District and General.

There is talk of hydro for Wardsville. Watford will submit a bylaw for hydro electric.

The Ontario Legislature will likely meet the second week in February.

Abraham Duncan, of Middlemiss, and Mr. Newton, of the Home Bank staff, Melbourne, have enlisted.

Dan McKellar, of Ailsa Craig, shot a huge wildcat, or lynx, in the woods about four miles southwest of Ailsa Craig.

West Lorne has a list of forty recruits to its credit, nine of whom signed up at a recruiting meeting held Nov. 27th.

Warden McColl of Elgin was presented with an address and a gold-headed cane at the annual warden's supper in St. Thomas.

Hiram Walker & Sons, distillers, of Walkerville, have given notice that their plant will shut down until October next, owing to heavy stocks on hand.

The Melbourne Patriotic Association shipped on Friday to Hyman Hall, London, a box containing 48 grey flannel shirts, 3 pairs of socks and 2 mufflers.

A cow belonging to C. R. McKinley of Plympton, ran against a wire fence, while being driven along the road and injured itself so badly that it died in a short time.

Duff church, Dunwich, has declared again, by 118 to 100, as follows:—Session, for, against 9; members, for 13, against 78; adherents for 5, against 61.

J. Arthur Erskine, of Regina, and Miss Miss Minnie Graham, daughter of D. A. Graham, West Lorne, were united in marriage at the home of the bride on December 1st.

Wardsville Relief Society gave one hundred and fifty dollars to the Canadian Red Cross Society and also shipped to Hyman Hall, London, two boxes of hospital supplies.

Mrs. Ann Shaver, who was probably the oldest resident of Westminster township, died on Saturday. Mrs. Shaver was over 94 years of age and was born near Pond Mills.

Lloyd Kinder, J. McMillan, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents in Dunwich on December 1st.

Robert J. Hine, of St. Marys, died on Tuesday of last week, aged 62 years. Mr. Hine was a prominent farmer of Dunwich township until recently, and the remains were interred in a Dutch cemetery.

A co-operative protective association has been organized in southwold township, with the purpose of preventing the wanton destruction of small game, especially birds, by the sports-loving people of the cities.

C. Dodds, hardware dealer, of Watford, struck a match as he entered the door of a small oil house in rear of his store, igniting some gasoline, which exploded and blew the roof off the building and set it on fire. Mr. Dodds escaped unharmed.

The recent voting in the Presbyterian churches in Canada on the proposed union of the Presbyterian, Congregational and Methodist churches was so unfavorable to the scheme that the matter is likely to be allowed to rest for a long time.

There are a lot of tame black squirrels about Wardsville in which the citizens have been taking a great interest and which they have been trying to protect. Naturally consideration is being given over the action of some pot hunters of the village who recently shot several of them. Stern measures will be taken against the offenders in the future.

Bill Small, a Muncey brave, lost his horse and buggy from in rear of R. Fletcher's store, in Middlemiss village, a few nights ago, with all the groceries he had bought. He had just stepped across to the hardware store to do some shopping, and when he came out his outfit was gone. After vainly looking around he finally struck for home and secured another horse from his stable, and was out nearly all night scouring the countryside, but in vain.

The Late John Martyn.
The late John Martyn, of Alvinston, whose death occurred on November 28th, was one of the pioneer residents of that village and for many years an active member of the milling firm of J. Martin & Co.

The late Mr. Martyn was born July 6th, 1837, at Newlyn, Cornwall, Eng., and came with his parents to this country in 1848, the family settling in Streetville. When a young man, Mr. Martyn engaged for a time in farming at Napier, later removing to Strathroy, where he had an interest in the woollen mill of that place. In 1875 he, together with his brother-in-law, the late R. Pincombe of Strathroy, established a flour mill and stove and heading works at Alvinston, which Mr. Martyn conducted for a number of years. In 1886, Mr. Martyn, in company with the late Geo. Patterson and J. C. Binder built the Alvinston roller mill and elevator, a business which the firm continued until a few months ago when it was disposed of, owing to Mr. Martyn's failing health.

In his younger days he took an active interest in the affairs of the village, being a member of the first village council and also a member of the school board.

Soldier Mysteriously Hurt.

Private Eugene Wallinghood, of Thamesville, a member of the 70th Battalion, came to the door of A. L. Lovell's farmhouse in Ekfrid, about three miles east of Glencoe, at an early hour on Tuesday morning with a severe wound in the head and in a semi-conscious condition. He was taken into the house and Dr. Walker was brought who had him taken to Victoria Hospital, London, on the first train.

Wallinghood's injuries are quite serious. He is unable to give any information as to what happened to him or how he came to be in the neighborhood. It is thought that he must have jumped or fallen off a train during the night while on his way back to London from Thamesville and thereby received his injuries. In his semi-conscious condition he could have made his way to the house of Mr. Lovell, although it is fully a mile from the nearest railway track.

Musical Recital.
A recital by Frank Weaver and Chris. Pink, prominent musicians of London, assisted by local talent, will be given in the Presbyterian church, Glencoe, on Monday evening, December 13, commencing at 8 o'clock sharp, under the auspices of the choir. The admission fee is 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children. Programme as follows:—

1—Sonata No. 1, Mendelssohn

Shooting Match at Strathburn.

The result of the shooting match at Strathburn on Saturday last was as follows:—

- Shotgun range—Dougald Secord, Wm. Welch, John and Dick Graham, Cecil Welch (special)
- 22 rifle range—Wilfred Lethbridge, Harry Moss (special), George Harvey, Long range—Charles Garden, Dougald Secord (special)

The affair was a splendid success, and the proceeds, $39, was handed over to the Battle Hill Relief Society by the manager, Walter Hailstone.

Minstrel Show in Trenches.

Mrs. D. A. Dewar, of St. Thomas, has received from her nephew, George Secord, of Glencoe, who is with the 3rd Field Ambulance Corps, the program of a minstrel show that was put on by the men in the trenches. These programs were sold to the men at one franc (20 cents) each. In this way $580 was raised and this money goes to the aid of the British prisoners who are in Germany.

The Late Malcolm McLean.

On November 8th, 1915, Malcolm McLean, a life-long and respected resident of Mosa township, died at his residence at the age of 69 years, 6 months and 28 days.

Mr. McLean lived on the farm where he died all his life-time and took a great interest in the farm until a few years ago when he met with an accident which forced him to give up the duties of the farm.

In religion Mr. McLean was a Covenant Baptist and in politics a Liberal.

On the 10th of November, 1884, he was married to Miss Catherine Mitchell, of Metcalfe, who, with a family of two sons and one daughter, are left:—Dan M., at home; John D., of Alberta, and Mrs. Darwin Oke, of Brooke. He also leaves two sisters, Mrs. Nancy Ferguson, of Mosa, and Mrs. Elbe Livingston, of Alvinston.

Mrs. Isabella Campbell, whose death occurred ten days later, was also a sister.

The funeral, which was held from his residence on Nov. 10, was very largely attended. The service was conducted at the house by Rev. Dr. Smith, Mosa. Interment took place in the Alvinston cemetery.

Six nephews acted as pallbearers:—James McKinlay, Neil McLean, Dan McLean, Dan Livingston, Malcolm Ferguson and Angus Campbell.

Glencoe Council.

The regular monthly meeting of Glencoe Council was held on Monday evening, Dec. 6. Members present—J. McLachlan, Reeve; Allan McPherson, P. D. Keith and A. J. Wright, councillors.

The report of the treasurer and clerk, appointed to verify the local option petition as to the number of signatures of electors thereon, was read. The report stated that there were on the last revised voters' list the names of 341 qualified voters, and that there were 115 names of qualified electors who had signed the said petition, or 33 more than is necessary to comply with the Act.

A number of accounts were passed for payment, one of $5.50 from the Curling Club for a pump being laid over.

Moved by Mr. McPherson, seconded by Mr. Wright, that the use of the assembly hall of the town be granted to the soldiers for a reading and resting room when the room is not required for court and other purposes. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Keith, seconded by Mr. Wright, that an order for $13.19 be issued payable to the treasurer, this being the amount of the uncollectible taxes for 1914. Carried.

Moved by Mr. McPherson, seconded by Mr. Keith, that Mary McKellar be paid $3.49 for the use of lot No. 15, B. M. s., for a cattle pound in 1914, being the amount of taxes charged to said lot. Carried.

The local option by-law was introduced and given its first and second readings. Council adjourned to meet on Wednesday, Dec. 13th.

Local Option Addresses.

Representatives of the Dominion Temperance Alliance spoke in the Glencoe churches last Sunday, which was "Field Day" for Middlesex county, and a mass meeting was held in the Town Hall in the afternoon.

Mr. Hassard, a Toronto lawyer, spoke in the Presbyterian church at the morning service and in the Methodist church at the evening service, and Mr. Roach, of Toronto, spoke in the Anglican church at the evening service. Speakers at the afternoon meeting were John Patterson, ex-mayor of Galt, Stephen Clarke, manufacturer, of Galt, and Wm. Bayne, merchant, of Newbury. The chairman was Rev. Dr. Ford.

Master George Branton, of Toronto, sang in the three churches and at the afternoon meeting and delighted his hearers. Mr. Bayne's address was in testimony of the satisfactory conditions in Newbury under local option. He stated that business was as good if not better than when the village was under license, and that travelers were all agreed that the hotel accommodation was decidedly better.

On the whole the day's efforts are believed to have been very helpful for the local option advocates.

A Soldier's Pay.

A private soldier's pay is $1.10 a day. A corporal's pay is $1.20 a day. A sergeant's pay is $1.50 a day, and so on; the higher the rank the higher the pay.

When soldiers are billeted out single men are allowed 65c per day, and married men are allowed 85c per day. This is in addition to their pay, and is for living allowance.

When soldiers are quartered and have people dependent upon them, their dependents are allowed $20 per month.

Dependents of any soldier holding the rank of sergeant or higher are allowed $25 per month. This is in addition to the pay drawn by the soldier.

A Soldier's Outfit.

The following are the articles a soldier is supplied with upon enlistment:—2 suits of underwear, 1 pair boots, 1 pair puttees, 2 shirts, 2 pair socks, 1 greatcoat, 1 service cap, 1 sleeping cap, 1 holdall, 1 knife, 1 fork, 1 spoon, 1 razor, 1 comb, 1 lather brush, 1 sweater coat, 1 pair mitts, 1 pair fatigue pants, 2 towels, 1 tin dubbin, 1 cloth brush, 1 hair brush, 1 pair serge pants, 1 serge tunic, 1 kit bag, 1 set badges, 1 set numerals, 1 pair rubbers, 1 pair braces, 1 housewife, 1 waist belt, 1 pair canvas shoes, 1 fatigue shirt.

Methodist Church.

REV. W. G. HOWSON, MINISTER.
Mr. Howson expects to occupy his own pulpit next Sunday morning and evening. The evening subject will be "Watts' picture of The Dweller in the Innermost"; and in connection with that subject, Mr. Howson will tell that tragic story of Victor Hugo's; the smugglers and their sinking ship. Everybody welcome.

New Middlesex Officials.

Captain Thomas Robson, who has been county clerk for a number of years, has been appointed by the Middlesex county council to succeed his father-in-law, the late A. M. McEvoy, as county treasurer. Reeve John Stewart of Caradoc was elected to fill the position of clerk.

St. John's Church.

The Lord Bishop of the diocese will be present in the Anglican church to administer the rite of confirmation next Sunday evening. As the Bishop is very seldom here on a Sunday, it is hoped that a good attendance will manifest their appreciation.

Succeeded in Securing a Foothold in Some Parts of Positions South of Riva, But Were Driven Back

A despatch from Rome says: Perhaps in the hope of creating a diversion and thereby relieving the pressure on Gorizia and their Isonzo lines, perhaps believing that the Italians had weakened their lines in other districts to strengthen their attack along the Isonzo, the Austrians delivered two attacks, the second of great violence, against the Italian positions in the Ponale zone, west of Lake Garda. The first attack was made near San Bartolomeo, a village at the foot of the mountain of the same name north of Salo, on the western shore of Lake Garda. The attack was repulsed.

The second and more violent attack was made north of Pre, on the north bank of the Ponale River. An intense artillery fire preceded the infantry attack. Masses of infantry then were hurled against the Italian positions, and, though thrown back time and again, the assaults were repeated until the Austrian troops succeeded in getting a foothold in some parts of the Italian trenches. A hand-to-hand fight followed, and the Austrians were driven back and routed. Five hundred Austrian dead were left on the field and many prisoners taken.

The Week's Development in the War.
Serbia has been almost completely overrun by the Austro-German and Bulgarian forces. The Serbian army has been driven into Montenegro after suffering heavy losses in their heroic resistance of the invaders. The Anglo-French Expeditionary forces still hold the southern part of Serbia, but their movements are being kept strictly secret. The surprise in the Balkans which Premier Asquith said was being prepared by the Allies has not yet developed.
The attitude of Greece is anything but reassuring, probably on account of the Austro-German threat to invade Greco-Macedonian territory.
Conflicting reports continue to come from Rumania, which country, apparently, is still negotiating with both the Central Powers and the Entente-allies.
Large additional reinforcements for the French and British are arriving daily at Saloniki, while the Russian troops are reported as ready for a strong attack on Bulgaria.
On the western front there have been air duels and artillery exchanges, but no infantry engagements in force. The most violent fighting of the week has taken place on the Isonzo front, where the heavy Italian artillery is battering down the defences of Galicia and drawing additional Austrian troops to resist the Italian attack.
Announcement is made that the French and British Governments have no intention of abandoning the campaign in the Dardanelles.

RECALL ASKED OF CAPT. BOY-ED

Washington Also Demands That Captain von Papen Be Supplanted.
A despatch from Washington says: Demand has been made by the United States upon Germany for the immediate recall of Captains Boy-Ed and von Papen, the naval and military attaches, respectively, of the German Embassy here.
Announcement to this effect was made by Secretary Lansing in the following statement:
"On account of what this Government considers their improper activities in military and naval matters, this Government has requested the immediate recall of Captain Boy-Ed and Captain von Papen, as they are no longer acceptable to this Government."
The action of this Government against the German attaches is due to no single incident in either case, but was based on an accumulation of improper activities connected with the handling of German military and naval matters in this country. The connection of at least one of the attaches with the plot on the part of certain German interests to set Huerta up again in Mexico as a means of embarrassing this Government figured more than any other single incident in the determination to adopt a drastic course towards these representatives of the German Government.

OUTFOUGHT AND OUTRANGED FOR FIRST TIME IN THE WAR

German Wounded Arriving at Ghent Says Allies' Guns Never Give Enemies' Trenches a Rest
A despatch from Paris says: In a surprise attack made south of Lom-bertzde, on the Belgian front, the Germans captured a French advanced post, but again lost it to the French.
Outside of the usual artillery bombardment at various points along the front, the official communication mentions mine-fighting north-west of Fay and the demolition of enemy shelters and a provision depot north of Laucourt, in the region between the Somme and the Oise. French guns put an end to an attempted bombardment of Thann, in Alsace, before any, but trifling, damage had been done.
The Rotterdam correspondent of the Daily Mail, telegraphing, says: "The morale of the German soldiers in Belgium has been shaken by the terrific and sustained artillery fire of the allies. Wounded who have arrived at Ghent say that the allied guns never give the Germans a moment's rest. All are deeply impressed by the vast quantity of ammunition expended."
"The shells pour into the trenches as fast as hailstones," say the Germans. "It is horrible. For the first time in the war we are outfought and outranged in artillery."

ITALY IS PLEDGED WITH HER ALLIES; SIGNED PACT

A despatch from Rome says: Italy has pledged herself not to make a separate peace. An announcement of this step was made in the Italian Parliament by Baron Sidney Sonnino, Minister of Foreign Affairs, who said that Italy had affixed her signature to the London pact of September 5, which was signed originally by Russia, France and Great Britain.
At the same time, Baron Sonnino announced that Italy would send assistance to Serbia.
The members of Parliament, many in uniform, greeted both the announcement with great applause.

EARLY END TO WAR, JOHN REDMOND'S VIEW

A despatch from London says: John Redmond, the Irish Nationalist leader, in a speech at Waterford, continued talks he had with Lord Kitchener at the beginning of the war. Lord Kitchener said to Mr. Redmond: "Can you guarantee me 5,000 men from Ireland; if you can, I will say thank you. If you can guarantee 12,000, I will say I am deeply obliged."
"I am convinced," continued Mr. Redmond, "that so far as the western front is concerned we have got the upper hand definitely. I am also convinced that the war will come to an end sooner than most people believe."

OVER 100,000 MAKING SHELLS

Stupendous Proportions to Which the Industry Has Grown in Canada.
A despatch from Ottawa says: Some idea of the stupendous proportions to which the munitions industry in Canada has grown was given to the members of the Ottawa branch of the Canadian Society of Civil Engineers by Gen. Alexander Bertram, of the Imperial Munitions Board.
At present nearly 100,000 persons are employed on orders amounting in all to 20,000,000 shells. The steel required for the industry from now till the end of next year is 800,000,000 pounds, which will tax the capacity of the Dominion steel plants to the utmost. Nearly 45,000,000 pounds of copper and brass are used, and 102,000,000 pounds of lead. This is more than Canada can produce of these metals, and the surplus must be imported.
Fifteen hundred thousand pounds of tin and 10,000,000 pounds of resin are also required. The value of the shell orders up to now has been $220,000,000, with additional orders of about $180,000,000, making $375,000,000 in all. The number of shells shipped to England so far has been 3,500,000.

ALL LEAVING BRITAIN MUST HAVE PASSPORTS

A despatch from London says: It is officially announced that an order-in-council just issued requires that in all ordinary cases of persons going abroad, British or alien, passports will be required.
The gift of speech is a dangerous possession.
There'd be no trouble in telling all you know if you'd only stop right there.

TOO MANY MOTORS GEN. GALLIENI THINKS

A despatch from Paris says: Generals and other high officers of the French army must get along with fewer automobiles and horses hereafter, by order of Gen. Gallieni, Minister of War.
Informing the Appropriations Committee of the Chamber of Deputies of his decision, Gen. Gallieni said he had reached it as the result of a report prepared in behalf of a committee by Raoul Peret, former Minister of Commerce, and Emmanuel Brusse.

BRITISH GUNS BRING DOWN TWO HOSTILE AEROPLANES

Important German Supply Depot Bombarded and Much Damaged Caused to Stores
A despatch from London says: Twenty British aeroplanes took part in a raid on the German supply depot at Miraumont, behind the German lines, damaging the railway and buildings used for storing supplies at that point, as well as the stores of munitions.
The announcement of the raid is one of several announcements of activity on the part of the British flying corps. British airmen brought down two German aviators in Belgium recently. Two British aviators are reported missing after setting out on reconnaissance flights.

Says Greece Accepted Allies' Demands

A despatch from Rome says: M. Dony's Cochin, member of the French Cabinet returning from Greece, made a flying visit to Rome. He conferred with Premier Salandra and Baron Sidney Sonnino, the Foreign Minister, and granted interviews expressing optimism regarding the situation in Greece.
"The allies," he said, "demanded that Greece make exceptions to the law of neutrality, since they assumed that it was Greece's duty to aid Serbia, and that therefore they were fully entitled to exceptionally favorable treatment. Greece accepted the allies' demands. The question, therefore, is now solved. Negotiations are still pending for the settlement of technical details between the general staffs of the Greek army and the Anglo-French forces."

GERMANY WILL PROCLAIM PEACE

Latest Rumor from German Sources Says Decision Has Already Been Reached.

A despatch from London says: The momentous decision reached by the German Government to permit the discussion of peace in the Reichstag is regarded here as the clearest indication that Germany is prepared to lay down her arms if acceptable conditions can be obtained. The Government's decision, following the authorization given to the German press for a free discussion of an almost unanimous desire to end the war, along with the Governmental sanction of the Socialists' plan to bring about a peace debate in the Reichstag, lends an importance to coming events which it is impossible to over-estimate.
The latest rumors coming from The Hague and obviously from a German source, is to the effect that the Kaiser intends to proclaim peace shortly. It is asserted on the "highest authority," according to the rumor that the Kaiser will send a letter to President Wilson urging him to accept the role of mediator. The letter, the rumor goes on, will declare that Germany did not want the war, which the letter will say, was forced by England and Russia. Atrocities will be denied energetically. The hour is at hand, the letter will continue, to stop the bloodshed and permit Europe to heal her wounds with a bountiful peace.
"Germany will offer, through President Wilson, to evacuate the invaded departments of France and all of Belgium except Antwerp, and to negotiate with Great Britain regarding the possession of Antwerp. Poland will be declared autonomous; the invaded provinces of Russia will be restored, and Serbia's independence will be guaranteed.
"On the other hand, the 'freedom of the seas' is to be guaranteed and special privileges are to be granted to German commerce.
"In case of a refusal of these terms, according to the rumor, Germany is determined upon a war of extermination."

ITALIAN TROOPS FOR GALLIOLI

They Will Also Aid Against a Possible Invasion of Egypt by Enemy.

A despatch from Rome says: In addition to the official announcement in the Italian Parliament that Italy had signed the agreement with her allies not to consider a separate peace, Baron Sidney Sonnino, the Foreign Minister, made the definite statement that Italian military aid would be sent to Serbia, and hinted at a much greater activity on the part of the Italian army and fleet in the Eastern Mediterranean.
Italy will make Albania her base of operations. Already a detachment of Italian troops has been landed at Avlona. Besides, she will co-operate with the Entente powers in the Eastern Mediterranean, which means an expedition to the Dardanelles, operations on the Dalmatian coast of the Adriatic, or even eventual aid against an invasion of Egypt.
This position of the Italian Government was set forth by Foreign Minister Sonnino. At the outset of his declaration he announced that Italy formally signed the agreement to act jointly with the allies to the end. Secondly, he asserted that Italian troops will be despatched to the aid of the Serbians, and "the Italian flag on 'Lalra sponda' (The Dalmatian shore of the Adriatic) will reaffirm Italian interests in Albania, whose independence is indispensable to the strategic defence of the Adriatic."
"Italy is not insensible to Serbia's distress. She is preparing to aid that heroic country," was one of the outstanding points in Baron Sonnino's speech.
Simultaneously with the Foreign Minister's speech was the issuance of a statement by M. Ristich, Serbian Minister to Italy, emphatically denying reports of capitulation in Serbia. "Serbia will win with the aid of the allies or die fighting," the statement said. "In a short time Serbia will be in a position to hurl 200,000 men against our enemies."

PILOT OF PEACE SAILS WITH CREW

Ship's Cabin Decorated With Stuffed Doves and Olive Branches of Peace.

A despatch from New York says: Amid scenes so extravagantly remarkable as to be almost beyond belief, Henry Ford's Peace Ship, Oscar II, backed out from its pier in Hoboken Saturday afternoon, bearing a strangely assorted company that has proclaimed that it will stop the war. The ship was scheduled to hear away toward the expectant Europe at two o'clock, but a series of extraordinary happenings kept it at the pier until just thirteen minutes after three. In the hour's wait the crowd of fully 12,000 that jammed the Scandinavian-American Line dock and boiled over to the side streets cheered, wept, laughed and catcalled as Mr. Ford himself and one or another of his more or less celebrated passengers came to the rail to make speeches or otherwise to entertain.
In all, a careful count of the passenger list shows that 142 sailed in the first and second cabins, which are reserved exclusively for the Ford party, and decorated with stuffed doves and olive branches. At least a dozen more came late and were not listed, and probably 160 made up the party. Of these, however, 39 were listed as newspaper or magazine correspondents, three as movie men, 22 as college students. This would leave 96, from whom must be deducted the multifarious secretaries, assistants and stenographers of Mr. Ford and about everybody else of the peace staff. Probably the actual peace delegation did not exceed fifty.

"FREEDOM" OF SEAS; THE GERMAN NOTION

A despatch from London says: The Foreign Office publishes a statement which it announces was made by the captain of a Swedish steamer to the effect that, before the sailing of a vessel, Swedish Customs houses in all cases telegraph to Berlin information of the sailing and that the vessel does not carry contraband; and that all Swedish vessels leaving the Baltic are stopped at the entrance to the Sound by German patrol boats, which examine the vessels very carefully. In making public the statement the Foreign Office appends the following observation:
"The above appears to be His Majesty's Government to merit being brought to the notice of the public as showing how the German Government in those waters where they have an opportunity for displaying naval activity practise the principle of the freedom of the seas for neutral commerce, which they have so loudly accused His Majesty's Government of violating."

GERMAN FLEET BOTTLED UP. British Mines Have Left Only One Exit For It

The London Daily Express in the course of a discursive article on the navy asserts that it is allowed to reveal a secret long known in Germany to the effect that the British mine fields have been embraced in the German mine fields protecting their channels and harbors and that unless their ships are scrapped for making war material they will stay in the Kiel Canal until the end of the war.
The writer declares, nevertheless, that plenty of space is left to enable them to emerge and fight if they wish, but that they must fight in a place of the British navy's choosing. The British armada of patrol boats is equipped with wireless to ensure against surprise.
He declares confidently that there will be no Trafalgar in the present war. The great final naval engagement of the war, he says, was that of the Dogger Banks in January. He adds that a map showing the German submarines captured recently was shown to newspapermen visiting Admiral Jellicoe's fleet. The map covered only the captures up to June. The operations since then, the writer says, have been far more successful.

Saw the Animal in a Tree.

While out for a walk Pat and Mike saw a little animal in a tree. "Sure now," said Pat, "I never saw a rabbit up a tree before!" "That's no rabbit," replied Mike. "Faith, thim, I'll show ye that it is," replied Pat indignantly, as he started to climb the tree. But that animal was a small very fierce wildcat, and presently there came to Mike's ears sounds of a wild combat and shouts for help. "Pat, Pat," he called out, "shall I come up an' help ye catch the beast? Above the breaking of branches came a hollow voice, which said: "Faith, no; but for pity's sake come up an' help me to let him go!"

GERMAN WORKMEN BLOW UP HUGE MUNITION FACTORY

Several Hundred People Were Killed in Explosion at Halle, Prussian Saxony
A despatch from London says: Destruction of a large ammunition factory at Halle, Prussian Saxony, by an explosion, with the loss of several hundred lives, is reported in a message from Kolding, Denmark, to Copenhagen, as forwarded by Reuters' correspondent. Discontented workmen are suspected, the message says, of having caused the explosion.
It is said a similar disaster was narrowly avoided at Bogden, Silesia. The ammunition factory there, it is reported, was saved by the discovery that it had been undermined.

The Housewife's Corner

Selected Recipes.

Baked Pork Chops.—Into deep baking dish slice layer of raw, par-cooked potatoes, dust with salt and pepper and lay lightly with butter. Repeat until dish is two-thirds full. Pour in enough sweet milk to cover potatoes, place over top layer of lean pork chops, season with salt and pepper, cover and bake until chops are tender and potatoes are creamy.

Vegetable Hash.—One-half cup chopped carrots, one cup chopped potatoes, one-half cup chopped turnips, two cups chopped cabbage, one cup chopped beets, two tablespoons beef fat, one-fourth cup milk or hot water, few drops of lemon juice, salt and pepper. Melt fat in frying pan. When hissing hot, pour in above ingredients, mixed; spread evenly, cover and cook slowly one-half hour. Fold, turn and serve.

Baked Cup Custards.—Two cups hot milk, two eggs, one-fourth cup sugar, one-half teaspoon caramel or gratings of nutmeg. Beat eggs until yolks and whites are mixed, add sugar, salt and flavoring, then gradually add hot milk. Strain through wire strainer into tencups or individual baking dishes, set these in pan of lukewarm water and bake in slow oven until custard is firm. Test by inserting silver knife at centre of custard. If custard is done knife will come out without any milk and egg clinging to it. Serve in same cups or turn out on small plates.

Macaroni Timbales.—Six ounces of leftover meat, four tablespoons breadcrumbs, one egg, one tablespoon stock, one teaspoon each of mushroom catsup and Worcestershire sauce, two ounces boiled macaroni, cut in one-inch pieces. Mix crumbs and meat well together. Add stock, seasoning and sauces; mix well, add egg, well beaten. Have ready small pudding molds. Line with boiled macaroni, fill with mixture, press closely and cover. Stand molds in boiling water up to two-thirds their heights. Cover and boil one hour. Turn from molds and serve. Leftover vegetables may be substituted for meat.

Bake Haddock and Oysters.—Good-sized haddock, two cups oysters, one-fourth cup butter, one tablespoon chopped parsley, one cup cracker crumbs, salt and pepper. Drain oysters and mix crumbs, melted butter and parsley. Season highly with salt and pepper and mix. Remove head and tail and bone haddock. Season with salt, pepper and lemon juice. Stuff with oyster stuffing and sew. Place on a fish sheet or strips of cheesecloth in baking pan, dot with butter, season and bake, allowing twelve minutes to pound. Baste often with melted butter, or after fish is stuffed, place in pan, cover with buttered cracker crumbs and baste. Serve garnished with parsley.

Braised Beef.—Two pounds sticking piece of beef, one cup diced carrots, one cup tomatoes, one-half cup diced celery, one tablespoon salt, two teaspoons sugar, one-eighth teaspoon each of white pepper and paprika, one tablespoon flour, one tablespoon caramel. Wipe meat with piece of wet cheesecloth, put into braising pan (double roast pan), with vegetables, salt, pepper and two cups boiling water. Put on cover and place in hot oven. After one hour add one cup water and reduce heat of oven. Bake two hours. Remove meat to large platter; to the gravy add the flour, mixed with a little cold water and the caramel. Boil three minutes. Pour over meat and garnish with parsley. Serve with border of boiled rice. Enough for six helpings.

Cake Hints.

Here are some things about cake to remember:

A good pinch of salt improves any cake.

Half water, instead of all milk, makes a lighter cake.

If your cake rises in a mountain in the middle, the reason is your dough was too thick.

If it goes down in the middle, your dough was too rich—too much sugar.

The cause of large holes in cake is too much baking powder.

To sprinkle flour in greased pans prevents cake from sticking.

A pan of water in the bottom of the oven keeps the bottom of a cake from burning.

A paper over the top keeps the top from burning.

Useful Hints.

Less sugar is required if a pinch of bicarbonate of soda is added when stewing fruit.

Many expensive preparations cannot equal root ginger for removing toothache. Chew a piece slowly, and in a short time the pain will go.

The most economical method of preparing potatoes is to cook and serve them in their skins, thus preserving their full flavor and valuable salts.

Your eyeglasses will not steam if they are dipped in soapy water and wiped dry. There will be a film of this on the glass, which keeps them from steaming.

To prevent cheese getting mouldy, place a lump of sugar on the cheese dish, changing every few days. This draws out the moisture and keeps the cheese fresh.

To lessen the noise in a busy household, or for an invalid's room, cut neat circles from old rubber heels or old bicycle tyres, and glue them firmly to the legs of chairs and tables.

Handles of all new tools, such as hoes, forks, spades, etc., should be oiled when first purchased. Two coats of linseed oil applied hot will make them last better, and there will be less breakage in this kind.

To mend a hole in a lace curtain, take a piece of paper, place it over the hole, and work down and across with the sewing-machine. When the curtain is washed the paper will drop out, and the darn cannot be seen.

After wearing new boots or shoes for a day or two, apply with a flat brush an even coating of mastic varnish to the soles and heels. Let it soak in thoroughly, and dry. Repeat the process from time to time, and the hardened sole will outwear the uppers.

To mend a hole in an umbrella, take a piece of black court-plaster, cut to the size required, and place it carefully under the hole on the inside. When dry, the patch will be scarcely visible. Vaseline injected into the hinge portion of the frame is a sure preventative of rust.

To many tastes sweet pickles are far more acceptable than acid ones, and they always seem much more of a dainty than the sharper sort. If tender and well sweetened and spiced they often seem like delicious preserves.

Pieces of bread may be dried in the oven and crushed to make bread crumbs. These can be stored and used to sprinkle on cheese and other dishes. Uncrushed they may be served with any soups. Odd pieces of bread and crusts may be soaked and used in puddings, stuffing, etc.

When towels are wearing thin join two together, and make one strong towel. They should be as nearly alike as possible, of course. Corresponding threads on under and upper towels are not always equally worn, and by darning over worn parts they may be made to last a long time.

THE FOREST'S PRIME-EVIL.

By Jas. Lawler.

A man there was and he let his fire burn down his neighbor's shed, but he was tried and sent to jail.

And "Served him right" they said. Oh, years he spends at breaking stone, and he sleeps on a soft plank bed.

For carelessly burning his neighbor's fence, and his fifty-dollar shed.

A man there was and he let his fire burn down a forest wide; millions of dollars went in smoke, thousands of animals died.

Settlers rushed from burning homes, some were burned in their beds; and to-day o'er the place where this was done, a deathlike desert spreads.

And the man went back to his distant home, with a buck and a hunting tale, and none of his neighbors rose to remark that he ought to be sent to jail.

A fool there is and his name is US, as the blindest man can see; if it's jail for the man who burns a shed, while the burner of forests goes free.

FRENCH PENSION BILLS.

Mothers and Widows of Soldiers Will Benefit by New Bill.

Two important reforms are proposed in French pension bills that the pension committee has reported favorably. The pensions of widows are to be increased proportionately to the number of orphans, and pensions will be granted to mothers for the loss of sons who were their main support.

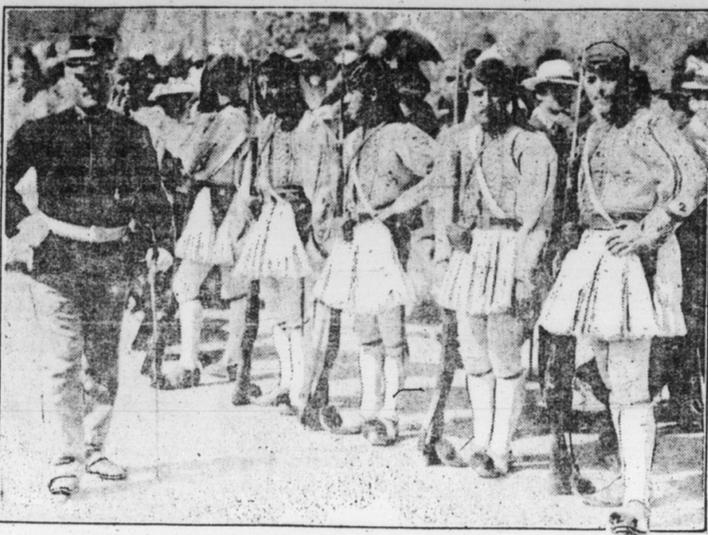

The rates provided for the new law are from 563 francs ($112) for widows of private soldiers, running from that figure through the various grades up to 5,250 francs ($1,050) a year for the widow of a general of division, these figures being subject to increase in the case of orphans. If the soldier or officer died of wounds not received in battle or of disease contracted while on duty, the pensions run from 375 francs ($75) to 3,500 francs ($700) a year.

No statistics of the number of killed and maimed in the French army are available to the public, but the indications given by Monsieur Masse, who knows, are to the effect that France's pension-burden will be heavier than that of the United States after the Civil War.

The less brains a man has the easier it is for him to lose his head.

March 25th used to be the first day of the year.

TEA TIME AT COLLEGE.

Tea time at college, just at candle light, is perhaps the most enjoyable time of the day. The lonely girl from the West meets the lonely girl from the East, and friendships spring up which often endure through life. Many and varied are the topics of conversation at these late afternoon gatherings—clothes, of course, come in for a large share of attention, and often a girl with a small clothes allowance is given a hint or two which helps her to improve her appearance with little added cost.

College and boarding school girls often enjoy an hour or two sewing now and then; it varies the monotony of study and enables them to add effective little touches of their own to frock and blouse, rendering them somewhat different, and more suited to their own personality. At tea the other afternoon, one girl wore a simple serge jumper frock made with short full skirt and sleeveless overblouse and an underwaist of dark blue of the popular notions is the narrow band of velvet, faille, or picot edged moire ribbon, drawn around the waist and tied in long ended flat bows.

Perhaps the greatest number of possibilities for varying the simple dress, when one has a limited supply of clothes, lie in the guimpe. These as a rule are charmingly simple, depending for effect upon the color contrast, the soft sheerness of the material, and perhaps a button or two, or a jewelled buckle by way of trimming. The everyday dress of serge, taffeta, or broadcloth may have a variety of these guimpes for all hours of the day—for morning wear there will be one of plain black satin or taffeta; for afternoon and informal evening affairs, club luncheons, and teas, a guimpe of crepe Georgette, chiffon cloth, or net, in a harmoniously contrasting shade will render the costume dressy enough and most becoming.

Another convenience is the three-piece, semi-tailored suit consisting of coat and skirt, combined with blouse of satin, chiffon-cloth, crepe de Chine or other contrasting material, in the same color or a shade that combines well with the color of the suit. A suit like this is easily fashioned at home, as there is absolutely no sign of the old-time tailored stiffness, padding, and various other things which a few seasons ago made the idea of fashioning a coat at home so alarming. The touch of fur which is so much a part of these suits just now, renders them smart and becoming, as well as warm.

And the novelties noticed on many of these fur-trimmed suits is the "muff cuff." These are wide and flaring, made of fur or a fur fabric, and arranged so that the hands may be slipped into them quite as one of the fur-edged petticoat showing beneath the heavy suit is nevertheless attractive and fetching.

Sir Percy Girouard suffers somewhat from indigestion, and lives on the simplest fare. The malady was induced from his habit of working at meals, especially at dinner. He used to have placed beside him at dinner a small writing-pad and pencil, and during the meal he would work out the most complex calculations, no doubt much to the benefit of the great armament firm to which Sir Percy belongs. But this method of work soon told its tale on Sir Percy Girouard's digestive organs.

Ribbon Trimmed Serge Frock.

crepe Georgette veiling, emerald green crepe Georgette. The guimpe was made with a high collar finished at the top with a tiny frill of white; and closed straight down the front with small dull gold buttons. Narrow black moire ribbon formed the girde, closing on the left side in a small flat bow with long streaming ends. Six bands of the moire ribbon had been set on to the skirt at graduated intervals, giving the effect of flounces, and adding wonderfully to the appearance of the simple frock. The ribbon, which the wearer had herself applied, made the commonplace dress most attractive and unusual.

The simplest frocks or blouses may be made attractive and becoming by adding contrasting cuffs, or an unusual collar; these may be made removable and others substituted at will, thus achieving a pleasing change when the dress is becoming somewhat worn. It is an easy matter to fashion any number of these contrasting sets from bits of velvet, or ribbon (which is at the height of popularity for trimmings of all sorts just now), crepe Georgette, or chiffon. Nothing is softer or more becoming than a hemstitched collar of crepe or chiffon, it will add a dressy look to the plainest of costumes. There is a great choice in girdles, too, this winter. One would use a muff. This idea is especially practical for the suit for shopping or general wear, also for the heavy coat, as there is no danger of losing a valuable muff.

While speaking of the muff it is interesting to note that the muff cord or chain is again in favor. One sees it often; knotted satin and moire ribbon twisted form the cord; the regulation often silk cord is favored too, and the jewelled chain is smart and effective. Fur trimmed petticoats and pantaloettes are among the season's startling novelties; while the idea is somewhat ridiculous, a glimpse

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL BUILDING A BIG BATTLESHIP

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, DECEMBER 12.

Lesson XI. — Jehovah Years Over Backsliding Israel, Hos. 11: 1-11.

Golden Text: Hos. 11: 4.

1. The Waywardness of Israel (Verses 1-7).

Verses 1. My son—Egypt, Assyria, and Phoenicia were all powerful nations with proclivities and possessions which Israel could not command. Yet God passed them over and called young Israel when yet a child to be his son (compare John 1: 12-13; 1 John 3).

2. The more they went from them—Israel was favored with the best teachers to instruct them. But the more they were taught the more wayward they became. God's bounty was too prodigal for them.

3. I took them on my arms—As a loving father would take a disobedient child.

4. As they that lift up the yoke—The picture is that of a team of bullocks driven by a kind driver. Israel is pictured not as "swanton young cattle . . . which need the yoke firmly fastened on their neck, but a team of toiling oxen mounting some steep road." They are not driven from behind, but drawn from in front. No man can come to me," saith Christ, except the Father draw him."

7. My people are bent on backsliding from me—Hosae sees that kindness, as such, will not prevail. Stern discipline is necessary.

II. The Enduring Love of God (Verses 8-11).

8. How shall I give thee up?—Hosae's optimism, born of his faith and love, cannot let him see God casting Israel off. God's mercy is exhaustless. No sin of man can enchain it nor use it up.

9. I will not execute the fierceness of mine anger—Justice will be tempered with mercy.

11. I will make them to dwell—They will finally weary of their waywardness, they will smart under the lash of their enemies, and as subdued transgressors will return to their God.

POLAR SEA ROUTE OPENED.

3,000,000 Tons of Wheat Held Up in Siberia.

Wireless telegraphy has opened a polar sea route from central Russia to Great Britain. Wireless stations established by the Russian Government in the Arctic keep the vessels advised as to the channels free from ice. Acting on their information, two large vessels chartered by a Siberian trading company have just arrived at Grimsby, England, with cargoes from the Yenesei and Obi districts of central Siberia valued at $1,750,000.

The Obi and Yenesei are huge rivers with a great depth of water, talking steamers of any size. But it was not until lately that their navigation was put in practice.

Owing to the use of the Trans-Siberian Railway by the Russian Government for war supplies there are 3,000,000 tons of wheat held up in Siberia, besides enormous quantities of other produce. If this can be got out, it will improve Russian exchange, which is now a serious problem among the Allies.

Next year the company proposes to take about 30 steamers over the new White Sea route, laden with Siberian products. Even if the war ends before this time, it is pointed out that the Siberian railway will be more or less tied up with back business and the returning of troops.

"MOTHER MACHREE."

Restores a Soldier's Memory and Sight.

The word "mother," which saves lives and spares the honor of innocents in the melodrama, has actually restored reason to a soldier in France, whose mind had been left a blank by shell shock.

A concert party had gone over from England to cheer up the sick, and one of their number, a well-known tenor, sang the old favorite, "Mother Machree." Among the audience was a nerve-shattered soldier who came out of a bombardment not only blind but almost an idiot. He could understand nothing, babbled meaninglessly, and had to be treated like an infant.

He was still blind when taken to the concert. The word "mother" recurred in the song, and the soldier caught at it. When the song was finished he was still muttering the word to himself. But it proved the key to his memory. He began to recall detached incidents about himself, and later recovered both his mind and his sight.

Singers visiting the hospitals say that the wounded like jolly songs, either absurd or of the old-fashioned rollicking kind. They have a particular dislike for the purely patriotic song that has no humor in it.

HOW THE MAMMOTH VESSEL IS DESIGNED.

The Naval Architect Must Have Knowledge of All Sorts of Craft.

Talk of a Chinese puzzle, it is nothing to the problem set before a naval designer who has to build a battleship.

Here he has a steel structure of such and such a length and breadth and depth, and into this space, which is controlled by hard and fast measurements, he has to fit so much coal, so much armament, room for so many men, space for engines of a certain power, and also allow for an immense weight of armor, says London Answers.

Take the original Dreadnought, for instance. The task which was given to Sir Philip Watts was to plan a battleship capable of steaming 4,000 miles at 21 knots, with room for 800 officers and men, and able to carry ten twelve-inch guns with eighty rounds of ammunition for each.

Told in Tons.

She had also to be enormously heavily armored. This armor alone, when the sum was worked out, was found to weigh nearly 10,000 tons, and the necessary coal to weigh 2,500 tons. The guns and their mountings weighed 1,600 tons, their ammunition 450 tons.

When you add to this that the boilers and machinery of the first Dreadnought were calculated to weigh not less than 1,200 tons, the reader may begin to get some faint idea of the difficulties before the designer.

We have not even mentioned the smaller but quite important details, such as boats—some of them large steam-launches 60 feet long—anchors and cables of gigantic size and weight, torpedoes, etc.

To be a good naval designer, a man must be far more than a mere naval architect. He must have the most extensive knowledge of all sorts of crafts, and be blessed with a large share of imagination into the bargain.

Now take the Dreadnought again. She is 480 feet long. If her hull had been built of the same shape as previous battleships, she would have been very unhandy. Her great length would have prevented her from turning quickly, as is always necessary in a sea fight.

Like a Yacht.

Sir Philip got over this difficulty by shortening her keel base. Under water she is very like a racing-yacht, being much shorter below water than above. Another clever device of her designer was to fit two rudders abreast well under the stern. The same device has been adopted in all the Dreadnoughts, with the result that they are wonderfully quick to answer their helm.

Quite apart from the marvelous internal fittings of a great warship, and the utilization of every inch of space inside the hull, the hull itself is a nerve-straining problem. A battleship must not only be fast, she must also be a good sea boat.

This is all important, for if she is not steady in a heavy sea she is not a good gun platform.

To gain the requisite combination of speed and steadiness, such new warships, as soon as her plans are complete, is built up in model, and these models are tested in a big tank five or six hundred feet long. The models, which are built absolutely to scale, are drawn through the water at certain speeds, and the waves which they make are measured by a clever apparatus too technical to be here described.

In Consultation.

The designing of a new type of battleship is not a one-man job. When a new departure is to be made, the members of the Board of Admiralty call together a number of naval experts, and the opinion of each is asked and discussed. When the general design has been approved, then the Director of Naval Construction and his assistants get to work.

The extraordinary accuracy of such work may be gathered from the following: The Majestic, of 15,000 tons, was designed by Sir William White. When finished and armed, she was exactly, to a very few pounds, the weight which he had estimated beforehand, while her centre of gravity was within two inches of the point which he had previously fixed on.

Corroborated.

"Tell me now, Jamie, what was the most wonderful thing you saw when at sea?"

"I think the strangest thing I ever saw was the flying fish."

"Noo, laddie, dinna mak' a fule o' yer mither's tale. Wha ever heard o' a fish fleen'?"

"Another strange thing I saw when crossing the Red Sea. We dropped anchor, and when we raised it again there was one of the wheels of Pharaoh's chariot entangled on it."

"Aye, laddie, I believe that. We've scripture for that."

proposition. Perhaps it is some sporting event—bound to draw a crowd, you are told, and make business hum, and usually the only man to profit is the booze seller. There are concerts and miscellaneous functions for this and that object, for which you are expected to buy a dollar's worth of tickets that you don't want or risk the penalty of losing fifty cents' worth of somebody's trade, though all functions, of course, are not in this category.

Some people live in the town for a year or two; they cannot make good; they resolve to try other pastures. Then suddenly it is discovered that they are the salt of the earth, and great is the grief over their coming departure. An "address and presentation" is the only proper way to send them off to their "new sphere of labor," as the address usually has it. Again the business man and disinterested citizen is "touched."

But why enumerate further? The nuisance is only too apparent. Let us give it its quietus by refusing absolutely to submit to any of these hold-ups, and when the justness of our position towards the thing is viewed from a common-sense standpoint it will engender a respect rather than a spirit of antagonism. Then, too, Glencoe will cease to be famous from Dan to Beersheba as an "easy mark."

CHEAPEST OF ALL MEDICINES—Considering the curative qualities of Dr. Thomas' Eclectic Oil it is the cheapest medicine now offered to the public. The dose required in any ailment is small and contains many doses. If it were valued at the benefit it confers it could not be purchased for many times the price asked for it, but increased consumption has simplified and cheapened its manufacture.

A Western Wedding.

A happy event at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maitland Watterworth, of Carman, Manitoba, on Nov. 19th, was the marriage of his sister, Miss Etta Watterworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Watterworth, of Woodgreen, and Mr. Howard Cutting, a prosperous young farmer of Homeford, Manitoba. The bride entered the parlor to the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Cook, a friend of the bride. She was given away by her brother, Claude Watterworth. The ceremony was performed under an arch of evergreens, roses and white bells. The bride looked charming in a gown of white crepe-de-chine, trimmed with fur and lace, and wearing the usual bridal veil, caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of roses, lilies-of-the-valley and fern. After hearty congratulations, the guests, numbering twenty-five, repaired to the dining-room where a sumptuous dinner awaited them. The color scheme throughout was red, white and blue. The bride received many handsome gifts in the form of cut glass, silver, china and linen. The groom's gift to the bride was a set of black wolf furs. The staff of the telephone office where Miss Watterworth was engaged gave her a beautiful salad bowl, spoons, and casserole. Previous to the wedding the bride was the recipient of a miscellaneous shower from her many friends. Mr. and Mrs. Cutting will reside at Homewood, Manitoba.

Fashions for Men.

The fall fashions for men are suits with brass-buttons. Belts are coming in vogue again, as are tan shoes, canes and peaked caps. The predominant color is khaki of a greyish green tint. Long overcoats of the same shade are also being worn. These coats have a small strap across the small of the back. The costumes are most complete and the best in the land are wearing them.

If your children moan and are restless during sleep, coupled, when awake, with a loss of appetite, pale countenance, picking of the nose, etc., you may depend upon it that the primary cause of the trouble is worms. Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator effectually removes these pests, at once relieving the little sufferers.

COAL!

Now is the time to get your bin filled with Screened D. & H. SCRANTON COAL. It satisfies. Prompt delivery.

After Suffering Almost Two Years, "Fruit-a-tives" Brought Relief.

MR. WHITMAN

"In 1912, I was taken suddenly ill with Acute Stomach Trouble and dropped in the street. I was treated by several physicians for nearly two years. I was in constant misery from my stomach and my weight dropped down from 225 pounds to 160 pounds. Several of my friends advised me to try 'Fruit-a-tives' and I did so. That was eight months ago. I began to improve almost with the first dose. No other medicine I ever used acted so pleasantly and quickly as 'Fruit-a-tives', and by using it I recovered from the distressing Stomach Trouble, and all pain and Constipation and misery were cured. I completely recovered by the use of 'Fruit-a-tives' and now I weigh 208 pounds. I cannot praise 'Fruit-a-tives' enough."

Funeral of Late James Lynn.

The funeral of the late James Lynn, formerly of Glencoe, took place from the family residence in Winnipeg on Saturday afternoon, November 27th, at St. James' church. Services were conducted by Rev. R. Whiting, of Young church, of which deceased was a member, assisted by Rev. J. E. Hughson, of Grace church. The bearers were Messrs. Brunton, Thornton, Rice, Lamonte, Lyster and Lewitt. There were many beautiful flowers, of which the following is a list:—Pillow, from the family; sheaf, grandchildren; wreath, Mr. and Mrs. Shannon and Frank Henderson, Prince Albert; sheaf, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Spence; sheaf, Mr. and Mrs. Brunton; sheaf, Mr. and Mrs. Bice; sheaf, Mr. and Mrs. Lamont; spray, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Gunn; spray, Mr. and Mrs. Lyster and Mr. Kampson; spray, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Mitchell; spray, Mrs. Whaitin and family; spray, South-west Corner W. C. U.; wreath, Ames Holden and McCready Co.; sheaf, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Leadley; sheaf, Mr. and Mrs. D. Campbell.
Mr. Lynn is survived by his widow, three sons and two daughters. The sons are John, of Toronto, and Nathaniel and Nelson, of Winnipeg. The daughters all reside in Winnipeg and are Mrs. F. T. Enouey, Mrs. Elizabeth Conley and Miss Margaret. Mr. Lynn was 80 years and one month of age. At Glencoe he was a member of the I. O. F. and of the Loyal Orange lodge.

Publishers Hard Hit

At a meeting of the Kent and Essex Press Association held at Chatham the question of raising the price of weekly newspapers from $1 to $1.50 was discussed. It was made plain that the advances in the cost of production had hit the publishers hard, and that some means must be adopted to increase the revenue to meet increased expense. It finally resolved into question of raising the price of the papers or the elimination of free advance notices the demand for which had enormously increased during the past year. Many publishers present agreed that if in future the newspapers received fair payment for work they had been doing for nothing for so many years, the price of the newspaper might remain as at present, $1.
It was therefore resolved and unanimously carried, that in future all advance notices of benefit to any body, society or institution, whether for the direct purpose of making money or not, shall be charged for at a minimum rate of five cents per line and a minimum charge of twenty-five cents.

A meeting of the Senior Loyal Temperance Legion will be held in the schoolroom of the Presbyterian church next Monday night at eight o'clock.

Duncan Fletcher, Moss, and Donald McTaggart, Ekfrid, are on the grand jury at the Middlesex December sessions, which opened at London on Tuesday.

Mrs. McKinnon received a letter last week from her son Archie, who is a wireless operator on a British transport. He expects to spend Christmas in France.

Rev. M. P. Craig, of Bothwell, will address the Presbyterians of Glencoe at services preparatory to communion on Thursday morning and evening of this week.

If it is true that there is a cotton shortage in Germany, the Huns can take comfort in the thought that the Allies have no objection to their getting worsted.

A musical recital under the auspices of the choir will be given in the Presbyterian church next Monday evening, which promises to be an entertainment of a high order.

John Hall, Glencoe, and Mrs. Nora Ogilvie, Toronto, were united in marriage on Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Hall are living in Mr. McIntyre's house on the Appin road.

The 33rd Battalion, which has been in training at London camp for nearly a year, left the city on Monday night for overseas. A number of Glencoe volunteers are in the 33rd.

The Battle Hill Relief Society thankfully acknowledge the kind donation of $50 from the shooting match held at Strathburn last Saturday under the supervision of Walter Hailstone.

After the recruiting meeting on Friday evening, the ladies of Glencoe's patriotic organizations entertained the recruits and those taking part in the meeting to luncheon served in the lower hall.

J. A. Ferguson has resigned his position as teller at the Royal Bank and has enlisted for overseas service and will enter the officers' training department at London on Monday next as lieutenant.

Middlesex county council at its meeting on Tuesday afternoon voted a grant of $1,200 to the 135th Middlesex Battalion to defray the recruiting campaign which is being carried on in the county.

The local option bylaw, to be submitted to the electors of Glencoe on January 2nd, is published in this issue of the Transcript. The bylaw will carry is practically assured if the total vote is polled.

Alex. McMillan has disposed of his 100-acre farm in the west corner of Dunwich township to Mr. McAlpine, of Dutton, for $5,000. Mr. McMillan will make his home in Windsor, where he has a son residing.

The death is reported at Rochester, Mich., of Mrs. Agnes Andrews, widow of the late Adolphus H. Andrews, of Lambeth, Ont., aged 88 years and 10 months. Thomas Andrews, of Bothwell, formerly of Glencoe, is a son.

Anticipating that there will be a large number of soldiers in training at Glencoe during the winter, "The Soldiers' Club Rooms" have been fitted up at the Town Hall and made attractive with comforts, reading matter, etc., by a committee of ladies.

The ladies of Glencoe and vicinity interested in the project, are cordially invited to the Methodist church Friday afternoon to quilt mattress covers for which a special appeal has been made. Let as many as possible be present. Work to begin at 1 p. m.

The postmaster-general has decided to do away with the necessity of putting two stamps on a letter, the regular postage and the war stamp. A three-cent stamp will not be issued, but a special design will be used on the two-cent stamp giving it the value of three cents.

Pte. Jaurus Moss, Paris, who enlisted at Victoria in the 10th Battalion, died in England after being wounded at Langemarck. His parents reside in Paris, and one of four sisters is the wife of Lieut. Monteith, 8th Battalion. Private Moss was a nephew of W. D. Moss, barrister, Glencoe.

Battle Hill Relief Society will meet at the home of Mrs. John Gordon on Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 14th. All the ladies who have finished articles are requested to bring them to this meeting or leave them with Mrs. D. H. McRae, Strathburn, before Dec. 15th, as a box is to be packed on that date.

A spelling match featured the regular weekly meetings of the Presbyterian Young People's Society on Tuesday evening, A. B. McDonald and G. H. Singleton were captains. Mr. McDonald's side winning with three of his side standing at the close.

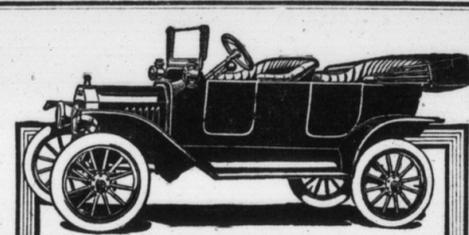

A piano duo was given by Mr. and Mrs. R. Singleton, and Miss Annie Davison gave a solo.

We are pleased to learn through a western exchange that Lester McTaggart, at one time a student of Glencoe High School and later a teacher in Yager's school section, Metcalfe, has successfully passed his final examination as barrister-at-law for the Province of Saskatchewan and is connected with the firm of Caldwell & Co., Moosejaw. He is a son of Reeve L. C. McTaggart of Ekfrid township.

Local grocers have been advised that a steady advance is taking place in the prices of canned goods, especially to-matoes, corn and beans. Beans have advanced from 20 to 30 cents a dozen in the last three months, and are still going up slowly. The reason for the advance is the large export to England and the comparatively small output of many of the Canadian canners this year. Still higher prices may be looked for, according to those in close touch with the situation.

Glencoe Opera House was filled to the doors on Friday evening, at the occasion of a patriotic recruiting meeting. Addresses were given by Canon Gunne, of London, Major Elliot, Adj. Capt. Woodward, Geo. A. Elliot, M. P. for North Middlesex, and the chairman for the evening, J. C. Elliott, M. P. P. The Glencoe brass band gave several selections. Returned soldiers and others announced to speak were unable to be present. An appeal for recruits for the new Middlesex Battalion resulted in several men presenting themselves for enlistment. Since the meeting, recruiting has been quite active.

CZAR ONCE WAS A PRIVATE.

Submitted to All the Rigors of Military Life.

The czar, who has placed himself at the head of his army, at one time served as a private, submitting himself to all the rigor of military life, saluting his officers and carrying the full equipment, which then weighed nearly seventy-five pounds, exclusive of the weight of the rifle, writes a correspondent.

On the regimental roll he was inscribed as "Private Nicholas Romanoff, married, of the Orthodox faith, coming from Tsarko-Selo.

One of the important new influences in the immediate entourage of the czar will be Count Vorenzoff-Daschkoff, whose vicereignty of the Caucasus is taken over by the Grand Duke Nicholas. The Count has been vicerey of the Caucasus for eighteen years. He is known to be an especial favorite of the Emperor, who has repeatedly expressed his admiration of his Caucasian reforms.

Sent to repair the blunders of his predecessor, Prince Goltz, who had contrived to plunge the country into anarchy, the Count rescued the Government from a state of terrorism, put down brigandage—the curse of the province—and by his tact and humanity brought the Caucasian peoples to a condition of comparative ease and security.

Like Gen. Alexieff, Russia's new strong man and the czar's right hand man, Varenzoff-Daschkoff, made his reputation in the Russo-Turkish war of 1878.

WOMEN'S NEW EMPLOYMENT.

Wide Range of Activities Which They Can Perform.

An article in the Windsor Magazine deals with the war-time services of women, and the extent to which they have already been able to replace and release men for active service by undertaking their work at home. The wide range of activities in which this substantial service can be performed is carefully considered. In the course of his theme the writer says:—"This great war has given woman's life a new turn. She has seen five great hospitals at the front entirely supplied and maintained by her own sex. Lower down the scale she has seen skilled women driving motors in the London streets at a wage and allowance far above the ordinary. These new chauffeurs work the same hours as men, though, of course, they do no unloading or repairs. One, at least, is a singer by profession—a well-to-do girl, careful in traffic and keen on her work. Gone for ever, then, is the helpless woman in a world of endless opportunity for energy and wit. One big company owning motor vans reported fifty applications a day from would-be lady drivers. Other girls—young dressmakers and actresses out of work through the war—learn to make with chisel and saw. When proficient it is their intention to teach the trade in our small towns and villages, thus setting up a home industry like that which once brought Austria and Germany millions of pounds a year. The women's Emergency Corps supply gardeners and grooms. There are girls now instead of boys at the railway bookstalls, and soon there will be many more, for they take kindly to the work, are polite and deft, as well as anxious to interest a new customer."

METAL OF OCEAN FIGHTERS.

Varies From Eighteen Inches in Thickness to Five-eighths.

It may not be generally known that while the armor plate which protects an ironclad from projectiles is eight or ten inches in thickness the other necessary plates scarcely exceed five-eighths of an inch. The thickest plates are along the vessel's sides, but the direct forepart of the ship is fitted with a "ram," and this may be two or more feet in thickness. Everything in the vicinity of the large guns of a battleship is made of solid steel, for the force of an explosion is so terrific that anything of slight texture would be smashed like and dear to us, who live in the beds and cots of this great charity.

Will the people at large, as of old, respond to our call? Will they remember that every year is a war year for the Hospital, every day a day of battle, and that the Hospital needs money, not for its own sake, but for the children's sake?

The Hospital has waged its war for forty years. The people of Toronto and Ontario have been its friends, and this year of all years it requires help. Surely you will give to a charity that cares for every sick child in Ontario, for only as your money reaches the Hospital can the Hospital's mercy reach the children.

Every dollar is a link of kindness in the chain of mercy that joins the money in your pocket to the miseries of some child's life, some mother's heart.

Remember that Christmas calls you to open the purse of your kindness to the Hospital that the Hospital may open the heart of its help to the children.

Will you send a dollar, or more if you can, to Douglas Davidson, Secretary-Treasurer, or

The Vicar's Nephew; or The Orphan's Vindication

CHAPTER VII.—(Cont'd).

"Raymond, my lad, Mirski's mother tells me you have undertaken to look after him and keep him out of mischief," said Dr. Cross. "I told her I was sure the little chap couldn't be in better hands. You've done him a lot of good already; I've just been talking about it with the monitors. You're a good fellow, if you could control your temper." By the way, if you should happen to have any little differences with the others, nobly will mind your settling them with your fists in the old-fashioned manner provided you don't go too far; but you'd better not threaten your school-fellows with anything except another time; it isn't an English way of going to work."

"Very well, sir," said Jack, submissively.

In the corridor a little hand stole into his. "Jack," Theo whispered, looking up with soft eyes like his mother's, "is anything wrong with you? You're all shaking."

Jack stood still, feeling the small consoling fingers curl round his. Presently he pulled his hand roughly away.

"What should be wrong with me? There's nothing wrong, if people would only let me alone."

He shoved past the child and went about for the rest of the day with a hard face, surly and defiant. But late into the night, when masters and boys were asleep, he lay and brooded silently, hopelessly, for hours.

It was some little time before the pillow of sleepless nights began to show through Jack's swarthy skin. He was so superbly healthy, so strong and sturdy, that even if he had fallen bodily ill he would have shown it less than most boys. But he was not ill; there was nothing the matter with him but sheer misery. Only as the weeks dragged by he grew more colorless and haggard, and the look that he had worn last August came slowly back into his eyes. At last the head-master began to get anxious and took him to a doctor, who looked at him in a keen, puzzled way, and presently asked: "Have you been upset about anything?"

"No, sir," said Jack with his stolid face.

The doctor finally declared him to be "a little below par," and prescribed a tonic, which of course did no good. "I wonder what's the matter with that boy Raymond," said Dr. Cross to the mathematical master.

"Do you think he's moping?"

"Hardly; he seems too stolid a creature to mope much. But one never can tell; perhaps he's a bit homesick."

The days were not so bad; there were always lessons and games, and the presence of his schoolfellows. He took no interest in any of these distractions; but they filled up time and space and kept the mind busy. Yet sometimes, even in the middle of a cricket or football, the thought of the coming night would strike at his heart.

Of all torments the keenest was to see his schoolfellows asleep. By day he now envied, now despised them; by night he was ashamed before them. He would sit on the edge of his bed, watching the long still rows of placid figures, listening to the sound of their breathing. Sometimes one would turn over with a sigh, or another would fling a bare arm out upon the coverlet; and to the desolate onlooker, the sight was as the stab of a knife.

The Easter holidays were close at hand, and a flutter of excitement had begun in the school. To Jack the prospect of solitude and silence was now a relief, now an added terror. Suddenly it flashed upon him that only four months remained, till the long summer vacation, and that then he should have to go home. Somehow, he had never thought of that before.

"Raymond," said Dr. Cross, on the last Monday of the term, "you remember it was arranged that you should spend Easter here? I find now that it can't be managed, because of the spring cleaning; so I wrote to ask your uncle if he could make it convenient to have you home, and he writes that he'll expect you next Saturday. I'm glad, for I think a scamp when one of the boys will do you good."

The spring cleaning difficulty was a kindly fiction. Dr. Cross having decided that the boy must be homesick, Jack went out into the playing fields with a face of stone. His four months' grace had vanished, and he must decide now what he would do.

He might run away. But there was the risk of being caught and taken home by force. Also, to run away when one has no money and no friend to go to, would mean a lot of thinking, and planning, and arranging; and he was too tired. There was a way of escape that was quite safe and simple, and one could take it without any trouble.

He walked down to the pond in the hollow of the furthest field. The deep water lay still and black, bordered by trails of leafless bramble and sodden wrecks of last year's rushes. He threw a stone into the middle of the pond, and watched till the slow ripples died away; then crept along an overhanging tree trunk, and looked down into the water. Yes, it would be quite easy.

Then in one instant the fear of death took hold upon him. He shut his eyes, that he might not see the water, and clung with both hands to the tree-trunk. "I can't! Oh, I can't! I can't! I can't!"

He reached solid ground again, and opened his eyes. If he had only been brave for one minute, it would have been all over by now; but he was a coward. All degraded creatures are cowards; he remembered reading that somewhere. He was not brave enough to drown himself, or to run away; so he must submit, as cowardly creatures have to do. He must go back to Portharrick, and see the woodshed, and his uncle's face, and the staircase which they had gone up together.

"Why, Raymond, what's the matter with you, boy?"

Jack put out both hands in the direction of the voice.

"I—feel sick."

Dr. Cross took him by the arm. "Come in here," he said; "you'd better lie down."

The dormitory was quiet and airy. Jack lay down on his bed, and the head-master brought him a glass of water.

"Let me look at your tongue. No, that's all right; and you're not feverish."

"There's nothing the matter with me. I only got a bit giddy."

Dr. Cross stood looking down at him for a little while.

"I wonder whether you've been feeling rather lonely, perhaps, as you hadn't been away from home before? I didn't like it at first."

Jack clenched his teeth. Oh, if they would leave him alone, all these people!

"You'll be all right next term," said Dr. Cross. "Perhaps you feel rather a stranger here still, but you'll soon get used to it."

"Oh, yes," he said; "I shall get used to it."

The class bell rang, and Jack lifted his head from the pillow. Dr. Cross gently pushed him down again.

"No, you'd better lie still for a bit, and go to sleep."

"Hold your breath behind him at last. Jack put up his left hand, and bit it till tears started under his closed eyelids; then he pressed it down over his eyes, trying to make shapes and colors come, and shut out other images. But Jack's teeth and teeth showed in livid crescents on the brown skin.

CHAPTER VIII.

"Raymond!" cried Theo, bursting into the room. "Mother's come!"

Jack's head went down over the algebra book.

"Hold your noise, you little donkey! Can't you see I'm doing lessons?"

"Well, you needn't be so beastly sulky, if you are! I only came to say that mother wants you."

"Oh, hang it!" said Jack, flinging down his book.

He went into the other room with his made-up face, indifferent and morose. Helen's deep, compassionate look held him over gravely as he entered.

"Jack," she said, "Theo and I want you to spend your Easter holidays with us in the Isle of Wight. Will you?"

He drew back a step, raised his eyes slowly and looked at her.

"What do you want me for?"

"Well, chiefly because we like you."

"Oh, do come!" Theo put in. "You can't teach me to row, and I don't know what you want me for?" Jack repeated doggedly. He had come a little nearer, looking straight into her face. An insistent desire to laugh fled from his mind, and he stood staring at her.

She came up to him, and put her hand on his shoulder. Well, he was behaving like a sneaking cad, of course, and sailing under false colors; but it would save him from Portharrick.

"Oh, yes, I'll come fast enough," he said; "if uncle will let me."

Helen stayed at the village inn till breaking-up day, and every time that now a relief, now an added pitying eyes seemed to shame him, "like a seat in the face," he said to himself. He lived in hourly terror lest the vicar should deem it necessary to forbid his accepting the invitation, and to explain to Dr. Cross the reason. But Mr. Raymond made no difficulties; and he was thankful for any offer which would spare him his nephew's contaminating presence at Portharrick. He satisfied his conscience by writing a long letter to the boy, solemnly exhorting him not to abuse the kindness of his new friends. Jack read it through, tossed it into the fire, and sat staring at Southampton with Helen and Theo.

All the way to Shanklin he kept assuring himself that he was going to enjoy to the full whatever pleasures the gods might grant, and put off thinking of anything else till the end of the holidays. For the first few days he wearied the household with his riotous spirits; then, returning from the shore one afternoon and entering the little garden, he came upon Theo lying on the grass under the big laburnum tree, reading aloud to his mother, his head resting on her knee. She had one arm round the child's neck, and her other hand played with his hair as she listened. That night Jack lay and sobbed till he was sick and dizzy. Oh, it was unfair, unfair, unfair!

In the second week a new visitor arrived, a grey-headed man who called Helen by her Christian name, and whom Theo addressed as "Uncle Conrad." He proved to be not a relative, but an old and close friend of Helen's family, and a former fellow-prisoner of her husband. After spending several years in a Russian fortress on a general charge of seditious opinions, he had settled in Paris, where he was now a well-known and successful musical critic. He examined Theo severely in harmony, and found so many faults in his violin playing that the child, when finally released, dashed into the garden, where Jack found him in tears.

His distress was so passionate that Jack finally ran up the verandah

JOFFRE'S DAY.

How Great French General Spends the Twenty-four Hours.

The pride and panoply of war have gone. A visit to General Joffre, except for one or two orderlies at the gate, says a correspondent of the London Times, is just an ordinary visit to an ordinary hotel.

Pere Joffre received me at the appointed hour in a tiny room with a long, narrow table covered with a white felt top. The room was probably one of the servants' offices in the days when the building where his headquarters are situated was a hotel.

He arrives in this room at half past six o'clock every morning, and at seven o'clock he has a conference with the leading officials of the general staff. At this conference all the reports and dispatches of the night are discussed, and orders are given for the day. Luncheon is served at eleven o'clock, and always consists of eggs and butter, after which, at twelve o'clock, there is another conference. At one o'clock the general goes out until four o'clock. He either walks or drives, generally in the adjacent woods. At half past eight o'clock there is a third conference, attended by the same people, and at nine o'clock punctually the general goes to bed. The rest of the day he stays in his room poring over the maps. He stays all the time at his headquarters, except that once a week he goes to the front to inspect the troops or to see generals. A very efficient telephone service makes it unnecessary for him to leave headquarters.

Joffre wears a pale blue tunic, of very ample proportions, no decorations except three gold stars on his arm and on the cuffs, and the usual red trousers with the black stripe.

As he rose from the writing-table, the impressing of the man upon me was that of massiveness. Uniform caps of whatever nationality have the effect of making men look more or less alike. The great head of Joffre, the iron chin, the kind, rather sad eyes, are quite unlike the photographs and equally unlike our stupid notion of what we call "the average Frenchman."

Pere Joffre, although he comes from the south of France, speaks slowly, and with no more gesture than a Scotchman, in the rich accent of the Midi.

Why He Left It.

An Irishman in London was holding forth to some companions on the good points of his native country. "It is the cheapest country in the world to live in," said he. "You will buy a fine salmon for sixpence and a dozen mackerel for twopenny." "And Paddy, why did you leave that blessed and cheap country?" "I left it because I didn't happen to have either the twopenny or the sixpence about me," replied Paddy.

SECRET OF BRITAIN'S MIGHT.

The Spirit Which Animates the British Army and Nation.

A Kilmarnock (Scotland) woman whose husband is on active service had the privilege the other day of witnessing a scene which, whatever betide in the future, she will never forget, and one that deserves to be enshrined in the pages of history as a striking illustration of the spirit that animates the British Army and the British nation in this hour of crisis and clashing systems. Her man had been quartered at Edinburgh Castle, and, chosen with others to fill a draft for the front, sent word for her to come through and bid him good-bye. She did so, and they had a while together. Then, ere she left, says the Standard, the assembly sounded, and on the historic square, shadowed by the grim battlements that had seen many a famous parade, the draft of a couple of hundred men or so, her man among them, was drawn up, like spectators a few women folk, like herself, there to bid farewell to loved ones about to march into the unknown. The men were addressed by an officer and told that in an hour or so they would be on the way to France and the firing line; but, he added, if any man would care to stay at home and do munitions work he might step forward. There was not a movement in the ranks. For a moment or two there was deep silence, then a voice called "Are any of us downhearted?" and from two hundred throats an emphatic "No!" woke the echoes of the parade ground and clove the still air like a volley. That is the secret of Britain's might, and of the invincibility of her serried hosts.

AN UNFORTUNATE.

"Did you come to change before leaving the window?"

"Then we can't rectify mistakes."

"I'm glad that I found after I got away from here that you had given me $5 too much."

CONSTANTINOPLE'S IMMENSE GROWTH

PRESENT POPULATION A MILLION AND A QUARTER.

City Extends Far Beyond Ancient Walled Capital of the Emperors.

"Constantinople extends far beyond the ancient walled city of the emperors, which only covered the promontory known to-day as Stamboul. This promontory, bounded on the north by the poetic Golden Horn, which, extending some miles inland, forms perhaps the most magnificent harbor in the world," says a correspondent to the Yorkshire, England, Post, "and on the south by the blue waters of the Marmora, is indeed the most enchanting part of the city; but the present population, estimated at about a million and a quarter, could not be housed within its borders. Facing the eastern side of Stamboul, on the Asiatic shores of the Bosphorus and Marmora, stand the ancient cities of Calcedon (Kadiköy) and Chrysopolis (Scutari). These now form part of Constantinople. Across the Golden Horn to the north, up the slopes of the hill crowned by Galata tower, built by the Genoese, houses upon houses are so crowded together that, looked at from the sea, it would seem as though there were no streets to separate them.

Numerous Villages.

"The shores of the Bosphorus are strewn with villages, some insignificant, some fairly considerable, all of them part of the city. To the west, beyond the Leven towers and the magnificent marble gate through which the emperors rode in splendor," the writer continues, "numerous other villages have sprung up, and to-day Constantinople may be said to extend to a length of some twenty miles. The coast running south from Kadiköy, and the Princes islands are also included in the city, so that in width, too, there is a very great difference since the days of the Turkish conquest.

Constantine founded his capital in 328, and for eleven hundred years it was a Christian city. Walking the narrow streets to-day one comes across here a mosque, which was once a Christian church, and a Greek inscription; here a column with beautiful capital; there the foundation of an once gleaming bronze column. But most wonderful of all stands that noble edifice, now mosque, of St. Sophia. Built on the top of the first hill, immediately behind the site of the emperor's palace, it dominates the city. Its dome, outlined against the horizon, catches the eye from every point of view. What has St. Sophia not seen? The crowning of emperors with all the pomp and ceremony, expresses riding in state into the spacious ladies' gallery, quarrels, intrigues, and, lastly, a conquered emperor, fleeing to it for refuge from the invading Turk. All these form a succession of events whose narrative holds one in spell.

The Conquering Turk

did not in any way lessen the romance of the life in the city, and to-day the charm is still there. Which one of us, having once threaded his way through the fascinating bazaars, does not picture again the quaint shops with vendors sitting cross-legged on the floor, the curious old arches, the Oriental crowds in their gay colors?

"Since the revolution and counter-revolution of 1909 much has been done to improve the general aspect of the city, and also to facilitate communication. A splendid new bridge has been thrown across the Golden Horn, streets have been widened and paved, electric trams have taken the place of horse trams, public parks have been opened in various parts of the city, the Turkish postoffice has been reorganized, and last, but not least, a telephone system has been established.

"The Turk," the writer says, in conclusion, "is polite to a fault; he is often shocked by the brusqueness of the Westerner. His sense of humor is large, his inimitable way of storytelling is proverbial. Those of us who have known him intimately have found him a generous host, a kindly neighbor, and a good comrade; but as a ruler quite incapable of falling in with modern methods."

What He Made.

During the trial of a case in court it became necessary to take the testimony of a curiously reserved witness.

"What do you do?" asked the lawyer having him under examination.

"I am very well," was the unexpected answer.

"I am not asking as to your health. I want to know what you do."

"I work."

"Where do you work?"

"In a factory."

"What kind of a factory?"

"It is a rather large factory."

"May I venture to inquire what you make in the factory?"

"You want to know what I make in the factory?"

"Precisely. Answer without further circumlocution. Tell us what you make."

"I make $10 a week."

Young Folks

Phil's Robbers.

One crisp morning in October, Phil started on a long tramp across the field to the woods beyond the back pasture.

When he had crossed the field and was climbing over the fence into the pasture, he looked toward the woods and saw smoke rising among the trees. In the still, frosty air the smoke rose far above the tree tops.

He scrambled over the fence and started boldly toward the woods. As he neared the edge of the timber he saw that the smoke came from a gully; he could catch the blaze of a fire through the undergrowth. Making his way slowly and carefully, he went round the hill that he could come into the woods above the gully and be able to look down into it from among the trees on the crest.

At last he was able to peep over the edge. Only a few rods away he saw half a dozen strange men seated round a blazing fire. They were eating, talking and laughing as they ate. "Tramps!" thought Phil at once. "If he could only hear what they were saying! He kept a scrub pine between him and the group of men, and crept part down the slope toward them, until at last he could catch, now and then, a word or two of their conversation.

"Such words as 'village,' 'tough job,' and 'to-night' were things that he heard.

"A gang of robbers!" he thought at once. "They are planning to break into the bank at the village to-night, or into one of the stores!"

He felt a sudden chill of fear, and his first impulse was to get away as fast as he could; but he made up his mind to stay and hear more if he could. But only a word now and then came to him, and after a little time, which seemed very long, he made his way back to the top of the slope as quickly and as quietly as he could. The snapping of a twig seemed to him as loud as the report of a gun, but the men did not hear it, and when he was out of sight of the group round the fire he hastened home across the fields.

When he reached home at last, breathless and big-eyed, his father was just driving into the yard. Phil poured out his strange tale.

At first his father listened seriously. Then his eyes twinkled and he began to laugh.

"Robbers!" he exclaimed. "I am afraid they would not like that."

"Why?" asked Phil. "What do you mean?"

"They are surveyors," said his father, still laughing. "They are working on the route of the new electric road."

"Oh!" said Phil.

That was all; but he was glad that his father did not speak of the matter when they went in to dinner; and all through the dinner, while his mother was wondering what made him so still, he was thinking what might have happened if the men really had been robbers and he had saved the village bank by learning about their plans.—Youth's Companion.

MAKING STEEL RAILS.

Description of the Process They Go Through.

The rail mill presents many pictures that appeal strongly to lovers of the picturesque. Under ordinary circumstances the great strands of iron, each half as long as a city block, slide back and forth smoothly enough between the rolls that are stretching them and pressing them into the required shape, but a tiny obstacle may at any moment turn one of these cables of fire off the beaten track and twist it into a hopeless tangle or wind it like a squirming snake around some unfortunate workman, says the Century Magazine.

When the rolling process has been completed, the piece of iron slides along to the great buzzsaws, which cut it up into the thirty-foot rails known to the railway travelers. Every time the whirling circular saw clips off one of these lengths sparks radiate in every direction, as though the biggest pyrotechnical penwheel ever devised had been suddenly set in motion.

When the rail has been cooled and holes have been drilled in it, it is ready to start for any part of the world. The evolution of bars or beams or sheets from the big steel slabs is gained by the same general method of procedure. It is the size and shape of the grooves in the rolls which determine the form to be ultimately assumed by the steel in their clutches.

An Ancient Hunger Strike.

Hunger striking began as long ago as the reign of Edward III, and there is an official record of the fact. A royal note has reference to the case of Cecilia de Ryegway, who was in Nottingham prison on the charge of murdering her husband. There she had remained, mute and abstinent from meat and drink, for full forty days. At last, the king, "moved by piety, and for the glory of God, to whom the miracle was owing," granted her a pardon.

LOOKING OLD TOO SOON

The Condition of Too Many Women and Too Many Girls.

Too many women and too many girls look old long before they should. Their faces become pale and drawn; wrinkles appear and their eyes lack brightness. Can this be wondered at when they so frequently have headaches, backaches and a general feeling of wretchedness and weakness? In most cases it is the blood that is to blame. From one cause or another the blood has become thin and watery, and it is a fact that anemia (bloodlessness) more than any other cause, gives women this prematurely aged appearance. It is important that the blood supply of girls and women be regularly replenished—important not only on the score of looks, but to restore robust health, which is of greater value. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood and restore the system shattered by overwork or worry. These pills give a glow of health to pale faces and make tired, weary women and girls feel bright and happy. With Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at hand there is no need for any woman or any girl to look ill or feel ill. Mrs. J. McDonald, Jr., Hay, Ont., says: "I honestly believe Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved my life. Some years ago I had anemia, and as I did not realize the seriousness of the trouble I soon became a complete wreck. I got so weak I could hardly walk. I neither ate nor slept well, and could not go upstairs without stopping to rest. At times I had an almost unbearable pain in my back, and would have to remain in bed. I suffered almost constantly from dull headaches, and when sweeping I would stoop to pick up anything I would get so dizzy that I would have to catch hold of something to keep from falling. At times my heart would beat so fast that I would have a smothering sensation. My eyes were sunken and my hands and limbs would be swollen in the mornings. I tried several kinds of medicines without benefit, and my friends thought I would not recover. Then I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and before long I could see and feel that they were helping me. I gladly continued the use of the pills until I was completely cured, and I cannot say enough in their praise, and I strongly recommend them to all run-down girls and women."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicines or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

Postage on Parcels Going to the Troops in France.

The Post Office Department is in receipt of applications to have parcels addressed to our soldiers in France sent free or at reduced rates of postage, there evidently being an impression that the Department has control of these rates and could do as it wished, but this is not so, as the question of postage is fixed by International agreement, so that it is not within the power of the Canadian Post Office Department to undertake to carry the parcels free or at a reduced rate of postage. Under International law, provision is made for prisoners of war, but this privilege does not extend to parcels for troops engaged in active service, nor is it within the power of the Department to so extend it.

The rate of postage required on parcels addressed to the troops depends upon the location of the addressee. If the addressee is in England, the rate on parcels for England applies, which is twelve cents per lb., whilst, if he is in France, the parcels are subject to the rates applicable to parcels for France, which are as follows:

1 lb.	32 cents.
2 lbs.	40 "
3 "	48 "
4 "	56 "
5 "	64 "
6 "	72 "
7 "	80 "
8 "	88 "
9 "	$1.02
10 "	1.10
11 "	1.18
12 "	1.26

These are exactly the same charges which existed for years between Canada, England and France before the war, and are the result of an agreement or convention made between these countries and Canada, and as these countries have not agreed to lower their rates between England and France, Canada has to pay to them the same rates as before the war and must charge the same postage.

In all cases parcels for the troops must be addressed Care of Army Post Office, London, England, but this does not in any way affect the rate of postage which depends entirely upon the location of the addressee.

New Lady Tupper

Lady C.H. Tupper

Wife of Sir Charles Stewart Tupper, of Winnipeg, who becomes Lady Tupper through the death of Sir Charles Tupper, of Ottawa. Her father was Miss Margaret Peters Morse, only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Morse of Ottawa. Her father was a second cousin of the late Sir Charles Tupper's wife. Her husband, who succeeds to the Baronetcy, is about to leave for the front, having a commission in the Cameron Highlanders.

ECLIPSES FRIGHTEN ARMIES.

Soldiers Have Always Been Rather Superstitious.

The official explanation to the Russian soldiery and peasants about the recent eclipse of the sun, to save them from considering it an evil omen, was an unnecessary precaution, for when the French Marshal Tesse was marching from Barcelona in 1702 an eclipse of the sun—the emblem of the Bourbons—so depressed his troops that for some time they behaved little better than an unorganized rabble. Soldiers, indeed, like sailors, have always been rather superstitious, and even in the remote times of Alexander the Great's march on Babylon an eclipse of the moon threatened to destroy his army. Well disciplined as they were, the Greek troops became seized with uncontrollable panic, and were more than half minded to fly. But Alexander, with great ceremony, consulted the gods, and then the priests diplomatically pointed out that, as the Greeks worshipped the sun and the Persians the moon, the eclipse was a good omen, portending the defeat of the latter. In this way discipline was restored.

LONDON IN WAR TIME.

Inhabitants Indifferent to the Tragic Side of War.

To judge from the general aspect of London to-day, the nation, as represented by the inhabitants of the metropolis, appear somewhat indifferent to the tragic side of war. The restaurants and theatres are as crowded as in former times, and it is only to those who know the capital well that any great change is apparent. What mostly reminds London of the war are the men in khaki, the wounded driving in cars, and the darkened streets at night. After the shops are closed central London is as if the ninth plague of Egypt had fallen upon it. It is worse than in the time of oil lamps a hundred years ago, and a fog would bring everything to a standstill. The county of London in ordinary times spends £1,000 a day in street lighting, but although much of this is saved, it is the lighting contractors, and not the public, who are benefiting most by this enforced economy.

A FRIENDLY GROCER

Dropped a Valuable Hint.

"For about eight years," writes a lady, "I suffered from nervousness—part of the time down in bed. 'Sometimes I would get numb, and it would be almost impossible for me to speak. At other times I would have severe bilious attacks, and my heart would flutter painfully when I would walk fast or sweep. 'I have taken enough medicine to start a small drug store, but without permanent benefit. One evening our grocer was asking my husband how I was, and urged that I quit coffee and use Postum, so he brought home a package, and I made it according to directions, and we were both delighted with it. We quit coffee altogether and used only Postum.' (Tea produces about the same effects as coffee, because they both contain the drugs caffeine and tannin.)

"I began to get better, and in a month's time looked like another person. The color came back to my cheeks, I began to sleep well, my appetite was good, and I commenced to take on flesh and become interested in everything about the house.

"Finally, I was able to do all my own work without the least sign of my old trouble." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

Postum comes in two forms: Postum Cereal—the original form—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost about the same per cup.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.—sold by Grocers.

PIGEONS IN WARFARE.

Were Used Extensively During the Boer War.

It is not generally known that all the armies and navies of the world can fall back on official pigeons, if necessary, and that the birds belonging to the British Navy have their official standing and numbers just as the handymen have.

During the Boer War the British Army had its carrier-pigeon system. The birds brought messages from all the towns beleaguered by the Boer invaders, and when Sir George White's forces was cooped up in Ladysmith winged messengers carried several despatches from that gallant officer to the men who were slowly fighting their way to his relief.

The first war in which pigeons were used as messengers was the Franco-Prussian, and the birds carried news into and out of besieged Paris. A post was established at Tours, and right through the siege regular mails were carried between Paris and Tours by pigeons.

Der Shky Pilot.

Vunce I was a vaiter
In your good old London town;
But now I shteer der Zeppelien
Vhat drops der bik bombs down.

I am von bold shky-pilot,
I do der Var Lord's will;
Some prettee English vimmien
Und der leetle childs I kill.

Hoch! Hoch! I am so happy
Up here among der shstars,
I vish der Vaterland vould be
For offer in der vairs.

To me it was der 'great bik fun
To hide above der clouds,
Und tink how many Englishes dead
You wrap up in der shrouds.

Und vhat I likes about it best—
Von ting you vill agree—
Vile I drops bombs upon your head
You cannot punish me.

It makes mein zides mit laughter
shplit
To look down from der shky,
Und tink der speshul constables
Do "Vake up, England!" cry.

I come like thief in dead auf night,
Ven sinks der red-eyed sun;
Und den your papers write und say
I vas von pirate Hun.

But nicht care I for vhat you tink
Of terrors in der nights!
I make you var in vays dat are
Der latest tink in frights.

If England vins—vell, vell, I vill
Again a vaiter be—
If Germany—I tink so—vins,
Den you shall "vait" on me!

WHO IS DR. JACKSON?

For years he taught food chemistry, dietetics, and diseases of the digestive tract in one of the large medical schools of the continent. In his extensive experience in free clinics he worked out the formula for Dr. Jackson's Roman Meal, a compound of whole wheat and rye, with deodorized flaxseed and bran. It nourishes better than meat, prevents indigestion and positively relieves constipation or "money back." Ask your doctor. At all grocers, 10 and 25 cents. Roman meal is made by Roman Meal Co., Toronto.

DEAF TO ALL WAR NEWS.

English Convict Gains a Rare Distinction.

To have lived in England for the past fifteen months without knowing that war had broken out was the rare distinction of a prisoner charged recently at North London police court.

The man, who is very deaf, had been arrested within eight days of his liberation from a term of penal servitude and he confided to a police officer that he had just heard there was a big war on in France costing £3,000,000 a day. He asked the officer if it was true, and, being told that it was, he pressed the opinion that the Government would save money if they paid the inmates of prisons to fight.

Throw Away Your Eye-Glasses!

A Free Prescription
You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye-strain or other eye-weakness? If so, you will be glad to know that there is a real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It is like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time, and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto. Fill a two-ounce bottle with warm water, drop in one Bon-Opto tablet and allow to dissolve. With this liquid, bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes begin to improve right from the start, and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, like steps to save them, now, before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind people have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time. The Valmas Drug Co., of Toronto, will fill the above prescription by mail, if your district cannot.

THE STORE WITH THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

The Transcript.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1915.

Wardsville

The bazaar which was given by the Outlook Mission Band of the Presbyterian church on Wednesday, Dec. 1, was a splendid success. Although the night was disagreeable the concert afterwards was well attended. Proceeds amounted to upwards of $100.

Dr. and Mrs. O. J. Glenn attended the Grand in London on Friday night, hearing "Friske O'Hara."

Mrs. R. McDonald, of Appin, spent a few days last week at her home here.

The first meeting of the High School Literary Society was held on Friday, Dec. 3d, and the following program was given:—Presidents address; debate—"Resolved that Vancouver is likely to become a greater city than Montreal." The leaders of the affirmative were Earl Martin and Harold Fennell, and those of the negative Tom Kearns and Allan Bayne. The debate was decided in favor of the affirmative. Solo by Verna Wilson; recitation by Frances Archer; piano duet by Pauline and Charlie Wilson; reading by Blanche Snell; Bulletin; National Anthem.

Wedding bells will soon be ringing in our town.

R. J. Patch is attending county council in London.

J. A. Mulligan spent a few days last week in London.

Miss Ila Quigley, of Kilmartin, spent the week-end at her home here.

STRATHBURN.

Wedding bells are ringing this week.

Roy McKenzie and sister Christie left last Thursday evening for the West.

Miss Maggie Newbigging spent Sunday with friends at Crinan.

Quite a number from here attended the patriotic meeting in Glencoe on Friday evening.

Mrs. James W. Simpson and two children, Don and Fern, have returned home after spending a few days at Pratt's Siding.

Miss Maggie Welch has returned after visiting friends at Crinan and West Lorne.

H. A. Cavalier enlisted in the 135th Battalion last week.

Walter Hailstone spent Sunday with friends at Tat's Bridge.

Mrs. Mary A. Simpson, who has been sick the past week is recovering.

Many children die from the assaults of worms, and the first care of mothers should be to see that their infants are free from the pests. A vermifuge that can be depended on is Miller's Worm Powders. They will not only expel worms from the system, but act as a health-giving medicine and a remedy for many of the ailments that beset infants, enfeebling them and endangering their lives.

CRINAN.

The Christmas entertainment of the Sunday School will be held on Thursday evening, Dec. 23rd.

Glover throwing is now under way and the returns so far are reported good.

The vote on church union in Argyll Presbyterian church resulted in a majority of six votes against union as proposed.

Messrs. Kook and Webster, of Strathburn, are shredding corn in this vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. P. D. McRae entertained the Bible Class of Argyll church recently. About fifty were present and report a very good evening.

Robert Ferguson, of St. Thomas, has been spending a few days here. He has recently taken a position as fireman on the Wabash.

The Last Asthma Attack may really be the last one if prompt measures are not taken. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy will safeguard you. It will penetrate to the smallest bronchial passage and bring about a healthy condition. It always relieves and its continued use often effects a permanent cure. Why not get this long-famous remedy today and commence its use? Inhaled smoke or vapor it is equally effective.

Appin

A meeting for Red Cross work will be held in the town hall, Appin, Thursday, 9th Dec., at half-past one o'clock. All ladies interested in patriotic work are invited to come and help in sewing and knitting.

The voting on church union in the Presbyterian church resulted as follows:—Members for union, 23; against, 21. Adherents for union, 8; against, 21. Not half of the membership voted.

Mr. Craeh, of Toronto, spoke in the Presbyterian church on Sunday in the interests of the Temperance Alliance.

Rev. G. Weir, of Glencoe, gave a temperance address before the Appin Epworth League recently.

The G. T. R. have moved the shute in their stock yards and made it into two instead of one and have fixed the yards in general. They are also putting in tile at the crossing on Main street and covering it with cinders.

Don't forget the big recruiting meeting here on Thursday night.

Albert Hearn, who purchased Simon Winger's farm, has had a carload of corn shipped in from Essex county.

Cyrus John W. Smith and daughters, of Glencoe, spent Tuesday in town at H. B. Watterworth's.

A few of the boys of the 33rd spent the week-end here bidding their friends good-bye before leaving for overseas.

Capt. Spero and Lieut. Hughes are stationed here on recruiting service.

Duncan Campbell has sold his horse of fame to a Kincardine man.

BETHEL.

The Bethel Sunday School intend holding a Christmas tree on Friday evening, Dec. 17th, in the Bethel church. A good programme is being provided. Everybody welcome.

Harry Galbraith spent Monday in London.

Cyrus Henry is attending county council in London this week.

Mrs. C. Henry and daughter Marion spent a couple of days in the city this week.

The Willing Workers and Red Cross clubs of Bethel met at the home of Mrs. John Boyd last Thursday and a splendid lot of knitting and sewing was brought in for the patriotic fund.

Many women with disfigured complexions never seem to think that they need an occasional cleansing inside as well as outside. Yet neglect of this internal bathing shows itself in spotty, and sallow complexions—as well as in dreadful headaches and biliousness. It's because the liver becomes sluggish, and waste matter accumulates which Nature cannot remove without assistance. The best remedy is Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, which stimulates the liver to healthy activity, remove fermentation, gently cleanse the stomach and bowels and tone the whole digestive system. Sure, safe and reliable. Take one at night and you feel bright and sunny in the morning. Get Chamberlain's today—druggists 25c., or by mail from Chamberlain Medicine Company, Toronto
