Recruits to be Wintered Here.
It is reported that upwards of a hundred recruits will be located in Carleton Place for the winter and billeted in private houses. Already some 25 men are here and more are coming day by day. These men are identified with the 80th Battalion, and it is expected that Lieut. Bates will be in charge. The camp at Barriefield has been broken up and the men sent to Napanee, Picton, Belleville and Kingston for the cold weather. The presence of 100 men here will make it quite lively during the winter.

Bible Society Meeting.
The annual meeting of the Carleton Place branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society was held last Wednesday evening in the Methodist Church school room, and was fairly well attended. Rev. Mr. Crawford, the travelling secretary, was present, and gave some very interesting facts regarding the work of the society, especially among the soldiers. His lecture was illustrated with views that were most instructive. The chair was occupied by Rev. Mr. Henderson, the president, Rev. Mr. Monds, being out of town on presbytery work.

River Pirates Sentenced.
The four river pirates rounded up by Deputy Sheriff Williams, of Watertown, assisted by other officers, were sentenced at Watertown to prison terms varying from five years for John Foley, who disposed of some of the loot at Brockville, to six months for William Ellis, the lightest sentence. The gang visited Brockville and sold a quantity of wire, which they had stripped from a power line on one of the islands opposite Alexandria Bay. They also disposed of a quantity of silverware which they had stolen from summer cottages up the river.—Gananogue Reporter.

Women's Institute.
The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Saturday last. Owing to the absence of the President, Mrs. John Stewart, of Appleton, who was unable to be present on account of the death of her sister, Mrs. D. G. Campbell, the vice president, occupied the chair. Interesting reports of the Eastern Ontario convention were given by Mrs. Robt. McDiarmid and Mrs. A. Neilson. The Institute voted $5 towards the new aeroplane "Canada," now being built. The Institute wish to extend to those who so readily responded to their appeal for articles for Christmas stockings for friendless boys, their sincere appreciation. The stockings are being made and packed at the Red Cross rooms, and fuller particulars will be given later. The following donations for the Institute work were received during the past month: Miss Jessie McGregor, $5.00; Mrs. R. Cavanaugh, $5.00; Mrs. B. Sinclair, $3.00; Mrs. Alex. Weekes, $2.50; Mrs. Wm. McDiarmid, $1.25; Mrs. A. C. Brown, $1.00; Miss M. Kelly, $1.00; Mrs. Carmichael, $1.00; Mrs. M. Yuill, $1.00; Mrs. T. C. McGuire, $1.00; Mrs. Geo. Wilson, 50c; Mr. John McLaren, 25c.

Died at New Liskeard.
Mrs. Thomas Jackson, formerly of Boyd's Settlement, passed away at midnight last Thursday, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Sherman Willows, at New Liskeard. The deceased lady had been ailing for some weeks, from a stroke, and was thought to be recovering when a second stroke seized her, which ended fatally. The remains were brought here for interment, arriving on Sunday morning. The deceased lady was born in the province of Quebec, near to Montreal, and was 68 years of age. Her maiden name was Amelia T. Summery. In 1869 she was married at Beach Ridge, Que., to Thomas Jackson, of Boyd's Settlement, and came to Lanark to reside. Her husband died July, 1907, and for the past while she had resided with her daughter at New Liskeard. She is survived by two sons—Arthur Jackson, barrister, Gananogue, and Robt. K. Jackson, New Liskeard, and one daughter, Mrs. Sherman Willows, all of whom were present at the funeral, which took place Sunday afternoon from the home of Mr. Alf. Hammond, the former home of Mr. Jackson, to Boyd's Methodist Church, and cemetery. The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Dustin, the pallbearers being Messrs. Wesley Willows, E. Stevenson, Alfred Hammond, Wm. McLenaghan, W. J. McCreary, and Hiram McCreary. The funeral was very largely attended, all the old neighbors turning out to do honor to one who whilst living amongst them was very much esteemed and most highly respected.

Sad Death of a Young Man.
The death of Mr. William J. Sadler, which occurred on Wednesday evening last, at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sadler, Ramsay, on the border of the town, caused a wave of sadness in the community. The deceased was 24 years of age, and a barber by trade. About three weeks previous he took ill, went home to recruit, when his illness developed into typhoid, resulting fatally after a fortnight. Will Sadler was a member of the Carleton Place Canoe Club, paddling last summer with the championship team; a member of the Maple Leaf Football club, and most popular among the young people about town, and his demise is most deeply lamented. The funeral took place Friday afternoon to Pine Grove cemetery, and was very largely attended, there being 103 carriers in the procession. The services at the house and the grave were conducted by Rev. J. J. Monds. The pallbearers were Wm. Wilson, Howard Williams, Herb Sinclair, Byron Bowls, Delmer Morphy and Frank McDiarmid. There were many floral tributes, among them wreaths from the Canoe Club, from the Maple Leaf Football Club, the family, the local barbers, and Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Miller; and sprays from the John Henry family, his girl friends, Miss Olive Saunders, Delmer Morphy, and Gordon and Argyll McFarlane.

HOME CIRCLE COLUMN

Pleasant Evening Reveries dedicated to tired Mothers as they Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

SHOWING WILLINGNESS AT HOME.
Love shows itself in our willingness to do little or big things that will please our loved ones. A man may not care for violets, but he shows his love for his wife if he will for her sake go down on a bunch just for her. He may not care to go to church, but if his wife and children want him to go, he could show his love for them by going with them. He may think that they ought to know he loves them dearly because every day of his life he is working for them.

But his love is not all that it might be until it leads him to do the things that are especially pleasing to his family. Numerous cares, deep thought, an absorbing life work, a crowded day, free no man from the duty of showing his love at home in ways which are wholly of his wife's or his children's choosing.

The man who complains of the useless demands his family make upon him had better fight about-face and ask himself how much he is doing to make such loving claims seem no longer like demands.

There is nothing that conduces more to the happiness of the home than to find a bright, sunny face looking into ours as we enter the door. If the light of the love shines, it lightens the load and brightens up the outlook. The bright, sunny face in the home is a power for good that cannot be estimated. There is nothing like the cheerful, happy frame of mind which it helps to bring about.

A woman must remember that marriage is not for to-day, nor to-morrow, looks. If she bases her ideas upon any preconceived notion that it will be one long pleasant dream, she will soon think she has the nightmare instead. If she has, however, in herself, the qualities which go to the make-up of a good wife, and those which are essentially needed for the special man upon whom she has set her heart; if she feels that his faults and failings are only such as she can bear with good humor, then let her say "yes," and be happy, for she will be whether fate leads her to a palace or to a hovel.

HOME.
There is truth contained in the beautiful lines composed by John Howard Payne:

"Be it ever so humble
There's no place like home."
They were written from personal experience. There are no pleasures so sweet as home pleasures, no pleasures so full of genuine enjoyment.
Home should and can be made the dearest spot on earth, sweet and attractive in various ways.

Ottawa Organist Accidentally Shot.

The death occurred in St. Luke's hospital, Ottawa, last Thursday morning, of Harold Ritchie, organist of McLeod street Methodist church, Ottawa, who was accidentally shot while out hunting near Eardley on Monday afternoon. Ritchie, with Mr. Price, was hunting. Mr. Ritchie was carrying his shot gun by the muzzle. It is thought that the trigger caught in the brush, which discharged the gun. The shot passed through his wrist and a number of them lodged in his abdomen. He was hurriedly brought to Dr. Church's office at Aylmer and the wounds attended to after which he was taken to the hospital, where after every attention had been given, he passed away. He was a native of Prince Edward Island.

LOCAL DRUGGIST SAYS: "TAKE ONLY ONE DOSE."

We want to tell those in Carleton Place suffering from stomach or bowel trouble that we are agents for the simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., known as Adler-Ika, the remedy which became famous by curing appendicitis. This is the most thorough bowel cleanser known and JUST ONE DOSE relieves sour stomach and constipation almost IMMEDIATELY. You will be surprised at the quick action of Adler-Ika. W. J. Hughes, druggist.

Death at Smiths Falls.

The death occurred last Tuesday morning at the home of her mother, Mrs. A. W. Merritt, Smiths Falls, of Miss Rebecca Frances Leaver, second daughter of the late Robert Leaver. Death was the result of a lingering illness of about seven months, during which time she was a patient in the Public Hospital. Miss Leaver was born in Smiths Falls, and lived here all her life, and her many friends will hear of her death with regret. She was an active member of the Lady Macabees of the World and held the office of Record Keeper of the Lanark Hive 313. The funeral took place Thursday afternoon to St. John's church and thence to the Public cemetery. She leaves to mourn her death her mother, Mrs. A. W. Merritt, and three sisters, Mrs. Edna Saucier, Smiths Falls, Mrs. S. J. Brandow, and Mrs. Ralph D. Smith, of Hamilton, and two brothers, Arthur, of Syracuse, N.Y., and William Kenneth at home. Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

Religion in the home softens, purifies and elevates character, reforms and regulates life.
Cultivate a taste for the good, true and beautiful. Do not save the kind, loving word for the stranger alone, but be generous with it at home.
The best of literature should be provided; books, like friends, should be few and well chosen.
The Bible, that holy volume, should be read daily, and its grand and holy precepts carefully followed in the home.
The cultivation of flowers affords happiness, and they lend a charm to the quiet pleasures of home.

Its environments should be made bright, cheerful and pleasant. Let discords be dismissed and peace and peace and harmony reign.
Our home on earth should be typical of heaven. Music greatly enhances its pleasures. In the sweet twilight hour how entrancing to sit and listen to sweet strains of music peeped forth from the organ or piano by the artistic touch of some dear loved one at home.

Home influence, when for good, and not evil, is the best. It prepares us to battle with life when the cold winds of adversity overtake us.
Home should be made an ideal spot with its well-selected library, sweet blooming flowers and innocent games for out and indoors.

A BOOK IN DEMAND.

Some day some sensible man or woman will write a book called "Home Philosophy."

There will be a chapter on the philosophy of washing dishes—without a mess or getting mad.

There will be a chapter devoted to making beds without mountains or valleys.

There will, of course, be several chapters about good health and air, says the Quincy Herald.

The woman who fills her home with knick-knacks will receive a gentle chiding; and the man who litters the house with tobacco ashes from his pipe or cigar or cigarette will receive a mild scolding.

The man who never stays at home evenings will get what he deserves, and the woman gadder will get hers, too.

That dear home-body woman will receive full credit.

That fine man who works and thinks and lives for his home will be remembered.

"How to Run Your Furnace," three chapters.

"How to Keep on Good Terms With the Janitor," five chapters! No living person has solved this problem; it is extremely important.

"The Home Beautiful," let us hope, will receive proper attention.

GEN. LEWIS HALL HAD LEFT SERVICE

New Head of Air Scouts on Retired List When War Began.

AEROPLANE IS HIS HOBBY

He Began His Military Career as a Lieutenant in the Royal Marine Artillery, and Then Went to India on the Staff Corps— Was a Colonel When He Left the Army.

GENERAL LEWIS HALL, the new head of the British air scouts in France, is one of the men who has "come back" as a result of the present war. For the past five years he has been out of active service, having retired at the age of 55, but he was too good a man for the shelf. At the first hint of war he reported for duty, and now with the rank of General is chief of one of the most important branches of the service.

General Hall was born in 1855, of a military family. His father was a Major-General with a splendid record in the artillery. After passing his examinations, General Hall entered the Royal Marine Artillery in 1873, and twelve years later was made a captain on the Indian Staff Corps. He attained his majority in 1893 and became a Lieutenant-Colonel in the Indian Army in 1899, achieving a full Colonelcy in 1906. The following year he became a Companion of the Bath, and in 1910 he retired, still a young man.

After his retirement he entered with zest into his hobby of aeronautics and soon became a recognized expert, as well as a prominent member of the Aero Club. The outbreak of the war gave him recognition of his work, and he was gazetted General. Now he has full charge of the air scouts in France.

Scrimmage Over Horses.

A Suffolk man serving in the Royal Army Veterinary Corps, writing home, says:

We have to go up to the firing line to get all the wounded and sick horses and mules and take them to the receiving base. Very often we have a scrimmage. A few days ago I was sent with four men, all well mounted, to get some thirty horses. We started about 3 a.m. and hoped to get to our destination about 11 o'clock. About nine o'clock we saw what we thought were some of our men coming towards us with the horses, so we advanced; but on drawing close, to our surprise we found we were faced by thirteen Germans, with a lot of horses tied together in fours. There was nothing for it but to scot or fight, and I determined on the latter course. My four men fired their rifles and fired well, for four saddles were emptied. We then charged with our swords.

"The firing had made the horses stampede, and I got separated from my four men. I was faced by an officer who was in charge of the 'square heads.' He came for me and I went for him. He brandished his huge sword over his head, shouting 'Surrender.' I could see I could not well reach him with my sword, so I just gave him the pill from my revolver. I hit him as he was shouting and he bit the dust. I secured his sword and helmet and joined my men."

"They had taken six prisoners, (two others got away) and thirty-nine horses."

"The Legion of Death."

One of the most interesting bodies of women warriors is the Serbian organization called the "Legion of Death." It is composed of women who have been trained in the use of firearms and the science of war, but who, in war-time, follow the army as pack-carriers, camp attendants, and even as trench-diggers and sappers, where necessary. There are numerous expert rifle-shots among them, many, indeed, being quite capable of taking men's places under necessity.

The "Legion of Death" is recruited from all classes of women, from the wives of rich merchants and the wives and daughters of peasants. This Amazon corps had its origin in the patriotic enthusiasm of a woman of sixty-two, whose husband died for Serbia against the Turks. The women handle the regulation rifles and are held in deadly fear by the Austrians and Germans.

LIFE IN A SUBMARINE.

How the Crew Gets Air Fit to Breathe While Under Water.

The commander of a submarine observes what is going on at the surface by means of the periscope, but when that is submerged he sees nothing. And if he moves his vessel while using the periscope he leaves a white flake on the water, which exposes him to the enemy.

However, the periscope is sometimes of a length—about seventeen feet—to give partial safety, as when only the tip shows the boat is unlikely to be damaged by an enemy's fire, although if the periscope chances to be shot away it might cause a fatal leak. Also the submarines can be rammed.

The diving rudders are mounted in pairs, one on either side, fore and aft, with an ordinary vertical rudder at the stern for lateral steering. Each motor set drives a reversible propeller. The accommodation for the navigating officers is in the conning tower, while the quarters of the crew of ten men are in the bow, as is also the galley.

Special arrangements have been made to secure an adequate ventilation of the interiors of the boats. During surface operations the air is drawn in from outside. When traveling submerged the heated atmosphere of the engine and the exhaled air of the crew are drawn off through ventilators which pass it through various filtering, oxygenating and cooling devices, after which it is returned to the interior and is fit to be breathed again.—Exchange.

TELEPATHY.

That, Like Other Mental Operations, Cannot Be Explained.

"Marie Corelli has attributed telepathy to electricity. Is there any scientific truth in the matter, or is it but a theory?" writes a correspondent, and we answer:

Entirely theory. None knows how telepathy originates because nothing is known of the nature of mind—that is, no law of the mind has been discovered. Everything is theory until the law is discovered and then proved beyond all possibility of doubt. Every possibility of doubt or error of any kind, however minute, must be annihilated before anything is published as a law in any scientific book.

The mass of obscure things, such as telepathy, mind reading, action of mind on matter (as in hypnotism), action of mind on matter without physical contact, influence, suggestion, personal magnetism, automatic writing, drawing, painting, reading closed books, causing sound to be heard, conversations in space between invisible personalities, warnings, sending of messages from dying persons to their friends, rescues from danger by mind influences, transmission of drawings and pictures to minds of others by mind processes—all these and perhaps as many as 100 more the most remarkable mental things are now occurring constantly in some part of the world.—Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York American.

Teeth of the Ancients.

The silence of the classics certainly seems to indicate that the Greeks and Romans suffered very little from their teeth. Words for toothache and for tooth extracting instruments can, indeed, be found in the Greek and Latin dictionaries, but the authors quoted for them are generally late and always uninteresting. We can hardly believe that if toothache had been common in Athens Aristophanes would have made no jokes about it. But a classical scholar may pretty safely be defied to cite a single Greek or Latin passage about it. Even Lucretius, when he gets on the subject of teeth in a passage where a reference to toothache might be expected, merely refers to the jar given to the teeth by very cold water or by biting a stone in one's bread.—London Chronicle.

Reciprocity.

"Dear Harold," with sadness she wrote to her former fiance, "as you are probably aware, I am to be married to Mr. Anthony the coming month. I shall therefore appreciate it if you will burn all the little notes I sent you, assuring you of reciprocity in regard to those you sent me."

She immediately received this reply: "Dear Dorothy—I shall certainly comply with your request at once. And, incidentally, as your new fiance holds a few notes of mine I shall deem it a great favor if you will induce him to burn them with the rest."—National Food Magazine.

Education.

Education is not merely the writing of facts on the mind as one writes on a blank slate. It resembles rather the placing of fresh color on canvas on which earlier colors are not dry. The new colors mix with the old. So the living mind mixes new information with what is already in it, and judges the new in the light of the old.

Inappropriate Garb.

"How are you coming along with your new magazine, the Society Girl?" "All right. But the mailing proposition bothers me."

"How's that?"

"I don't like to send her out in a wrapper."—Louisville Courier Journal.

A Good Actor.

Patience—So she married an actor? Patrice—Oh, yes!

"Was he a good actor?"

"Oh, yes; he acted as if he loved her."—Yonkers Statesman.

To apply to others in charity the knowledge one has used against oneself in judgment—this is the hard thing to do.—Mailbag.

New Song Hit in England.

Never has a song had such a popular appeal as is contained in the words of "Till the Boys Come Home," which is the favorite lyric in this country, and is being sung or whistled by everybody. Written by Ivor Novello, who is but 23 years of age, it has made his reputation as a composer.

It is not a ballad to fire the martial spirit, but rather a reminder of home, set to a swinging, yet most touching melody. Here are the words of the chorus:

Keep the home fires burning,
While your hearts are yearning;
Though your lads are far away,
Then dream of home,
There's a silver lining
Through the dark clouds shining;
Turn the dark cloud inside out,
Till the boys come home.

Young Novello, a born "composer," is a brilliant pianist, and was one of the most accomplished choristers in England, but it is "Till the Boys Come Home" which has given him fame.

After the War—What?

B. Seebohm Rowntree writing in the Contemporary Review, forecasts the conditions, as he views them, which will exist in Great Britain after the war.

First he looks for a few months of very severe depression; then a period of feverish activity; after this a prolonged period of hard times.

The reasons, as stated by Mr. Rowntree, seem convincing enough. Over a million men who enlisted for the war will return, on the conclusion of peace, to claim their old places. That will throw a lot of other men out of employment. The situation will be further aggravated by the cessation of work on war contracts. Following this, there will arise a demand for material with which to restore those districts in Continental Europe ravaged by war, and Britain will share largely in the business of meeting this demand. That will cause, Mr. Rowntree thinks, a considerable period of feverish activity. But this special demand, once applied, will slacken off again, because of the general impoverishment due to war, and then the real pinch will come.

STANDARDIZING CANADIAN EGGS

From present indications it would appear that one of the most important developments to date in the improvement of the Canadian Egg Trade was the action taken by the Canadian Produce Association last winter in adopting definite standards for Canadian Eggs.

Realizing the importance of having definite standards for all live stock products the Live Stock Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture has endeavored to give the standards for eggs as much publicity as possible.

At a number of exhibitions where no extensive classes for eggs have been offered, the Live Stock Branch has made a display of eggs graded in accordance with the standards and in each instance has supplemented the display with actual demonstrations...

"Extras" are eggs of good size, weighing at least 24 ounces to the dozen or 45 pounds net to the 30 dozen case; clean, sound in shell; air cell less than 1/4 of an inch in depth...

"No. 1's" are eggs weighing at least 23 ounces to the dozen or 43 pounds net to the 30 dozen case; clean, sound in shell; air cell less than 1/4 inch in depth; white of egg reasonably firm; yolk visible but mobile, not stuck to the shell or seriously out of place.

Producers too, would do well to more systematically grade their eggs before marketing, and knowing definitely what they have in hand thereby be in a better position to demand a price commensurate with the quality supplied.

"SERVICE" the Watchword.

Toronto, Nov. 1.—"Service" has been adopted as the motto of the Liberal Club Federation of Ontario, and many compliments have been given the organization for its choice of a slogan.

The Federation has a splendid record of actual enlistments for the front from its officers and members. Those who for various reasons cannot serve with the colors at present are evidently determined that through their organization they will do their share in various kinds of patriotic endeavors and activities.

The Federation at present is holding a series of conferences to discuss further means of assisting in enterprises connected with the war. Within the last week conferences have been held in Hamilton and London for Central and Western Ontario respectively, and similar conferences are planned for Belleville and the County of Dundas.

The prevention of accidents is the duty of both employer and employees. Simple precautions may save lives.

Canada's net debt now amounts to $462,528,492, an increase of $139,853,093 during the past twelve months.

"CANADA during 1915 lost over ten million dollars' worth of her forests through unnecessary fires. In Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick and British Columbia about eighty-five per cent. of the losses were due to settlers' fires," said Mr. Robson Black, secretary of the Canadian Forestry Association.

Private George Greig Mowat, only son of Sheriff Frederick Mowat, and grandson of Sir Oliver Mowat, has been killed at the front. Deceased was the chief scout in his machine gun section, the 19th Battalion. He sailed last May with the second contingent, and went to the front in the beginning of September. Pte. Mowat was twenty-one years of age.

THERE is no cause to worry about the German successes in the Balkans. She was getting defeated in the east and held in a vice like grip in the west, so had to do something to cheer up her discouraged people. She also had to make good with Bulgaria lest the latter would join the allies. Every day that goes by is sapping Germany of her resources in men, money and provisions, and the greatest factor in the process is the British fleet.—Brockville Recorder.

The numerous fires throughout the country have apparently attracted the attention of the local government, which has sent printed forms to the mayors and fire-chiefs throughout the province to be filled in and returned immediately so that means may be devised to minimize the fearful losses sustained from this cause.

A suit which concerned the division of profits on $6,000,000 worth of horses sold to the French Government by Sir Clifford Sifton and his son, Major John W. Sifton, brought by Lieut. The profits were said to be $200,000 and it is understood that Mr. Shaver got a substantial part of that amount.

VICTORY FOR RUSSIANS

Ten Thousand Germans Captured Near Dvinsk.

Russian Offensive Along the Eastern Front Goes on With Unabated Vigor and Soldiers Are Instructed Not to Spare Cartridges—Surprise Attack on Enemy Near Dvinsk Results in Success.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—The weather, which has turned wintry, has not interfered with the Russian offensive along the eastern front. The Russians have extended their attacks to the district west of Riga and thence to the south of Dvinsk. They are keeping the Germans on the move, and the latter admit that in the region of Lake Swenton the Russians penetrated their lines.

The capture of 8,500 Germans in the south-western theatre, on the River Stripa, as the result of a surprise attack, is reported in an official statement issued by the Russian War Office. The statement tells of violent, but futile efforts on the part of the Germans to wrest the prisoners from the captors. Another Russian success is claimed by Petrograd in the fighting around Rafalovka, on the Kovno-Szarny. Here the Czar's forces took 22 officers and 712 men.

A Reuter despatch from Petrograd says: "In the region of Czartorysk bodies of Russian cavalry from 500 to 1,000 strong have been very active in attacking German infantry detachments in various localities east of Kovel. These operations have resulted recently in the capture of 2,000 prisoners."

The Austro-German forces on the Stripa River, in Galicia, have lost 28,000 men and 14 guns, says a Lemberg despatch.

The Daily Mail's correspondent at Petrograd telegraphs:

"The amplitude of munitions now is emphasized by the fact that the most recent consignment of ammunition secured at Dvinsk bore on every box the inscription: 'Don't spare cartridges.'"

MONTENEGRINS VICTORIOUS.

Big Booty is Captured by Troops of Tiny State.

ROME, via Paris, Nov. 8.—The following official communication to the Montenegrin consulate here was received yesterday:

"Cettinje, Nov. 8.—The battle near Grahovo in Herzegovina continued with great fury all day Nov. 5, until evening. The enemy made several attacks in an endeavor to capture our positions, but he not only failed but was repulsed with heavy losses by our brave soldiers."

"During the fighting on the Herzegovina front we have taken four field guns, four machine guns, three telephones, a searchlight, seventy horses, 100 rifles, 100,000 cartridges, and two officers and 40 soldiers."

"The army operating in the Sanjak has taken four field guns, three machine guns, 600 rifles, 700 tools, and a quantity of munitions, and in addition has captured six officers, three surgeons, and 300 soldiers."

"On the rest of the front the artillery struggle is developing."

PRISONERS AS SHIELDS.

Letters Reveal Tactics of the German Military Leaders.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 8.—What purport to be extracts from two letters found on the bodies of German soldiers on the field of battle have been published by the Imperial commission of enquiry into the conduct of the war. The first reads:

"In this case, when the advance becomes too hard, we take Russian prisoners and drive them before us against their fellow-countrymen. Thus they at least in some measure diminish our losses."

The second reputed quotation follows:

"We don't know what to do with prisoners. Henceforth we shall drive every Russian who surrenders before the line of our fortifications to be shot."

The commission announces that the letters were photographed and translated into the leading languages of the world to be sent broadcast.

LABOR SUPPLIES RECRUITS.

Remarkable Response is Made at Rally in Trafalgar Square.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—A remarkable demonstration in furtherance of Lord Derby's recruiting campaign was held in Trafalgar square yesterday by the trades unions of London. As a result a large number of young men enlisted. With the exception of the Clapham branch of the Independent Labor party, which declined to participate, all the unions of London sent representatives, and an immense crowd gathered in the square.

Resolutions adopted at the meeting reaffirmed Labor's conviction that the volunteer system of enlistment would meet the needs of the country, and pledged devoted support to Lord Derby's campaign, "in order to bring the war to a successful issue and to prevent the establishment in this country of the conscriptionist military and naval systems."

Moral Conscription in Force.
LONDON, Nov. 8.—Without legislation empowering conscription, a sort of moral conscription is being exercised. The newspaper columns are full of advertisements for men over military age only, and employers are refusing to engage any others.

SERBS HOLDING BABUNA

Pass is Piled Deep With Bulgarian Dead, Says Despatch.

Lord Kitchener's Departure for Saloniki Following Upon a Conference With the French Chiefs Indicated Great Allied Activity in Balkans—Anglo-French Forces Are Being Rushed Forward.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—A division of 25,000 Bulgarians is attempting to envelop the French force in the Vian-dovl region, according to information from Bulgarian soldiers obtained by a Greek outpost in the Belasica mountains, at the junction of the Greek, Serbian, and Bulgarian frontiers, says a Reuter's despatch from Saloniki. Heavy artillery and rifle fire has been heard at the outpost station.

A Serbian official is quoted as declaring the Serbs are holding firm at Babuna Pass, where all Bulgarian onslaughts have been repulsed. The pass is said to be piled deep with Bulgarian dead. At one point more than 1,000 Bulgarians were caught between a crossfire and annihilated. An important British contingent was landed Saturday at Saloniki, where additional landing facilities have been granted the Allies after negotiations with the Greek authorities.

The belief is still held here that it is not too late to turn the tables on the invaders. The departure for the East of Lord Kitchener, after conference in Paris with Premier Briand, Gen. Gallieni, the War Minister, and Gen. Joffre, the Commander-in-Chief of the field forces, has given confidence that the campaign is to be carried on energetically by the man who knows the East better than almost anyone else.

Advices from Saloniki and other points yesterday show that much larger forces than were thought to be near the scene are being landed at Saloniki and are proceeding to points where it is believed they can do the most good. Troop trains are continually leaving Saloniki, but so much secrecy is being maintained that it is impossible to compute the number of men.

One report says that an Anglo-Italian army has landed at Valona (Avlona) on the Adriatic, with the purpose of crossing Albania. The Russians are still concentrating in Bessarabia, to be prepared to make a descent on Bulgaria from the east.

Meantime, in Northern and Eastern Serbia and on the Montenegrin frontier big battles are in progress. The Austro-Germans claim to be advancing along the line, and do have reached the Morava River, which has been crossed at some points. In their advance they are picking up prisoners, guns, and war material.

The Montenegrins, like their Serbian allies, are fighting stubbornly in defence of their country, and report that they have repulsed an attempt by the Austrians to cross their border from Herzegovina, and captured four guns, a quantity of supplies, and a few men. They also claim success over the Austrians in the Sanjak (Novi-bazar), where they captured four more field guns and several hundred men.

In the south the French are reported to be over the Bulgarian frontier, where they have taken several villages.

An Athens' despatch to The Daily Mail says:

"The Serbians offered a magnificent defence at Nish, fighting successive actions of the enemy advanced. Their last stand was on the fortified hills around the town itself. They succeeded in retiring in good order before greatly superior forces."

"The situation at Uskup is unchanged. The Bulgarians, after their severe experience in Babuna Pass, appear to be reinforcing the Istip section with the object of continuing their attacks on the French, which have for their object the stoppage of French help for the Serbians on their left."

"The allied troops are now arriving in much more satisfactory numbers, and the general situation promises well."

Goderich Lad Burned Severely.

GODERICH, Nov. 8.—The little four-year-old son of Charles Black, local tailor, while playing with another boy Saturday afternoon, was severely burned in a bonfire. While securing some kerosene for the flames some of the oil got on his clothing and this was ignited when the lad fell into the flames. Latest reports last night state that he is in a very critical condition.

Dutch Infern German Submarine.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—The Amsterdam correspondent of The Exchange Telegraph Company says that a German submarine which stranded near Terschelling has been interned with its crew, by the Dutch Government.

The submarine referred to is evidently the U-3, which was reported to have been towed into a Dutch port several days ago.

Cossacks Take 2,000 Prisoners.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—A Reuter despatch from Petrograd yesterday says: In the region of Czartorysk, bodies of Russian cavalry, from 500 to 1,000 strong, have been very active in attacking German infantry detachments in various localities east of Kovel. These operations have resulted recently in the capture of 2,000 prisoners."

12 Bodies Found in Brooklyn Shop.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Twelve bodies, eight women and four men, all of whom have been identified with one exception, and the list of missing narrowed down to one man, summed up yesterday the casualties as the result of the fire in the diamond factory building in Williamsburg section of Brooklyn Saturday.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Minutes of regular meeting held in the Council Chamber, Wednesday, Nov. 3rd, 1915 at 8 o'clock p.m. Present—Messrs. Richards, Findlay, Cornell, Abbott, Riddell, Caswell, McCallum, Brown, Hudson.

Minutes of previous meeting read, approved and signed by the Chairman. Letters were read from the Penny Bank and Miss Laura Anderson. Reports for the month of October read from Principals Wethey and Robertson.

Mr. Robertson in his report stated there was too many pupils late for school and asked for some action by the Board. Mr. J. M. Brown offered the Board the use of a bell which could be hung in the belfry of the Central School and could be heard anywhere in town.

French troops are expected soon to effect a junction with the Serbian army, following their defeat of the Bulgarians. Nine hundred Irishmen were attacked on the docks in Liverpool when they attempted to take passage to New York.

The Fifty Thousand Dollar Club to raise money for patriotic purposes in small amounts was organized in Toronto. Magistrate Langeller, of Quebec, strongly deprecated animosity between French and English speaking Canadians.

The body of Richard Andrews, mining prospector, sixty years of age, was found in a boom of logs in the river near Dryden. There were 100,000 fewer visitors to the London Zoological Gardens last year than during the previous twelve months.

"Mica Bran" is being manufactured by some United States factories. It is used for concrete facing work to produce rock effect. Seventeen more municipalities have undertaken to raise new regiments, and a large number of county battalions have been offered.

'FOOD PRICES UNBEARABLE.

German Socialist Organ Enters Despairing Protest. BERLIN, Nov. 8, via London.—The Vorwaerts, organ of the German Social Democratic party, purchases a large column pronouncement from the executive committee of the Social Democratic party, declaring that the Government measure thus far for the regulation of the food supplies and prices are only half measures. It demands the adjusting of prices of foodstuffs so as to eliminate war profits, both wholesale and retail.

The committee demands in addition to the fixing of prices for other foodstuffs also "a distribution of the foodstuffs on hand in equal rations among all the empire's inhabitants, as is done with bread, in order to avoid preferential treatment of the rich who are able to pay."

FRENCH CAPTURE POSTS.

Considerable Advances Are Reported to South East of Amiens. PARIS, Nov. 8.—The sector between the Somme and the Oise south-east of Amiens figures in the official reports of yesterday as the scene of a French success. German posts before Andechy, north-west of Roye, were taken by the French troops, while to the south-east, at Beauvraignes, the Germans attempted a sortie from their trenches, but were driven back by the fire of the French artillery. Heavy artillery duels followed in this region.

The Germans attempted a hand grenade attack against the French positions east of the Butte-le-Mesnil, but were easily driven off, and in a continuation of the fighting at La Chapelle, in the Vosges, the French field guns silenced the German mine-throwers.

A poisonous gas factory at Dornach, Alsace, which was attacked Friday by French aviators, was virtually destroyed, according to a report which has reached here from Basel.

NEW PREMIER CHOSEN.

M. Skouloudis Succeeds in Holding Greek Cabinet Together. ATHENS, Nov. 8.—M. Skouloudis, commissioned by King Constantine to form a new Cabinet, has accomplished the task. All the members of the Zaimis Ministry are retained except the Premier himself. The new Prime Minister has taken the portfolio of Foreign Affairs. The formation of the new Cabinet, it is generally assumed, will delay, if not eliminate, the crisis which probably would follow a dissolution of the Chamber of Deputies by the King.

NOTE TO BRITAIN.

U.S. Message Protesting Against Blockade Published in London. Bulgarian Losses, 100,000. PARIS, Nov. 8.—An Athens despatch to the Havas Agency, dated Nov. 5, says that an official statement issued by the Serbian legation estimates the Bulgarian losses in killed and wounded up to the present, at 100,000.

JUST THE RIGHT PRESENT.

Don't take chances in the matter of Christmas presents. You don't want your presents, like so many others, to be received with indifference or worse, and ten days after Christmas to be cast aside and forgotten. You take no such chance in giving The Youth's Companion for a year. Did you ever know of a home in which it came amiss, or of one in which it was not conspicuous on the library table or in some one's hands all through the year?

It is worth while to make a gift of that sort, and it is worth while to receive it, too, for The Companion illustrates the best traits in American and Canadian life in its stories and sketches, upholds the best standards in its articles and other contributions, and combines the practical and informing with the entertaining and blood-stirring.

Every new subscriber who sends $2.25 for the fifty-two weekly issues of 1916 will receive free all the issues for the rest of 1915 and The Companion Home Calendar for 1916.

NO CONSCRIPTION SAYS VON DONOP

British Master of Ordnance in Public Eye Again.

A FRIEND OF KITCHENER

Only Faith Placed in Him by Secretary of War Saved Sir Stanley von Donop From Removal From High Post When His Loyalty Was Called Into Question Recently.

An interesting situation has arisen in Britain which is adding fuel to the fire of dissatisfaction fostered by the opposition press. General Sir Stanley von Donop, Master of the Ordnance in the British War Office, has expressed himself as opposed to conscription. Many men high in British military circles have done the same, but Sir Stanley's statement has occasioned considerable astonishment because he is the very man who was under fire a few months ago on the score of his German name and connections. Since the papers which opposed his occupancy of his position at the War Office are the same papers which are now urging conscription, Sir Stanley's courage will be realized.

Sir Stanley has the misfortune to belong to an old German family. One of its most conspicuous members is Stanley's cousin, the Prussian general, Hans von Donop, for several years grand master of the household to the Kaiser's brother-in-law, Prince Frederick Leopold of Prussia, inspector-general of the cavalry of the German army. General Hans von Donop, since the beginning of the present war, has been commanding a division of German cavalry in France.

General Sir Stanley von Donop is a son of the late Vice-Admiral von Donop of the British navy, is a brother of Lieut.-Col. Peiham von Donop, chief Government inspector of railroads, and joined the Royal Artillery 35 years ago, the only active service which he has seen having been in the Boer war. Before becoming master-general of the ordnance he was for several years director of artillery at the War Department.

It is undoubted that General von Donop would have been forced to resign several months ago but for one thing: Lord Kitchener vouched for him. The Secretary of War has no stronger friend and no more loyal supporter than Sir Stanley von Donop, and when it was hinted throughout Britain that Lord Kitchener would resign rather than forego the support and experience of his Master of Ordnance, the agitation was quickly dropped.

Cotton and Explosives.
Some striking facts regarding cotton in its relationship to the manufacture of high explosives were recently given by Sir William Ramsay. In the first place it should be explained that gun-cotton is really cotton waste, carefully cleaned, combed, and dried, soaked in one part nitric acid to three parts sulphuric acid. It is afterwards dried and pressed into cakes. It is employed in the Navy in both a wet and dry condition, the former, with thirty per cent. of water added, being much safer to handle.

Sir William Ramsay points out that there is no adequate substitute for cotton for propulsive ammunition. Other substances have been tried—wood, hemp, straw, and other material with woody fibres. But they have not the propulsive power of cotton. To propel as far with woody materials would need a larger charge, which would entail the enlargement of the barrel of every gun and rifle.

The expenditure of ammunition in this war is unprecedented. At a conservative estimate, Germany requires 1,000 tons of cotton a day. A whole bale of cotton is required to fire one of their biggest guns, or for every 80,000 rounds of rifle ammunition. The total cotton stocks in Germany at the outbreak of the war was estimated at 250,000 tons. This would have carried on the war for 250 days, or about eight months, had cotton, in the opinion of experts, been made contraband at the beginning of the war.

Fall Rye.
A field of two sown with fall rye may be used as pasture in the early spring or plowed under for green manure.

QUEER FIGHTERS.

Canadian Non-Com. Says Germans Are Poor at Close Quarters.

Of the original C Company, Q. O. R., 1st contingent, eight men answered the roll call after the battle of St. Julien. One of the men who fought through that for a day and a night, before being wounded in the shoulder with a shrapnel bullet, was Lance-Corporal James Thompson, who arrived at his home, 121 Davenport rd., Toronto, Lance-Corporal Thompson, after many months in a Bristol hospital, has been visiting his relatives at Sutton, P.Q., for the past three weeks. In private life he was a stone-worker, of the Thompson firm of stone-cutters, of Davenport road, and just now he is on furlough, but is not in a fit condition to take up his original work.

"It was shrapnel that got me," he stated, "and the same shell killed Lieut. Mado McDonald and wounded three others. The fighting at St. Julien was furious, and that is about all one remembers about it. We have received great credit for standing firm as we did, but I know the British Tommy would have done the same in the same position. Our fellows were all mad at the Germans, for back of us we could see the city of Ypres burning, and while on our way to relieve the first division in the trenches we met scores and scores of old men, women, and children fleeing along the roads, with no place to go. That is what made us so mad; we hardly remember the fight itself. I know Lieut. Kirkpatrick, just before he was killed, declared we would fight to the end, even if five times our number came against us.

"It was when we were ordered to clear out the section of wood you have all heard about that I got hit. If I hadn't, I suppose I would have been captured the same as were all the others who reached the woods. After being hit the doctor came along and told me to roll over into a ditch, where I would be out of the line of fire. I did so, and after awhile managed to crawl back, where I got help. After nine days in a French hospital I was moved to Bristol.

"The Germans are queer fighters. They have some excellent snipers, but when it comes to the general rifle fire they are no good at all. They are also afraid of the bayonet, and when our fellows get near them they either run or throw up their hands. Their artillery is excellent. All one morning we were entrenched on Well's farm, and in that time they dropped thirty shells right into our trenches. Only two men were killed, because the rest took refuge in the bomb shelters."

Lance-Corporal Thompson expects to rejoin his regiment if he recovers sufficiently to do so.

Authors in Khaki.

The announcement that Mr. John Masefield, the poet, is now serving with the Red Cross is a reminder that many men of letters are now in khaki. Captain A. E. W. Mason, who wrote, among other popular works of fiction, "Four Feathers," is serving with the Manchester Regiment, while that popular author and dramatist, Mr. Somerset Maugham, is also with the Red Cross.

Compton Mackenzie, who has been sending us such brilliant reports from the Dardanelles, is serving as a lieutenant out there; which calls to mind the fact that "Eye-Witness" at the beginning of the war was Colonel Swinton, who under the pseudonym of "Ole Luk-Oie" has written stories which are regarded as masterpieces of military writing. Mr. W. B. Maxwell, son of the late M. E. Braddon, who ranks among the popular novelists of the day, is serving as a lieutenant in the Royal Fusiliers; an enthusiastic member of the Royal Naval Air Service being the well-known playwright and novelist, Mr. Hamilton. Lord Dunsany, an author with a unique reputation, is in the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers.

Among other writers in khaki might be mentioned Lieut. Stephen Gwynn, M.P., journalist, novelist, and poet, who joined the Irish Brigade as a private, and was ultimately promoted; Dion Clayton Calthrop, who belongs to the Royal Naval Division; and that popular writer of short stories, Oliver Onions, who is proud of the fact that he is a "Terrier."

Airmen Are Sportsmen.

The fate of an airman who comes to grief generally becomes known to his comrades, and through them is communicated to his friends at home. The explanation of this is that a practice has sprung up on both sides of dropping messages into the opposing lines reporting exactly what has happened to any flyer who has been forced to descend. One of these messages dropped in the British lines showed an intimate knowledge of London. After mentioning that a particular airman had been taken prisoner, but was uninjured, the message continued: "Hope the British aviators are going strong. Give my regards to Leicester Square, de Piccadilly, and Mayfair. Sorry can't stay."

Coughed Up Bit of Shell.

Mrs. R. J. Craig of Cobourg, Ont., has received a letter from her son, Lieut. C. Stuart Craig, who was recently awarded the Military Cross for conspicuous heroism, an airman who was seriously wounded. A piece of shell had lodged in his lung, and during a recent heavy fit of coughing he coughed up the bit of shell. He had expected to return to the front from England about Christmas, but now has hopes of getting back sooner.

Britons Trained Greek Sailors.

Since 1911 a British naval mission has been superintending the training and organization of the Greek navy, which consists of two modern battleships, three small ones, fourteen destroyers, and a number of miscellaneous craft. One of their cruisers, the Aberoff, was acquired through a deceased millionaire of that name leaving the bulk of his fortune for improving the navy.

Making the Little Farm Pay

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

A Michigan family named De Rocher, occupying fifty acres at Big Bear Lake, is giving a good illustration of how to manage a small farm for profit.

Mr. and Mrs. De Rocher at first depended on bush fruits and vegetables for their living while bringing on an orchard of apples, pears and plums. Their main income now is from the larger fruits, which are sold mostly to private customers.

They keep little live stock or poultry because their taste runs to growing and handling fruits. Much of their product is canned, and by this means they are able to obtain retail prices. The most unique feature of their farming enterprise is the business which has been built up, in fancy canned fruit. This is where Mrs. De Rocher wields the power. She has studied her fruits and her market and carries the information in her mind ready to use at all times. A particular phase of her work has been to determine which varieties of fruit give best results in supplying a family trade. She has decided that no other kind of strawberry will hold its color so well or make such excellent preserves as the Warfield and the Senator Dunlap. These are similar varieties, but the Dunlap has a perfect blossom, while the Warfield needs fertilization from some other variety. For that reason the Dunlap is perhaps a little more favored, even though the Warfield has a slight advantage as a canning variety.

The De Rochers make a specialty of grape juice, and they use tons and tons of Concord grapes to make juice to supply their trade. Their finished product is as clear as crystal and of most delicious quality. They have a special way of making their grape juice and their jellies. They do not make the juice or jelly entirely at canning time, but just extract the juice from the fruit, heat and seal it in jugs or jars, with no sugar or anything else added. When it comes to the time of shipment they siphon the juice out and then add the sugar, heat and bottle for customers. This method has many advantages, and Mrs. De Rocher considers it one of the greatest helps to successful work. It saves considerable labor in rush times when they receive the fruit, and also, by siphoning, just the clear juice is drawn off and all of the settlings are left in the jug. This insures a very clear product of grape juice and jellies.

All of the canning products of this farm are put up in glass. The preserves, marmalades and canned goods are put up in pints and seven ounce sealed jars. Strawberry, plum and peach preserves are also put up in four ounce jars, commonly called individual, and are put up for the dining car trade. When customers are served with either of these products in the dining car they get them in the original package, which is not opened until it gets to the table. The jellies are put up in eight ounce screw top jars, and the grape juice is put up in pint and quart bottles with the metal top cork.

Their trade for these canned products consists of railroad dining cars, fashionable clubs and restaurants of Chicago and numerous wealthy families in Chicago and elsewhere. Some of these families have standing yearly orders. All of the products are sold before they are made. Mr. De Rocher goes to the regular customers in the spring and takes their orders for the season. After the canning business opens they take no orders, and the canning is done just to fill the orders they have on hand. Shipping is attended to as customers require the goods, so that some of the product is going forward all winter.

The annual profits at this farm are up in the thousands of dollars, for the orchard is now bearing, and there is a large output of apples, pears and plums to be added to the berries and garden truck. By the system in force for handling fruit there is little waste. Stock that is not marketed when picked is saved by preserving and canning methods. It is seldom that a farm family has as large an income as the De Rochers enjoy, and if they cared to go more extensively into gardening they could double the earnings of their little place.

ROLL OF HONOR

Several thousand officers and employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway enlisted for active military duty with the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, and the majority of them are now in Europe, fighting for Canada and the Empire. As particulars of army reservists are not available, these lists of those who have given up their lives for their country, or been wounded in action, are necessarily incomplete, and do not therefore indicate fully the extent to which the Company's officers and employees have participated in the great struggle.

SOLDIER OF FORTUNE

By RANDALL PARRISH
Copyright, 1912, by A. C. McClurg & Co.

I told him, and he agreed to send over certain papers to me by messenger. These arrived promptly, and I studied them carefully until nearly train time, getting all the facts firmly implanted in my mind. Mrs. Bernard and I met beneath the grim shadow of the train shed.

At first, as she came toward me through the crowd near the gate, holding out a neatly gloved hand, I could scarcely realize that this well-dressed, soft-voiced lady was the former homeless creature.

"So you did not even know me," she said pleasantly. "Oh, but you did. You were passing by when I spoke. Don't apologize, for really I take it as the highest compliment. You are wonderfully improved yourself. Is this our train?"

"Yes," and I took up the grip she designated as hers. "Let us get settled, and into the diner, for I am hungry as a wolf."

I had procured opposite sections, and before retiring we studied the papers, together with Vall's letter of instructions, and thus came to a complete understanding. She was quick-witted and spoke frankly, and yet when I finally lay down in my berth I felt less well acquainted with her than before. Somehow, in a manner inexplicable, a vague barrier had arisen between us. I could not trace it to any word or action on her part, and yet I felt held away by an invisible hand. Her very cordiality exhibited a reserve which made me clearly comprehend that the slightest familiarity would be checked.

It was at the close of the following afternoon when our train reached Carleton. The depot must have been a mile from the town, and very few people were upon the platform, two drummers and ourselves the only ones to disembark. The traveling men hastened to the nearest hack, while I glanced about in search of a conveyance. The only other vehicle present was a two-seated surrey, driven by a rather disreputable negro. I approached in some doubt.

"No, sah," he said, grinning. "Dis yere am my own curridge, sah; tain't nothin' ter do wid de Henley plantation. I reckon dey done didn't git te telegram. I reckon you're Massa Philip Henley, sah, though you've sure growed some since I saw you de last time. It's of Pete, sah. I reckon you remembers of Pete."

"Of course I do," I returned heartily, encouraged by his words to believe I would pass muster. "Can you drive us out?"

The negro scratched his head.

"I reckon as how I can, sah, least wise so far as ther gate. It's going to be plum dark when we gets dar, an' dis nigger don't fool round dar none in de dark."

"Why, what's the trouble, Pete?"

"Cause of Massa Henley's ghost was hangin' round, sah."

"Oh, pshaw," I laughed, turning toward the silent girl. "We will risk the ghost if you'll drive us out. Put in the grips."

He climbed into his place, but with no special alacrity, but whipped his team into a swift trot, evidently anxious to complete the trip as early as possible.

"Pete," I asked, "who is out there now?"

The negro turned so I could see the whites of his eyes.

"At de Henley plantation, sah? Why, I reckon de overseer an' de housekeeper—both white folks. I done don't know just who dey am fer shure, cause dey don't stay long no more. I reckon dey can't abide dat ghost, sah, an' de field han's dey won't stay on de place at all after dark."

"The overseer and housekeeper, then, are newly employed?"

"Dem am de fac's, sah. Deh ain't been dar no time at all, an' I reckon as how dey won't stay long, though de niggers say de overseer am a bad man."

Here was a pleasant situation surely. While the conditions were favorable enough so far as our purpose was concerned, yet I fervently wished we had postponed our arrival until daylight. While the negro's ghost had no terrors for me—indeed, merely afforded amusement—I realized my companion was not so indifferent. She pressed closer to me in the narrow seat, her eyes on the dusky shadows. Soon it became quite dark. I endeavored to laugh away her fears, but got little response. The road was a lonely one, although apparently well traveled, bordered by rail fences and deserted-looking fields.

Suddenly the negro pulled up before a high hedge, and I perceived the white glimmer of a gate opposite us, the black shadow of trees beyond.

Had had no sooner alighted and paid Pete than he wheeled his team and departed, whipping the horses into a run. I felt her hand grip my sleeve and glanced aside into her face.

"Frightened?" I asked, endeavoring to speak easily. "Don't let that fellow bother you; surely you do not believe in spooks?"

"No," her voice trembling, "but it is all so desolate. I—I wish we had waited until daylight."

"Well, frankly, so do I," I responded,

"but come on," and I picked up the suit cases. "We will probably be laughing at ourselves in five minutes. You will have to unlatch the gate."

It was held in place by a sagging rope, but opened noiselessly, and we advanced on to a brick walk, so little used as to be half hidden by weeds growing in the crevices. The moon dimly revealed rank vegetation on either side, while ahead beneath the tree shadows the darkness was profound. There was no sound, no faintest gleam of light, to indicate the house, and I was compelled to advance cautiously to keep to the path, which apparently wound about in the form of a letter "S." We were at the foot of the front steps, the building itself looming black before us almost before we realized its nearness.

At the top a man, seemingly a huge figure, suddenly emerged from the shadow of a column and confronted us. "What are you doin' here?" he ejaculated sullenly.

It was not in my nature to fear men, and this was evidently a man.

"You surely startled me, friend," I explained. "Are you the overseer?"

"I reckon I am, but what I want to know is who you are."

"I'm striving to regain my wits," I said. "I am—am Philip Henley. We—we have just got in from the north."

"Is that a woman with you?"

"Yes. May we come in?"

"Oh, I reckon I ain't got no license to turn yer away if yer mind ter risk it. Lord knows I'm willin' 'nough to hav' company. Git yer duds, an' I'll light up so yer kin see a bit."

He disappeared, and I logged the grips to the top of the steps, where we waited. Then a faint light streamed out through the open door, a moment later outlining his figure.

"Come on in," he said, still gruffly. "Yer don't need be afeerd of me, mam, and de housekeeper'll be yere directly."

I confess I entered the dim hall reluctantly, obsessed by some strange remembrance of danger. But Mrs. Bernard clung to me, and the sight of her white face gave me new courage.

CHAPTER V.
A Pleasant Welcome.

It was an old-fashioned living room into which we entered, the floor unswept, the chairs faded and patched. Curtains were drawn closely at the windows, while the single oil lamp stood on a center table littered with old newspapers. The shading of the light gave me only a partial view of the man, but he was big, loose-jointed, having enormous shoulders, his face so hidden by a heavy mustache and low drawn hat that I could scarcely perceive its outline. He appeared a typical rough, wearing high boots, with an ugly-looking revolver in a belt holster.

"Where are you from?" I asked, surprised at this display of firearms.

"Texas," with a grin not altogether pleasant. "That's an ol' friend. I was hired fer to keep people outter this shebang. There ain't no work goin' on, so I don't hav' no niggers to keep folks out."

"Who employed you?"

"That don't make no difference. Those wus my orders—not to talk nor let anybody hang 'round except you folks."

"Then we were excepted?" in surprise.

"Sure, I reckon yer'd 'a' been hoofin' it up the road long afore this otherwise. Still, I dunno," with a suggestive wink. "I've got a likin' for pretty girls."

I glanced at her, where she had sank down on a dilapidated sofa, but no expression of her face told me she had overheard. It was the man's wink, more than his language, which angered me.

"Cut out your references to the lady," I said in a low tone, "unless you are starting in for trouble."

"Oh, skittish, hey! Yer needn't ride no high hoss with me."

His words sufficed to silence my batteries. I felt no fear of the man, big as he was and armed, but the thought that he might have been sent there by either Neale or Vall and informed of the conspiracy made me cautious about angering him. I must discover first the exact situation before locking horns with this Texas steer.

"Oh, do you?" I returned carelessly. "All right, then, we'll let it go at that."

Only please remember the lady is under my protection. What is your name?"

"Coombs," in better humor, feeling he had bluffed me. "Bill Coombs."

"Can we have a bit of lunch?"

"I reckon yer can. Of Sally is a rustlin' some grub now. I stirred her up when I first cum in."

He sat down crosslegged on a chair the other side the littered table and stared at us, his hat still drawn down over his eyes. I spoke to her quietly in a voice which would not carry across the room.

"Don't mind him," I whispered. "He's only a rough neck trying to bully a bit. I'll teach him his place before tomorrow."

"It is not the man so much," she replied, giving me a glimpse of her eyes. "But it is all so desolate and gloomy."

"Shadows won't hurt us, and this place will look better by daylight."

"You haven't any nerves."

"Oh, yes, I have; only they are trained. I didn't anticipate an easy job when I came down here. I am beginning to wonder if those fellows were square, if they gave me the straight story. Coombs' words would seem to indicate that he knows I'm a fraud. Perhaps he didn't mean that, but it sounded so. Why should they tell that rough neck their plans and send him down here? I'll find out what he knows and how he knows it before another ten hours. If he's here to spy on us I'll make him earn his money."

"I hardly know why I consented to come, only I was so miserable; anything seemed better than the life I was leading."

"You saw all the papers," I interposed, "and they bear out every statement."

"Yes. But could they not be forged? Why should any honest lawyer advise a client to undertake such a fraud? It seems to me we are actually criminals, engaged in a criminal plot. Because the plan was concocted by a lawyer makes no difference. We could be arrested, imprisoned."

"We shall have to play out the game tonight at least," I said, startled by her earnestness. "I will talk with Coombs and will tell you the result tomorrow. Your nerves are all unstrung, and the affair may appear different by daylight."

The Texan got noisily to his feet and swaggered across the floor.

"If you all hav' got through yer whisperm," he said roughly, "I reckon Sally's got her grub laid out."

I bit my lips to keep back a not reply, feeling the restraint of her eyes, and we followed him into the next room. The table was set for two, and I could distinguish the shadow of a woman standing motionless in the farther corner.

"Yer kin talk it out yere," announced Coombs, waving one hand, "cause I won't be present, havin' already. I reckon Sally won't interere none."

He slammed the door viciously going out, causing the lamp to sputter. Then the woman came silently forward, a coffeepot in her hand. She was a mulatto perhaps thirty years of age, her face scarred by smallpox, and with strangely furtive eyes. Somehow she fitted into the scene, and I saw my companion gazing at her almost with horror as she fitted about us silently as a specter. I endeavored to talk while eating heartily, for I was hungry, but found it difficult to arouse Mrs. Bernard to any response, and she merely toyed with her food.

When the colored woman went out Mrs. Bernard dropped her fork and pushed back her chair.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.
Lesson VII.—Fourth Quarter, For Nov. 14, 1915.

Text of the Lesson, Dan. i, 8-20—Memory Verse, 15—Golden Text, I Cor. xvi, 13—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

I am very glad to have the privilege of writing a lesson on Daniel, even though it be what is called a temperance lesson, for we shall find much more in it than appears on the surface. He is mentioned in Ezek. xiv, 14, 20, with Noah and Job as noted for their righteousness. He is mentioned by the Lord Jesus in Matt. xxiv, 15, in connection with the great tribulation at the end of this age immediately preceding the return of the Lord in His glory, to which Daniel also refers in chapters ix, 27; xii, 1. We recently saw a little captive maid glorifying the God of Israel under very trying circumstances, and in this lesson we see four captive young men glorifying the God of Israel under difficulties. The Lord permitted this oppression and captivity because of the sin of Judah and gave Jehoiakim and some of his people and some of the vessels of the house of God into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and among the captives were these four young men of royal blood, who were chosen to stand in the king's palace and to be taught the learning and tongue of the Chaldeans that they might stand before the king (verses 3-5).

They were to have a three years' course of preparation for their calling, and as to their food they were nourished from the king's table daily the same meat and wine which he ate and drank. At least that was the provision made for them. It was humiliating for an Israelite to be a captive. It was humiliating to have their beautiful Jewish names, each of which had in its own suggestion of the true God of Jehovah, changed to names suggestive of idols (verses 6, 7). But this they could bear without any sin on their part. Our Lord Jesus Christ Himself was taken prisoner, bound and led by His captors as they pleased. They also called Him a devil and Beelzebub and said that He was beside Himself. So in these two particulars they were foreshadowing the sufferings of Christ.

When we suffer in these ways we have fellowship with Him in His sufferings. When it came to eating and drinking that which had been offered to idols Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself, and he'doubt he had prayed to his God about this. He asked permission of the prince of the eunuchs that he and his friends might be excused from receiving the food from the king's table and be given very plain fare, which had not passed that way, asking that they might be proved for ten days. The same God who permitted them thus far to suffer for His sake now gave them favor in the sight of this man, and he consented to prove them. At the end of ten days they were fairer and fatter in flesh than those who did eat the portion of the king's meat, so it was kept from them, and they were given the plain fare, which had not been offered to idols. See Deut. xxxii, 37, 38. If this is a temperance lesson the same principle applies to food as to drink.

To my mind it is a lesson on the necessity of keeping one's self wholly for God in every particular and of being willing to submit cheerfully to difficult circumstances for His sake. In chapter x, 2, 3, Daniel says that for three weeks he did without pleasant bread or flesh or wine, while he mourned and waited upon God for a special purpose, implying that he did not always see the necessity of denying himself food that could have the blessing of God. As to the sin of intemperance or self-indulgence in any matter, the teaching of scripture is very plain, and the futility and beastliness of strong drink could scarcely be more vividly described or condemned than in Isa. v, 11, 12, 22, 23; xxvii, 7, 8. The only remedy is in Christ Jesus, who alone can forgive sin and give the sinner a new nature and such a purpose to keep one's self wholly for Him as Daniel had.

Though he stood before the earthly king in a place of honor, he stood more conscientiously before the King of kings, for whose sake he in his old age went to the lion's den rather than dishonor him by any fear of man, for whose sake his three friends went to the fiery furnace rather than bow down to any image which man might set up. No doubt Daniel and his friends were prayerfully diligent in their Chaldean studies, but God gave them knowledge and skill in all learning and wisdom, and He gave Daniel understanding in all visions and dreams, so that these young men were ten times better than all the magicians and astrologers in the whole realm (verses 17-20). On three different occasions related in this book, when all the wisdom of Babylon's wise men failed, Daniel did not fail once because his God never failed him. Any believer who is willing to pay the price by self-denial and indifference to what others say or think of you and a purpose of heart to see no one but Jesus only and covet only His approval may know the power of God as others cannot. The whole cost of salvation fell upon Jesus Christ, and we receive freely what He so fully provided and paid for. But to be His faithful witnesses we must have the devotion, self-denial and continuance of Daniel.

WHY YOU ARE NERVOUS

The nervous system is the alarm system of the human body.

In perfect health we hardly realize that we have a network of nerves, but when health is ebbing, when strength is declining, the same nervous system gives the alarm in headaches, tiredness, dreamful sleep, irritability and unless corrected, leads straight to a breakdown.

To correct nervousness, Scott's Emulsion is exactly what you should take; its rich nutriment gets into the blood and rich blood feeds the tiny nerve-cells while the whole system responds to its refreshing tonic force. Free from harmful drugs. Scott & Bowne, Toronto, Ont.

CARLETON PLACE COUNCIL.

Petition Presented with 409 Names, Asking For Local Option Bylaw at Municipal Election.

The regular monthly meeting of the Carleton Place Town Council was held last evening, the Mayor in the chair and every member present. The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

CORRESPONDENCE.
A letter was read from Mrs. Rigby asking release of taxes for Mrs. Wall-work's house on Grant street, she not being able to pay same.

From H. Brown & Sons complaining of the breaking of street lamps.
From Jacob Dickson re taxes on property on Woodword street.

From the London Mutual Insurance Co. objecting to the installation of a gasoline tank in cellar of hardware store.

The members of the Ocean Wave Fire Co. asked same grant as last year, viz., $500.

Messrs. W. McDiarmid and A. H. Abbott petitioned for a light on McArthur avenue.

A number of accounts were read and referred to Committee.

Mr. Nichols reported that the street work had been completed so far as outlined, and within the estimate.

Moved by Mr. Pattie, seconded by Mr. Dummert, that the following accounts be paid, and that the Mayor grant the necessary orders on the Treasurer:

Carried

Mr. Dummert reported that the Fire and Light Committee had visited McArthur avenue, and would recommend another light. The distance was over 500 feet and there was only one light at present. No poles would be required.

On motion of Messrs. Steele and Dolan, the matter of the light on McArthur Avenue was left in the hands of the Fire and Light Committee.

A discussion took place on the letter of Messrs. Brown & Sons regarding the breakage of street lamps.

Moved by Mr. McNeely, seconded by Mr. Dolan, that a reward of $5.00 be offered for evidence that will lead to the conviction of the party or parties guilty of breaking the electric lamps on the streets.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Hughes, seconded by Mr. Nichols, that the usual grant of $500 be made to the Ocean Wave Fire Company.—Carried.

A petition containing 409 names was presented to Council, asking for the submission of a Local Option Bylaw at approaching municipal election.

Quite a lengthy discussion took place regarding the objection of the London Mutual Insurance Co. to the gasoline tank on the Muirhead property.

It was moved by Mr. Dummert, seconded by Mr. Nichols, that the Property Committee interview Mr. Muirhead regarding installation of gasoline tank in cellar, as the Council has since learned that the insurance rates will be raised on surrounding property.—Carried.

The Mayor stated that he had received a request from some young men requesting the free use of the hall for an assembly, the proceeds from which were to be given to the Red Cross Society.

The Council thought the regular schedule should apply.

Mr. Dummert suggested the appointment of a joint delegation to interview the C.P.R. regarding the repair shops here.

A discussion followed in which the train service and other matters of interest to the town were brought up.

The Mayor agreed to interview the president of the Board of Trade, with a view to a conference.

On motion of Messrs. Pattie and Dummert, the Council adjourned to meet again on the 29th instant, when a number of bylaws are to be introduced.

E. W. Southern, keeper of a light house at West Port, Digby County, has written to Hon. J. D. Hazen, authorizing a deduction of $100 from his salary during 1915, to be used at his discretion for purposes in connection with the war. He is receiving a salary of $500 a year.

"She Did What She Could."

A lady called at the Press office on Tuesday and contributed to the Red Cross Fund. She said she was giving a dollar bill that had been in her possession for 17 years. The bill was given her by her mother before she died, and she had kept it as a keepsake, but she thought it would be a blessing to someone if she gave it to the Red Cross, and in the name of her dead mother she gave it. The same lady has frequently contributed to the Red Cross Fund, although she has to earn her own living, and has need for every dollar she earns.—Winchester Press.

Defendant Wins.

Mr. Richard Pierce, of Franktown, figured as defendant in an interesting case tried at Peterboro yesterday before Judge Huycke. Some years ago the Canadian Cordage Co. canvassed this section and quite a large number of farmers and others purchased stock. Later on the company went into liquidation and the liquidator brought over 100 actions to compel subscribers to pay up. Mr. Pierce, among other defenses, set up forgery and a very interesting legal battle took place. Mr. Wilson McCue was counsel for Mr. Pierce and S. Birnie of Peterboro, acted for the liquidator. After the evidence was in and His Honor heard argument he dismissed the action with costs.—Smith's Falls News.

An Old Burying Ground.

There is a little cemetery of about twelve or fourteen mounds in the heart of the woods, all grown up with pines, on the east half of lot 20 and 5th concession of Dalhousie. We are told the pioneer settlers of eighty and ninety years ago, are buried there, and families by the names of Proven and Paul are among them. There has not been any burials made there in over fifty years, but the mounds are all marked. In the early days there was only a trail through the woods to Lanark, and at that time few houses were to be seen in Perth. When the early settlers came to Lanark the government store presented them with an axe, auger, a pit saw and an adze. It is quite interesting to listen to stories related by some of the older inhabitants in the Dalhousie district.—Perth Courier.

A spectacular fire in the Reid building, Montreal, Friday afternoon spreading to other buildings. The fire fighting forces were out. Three firemen were killed.

Dr. J. W. S. McCullough, Chief Health Officer for Ontario, and Dr. C. J. O. Hastings, Toronto's Medical Officer of Health, opposed before Hon. Frank E. Hodgins the efforts of osteopaths, chiropractors and others to obtain legal recognition and licenses in Ontario.

DISEASES OF THE NERVES.

Are Due to Poor Blood and Only Curable Through the Blood.

There is an excellent reason why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured the most severe cases of neuralgia, sciatica and other complaints in the group known as disorders of the nerves. This group also included nervousness and excitability. Each of these complaints exists because the nerves are not getting a proper nourishment from the blood. The reason why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure nervous disorders is because they make the rich, red blood upon which the nerves depend for proper tone. It is thus seen that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure nervous disorders because they go to the root of the trouble in the blood, and while they are doing this they strengthen and fortify the whole system against disease. Among the many who have found relief from pain through this great medicine is Miss Ethel Smith, residing near Burford, Ont., who says:—"Some years ago I was seized with a great pain in my right leg, between the hip and knee. It became so bad that I got no rest, day or night, and often cried with the pain. The doctor said the trouble was rheumatism of the sciatic nerve. Liniments were used until they actually took the skin off, and still the pain grew worse and worse. Then the doctor put the limb in a paper mache cast, but it was not long until the trouble began in my other limb and it had to be treated in the same way. I lay in that condition for three years, with my whole nervous system so badly shattered that it would make me scream if any one walked across the floor. Then my throat became partially paralyzed and I could scarcely speak. During this time I had been attended by three different doctors who did all in their power, but each said I would never be able to walk again. Then my father decided to get me Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Before I had used them long I felt then helping me. This so encouraged us that the use of the pills was continued and in a few months I was able to walk half a mile each day to get the mail. I used in all eighteen or twenty boxes of the Pills and they did what three years of doctoring had not been able to do. I am as well as ever I was in my life, and have had no return of the trouble. My family and friends think my cure was a miracle, and we give all the credit to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Northern Messenger.

Our good old Sunday "story-teller" friend, the "Northern Messenger," has been for nearly fifty years a favorite with the Canadian people. It gives splendid value for the money, and contributes largely to a Sunday so well spent as to bring a week of content. A strong ally to the temperance cause and every other moral reform, and truly a character builder.

It is such a fine paper that many of the largest city Sunday Schools distribute it as their regular Sunday School paper. For they realize that a paper which gives so much for the money and interests the older members of the family as well as the youngsters, gives the parents an additional incentive to see that their children attend school every Sunday. And through the weekly visits of the "Northern Messenger" the church helps to cheer and hearten many who cannot, and others who will not attend its services.

For over half a century the "Northern Messenger" has been beloved all over Canada.

On trial to New Subscribers—To individual addresses, 12 months for 30 cents; Sunday Schools, in any required quantity, 3 weeks Free trial; Clubs of ten copies a week to one address for 12 months for $2.50. Larger clubs pro rata.

The "Northern Messenger" is published by John Dougall & Son, "Witness" Block, Montreal, Can. Try it for a year.

Offers of county battalions, nearly a dozen a day, are being made to Ottawa. Nothing like it ever happened before.
