was expelled for an offence against a friendly nation connected with a war then going on. That war has ceased, and the occasion of offence being removed no offence can exist in his returning. He may not be persona grata to Canadians, but in this country there has room for everybody."

The Earl of Minto.

St. James' Gazette: The Earl of Minto, who is succeeded Lord Aberdeen as Governor-General of Canada, is, like his two predecessors, a Scotchman. He is 53 years of age and has had previous experience of life in the Dominion. He was military secretary to the Governor-General from 1863 to 1868, and served in the operations against the rebels in 1865. He was formerly a lieutenant in the Scots Guards, was attached to the Turkish army in Bulgaria and Turkish war, 1877, and served in Afghanistan 1879 and Egypt 1882. He succeeded the title in 1890. His younger brother is Hon. Arthur Elliot, M. P. for Durham, and editor of The Edinburgh Review. Lady Minto, a sister of the present Earl Grey, is a daughter of the late Lord Grey, private secretary to the Queen and the Prince Consort. Lord Minto is wealthy and is reported to be a good speaker. He is a Liberal-Unionist.
