The instruments were recovered presently from the hiding-place, and with the theodolite on his shoulder Venables stepped boldly on to the lawn in front of the house, and gravely went to work. The windows were opened, and a glimpse of well-furnished rooms could be seen in the background. A couple of maids stood in one of the windows, and watched the strangers curiously.

"It looks respectable enough," Venables muttered, pretending to be exceedingly busy. "You may depend upon it, this is a tougher job than we anticipated. These servants are all right. You may be sure that they know nothing of what is going on. However, to make certain, I'll ask them for myself."

Venables approached the window and asked civilly for the loan of a small piece of string. He came back presently, after a chat of a minute or two, and once more appeared to be wholly engrossed in his instrument. At the same time, he was telling his companions the information which he had gleaned.

"I knew I was right," he said. "The house has been let furnished to an Italian gentleman called something or another. I didn't quite catch what, and the people only came down yesterday. Those servants go with the frehold, so to speak, and they have all been in the present situation for some considerable time. Their master is a city stockbroker, who, with his family, is on the Continent for the next month or two. If we are lucky, we shall probably get a sight of the Italian presently, though I expect we have all got a pretty shrewd notion who the gentleman is."

The work proceeded gravely for a quarter of an hour. Levels appeared to be figures in the notebooks. Presently, as Walter glanced around him, he drew a deep breath, for there was no mistaking the identity of the slim figure that emerged from one of the open French windows and came striding eagerly down the lawn. "Silva," Walter said under his breath. "Don't pretend to see him till he gets quite close. I think it would be a good thing if we left all the interviewing to Venables."

The Italian approached the group and superciliously demanded to know what they were doing there. He looked upon the master of the place in his cool, dandy suit. He had a cigarette between his strong, white teeth.

"Why are you trespassing here?" he demanded. "Don't you know that this is private property? Go, or I will call in the police and give you into custody."

"The police won't help you in this case," Venables said with the air of a military man who is quite sure of his ground. "We are here on government business. I don't know if you understand what I mean, but we are surveying, and nobody has a right to interfere with us, providing we do no damage. We can come into the house if we like. Indeed, I am not quite sure that we shan't have to, if you have got a flat roof, sir, with railings round, if we have occasion to take the theodolite up there. It will ring the bell and let you know."

The whole thing was so coolly and naturally done that Silva was taken aback for the moment. Evidently he had come out of the house full of suspicion, and with the fixed intention of getting rid of these intruders as soon as possible. There was an uneasy look in his eyes as Venables suggested the roof of the house as the field of action. He deemed it wise to shift his ground altogether.

"That will be very inconvenient," he said, in quite another voice. "I hope you will be able to manage without that. If you can. However, if you will give me an hour's notice, I disengage."

But Walter was no longer listening. He was standing up regarding the house with a professional eye. His gaze vaguely took in a dormer window immediately under the roof. There were bars to the

LITTLE MILADI LINGERIE.

This summer little girls are literally to be garbed in lingerie from head to foot. Not only are white frocks trimmed elaborately with flouncings, beadings and edgings of fine muslin embroidery, but the big white hats, which are set well back from the brow, are formed entirely of fine needlework trimmings. The crowns of such hats may be made of the square Corday order, or mob shape, or have flat-topped, puffy sided Tams. The brims are invariably frilly, for several rows of accordion, knife or box plaited lace and embroidery ruffles are employed in their making. The crown has a tulle or with twisted satin ribbon, which falls in loops and ends over the back. This may be drawn forward and tied beneath the chin, thus transforming the headgear into a bonnet.

S. John Dramatic Club Will Produce A Sailor's Sweetheart.

Another large and appreciative audience greeted A Sailor's Sweetheart in the Opera House last evening. All the members of the cast rendered an excellent account of themselves. The choruses and specialties went with a swing and the general expression of opinion was an enthusiastic performance in St. John had ever been given with more artistic finish and completeness. AT THE PRINCESS

Although these nights are very warm and it makes one uncomfortable to walk, the Princess Theatre is as cool as could be wished for. The eighteen large windows afford the most perfect system of ventilation of any house in the city. For the balance of this week the best comedy bill ever produced in this city will be put on. The Novice Tight Rope Walker is one of the best comedies ever photographed. It shows the experience of a woman who, after attending a circus, endeavors to walk the tight rope. If you have not laughed for years you will laugh when you see the picture. Medicine Baitons tells the trouble that the servant of a doctor got himself into. The doctor leaves to attend a patient and the errand endeavorers to take his place. The Electric Battery is another of those high class comedies. A Trip to the West 2,000 is a wonder. Do not fail to see it. Those who have not heard A Munroe Dorr, the famous New England baritone, should not neglect the opportunity now offered.

AT THE NICKEL

A regular bumper summer crowd attended the Nickel last evening and saw one of the best programmes of motion pictures ever thrown on a St. John curtain. The premier film was the lovely story of Salvation Army work in the slums of Chicago, "Blue Bonnets," or the rescue of two golden-haired children from the clutches of a drunken father. There were two very funny comedies, Miss Pimpernell's Gown and the Frightened Neighbor.

The Ostrich in America BY FORBES LINDSAY

Catching an Ostrich

Perhaps no member of the animal kingdom has contributed so much to the vanity of the human race as has the ostrich. Since the earliest times its feathers have been used for ornament. The ancient Ethiopian emperors bedecked themselves with them, and no doubt their reported progenitor, the Queen of Sheba, appeared before Solomon with a headdress and cloak of ostrich plumes. In the middle ages the kings and knights of Europe wore ostrich feathers in their helmets, and in these days military officers of high rank wear them. But, of course, the bulk of the 150,000 pounds of plumes marketed every year, at a price of from $7 to $200 apiece, go to adorn the hats of women.

Young Nubian Ostrich Now Very Rare and Fast Becoming Extinct

The ostrich is by far the largest bird in existence, and perhaps the most peculiar. The male stands 8 feet in height and weighs upward of 200 pounds, the American breed being larger than those of Africa. Its plumage is loose and naturally furnishing the commercial product. At one time the birds were very numerous throughout the sandy region from the Barbary States to Cape Colony, but in many parts they have been exterminated by the native hunters, who had no idea of corraling them, but killed those from which they got feathers. They are still sometimes found in troops of 50 or more, but in the breeding season one male and three or four females congregate. This is the case in their wild state, but in captivity they appear to practice strict monogamy. The male makes a shallow pit in the sand, in which the female lays eggs to the number of 30. As a rule with wild ostriches loose eggs are found in the vicinity of the nest which are not hatched, and are believed to be designed for the nourishment of the young chicks. In the daytime the eggs are left to the heat of the sun, but at night are generally guarded by one or another of the birds. At night the male sits upon them, and never allows his mate to interfere in the hatching.

At Close Range

The ostrich is a most ungainly creature, but extremely active. The round, fluffy body between the bare, lony legs and long, snakelike neck give it a bizarre appearance, which is enhanced by its awkward movements. The neck, which, when stretched to the utmost, will enable it to reach an object 10 feet from the ground, terminates in a small, flat head, with large eyes and short, broad beak. The wings are but rudimentary and enable the bird to rise from the earth only a few feet. Despite this, it can move with surprising swiftness. Its stride of 22 feet is camel-like but it covers the ground so fast as to outpace select birds for breeding. It was a bold and decidedly risky undertaking, for it involved a number of quite uncertain factors and a heavy expense. A vessel was chartered and especially fitted up for its purpose. Padded inclosures and other provisions were made, for at that time the seafaring ability of the ostrich was an unknown quantity. On its arrival in Capetown the ship was laden with a vast amount of food, for the ostrich is an enormous eater, and several tons of sand and gravel were taken on board to make the conditions as comfortable as possible to those to which the birds were accustomed. The next step was to secure the birds and specimens procurable, but the expedition aroused the immediate alarm of the ostrich farmers. They feared the threatened competition and put every obstacle possible in the way of the Americans. The government was invoked to prevent the exportation of the birds and eggs, and did, in fact, place an export duty of $500 on each of the former and $125 on each of the latter.

Plucking the Plumage

Scene on an Ostrich Farm

along the bare neck may be plainly seen until it is lost in the mass of feathers. Those who are familiar with its habits, aver that the ostrich can eat any quantity of food and digest any substance. An old keeper stated that a lady's veil is the only thing that he ever knew to be too much for an ostrich, while he declared that he had known birds to swallow without bad effect nails, ginkets, lighted pipes, tennis balls and various articles of jewelry. The chicks are striped, and at four years the males grow the glossy black feathers, with white wings and tails, which in the females are a dirty gray. They pair with deliberation, for, once mated, the captive ostrich is married for life. There are no divorces or elopements among them, and should one die the other remains in perpetual mourning and never remarries. A permanent nest is made by the male by squatting and rousing out a shallow place in a favorite spot, though how the birds can make themselves comfortable in it is a matter known only to themselves. The eggs are laid at the rate of one every other day or so until about 15 have been deposited. They weigh three pounds each, and are said to be very delicious, but only millionaires could afford to indulge in them frequently. The sun in California being less powerful than on their native plains, both birds participate in the hatching, the female sitting during the day and the male taking the night spell. The chick begins to hatch after 40 days, and is about 12 inches high when it emerges from the shell, looking not unlike a ball of excelsior. During the first four days it seems to be too high taken up with its strange surroundings to eat, but after that it devours everything that comes in its way and grows at a wonderful rate, rising a foot in a month, until it is six months old and full grown. The parents seem to lose interest in the young ones as soon as they are out of the shell, and in the wild state frequently trample them to death. On the farms the chicks need the greatest care and attention during the first month, after which they display the hardness of the adults.

At the age of nine months the bird is first plucked, if the process may be so described, for as a matter of fact the feathers are not pulled out, but clipped off about an inch from the body. The remaining portion of the quill dries up and is then extracted. There is no pain whatever incurred in the process. The bird to be clipped is driven into a small inclosure and a hood is placed over his head. This renders him quite helpless and passive. The feathers are quickly stripped off, the hood is removed and the bird is allowed another nine months in which to grow a fresh crop.

ama railroad to Colon, about a month before required for this trip alone. The government of Guatemala, in order to bring the country within easier reach of the world, took steps about 35 years ago toward the construction of a railroad from the Atlantic to the capital, about 200 miles, and starting at Puerto Barrios, the principal harbor on the Atlantic Coast. They had succeeded in building 134 miles of the line up to 1886. Work was suspended then because there wasn't sufficient money to carry the railroad over the difficult mountain section. In 1904 the work was taken up again largely through the interest in it of Sir William C. Van Horne, of the Canadian Pacific. Gen. Thomas H. H. Hubbard, president of the Guatemala Central, which covers the 73 miles between Guatemala City and the west coast, also took a hand, and the work was rushed rapidly. Now coffee and bananas, which used to require from two weeks to a month for transportation from Guatemala City to Colon, are delivered at Puerto Barrios in a day, while the traveler from New York to Guatemala City makes the trip in a week instead of a month. Among the highest peaks of the Cordillera the railroad construction was attended with great difficulties on account of the many deep ravines which had to be crossed by bridges. There are many short trestle bridges, and an immense amount of masonry was required. It was necessary at many points to protect the railroad against the mountain streams by walls of rubble work. The chief importance of the railroad is in making accessible to Europe and the eastern part of the United States the attractive city of Guatemala, with its 100,000 inhabitants, which previously was as distant commercially as the Hawaiian Islands. This city, which is the centre of almost the entire trade of the republic, could be reached easily from the Pacific Ocean on which coast Guatemala has no harbors, and passengers and freight have had to be lightered from vessels some distance out. With the completion of the new railroad Guatemala's coffee crop can be delivered in New York with ease. Heretofore it was necessary to lighter the coffee to steamers, then carry it 1,000 miles to Panama, thence across the Pan-

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Are Bringing Health to Weak Despondent People.

There is not a nook or corner in Canada, in the cities, towns, villages and farms where Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have not been used, and from one end of the country to the other they have brought back to breadwinners, their wives and families the splendid treasure of new health and new strength. You have only to ask your neighbors and they can tell you of some nerve-shattered man suffering from weakness or unhappy anemic girl, who owe present health and strength to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Their wonderful effects are due to the fact that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills go right to the root of the disease in the blood, and by making the vital fluid rich and red, strengthen every organ and every nerve, thus driving out disease and pain. Mr. Joseph Lacombe, Quebec City, says: "Today I weigh about 150 pounds more than I did a year ago, and am in every way in much sounder health. For upwards of two years I had been studying hard to pass my examinations, and my health had completely given way under the strain. I lost sleep rapidly, my appetite was gone and my nerves were greatly weakened. I was obliged to abandon my studies and was in a state of complete exhaustion when I consulted a physician, but as I was daily growing weaker I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which I often heard very highly spoken of. The beneficial effects were indeed remarkable for I had not used more than a box of boxes when I could feel an improvement, and hope returned. I continued using the pills for some weeks longer, with the result that my strength increased daily and I was soon able to take over my studies and work with as much energy as I had ever done. Today I am in perfect health and I attribute my recovery solely to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

BLACK ROSES FROM RUSSIA

Flowers have always been used as emblems. Away back in England there was the War of the Roses, the red and the white. Mr. Chamberlain will go down in history associated with the orchid. The Earl of Beaconsfield's love for the rose has been perpetuated by the foundation of the Primrose League. And now there is another chance for some great man, statesman or other, to appropriate to himself the latest improvement upon nature and to hand it down to posterity as the emblem of a party or a policy.

H. Scraphimoff, a master gardener living at Voronezh in Russia, has arrived at St. Petersburg with several specimens of black roses, which he claims to have produced, thereby solving the great problem that has puzzled gardeners for many years.

L. B. Archibald, of Truro, deputy grand master of the Great Priory of Canada, last evening paid an official visit to the encampment of St. John Knights Templar when the temple degree was worked, after which a collation was served and speech-making indulged in. SIR R. HART ON MISSIONS IN CHINA

He Has Very Great Admiration for the Work Carried on by Roman Catholics.

Sir Robert Hart, Inspector-General of the Chinese Maritime Customs, lately gave a Reuter's representative his views on the missionary and educational questions in China. On the former topic Sir Robert Hart said: "I know of no unfriendly feeling on the part of the Chinese Government towards missionaries, and, as a matter of fact, mission work is being carried on peacefully all over the country without the apprehension of danger of any special kind. On the other hand, local indiscretions or outbreaks of local feeling may cause some disturbance, but that there is any hostility towards the missionaries is contrary to fact. There are two classes of missionaries in China—the Roman Catholics and the Protestants. By an Imperial Edict, issued a few years ago, the Roman Catholic missionaries were recognized by the Imperial Government in a very special way. Their Bishops had red buttons and other honors conferred upon them, so that the recognition of the Roman Catholics by the Chinese Government is of a very complete character. As regards the Protestants, they have never sought the same official recognition, but prefer that they and their work should be treated by the people on their own merits. They are doing very excellent work. I am a Protestant myself, but I have very great admiration for the work being carried on by the Roman Catholics, who are much beloved by the people."

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

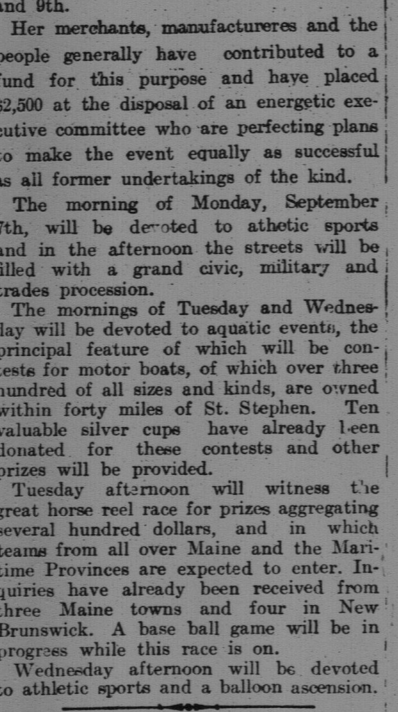

An ointment will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is confined to the goods you can possibly derive from them. Catarrh is cured, successfully, by Dr. J. Chesney & Co., Toledo, Ohio. It is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Dr. J. Chesney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, by P. J. Chesney & Co. Testimonials Sold by Druggists. Price 75c. per bottle. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

ST. STEPHEN WILL CELEBRATE

St. Stephen has not been much in the public eye of late years, but enthusiasm of her citizens is to be vent in a great three days' carnival, September 7th, 8th, and 9th.

Her merchants, manufacturers and the people generally have contributed to a fund for this purpose and have placed $2,500 at the disposal of an energetic executive committee who are preparing plans to make the event equally as successful as all former undertakings of the kind. The morning of Monday, September 7th, will be devoted to athletic sports and in the afternoon the streets will be filled with a grand civic, military and trades procession. The mornings of Tuesday and Wednesday will be devoted to aquatic events, the principal feature of which will be contests for motor boats, of which over three hundred of all sizes and kinds, are owned within forty miles of St. Stephen. Ten valuable silver cups have already been donated for these contests and other prizes will be provided. Tuesday afternoon will witness the great horse race for prizes aggregating several hundred dollars, and in which teams from all over Maine and the Maritime Provinces are expected to enter. Inquiries have already been received from three Maine towns and four in New Brunswick. A base ball game will be in progress while this race is on. Wednesday afternoon will be devoted to athletic sports and a balloon ascension.

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

BENEFITED MISS CLUTTER'S HAIR

Read Her Letter About It:

"I herewith enclose you one of my latest photographs, which will show you what Newbro's Herpicide has done for my hair. Since using your remedy my hair is much longer than it was, and it has that lustre to it that one's hair always has when the scalp is in a healthy condition." (Signed) Miss Madeline Clutter, Flat 210 Chicago, Illinois.

The immense popularity of Newbro's Herpicide, particularly among the better class, is due to the fact that it never disappoints. It does all and more than is claimed for it.

Its delightful fragrance, perfect cleanness and freedom from grease or oil, appeal to the discriminating, and its cleansing, refreshing and health-giving effect upon the scalp is immediately apparent.

Herpicide makes the hair light and fluffy and gives it a silken gloss.

Extraordinarily long hair is a gift of Nature that relatively few possess, but not many would complain if they could save Nature's head covering in its original beauty and luxuriance. The dandruff germ is the greatest enemy of abundant hair. This is on account of the highly contagious nature of dandruff, which makes it almost impossible to escape the disease without the occasional use of a germ destroying solution. Newbro's Herpicide is the ORIGINAL remedy that "kills the dandruff germ." It promptly eradicates dandruff, stops falling hair and (except in chronic baldness), restores the hair to its former health and activity. Herpicide stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

TWO SIZES, 50c. and $1.00, at all Drug Stores. Send 10c. in stamps to THE HERPICIDE CO., Dept. N., DETROIT, MICH., for a sample. Guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act, June 30, 1908. Serial No. 915.

Odd Jobs--Picture Taking

If you know anything at all about photography, keep it up for then you will be able to earn a few extra dollars...

For instance, you get a good picture of the most popular pastor in your neighborhood. These gentlemen are always willing to help you. Snap him in his garden or in his study, print the photos on postcards, and in addition put a few into neat cardboard or wooden frames...

Hints on Health

TAKE TIME TO WALK. The hurried methods incident to modern commercial life interfere in more ways than one with hygienic living.

Coats and Wraps for Summer Wear

The illustrations show a couple of practical and smart coats for wear over summer dresses and one or two such wraps are really a necessary part of any summer wardrobe.

A NEAT ENGLISH COTTAGE

Designed by Charles S. Sedgwick, Architect, Minneapolis, Minn.

This attractive frame cottage has a large screened porch leading into the hall. The front of the house is thrown together by sliding doors, with living rooms on one side and dining-room on the other.

Washable Embroidered Hair Receiver

The small illustration shows a pretty little hair receiver which can be easily made by the home needleworker. Rather heavy white linen is used, the mesh being that of a nature apt to decay makes it a good size, the three sides of the square being scalloped in wash cotton or silk.

The Valuable Habit of Mending

To the woman who has to do much on a small capital there is no knowledge so invaluable as knowing how to mend and no habit she may acquire so valuable as the habit of mending. The French woman owes her exquisite daintiness and neatness largely to her thrifty habit of taking the stitch in time, removing every spot as soon as it appears and putting away her clothes neatly. The woman who buys with forethought and who makes her garments wear for ages and look well as long as they hold together has more money left for culture and amusements.

The Care of the Refrigerator

Although the refrigerator is indispensable for keeping food sweet and fresh, especially in the hot months, it may really be worse than the plain cupboard or table if it is not kept perfectly fresh and clean. The very fact that quantities of food are kept in it that are of a nature apt to decay makes it a breeding place of germs, especially those of typhoid and pneumonia.

Masculine Modes

To describe the correct way of tying a bow tie is rather dangerous to do in print, because some men will not take the trouble to read the directions properly, and so they will get their ties into knots and themselves into fearful tempers. However, here goes: Put the tie around your neck and let the left hand end be about an inch and a half longer than the other end. The exact length depends on the size of the neck and the length of the tie. Then put the left-hand end over the right and tie a single knot.

EPIGRAMS

One excuse is as good as another when a man wants to please himself. Some do not realize that they owe their own reputation for sweetness largely to the caustic temper of someone else. Commonplace people are much less fatiguing than those who call themselves unique.
